"Every character in 'The Covered Wagon' is a real human being. Each represents the pride of American manhood and the triumph of great discovery days in California. Some are bad, others indifferent, but the majority are of noble texture, staunch and true. It is these human qualities which make the story of this tremendous production—tense, appealing and wonderfully effective as a dramatic entertainment."

"The Covered Wagon" will enthrall every spectator. It isn't just one of those pictures every American caught to see, but will see. It is a photograph which serves a double purpose. It entertains and instructs—it screens masterpieces of art."

Business.
 Sioux City Journal: Trade for the most part is marking-time. What with the development of the middle west corn crop being still undecided and the application of the Daves reparations plan in Europe and yet begun, American business merely is waiting to see what is going to happen. For general business in this country, more than anywhere else, perhaps, is affected by international conditions. The trading in stocks and bonds, the lending of money, the expansion of manufacturing and the selling of goods—all these react to what goes on at home and abroad because the markets for American business are here and elsewhere.

The most compelling business issue in the section of the country at large is the corn crop. This is what has been for the past six weeks or more—the final decision on the corn crop. Iowa corn is doing well now. Warmer weather with plenty of sunshine and a generous amount of moisture in the ground, and corn has jumped the last two weeks. But it must keep on jumping for some time yet. It will do that if the weather permits.

Right now there is a stronger hope than has been held out for some time. It is that it may be said that, in the middle west, weather, good or bad, may become a habit. Unseasonable weather was a habit all summer. For a month ago, it was with its warm days and nights will become a habit and extend into September. If it does, corn is not going to be a bad crop. It will not be as good as Iowa has raised in years past and will produce in years to come but it will be better than anything that has been raised in a month ago.

The Indiana winter crop is said to be in three weeks behind its growing schedule. Illinois corn is about two weeks behind, and the same may be said of the crop in Ohio. Iowa corn is placed as behind to be a little bit ahead of that in any of these states. Missouri's crop is farther ahead and so is Nebraska's. The yield in the corn belt will not be heavy. It is safe to say that now, regardless of what September weather is going to do, high corn is inevitable, and still higher prices are possible if the good weather does not last.

As to the situation abroad affecting business, it can be said that there have been developments distinctly promising. The German reparations plan following its movements in favor of this Berlin government's delegates to the allied conference. This is seen as a dependable indication that American export business is going to be encouraged appreciably from now on. Europe is not so far from the corn and wheat fields of the middle west and the northwest. When Europe puts its house in order by applying the Daves bill, the American farmers will be called upon to supply larger amounts of food products than they have gone to the old world since the war.

Manufacturing also will be encouraged here. The whole outside world may be represented as being on a run toward condition economically. Europe, however, will strengthen perceptibly when the Daves plan begins to operate, becoming both a buying and a selling market. United States exports have been increasing somewhat over imports for the last year. That increase no doubt will be more marked now that Europe is about to solve its economic problem. A few months hence and a much different story about the economic recovery of world business may be told. And in the telling it goes without saying that some important chapters of the narrative are bound to be the truly American. The United States occupies a position of great importance in the world's business. The American people may be looking forward now to an era of great prosperity.

KITCHEN KOOK

THE IDEAL COOK STOVE

The Albert Lea Kitchenkook is the answer to a definite demand from thousands of dealers as well as users of the well known American Kampkook for a kitchen stove operating upon the same principle. It should not be confused with any other type of gas-line or oil stove as it is entirely different in construction and method of operation, far superior in speed, cleanliness and safety.

The Kitchenkook makes and burns its own gas from common gas-oil, producing a clear blue flame entirely free from smoke, soot and odor, not only while the stove is new but permanently. It is a pressure forced stove which means that the fuel is forced from the supply tank to the generator by air pressure quickly supplied with the brass pump which accompanies each stove. This not only enables the Kitchenkook to operate satisfactorily on low grade motor gasoline but contributes to its marvelous speed and economy. Comparative tests show that the Albert Lea Kitchenkook produces

50 to 100 per cent More Heat than other stoves

The master burner is quickly generated. The supply valve is then turned wide open and the burner starts off with any size flame desired. The other burners produce gas for the other burners which may be turned on or off like city gas. All burners may be regulated simultaneously or independently to any size flame desired.

