County Records Will Be Audited

Commissioners Hire Expert Accountants to Examine Each Office, Starting Next Week.

Wayne-Carroll Road

Highway Is To Be Maintained by County, As Explained by Committee of Business Men.

At their meeting on Tuesday, the county commissioners entered into contact with Campbell, Myers and Marsh, expert accountants of Lincoln, for an audit of the records of the county officers of Wayne county. The work is expected to start next week and will cost approximately $2,000. The work will embrace the period between Jan. 1, 1924, and Dec. 31, 1924.

In behalf of the Greater Wayne club, J. H. Kemp, C. E. Carbar and E. S. Edholm appeared before the commissioners to ascertain the prospect for maintenance of the Wayne-Carroll highway. They were informed that the state would not support the highway on account of lack of funds, but that it would be improved and kept up by the county.

It seems that the state has been instrumental in maintenance of 109 miles of highway in Wayne county, but that by reason of insufficient funds, the number of miles has been cut to seventy-one. Included in highways abandoned by the state are those between Wayne and Randolph as between Redwood and Norfolk.

The committee was informed that a rumor that state upkeep of the Wayne-Wakefield road would be discontinued was unfounded. The commissioners explained that Wayne county has more state highways to maintain than the combined highways of Cedar and Dixon counties. They further explained that this county receives less than either in automobile tax, and therefore grants more on account of lack of funds for state highways. The reason for extra cost of transportation from gravel pits, will necessarily be slower. The commissioners said they expect to be able to maintain twenty miles on the highway south of town this year. The cost will be in the neighborhood of $4,000 per mile.

Why Increased Tire Action Demands these Gabriels

A toy balloon illustrates the action of balloon and low-pressure tires. Depress it with your finger, and then try to withdraw your finger faster than the balloon recovers its shape. Tires yield readily to bumps, and they come back just as fast. Gabriel Balloon-Type Snubbers are necessary to control this recovery action. If all the bumps in the road were small, and if all cars traveled at slow speeds, the low-pressure itself would absorb the shock and never bring the car spring to action. By reason of their free play, Gabriel Balloon-Type Snubbers first to be designed for low-pressure tires—permit the tires to do that within their own capacity.

But on the large bumps, the air cushion is much more sharply compressed. It comes back with equal force, and then passes the shock on to the car spring. That is where Gabriel increasing braking action steps in to catch the upthrust, to stop the rolling and galloping set up by rough roads and large bumps. The combination of free play and a braking action that increases rather than spring off, is Gabriel's great superiority. Without both of these qualities, balloon tires are not controlled so that you get the best out of them. The one answer to balloon tires is Gabriel Balloon-Type Snubbers.

Coolidge Remedies for Excessive Taxes

PRESIDENT COOLIDGE has performed a striking service to the public by emphasizing the danger that lies ahead of us all in the constantly increasing burdens of taxation.

Every merchant, manufacturer, banker, farmer and transportation company is still struggling under the weight of excessive taxes, but probably no class has been more seriously affected than the railroad companies.

In the last decade taxes have grown by leaps and bounds. A MILLION DOLLARS A DAY. That is the railroad tax bill. The Federal Government and most State Governments are meeting this dangerous condition with courage and efficiency. The greater part of taxes is due to local tax levies.

Local governments spend more of the people's money than do the State and Federal Governments combined.

If local authorities fully appreciate this situation, we believe they will adopt COOLIDGE REMEDIES to bring about economies and reduce tax levies.

The tax burden on the cost of transportation is enormous. For the last five years railway taxes have exceeded total cash dividends paid to the owners.

The taxes of the Chicago and North Western Railway System exceed all the taxes of all the railroads in the Dominion of Canada by 18 per cent, notwithstanding the fact that the mileage of the Canadian Railroads is nearly four times greater than the mileage of the Chicago and Northwestern Railway System.

We publish these facts believing that full appreciation of the situation will meet with cooperative efforts on the part of all local authorities to stop avoidable expenditure of public funds until such time as the tax burden has become adjusted to the strength of the economic structure of the country.

