Present Operetta at Normal December 16

"The Condiars," the musical operetta to be presented by students of the Wayne State Normal, will be given Tuesday evening, Dec. 16, in the auditorium. The operetta is written by Gilbert and Sullivan, authors of "The Pirates of Penzance," the operetta that was popular last year. The production is in charge of the production and Prof. W. C. Hunter is in charge of the orchestra for the accompaniment. The soloists are assisted by a large chorus.

In the story of the operetta the infant son of the late king of Barataria is betrothed, when mere child, to the daughter of the king of the island of Venice. The betrothal of the son is stolen by the Spanish inquisition and is now living in Venice but it is unknown as to which of the two gondoliers, Marco (Elmer Corbit) or Quiseppe (Lawrence Campbell), these two gondoliers marry two flower sellers, Giannetta (Margaret McDonald) and Tessa (Frances Berryhauer). Then comes the announcement that one is the king of Barataria and the husband of Giannetta. There seem to be therefore three wives for two husbands. The two gondoliers go to Barataria and return with the king and the bride. The bride is found. The old nurse of the king, played by Alice Crockett, arrives and proclaims that the real king is her supposed son, Luigi (Lawrence Campbell) who had been exchanged for the king when an infant. Thus Luigi is married to Giannetta and the gondoliers repair with their wives to the island and duchess, parents of Giannetta, are played by Ralph Robertson and Ann Johnson. Other characters are: Antonio, Nini, Jorgenson; Flannigan, Mrs. McDonald; Virginia, the other sisters; Julia, Minnie Kienke; Francesco, Alfred Homuth; George, Walter DeWitt; and Don-Albama, Eric Wendt.

Points Touched in President's Message

Washington, D. C., Dec. 3.—Annual lights in President Coolidge's high message were: "The nation's position improved in all fields a position unexampled in our country's history." "If we will but apply ourselves industriously and honestly we have ample powers with which to meet our needs and provide for their speedy solution."

Perhaps the most important word of this session of congress can do is to continue a policy of economy and further reduce the cost of government. "The nation's position improved in all fields a position unexampled in our country's history."

"Anybody can reduce taxes, but it is not so easy to stand in the gap and resist the massing of increasing appropriation bills which would make tax reductions impossible."

"No period in the past twelve years has our foreign relations been in such a satisfactory condition as they are at the present time."

"Every one knows that the greatest danger to the farmer in market is the country is now suffering on the side of production. Almost the entire difficulty is on the side of distribution."

"Consolidation of railroads will assure not only a greater element of competition as to service, but it will assure economy of operation, greater stability in railroad earnings and more economical financing."

"Any nation undertaking to improve its policy of relationship with aggressive and imperialistic designs will find itself severely handicapped in the economic development of the world."

"I believe in economy in the army and navy, in adequate defense and preparation, but I am opposed to any policy of competition in building and maintaining and equipping our armaments."

"The situation in our own country and all over the world is one that can be accomplished by hard work and self denial."

"Whatever its defect, the merit system is certain to be preferred to the spoils system."

"Our country x x x x wants no pretenses, it wants no vagaries. It is determined to advance in an orderly, sound and common sense way. It does not propose to abandon the theory of the declaration that the people have inalienable rights which no majority and no power of government can destroy. It is convinced that it will be impossible for the people to provide their own government unless they continue to own their own property."

"I want the people of all the earth to see in the American flag, the symbol of a government which stands no oppression at home and no aggression abroad, which in the spirit of a common brotherhood provides assistance in time of distress."

Careful About Stocks.

Norfolk Daily News: "We are going into the greatest stock boom ever known," says Warren S. Stone, president of the locomotive engineers and head of the brotherhood's bank. "There will be thirty or forty big foreign loans made in the next year or year and a half. They are dressing up old stocks and bonds, foreign and domestic, in new clothes, and selling them to the public. This is going to go on until they have got all the gold drained out of the country, and got most of the suckers' money, and then we are going to have another period of depression."

It may not be so bad as that, but the tendency is that way, and the public had better take warning accordingly. As Wall street grows active and optimistic, and the market for securities improves, the financial crooks get busy again. There may soon be a deluge of "blue sky" stocks, not worth the paper they are engraved on.

It is a good rule to question every security offered and make the salesman prove its value. It is still safer, in most cases, to put savings into the bank or into first mortgages or real estate. Bankers are pretty reliable, and land never evaporates.

Business.