The Kitchenkook uses no wicks, it has no chimneys to waste the heat by radiation, the burners do not clog and never require cleaning. Supply tank holds one gallon. The Kitchenkook is unusually well built and durable and finished throughout in black enamel.

This safety test shows the remarkable safety of the Albert Lea Kitchenkook. The illustration is a reproduction of an actual photograph made while the stove was burning. Do you know of any other stove which you would dare submit to this test?

we profess, and let the Golden Rule inspire our thoughts and deeds. Let us not do violence to our own Christian principles by heaving bricks at those who adhere to dissent with us. We will all have to use the same terminal facilities in heaven if we finally reach there.

A recent issue of the Columbus Telegram quotes a Minneapolis man, who had just returned from southern California, and who blamed the climate of the southwest for failure of the people to get along well there. He says the warm California climate saps energy and ambition from one who is accustomed to stimulating cold. He says he has lost track of twenty Minnesota fellows who went to Los Angeles well off, and that now all but three are financially embarrassed. He held the climate largely responsible. The returning tourist who is a former college professor, defending snappy cold as an inspiration to achievement, says that the climate is either a stimulant or a composer, a great artist or a great scientist produced anything worth while in the summer months. Fall and early winter are the best times of the year to live. The biggest fortunes in every phase of financial activity are made during the fall and winter.

People who talk a great deal without doing anything, are like a hollow load. Excessive talkativeness, like excessive perspiration, is weakening. It is hard for the man who keeps his air charged with vocal disturbances to hold a job. It is better for him to hold a job if he happens to get one. Some salesmen do not get along well because they talk themselves out of sale. Sometimes, men wonder why neighbors will go around a block to miss them. They just talk too much. People escape from voluminous talkers as they would flee from an approaching storm or an impending epidemic of seven-year itch.

Governor Charles W. Bryan, vice presidential candidate, fired the opening gun of the democratic campaign in the United States when Mr. Slous, S. D., on Labor day, as evidence of political backbone, witness this brief extract: "Contrast the record of the democratic administration with what this country has experienced and suffered during the past four years."

Mr. Bryan's record was handed down by the previous administration. It was great enough to make At the fall to his knees and cry out despair. He hoped the contrast, made by his own record, would be drawn sharply and clearly.

Mr. Bryan and many subsequent groups came to America to demand religious freedom. The constitution of the United States dropped its pretense, folds about all religious sects in the United States and asks to worship in accordance with the dictate of conscience. Let us get away from the spirit of toleration in the name of a non-fundamental document and which has been perpetuated through succeeding years. Rather than persecute religion, let us make the most of the religion.

Election Ballot is Ready.
Lincoln, Neb., Sept. 3.—Secretary of State Pool said that no protests have been filed against the mass convention men of La. Follet and Wheeler for president and vice president, or against John N. Norton, democratic nominee for governor to fill the vacancy caused by the retirement of Charles W. Bryan, the state ballot is practically completed and ready for certification to county clerks.

The progressive party nomination of Dan B. Butler of Omaha for governor, which Secretary Pool rejected as not complying with the state law, has been dropped so far as appears on the surface, the secretary said.

Had it not been for the bank and the fence he would have met the train squarely on the track, probably with fatal results.

PRESIDENT IS HOST TO "BIG THREE"

President Coolidge relating the history of a sap bucket which was the property of his great grandfather. This bucket was presented to Mr. Ford by the President. The picture, taken at the home of the President's father in Vermont, shows left to right: Mr. Firestone, the President, Mr. Ford, Mr. Edson, Mrs. Coolidge, Russell Firestone and Mr. John Coolidge, father of the President.

