Chancellor Riveus Dr. J. T. House Paper

Lincoln Journal: The paper by Prof. J. T. House of the Wayne Normal, read before the state press association, attracted much attention. Dr. House pointed out that teachers and editors alike fail in their work because they are inclined to hand down final judgments, without making it clear just how these opinions and decisions are reached. Chancellor Avery was asked to give his opinion on the paper. He replied as follows:
 "In his article Dr. House shows the result of the thorough training that he received while pursuing graduate studies in sociology. The paper shows further the result of deep thought during the author's varied experience as a public speaker, executive, college teacher and correspondent. With such a background and such a subject one is not surprised to find the paper unusually interesting. The thoughts expressed are worthy of more than a casual reference.
 "Dr. House is entirely right in saying that the faults that he criticizes are common to the teaching and to the newspaper professions. It is easier to talk down from Olympus than it is to talk fairly and convincingly to the lay and hearers. In my associations with Woodrow Wilson before he became president I always had a feeling that he spoke to his colleagues from the standpoint of a raised platform; later I felt that part of his difficulty in carrying-out his programs resulted from this so-called academic attitude. That editorial writers should sometimes show a similar tendency is natural, inasmuch as we are all human.

 "The strongest part of Professor House's paper is his plea for absolute fairness in presentation. He gives illustrations of unfair and unjust presentation of facts on the part of those who consider themselves conservatives. He might with equal accuracy have quoted unfair and distorted teaching from radicals. Personally, I am inclined to believe that radicals and conservatives are very much inclined to use the same tactics, directed, however, towards different ends. Both need to cultivate a spirit of fairness and to some extent a spirit of humility in their approach to the great problems of democracy, some of which were not settled when the constitution was adopted and will, in turn, probably not be settled under the guidance of those who seem to hold that great document in light esteem. Hence, the plea for fairness is most timely, and we should do well to agree on this point, not only in intellectual assent, but also in actual practice.
 "How to attain fairness of presentation, however, without endless discussion presents a difficult program. We are handicapped by the limitation of time, patience and endurance. The mother in teaching her child can hardly afford to argue in regard to playing with the bottle of poison. When it comes to the question of bobbed hair the problem may be or may have been debatable. The teacher and the editor must use careful discrimination in deciding when it is necessary to resort to a discussion of the reasons that have caused them to arrive at a given conclusion; but the plea that Professor House makes for more careful analysis and less of dogmatic assertion is eminently sound.
 "In concluding this brief review, I realize that I am perhaps signing against the ideal that I am commending."

Plan For District Library Meeting

Plans are being made for holding a district librarians' meeting in Wayne April 30. An all-day program will be featured. Such gatherings are beneficial.

The twelfth biennial report of the Nebraska Public Library Commission has been received at the Wayne city library. This states that there are 126 free public libraries in Nebraska and four have been added the past two years. There are but 100 towns with a population of more than 2,000 that do not have tax-supported libraries and these are Ord and South Sioux City. Ord has an association of libraries of the state has not changed much in the two years, though the small towns have raised the library levy. Seventeen towns have reached, by tax, incomes of $1 per capita and Wayne is among this list.

Three volumes that have been replaced in the city library are "The Adventures of Huckleberry Finn," by Mark Twain, "The Adventures of Tom Sawyer," by Mark Twain, and "Five Little Peppers and How They Grew," by Margaret Sidney.

Several new books have been accessioned this week that have been placed at the library and are ready for readers. One is a bulletin, "Nebraska Beautiful," by G. E. Condra of the conservation and survey department of the University of Nebraska. This tells of the many interesting beauty spots in the state and illustrates with photographs.

"The Spell of the Yukon," by Robert W. Service, is the first great book of the author's verses in which are some of the joyous and terrors of the gold-digging days.

"The Fire of the Flint," by Walter P. White, tells of stirring adventures of the author's early days as a geologist in the Yukon.

"Clariss Seen it Through," by Margaret Wildener, is a love story that begins with marriage of a college professor's daughter and a student who came from Bohemia and switched his way through school. The young folks marry and the way they handle the arrival of the young man's relatives from Europe is interesting.

R. W. Mitchell who writes "Trail Life in the Canadian Rockies" is one who has spent nine summers tramping in these mountains. The adventures of crossing the snow fields and over mountain passes are thrilling.

"The Fun of Knowing Books," by Fred C. Kelly, contains a fun and serious study of the subject of why we do as we do. The book contains keen insight, pleasant humor and wide understanding on many topics such as how environment affects us, getting acquainted, etc.

"The American Government," by Frederic J. Haskin, is a new and enlightening study of affairs of state.

"Controlled Power," by Arthur Holmes, A. M., Ph. D., is a study of lawless and achievement. It is a work for all who would not merely to the best of his ability but who would profit from work's unique capacity for promoting health and happiness.

"The Causes of the War of Independence," by Claud H. VanTyne, is written by a scholar who has spent years of study on the changed views of the causes leading to the Revolution. The book is illuminating and authoritative.

Culled from Herald's Exchanges for Week

Stanton business men voted to pave ten blocks of that city this summer.

E. Daniels has opened a cream station in Pierce in the John Kozel building.

Men of Pierce are beginning to plan for organizing a baseball team this summer.

Mrs. F. C. Legeschulte of Randolph, has 1,400 eggs in hatching so far this season.

Oil drillers who were busy last year at Neligh, have resumed their work this spring.

E. M. Bauman of West Point, has been elected president of the state retailers association.

Grover Trotter of Pierce, and Miss Hazel Patchell of Osmond, were married in Yankeetown, Wis.

An Izak Walton League chapter has been organized in Madison. A chapter was organized in Osmond also.

Fire which started from the chimney did some damage to the U. Neddy residence at Harrington last week.

Barn on the Charles Beckwith farm, occupied by Duane Walraeth, near Albion, was destroyed by fire last week.

Miss Cora Dowling and Casper Moser of Randolph, were married in Stanton March 3. They will live near Randolph.

Bloomfield is making a move for a city-owned light plant. There is a demand there for the breaking away from the high-line service.

Randolph, has department has a new Chevrolet engine and the truck used before this was purchased, has been sold to Oakdale for $200.