"The public revenues are a portion that each citizen gives of his property in order to secure or enjoy the remainder."

W. H. Coolidge President

Spring Displays

This Week-Special Selling New Shipments of Colored Dress Flannel At $3.85 a yard

74 inches wide, fashionable shades, Powder Blue, Burnt Russet, Brick Red, Robin's Egg Blue, Rust, Green, etc.

Flannels for early spring dresses and jumper skirts grow more popular every day. The present straight line styles are so easy to make at home and so little of this wide material is required (1 1/2 to 2 yards for a dress - 1 yard for a skirt) that every one can have one of these useful, colorful little dresses with but little work and at small expense.

Several new shades as named above have just come and they are brought out most effectively in this flannel which is of usual fineness of weave and texture.

An Unusual Value Just Received Silk Dress Crepe At $1.85 a yard

Most suitable for dressy gowns intended for party, banquet, dance and afternoon wear.

The shades are Rust, Beige, Powder Blue and Lavender Green-the season's favorites. The silk is of just the right weight to give a rich appearance and satisfactory wear. The price is very special and for this week and next only.

McCall patterns on sale here will be helpful in making your gown in the latest style.

"I have been getting a silk hose here for $1.50 that is very satisfactory; are these the same kind?"

"They are. They do give good service, don't they?"

"Indeed they do-the best of any silk hose I have ever tried."

You can hear conversations of the above sort at our hose-ery counter every day.

No. 793 Wayne Knit fashioned silk hose is the best looking, best wearing silk hose that $1.50 will buy. We have had opportunity to sell a great many of the best known brands and none of them are so satisfactory.

Comes in black and fifteen new spring shades.

Satin Crepe Dresses
Priced Specially Low at $17.50

Good looking new dresses that have proved their popularity with women and misses-they're all of such distinctive looking styles as the two sketched above.

Beaded dresses, flare skirts, ruffled models and many other new and different effects.

The preferred colors are all included. All are of the kinds that are usually higher priced-exceptional values at $17.50. In 36 to 18 years sizes for misses, "16" to "44" for women. Just new-every one of them having arrived by express from the east this week.

These Dainty Curtains

are nicest when made of grenadine of which we are selling a fine quality at 50c a yard

These pretty ruffled curtains are much used for bed rooms and sun porches.

The most favored material for making them is grenadine which may be had in all white with neat dots or figures or in white with small colored dots.

A most complete assortment of curtain nets and silk draperies and fringes for trimming them are also on display. We can be helpful in assisting you to plan curtains and draperies for any of your windows.

Warner's Corsets

The New Era in corsets for modern frocks is best expressed in the very fashionable and popular Warner's wrap-around and corselette.

The corselette keeps the figures from unshapeliness and gives it the appearance of youthful shapely suppleness. Boned over the diaphragm so that they beautify and slenderize the figure from shoulder to knee.

Warner's wrap-around - "You wrap it and snap it" so easy to adjust and so comfortable on the figure, has two wide sections of elastic that allow it to adjust to the figure snugly. Models are here for all figures.

Lectures at Wayne About Lawlessness

The lecture on "Lawlessness," given by Frank Dixon at the Wayne State Normal Tuesday evening, was well attended...

"Nowhere in the world is it so easy for a criminal to escape arrest and justice," he shouted. "We borrowed our system of law from the Greeks and in a hundred and thirty-six years we have made no advance."

"Mr. Dixon's suggested reforms and comment on the law followed: "1. Lift justice above the range of money. It should be made impossible for a man to spend a dollar in a court of justice. A criminal with money need not use it corruptly to escape justice. He needs only to take advantage of our system of law."

"A policeman cannot administer justice—how can a policeman function when there is a group of politicians in the city he does not arrest? Every chief of police in the United States should be appointed by the mayor or governor for life, and for ability instead of politics. Every judge and every prosecuting attorney should be appointed for life at salaries large enough to lure them from private practice. Our courts would be respected if they were out of politics—our laws would be respected."

Disposition of Criminals. "The usual disposition of a convicted criminal up to a board of five scientists."

