How to Cut Down Your Coal Bill

An interesting coal test for you to make

Just take home a hundred pounds or so of "Very Hot" coal, either lump or nut, and make this simple test. It will show you how to cut a big slice off your coal bill—and here are the reasons:

When you burn this "Very Hot" coal you will notice that every piece opens up in a form much like cauliflower. As it spreads open, you will see it burn red hot to the very core—but it will not break-up. It holds together, retaining the intense heat.

Now close up the drafts on your stove or furnace—you will be surprised to see how long this hard, black coal will burn. We think you will agree that it makes the hottest and most lasting fire you have ever had:

THE AMERICAN PRESS ASSOCIATION

In a current magazine article, Edgar A. Guest stresses the importance of being a good loser. He makes one feel that loss ought to be suffered occasionally to develop strength and fine points.

One who wins in an election should keep himself from dangerous overindulgence by reflecting on the possible fact that the majority scored so due rather than to the unpopularity of the loser than to the popularity of the winner.

Agitation has already started in having automobile passenger and truck lines. In support of the movement, it is urged that a railroad company has to pay taxes on its roadbed. The complaint is that the automobile, acting as a public carrier, uses the public highway without cost. Fixing taxation and responsibility on automobile owners, promoters, and carriers, promises to be pressed forward during the next few years.

Prompted by experience, we always feel a kindly and sympathetic interest in boys who stay green longer than the regularly allotted time. We know how it feels to be unable to arrange one's hands and feet so that they rest comfortably and do not seem in the way and unnecessary. We were so green that in mid-winter, probing into an empty woodpile to get a glimpse of the snow, thinking they had sensed the first sign of spring and the coming of fresh vegetation.

Some one has written a good article for the current Kiwanis magazine to emphasize what is termed "Justice in Selling." The writer decries the "practice" as a means of utmost frankness, putting one's cards on the table and making the facts so complete and so plain that even the computer could find no ground for criticism. Some go so far to the other extreme of so concealment, with nothing really important to conceal, that unwarranted suspicion is aroused.

We are all interdependent. One man's prosperity helps others prosper. Every successful enterprise is beneficial to every individual in a community. Every foul break, every lapse of judgment, every example of business or social astuteness in a measure affects and disturbs everybody. We cannot safely lift our nose appendages high in scornful aloofness. No matter what we are doing, we must give and receive sustaining courage and strength. We are our brother's keeper, without a doubt. Therefore, it is well to state his steps if they totter and flank his efforts if they need flanking. The one who breathes courage today may see it inspiration of courage from others tomorrow.

In the Christmas festivities to be inaugurated here December 8, committees and others are working enthusiastically to radiate holiday spirit and good cheer. Mistakes will be inevitable and that is why the most will be evident, but they will be inevitable and should be overlooked. All are cooperating with the highest motive, the desire to bring in the pre-Christmas days joyous and wholesome. The weather will be uncertain, and if it does not conform to local arrangements, the latter will have to conform to it. We would suggest that people see that they and their children are adequately clad to face the outdoor programme as we surge against catching cold. We have nothing against the undertaker or the cemetery association, but we don't want to see any increase in profits increased by reason of careless exposure.

THANKSGIVING

Recurrence of Thanksgiving day causes cessation of usual activities. The holiday feast and various forms of relaxation or enjoyment occupy attention. Religious worship calls many together and people are asked to review their blessings and open their hearts to expressions of thankfulness.

When in 1621 the Pilgrims inaugurated a special Thanksgiving day, they were profoundly in season. They had arrived the year before to escape religious persecutions and grow up with the country. Massachusetts where they landed, was raw and uninvolved only by the friendly Indians and wild animals. No one disputed their religious faith or their manner of worship. But the abundant inhabitants, substituted enough trouble to occupy spare time, and with everything to be done in the way of development and life to do with, the Pilgrims had tough sledding. An existence, free from religious intolerance, was about all the Pilgrims hoped for, and though as they became strong, they, too, became intolerant; they were in a happy and grateful frame of mind after pouncing out the first year of their trying experience. In the task of creating a new civilization in Massachusetts, they suffered terrible hardships. But they had set to work without thought of luxury and without expecting much in material reward, and when their first harvest was garnered, and they found they had made what seemed good progress in different ways, they set apart a day for thanksgiving, and they were truly thankful.

But as time has passed, we have learned to regard Thanksgiving day as more than a time to recount material rewards. It should draw one closer to the divine source, and fix on his soul an impress of kindly fellowship that will not fade with the passing days. The spirit of the occasion should so unfold one's better nature that he will be inspired to keep it unfolded through subsequent time. It should be a stimulus to unselfish thought and helpful service.

WHAT LEGISLATION MAY DO.

