L.R. Buish Talks On Salesmanship

Addresses Group at Wayne City Hall on the Means of Better Merchandising.

Has Valuable Helps

Explains Ways Merchants and Salespeople Can Improve Business and Succeed.

"Too many merchants are storekeepers and too many business men clerks instead of salespeople," asserted Louis R. Buish, efficiency expert for the National Cash Register company of Dayton, Ohio, Monday evening when he talked to the merchants and the buyers of the Greater Wayne club. Mr. Buish is an expert salesman himself and spoke on "Better Merchandising."

In introducing his lecture Mr. Buish stressed the value of honesty, stating that no one but a person himself should know absolutely whether or not he is a good business man. Buish stressed that person to say he was one hundred per cent honest, but he urged the importance of being so.

Mr. Buish said he hoped to create a desire on the part of storekeepers to become merchants and clerks to become salespeople. He expressed favor for business men who take the optimistic attitude toward their work and who look for better times rather than for the pessimist who thinks business is a failure. Mr. Buish is in the right frame of mind and will take suggestions for improvement. Facts the speaker used were taken on wide research in the fields of successful business men.

"The largest room in the world is the room for improvement," stated Mr. Buish. No matter how well one thinks he is fulfilling an obligation, there is always chance to improve. Men who are open-minded to profit by past experience and by experience of others and they succeed. A merchant who thinks that his business is a necessity in a community is mistaken for modern transportation and so developed that the coming public no longer considers the merchant a boon to a town. The merchant's problem now is to get the customer to his store and to make a sale just profit because of money invested, risk assumed and time spent.

Means to Increase Business.
Four means of increasing business, according to the speaker, are: increase goods to a sufficient margin; increase the number of stock turns; watch leaks and losses; and sell more merchandise. The first means is marking goods for a sufficient margin. Mr. Buish said a merchant should know, from accurate accounts kept, how much he must mark his goods to make money when they do not work. It is going on in their stores; and if they make money and they are not making it, they should be based on past figures and on the teachings of experience. A merchant guesses and fails, or he thinks and succeeds. The latter leads them into ruts, while the man who knows about his business succeeds. Prof. Buish said that success is stated that only our and one-half per cent of a man's brain power is used. Mr. Buish urged using more. Changing this to a store means that Mr. Buish said that success begins with one dollar and ends with two.

Mr. Buish, in speaking of stock turns, told of institutions that had made more with less stock by increasing the number of turnovers. Most stores carry twenty to thirty-five per cent less merchandise than he spoke of chain grocery stores that turned their stock forty times while another store usually turned its stock ten times in a year. A merchant had stock of $90,000 made a half million dollars and when the stock was reduced to $45,000 and the turnover increased to ten times a million. Merchants should know what departments in their stores are weak; they should know where they are overstocked. The greatest advantage is found doing the janitor's work and Mr. Buish said, he will get a janitor's pay. He must be alert to the needs of his store.

Leak and losses occur in every store. These may be careless wrapping of packages—so that paper and glue are wasted; or they may be contract measures, dishonesty of employees and the like. In the course of a year these leaks cost the merchant a large amount.

System in Advertising.

Systematic advertising and cooperation with clerks will increase number of sales of merchandise. Mr. Buish said that the merchant has the power of the press. The business man should plan his advertising a week or ten days ahead and use people in it to his advantage. He should not try to fill the space he has bought but should try to get ideas into it that will appeal to people. There must be a plan. The advertising windows should carry out the ideas advertised and clerks should know and cooperate with the merchant in selling the goods he is advertising.

Teachers College

Will Meet Cotner Football Team for Homecoming Game.

Wayne State Teachers College football team played York college at York, Friday and lost with a score of 19 to 0. The football team will meet Cotner University of Lincoln at the local gridiron Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock. Hartington high school will play the second team of the school here the same afternoon at 1:30. Saturday is homecoming day at the Normal and it is expected that a number of graduates will be here.

The football team went at Lincoln Saturday and played the Nebraska College game. Basketball practice is being started and the schedule will be arranged as early as the football season is finished. The Normal has back this year Guy Best, Tom Moran, Owen Brainard, Eric Weidert and Ronald Reed. The football team has a number of good prospects from the high schools this fall. It is thought a winning team will be developed.