"I judge may sentence a man to life in prison. Ten days after the man may gain his freedom, and the judge has nothing to do with it. No man should be sentenced to imprisonment for a crime committed in a riot. The accidental criminal should not be imprisoned at all. He may be of valuable use to society, therefore the law should be made to give the discretion of the court. The habitual criminal, found to be incurable, should stay in prison until he dies. A badly composed of a neurologist, psychiatrist, a physician, a psychologist, a biologist and paid by the state, could best decide when a criminal is incurable, when he is habitual and incurable."

"Segregate the habitual criminal, and keep him from propagating his lawless ways. "Mr. Dixon flayed the American jury system on the ground that only those 'too ignorant to read' are allowed to serve. He said a jury could be impeached in ten to fifteen minutes to try any case, each juror swearing only that he is not prejudiced and has formed no opinion in the case. He said that the jury must not have read or heard of the case."

"The deadliest enemy of society is the lawmaker," he said. "The lawmaker can destroy before the people know what he is doing. If the republic ever goes down it will not be because of the lawless breakers, but because of the lawmakers. The unwritten law is the foundation of civilization. The written law should be based directly on the unwritten law. The lawmaker is so afraid the judge won't know the unwritten laws, he attempts to set them down in black and white."

"Written laws are dangerous. The less we have the better off we are. Their abuses are innumerable. We have no right to write our opinions into the laws. For instance, if I have an opinion and get it written into a law, I can then accuse you of a crime if you don't agree with me. These things are doing more than anything else to destroy the foundations of civilization."

able to enforce all the laws, we leave it to the policeman which to enforce. Laws are being turned out in the United States at the rate of twelve thousand a year. Never has there such a force in human history! The next ten years should be spent in revising and simplifying the laws so ordinary people will know how to obey them. "After all the great lawyer is not the president, congress, the courts or justices. It is the motor car. She is the foundation of moral education. The father may take a hand if he is discreet, and the mother is, of course, aided by the public school teacher. "He spoke of the newspaper as the most important institution in the modern world, and said interpretation of it should be taught in all schools."

PEN-POINTERS. What makes work worth while is working on something that is. People who live in glass houses usually sell plants and flowers. "Sfanny, but radice always think they have something to how about. It isn't necessary to always keep going if when you stop you stop to think. Some folks figure it's all right to let time burn, it's going to pass away anyway. It's too easy to say "It all depends on you." If your spring garden isn't a success, it's a real disappointment to the chickens next door. If it weren't for street cars, people would get the exercise they need, if it weren't for automobiles.

Between the Two. Omaha Bee. Just now California and Florida are engaged in a neck-and-neck race. Each claims superiority of climate and opportunity. They are resorting to all kinds of publicity and propaganda. Between the two we prefer Nebraska. It is not written that man may not live by dining rooms, but such is the fact. One may not clothe one's self in climate, nor can the stomach be satisfied with scenery. Nebraska has enough of either variety enough of scenery for lovers of the beautiful, and then has fertile soil that produces abundant crops of all kinds. Nebraska's production is not limited to fruit alone. Nebraska's crop is worth more than California's fruit crop, and Nebraska's output of pineapples, oranges and grape fruit. California boasts of her prunes, but who would want to eat them without the sugar Nebraska produces to put on them? California's wheat crop wouldn't seed the wheat fields of Nebraska, and Florida's orange crop wouldn't try to compete with one-half of Nebraska's cran fields. Nebraska has just enough bad weather—and no more—to make us appreciate the glorious springs, the golden summers and the magnificent autumns. Here we till the soil instead of tilling the tourists, with the result that Nebraska annually adds millions to the wealth of the world. Let Florida and California fight it out between themselves, it being a question of dog eat dog. Nebraskans are thinking of home.

Another Reflection Of California Life

Los Angeles, Calif., Feb. 17, 1925. Wayne Herald: Much has been written about southern California by way of special pleading, in its favor or against it. We shall try to give the facts. Anyone who has a good job in the east has no call to come here. But those who say this country is a desert and over-bloomed are not good witnesses. Fact is, there is so much mountain country to furnish water for irrigation that there is abundance for a long time to come. No one knows the limit of Providence but it seems reasonable that this land was made for a great fruit and vegetable section and incidentally dairy and poultry. It has the soil, climate and water to supply unlimited numbers.