President Coolidge has appointed members of a commission to analyze farm problems and report proposed policies that may be adopted to establish a better balance between agriculture and other industries. Congress can use its influence to stimulate and stabilize foreign markets for farm products. Much has been done in helping restore the buying power of central Europe. More can be done. Cheap credit is also essential. It is also important to modify manufacturing costs. Whether the cost is due to high wages or to excessive profits, we do not know. Anyway, we think manufacturers should submit to a reasonable reduction in the interest of a just parity between their goods and farm products. It is not so apparent that the latter should go up as that other values, offered to consumers in farming communities, should be shaved down in fair proportion.

One thing legislation cannot do in behalf of easier sledding is to cure extravagant habits. It cannot make a two-thousand-dollar income cover a three-thousand-dollar living cost. It cannot guarantee increased production and increased pay in exchange for less time and less work. It cannot guarantee increased prosperity to the man who has more automobiles than he can use, or who is guilty without trespassing on time needed for productive endeavor. Legislation cannot remove extravagant desires any more than it can cure indigestion. It cannot take a man by the nape of the neck and lead him away from unwise investment or wild indulgence. It cannot instantly alleviate pain incurred through idleness or foolish waste. Like nature, legislation can create a favorable atmosphere, and then each one must hoe his own row and accept the consequences of his own industry or lack of industry, his own economy or lack of economy.

GIRL AND BOY GRADUATES

It has been reported that over the United States the average ratio of the girl and boy graduates from high schools is twenty-four to one. In other words, for every high school diploma awarded, twentyfour have gone to girls and one to a boy. This seems incredible, but it is important to note that it is not the more girls than boys are taking advantage of our educational system even where schooling is the most popular. This condition may be well to consider in Nebraska, which stands high in quality of brains. It ranks second in absence of illiteracy. Other states with less ambition, increase the proportion of girl to boy graduates. While more girls than boys have been graduated from the Wayne high school, they are far more nearly equal in numbers here than elsewhere. One who considers the whole country, a state school and educated groups stimulate ambition for mind training here. During the past seven years the Wayne high school graduated 130 girls and 57 boys. Only one year did a boy win the honor of excelling in grades. Over at the State Teachers College it is found that since the school became a state institution fourteen years ago, 992 girls and 222 boys have been graduated. The record shows that the grades of the girls usually averaged above those of the boys, and that the girls were taken distinctly superior rank.

In olden times, boys were given every advantage over girls in education. They were allowed to aspire to much aside from house-keeping, and according to an antiquated notion, a highly cultivated girl was not considered a desirable household element. By tradition a follower, she did not learn until late years to take the initiative. Now in these days, all rights are being taken rapid forward strides. She is developing released powers of analysis and judgments. While formerly given largely to imitation, she is now gaining in strength of opinion and in capacity for original thought and expression.

Young men have inherited strong bodies and resourceful brains. It is up to them to quicken their pace in training and polishing them if they wish to fall far in the rear of their fair sisters in mental accomplishments. Young men must not rest on traditional advantages. If they do, it is conceivable that they in time will be drifting helplessly, while tasks requiring leadership and fine intelligence are performed by the women.

As to Education.

To the Herald: Now that Education week is just over, let their attention called to education and its cause we might comment: First, possibly the few dissenters got more satisfaction out of finding fault with minor and unimportant details of the program than did that whole army of conscientious, constructive educators whose efforts were bent on making a week of rededication to the cause of public education. This same group of dissenters call themselves progressive but are in fact reactionary and backward as educators. They are reactionary because to them there are two sides to every question namely "their side and the wrong side." They are ready to make wild-eyed charges against anyone who opposes them. Second, their range of vision is small, if we are to judge by the talk indulged in by these self-styled progressives. They get one idea before them and it overshadows everything else. They are swept off their feet by the lesser things of every large movement. They indulge in talk of the scientific attitude but forget all about it when called upon to produce any facts, which have led them to the opinions put forth. Third, and last, they speak eloquently on the "freedom of teaching," but within their own classes do not permit freedom of thought and speech, especially if that develops an opposite view. No instructor has the right to go into a public school room and promulgate one set of pet notions of his own or anyone else's, whether politics, education or religion. He must truly be "a seeker after the truth," yet he must not conclude for the class what the truth is. There was a time when it was said that the business of the school was to help the pupil acquire knowledge of a large number of facts, making a sort of walking encyclopedia of the graduate. That time is past. We no longer think that is the right idea. Later it was thought that schools should provide an opportunity for the pupil to get certain experiences which would be of value to him in the solution of life's problems. But we are passing that stage in our educational development. The more progressive school people, while accepting what has been mentioned above as a part of functions of the school, believe that its greater usefulness will be found in developing the pupil's powers of originality, that is to say, his ability to use his old experience in a new situation.—Conrad Jacobson.

E. Mason of the Pilger public schools suffered a broken arm and injuries, when the car in which he was riding was wrecked.