Mrs. Henry Kluhner of Laurel, died last week Wednesday. She was ill but a few days. Funeral service was conducted Friday at Immanuel Lutheran church.

Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Roberts who have operated a hotel in Elgin for thirty years, have retired and their daughter, Mrs. Emma Totter will manage the hotel.

Schulz and Fischer, proprietors of a mercantile store in Pierce, are to dissolve partnership. Robert Schulz will retire and Ferdinand Fischer will remain in the business.

Boyd Carroll of Randolph, is moving to a farm north of there. His brother, John Carroll, who was on the place, moved to Wayne to engage in the implement business.

Judge R. E. Evans and family of Dakota City, have departed to Lincoln to make their home for six years during which time Judge Evans serves on the supreme bench.

Lillian, 11-5-year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Giffert of Emerson, died from heart trouble last week. The family came to Emerson from Canada for benefit of Lillian's health.

James, 11-year old son of Maurice Kavanagh of near Dixon, sustained injuries to his back and shoulders in a fall near to Carroll where Mr. Anderson is employed in a garage.

Mrs. Anderson has been reporting for the Wiskner newspaper for the past several weeks.

The Ponca band met last Thursday evening to begin practice under the supervision of the new director, P. C. Reed. Part of Mr. Reed's time will be spent in Ponca. He is leader of the Wakefield band also.

The Bishop block, destroyed by fire in Norfolk a few weeks ago, is to be rebuilt with a two-story brick costing about $100,000. There will be a total of forty-four rooms and the building will be rented for stores and offices.

The Fair was the largest store located in this building.

School officers of Cedar county met at Harrington last Thursday for a session of talks on the subject of the school. Earl F. Giffert, who has been president the past year, Dwight Burrey was elected to the office for the ensuing year. Such subjects as the school teacher, high school tuition, new courses of study and school problems were discussed.

Frank Ohrmund of near Pierce, government and well-to-do farmer, is in the Pierce county jail charged with the shooting of his brother-in-law, George Voss. The men were measuring hay in the field when the tragedy occurred last Thursday. Mrs. Voss and Mr. Ohrmund, sister and brother, inherited property lately and it is thought the settlement of this increased the dislike between the brothers-in-law.

Mrs. C. E. Morgan of Rapid City, S. D., formerly Halcie Caffee of Ponca, Neb., died last week at the age of 50 years. Deceased came to Ponca when 2 years old and after finishing school there she was graduated from the Wayne Normal school in 1906. She taught in this part of the state and was married to C. E. Morgan when the latter was superintendent of the Pilger school in 1906. The family lived in South Dakota. Four sons survive.

Buy Delco-Light Now - at a big Saving

The big Delco-Light factory at Dayton made this Wonderful Offer Possible

A FEW days ago I offered to the people in this community a wonderful opportunity to buy Delco-Light on a special Co-operative Carload Plan—an opportunity that will mean a very large saving for those who are willing to act now.

I know that you want electric light and power in your home. You have visited your neighbors who already enjoy these great modern conveniences. You have seen the bright, cheery atmosphere of their homes, the happy joyous children whose lives have been brightened; the mothers from whose shoulders the burdens of toil have been lifted, the fathers, whose interests in life have been broadened and whose profits have been increased—all because of Delco-Light. And now your home can have these same great advantages at a big saving-in cost.

This Is Your Chance to Save

I have put my carload proposition up to the Delco-Light Company at Dayton.

The Delco-Light Company is willing to ship the carload, which will result in a great saving in freight. It is possible for me to make a proposition that will mean an unheard-of saving for you. By ordering on the Carload Plan I will save a large amount in freight and handling charges, and by making all installations in one group I can put Delco-Light into your home—installed, ready to turn on the switch, ready to flood your home with the blessings of electrical sunshine, at a price that will represent a big saving.

This Opportunity Is Limited

The number of plants that I have arranged to get on this plan is limited. You will have to act quickly. You will have to respond immediately. But the terms are so generous, the price so low, the advantages so great, that if you ever at any time in the future expect to modernize your home to make it to live and work, now is the place in which to mail the coupon or telephone now for further details.

K - D E E R I N G ver Tractors

Now Ready to Demonstrate to
You at Our Place of Business

There has been constant improvement in tractors since the first ones were built about twenty years ago. One of the most important improvements is the power take-off which delivers power direct to the pulled machine. It was originated on the McCormick-Deering tractors and has a positive drive and is thoroughly enclosed. The McCormick-Deering is the tractor with the most uses because it has three ways of delivering power: First, on the drawbar; second, on the belt pulley; third, on the power take-off.

Oil Air Cleaner Insures Clean Air.

It is very important that the air which enters the engine is very efficient in removing the dust and bottom and is held by a wire ball, which makes it possible the oil supply. The filter is composed of fine drawn annule of wire in the cleaner, which being covered with a film of oil, prevents the engine crankcase is satisfactory for this use.

Double Cylinders

The cylinders of these engines are cast separately of hard, close-grained cast iron engine cylinder. If for any reason a cylinder should become cracked on the farm with a minimum loss of time and with very small cost.

 From Almost Journal April 18, 1924:
 The first time in exposed situations to clear out cellars and prepare them comfortably as places of retreat in case of tornadoes.
 Now that the influx of $175,000 (principal and interest) of railroad bonds has been lifted from Dixon county by a decision of the United States supreme court there is no reason why the county should not have an overwhelming rush into it of people seeking homes. The land was kept down in price and people were afraid to buy it on account of the tremendous taxation which would have caused had the decision been that the county must pay the bonds. The land of course will now double in price within three months, and the county will very probably double in population before winter. It is out of debt, and with the inducements of good land, good society, schools, churches, mill and markets, etc., there are few counties in the state excelling Dixon, and none surpass it.
 Spring and summer are coming on, slowly to burn, and later than usual. As yet, we have evidence of winter nature has not forgotten us. Grass is springing up in places, buds are appearing on the trees, gardens show vegetables peeping out of the ground, and every morning and evening the birds hold concerts in the groves. From these signs it may be inferred that we will soon have warm weather. This country has an abundance of rain this spring. The hills which surround this town, are not perhaps as high as in years gone by, but nevertheless, the valley where this town nestles, has more water than is comfortable or healthful. A hard rain brings a river down the streets and which occasionally invades the town, it runs off, leaving mud and slush behind. In many alleys and some streets, heaps of old straw, hogs pens, and the usual unwholesome refuse, are piled up. Water and these, soaked by water and distributed over town, will not be conducive to health when summer comes. If the trustees will at once order the streets and alleys cleaned out, and will devote some money to making ditches in order to head off the water which occasionally invades the town, they will earn the gratitude of those who love health, comfort and pure atmosphere.