Washington, Aug. 30.—One of the outstanding features of the vacation trip of President Coolidge, who has just returned from a two-week stay at his father's farm in Vermont, was the visit of Henry Ford, Thomas A. Edison and Harvey S. Firestone. On their annual camping trip, these three geniuses of industry and invention called upon the President on an automobile tour through New England, and for several hours discussed with him various problems and conditions. All three of them assured him of their hearty support of his candidacy for election. The chief topic of conversation was the future prosperity of the country. The three camping companions assured the President that in their opinion the continued improving prosperity of the country depended upon the condition of the farmer. Agriculture must prove profitable for America to continue prosperous, they said. "I think times are getting better, and for sound agricultural reasons," said Mr. Ford. Interviewed during his call upon President Coolidge, Mr. Edson said: "We'll have great prosperity if the corn does not get nipped and crops in general are good."

Mr. Firestone declared that the farmer was the keystone of American prosperity. "Conditions in this country will not grow better so long as the farmer is prosperous and he is the barometer by which to judge conditions. His is the basic industry of the country, and the one upon which our prosperity depends." After leaving the President's farm Mr. Ford, Mr. Edison and Mr. Firestone continued their tour through the Green Mountains, stopping now and then to talk with the people of rural New England and view the countryside. They spent the early part of their vacation at Mr. Ford's Wayside Inn, at Southbury. Before visiting the President, Mr. Ford returned to 5,000 New England farmers at his Wayside Inn, situated at Southbury, Mass. With Mr. Edison and Mr. Firestone he supervised the giving of a rural demonstration, and invited the Farm Bureau Federation to use his grounds for its annual gathering. On the same day the National Farm Loan Association gathered at Mr. Firestone's old homestead in Columbiana county, Ohio, for its annual picnic, at the residence of Mrs. Firestone, who sent his son, Harvey, Jr., to welcome them in his absence.

Crowds which filled the grounds each day and without which no fair can really be termed a success. It is with deep gratitude and profound respect that the management wishes to express their thanks to the people of Dixon and surrounding country for their liberal patronage, broad-minded fairness and progressive spirit, all of which contributed so tremendously to the success of the fair, also too much credit cannot be given to the superintendent who labored hard and incessantly not only during fair week but throughout the entire year to make each department one of the outstanding features of the fair. How well they succeeded can best be judged by the scores of compliments heard expressed on every hand by the masses of people who visited their efforts. One of the feature attractions which called forth favorable comment from the crowds included the famous guideless horse, pacing a mile heat without a driver and on the second day of the Dixon county fair beating his own record on a half mile track and also setting up a new world's record for a guideless horse, going in 2:05 2-5. Both timer and starter were licensed men of the American Trotting association. The spectacular fireworks on each night of the fair caused expressions of wonder and admiration, while the free acts were well received. The evening program was long and complete and by everyone who was privileged to witness the races. Some fifty-six horses were entered and each race was hotly contested from beginning to end. The stock exhibits so far exceeded the expectations of the management that special stalls had to be erected at the last minute in order to provide room, while the girls' and boys' pig and calf clubs showed some of the finest stock ever exhibited at a fair. No other enterprise of a permanent character yet devised has met so many tastes and interests of the general public, or is a more complete or intimate expression of the spirit of progress in its particular community as the county fair. Market Report

(Furnished by Swanson, Omer & Walsh.)

Sioux City Stock Yards, Sept. 3.—What it took all week to do in the way of injury to the fat cattle trade, it took only one good session to erase the damage. Tuesday of this week packers added 25 to 50 cents to killing cattle prices and were willing and urgent operators at the sharp advance. The Monday trade can hardly be taken into consideration as all markets were closed except Sioux City, while locally the packing houses were shut down, although it is true that the representatives of the closed plants completed purchases as usual.

On the crest of the reactionary rise fat steer tops bounded up to $11.25 duplicating the crest brought out several weeks ago. The peak was made by some branded Floridians averaging 1,125 pounds. Numerous transactions of fat steers ranged up to $10.25 on the same session, while under $9 the trading was very light. Corn fed cows and heifers fell off of the bullishness accorded beef steers. Generally the outfit figures 25 to 30 cents higher and many fall land transactions figure from $8.75 to $9.25 on the second trade of the week.