Sioux City Journal: Railway earnings for October as compared with the same month of last year average larger amounts. Just a few of the class 1 roads show a fall in net gross income. All the IRIS reported, with the exception of the Union Pacific, show an increased net operating income even when the gross is smaller than last year. This is explained in just one way: The roads that have realized a reduction in gross income have, through improved management, been able to operate at lower cost.

Shipments average high on all the roads, the figure being greater than that of last year. General merchandise shipments have been extraordinarily heavy for the last two months with farm products and industries generally getting to the coast terminals and building materials and general merchandise from the manufacturing districts making for a balance in haulage. The roads are still busy, with no indication at this time that business will fall off appreciably after the first of the year.

Export values have increased on a courageous for the month of October. The improvement is represented principally in foodstuffs that have gone to Europe. The increase in value is put at $125,000,000 for the month. The foodstuffs shipments for October of this year are five times greater than those for the same month last year. Europe is buying more heavily as the old world gains headway in its reconstruction work under the Dawes reparations plan.

Exports of manufacturers also show a decided gain for October. Europe spent in that month $17,230,000 more for American factory products than was expended last year. The list is made up of machinery, motor cars, agricultural implements and autos. Export gains also were heavily represented in the buying.

In the retail trade at home there was a most favorable movement. October sales generally were higher than those of last year. Furniture and cotton goods showed the best increase. Retail stocks on November 1 were rated as 4 per cent higher than they were last year. Outstanding orders continued at about the same level as in 1923. The higher efficiency of railroad operation, which insures quicker shipments, is responsible in a degree for that condition. Merchants who have discovered that rush orders can be handled quickly are not stocking heavily as in years past. The actual demand for goods is greater, but wholesale orders are confined to the requirements of the trade.

The activity in the stock and bond market continues. Heavy sales feature the transactions from day to day. Few dividends of the bigger concerns are being passed, while percentages in the dominant are maintained. Oil stocks are strong in reaction to the continued urgent demand for byproducts, principally gas-

The rail stocks also are in good condition, mainly because of the realization that untoward legislation will not be attempted in congress. The government is not worried, according to advices from the commerce department, by developments in the New York market. The suggestion of a boom is not yet strong enough to provoke a warning against the dangers of inflation. Wall street seems to have control of its operations in a degree that prevents a disturbance of business confidence.

Wages remain at the old levels with unemployment gradually decreasing. The demand for structural steel and other building materials is somewhat stronger. The grain market is steady nearly a month after the national election without the slightest indication that prices will drop before the next harvest. A Further Interesting Coal Test

Last week we told you how to test "Very Hot" coal. Now try this test.

Take a pair of tongs and lift out one of the red hot "cauliflowers" we told you about, and plunge it into cold water—then hold it up and flip your finger nail against one of its edges. It will give out a clear, ringing sound like a tiny bell.

Important Reasons.

There is an important reason behind this strange "cauliflowering" quality of "Very Hot" coal. It comes from the famous Greek district in Routt county, Colorado, the district that produces the best and hardest coals in Routt county, and "Very Hot" shows the best analysis of all the coal from Routt county—exceeding in quality even Pinnacle itself.

It is the only "shaft-mined" coal in Routt county. It comes from a shaft 850 feet deep. This means that it is entirely free from "crop" or "surface" coal.

NEXT TIME, try "Very Hot." You won't know how good it is until you try it.

A Chiropractic Discovery

"Neurocalometer"

Chiropractic again leads in the greatest step forward in the Science of Health today. Invented and perfected at the Palmer School of Chiropractic, Davenport, Iowa, the Neurocalometer is used by Chiropractors only.

What the Neurocalometer Is—What it Does

- 1. Verifies the proper places for adjustments. 2. It measures the specific degree of vertebral pressures upon nerves. 3. It measures the specific degree of interference to transmission of mental impulses as a result of that vertebral pressure. 4. It proves the exact intervertebral foramina that contains bone pressure upon nerves. 5. It proves when that pressure has been released upon nerves at a specific place. 6. It proves how much pressure was released, if any. 7. It verifies the differences between cord pressure or spinal nerve pressure cases. 8. It establishes which cases we can take and which we should leave alone. 9. It proves by an established record which you can see, thereby eliminating all guesswork or diagnoses. 10. It establishes, from week to week, whether you are getting well or not. 11. It makes possible a material reduction in time necessary to get well, thus making health cheaper. 12. It removes all doubt as to what we are doing for you.

It will establish all these things to your satisfaction.

Carroll School Notes.

Statistics taken from the last six weeks' attendance of the high school are worthy of attention.