Obituary.

Paul Koplin, oldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Koplin, was born at Pilger, March 30, 1893, and died at Norfolk, March 14, 1925, aged 31 years, 11 months and 14 days. He lived with his parents at Pilger until December 3, 1914, when he was married to Miss Anna Kuntz, who is now located at Norfolk where Mr. Koplin was engaged in the garage business. Eight years ago they moved to Winside where Mr. Koplin entered a similar business.

Winside is grieved to lose one of its active young business men. He was energetic and ambitious, but by his fellow citizens who knew him to be reliable in his dealings. Kind hearted, ready to assist those who needed help, and always with a smile. He will be missed by all his friends and relatives beside the heart-broken young wife and two children, Irene age 8 and Victor age 3. He is leaves his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Herman Koplin, one brother, Alfred, and four sisters, Mrs. Louis Koch near Wayne, Mrs. Albert Yeager of Oakland, Mrs. Otto Christa of Norfolk, and Miss Hattie Koplin.

Mr. Koplin had not been well for five years but only five weeks ago did he give up to go a home at Norfolk where he was told he had chronic Bright's disease which was incurable. He was then taken to the home of his sister Mrs. Otto Christa at Norfolk, where he died. Funeral services were held at the home Tuesday afternoon at 1 o'clock and later in the St. Paul Lutheran church. Mr. Koplin had been organist as well as a faithful member and worker. Rev. H. A. Hilpert of Pierce, conducted the German service and Rev. H. Hilpert, the English service. Interment was made in the Winside cemetery.

FASHION SECTION

Spring 1925

SPRING SPREADS HER TAPESTRY OF FLOWER AND FOLIAGE. LET'S GIVE HER WELCOME SALUTATION BY GARBING SELF AND HOME IN HARMONY AND ACCORD

Broadcasting the Spring Fashion Harmonies

We are going to be feminine and graceful once more. Not that we are forgetting the lesson of charm which has been taught us by the slender simplicity of the last few years. Rather, we are taking those same slender lines and developing them with more grace and sophistication— with more variation and individuality.

The tailored frock maintains its straight belted symmetry, but many a model has cleverly added an inverted pleat in the front for greater ease as well as beauty in walking. Other models also preserve a flat back but are circular across the front.

Some of the tailored frocks, but a great many of the softer models, are distinguished by a skirt which flares gracefully from the knee down. In the softer fabrics it seems to give the loveliest floating effect when you walk or dance.

However, all our frocks have learned that simplicity is the straight pathway to smartness and the smooth flowing lines are not broken. The two newest thoughts for the afternoon frock are the jacket and the attached scarf. The jacket is usually of a fine soft lace or chiffon or crepe, falling in the most graceful folds down the side front of dress, or on either side of a center front closing. The attached scarf which may be worn across the shoulders or carelessly thrown over the breast gives an unusually graceful charm.

Chiffon. Never was chiffon more popular. And what a charming fashion it is. Soft, lovely, graceful it floats about the figure with a fairy-like charm, yet clings enough to show the lithe grace of slenderness. It is a happy choice of loveliness to get a chiffon frock.

And the very newest is the daytime chiffon frock. Simply made with a long sleeve or one softly flowing below the elbow, they will be seen at even the most informal of luncheons and afternoon affairs. It is such a delightful mode that it is only surprising that we have not followed it before.

Many of these frocks are black trimmed with white or a very delicate shell pink chiffon. Slims of line with a soft ruffle extending from just a little above the knee they are utterly becoming. The neck is sometimes finished with a type or a jabot of the lighter chiffon or a smart scarf collar—these scarf collars just fastened across the back of a round neck are extremely smart on frocks for evening as well as afternoon wear.

But she who wishes a daytime chiffon need not confine her desires simply to black and white, for printed chiffons have taken the smart world by storm. For more informal wear there are soft novelty plaids—some most amusingly copied from the designs commonly found in their more humble sister, gingham. These frocks are frequently trimmed with a plain chiffon of a harmonizing tone and sometimes with soft jabot or lace. But for dressier occasions and for warm summer days, chiffons appear in the loveliest and most varied of hues—these are made with the same delectable simplicity.

For the Evening. The vogue of chiffon for evening will be welcomed by the woman who realizes how cool, dainty and ethereal it makes her seem on the hottest of summer nights. These chiffon dance frocks favor the simple round neck rather than the more elaborate décolletage of winter.

For tailored wear kasha and the ribbed silks lead the field far in advance of all other materials. The kasha frock is frequently seen in the ever present two piece frock. These frocks are very smart when they feature the new inverted pleat or the circular front. The blouse is straight, slim and boyish—very charming for the slender supple figure. The ribbed silks fashion trim coat frocks, which open down the front over a crepe de chine slip of contrasting shade.

The jabot is the mark of smartness on many a slender silk frock. Sometimes the jabot falls from the neckline to the foot of the skirt, or sometimes just to the waist. These jabots are marvels of simplicity, falling in long graceful folds never in fussy frills.

Simple frock Favored. For warm days of summer the soft simple made frock of crepe is a charming favorite and several of them will be included in every woman's wardrobe.

The smart world is weary of all white costumes which were such a leading mode the past year. Now the lovely soft pastel tones which are so becoming, so flattering, are the great favorites. Peach especially, then pale lilac, pale green, pale yellow and blue. An old ivory or an oyster shade are the nearest shades to white which the smart woman wears.

As a contrast and a change from these light shades every wardrobe is certain to include some gaily colored printed effects either in crepe or chiffon.