How Time is Spent.
Salespeople spend their time, according to a check-up, as follows: Walking, thirty per cent; talking, fifteen per cent; useless talking, ten per cent; stock keeping, fifteen per cent; waiting, ten per cent; and selling, fifteen per cent. Poor arrangement of goods in stores causes the large amount of walking. Retail salespeople who are busy. If fifteen per cent of the walking is reduced and if loafing and useless talking are eliminated forty per cent of the time, the amount of time spent selling and would increase the time of selling to fifty-five per cent and this would be more as it should be.

How Bryan Might Become President

How Results Might Develop if Election Landed in Congress.

Prof. O. R. Bowen of the faculty of the State Teachers college, furnishes, on request, the following explanation of the course that would be pursued and the results that might ensue if the presidential election were thrown into congress:

The president and vice president are elected by the vote of the people—popular vote. They are elected by electors. Each state has as many electors as it has members in the national house of representatives and one senator. Nebraska, for example, has six members of the house and two senators and, therefore, will have eight electors. New York will have forty-five electors, etc.

Contemplating the possibility of the choice of president and vice president passing into congress, it is only fair to the people for members of the two houses to pledge themselves to support candidates who have been successful in their respective states.

One of the things that clearly differentiates between the city and small town, to the discredit of the latter is the feeling of jealousy. When town gets rid of feelings of jealousy, it begins to blossom as a city with big things to think about and big things to accomplish.

The merchandising expert who talks here Monday night, gave valuable advice to both business men and their employees. As he pointed out, a knowledge of costs, an avoidance of waste of stock and time, strict honesty, alertness and vigilance, perfect team work between merchants and clerks are necessary to highest success.

Now is the time when people put in their o-nions-for the winter. Onions are considered healthful and a safeguard against disease. No disease with which the doctor has no objection or foresight has the courage to go up against an onion. The onion is not spectacular and makes no noise in the grocery, but its medicinal unostentatious way it speaks with a force that is invincible. Any part of it or the air that envelops it is charged with an effective means of defense.

Those people who for some inconceivable reason refuse to see Governor Charley Bryan as president will warm up to the candidacy of Senator LaFollette because a sufficient display of strength would bring the contest into congress, in which event, as a study of the line-up shows, the presidency might easily fall to the Nebraska governor. Charley's supporters are strong enough to see that, and they are anxious and eager enough to do a little coddling of the LaFollette candidacy.

Running a government is a big task and a very practical one, and yet some men who could not make a dime out of a soda water stand who have no more practical judgment than children in a kindergarten, assume to tell people how to run a government. The result is that the policies in managing public affairs. A farmer who has made a success of his business or a townsman who has managed to make a good thing of his chosen occupation, is expected to be swallowed and influenced by the tinny vagaries of some wild theorist whose pet result is to cause a discredit to a child 5 years old.

Just as we are getting fairly started in our plans to accomplish a lot of things, along comes a negative announcement of the opening of a home for worn out editors at Wayne, Nebraska. The press is notoriously furnished apartments, the home includes hundreds of "rolling lakies" here, all in a high state of culture, shaded lanes, with orange groves and tennis grounds, with golf and fishing and other sources of enjoyment. If there are any worn out editors up this way, we would suggest that they go there. As for us, if we happen to be worn out at the end of another fifty years, and especially if we have accomplished no more than we have during the last fifty, we will look to Winter Garden as a last resort and a final abode.

The way to reach a decision on the part of congressmen in this district would be to consider the practical judgment of the two men in the field. Decide on the one you would expect to look after your business. The present congressman is a wonderful word painter as Jean P. Millet was a wonderful business painter. A man who revels in fine rhetoric and faultless action, is not likely to be of any intimate terms with the practical affairs of government. His opponents, Mr. Houston, a practical business man, and Mr. Huse, who has always been down to solid brass tacks in the exercise of business judgment, knows from experience the problems and needs of farming communities and has reflected in his legislative work much practical wisdom. We would represent this district in the future. We would elect his opponent as an exemplar in a college of literary aspirants.

