Market Report

(Furnished by Swanson, Gilmore & Walsh, Sioux City Stock Yards.)
October 1.—The lightest hog month of the year and the heaviest cattle month has ended. Not that the season's cattle liquidation is by any means over, but merely that delivery has passed the crest and will continue to run on a gradually diminishing scale through the season advance. Not will the lightest hog month of the year be followed by an immediate period of rapid expansion. Some increase there may be in October if history repeats itself, but the general supply will move later than usual this year with the result the current porker prices may not be bettered to the winter packing basis for some time to come. In fact, certain signs of added strength may show on the best corn fed hogs, but the prevailing market offering, especially light in the meager delivery. All are agreed that the present margin between corn fed and open cow will be widened still farther, but whether packers will attain that end by bearing down on the cheap drive, or by lifting the price of the better class is a matter of question.

However, as to the future for corn fed cattle, the coming trade seems to favor a considerable amount of strength. The average price of $11 are permitted freely for the November trade. Continuous attractions must keep the farmers throwing the heavy hogs into the market. As offerings, as otherwise the already generous percentage of unfinished beef would be greatly increased. It is understood that the prevailing price of beef is sufficiently high to keep the good kinds coming in order to satiate the inherited taste this land has for the best beef.

This week the annual stocker and feeder show is being held in Sioux City. It marks the time of the year when the call for heavy western feeders is just about terminated. Each year right after the exhibition prices on the weighty westerns slip off around $1 per hundred and yearling classes come into favor. It might not be a bad idea to wait a week or so for heavy stuff even if you are fixed to go ahead right now.

San Francisco meteorologist suspects that dry north winds are highly conducive to murder and other forms of crime. He pointed out that such winds prevailed when four murders were committed recently in the vicinity of Sacramento. Agreement with this theory would be easy enough on the advice from San Francisco that dry north winds out there are always considered mean and ugly.

Norfolk Bank Gets Opinions on Frost

Norfolk Daily News, Oct. 1. Did the frost last Saturday and Sunday do any harm to the corn crops of Nebraska materially?
 Opinions from corn experts and state officials at Lincoln differ, as they do the opinions of farmers in communities where the frost could have done the most damage.
 A Norfolk bank, anxious to know the opinion of business men, placed out this section of Nebraska dispatched letters to several persons in different towns asking the exact damage that might have occurred.
 Two of these letters are given below: They are from father and son, one the president of a bank at Platteview and the other of a bank at Lynch.
Finds Opinions Differ.
 The first from Frank Holbert at Platteview is as follows:
 "Can't tell much about corn yet. All kinds of reports—some say one-third soft, others don't think much damage done and some second planting about all soft. I think about one-third crop on the average. The trouble is the fellows that need it worst are the ones that back three feet out in several fields yesterday and the freeze was not hard enough to make the corn ears drop. If you will examine the stalk closely you will find that the stalk and the ear itself were not touched. Take the ear of corn, for instance, that was in the milk. If you will take back three feet out in several fields you will find the four bushes you will find the first bush frozen very hard. The next bush less, and so on until you reach the ear, which you will find has not even been touched. I think the feeling is very general that our corn crop will reach 80 per cent around here. That the frost was peculiar in its actions on corn and stalks around Norfolk is evidenced by an automobile trip through Madison and Stanton counties Tuesday afternoon in which spots were made at several fields along the highway.

 In one field, two stalks not three feet apart were examined. One ear was green and not frozen, the other was ripe and the stalk had been frozen. This corn had been planted at the same time. In another place on one side of the road on an eighty-acre tract, the corn was all killed by the frost. Across the road on another eighty-acre tract, it had affected the crop only slightly, touching it here and there, damaging not over 15 per cent. This, according to a prominent farmer, leads to the opinion that the frost was heavy only in spots, affecting all fields but touching some heavily and others only slightly.
Wausa Going to Yankton.
 Wausa, Neb., Oct. 1.—A delegation of 500 automobile loads from Wausa, Pierce and Crofton is planning to attend the celebration of the opening of the Meridian highway bridge, Monday, Oct. 13.
 At a mass meeting held here the business men decided to close up the town and practically the whole town will attend the celebration at Yankton, S. D.