Flordene Dennis, 17, and Bessie Duncean, 17, two high school girls were also in the car. They were going to Stanton to take the teachers' examinations. Miss Dennis was driving and just as the car was turning a corner it turned over.

Miss Dennis suffered a broken arm and severe bruises on the head and limbs.

Miss Duncean received a few slight scratches.

A Funny World, My Masters!
Omaha Bee: This is a funny old world, isn't it? And such a funny lot of people in it.

Before a man is allowed to run a locomotive on a fixed track and in accordance with imperative orders, the engine must carry a lone operator. Any moon with enough money to make the first payment on an automobile is permitted to drive it on the public highways. He can drive it, too, pretty much as he pleases and in utter disregard of all the common-sense rules of safety.

We shudder with horror when we read of a railway wreck that snuffs out a half-dozen human lives, but we read in the same newspaper of a dozen auto accidents that snuff out a dozen human lives and nonchalantly turn over to the next page for something really exciting.

More people are killed every year in preventable accidents in the United States than were killed in any battle of the Civil war. We shuddered with horror when we read of the toll death claimed in the American army during the World war, but we pay no attention to the longer death roll due to preventable accidents, chiefly automobile.

A street car motorist must undergo an examination for eyesight, caution and physical well being before he is permitted to handle a controllerbar. But a man with strabismus, cataract, neuritis, phlebitis, neuritis and senility is allowed to drive an automobile.

"A funny world, my masters!" And we are such a funny people. We whoon with joy and throw our hats into the air when commodity prices and wages take an upward turn. We ignore the fact that human life is the cheapest thing on the market, and getting cheaper all the time.

The Better Way.
(A. L. By by Lincoln Journal.)
When you beard me in my shop,
Please be brief;
When you steal my time, old top,
You're a thief.
'Tis I have a certain knack
To make time along this track,
Everyone who holds me back
Causes grief.

"Concentration" is the fat I live on.
When I lose my grip on that,
I am gone,
If you see me in my den
Working with machine or pen,
You're there, my fellow-men,
Don't let on.

Wait outside a little while,
Till I quit
Then I'll greet you with a smile—
You are it.
Coming in at my request,
Shut you sit at my feet and rest:
With your feet upon my chest?
Aber nix!

State just what you have in view,
That's a dear!
Let me talk a little, too.
While you're here,
Give me something fresh and new,
Current rumors, false or true;
And the moment you are thru—
Disappear!

Forty Years Ago.
Geneva Signal: Compensating in a measure for the political advertisements that were no longer found in the Aurora Republican republished last week an after-election editorial from its file of forty years ago in which the editor of the day bemoaned his hard luck. He said the members of his own political party were abusing him for not doing more for them and the members of the opposing political party were fighting mad because he did so much, while half of the readers of his newspaper were angry because he did so much space to politics, charging him with neglecting the news. He wound up his doleful lament with the comment that the whole thing served him right for being so foolish as to be engaged in newspaper work. That stuff is all off now. Even forty years ago the public had back bones on which to rest their brains and enough energy to use their legs more than they used their tongues in making the public squabble feared well enough if they had the common sense to choose a field adequate in all respects. A farmer would not attempt to do any day long farming in a desert where rain never falls, but some men try to keep newspapers alive under equally adverse circumstances.

Sign of the Times

York Republican: It takes no deep logic to read in the election returns a sign of the times. The nation has voted for an era of conservative economic and political dealing. A review of the results in the voting on referendum measures the nation over produces the conclusion that the people are contented now to cling to the old and tried and let the new fangled notions of politics and government severely alone. The same situation is seen in the British elections. The trend of the world's thinking is against radicalism and toward conservative, constructive action. And that this feeling obtains and is considered a settled national policy is seen by the way in which business activity resumed and the stock trading became strong on the boards of trades after the election. "Make haste slowly" is the slogan adopted by the popular vote of the nation November 4th.

Rev. F. A. High Speaks Here on Prohibition

Rev. F. A. High of Lincoln, superintendent of the Nebraska Anti-Saloon League, spoke to a large and appreciative audience in the Methodist church last Thursday evening on the subject, "We'll See It Through" and showed motion pictures entitled "Let Us Forget." Judge A. A. Welch presided at the meeting and introduced the speaker. The program opened with the singing of America and Rev. C. L. Stager of the English Lutheran church offered prayer. Dr. High laid out law enforcement and the prohibition work in the United States and spoke of how they may lead to world wide prohibition. The pictures dealt with the same theme. Dr. High spoke in Wakefield Friday, in Waterbury Saturday and in Allen Sunday.

Society

A. R. E. Judson Home. Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Judson entertained a few friends last Thursday evening at bridge.