It is easy enough to tear down, but not so easy to build up. Like the man who mounts a religious faith without offering a substitute that is as good or better, Senator LaFollette devotes attention to picking flaws without assurance that, if elected, he could improve conditions. He does not claim that he could put into practice his pet theory of government ownership of railroads. But if he could he would, judging by the experience of other countries, cause an intolerable burden of expense and expense of the transportation lines of the country. LaFollette is a negative individual. He is chronically against. But notwithstanding his lack of practical constructive policies, he has been able, by one plea or another, to beguile a lot of people into thinking he ought to be elected. Many who vote for him, will do so, not because they wish to favor him, but because they wish to oppose the two old parties.

Stylish Stout Rubber Reducing Girdle

$9.75 and $10.00

You will see by just one fitting, that this girdle makes you look slender until you, really are. No longer do you have to look stout until strenuous exercise or starvation diet makes you thin. From the very moment that you put on this corset your figure takes on the fashionably straight lines that give it the appearance of slenderness.

You begin to reduce gently, comfortably and best of all quickly. Every hour you spend in the reducing girdle helps melt your flesh away—whether you work, play, or rest in it.

Facts about the Stylish Stout Rubber Reducing Girdle
Boned at the sides, at front and back, so that it prevents the flesh from falling into "pockets" that occur in unboned girdles.

It's a lovely peach pink, rubber brocaded in effect. All its trimmings are of a matching tint.

It is made of amazingly strong rubber, perfectly cured. It gives a beautiful firmness to the flesh and a delightful length of line.

Your corset service and satisfaction depend on proper fitting. We employ a graduate corsetiere capable of giving you medical fittings as well as regular fittings. We invite you to consult our corsetiere for corset comfort.

Choose the Stylish Stout Reducing Girdle before you buy your fall outfit.

Northeast Nebraska Highway. Allen, Neb., Oct. 16.—Northeast Nebraska roads, and more especially those of Dixon county, are receiving considerable attention from the office of the state engineer this week.

On Monday a meeting was held in Omaha, at which H. Hallin, of Allen; H. P. Scholmer and C. A. Star of Wakefield, and many other men from this section, and State Engineer Roy Cochran took up the matter of some of the roads in the northeast.

The delegation met in compliance with a request of the state engineer to discuss the condition of the roads in the present Washington highway from Bancroft, through Pender, Wakefield, Allen, Laurel, Hartington, Yankton and to Mitchell, S. D.

The meeting was held in company with W. B. Check, of Omaha, made a drive over the proposed highway to its point of crossing the Missouri river at the mouth of the river. They held a meeting in Allen with the Dixon county supervisors and heard delegations of men from Concord and Dixon counties.

Also discussing a proposed change in the route of the present Grant highway from Sioux City, because it will not coincide with the Grant highway as mentioned, at the point of meeting in Allen and from there to Hartington. Concord men had presented a petition asking the Grant highway to go south two miles from Allen and thence straight west on the section line to Concord, instead of following the original plan of going from Allen northward to Dixon, either town it would then go north-west to Laurel. The state engineer reserved his decision until a later date.

From Ponca Journal, Oct. 28, 1886:
If we don't have a railroad bridge, we have a good place for one. That is the opinion of the population.
The company of railroad engineers who are running a line from North Platte to Sioux City by the way of Ponca, Nebraska, this week ago said now ought to be near here. If they come here it assures us that the theory that we will have a bridge here, is based on something substantial. If however the engineers forget us and run by without stopping, the stuffing will be knocked out of the bridge project and we shall have to come down to the stern realities of life again.