Rodeo for Winnebago.
Winnebago, Neb., Sept. 25.—Jim Bird, 33-year-old Indian veteran on the frontier wars, will lead a sham attack on a wagon train, just as it was done in the pioneer days, at a rodeo which will be given October 4 and 5, in a natural amphitheater on Ashford's ranch, one mile north of Winnebago.
Among other events which will be features of the occasion are riding stunts by Anna Koontz, noted woman rider, and the one-legged Indian rider, Issa, of Pegler.
There also will be bucking horse riding contests, bull riding and bareback horse riding exhibitions, a cowboy's stunt building competition and a wild horse race for cowboys. Prizes have been offered to winners of the various events.

An Important Defeat.
Lincoln Journal: Fifty cents admission was charged to Senator Wheeler's Pittsburgh speech and the hall was filled to capacity. The same method of raising the campaign wherewith was employed at Senator Pillsbury's New York meeting Thursday night, with the difference that the contribution was voluntary. This method of raising campaign funds has much to recommend it, if it fails at a critical point. A candidate's political opponents will not pay to hear him speak. It is his opponents a candidate needs most to reach.

More than style in virgin wool overcoats!

In a Jacobs Oregon City garment you get the warmth and the sturdy wearing qualities of pure virgin wool—live, lustrous fleece that has never been used or worked before.

In appearance Oregon City coats equal the remarkable cloths from which they're made. Oregon City fabrics won first prize at Philadelphia in 1876, and again, fifty years later, at San Francisco in 1915. No wonder Oregon City coats are good!

Away out West in the heart of America's great wool country the Oregon City Mills dye, spin and weave this new fleece into sturdy overcoatings. Then they fashion these fabrics into splendid garments for men and boys.

Come in and try one on. We have the new styles. Box backs, full belts, half belts, set-in sleeves, raglan shoulders. A wide range of fabrics in new and popular colors and patterns.

Frost has held off until much of the corn in the middle west belt has hardened beyond the possibility of injury. There is still a soft corn left but the major portion of the crop is safe, so the farmers will not risk great loss in that way. This does not mean that bumper crops are being harvested. Much earlier in the season it was well understood that the stand, the development and the general condition were not good for the corn crop therefore is bound to be reduced considerably...

Generally, the farm situation is better than it has been in years. Even with smaller yields in certain sections, the average farmer finds himself in a better position. The price of corn, now above 81, is sure to go higher. Also the price of small grains is going up which is exceptionally good throughout this country, are firming up to poor harvests in other farming sections. The economic conditions in the farming regions, therefore are bound to be improved. All business has been encouraged by the upward grain prices that have lasted the month of September, 1923, and the month of so. The manufacturers speculated on a revival of trade and laid their plans accordingly. They expected a better buying power would develop and they took a chance on a corn crop failure in extensive sections. Now that the corn crop has been saved, they are again fortunate in that they had made their plans and were ready for increased production. Business this winter and spring will be better than it was last year. A better domestic condition, together with an improvement in Europe as the various countries get back on their feet, should bring about a general trade revival permanent in character.

Political Speeches At the County Fair

Governor C. W. Bryan and Senator Arthur Capper Draw Big Crowds.

Governor Chas. W. Bryan, democratic vice presidential nominee, was here to speak on democratic day, Thursday, at the county fair, and a large crowd turned out to hear him. Senator Arthur Capper, Kansas, was the speaker on republican day, Friday, and a big audience was on hand to greet him, notwithstanding the cold and threatening weather. The unfavorable elements kept many away. No speaker appeared on Saturday to represent the third party movement.

Governor Bryan who was accorded close attention, said he had saved the people enough on coal and gasoline the last two years to pay their taxes. He explained that if he had not been such a great benefactor to coal and gasoline users, he would not have been satisfied with his administration as governor. He would not be satisfied, he explained, because he was hampered by a republican legislature. This legislature would not let him do things he had promised and wished to do. He had pledged himself to abolish the code system, but of course the legislature would not permit him to do so. He criticized the prevailing tariff law, and said congress had passed no measure favorable to farmers. He is said to have given "in the course of his speech, the personal pronoun 'it' the most terrible work-out ever witnessed in public or private."