Entertain M. E. Choir. Mrs. D. Hall and Mrs. W. D. Hall were hostesses last Friday evening to the members of the Methodist choir and a few guests. Mrs. Donald Fitch, Rev. and Mrs. John G. Shick and Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Gilderleeve. Fifteen were present and spent the evening practicing music for Sunday. The hostesses served luncheon.

Lutheran Aid Society. Mrs. Charles Haikes entertained the English Lutheran Aid society last Thursday afternoon. Mrs. Bordorf was taken into the society by a new member and Miss Helen G. Brown was a guest. The time was spent in sewing carpet rags for rugs which will be sold at the annual bazaar.

Mrs. Haikes served refreshments at the close of the afternoon. Mrs. Andy Thompson will be hostess to the women next Thursday.

Baptist Meeting Thursday. Women of the Baptist Union and Missionary society met last Thursday with Mrs. G. A. Wade invited guests were: Mrs. E. E. Melvin and Mrs. Winneberg. Miss Elsie Gilbert led the Thanksgiving session and she was assisted by Mrs. C. E. Gilderleeve, Mrs. W. S. Bressler, Mrs. Ellis Giron and Mrs. James Rennick. The society plans to do some local mission work.

Mrs. Wade and Mrs. Edwin. Sala served luncheon. Neither of the societies will meet next week.

For Miss Elizabeth Mines. Miss Elizabeth Mines, whose marriage to Robert Awtar of Des Moines will be solemnized on Nov. 28, was a guest of honor last Thursday evening at a kitchen shower given by Miss Genevieve Roberts, Miss Edna May Horney and Mrs. C. E. Gilderleeve at the W. H. Gilderleeve home. About twenty-five were present and spent the evening in entertaining friends for a bedspread for the bride-to-be. Alice Mae Young, as a little maid, brought gifts to Miss Mines in a small express wagon. The hostesses served refreshments at the close of the evening.

Club Has First Luncheon. Sixty-six women attended last Friday noon at the Boyd hotel the first luncheon ever planned by the Wayne Woman's club and the occasion was a successful one. It is anticipated that a similar luncheon will be a feature of each year. The event was held as a booster for the annual club bazaar which is to be Dec. 6. Guests found their places at small tables and G. A. Gansko deserves much credit for the way in which the luncheon was served.

Mrs. S. A. Lutgen, toastmistress for the program of after-dinner talks, was introduced by Mrs. Charles Schultheis, club president. The general theme of the toast was "A comparison of the club to a racing boat." Mrs. Lutgen was a most able toastmistress and introduced the following: Mrs. J. G. W. Lewis, who spoke of "the representative group"; Mrs. D. J. Cavanaugh, who told of "our boat"; Mrs. A. A. Welch, who talked in the same category; Mrs. Adeline Eichen, who spoke for "the captain"; Mrs. G. W. Crossland, who gave the viewpoint of "the crew"; Mrs. C. A. Chace, who spoke of "launching"; Miss Mary Mason, who spoke of "our opponents"; Mrs. H. H. Hahn, who related "past victories"; Miss W. H. Huse, who explained "our present goal" and Mrs. Clyde Oman, who acted as pep leader. After the toasts Mrs. Oman led in singing the new part of "Nebraska, My Native Land." All who took part deserve praise. The women had one of the best times in the history of the club and much enthusiasm was developed for making the annual bazaar a success.

Newspaper is Public Utility. Beatrice Sun: "A public utility, such as a newspaper, must serve all of the people and advance all the legitimate interests of the community in which it operates."

"The chief function of a newspaper is to collect and publish the news. This may seem a very easy thing to do, and the methods of doing it have been fairly well defined, but when it comes to pleasing everybody, particularly rival interests, the news editor has a difficult task."

"Protagonists of one cause and another appeal to the news editor to put the thing they are interested in upon the first page and under the largest head that the paper uses as a headline. They are not interested in making the newspaper readable, but they do wish to advance the particular cause which they advocate. If some really important news of the day happens to come in and crowd their pet item into a subordinate position, they take it as an evidence of favoritism and unfairness on the part of the man who makes up the pages."

The news editor who uses his head displays the news in proportion to its importance. A meeting of the chamber of commerce which had labored and brought forth a resolution on the subject of railroad rates might get a prominent position on the first page on some days, but if it happened to occur upon a day when a prominent citizen was assassinated, or when one of the stores on main street was robbed or the court house burned, the resolution might get very little space in the paper. It is far more common for the advocate of the special cause, which somebody wants boomed and promoted, to complain because the thing he is interested in did not monopolize the front page. To be able to find reward for his labors in the newspaper at heart, and actuated by a desire to make it readable and interesting to the readers, approaches the subject from a different angle than does the advocate of some particular cause which only a part of the community cares anything about. "There may be uttered sometime, somewhere, a word of thanks for a newspaper's fair and impartial handling of a matter of news, but such words are not common. It is far more common for the advocate of the special cause, which somebody wants boomed and promoted, to complain because the thing he is interested in did not monopolize the front page. To be able to find reward for his labors in the newspaper at heart, and actuated by a desire to make it readable and interesting to the readers, approaches the subject from a different angle than does the advocate of some particular cause which only a part of the community cares anything about."