But the distance from eastern markets is a handicap, and land can hardly be cultivated for all crops. Producers often get low prices as against considerable expense. They are organized to protect themselves and this is a good feature for all concerned. One can buy small oranges at the wholesale market for as little as 25c for a box of slightly more than bushel, because it is not allowed to ship them and there's too many for local use. Other fruit and vegetables can at times be bought almost as cheaply, because it is not allowed to charge much more, so that most people do not get great bargains in these things, at all times, although now and then they do. Still, there are some very cheap produce here, however new a catch in it. If situated right, the bargains are here, but not available to everybody.

There is an inexhaustible amount of stone, gravel and sand, so that good roads are everywhere and more material is used for houses than wood.

So far from this being a tourist place only, there are 5,000 manufacturers, some small to be sure, but many very large. The oil production is large and is likely to continue many years. Gas is cheap; it costs little to heat a house, the little heat is needed.

Los Angeles covers more ground than almost any other city east or west—San Antonio in skyways are not allowed to build. People generally are accommodating and not disposed to overcharge, although prices are inclined to be dear enough for most things. It is likely prices will decline, for the tourist trade is apt to relatively diminish and lead to reasonable prices all along the line.

Anyone who has lived here it is cold five months in the year does not know what to make of it where it is milder winter and flowers bloom all the time. And there are many features to the country here peculiar to itself. The fisheries are extensive; thirty-nine million pounds of herring were caught last month and that is but a part of the industry. The coast trade is a large thing. Another resource is the navy which is always represented, and now there are ten battleships at San Pedro with nearly ten thousand sailors. All these things, and many more, explain why it is something more than a tourist center or a desert freak.

The mountains are a mile-high and covered with brush, purple in color and so unlike the blue Rockies. In plain sight is the Mt. Wilson observatory, one of the world's great institutions of this kind, and an idea of its scope may be had when it is said that it costs a quarter million dollars a year to run this city, this is so different from a prairie country that there is no comparison to be made. These who would make allowance for the many contrasts will like California all right, and not expect it to be a cattle and hog country, although it can produce either one in quantity.

It is an empire in extent and is destined to be one—a resource and is population once it is developed. But now it is a rather new land for which reason it has some disadvantages likely to be outgrown.

W. M. Wheeler.

The Most Extraordinary Farm Electric Plant Opportunity Ever Offered to the Farmers of This Community

I KNOW that there are dozens, yes, hundreds of homes in this community where Delco-Light is needed and wanted, for you have told me that some day you would want the blessings of electric light and power.

Notice

The Delco-Light Plants referred to in this special offer are standard Delco-Light Plants, fully covered by the regular service guarantee as to material and workmanship, and fully protected by the liberal service policy. Each plant has the famous 4-cyclic, air-cooled, valve-in-head Delco-Light engine and the thick-plate, long-lived Delco-Light Storage Battery. Any one purchasing a Delco-Light Plant as a part of this special carload order is assured of the same satisfaction he would receive in placing his order individually. The same satisfaction now enjoyed by 225,000 Delco-Light users.

You have visited their neighbors. You have seen the bright atmosphere of their homes—happy, joyous children whose lives have been gladdened, the mothers from whose shoulders the burdens of toil have been lifted, the fathers whose interests in life have been broadened, and whose profits have been increased—all because of Delco-Light.

And now, folks, I come to you with an amazing offer. Only a few of you—only those of you who will join me in a great project of co-operative buying can share in this remarkable offer.

To you I am going to offer Delco-Light—the standard electric-light and power plant—installed, equipped, including the lighting fixtures, all ready to flood your home with the blessings of electrical sunshine at a price that has heretofore been unheard of. You can save by acting now.

Will You Join Your Neighbors in Buying a Carload of Delco-Light Plants?

I have made a proposition to the Delco-Light Factory. I have told them that I want to place a large quantity of plants in this community during the next few weeks.