Commending Nebraska for the excellence of its resources and citizenship, Senator Capper who spoke to a great crowd of attentive listeners at the fair Friday, referred to the important and valuable committee work which Senator Geo. W. Norris had performed in Washington. He suggested that no statesman or administration could by any magic change conditions over night. He pointed out that it takes time to meet obligations and to take care of the regular voting places in each precinct in Wayne county on Friday evening, October 3, at 8 p. m., to nominate candidates for the offices of precinct justice, justice of the peace, and road overseer. City of Wayne caucus will be at city hall. Nominations should be certified to county clerk promptly after caucus.

ected and punished as fast as the law could take its course. He mentioned that deflation which sent prices to the bottom had started before the republican came into power. He praised the Dawes plan as a practical solution of Europe's problems, leading the way to economic rehabilitation and stability.

Senator Capper compared the honesty, simplicity and high ideals of President Coolidge with those of Abraham Lincoln. He said President Coolidge was very careful and unpretentious in his personal habits, and that he was just as careful and considerate in the administration of public affairs. Before the president became governor of Massachusetts, he lived in a five-room cottage and had never owned an automobile. His habits of economy are reflected in his determination to pay off public indebtedness and reduce taxation, both of which have been accomplished to a large degree, as pointed out by Senator Capper.

Passing of Former Wayne County Man

Henry Claybaugh, resident of Wayne and vicinity from the spring of 1892 until 1904, passed away Thursday, Sept. 29, at 7:20 p. m. at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Chas. Kuhns, at Leeds, Iowa. He had been in failing health for some time, but cancer developed and confined him to his bed for about two weeks.

Henry Claybaugh was born in Warren county, Ohio, Jan. 1, 1847, being aged 75 years, 9 months and 24 days. He moved with his parents to Henderson county, Ill., at the age of 7 and spent all his young manhood there.

Dec. 27, 1870, he was united in marriage with Martha C. McMill and to this union nine children were born, four sons and five daughters. Two daughters, Clara and Grace, died in childhood. One son, Ralph, has not been heard from since the World's war.

In 1880 he moved with his family to Montgomery county, Iowa, residing on a farm until in 1892 when the family moved to Wayne county, Neb., where they lived for a number of years, moving to Sioux City, where he had spent most of his life since.

His wife died March 14, 1915, since which time he has lived with his daughter, Mary. Six children survive: Mae of Denver, Colo.; Mrs. Chas. Koontz of Leeds, Ia.; Dr. W. Ross of Grenora, N. D.; Mrs. Chas. Winters of Leeds, Ia.; Mrs. J. W. Gilder of Wayne; and Henry L. of Howard, S. D. He is also survived by two grandsons, one sister and eighteen grandchildren.

McIntosh of the Olivet Presbyterian church, and burial took place at Graceland Park cemetery on the side of his wife. ### Yankton College

At the Other End of the Meridian Highway Bridge Extends Her Invitation to Young People of the Nebraska Side.

The College and the Bridge. "The river untamed that no master hath known By men has been vanquished, its bars overthrown And lands long divided have come to their own." So runs the chorus to the "Song of the Yankton Bridge," which was the climax of the "Masque of the Yankton Bridge" as presented at Yankton college three years ago. The Masque was a Yankton College production, presented in the beautiful Garden Terrace Theatre on the campus, the words of the song by a Yankton poet, former student of the college, and the music composed by a graduate of the Yankton College Conservatory. In the large audience that day were many Nebraska people who will remember the occasion and the song.

In no respect is the building of the bridge more important to these "lands long divided" than in the access now open to young people of the Nebraska side, especially of the nearer counties, to attend this pioneer college of the Dakotas. There it stands just across the bridge, on the hill above town where one can look out over the river and the Nebraska shore for many miles. The historic bell that sounds every day from the belfry of the original college building can almost literally be heard by some of the boys and girls who live on the other side. In a most practical way the building of the bridge means a new era of growth for Yankton College.