The number of boys in the high school is twenty-nine and the number of girls is forty-six.

The absence for the former total forty-nine and for the latter thirty-one and one-half.

Since many of the boys have been obliged to help in corn picking this season it can readily be seen why their percentage of attendance is lowered at this time.

The total number of tardy marks registered for the boys was fourteen and for the girls was eleven.

There need be fewer tardy marks. Students form the habit of coming late; they lose interest in their work and cause disturbance by entering the room late.

From a careful study of the attendance of rural and city students enrolled it is found that the former, who number forty-three, have an average of 85.5 percent.

The latter who number thirty-two, have a twenty-four percent.

Sluggishness and extra home work at this time may account for the amount of absence the past six weeks.

Each day's work is important and it is urged that students attend as regularly as possible.

For the forty-three rural pupils there have been only eleven cases of tardiness and among the town students there have been twenty.

The following summarizes the report of the high school for the six weeks for the seniors, Juniors, sophomores and freshmen respectively.

Number of pupils, 10, 16, 18, 31; cases of tardiness, 3, 5, 9, 8; number of absences, 18, 19, 12, 23; and percentage of attendance, 89, 86, 93, and 96.2.

The members of the senior class have been authorized to furnish school notes for the Wayne Herald and Carroll Index.

The following assignments have been made: News from first, second, third and fourth school parties, Alwyn-Slater; athletic news, Lois Morris; report reading, Lester Bredemeyer; delivery, Ernest Retwisch; and department news, Mildred Marshall.

A high school girls' glee club, consisting of twenty-four members, has been organized by Miss Bonnie Hess and the students will begin practicing next week, such Wednesday after school being the time for the practices.

The meetings of the glee club will be social as well as instructive.

The senior class has been studying journalism this week. The class found this interesting and hope to continue the study at a later date.

The junior physics class, under the supervision of Guy Ashford, have been studying the laws of gravitation.

The students in the bookkeeping class will study penmanship and business writing next week.

Anna Marie Stanton entered about Monday. Her parents have moved here from Humphrey.

Third and fourth grade pupils have started their studies.

These students are studying the Pilgrims.

Chaire Theophilus was absent last week because of illness.

The fifth, sixth, seventh and eighth grades gave a Thanksgiving program Wednesday afternoon of last week in Miss Amanda Lundahl's room.

Four students in the seventh and eighth grades did not have to take the spelling examination because of having an average above ninety-five.

The seventh and eighth grades had perfect attendance during the past week.

The Latin club met Wednesday evening at the high school building.

The program was as follows: Piano duet by Viola Thomas and Noble Owens, stereoscopic slides of Rome, secured from the University of Nebraska, and a paper on Roman dress by Clara Rothwick.

Games were played after the program and refreshments were served.

Miss Burdette Shannon of the Junior class was absent Monday and Tuesday because of illness.

The pupils and faculty of the school enjoyed a vacation Thursday and Friday. Supt. R. C. Anderson and Principal Guy Ashford attended the football game in Lincoln. Miss Bonnie Hess and Miss Grace Koefo visited home folks in Wayne and Norfolk respectively.

Miss Amanda Lundahl visited in Wakefield over the weekend. Miss Hazel Hammond went to Kennebunk, S. D., Wednesday and spent Thanksgiving with her sister, Andrew Jacobson. She returned Monday morning.

Those absent from school to help during corn picking last week were Merri Jones and Freddie Gemmel.

Myrtle Christensen was absent from school Wednesday.

Dale Thomas who was absent to help in corn picking, is back in school. The senior class rings arrived and they were not accepted as they were not satisfactory.

The individual, class and high school averages have been taken for the past six weeks. The highest grades in the senior class were earned by the following: Lois Morris, ninety-two and one-fourth percent; Ernest Retwisch, ninety-one and one-fourth percent; and Lester Bredemeyer, ninety-one percent.

The class average was eighty-eight. The junior class average was eighty-four and five-eighths. The honors were as follows: Frances Whitney, ninety-two and one-fourth percent; Lois Morris, ninety-one and one-half percent; and Fay Garwood, ninety and one-fourth percent.

The sophomore record gave the honors to Ernest Retwisch, ninety-three and one-half percent; Dorothy Bartsels, ninety-one percent; and Blanche Collins, ninety and one-half percent.

The class average was eighty-two and one-fourth percent. The freshmen averages were as follows: Evelyn Hancock, ninety-four and one-eighth percent; Marie, ninety-one percent; and Fred Gemmel, ninety and three-fourths percent.