Cholera has been making sad havoc in the feeding pens of these 63 swine. Of the 510 hogs with which the pens were stocked two months ago, 250 have died, and they are dropping off every day, though the disease and the disease seems to have somewhat abated of late. These hogs were shipped in from southeastern Iowa and must have brought the disease with them. Native hogs throughout the country are having cholera but very little this season, nothing compared to the prevalence of the disease last year.
—The Bridge—
There is no more thrilling human story than that of man's conquest of bodies of water. The tales of Jason and Odysseus are the epics of that conquest, a fragment from that beginning that lies in shrouded and an infinitely distant past. The first sailer to take to a raft, the first crew of a rowboat, the first bold helmsman that guided the frail sailing vessel from shore to nearby island; those stories of human hardihood no poet has left to us but the imagination tries to think of them. The building of the bridge in Caesar's Commentaries, a tale anathema to most high school students, is an epic, an epic of building, an epic of the creative energy of man in shaping the material world to his dream, scarcely less vivid than that of his overcoming of the "boisterous sea, the man-denying sea, the loud resounding sea" that so moved the imagination of Homer.
The Yankees is completed. Again the mighty Missouri has been subdued. Two empires, each great enough to excite the heart of the proudest emperor, are united, and Ford cars may run from North Dakota to Kansas City, whether the Missouri be at flood tide or crawling among its sandbars. But we are not done with the task. Yankton bridge is "Farthest North" on the Big Muddy. Above that point for two thousand miles the giant stream wanders at will and must drive many miles out of his course to find the primitive ferries that attempt the waters at peril. The conquest of the stream is just here and our children's children will be at the task. But if they have imagination they will know that the fall of nineteen twenty-four that big work exists when the governors of two commonwealths and thousands of people gathered at Yankton to view what man had wrought.

Notice of Hearing.
To the heirs, creditors and all persons interested in the Estate of May E. Griggs, deceased.
You and each of you are hereby notified that on the 14th day of October, 1924, Hiram E. Griggs, filed his petition in the county court of Wayne county, Nebraska, alleging that May E. Griggs departed this life intestate at her residence in Wayne, Wayne county, Nebraska, on or about September 23, 1918, and at the time of her death was a resident of said county and stated that she died in fee simple of Lot Three (3), and the north ten (10) feet of Lot Four (4), Block Two (2), North Addition to the City of Wayne, Nebraska, and left surviving her as her sole and only heir at law, Hiram E. Griggs, her husband, Fern E. Sweet, her daughter, Iris V. Griggs, her daughter and Lydia M. Baraldi, her daughter; said petition further alleges that said real estate was occupied by said Hiram E. Griggs and Hiram E. Griggs as a homestead, and Hiram E. Griggs, husband of said deceased, inherited a life estate in said real estate and an undivided one-third interest therein, and that the above named children of said deceased each inherited an undivided two-ninths interest in said real estate, subject to the life estate of said Hiram E. Griggs; and that said Hiram E. Griggs has purchased the interest of the said children in and to said real estate, and is now the sole owner thereof. That all debts, claims and demands against said estate, including the expenses of the last sickness and the funeral charges, have been paid in full; that no application has ever been made in the state of Nebraska for the appointment of an administrator for said estate, and that said estate has never been probated; that more than two years have elapsed since the death of said deceased. Said petition prays for a finding and decree determining the time of the death of said May E. At present judge, appointed by the governor to complete the unexpired term of the late Judge Allen.

Born Sary county, Nebraska, 1876. Lived on a farm until 1900. Graduated from State University, 1906. Located at Stanton, Nebraska; same year, and practiced law there continuously for eighteen years. Served as County Attorney of Stanton County for terms.

The Straw Vote.
Lincoln Journal: The Literary Digest poll now covers a total of nearly the million voters in the United States. Coolidge receives more than one-half or 1,066,214. Senator La Follette polls 432,669 and Mr. Davis 384,214. The same voters four years ago cast 1,076,905 for Harding and 441,251 for Cox. Of these individuals 365,933 did not vote in 1920.

In this tabulation Mr. Davis slightly increases his percentage of the total because more votes are now being received from the southern states. This is of no more significance than the republican increase shown in a few southern districts. The poll might as well be omitted in that regard altogether. The south is for Davis and will be until the end.

In the doubtful states the poll is of real interest and significance. It indicates now that it is almost seven-eighths completed, the opposition to the republicans is divided almost evenly; that a republican increase over 1920 is shown in almost all states, while a decrease is indicated in sixteen states. Ten states show democratic increases, while thirty-eight show democratic losses. But before drawing any conclusions from these facts it is necessary to analyze the vote in each state separately, in some states, as in the south, a great change against the democrats would not swing the electoral vote. In others a comparatively slight shifting might carry great consequences. It is fair to say that these figures have been looked upon by republicans generally as favorable to their cause. In democratic circles they are looked upon with alarm because they are still a constant invitation to democrats to vote for Coolidge to avoid the menace of throwing the election into the courts.