Students from the Nebraska Side. It is not but what students have been coming from the Nebraska side to some extent since the beginning of the College. In spite of precarious crossing by ferry or pontoon, or of the alternative trip by way of Sioux City, a few have been coming all these years, from Aten and Crofton and Bloomfield and Wausa, from Santee and Nebraska, from Hartington, Neligh, Coleridge, Norfolk, and other communities. But it is clear sign of the future that this fall, with the bridge nearing completion, a strong increase in enrollment from the Nebraska side has taken place. One instance of the effect of the bridge is the enrollment this semester of nine young men living close by on the other side who expect to live at home, going back and forth every day.

A Strong Institution. To any young people looking toward a college course Yankton College presents a strong attraction. The institution is accredited under the North Central Association of Secondary Schools and Colleges, and its credits are accepted in the principal universities and professional schools of the country. It is a college known for its high standard of scholarship. Last year there were three state-or-the South Dakota-Rhodes Scholarship at Oxford, out of a total of twelve Rhodes Scholars thus far appointed from the state. Two of the twelve have come from the state university and one each from other South Dakota institutions. In oratorical and debating contests the College holds also an enviable reputation. Three times out of the last four years Yankton has won the state oratorical contest. Last year there were three state-ortorical winners actually enrolled at the College at the same time. Last year a Yankton debating team defeated Carleton College on her own floor, the first time in thirteen years that Carleton had met defeat at home. Shortly after, Carleton defeated some of the strongest teams in the east on the same question and the same side. Strong work in the class room is the basis of these accomplishments. Says the Importance of Oral Disinfection is Recognized Today as Never Before

Modern investigation have revealed the fact that much of the suffering and many of the diseases which attack mankind have their origin in unsanitary and septic conditions of the mouth. It is ascertained by high authority that more general suffering emanates from oral and dental uncleanness and infection than from any other cause. One well known dentist, with an international reputation, even goes so far as to state his belief that the suffering from disorders of oral origin exceeds that from all other sources combined. Such statements, at first, seem extravagant, but a closer study of them indicates that they are by no means as improbable as a casual consideration of them would indicate. Whatever may be the proportion, the fact is certain that the importance of oral sepsis and antisepsis is being emphasized more and more. Not only are remote conditions—such as Neuralgia, Rheumatic pains, Arthritis, Nephritis, Cholecystitis, Myocarditis, Arteries clorosis, resulting from systemic distribution of Microorganisms and toxins from oral foci becoming more and more universally recognized, but the relation of infection to operative procedures is constantly receiving more detailed consideration.

Yankton College

petitive honors which Yankton has won. The College is recognized as a school where nobody can loaf his way through to a degree.

The Conservatory of Music. Not only in the College proper, with its liberal arts course leading to the bachelor's degree, but in other departments of its work Yankton stands for quality. The Yankton College Conservatory of Music holds a very high place among musical schools of the north-west. It occupies its own excellent building. The complete Conservatory course leads to the degree of Bachelor of Music. All main branches of music are taught. This year there has been a large increased enrollment at the Conservatory, making it necessary to add new instructors to the teaching force. A very popular feature of the work of the Conservatory has been the training of the Music and Glee Club, and their tours through South Dakota and Nebraska. These concerts have been very successful everywhere and have been the means of bringing the College into especially favorable touch with many communities and their young people.

Normal Course. The College maintains a two-year normal course leading to state certificate, the credits of which are accredited toward the bachelor's degree in the case of students who, after a period of teaching wish to complete a college course.

Department of Speech. The Department of Speech, a branch of the regular college work in English, includes especially abundant and attractive courses in Public Speaking, and in Expression and Dramatics. There is increasing demand for training in these subjects and Yankton holds a high reputation for this kind of work, with its record of extraordinary success in intercollegiate forensics and its artistic productions of Shakespearean and other plays.

Rapid Increase in Attendance. Yankton College is rapidly gaining in attendance. More than 250 students of the college department are registered so far this year, of whom 125 are freshmen—the largest enrollment in the college department and the largest entering class in the history of the institution. The gain in enrollment for the college department is fully 25 per cent over last year, and 60 per cent over two years ago. The Conservatory and other departments show similar strong increase, so that the total registration for the institution thus far is over 400.