I explained to them what a tremendous benefit it would be for me to have that many more satisfied users of Delco-Light in this community. These new users would show Delco-Light to their friends and neighbors and talk about it, and as a result it would help me wonderfully in selling more plants. The Delco-Light Company is willing to ship the carload, which will result in a great saving in freight, and I have added my generous share to the saving at cost. I will give absolutely at cost a generous part of the equipment that is needed to get the benefits from Delco-Light.

Through the wonderful benefits of co-operative buying you can now give your family that joy and happiness that is only possible through electric light and power. You will have power to do the chores, for the washing machine, the separator, the churn, the iron, to pump the water, and light clean, safe, economical light that transforms your home from a place of darkness and gloom to one of cheerfulness and deep content.

Don't wait one minute. Simply mail the coupon. This does not obligate you in any way. It merely indicates that you are interested, and we will send you full details of the plan—we will tell you of the wonderful savings, and quote you a price such as you have never believed was possible. From Other Editors

Fairbury News: A newspaper writer with a penchant for statistics says: "A microbe born at 11:37 a. m., died at 11:56 the same morning, bearing 107,338,429 dependents without visible means of support." Look out for them. They think the world owes them a living.

Geneva Signal: Can you remember a time when rain fell nearly all day on Washington's birthday? We have been attending annual meetings of the Nebraska Press Association in February a good many years and we cannot remember such continuous warm weather and a day of rain in February in any past year. Most of the annual press association meetings have been held when the weather was cold and rough and frequently with a lot of snow on the ground.

York Republican: The Nebraska house voted to strike the ten days' notice clause from the marriage law. This was done, it may be safely assumed, because of the complaints that have been made that wedding fees are being lost to Nebraska magistrates and ministers through the operation of the law. The elimination of the clause weakens the law and destroys one of the benefits that has been gained in the way of uniform marriage laws in the country over. But the friends of the law will not be alarmed. The essential features of the law are retained and it will be easy at some future time, when other states have adopted better marriage laws, to restore the advance notice feature.

Albion News: The city of Lincoln recently voted bonds for the construction of a school building. The bonds carried by a narrow margin. And yet the people of Lincoln spent $2,000,000 annually for tobacco in a year and a half the tobacco bill would retire the entire bond issue. These figures are from the pen of Prof. F. M. Gregg who cites them not with the view of pointing out an economic waste but in support of his contention that there is a possibility that tobacco will come to be used freely by the women and girls of his country as by the men, a condition that already prevails in "degenerate Spain," in shameless Paris and sordid England.

Wahoo Warp: Contrary to a generally accepted notion, figures do not indicate that the large mail order houses are driving the small town merchant out of business. Dr. Paul Nyström, director of the Retail Research Association, shows that the total retail trade of this country is about 35 billion dollars divided as follows: 92.75 to independent local general merchandise stores, 16 per cent to department stores of the larger cities, 8 per cent to chain stores and only 4.6 per cent to mail order houses and they are being forced to fight harder every year to maintain their business. The large Chicago concern which is seeking a western location is not doing so in order to be of greater service to their customers, nor because of less overhead expense for themselves but because competition of the local merchant is forcing them to it in order that they may save on freight rates and postal service charges to their customers and meet the retail competition. The mail order houses have also taught their small town competitors another trick, that of advertising, and they are using it to good advantage. Many an order to the mail order concern would never be sent at all if the customer had known that his local merchant had the articles desired on his shelves.

From Ponca Journal April 11, 1884: A law has been passed by the Vermont legislature prohibiting teachers from the public schools from using tobacco.

It is in the interest of economy to develop all the natural advantages of a country, and wherever there is no great body of timber suitable for building purposes, especially would this be the case could a quarry of good building stone be opened up. A gentleman who has been looking over Dixon county for the past ten days, and who has a practical eye on anything that may look like business, gives it as his opinion that in the edge of bluffs skirting the river north of here could be found building stone of good quality. The surface rocks are too soft to be of value, but back of these he thinks would be found stone which would make the finest kind of building material. It will pay some one to investigate this matter, as there is a bonanza in it if it proves a success.