O. R. Bowen Upholds Educational Plans

Speaks on Constitution and Patriotism at State Normal.

Revolutionists, communists, and extreme pacifists are a menace to the guarantees of the constitution, i. e., to life, liberty, justice, security and opportunity," asserted Prof. O. R. Bowen of the Wayne State Teachers College in an address last Thursday morning at the chapel here, when he spoke on the constitution and patriotism, in observance of Education week.

"The constitution is the 'bulwark of democracy and happiness.' Because it is made by man it is not perfect and is subject to all weaknesses incident to humanity. However, above mentioned guarantees, and revolutionists, communists and extreme pacifists are a menace to them.

Mr. Bowen's definition of a revolutionist is one who attempts to overthrow his government. This means one who would overthrow his constitution and, therefore, one who is a menace to the guarantees of the constitution. A communist, he stated, is one who wants to substitute a different form of government for the one we have. He would, according to his plan, overthrow the constitution and thus menace these guarantees. The extreme pacifist according to Mr. Bowen's definition, is one who will not fight even if his country be invaded. He would not, therefore, defend the institutions of his country if they were attacked. He would not protect the constitution which his defense and therefore he is a menace to the guarantees of the constitution.

"I never want my children to come under the teaching of any so-called political or social scientist who believes in a revolutionist, a communist, a pacifist is a menace to the guarantees of the constitution," asserted Mr. Bowen. "I am in any state institution, any so-called social scientist or political scientist were to teach my children that a revolutionist, a communist or an extreme pacifist had any guarantee to the guarantees of the constitution, I would enter my vigorous protest against such teaching."

Referring to the address Mr. Bowen dealt with the topic, "The U. S. flag is the living symbol of the ideals and institutions of our republic. The red flag means death, destruction, poverty, starvation, disease, anarchy." Education week plans include the helping of the alien and immigrant to become American citizens.

"We do not want a little Italy, a little Austria, but we want a big America. To realize this we must get the spirit of America and Americanize ourselves as well as the newcomers." It is the spirit of the nation that Lincoln portrayed in his famous Gettysburg address that keeps alive American ideals.

Education week is observed nationally and plans were laid by the Bureau of Education, the American Legion and the National Education association. As decided by the above, each day of the week is devoted to some phase of the plan. Monday was patriotism day; Wednesday, school and teacher day; Thursday, Friday, physical education day; Saturday, community day; and Sunday, God and country day. The program has been attacked, particularly the constitution and patriotism day plans, points out Mr. Bowen. He said the country has suffered and spent much money in the name of the spirit of America and the guarantees of the constitution which are "the bulwark of democracy and happiness."

Tiger, commissioner of education, in defense of education week and in refutation of the charge that politics has been injected into education week plan stated that "it has been the policy of the Bureau of Education to remain out of politics." He said, "The commissioner of education is a non-partisan and non-political. If the constitution of the United States is brought into politics, it is the commissioner of education and every other federal officer is performance necessarily injected into politics. I have taken oath to uphold the constitution of the United States. I am going to carry out my oath."

He further stated, "I believe that the program for American Education week is a clean, clear, constructive program. I feel that it is worthy of support by the American people. Every kind of propaganda and aim has been injected into the public schools. Is it possible that any one would contend that the teaching of patriotism or Americanism in the public schools is intolerant?"

"The program for American Education week is practically the same that has been observed for several years," he emphasized. The purpose of the constitution, patriotism, the betterment of schools and teaching conditions, the eradication of illiteracy, physical education and allegiance to God and country."

Annual Meeting of Fair Association

The second annual meeting of the stockholders of the Wayne County Fair association will be held at the city hall in Wayne on Saturday, December 6, at 2 o'clock. Among other business will be the election of a president, vice president, secretary, treasurer and three directors.

A Big Money Saver

The Lessman Lander Manufacturing company has completed an experimental test to its own satisfaction in cutting or straddling the much talked of creek which wastes a tremendous lot of valuable farming ground in the vicinity of Wayne and Wabasha, as well as Concord. The experiment was made to convince the company whether or not it would be advisable to recommend this equipment. There was a former test made at Dixon, Illinois, which was reported very successful. However, the company was not instrumental in making this test.

The wonderful Lessman loader now found its place in over fifty different uses, ranging from the ordinary work of a farmer to the possibilities of this machine have spread so tremendously in the past two years, that the company itself has been scarcely able to keep up with the pace. Every now and then a new use develops for this equipment. The fact that this equipment has revolutionized the dirt moving game, it has meant a lot to the general public.