The high school average was eighty-four and one-fourth percent.

Boys of the high school are taking an active interest in basketball and a series of practices for the winter practice due to the efforts of Captain Bredemeyer. Coach R. C. Anderson is putting the boys through a series of practices for the game Dec. 5.

The girls' basketball team has a game with the Wayne girls Friday of this week.

Burned by Ammonia.
Norfolk News, Dec. 3: Ed. Berg, foreman at the Haley-Neely company plant at 302 South Seventh street, was burned Tuesday night when an ammonia pipe burst as he was attempting to turn off the gas, and the ammonia sprayed over him. The fact that he wore glasses protected his eyes somewhat or the result would probably have been more serious. Other employees shut off the gas and after medical attention had been given Mr. Berg, it was announced that no permanent effects were expected. The ammonia fumes filled the basement but did no damage to the plant.
The ammonia is used in the refrigerating plant.

Mrs. Elva Brockway and son Myron drove to Laurel to spend Thanksgiving with relatives. They attended the radio show in Sioux City Friday.

Science speaks of "horse power," "man power," etc., but the power that really counts is manhood power.

considering everything, they seem to me to represent man's most successful attempt to reach absolute justice among men.

This is not saying that improvements might not be made. Some of our ablest jurists are themselves pointing the way. What we need is to have faith in our established institutions. They have not broken down. The times do not call for revolutionary procedure—the denial of the constitutional guarantees of free speech and press, freedom of conscience, and trial by jury—in the name of upholding the constitution.

We must keep the channels of orderly discussion open. We must regard suggested orderly changes simply on their merits. We must be careful about bandying ugly epithets, and above all we must cling to that fundamental maxim of our constitutional system, so much needed by the coming generation, namely, that no person shall be deprived of life, liberty, or property without due process of law.

For real old-fashioned goodness

Bio, hot loaves of crutty-brown bread! Bread that old-fashioned goodness, tender in the mouth, that just makes you want to eat more and still more of it! That's bread made with Omar Wonder Flour. Waffles, hot cakes, doughnuts, cookies, dumplings, cakes made with it are always light, delicious—unsurpassable. It brings to your baking just the right proportion of gluten—the health-giving, body-building element of wheat.

Ask your grocer for a sack today. If it does not make more and better loaves of bread than any other sack of flour you ever used, your grocer will refund your money.

From Ponca Journal, Dec. 2, 1886:
Wiley Gibson killed a big buck in the timber near the river on Sunday. It was about three years old and was of large size and in good condition.
We understand that the company of railroad surveyors made three sweeps through the village of Hartington, and gave the people to understand that Hartington was to be one of the main points on the line. Three years ago Hartington had just begun to sprout out of the naked prairie and now it has about 800 inhabitants. At the same rate of prosperity, it will be surprising if in three years more its 800 inhabitants had not increased to 3,000 at least.

There has been a more wonderful mystery than that which surrounds the purchase of the land along the river by Mr. Massey. He and others who are supposed to be acting with him, have bought some 600 acres at an average price of about $30 per acre. A year ago the best of this land would have been considered dear at $10 per acre, and 400 of the 600 acres could not have been sold at a dollar per acre. This big tract, every few days is being added to. The enormity of asking six times as much for land as it is worth is only equalled by the apparent folly of buying any such prices. The more broken and terrific the land, the higher the prices which purchasers seem willing to pay.
This land includes the Lime Kiln ravine, which opens on the Missouri at the most suitable place for building a bridge in a hundred miles. Yet a company wishing to build a bridge, do not need 600 acres of crags, peaks and gulches. Such land is not fit for a townsite unless communication is established from one part to another by balloon. The land cannot be used for side tracks because railroad companies do not build where they will have to either rock their sidetracks high in the air from peak to peak and across bottomless ravines, or else dig into the hills and across the sidetracks like tramways into a coal mine. Nine-tenths of the 600 acres is so earthily use to a railroad company. What then is it bought for with such eagerness? That there is to be railroad bridge there is without doubt, and it is reasonably certain that it will be completed in a spring. But it is evident, unless a railroad company has degenerated in common sense, that it has never bought all that chaotic nightmare of peaks and gulleys for railroad purposes.

Can it be the land is bought for mineral purposes? Why not tell Nobody but Mr. Massey, and as we are told he keeps his mouth shut. And he keeps right on buying more land at prices which seem fabulous.