Because this very thing now seems likely to decide the election it is legitimate for the democrats to throw the full glare of publicity upon the poll and the motives and fairness of those who are taking it. It is not a poll of the readers of the Digest only, but of a cross section of the entire electorate, made up of miscellaneous lists of voters gathered from every conceivable source. It is not an honest poll it should be said at once. It is now going a long way toward deciding an election by pointing out to the voters what they may do to avoid a result that many consider undesirable. It is thus a mat-

Enforcement of Dry Law Makes Progress

Omaha, Neb., Oct. 20.—Prohibition enforcement is becoming more effective every day, and this improvement in curbing the outlawed liquor traffic is due to better cooperation between federal and local authorities, imposition of jail sentences instead of fines for violators, more general use of the "hard-hat" or trigger-misusers, and steps taken toward stopping leaks of liquor from bonded warehouses to the illicit market, according to a statement on prohibition enforcement by the federal government during the present administration at Washington, received today by Elmer E. Thomas, federal prohibition director for this state.

The report covers the period from June 11, 1921, to September 11, 1924. It shows that the main salient for obtaining genuine liquor in this country have been largely cut off. This has caused bootleggers to turn to smuggling, but with the coast guard rapidly getting this situation in control, the prospect for obtaining liquor from overseas is growing dimmer daily.

E. A. Hayes, federal prohibition commissioner, said that the more general realization that over 90 per cent of the so-called bootleg liquor being sold is poisonous, was also a contributing factor in bringing about victory of law and order over the outlaw liquor traffickers.

"The report," said Mr. Hayes, "is proving the real deterrent to law breaking. The violator may pay a fine and continue business in a different locality under a different name, until again apprehended. But when he is put in jail his activities are at an end, his income stops, and he has an opportunity to reflect upon the importance of upholding the constitution." Commissioner Hayes continued:

"Cooperation between federal and state authorities is improving. All forces for upholding law and order should cooperate. More than 177,000 arrests have been made by the federal authorities during the last three years. During the same period violators have been sentenced in federal courts to serve an aggregate of nearly 7,000 years. More than 600,000 stills and parts of stills and 39,000,000 gallons of distilled spirits, malt liquors, wine, etc., have been seized during the last 3 years. A total of 11,077 automobiles and 444 boats and launches have been captured.

"During this period, more than 135,200 criminal cases have been taken on federal courts. Of this number, over 120,000 have been terminated, resulting in more than 94,300 convictions.

"Thousands of other cases have been turned into local courts, of which there is no complete record. Fines of nearly $18,000,000 have been imposed, over $12,300,000 of which has actually been collected and turned into the United States treasury. Last year, alone, the fines, forfeitures, etc., imposed totaled over $2,000,000, of which more than $5,000,000 has already been collected. In addition, about $1,000,000 was paid by brewers during the year in compliance of civil liabilities. Tax penalty figures are not yet compiled, but will swell the total collections considerably.

"The injunction or padlock is another effective weapon. Injunction cases have been instituted in both federal and state courts. Since July, 1922, 4,000 such cases have been instituted. In more than 2,500 cases injunctions were granted, over 2,650 of which have been made permanent. Particular attention has been devoted to securing injunctions in brewery cases. About 180 such cases have been instituted against brewers. Of those granted, 72 have been made permanent, and 29 breweries have been actually closed.

"Many important cases have been prosecuted under the provisions of the original code for conspiracy to violate the law. The heaviest penalty ever imposed in any one case was for conspiracy and involved a fine of $21,000 and a sentence of 20 years in jail.

"A well organized permit system has effectively curbed the leak from bonded warehouses. There has been a reduction in withdrawals of about 7,000,000 gallons from that in 1921, the first fiscal dry year. Although more industrial alcohol is being used legitimately now than ever, due to expansion in the volume of legitimate alcohol-using industries, diversions to the bootleg trade are decreasing. It is estimated that less than 10 per cent of the entire production is involved in illegal transactions, a substantial quantity of which is later tracked and destroyed.