The desire in this place to go to Tennessee has in great measure died out. We conclude so, judging of the Tennessee fever as a tree is judged by its fruits, for of all those who were expecting and determined to go to that state, not one has gone. They have looked at the matter with care, and have concluded that this country where they now are, is all that one could reasonably ask. This is a good country to stay in and live in. Their heads are level in making such conclusions. Northern Nebraska is a good, a first class country. While it lacks the fever and ague warmth of Tennessee, it has the vigor, health, energy and force of this most favored northern climate.

The Dixon county board of supervisors voted to set aside $13,500 for road graveling in the county this year.

The Plainview Woman's club entertained the Pierce club last week when the state president, Mrs. Perryman, was present.

John L. Davis, former resident of Ponca and Emerson, died in Los Angeles, Calif., last week, being 64 years old. He moved from this state to the west three years ago. He was an undertaker in Emerson. He was a member of the R. A. M. of Wakefield. He leaves, besides his wife, two daughters and one son.

Begin Here Today.
The "Nervous Wreck," an eccentric young easterner, is driving Sally Morgan from her father's ranch to the station when they run out of gasoline. At the point of a gun the Wreck takes five gallons from a passing car.

When they are held captive at a ranch along the way because Charlie McQueen, the foreman, wants Sally for a cook. They discover that Mr. Underwood, the owner of the ranch, was in the car which they held up. Sheriff Bob Wells, who is Sally's fiancé, comes to the ranch to take care of the case. Sally cooks the evening meal and Timothy, the Underwood chauffeur, acts as the water. "Other parties besides us have been getting held up," is the information Timothy brings back to Sally in the kitchen.

Now Go On With the Story.
"Other parties," said Sally. "What do you mean?" She had been telling the boss about it. There were two other automobiles stuck up somewhere around here within the past week or so. They had heard as I can make out from what the sheriff tells the boss, it's a new sort of game. First they had Indians out here that scared people, that was a whole back. Then they ran the Indians out, or civilized 'em, and things went along all right until they had read again holding up stages. Well, they got the best of the road agents after several parties had got killed, and the biggest sort of died out.

"But now they've been going right into the history of all of it—there was a new bunch got to working on the trains. I can remember reading about them in the papers myself. They used to go through the trains and take everything that everybody had, and anybody that didn't snap-gone. They stayed a while to get rid of all the train robbers, but finally they did and everything looked peaceful. And now they've begun again on the automobiles."

"Really?" exclaimed Sally.
"Yes, ma'am. I don't mean the same bunch, understand. They hung most of the old ones. It seems, the sheriff tells the boss, that in the last two or three years there's been a lot of automobiles coming in through this way; mostly rich people from the east, like the boss. They go clear on out to the coast and then drive all the way back again. Some of 'em carry quite a lot of valuables and these new hold-up gangs sometimes make a pretty good profit. The sheriff says they didn't get into his county until quite recent, but he's heard about their goings on outside of it."

"But now they've got into his county and he's quite stirred up. We're the third car in about two weeks. I guess the business is getting good, because it seems the gang is taking on new members. There were six of 'em that stuck us up, you know."

"Six," repeated Timothy. "The boss claims only four, but there were two more that he didn't see. I didn't like to contradict him in front of the sheriff, but there was six, all right. I'm going to tell the sheriff when I get a chance, because he ought to have all the clues, so he can get to work right."

"Certainly," said Sally in an absent way.
She was pondering over the surprising intelligence from Timothy and wondering how it affected the case of the Wreck and herself. If there was really a gang taking on in the county—and, of course, Bob Wells would not say so unless it were true—it seemed to make their own case much simpler. The story of the Wreck would naturally be blamed on those who were in the business for a living. It began to look as if they were being from a gang at all. She slipped into the pantry and closed the door behind her. At the farther end was the other door, that opened into the dining room. It was a swinging door, with a half-inch space between the edge of it and the frame. She tiptoed forward, brought her eye close to the crack and stood there breathing softly.

Underwood was talking, but not about bandits. He was talking about Sally's apple pie.

NEXT HE SAW THE BLACK HORSE HEADED ALONG THE TRAIL.