What is News?
Omaha News. The answers to that question will be as many as there are city editors, and managing editors and newspaper readers. Newspaper making would be easy if only it were possible to find a real, honest, goodness answer to that question.
Why do the newspapers print so much about news? Newspaper workers bear that question every day. The best answer possible, and it is not claimed that it is the real answer, is that crime is news whether it is true and so is crime. Readers seem to like it. Crime is news whether it is true or so is crime. There is nothing resembling news in the news. Next Mr. and Mrs. John Jones had through Wednesday without having a fight. But if John batted the Missus over the head with a shovel, and Mrs. Jones split John's head open with a rolling pin, that would be news. Not uncommon news, to be sure, but news of a sort. What if you would read in a newspaper item stating that Cashier William Cash of the Seshant National bank attended to his duties as usual Monday? If William Cash fled to Canada Monday night, taking with him all of the bank's available cash, that would be real news.
We hope we make ourselves understood. Right living is the usual thing, therefore, not news. Crime is the unusual, therefore news. But not all unusual things are criminal, so there you are again. We are no nearer the answer than we were before. At least, not much nearer. What is news to you may not be news to your neighbor, and the other way around. If you like it, read it; if not, don't.

Pen Pointers
Every time you add a year to your life you take one away.
Here's hoping there are no detours on the road to your times.
Plant happiness in your mind and it will blossom in your heart.
Now is the time for all good men to start carrying the ashes out.
There's a difference between fortune smiling on you and giving you the laugh.

Begin Here Today.

Sally Morgan has to go 35 miles from her father's ranch to catch a train for the east. Sheriff Bob Wells, her fiancé, is unable to ride with her to the station. So the "Nervous Wreck," an eccentric young easterner visiting at the ranch offers to take her to the station in his title automobile.

The sheriff ridicules the suggestion, but Sally and the Wreck set out anyhow over the rough, uncertain trail. After a hard hour he becomes stuck in the middle of a stream, and they have to spend the night there. The Wreck claims he suffers from insomnia and can't sleep, but Sally has to "scare every jack-rabbit in the country" trying to wake him up next morning. "I must have dozed off," the Wreck mumbles.

Now Go on With the Story.

He did not see what she was laughing at as he stepped down into the stream and waded ashore, but refrained from asking any questions.

"The coffee's still hot," she said, as he joined her. "I think we'd better finish it, and then fill the bottle with water. And I think we'd better save half of these sandwiches, too. We may have some lunch."

She watched him slyly at he ate his breakfast, still rubbing the sleep out of his eyes. Evidently he had slept in his wet clothes all night, but that he did not appear to be any the worse for it. After the meal he carefully polished his spectacles, put them back in place and scrambled with his teeth with the resilience of a youth. The Wreck was a good deal of a puzzle to her. She felt that there was a lot of fraud about him, but that he was entirely unaware of it.

He went out to the car again, found the block and tackle, and then crossed the stream in search of a suitable tree to which he might hitch one end of his line. Sally questioned his purpose immediately. She did not catch why he wanted to had the car out on the other side, because they would never get back to the ranch that way. Why had it happened? The Wreck made an elaborate show of patience as he explained. The bank over which they had plunged was too steep; there was a better chance to get out on the other side. Anyhow, they wanted to keep on going didn't they? He didn't believe in going backward. She well, and where the River sailed a fairly stable course.

With the lightning of his labors at the wheel, the Wreck became almost inarticulate. He talked a good deal of gibberish and all points east. If his conversation carried a note which stressed the inferiority of the west, Sally declined to be drawn into argument. He seemed to be happy and he was doing his best to render a service and she was willing to be indulgent.

As they crested a long, easily sloped rise she sighted Black Top again. The Wreck, whose power of vision through his thick-lensed glasses was sometimes surprising, saw it as soon as Sally.

"There's your mountain," he said, "right where we figured it."

Sally studied Black Top carefully. Then they came to a road. Not a wide paved road; just a pair of tracks in the grass. But it looked like a boulevard to Sally; she could scarcely believe in the reality of it. The road twisted away out of sight a few rods in the distance.

She stood up again and studied the dusty tracks as far as her eye could follow them. They showed no sign of recent travel, and she doubted if a automobile. In spots the grass tufts half obliterated them. On second observation, it did not look so much like a road. "Black Top" all; it was not a road to inspire any great degree of optimism. But she admitted that it was very much better than nothing at all.

"Well, which way?" asked the Wreck. "Go ahead I suppose."

"It's uncertain," said Sally. "The general direction of north," said Sally. "That's where the railroad is. I don't know where it runs in the other direction. I—I believe 'I'll leave it to you."