People begin to realize more and more that if these statements about this equipment are true, great saving can be effected throughout the states, by counties, contractors, and for municipal purposes. The saving is so great that scarcely any of the cities that have grasped the possibilities of this equipment have failed to put this saving into effect by buying and placing the machines on the job. It seems as though some of the testimonies and statements are repeating these performances throughout the states.

The Lessman Loader company has letters from municipalities as well as county engineers and contractors, stating where they had effected an actual saving of 50 to 60 dollars per day. The greatest amount of machines sold to one company the first seven months in 1924 was one hundred and some odd machines. It is a good reason for one to get a letter to six thousand dollars worth of this equipment.

Another year rolls around and with it comes the day set aside for Thanksgiving—

As we review the growth and development of our surrounding community we are indeed thankful that we have been able to be one of the active factors in this great advancement.

And again we are thankful that the coming years will bring new friendships in addition to the old, and an even greater desire to carry on our share of the active duties that make us singly better citizens and collectively a better commonwealth.

Don't Wait Until Spring

Right Now—this winter—is the best time for interior Painting and Decorating.

Spring and Fall are the logical times for outside painting, but interior painting and paperhanging should be done now in the winter.

You want good work—and your painter and decorator can't afford to give you any other kind. But if they have to part with their good men during the winter months, they are handicapped—and so are you. The only way they can keep their men together, ready to serve you, is to keep them busy all the year around. They can do this if you and your neighbor will have your interior work done now, during these next two months.

We will have our new 1925 wallpapers in stock and will also show samples of the leading lines of distinctive wallpapers, such as Strahan, Graves, Birges, Balck, etc. Exceptional prices will be made on a set room made during the next two and one-half months.

Miss Rena Roberts of Stanton, former student at Wayne, went to Fort Wayne, Ind., to attend commercial college.

A wolf found belonging to Harvey Brown of Stanton, caught a large coonote in a pasture near Stanton.

Nathan Chase of Long Beach, Calif., formerly of Stanton is visiting friends in this part of the state and will be in charge of the state at the Stanton Business Man's club. He compared business conditions in Nebraska and California and he stated that he felt the state has gone through the dark days and is emerging into a period of improved conditions. He states that California went through the same times and that conditions are still a little uncertain but he thinks improvement will come there also.

John J. Jones of Randolph took thirty-six premiums on apples at the Wayne, Cedar and Pierce county fairs.

Miss Emma Dinger and Will Long of Randolph, were married in Yorkton Wednesday of last week.

The highway to the east next spring in the northern part of Nebraska, will pass through Waterbury and just north of Dixon. This will be part of the Grant highway which extends from Chicago to Portland, Ore.

Charles and his family, who are high at a meeting last week, considered having a community Christmas tree this year.

Stoughton Nelson, son of Gust A. Nelson of Waasa, underwent a mastoid operation in Sioux City last week.

George Fisher residence two miles from Bloomfield, was destroyed by fire last week Tuesday. Mr. Fisher discovered a fire in an upstairs room and rushed to the door, but he was unable to get out. He was rescued by neighbors who saw the house in flames.

Leo Neagle of Wisner was struck by an auto and injured slightly last week when he was crossing a street.

Frank Simonin of Wayne, brick layer on the Catholic church in Wisner, cut his left wrist last week while working. The wound was quite serious for a few days.

Miss Marjorie Parmenter, superintendent of Pierce county, and O. S. Spillman, attorney general of this state, applied for a marriage license Nov. 10 in Pierce county.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Michaelson of Plainville, celebrated their golden wedding anniversary last week.

Loses State Title Because of Haste

Swedeburg, Neb., Nov. 21.—White 2,500 people looked on, Virgil Archer, last week's victor, won the Nebraska state championship corn husking contest at the O. J. Lehr farm near here. He shucked 1,627 pounds of corn in less than two and a half hours.

Louis Dinklage of Weyer, topped swedeburg with 1,623 pounds. A. G. Anderson of Sutton was third with 1,609 pounds and Joseph Korf of Bavelle took fourth with 1,469 pounds.

Disappointed to be unable to participate in the contest, was realizing his haste, for he shucked more corn than Archer, only to be penalized 300 pounds because of the corn he left on the ears.

The prizes for the four places were $30, $25, $15, and $10 respectively, besides the honor of first runner.

Dr. Condra of the state university took motion pictures of the contest, as a representative of the Fox picture.

J. W. Korum, 55 years old, of Fremont, was a "conquering veteran" in the contest, his record including a "lazy farmer" husking exhibition, lived on the afternoon for the victor.

Early Days In Two Counties

From the Wayne Herald for Nov. 23, 1915: The Early Hour club has been re-organized.

Mr. P. Savidge is building a new residence.

Mr. and Mrs. T. W. Moran spent Thanksgiving in Jackson.