Genoa cows are still down and more than that give very little indication of staging a comeback. At prices 50 cents to $1 lower for the last two weeks, the packers continue to load up with all cattle receiving more material than needed to supply demands. The outstanding sale of the fat steers fomite trade came this week with the clearing of two straight loads of Wyoming heifers at $6. Best cow figure but little above $5, with the bulk of the yearlings figure from $4.25 to $5.25 and low grade kinds are down around $3.25. Feeding steers are off about 25 to 50 cents from the high points touched a week ago last Monday. The trade backed up when farmers started to display a tendency to hold back in buying. However, at the reduction more life has been infused in trade and the market is again showing a fairly healthy tone. Good to choice feeders figure from $7.25 to $8, although no arrivals this week hit the extreme top quoted. Best stock steers stop around $7.50, with selected yearlings and calves between $7 and $7.25. Many good-to-choice western steers averaging from 800 to 1,000 pounds sold this week from $6.25 to $7.75.

Feeding heifers at prices about 25 cents off from the high point found a buoyant outlet. Fished up western heifers hit $5.25 for a pound, while the bulk of the fat to good thin heifers again sold out of first hands from $4 to $5 for weights ranging from 400 to 600 pounds. Thin cows sold all the way from $2.25 to $4 with the bulk of the good useful kinds from $3.25 to $3.50.

At the northwestern markets hogs receipts are running into one of the highest amounts of the year. The bulk can be taken as any criterion of the future. The prospective shrinkage should have a tendency to spar packers on to greater efforts in the battle with eastern shippers for the best butchers. Some moderate gains may therefore be anticipated on the choice corn fat hogs. On the other hand grass and plain hogs may meet discrimination as the result and it might be added that signs of such adverse treatment have already been reflected in the packer attitude.

At the opening of the week again values cracked sharply with excessive runs reported around the circle. Receipts should follow shortly. The movement of western hams should gain considerable headway before the finish of the present month.

Car Load of Tractors Just Received

We have just received for the farmers of this community a car load of the famous McCormick-Deering tractors. The lot consists of 10-20 two-plow tractors, and 15-30 three-plow tractors.

Special Tractor Warranty

The seller agrees to replace free the two-bearing crankshaft in any 10-20 or 15-30 McCormick-Deering Tractor, should it break during the life of the tractor, provided the broken parts are promptly returned to the factory or one of its branch houses.

Further, the seller agrees to replace free any crankshaft ball bearing in the 10-20 or 15-30 McCormick-Deering Tractor, which may break, wear out or burn out during the life of the tractor, provided that the defective ball bearing is promptly returned to the factory or one of its branch houses.

High-Grade Ball and Roller Bearings

There is a predominance of high-class roller and ball bearings used in the McCormick-Deering 15-30 Tractor. Roller and ball bearings are much more durable than plain bearings. They are easily lubricated and long lived. As everyone knows, ball and roller bearings reduce friction which makes more power available at the drawbar and on the belt.

These ball and roller bearings are to the tractor what the jewel bearings are to a watch. They reduce friction and insure proper working of the parts.

The New Power Take-Off Be Sure the Tractor You Buy Has a Real One

When you tractorize your farm don't do things by halves. Prepare to take care of all your power needs for years to come. Get enough power for all your machines and all your jobs. Get a complete tractor with no extras to buy. Get handy, ample power for belt work and drawbar work. McCormick-Deering gives you this and is specially designed for the addition of a third important source of power—the Power Take-Off. This is the greatest tractor improvement in years. With it you can run the mechanism of machines in the field direct from the tractor engine through a revolving shaft. Some day you may want to run a 10-foot binder, or a corn picker, etc., in soft ground. Then you will need the Power Take-Off which enables the tractor to run the working parts. The bull wheel only needs to carry the weight of the binder. You can operate the binder and clear it in heavy grain, while the tractor is standing still. (Others can't do this.) The Power Take-Off can be added to the McCormick-Deering in a few minutes' time.