The Wreck nodded and drove ahead.

Each of them were rather cross and both knew it, and after that the silence was long. Then the driver came to a stop that had something invidious and ominous about it. The Wreck did not even lift the seat to examine the gas tank. He knew. He had, in fact, been expecting it for the last few hours.

For 15 minutes there was a tremendous boom in conversation. Didn't he know that he was running short of gas? He certainly did. Did she think he was asleep? Didn't he carry an extra five-gallon can? No, he didn't. How in blazes could he, when he had to keep a car and a lot of other stuff? Why did he waste so much gas rambling over the ranges and getting lost? Why didn't he know where the gas was, instead of trying to steer by a fool mountain? Where was he going to get any more gas? Oh, he was just going to sit there and wait and wait and have them bring it up from the garage? Well, what was he going to do? Sit there and enjoy Montana. Didn't she know he was going to get out and push it!

After it had run like that for a while Sally climbed down to the road and walked a bit, in sheer desperation.

Eventually she climbed back into the car, tried to make herself comfortable and succeeded in falling into a doze. When she awoke it was dark and somebody was touching her on the arm.

"It's me," said the voice of the Wreck.

"What-wha's happened?"

"Nothing yet. We're still in the same place," said the car-owner, "going down the road and we'll get some help."

That roused her into full wakefulness. She looked about and looked back over the darkened range. Far away, a mile at least, the twin white lights of an approaching car showed clear. The Wreck switched on up own tail light, and stroiled down the road to greet rescue. Sally watched.

When he had gone about a hundred feet he stood in the middle of the road and waited. Presently, as the oncoming car drew nearer, she could see his figure outlined against the glowing glare. She saw him with his hand and wove it. She heard the throb of a big motor silled. Then he stepped out of the beam of light, and she could hear voices.

Perhaps a minute elapsed. Then the Wreck stepped briskly into sight again and advanced toward the flyer. There was something in his walk that instantly riveted her attention. It bodied things.

"Where's that gun of yours?" he demanded as she reached her side. "There's something about that outfit I don't like."

Sally had already located it, but she was puzzled.

"Who are they? What do they want?"

"I don't know who they are," said the Wreck. "But I want that gun. Get back in the car."

She had started to climb out, but he barred the way.

"If there's going to be any gun work," declared Sally, "you'd better leave it to me. I know more about it than you do."

He reached for the minister, took it from her hands and possessed himself of the six-shooter that it contained.

OREGON CITY FOLK REALIZING NOW THAT THEY HAVE BEEN SWINDLED

IT took several months to Oregon City Ore. and vicinity to lose its faith in Grant B. Dimick states man, civic worker philanthropist and everybody's friend.

And now after even his staunchest supporters sorrowfully admit that he gave worthless mortgages aggregating between $200,000 and half a million in exchange for funds entrusted to him by farmers and laborers.

The local paper mills Oregon City is still dazed as it tries to comprehend the apparent dual identity carried on by the city's leading citizen for 12 to 14 years.

Since he came here from another Willamette Valley community, as a young lawyer Grant Dimick has befriended the needy and found jobs for the idle.

He served a couple of terms as mayor of Oregon City. He served as county judge in his administration as county judge was one of the most "blatting" he served as senator of the state Legislature with distinction.

His efforts as a citizen were largely responsible for formation of the state and stockroom or districts for local railway financing and improvement.

PRACTICE LARGE
Every lodge welcomed him as a member. He took an active interest in each order, serving in their high offices. Twice he was a candidate for governor.

Dimick's law practice was large—he was never too busy to meet the hard-luck story of a townsman, or give a helping hand. Everybody few days later, the visitor would receive a recorded first mortgage.

This went on for about 14 years. Always the interest would be paid promptly—through Dimick's office.

Barly last spring Dimick announced to his wife that he was going to take a three-day business trip.

Next day a farmer, sought a warrant for Dimick's arrest, charging fraud. He alleged that the property on which he supposed he had a mortgage was unencumbered.

Investigation at the county recorder's office showed the mortgage had been secured from Dimick was fraudulent—even to the purport data and signature from the recorder's office.

DID NOT RETURN
Dimick did not return. And so though he has been reported seen in all parts of the world, in all cases of the missing attorney public has as yet been heard.

Then came the ruin of other workers' farmers and widows who had entrusted their funds to Dimick for investment. And in all cases, the mortgages upon which they had been receiving interest for years were found to be un-encumbered property, with the signatures of the recorder, etc., all forgotten. To date, between $200,000 and $500,000 in investments of workers will toward the twilight of life.