"I'm going to take her back to New York with me and hire my French cook," he announced. "I don't know what sort of a job her husband can fill, but I'll find something for him." Sally raised her eyebrows, for this was news. And then she heard the familiar, boisterous voice of Bob Wells.
"I don't blame you," said the sheriff. "The lady can certainly cook. You don't get a cook once in a lifetime. When you get 'em the thing to do is to romp 'em and brand 'em, and then don't let 'em outside the corral. Cooking is a woman's natural job, but they don't all get to be experts." But now and then, if you keep your eyes open, you can find one. Why?

CHAPTER XIV "The Son of a Gun"

The Wreck, who had been keeping vigil from a window of the bunk house, saw the tall figure of the sheriff striding down to the corral just as dusk was settling. Next he saw the black horse and its rider headed along the trail that led to the main road. He could hear the sheriff whistling; there was a complacent sound about it that made him scowl.

He waited until the man of the law passed from sight among the distant spruce, then set off at a rapid pace for the ranch house.
Sally had very few words for anybody during the evening. The Wreck vainly tried to maneuver her into a private conversation, but she kept aloof from him. He wanted to hear all she knew about the sheriff's visit, and it puzzled him when he discovered that she was deliberately dodging. Probably she was mooning about things, he figured; women had a way of getting sentimental when there was absolutely no sense in it. He was willing to bet she was half-sorry that Bob Wells had not discovered her, although she had been in a wild hurry for fear that he would. It would be just like her. Sentimentality! She wanted a sweet heart, and she didn't want him. If anybody could figure out what a woman really did want, the Wreck was willing to listen.

A couple of the boys drifted in for a late supper, along with Charley Mc-

Queen. Timothy hung around the kitchen. The Wreck finally gave up the job and went to bed. He'd heard if he'd seen the driver, but Timothy have a fling at it.
Sally finished her work and went off to bed. She was still angry. "Listeners never hear any good of themselves," kept running on her head. That was not exactly true in her own case. Probably the things she overheard were something; she had heard them before and always so regarded them. But—"So Bob Wells is marrying a cook, is he?" she muttered as she turned off the light in her room. "I'm a smart girl, and I'm pretty wily, yes. But the cooking is the main thing. It's downright important and necessary, it's the foundation. Oh, wait till I see him!"

Downstairs in the big living room there was an earnest conversation in progress between Charley Underwood and his father. It dealt with a discovery. Charley, toaming about after supper in hope of a word with Sally Morgan, and failing to get it, had drifted idly down among the out-buildings. He had observed before that one of the little sheds, commonly used for storing tools and various odds and ends, was locked. It was unusual to lock anything around the ranch, but he had paid no particular attention to the fact. Now it aroused his curiosity.

The padlock would not yield to a pull. He tried several keys, but none of them would manipulate the lock. Then he picked up a stone and began hammering at the hasp. Eventually it loosened under the attack and he managed to wrench it out of the wood. Rusty hinges groaned as he swung the door back.

A dusty flyover stood inside the shed. He stared at it for awhile, wrinkling his forehead and trying to remember whether anybody at the ranch possessed such a thing. He stropped into the shed and walked slowly around it. The place was getting rather dark, which was not favorable for detailed observation. So far as he could see, however, it looked just like any other flyover. But no; there was a front wheel missing, on the left side. A soap-box had been placed under the axle. He looked around the shed, but could not find the wheel. It struck him as peculiar that anybody should put a flyover under lock and key, particularly one that had only three wheels. Presently he stepped outside again and peered for another view of the shed. His glance rested upon a license plate and became fixed there. There was a vague stirring in his memory. Then, with a look of astonishment on his face, he hurried in the direction of the ranch house. All this he had been relating to his father as they sat in the living room, and Jerome Underwood had been shooting questions at him that began in incredulity and developed into genuine curiosity.

"You say you can remember the license plate?" demanded his father.
"No, I didn't remember the number, of course. I never took any note of it; I wasn't near enough the other night. I didn't notice the state, either. But it just has the general look of a '32'—maybe it's the color that stuck in my mind."