If you need a tractor, let us show you these wonderful McCormick-Deering products. They will solve many farm problems and meet your highest expectations.

From Other Editors

Humphrey Democrat: Who knows best the proper molding of the lives of the youth that are the hope of these United States, so that they will become respectable and responsible citizens and a credit to themselves and their country? Is it the parents, or is it our Congress who knows best how to assume and take up their great responsibility? There is a proposed child labor amendment to the United States Constitution which has already been passed and will now go to the states for ratification. Being Congress therefore to prohibit all labor by persons under 18 years of age. If this amendment is ratified, it shall be as parents or guardians have no control over the labor of our children. First we will have to admit that that from the factories in the big cities come tales of distressed and penniless child labor that should be corrected, but when our Congress presumes to take hold of the reins of parental government and make labor under 18 years of age a crime, we believe that some of the soundest stones in the very foundation of our government are being removed. Nothing should be allowed to interfere with the proper education of the child. His education should be compulsory. But a reasonable amount of labor is but a part—and a very important part—of the child's education that properly molds him into useful and desirable citizenship. We have living lessons all around us today from which to draw these conclusions. We have the idle children, and they are usually led from both work and education. Our police records and reform schools are crowded with their names. Then we have the idle rich children who get the school education minus the important factor of any real manual labor. The Loeb-Leopold case in Chicago is only one of the many that is the inevitable outcome from that tangled Congress could render a real blessing should they ever have that all children, rich or poor, should perform a reasonable amount of physical labor until their majority in age has been attained. In after years the children would "rise up and call them blessed."

York Republican: One does not need to travel far in an automobile to realize the tremendous danger of grade crossings. They offer a never-ending menace to the safety of our lives and our property. Where caution is not displayed. But it is doubtful if they ever can or will be eliminated. In 1922, 706 were killed and 25,000 injured by grade crossings and they cost $70,000,000. There are over 256,000 grade crossings in the country and it would require an estimated expenditure of twenty-two billions to remove them. As a substitute people must be taught to cross railroad crossings cautiously. One railroad company has adopted the expedient of furnishing clubs with signs to be attached to cars which read, "This car stops at All Railroad Crossings. Where these clubs are organized there has been noted more cautious observance of the crossing rules. Automobile travel is certain to become heavier as the years go by and the increasing danger of crossing accidents must be met with better observance of rules of safety.

with claims that they are expressions of liberty and progress will find themselves confounded when the Golden rule of common sense is applied. In our progress to the world of order liberality we must not permit the idealism of the constitution to be sacrificed to the expediency of the moment. In other words, we must exercise common sense, and that is the governing factor in the choice of President Coolidge's life.
Newman Grove Reporter: The leaders of all three of the political parties could not do otherwise than repudiate the Ku Klux Klan. While the principles adopted by this organization are not objectionable and the parent motives that actuate a large majority of their members are good, yet, notwithstanding the Klan has fallen into disrepute in many localities. The Klan is a typical special organization. Excepting on special occasions no one outside its membership knows where it meets or when it meets. The public in general does not know who belongs to it. Its own members will not admit their membership when questioned. In public when they appear they are in disguise. In some places the Klan has constituted a censorship over the expression of opinion that is not known to the public. The accused has no recourse. It is a thing that is not known. If one town in this state, several inhabitants, whose motives were objectionable to the Klan were driven out of town. There was no alternative. They had to obey the command of the invisible empire. Possibly these people were not desirable citizens, but who has a right except the courts who favor this organization should read the bill of rights which are embodied in the first ten amendments of the constitution of the United States before condemning Robert LaFollette, John We-Dave and Chas. G. Dawes, for conducting this organization as being contrary to the spirit of the constitution. If the Ku Klux Klan desires to effect reforms why they not stand out in the open and assure the civil authorities that they will stand behind them in law enforcement.