Practically everything that is smart is ensemble. The evening frock has its matching cape, the chiffon frock its silk coat, chiffon-lined. Of course, few of us can afford this profusion of wraps, but every smart wardrobe should boast at least one ensemble. Probably the most practical is "the" silk frock or cloth coat for the occasions for wearing such a costume are innumerable.

The New Coats.

As straight and slim of line as ever are the coats which fashion has chosen as her smartest models. Some follow the mode of dresses with a light fulness below the knee but they fit closely about the figure.

The honors are fairly evenly divided between the fur trimmed coat and the one finished with collars and cuffs of the material. The satin or heavy silk coat sometime trimmed with a long haired fur is particularly good for rather dressy occasions. But for general utility the coat of soft cloth will be more frequently seen.

The Blouse. The blouse is still on the crest of the wave of popularity and when you see the utterly charming models which the shops offer, you will not be at all surprised.

Of course, the newest ones are tunic blouses, some of which come to within six or seven inches of the bottom of the skirt. They are worn with ensemble suits or with the simplest skirts.

These blouses show the gayest of prints in some of the smart models while others are of smartly simple ribbed silks.

The Younger Generation. While the types for children are somewhat influenced by grown up fashions, still extreme simplicity is the rule. The child who is most suitably dressed for strenuous hours of play is the best dressed child. So straight, colorful little gingham frocks with their matching bloomers are the most popular.

For parties the well dressed child usually wears a softly simple little frock of light chiffon, voiles or any other delicate summery material.

Dr. A. L. Bixby in Lincoln Journal: "Let us have done with the traditions that impede the regular and expeditious transaction of business" was the meaning if not the language of Vice President Dawes in his remarks to the sleepy senators. He deserves the unqualified thanks of all the people.

Tact Defined. San Francisco Chronicle: Tact is just the art of making the other fellow feel more important than yourself.

Dr. A. L. Bixby in Lincoln Journal: Congressman Howard of Nebraska has softened toward the administration in so far as to admit that the new secretary of agriculture is a capable and worthy man. Has the president made a mistake?

GAY NOTES rule haberdashery

Once more color will be rampant in men's haberdashery. Once more the brighter shades of the rainbow will prevail. Once more will the gay or colors that were dominant last year be foremost in this season's presentation of furnishings.

Particularly is this true of neckwear. In fact it is almost arbitrary, for the somber tones of other years will be shown in only small selections.

While floral effects are still in good taste, the designs will run more to the diagonal stripes. This is largely in keeping with the prevalence of stripes that will be shown in men's clothes. Of course there will be some conventional designs of block effects, cubist treatments and small geometrical motifs.

Grandines Are Featured. Featuring the materials will be the moles, which will not be cut as fully as in other years, but ample in both knot and ends. Grandines, too, will have quite a calling; so will the crinkly crepes and the almost permanent silks and wool mixtures. As the egg-on advances into the good old summertime foulards will come strongly to the front.

Knit Ties Back in Favor. Knit ties, which one time threatened to lose much of their popularity, will probably get a new lease on life, due largely to the fact that the makers, realizing that colorful neckwear will be the vogue, have put plenty of splash and dash into them.

Involved mixtures and bold bias striplings will be shown extensively. One of the most decided changes of several seasons will be shown in shirts. The new soft shirt with two separate collars to match probably will win much favor. These will be shown largely in solid tones of blues, greys, browns and even pinks. There will, of course, be some striped and figured effects.

Two Collars With Shirts. The plated beston hard cuffs and starched collars—that rare combination in shirts—also will be given another test. Last season such shirts were given a trial and went over fairly well. The sale of this apparel was hindered largely by the fact that in most instances only one collar was supplied to the buyer, while this year there will be two.

In collar-attached shirts plain collars and some figure effects will be shown this season. This shirt will have quite a following, since almost any kind of a tie may be worn with them. Pattern effects in madras and broadcloths will be good.

The riot of color even goes to the hosiery that will be worn this season. This in a measure is largely due to the fact that the Hosiery and France are sending across all the combinations that may be found.

Everything to delight the man who goes to color and patterns will be shown, among them checks, plaids, stripes, figures and clocks. Lisles and silks of course will lead the procession, but worsteds and softer fabrics, particularly in the early spring, will follow closely.

Sweaters Match Hosiery. Especially in golf shoes does color run rampant—not the dyes, but the tones, we mean. In fact color in these have come out so strong that the makers are matching both sweaters and hose—and the combination is taking like the proverbial hotcakes. Wools, worsteds, camel's hair and brushed-up textures will prevail.

In gloves the lighter shades will be worn. Bucks, chamois, and mochas will give the capes a battle for supremacy. The buttonless glove, very much like the short gauntlet glove worn by milads, will come out stronger than ever.

Handkerchiefs, too, have caught the color eye. There will be colored borders, colored initials and colored centers.

Middy Styles in Pajamas. For early spring short legs and sleeveless underwear of fine cotton will be worn. In pajamas the middy styles will get more attention.

Silk ties in the halfbold colors and patterns probably will win greater favor than a year ago when they were first introduced. Leathers, however, will be worn mostly with ornamental buckles. The new beltogram also is gaining in favor.

Suspenders manufacturers report an increase in their sales, this being due largely to the fact that with the new "balloon" trousers need these trappings to hold them in place properly.

Adornments to Mifady's Smartness

Pearls, pearls—pearls—the more we wear them the smarter they grow. Perhaps because of their soft iridescent luster is so becoming—perhaps because they denote simplicity expresses the feeling of the mode of today better than any other jewel. But no longer is it necessary to be able to afford a king's ransom for one slender strand. For, so beautiful are many imitation pearls that they are worn by the smartest women.

The three strand necklace is unusually smart—especially for afternoon or evening wear. But for those to whom it is becoming, the choker necklace is a great favorite. A novelty with an evening dress which is almost covered by the huge feather fans which are quite the most recent aids to chic. They are larger than ever before and most favored when the silhoues are gracefully long and uncurled.

with a single stone. And of all rings, the large pearl is quite the best. Many a well dressed woman wears two of them on her little finger—one of a faint pink-like tone—the other a soft smoke grey.