Oregon City is finally convinced that its lovable, generous, public-spirited Grant B. Dimick is a fallen idol. But even yet, Oregon City can't figure out how it happened.

To the Patrons of the Wayne Post Office

With the approach of the holiday season I wish to make a few suggestions in regard to your Christmas mailings:

Mail Early: Christmas mails increase to many times the normal volume and by mailing early you will aid materially in avoiding congestion.

Parcels may be marked "Do not open until Christmas."

Wrap securely, using heavy paper and strong twine. Fragile articles should be packed with excelsior or other suitable packing and inclosed in strong wooden or double-faced corrugated boxes and plainly marked "Fragile," "Glass" or other suitable indorsement. Perishable articles should be plainly marked "Perishable" and sent special delivery.

Address plainly, giving house number and name of street, post office box or rural route number. Place your return in the upper left-hand corner.

Printed cards may be inclosed in envelopes and sent unsealed for one cent.

Sealed letters require two cents an ounce or fraction thereof except when mailed for local delivery (city) when the rate is one cent. Letters for delivery on rural routes require two cents. Please avoid the use of odd-sized cards and envelopes. "Unsealed" cards must be inclosed in envelopes.

Particular attention is invited to the fact that there will be no rural delivery on Christmas day and that city deliveries will cease at 11 a. m. Christmas day.

Beginning Dec. 18 parcels will be accepted for dispatch at the side door of the post office and the office will be open for receipt of parcels for dispatch until 7:30 p. m.

Your cooperation will be greatly appreciated.

Wishing you a Merry Christmas and a Happy and Prosperous New Year.

Sincerely,
C. A. BERRY, Postmaster.

The injured man, was unable to explain what had happened but it is thought his heel caught on one of the steps as he started down in the back of his head. He was taken home and remained unconscious until Tuesday when he recognized his sons. ## HERE'S YOUR BIG CHANCE TO GET A LITTLE DEER!

GETTING a present of a deer is much like making a rabbit stew.

Remember the famous recipe? "First catch your rabbit!"

The U. S. Forestry Service has offered to give away deer to anyone desiring them.

All you have to do is catch the deer and have it shipped to your home.

Do it and do it.

The deer are now making their residence in Kaibab National Forest, Arizona, just west of Grand Canyon. The forest covers one and a quarter million acres. Catching an energetic specimen on the hoof in this area is just about as easy as sloughing a tick in a glass of near beer.

After catching your deer, all you have to do is have it boxed up and shipped over 165 miles of rough trail to the nearest rail point.

WELL-EARNED

Then all that remains is to pay Express charges the rest of the way. By the time the deer arrives in its new parking place it is a very well earned animal.

But despite all this, requests for free deer are pouring in to the Washington office of Wm. C. Barnes, forester in charge of grazing.

Some of the requests are from biological gardens, some are from municipal parks, some are from hotels and restaurants desirous of raising the animal for venison, and some are from people who want them for pets.

But the idea of having a deer for a pet isn't quite as good as it sounds," said Barnes. "A deer—especially a buck—is about as dangerous an animal to have around as there is.

THESE DEER ROAM AROUND KAIBAB FOREST

"If you park a large estate and a deer park to keep them in—

"But we have received no end of letters from people who want the deer as pets for their children. Well—

"I'm sorry for the children. "A friend of mine had a pet buck in Phoenix, Ariz. One day he ordered his Chinese servant to take it home. For some reason the buck took a dislike to the oriental, and when he did to him was plenty. After he got through ramming him with his horns and jumping on him with his sharp hoofs he was taken to a lot of holes he looked like a sieve!

MANY NOW

"The deer we have in Kaibab Forest are male—deer, so-called because of their long ears. A few years ago the herd was almost extinct. But we started caring for them and now there are between 31.62 and 40.60 head.

"That's why we have to give them away. There are too many for the country to support. Hundreds of them are starving to death.

"Right now, while they're wandering around in the forest, it is virtually impossible to catch them. But when it comes to them will come down into the valley, and then we'll get them in trap corrals.

"The deer have trap corrals, have one-way gates. We put food and water inside them and the deer push right in. Once inside, they have to stay. The gates won't open out."