From Ponce Journal for Sept. 18, 1904:
In a letter from Douglas Hewitt dated at Bartlett, Wheeler County, Nebraska, Sept. 9, to his father, J.

Hewitt of this place, he states that a railroad is being surveyed from Bartlett to Sioux City by way of Ponce. He states that one of the surveyors was at Bartlett a day or two before he moved to North Platte, and said the shaft survey from there had begun.

A. J. Williams, agent of the St. J. & N. railroad company in Ponce, says that freight rates have been reduced from Sioux City to Ponce to 20 cents per hundred on first-class rate and 10 cents freight, and the rate on fourth class freight is 18 cents per 100 pounds in hereafter.

There are no further developments concerning the alleged railroad from Bartlett to Sioux City. It is something new in relation to the land bought by Mr. Massy, which land is said to have been bought for a railroad company by others. It is alleged the land was purchased for mining purposes or for the raising of Arizona goats for the Chicago market. But it is not yet known whether a railroad bridge, gold mine, or goat pasture, at present all is quiet, and the surface is unruffled by any approaching gold, goat or bridge building enterprise.

Dayton Ward, brother of Rev. J. B. Ward of this place, is here on a visit from Kane county, Ill. He was one of the early settlers in that state in 1838, he with his father went to Chicago which was not so large as Ponce now. In 1839 he became a settler from the government 100 acres of land at $1.25 per acre about 35 miles west of Chicago, and has lived on the same piece of land ever since. He says during the early days of Illinois, farmers had hard work to get along. They hauled wheat to Chicago for $2 a bushel but they sold 10 cents and lost $1.50 per hundred. Since that time he has been adding to his farm, paying from $5 to $50 per acre and now has 100 acres of land worth $100 per acre, and is now one of the leading dairy-men of Kane county. He considers this a lot of money for the land that for dairying, as beef can be raised so much cheaper here than in the east.

"A Railroad with a Soul."
The Fremont Tribune.
A recent case right here in Fremont goes a long way toward proving our contention that men are still human and sympathetic, even though their names are on a payroll with thousands of others. About two weeks ago the daughter of a Sioux Dakota farmer disappeared. Her whereabouts was a mystery to the distressed parents all over the body of a girl was found in Iowa. Newspaper descriptions of the remains gave the first clue to the father and mother who prayed constantly for their missing daughter.

The father, heart-broken and weighed down with grief, hurried to Iowa and confirmed his worst fears. The girl was positively identified as his daughter, the victim of a cruel and ruthless murder.

The mother of the girl's disappearance and the circumstances that brought her to an untimely end, made her death even more terrible to the distressed father. He wanted to take her home, back to the community where she was known and loved, where her memory would be respected by those who had known her since childhood.

It happened that he started for home with the casket on a Saturday. He missed connections at Omaha, it would mean a delay of an entire day and then probably a trip overland from Norfolk. There was but one avenue of escape, and that to the railroad seeking that the designated train be held one hour to make the connection possible.

Officials at Omaha immediately got in touch with the assistant division superintendent at Fremont mindful of the father's grief and the heavy heart of the mother, waiting in South Dakota, orders were given that the train delay its departure at Omaha the required time. The delay cost the railway company expense, but we are assured that any other official of the railroad would have seen fit to handle the situation with the same sympathy and understanding for the distressed parents.

When the father arrived in Fremont with the remains of his daughter, he sought out the official who had granted him the favor, between trains.

"I can't say much—my heart is too heavy," he murmured. "But I want you to know that I appreciate what the Northwestern has done for me. Only a man in my position can realize fully what your kindness means. Like most people, I believed that a railroad has no soul. Now I know differently—and I will never forget your kindness in our hour of trial."

The library board is decorated with green shades and white sash curtains. Miniature window boxes were resplendent in flowers, while flowers were placed along the sides of the building. Three evergreen trees about a foot high looked very natural. A cement walk led up to the door where which the date "1920" was painted. It gave the public a very good idea as to what the library board would like to see in reality come year. A net forty dollars were added to the building fund that day.