The College and the Community. No small credit for the strong growth of the College, especially in recent years, is due to the active support of the Yankton community and the business men of Yankton. Yankton College is the pride of Yankton and the same splendid community spirit which has done so much to build the Meridian Highway bridge is supporting the college on the hill and stands back of it in its plans for the future. With the building of the bridge, the city of Yankton and Yankton College will go forward together.

Close of President Warren's Service. This year, with its high water mark in attendance, with the new outlook on account of the completion of the bridge, is indeed a great year in the history of Yankton College. But there is one other thing which makes the year so important for the institution. This year marks the conclusion of President H. K. Warren's great service of the college as head of the institution. It is the result very largely of his untiring labor and his vision of a great ideal and determination to realize it. He has spent his day in the well established, strong college at Yankton. The thought of it unites all hearts in gratitude and honor to him, and his purpose to leave "one for the future."

The New President, George W. Nash. President Warren's successor, who is to take up the leadership of the institution in the course of the present year, is Dr. George Williston Nash, an alumnus of the College, who comes to the presidency with a record of outstanding success in an educational leader, and a personal popularity especially strong in this state and region, and extending far beyond its limits. He was elected to the Yankton faculty, then for two terms state superintendent of public instruction, then for a considerable time president of the State Normal at Aberdeen which institution he carried forward to an extraordinary growth in numbers and prestige, and later that head of the State Normal School at Bellington, Washington, where on a much larger scale he secured another success in building up a school. More recently he has been called to the position of President of the Congregational Foundation for Education, a nation-wide work in the interests of all colleges of that denomination. The coming of Dr. Nash to the presidency of Yankton College is greeted with enthusiasm by former students and friends of the College everywhere and by the whole Yankton community.

Yankton With Yankton, She'll Fall. "Yankton with Yankton, She'll Fall, '24" is the well-known slogan of the city of Yankton, the significance of which stands out in everybody's appreciation this year. The Meridian Highway Bridge. The College on the Hill shares with the community in extending an arm of welcome to "Yankton with Yankton," and she will

Ordered to Care for Father. Columbus, Neb., Sept. 29.—Joe Pimper, jr., of Columbus was today ordered to provide for the support of his 94-year-old father, Joseph Pimper, sr., for the remainder of the latter's life and pay him $960 which the court found the younger Pimper owed the father on a contract under which the father divided his estate among his children.

The case was taken into the Colfax county court when the older man believed his life was in danger in the house in Howell which his son had provided for him and voluntarily went to the Colfax county poor farm to live. The father will receive a yearly allowance from his son.

An Embarrassing Feature.—Dr. A. L. Birby in Lincoln Journal.

William J. Bryan announces that he is coming to the relief of the democratic national ticket very instantly. The one embarrassing feature is that he must find some way to apologize for the nasty things he said about Davis before his nomination, which calls to mind a poem written long before by the late Will Carleton:

"Boys flying kites had in their white wings birds; you can do that way when you're stung words. Thoughts, unexpressed, may sometimes fall back dead, But God himself can't kill them when they're said."

And so I think when Bryan takes a start To eulogize the man 'twill tax his art To word the matter in a way to make Us think what once he said was a mistake.

Fall Home Furnishings

for Comfort and Good Taste

by Marjorie Howe Dixon

You can imagine the charm of green framed mirrors, each hanging over a chest of ivory, can't you? Well, then imagine too how delightful wistarian Venetian seen bottles and candlesticks would look on these ivory chests.

A chaise longue repeated the toll of ivory as did the window. They were quite itself. A great sweep of black and white was draped back to one side of the arched top and held high with a tie back. From under it and swept the other side was green taffeta trailing to the floor. And all this against canvassed walls painted the softest of orchid tints!