Gold and Silver. And next in importance to the vogue of pearls is gold and silver. In fact, gold and silver is even more popular—for tailored wear. There are choker necklaces of filigree gold or silver. With these are worn the new gold and silver spiral bracelets. It is small wonder that evening frocks are very simple for they are almost covered by the huge feather fans which are quite the most recent aids to chic. They are larger than ever before and most favored when the silhoues are gracefully long and uncurled.

The New Gloves. The pull on glove with a carefully wrinkled wrist is by all odds the newest and smartest. They have an insouciant unstudied effect which goes extremely well with the carefree mode of today, and they are equally smart with sports or more tailored attire.

A dainty little handkerchief which will complete the charm of many a summertime costume is shaped like flower petals and is seen in countless grey and sandy colors. But the handkerchief usually chosen to accompany the smartest frocks, especially in the evening, is of linen unbelievably sheer and fine with the smallest of hand rolled hems. The gay linen handkerchief is more in the realm of sports and tailored wear.

Purses Are Still Flat. The flat purse is still the newest purse. A very clever variation is seen for tailored wear which is a flat-leather purse on a tiny metal frame which is so cleverly jointed that it opens out into almost a complete circle, allowing easy access to the innumerable small articles a woman likes to carry.

However, nothing is quite as smart as the leather purse of soft-lizard skin with your monogram in silver mounted in one corner.

Pleasing on All Heads are the Spring Hat Styles

As far as the shape is concerned there will be little difference in the styles of the hats that men will wear this spring and those worn last fall. But the most radical change will be in the brims that go around the hats. Some manufacturers have introduced the fancy band, brims similar to those worn around the straw hats. The colors, however, will not be pronounced but there will be a fine stripe of two running through the bands—just enough color to make the man's hat a noticeable part of his ensemble.

As stated shapes in many instances are like those of last fall, but there is a considerable group which show a decided swing and curl to the brim. Fedora Shape Always Good. Fedora and Alpine shapes, in good taste for many years, will prevail once more. But there is a growing demand for the diamond and dented in shapes by the younger fellows. The tipped-down fronts, too, will be worn more than ever. As with the hats there is quite a variety as far as shapes go.

A group of hat makers attempted to get over the green hat, but the success of this venture wasn't as marked as the sale of the book called "The Green Hat." A second effort will be made this spring, but the retailer's forecast doesn't speak any too hopefully.

Light colors, of course, will be the vogue. Among them pearl grays promise to give every other shade the battle for popularity. There will be tans and a few lavenders to match the suits of the same tone. Tailor Straps Census. For summer wear the light weight straw wins in the long run. It has been the old standby for many years and promises to hold its popularity for years, unless something novel and striking displaces it.

Whites, light browns and tans will be shown and worn largely. In recent years there has been introduced many weaves of straws and most of them have had followers. They probably will all appear when Straw Hat day is announced.

Black bands, of course, will be worn with most of these straws, but it is predicted that the color bands to go with the general color scheme of dress will make great inroad. Most of these will show one or two fine colored stripes.

Old Standby Remain. The old timers, panamas and leg-horns, will carry off the honors among the older men who are wedded to their comfort and there is a certain following among the younger fellows who will follow step.

The derby, which at one time was the spring and fall hat, probably will gain no more converts than it did a year ago. In caps, light, rich, distinctive over-all patterns will be shown.

London Spring Styles

Flavors Our

The style treaty that has existed between England and America evidences even a stronger bond of sympathy and acceptance this spring. This is by no means to be taken as a submergence of our ideas to that of the English, mandates but rather a following out of our own preferences because these styles have been found to make a strong appeal to the American taste. In other words we accept what we like and what we like, we like to the exclusion of all else.

Hence what you have become accustomed to know as the English type of modelling in both suits and topcoats are the sort of styles that the well-dressed man will be expected to wear for the coming spring.

Over there they have launched some new departures in their modelling that will, of course, influence the new phases over here. These changes are such that tend to add grace, character and dignity to the new modes—things that are in keeping with the simpler lines that are characteristic of these English styles.

Call for Wider Hip.

For instance the new type of trousers calls for wider hips with a slight tapering from the hips to about a 17-inch bottom. So as to lose that abrupt wideness at the bottom that oftentimes tends to produce a dangling effect that throws the entire contour of trouser leg out of kilter.

To obviate that the spring trousers will show a considerable deeper cuff—not less than two inches, to give more weight at the bottom, to hold the trousers more firmly set to the hips and lend an appearance of more snug fit.

While these trousers are wide at the hip and down to the knee there is an absence of the "peg-top" appearance that is usually associated with wide top trousers. As stated above there is a graceful, gradual tapering that has style and distinction and is far removed from any tendency toward "jazzing" the style.

Freak Styles Are Gone.

"Jazz" styles are out. The "sheik" who goes in for this type of dress will be sorrowfully out to it to remain true to his type and still conform to the prevailing fashion of the season. He is either going to have to find a new niche of fashion in which to impress his own type of dressing or he is going to succumb to the preponderance of influence that these new English suits have made upon the American gentleman.

So, gentlemen, look for the almost straight-hanging trousers when you choose your spring suit—that is if you want to be truly and definitely in tune with the strictest mode.

For those men who want a more conservative compromise there will of course be slight variations of the style—a moderation of the real loose hanging trousers by more severely tapering the leg shape and giving more body-conforming lines to the coat.

The coats in these strictly English suits carry broad shoulders with a slight tapering at the waist. The sleeves are fairly ample in width and the chestiness of the coat while it is there is lost from notice by the straight down effect of the coat front.

There is more spread to the front of the collar which fits snugly in front and then flares out a bit to meet a fairly broad, blade-like lapel. This detail is particularly prominent in the double-breasted suit of which there will be many worn this spring—more than is usual in the spring season for the double-breasted suit has always been more seriously considered as a winter style.

Some Four-button Styles.

Both two and three-button single-breasted suits are in vogue and in the more decided models even some four-button suits—a type we have not seen much of in the recent seasons. There is very little of pocket cut ornamentation in the mode. For the most part the pockets are of the inset order or with the plain flap. Cuffs are either severely plain or having a slight vent of the French cuff nature.