"An extreme reduction in the use of medicinal wines as a beverage has resulted from medicating the wine, rendering preparations containing wine unfit for beverage use. Withdrawals of wine during the last year were only a little over 4,000,000 gallons, over half of which was used for sacramental purposes.

"Only about 19 per cent of the applications for importation of wine during the last year were approved, all of which was for medicinal or manufacturing purposes. The practice of importing foreign whiskey back into this country has been practically eliminated by curtailing exportation. Of the applications for exportation of whiskey in the amount of over 4,400,000 gallons during the last year, only about 4 per cent were approved, and none of the whiskey shipped to Canada."

A Striking Figure.
York Republican: Not since Roosevelt has there come a more striking figure for the political arena than Daves. He is the embodiment of those rugged qualities which we have come to consider as constituting American character. His has been professional, business and economic. He is not now a great political figure. But because he possesses a keen business sense and the ability to analyze and understand big questions, that vitally effect the economic life of the world, he has come suddenly to the fore as an international character. Today he rates as one of our greatest men.

The career of Daves is not like that of most successful politicians. He has been a lawyer, business man, banker—and not the seeker for office or political authority. And his sympathies from the moment he stands forth as a coming citizen of the land has been on the side of the individual against the interests. His early career at Lincoln, Neb., as a lawyer were defenses of citizens who were oppressed by the railroads. He has always been a champion of individual rights and personal liberties, as against the aggression of combinations and powerful corporations.

For these reasons—besides his strong personal character—he stands a rugged figure. And because Nebraska gave him his start Nebraskaans are deeply concerned in his candidacy for vice presidency.

The demand of the present day in this country is for a careful economic administration of public affairs. Linking Coolidge's determined bent for economy with Daves' breadth of financial skill there is obtained a combination so strong that with their nomination began that crystallization of sentiment that is certain to result in their election on November 4th.

The Truth About Deflation

A federal reserve board, creature of the last democratic administration, took nearly two billions of dollars out of circulation. That was deflation. The farmer was forced, without notice, to dump his crops upon a flood-lit market. That was deflation.

Prices went down and down as a result of a too-rapid deflation which dropped sixty cents a bushel and corn to thirty-eight cents. These things happened before the republican party assumed control of the government's machinery in March, 1921. The first mention of deflation is found in President Wilson's message to congress on August 8, 1919.

Deflation was hurled upon the farmer in December, 1919, more than a year after the signing of the armistice. Members of the federal reserve board which threw the bomb were all democrats appointed by President Wilson. On January 16, 1920, the federal reserve board issued notice that loans must be reduced.

On January 23, 1920, the federal reserve banks raised discount rates to six per cent. Senator Owen, democrat from Oklahoma, charged that this policy caused a depreciation of liberty bonds from eight to fifteen per cent, and a loss of $2,000,000,000 to millions of liberty bond holders in the United States.

This same federal reserve board insisted that member banks of the federal reserve system dispose of their liberty bond holdings at prevailing market prices. Deflation and restriction of credits took place before the republican national convention met in June, 1920. The policy of deflation was a part of the democratic program and an accomplished fact before the republican party came into power on March 4, 1921.

The democratic administration in 1918 urged the farmers to extend their credit and raise bumper crops. The Nebraska farmers heeded the call. Labor was high. Materials were high. Seed was high. Everything was high and a too rapid deflation struck the farmer squarely between the eyes and came with the harvest of the most expensive crops in the world's history.

Deflation was the issue two years ago in the senatorial contest in Nebraska between R. B. Howell and Gilbert M. Hitchcock. Mr. Howell was elected by a majority of 75,000. That was one answer of the people to the question of who was responsible for deflation. The farmer was discriminated on a worst-deflation. The farmer was discriminated against the most during that period under the democratic administration. In 1917, on the day before the price of wheat was fixed at $2.20, it was selling on the open market at $2.78, a loss of 55 cents on every bushel to the grower. Wheat was not permitted the freedom of other commodities and the farmers of Nebraska lost millions.

Cotton, chief commodity of the democratic solid south, was given all the freedom in the world. No attempt was made by the democratic administration to fix a price limit there. REPUBLICAN STATE COMMITTEE.