Frank Hood killed a large wolf while hunting near here.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Cunningham entertained a number of friends.

Union Thanksgiving exercises are being held at the Lutheran church.

Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Brenner went to Minneapolis to spend Thanksgiving.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Piele and Frank Peiren leave soon for Los Angeles.

Mrs. P. M. Corbit and daughter, Leta, went to Stanton to visit at the F. J. Bennett home.

The thermometer jumped down to ten degrees below zero this week and a beautiful snow fell.

Judge Norris and family came from Ponca to spend Thanksgiving with the B. Phelan family.

Sam Hood has purchased M. K. Rickabaugh's interest in the barber shop of Rickabaugh & Son.

Star West received four cars of cattle and Charles Gilderleve received three cars for feeders.

From Ponca Journal, Nov. 25, 1924: The business of shoveling out streets and sidewalks was one which called out a large shovel brigade during several days following the storm of last week.

The grand jury at Sioux City, last week, indicted Ahrensford and nine others for killing Rev. Haddock. The trial of the defendants will take place in January.

All postoffices were closed on Monday, from 10 a. m. to 2 o'clock p. m., out of respect to Ex-President Arthur, whose funeral took place at New York City on that day.

Another uproarous storm is predicted by Prof. Foster of Burlington, Iowa. It will extend from December 4th to the 17th, and will be one of the worst that has occurred for years. He suggests that due preparation be made for it in order to protect life and property. His prediction may prove true and may not.

It has been ascertained that a bridge across the river at Sioux City will have to be about fifty feet above high water mark in order to allow steamboats to pass under it. There are plans to raise the Sioux City end of the bridge, but on the Nebraska side there are no bluffs nearer than Jackson. A bridge across the river therefore means a bridge from Sioux City to Jackson, and the track all that distance will be from 40 to 50 feet above the earth's surface.

When a train in passes along, it will, to spectators in South Sioux City, present a startling appearance as, far as the eye is concerned, it seems its way among the heavens and rafters of the universe.

Hall's Catarrh Medicine

Those who are in a "run-down" condition will notice that their health improves more than when they are in good health. This is because Hall's Catarrh is a local disease. It is greatly influenced by constitutional conditions.

The NERVOUS WRECK

Begin Here Today.
Sally Morgan, daughter of the owner of the Bar-M ranch in Montana, has to go a distance of 35 miles from the ranch to catch a train for the east, where she intends to buy a trousseau for her wedding to Sheriff Bob Wells. Wells is unable to ride with her to the station, so the "Nervous Wreck," an eccentric young easterner who is visiting at the ranch, offers to take her to the station in his own automobile.
The sheriff ridicules the suggestion, but Sally and the Wreck set out anyway over the rough, narrow track. This is a hard one, and in time they are completely lost. Sally begins to regret that they attempted to make the journey.

Now Go On With The Story.
CHAPTER III.
"If You Start, Finish—"
No longer had she any idea that she would find the railroad and the water tank at which it was possible to signal the train. When 7 o'clock came she dismissed that from her mind, and she set out to get back to the ranch. The sheriff was right; it could not be done, as the Wreck said it could.
She felt a sharp sense of humiliation in being lost on the range; that was a trick for dudes, perhaps, but not for a girl born and raised within half a day's ride. If only she could get a glimpse of Black Top, she could walk to it even if they had to abandon the flivver. But Black Top had vanished in a misty way somewhere behind miles of hummocks.
"There's water here somewhere," she called suddenly. "Watch yourself!"
The Wreck circumnavigated a tree, young alders and sent the flivver crashing magnificently through. The front wheels dropped sharply, the flivver tilted forward in an angle of 45 degrees, plunged, flattened out again and came to a stop, hub deep in a stream.

"There!" said Sally. "I told you there was water."
"I never denied it," said the Wreck.
"How water are you going to do?" He stepped out on the running board and descended briskly into the stream, which cooled his legs pleasantly. Wading around to the rear of the car, he fumbled in the luggage compartment, then appeared with a canvas contraption which, upon being unfolded, was a bucket.
"I'm going to fill the radiator," he said. "Water is exactly what we need."
Sally made a gesture of helpless exasperation and watched him as he went mechanically about his task. The flivver drank more than a bucketful and he nodded in a satisfied way when at last it overflowed at the top.

"And now what?" she demanded. "Now we drive on, of course."
He climbed back into the seat, after returning the bucket to its place, and jammed his foot on the pedal that engages the clutch. The flivver trembled, moved, stopped again. There was a terrific rattle of the motor, it did something more to the pedals and the gears were in reverse, but still the motor raced without producing a corresponding movement.
"No traction," remarked the Wreck, as he glanced over the side and watched the rear wheel spinning in the stream.
He stepped out again and tramped around in the water for a while.
"Cold water is great stuff for the nerves," said the Wreck, looking up. She glanced at the sky, then at her watch.