Single-Breasted Vests.

Vests are for the most part single-breasted, though many of the models for the younger men show double-breasted effects. These vests are cut high and have only a slight V at the top and even slight V at the bottom. The front modelling is of the straight-front order. The double-breasted vests have almost a semicircular bend from top to lower buttons. Many of them are double-breasted.

Topcoats are of two models. The most fashionable in London just now is patterned after the Guard overcoats. That means very chesty, narrow shoulders, body-tracing at the waist and a decided flare to the skirt. These coats are just slightly below the knee in length. The other model is a Tubular coat.

This coat is a straight-hanging affair from armpits to bottom. It falls to the calf of the leg and is severely straight with but very little fullness to the skirt. These tubular topcoats are mostly single-breasted, button-through models. A few are fly-front models. These excepting that they are longer are modelled very much along lines of the conservative, Chesterfield.

Belted coats, even the back-belt type, are sparsely shown and where shown at all are in the raincoat textures.

Fawn Shades Favored.

There are two outstanding shades in the coloring of the spring suit fabrics. A fawn shade promises much advance in popularity. In fact in many of the items of apparel for spring there is a strong flavor of fawn colorings. From these there will vary many tones of tan and the lighter brown shades.

The other big color note in spring fabrics is an Azure blue—a slight departure from the popular powder blues of last spring. These blues hover on the border of the gray tones and cadet effects. They lend themselves very splendidly to smart patternings and the combining with other contrasting tones.

Lavenders also are given some prominence in the finer fabrics—especially those that come from foreign looms. Blues with a purplish cast are also shown in the higher priced suitings.

The patterns for spring show an emphatic return to stripes. These stripes are not the hair-line effects of past seasons nor are the broader chalkline stripes but a compromise between that can only be described as stripes of moderate degree. These stripes are on blue, brown or fawn grounds with contrasting stripes of red, purple, lavender, blue grey or green. Few black and white stripe combinations are shown.

Solid Tans in Tweeds.

The other patterns run principally to neat mixtures and sedate overplaid. Few of the louder plaids and prominent checks are shown in the better lines. Many solid tans are shown in light tweeds.

By the way light tweeds are very popular fabrics for this season. Casimers take second position and after them the better grades of flannels. As the season advances toward midsummer many gaberdeins light weight covers and palm beach cloths will be shown in the two-piece suits. It is during this period that the favor trend toward sport suits is probably a stronger revival of sport details in these mid-summer suits.

Of course in the early spring suits compromise is always made to the business suits worn by the more mature men. Such men are hard to wean away from the finer class of worsteds and serges. There is something about the subdued patterning and set durability of worsteds that makes the conservative dresser favor them. In deference to this class of buyers all the more will show plenty of worsted and serge weaves in the more conservative and business models.

Golf Suits Are English Too!

Strange to say that golf suits which have long been characterized by sport details show a very pronounced absence of sport treatment in the new spring models. Even these golf suits are characteristically English with their straight-front coats, straight-hang trousers and absence of belts, pleats, yokes and other ornamental details.

This trend is largely due to the fact that so many men are buying the four-piece suits, wearing the knickers for golf and the long trousers for other occasions and on these other occasions they desire that the coat should have the real prevailing style features. Even in the pattern treatments the golf suits are becoming more quiet in tone—the more subdued patterns taking precedence over the larger plaids and bag checks of past seasons.

Flights of Fancy in the Millinery Mode

Our hats have been so much alike for so many seasons past, that it is with great rejoicing that we usher in a mode which has two distinct types of smartness.

First of all is the high crowned little hat with the trimming jauntily perched on its topmost peak. There never was a hat more suitable for care-free innocuous youth. There is something so pert about them that they are just as attractive as can be.

The trimming is frequently a perky little bow of the very narrowest ribbon or two soft feather pom-poms. However, the possibilities of many other trimmings so placed are infinite as this summer's hats readily show. In many a smart model a very attractive effect is gained by stitching a tiny fold in the top of the hat. Sometimes there is just one fold—at others two folds at right angles to each other.

Brims are still so tiny that they can scarcely be called brims. And to make them appear even smaller, some are turned sharply up on one side and down on the other.

Another Way of Trimming.

The other smart way for a hat to wear its trimming, is falling from one side of the brim so low and so close to the face that it almost brushes the cheek. In fact, on some of these hats the trimming comes from beneath the brim. These hats are almost universally flattering.

Another clever type is the closely draped turban with the trimming either in the form of a feather fancy or flowers or fruit also placed very close to the face.

But after all the smartest hat in the world loses its chic if it is not put on just at the right angle. The days when we tilted our hats at a precarious angle over one eye are gone. Of course, we do not wear them with too precise a straightness. But it is smarter to tilt the hat forward and if it is more becoming that way—just a very little to one side.

Colored Felt Hats.

For early spring the brightly colored little felt hat has won the greatest popularity. And with the return of color to a grey and frozen world—how attractive they are. All shades of purple from a deep rich tone to a pale lilac, bright orange all the face of the wearer. Some remind us of all warmer days to come by having the under side of the brim lined with straw.

These felt hats are so smart and so becoming that they are no longer relegated simply to the world of sports or strictly tailored frocks. This season one sees them with the most elaborate afternoon frocks, and worn to almost every function which demands a hat.

However, as soon as summer weather arrives straws and silks will lead the way to smartness. Many a smart model is of silk and straw combined—popular types of felt as well as the more delicate in tone than the becoming French blue are greatly in vogue.

For Sports.

Of course, the first consideration in choosing a hat for sports wear is comfort and suitability. And the small soft felt hats which are being shown are the most practical ever designed. Without any stiffening whatever, they may be carried flatly under the arm or pulled on the head into just the shape the fair wearer prefers. They are bright or delicately tinted as a rule for white has not the great popularity it enjoyed last season.

The trimming may consist solely of the tiny folds stitched in the crown or may be a tiny felt bow perched on the top of the hat. But whatever it is it is sure to be very simple for that, color and comfort are the three rules for the smartness of sports wear.