One could go on adding one delightful room to another. But lest the reader be wearied we cease, and beg that "your conscience be for comfort, did we hear you say? Well, comfort is largely spelled in terms of arrangement—that is, of course, after you have selected deep cushions and softly needed upholstery. By arrangement we mean carefully adjusted lights, table placed in easy reach, a day bed along side a desk with a lamp placed where its soft glow will assist one who reclines and reads. And then, too, a snug grouping of chairs about the fireplace.

One of the new living room arrangements, arising from the dispensing with formalities is the omission of a dining room. We eat in the breakfast nook or in the living room itself.

Reconciling Two Types. Thereby arises a new decorating problem: How shall the two types of furniture be reconciled and blended so that there be no sharp and unpleasant jump from the one to the other?

One living-room arrangement—the little matter admirably. A screen of painted panels stood out from the wall—not intending in the least to hide anything. Beyond lay the dining room. Its furniture was painted in green trimmings—but the tan was softly "antiqued," so that it blended with the natural wood of the living room pieces. A cottage table with a lamp and a vase of flowers, an open cupboard with cottage china on its shelves and four straight chairs comprised the set. As for the rest of the living room it simply went on being a comfortable sort of room with a fireplace for a centerpiece. Two lovely prints framed to match stood side by side on the mantel. You no-dice there were two, not just one, and they were filled the entire length. Either side hung narrow shelves—almost too narrow for books, but affording charming nooks for objects d'art. Overstuffed chairs covered with striped mohair, and a divan completed the fireplace group.

A slightly unusual effect was produced by placing a short rather than a long table at the back of the divan at either end of which stood Queen Anne chairs. One was covered with a roomy, well-independently at least, a pair of sections lighted the picture which hung over a chiffoffe of Queen Anne walnut. (The rest of the set was Queen Anne, too.) Twin beds surrounded a night table, if you get me, and covered themselves with spreads of black printed linen. The Victorian effect repeated itself in the large floral design on the linen which was used for window drapes, too.

A vanity case of great charm stood near one window. It was composed of five separate pieces. First there was a tiny table, above it hung a large mirror, and at either side stood tall chests of drawers. Each chest bore a small green silk shaded lamp affording ample light for maidly who might sit on the bench before the table.

Leaving the Victorian room and the savvy spirit to their own devices let us turn to the subject of Sandwich glass, and what would you do if, having collected several pieces of it, you desired to place it in an appropriate setting?

It was Alice who bravely replied, "I'll have it set in a handsome old Sandwiche glass on it and see if you don't just love it. There's good taste for you!"

A maple refectory table does nicely in the center of the room with four prim little rust seated laddered back chairs either side. Arm chairs upholstered in dull rose glazed chintz, may stand at either end. Then for one or two of your candlesticks you can find appropriate place for them on one or the other of the small maple tables standing at the walls.

Windsor Chair Wood. Bits of "good taste" may be discovered in market corners. A pat-home, and has discovered her charges in the act of mischief. The result was spilled ink all over the dainty white frock of the oldest one (and some on the carpet too). We felt so glib the oldest girl didn't seem to feel a bit repentant but held up her tiny chin firmly as to say, "now let the heavens descend. I say it's worth it!" It must have been especially daring in those Victorian days. You can understand that such a picture would inspire one to furnish a room—well—independently at least.

Geneva Signal: When members of the Geneva Woman's club go out to sell tickets for the John G. Neihardt lecture to be given in the city auditorium in Geneva the evening of October 16 there should be a hearty response from the public. As post laureate of the state Mr. Neihardt is entitled to consideration and a hearing. Perhaps reading would be a better term than lecture to use in describing his appearance in Geneva. He will read from his poems. Many of us do not care greatly for poetry when we read it ourselves but it may be different when an author such as Mr. Neihardt is to interpret his own poems. Mr. Neihardt has won a substantial place among literary people and Fillmore county folk ought to give him a good audience in recognition of that fact if for no higher motive. Let's don't wait until Mr. Neihardt's death to bring on some of the flowers.

Lincoln Journal: It is encouraging to hear through the national department of agriculture that the outbreak of the foot and mouth disease in Texas has no connection with California. Fortunately the disease in Texas, which seems to have been imported from Central America through one of the Gulf ports, was diagnosed promptly and quarantined so quickly that it may not spread.