"CAN YOU GET THAT THING OUT OF THE WATER?"
watch, and there was dimmy in her eyes.
"Do you know that it will be dark in about half an hour?" she demanded.
"He also took an observation of the sky, and nodded.
"And that the train went long ago, and that we're nowhere near any railroad—or anything."
"I don't admit that we're nowhere near the railroad," he said. "But I'll admit we're not right on top of it."
"Then what are you going to do?" she flitted shouted.
"I'll do it myself," he answered, and he stroked his legs about in the stream in a tentative, exploratory fashion.
"The bottom's hard enough," he said, "but there's a lot of slippery stones. She won't take hold. And the way things are, I can't get the chains on." She went on forward as she won't bicker. She needs a chance to cool out, anyhow."
He seemed to be actually content to sit there with no less amusing to Sally than it was maddening.
"Do you mean to say we'll never get out, Mr. Williams?"
"You'd better sleep in the car," he said.
"Why?"
"It's safer. If anything comes along—"

"The Wreck strode away among the cottonwoods. For a moment he was anxious to avoid argument. When he returned, Sally had curled herself up under the tree, with the coat over her, and was waiting for somebody to "better get a coat and find yourself a place," she advised. "We'll need to make an early start."
"You'd better sleep up in the car," he said.

"Why did you call me?"
"Call you? I've been fairly yelling at you. I've scared every jack-rabbit in the county, but you never budge. Is that what insomnia does to you?"
"I must have just dozed off," he smiled, as he yawned and stood up.
"Oh, yes."

254 Thanksgiving Days Until We Had Telephones
A struggling little group of Plymouth colonists at Plymouth, Massachusetts, founded Thanksgiving Day in 1621. It was 254 years later, in 1875, that the telephone was born.
The Pilgrims led a rigorous life beset with dangers and hardships. Their only means of communication called for tedious journeys on foot over unbroken trails or along the treacherous waters of an uncharted coast.
Today, we commemorate Thanksgiving with all the conveniences of modern civilization, and the celebration is a much more joyous occasion because of them.
We are now a nation of 110 million people, spread over a land 3,000 miles from coast to coast. But we are all linked together by 36 million miles of wire of the Bell System and connecting companies, so that everyone may talk to anyone, anywhere.

Red Wing Man Adds Evidence

William Henn Tells How Tanlac Restored His Health.

"Tanlac brought me back to health three years ago, and a bottle or two now-and then has helped to keep me steady on the job ever since," is the matter-of-fact statement made re- cently by William Henn, 470 North- wood St., Red Wing, Minn.

"For a year or more I was let down from stomach trouble, and I was just about as bad as I was unable to work. What I ate would like like lead in the pit of my stomach causing gas pains and bloating that made me miserable for hours. Headaches, dizzy spells, pains in my back and shoulders, a constant tired feeling and sleepless nights had just about finished me."

"But Tanlac made me feel like a new person, and now I eat, sleep and feel fine and can do as hard a day's work as I ever did. I wouldn't be without Tanlac in the house."

"Tanlac is for sale by all good drug- gists. Accept no substitute. Over 40 million bottles sold."

"Tanlac Vegetable Pills recommended by the manufacturers of Tanlac."

confidence in the complete recovery of the country, according to the car service division of the American Railway as- sociation. Four of these were set in October. On one day of that month, according to the report, 1,030,211 freight cars loaded or empty, ac- cording to the report, the greatest car movement for any day in the history of American railroading. In the week ending October 25, 1924, 1,112,245 cars bearing revenue freight were re- ceived. This topped the high record of 1923 by 148,822 cars. The greatest num- ber of cars being grain and grain products ever to be loaded within one week was 72,474. In October all previous records were broken in the loading of 322,830 cars of miscellan- eous freight in one week and in the loading also of 259,617 cars of mer- chandise and less than carload lots of coke and coal, which, it is pointed out, would add 26 per cent to the grand total, 31,700,789 cars were loaded. This was 363,182 more than were loaded in 1923. The 1923 load- ing for that period had been the high mark in American railroading. In addition to the foregoing, another record was set in respect to the number of surplus freight cars and serviceable locomotives in storage when the loading of revenue freight was in excess of 1,000,000 cars a week. So it appears that the rail- roads are functioning in a highly ef- ficient manner, having solved the problem of over-congestion and brought about the quickest freight transportation in history.

Reference to the business chart showing a comparison of this year and 1923 reveals a majority gain for 1924. Bank clearings, retail sales, car loadings, iron output, building and mail orders all have passed the figures for 1923. Greater increases are expected for the present month inasmuch as the post election con- fidence will have had opportunity to increase the momentum of recovery.

Meanwhile there is reflected in fi- nancial centers a greatly increased