It will be a simple matter this year to find as many charmingly becoming hats as you wish for they follow so closely the shape of the head and frequently add a little height which so many of us find most attractive.

"Mijamas"

They are wearing mijamas right out on the sand beaches down at Miami, Fla. Mrs. Ruth Herbert, New York City, seen here, is given credit for introducing the fad.

For Outdoor Days

It is going to be a pastel summer! And the loveliest shades you ever dreamed of are leading the way to a more utterly becoming beauty than ever before. Soft shades of peach are most popular while lilac or lavender is also in vogue.

In fact, all the most exquisite pastel shades form a close second. White has passed its zenith of popularity and if one does not wish to wear the pastel shades a lovely tone of ivory or an oyster white is very smart.

For Cooler Days.

For early spring sports wear and for cooler days of summer kasha in soft pastel tones is very popular and natural kasha seems to have taken the smart world by storm. These kasha frocks are newest in the two-piece models. The skirts are fuller than before allowing much more ease and comfort of motion. Many of them have an inverted pleat in the middle or side front for though this year's skirts are fuller, the lines, especially of sport frocks, are straight. Some of these skirts are entirely pleated while others have a circular fullness just across the front.

The blouse is generally a simple straight little slip on with a "V" neck.

But though the two piece costume is not as popular, some smartly made kasha frocks are one piece. These one piece frocks, for variation's sake, are frequently seen made with a lighter shade of kasha from the neck to the hipline, and a slightly darker shade from the hipline to the bottom of the frock. Many perfectly charming color combinations are seen, some of the loveliest of which have oyster white or natural kasha combined with an exquisite pastel shade.

The Ensemble.

The ensemble costume is so popular now that as might be expected its sway has extended to the world of sports. The ensemble suit of kasha is the very smartest and is also very practical for the coat can frequently be used with all one's other sport's things.

The chic of flannel must not be overlooked in this rage for kasha, as many a smart flannel sports frock will be seen at all the most fashionable non-marrying places.

The Sports Coat.

Of course, with kasha as the leading fabric, many of the sports coats are developed in it. They are designed on very straight slender lines with narrow shoulders. Many are unlined and have a very simple treatment of the neck and wrist line and usually without fur trimming. Some very smart models of these most useful coats are knitted and embroidered in bright woods.

The woman who goes in for active sports always needs a sweater and skirts in her wardrobe. And the smartest designers have not neglected her needs. Natural kasha or cashmere fashions many a simple skirt ideal for the most strenuous of sports. Some of these skirts are pleated, others are straight of line with an inverted pleat in the front to allow easy motion. These skirts are also very popular in all the soft pastel tones of the season.

Quite the most popular sweater seen with these skirts is a simple round or "V" necked little slip on. These sweaters are newest with long sleeves. They are very attractive when they match the tone of the skirt or in a pastel shade as a contrast to a skirt of natural kasha.

For Warmer Days.

Of course for really hot weather, lovely cool looking crepe de chine

Spring Mode in Millinery

Exquisite are the costume hats and stunning are the sport hats fashion has decreed for this spring. Made of finest straws and silk combinations, these may be had in the youthful Gloria Swanson pokes, the capeline brims, smart tailored turbans, off-face styles and the jaunty high crowns. The velvet and ribbon trimmings are very good this season and the flowers are most attractive.

So varied is the selection that you will enjoy choosing a hat that fits your personality. Each model expresses individuality.

Footnotes to Fashions

Now that frocks are short again, shoes are more noticeable and more important than ever. But so many charming new styles are offered for your selection that you are certain to enjoy your shoe shopping more than ever before.

For the daytime and for street wear, the trimly tailored pump walks the smartest paths of fashion. Sometimes it is quite unadorned but just as often the flash and gleam of a cut steel buckle lends a charming finish to a well shod foot. Patent or dull leather are equally good.

For the Afternoon.

In the afternoon slippers become more elaborate both in color and design. Many charming models are created with unusual strappings and sometimes agleam—with buckles. Blood red or blond satin slippers will be seen with many a charming afternoon costume. Lizard and alligator are still smart but they are more popular when combined with plain kid. However, if the gown is rather elaborate the slipper is simpler—frequently a high heeled opera pump for an elaborately strapped slipper with an elaborate frock gives a feeling of fussiness which is not of the mode of today.

On Warner Days.

With the delicate frocks of summertime, the pastel slipper is very smart. Frequently it harmonizes with the deepest tone found in the costume or it is very chic to have it match the felt hat.

In the evening the strappings on slippers become more elaborate than ever. Some slippers show the sandal cut which goes right to the sole and shows a very broad expanse of the foot. However here again the opera pump is also very smart if you prefer it.

Gold and silver brocaded slippers are always good. But even newer are the dyed satin slippers. These slippers are dyed to match the deepest tone in the dress or if the dress is all of one color they are dyed a different shade such as with a lilac dress, a slipper on the same tone but almost purple. This accent of color gives a perfectly charming effect on the dance floor.

Nude Hose.

Of course the most popular shade of hose is nude. Nude hose all ways with colored slippers, in either the afternoon or evening. For more tailored wear the smart woman chooses a slightly darker tone.

merly dolphin, rampant, would grace a gay garden. One lad holds aloft a tiddler—perhaps that explains the expression on the dolphin; he looks ready to snout a neighbor's fish.

So let us have little garden gods to bless the growing petunias, migrate the ivy, kiss the daisies, golden-rod, let us have them to foster romance adventuring (have you not had a garden adventure?) and above all "Beat our next-door neighbor's!"

For color-weather trends and serge will be the popular sellers and these will be shown in a variety of quaint and interesting styles.

As for accessories the collar-tied shirt will be worn extensively. These will be shown in plain and pin-striped effects—stripes, too, will be shown in neckwear. As for the other fixings there will be little change from a year ago.

Another President Broken.

Junior's Clothes In Step With Dad's

In line with their dad's clothes, which are more English in cut than ever, the boys of this Spring will follow the styles of their seniors. More than ever will the influence of Harrow and Eton exert itself.

While the Norfolk model will have a following, the suits this spring will show less of the pinstriped backs and other frills, which made them decidedly boyish in past years. Today the young fellow of six to sixteen is almost a replica of his dad, as far as clothes styles go.