In the morning we will talk about "Discipline." In the evening the topic will be, "What Are You Worth?" The church school is opening its

Market Report

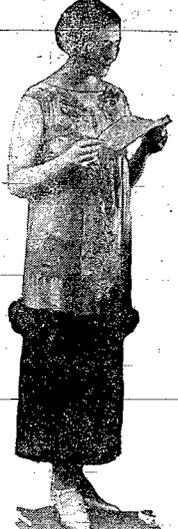

(Furnished by Swanson, Gilmore & Walsh, Sioux City Stock Yards.)

Dec. 7.—A run of 30,000 packers arrived at Chicago on Monday and other leading centers received liquidations of equally heavy proportion. The packers could not resist their urge for the material long enough to break the market on such a run. Lower opening bids were placed and then the market closed strong and active with all commodities in demand gone. All of which means that when the packers can't break the market with receipts excessive they want the bids.

The reason for the packer desire for the material is not hard to find. Although a premature delivery is showing early, it runs longer than those of the corresponding time a year ago, the holdings of hogs in the country this year are fully 20 per cent lighter than last year, and in addition average weights are many pounds lighter. Considering both the weight and numerical contractions, the decrease in the nation's live pork supply this year will figure right at 35 per cent.

There is already a known scarcity of lard, which together with the shortage in the country supply is causing packers worry. Practically all of those in touch with the situation look for about a $1 advance during December and at least $175 for March and $12 hogs by June. Right now lard producing hogs are bringing the best prices. Smooth packing sows are selling only a few cents under prime heavy butchers, and the choicest of the 200 pound butchers can't be sold for as much as good hard fat packing sows.

Wine prices are more than likely to show to even better advantage than those for hogs as the season advances. Sheep pelts are commanding around $3.50 to $4.00 each which is about as high as the best war time level. As long as packers can put off lambing on the eastern markets around 25 cents a pound the demand will continue good. Current prices will allow the packers to add another $2 per hundred weight to the market price before that deadline is not reached. It goes without saying that the packer will buy as long as he can make a profit. Consequently, as the lamb supplies are short the advance should not be long in developing. Right now fed native lambs, have gained $14.50 on the river, while heavy weight killing ewes have touched $8.25 on the river. Fewer Exquisite hand embroidery makes the trimming for this tunic dinner gown, the lower part of which is black satin and the upper beige crepe. A band of fur on the bottom of the tunic emphasizes the contrast in colors and materials. A row of buttons trims the back.

Short fed cattle arrived at the leading markets this week indications are that remaining cattle are in stronger hands and then, too, gains usually have a baliseric influence where there have been panicky indications. Resulting advances amounted to 25 and 50 cents early in the week and additional strength was registered later when the country did not respond to the advance by increasing shipments toward markets. —Stockers and feeders continue to travel along about 25 cents above the low time of the season. Mostly young cattle is coming in off the range right now, although a sprinkling of useful-to-while heavy weight killing ewes have touched $8.25 on the river. Fewer

UNCLE SAM'S CHIEF GRAZING EXPERT IS PRODUCT OF THE WILD WEST

HEP stories about the wild west. Meet Will C. Barnes, U. S. forest ranger in charge of grazing.

At various times during the 20 years of his life he has been cowboy, cattleman, Indian fighter and soldier.

Barnes came east from California at the age of 17 with an appointment from the army to enter the naval academy because of his height—he is of short, stocky build—was listed in the army signal corps.

His first adventure was of a contest nature at Fort Myer, Va., where he was detailed to fire the signal gun. Wanting to do an extra good job, he put in an extra charge of powder—as much, in fact, as the gun would hold.

Every window in the post was shattered by the explosion!

Then he was sent west to Fort Apache, where he was detailed to guard the Indians under Geronimo's star.

WILL C. BARNES AS HE LIKES TO BE.

made my way to the nearest town. He led him back, and all hands were saved. I didn't think much of my experience—just figured it was a good way of getting away from the fort. What was my surprise when I was called to a Congressional meeting of honor!

After Geronimo surrendered to General Miles, Barnes led the army and started cattle raising, taking up his headquarters at Holtbrook, Ark. "In those days," he said, "cattle thieves were thicker than flies on a Mexican dog."

"One game was particularly active—grove mountains from my hands. Being trailed the thieves into Colorado and found the man who was buying the stolen animals. He claimed not to know they were stolen, but we proved it to him by the altered brands. When we took the cattle away he was so enraged at the thieves responsible for his loss that he greeted them on their return with a reception committee of sheriffs and marshals!

"They were tried under the Colorado law, and the ring-leader died in the penitentiary. If they had been returned to Arizona they would have received more summary treatment."