And with these new spring models the vest will be a prominent acquisition—something to give the youngster a lot of proud feeling, that he is a growing fellow.

Better Tailoring the Rule.

Strangely as it may seem the plainer the clothes the more difficult to make. That has made it necessary for manufacturers to put in needlework equal to dad's clothes. They are made for ruggedness in service, ruggedness in fabric.

Tweeds will be used largely, because this fabric adapts itself to the gymnastics of the young fellow. And this material can be successfully used in the making of the new sort of knicker and knee breeches, which are frequently sold in combination with stores advertising two-trousers suits.

Lighter Colors to Be Worn.

While dark colored fabrics have been used in other years this spring will see the introduction of more and lighter light colors, especially the light browns, green and powder blue.

In topscoats the straight hanging coat, similar to those worn by adults, will be style admitted to be best for the little fellows. These coats truly make a little gentleman of the boy.

There's little difference in the wearing apparel of the juveniles—the little fellows from two to six years of age. The middie suits or wash suits will get their play just as strong as ever, particularly when warmer weather permits them to romp and frolic outdoors.

Little Garden Gods

A delightful little poem by R. R. Chalmers, entitled "Cottage Garden Prayer," ends:

Little garden gods,
Bless the time of sowing
Watering and growing.
Lastly, when our sunflower nods
And our rambler's red array
Awaits the honey-bee his labors,
Bless our garden that it may
Beat our next-door neighbor's
Little garden gods!

May it indeed "beat our neighbor's" so dear, how intensely human we are! It is perhaps that very quality which makes us place little gods in gardens.

And besides the little gods in cast cement, or cut in stone, there are those joyous little cherubs who rule proudly over fountains. One cherub in his bubbling glory, clasps to his bosom a justly indignant goose! Another relentlessly squeezes the cement prototype of the well-known creature called "poor fish."

Of course there are those trick fountains in which the poor fish looks as though he really enjoyed standing on his slippery tail and spouting water grayly over the assembled ladies and ladies. But we feel that nature-faking on the part of the sculptors ought really to be discouraged, if not frowned upon.

Romance and the Garden.

"A dipping well"—doesn't that sound romantic? But what use is a garden if it isn't romantic? We are utterly in favor of romance in a garden—what hard-hearted person is there, who can resist the impish faces of the pansies, or the scarlet flirtations of the nasturtiums?

Yes, a dipping well with a carved surface belongs in a proper garden, and a scented bench with a marble bench for two belongs—any, is an absolute necessity! Near this, in the surrounding mock orange and bridal wreath should stand a god Pan. Yes, he should—right where the moonlight would best illumine his grinning face—so he would catch you—yes, know—and kiss you—they say "daisies never tell."

Then, of course in romantic garden when the colors fairly sing in the breeze and the sunlight, a prim sundial should find an open space to remind you of the "sunny hours." And since summer days have a little way of growing uncomfortably warm, a wall fountain offers a pleasant cooling trickling sound over in one corner, and invites birds and mortals to quench their thirst.

Special Baths for Birds.

The birds must never be forgotten and their own special bird bath must be provided for them to enjoy it in their own way—with a good deal of argument apparently. We were taught in our youth, "Little birds in their nests agree." Well, maybe, but they don't agree about a bird bath—except that they all like it.

There are many useful bits of garden furniture, like the big hand-urns, in their varieties of shapes. Then there are the ornamental pieces—like the great old jars, now in demand. They too have a tinge of romance—you remember Ali Baba and the Forty Thieves? Well, it was in just such an old jar that the old boys were concealed, that time when who knows what morning you might find a nymph or a satyr or perhaps a gnome fast asleep in your oil jar?

And of course there must be a flagged path in a romantic garden—and it must lurk behind shrubbery and steel away behind trees and finally lead you to the end—a little shrine—but surely—a shrine to the little garden gods themselves, or at any rate one of them.

Peter Pan and His Piper.

What will you choose for your garden god? There's a standing figure of a gnome suggesting the days of Rip Van Winkle—but busy with a broom. No, he wouldn't quite do! Then there's a Chinese philosopher gentleman who looks good for a garden. No, he is too serious! There's a little seated Pan who is piping away as if he would burst—he might make a pleasant garden god, or perhaps you would choose a sturdy, very young man, clothed in nothing at all, who is blowing on a conch shell? He might take good care of your garden, but surely—would they? For this, a pair of fat youngsters astride a

HOLLYWOOD'S Sunshine Girl

THOUGH an invalid, and forced to lie helpless in her modest apartment, Lucille Rikksen is the Sunshine Girl of Hollywood.

Actresses, blue because of bad investments, others despondent because of contract breaks and some who just feel that life is not so good, visit Lucille and go away with new courage.

A year ago Lucille was on the threshold of stardom. She was selected one of 12 girls who had made the most progress in motion pictures during the twelve preceding months.

They called her a "queen," and Hollywood presented her to the public as one of the coming cinema stars.

The sole support of a mother and family of brothers and sisters, Lucille was overworked, at the thoughts of her success.

But it was short-lived. "Just a taste of that happiness for which many, many girls strive."

Then the doctor was called, one day. Lucille was ill.

"A nervous breakdown," he said, "is your complete rest, as usual, and not so much exercise, even as arising from bed."

WILL she ever be able to get back to the movies? "It doubt's full. Even if she were to fully recover, the position she held would be lost to her because of her long absence."

But Lucille is hopeful. She's cheerful, even in the face of it all. She's the Sunshine Girl of cinema.

Furniture Follows the Colorful Aspect of Spring

Comfort and color and that precious inestimable quality of hominess these three combined produce the nearest to our ideal in home surroundings.

To go from this spacious home to a modern apartment is a jump indeed. The living room in most cases is the largest room, but at that it may be small, and needs the most careful study to acquire a feeling of space.

Finished in Dull Maple. A more cozy and informal dining room requires a finished maple table set, to be placed against the east end of red chintz-patterned wall papers.

was introduced in the dresser set and as bases for two handsome lamps on the vanity case. Amber fluted shades completed these.

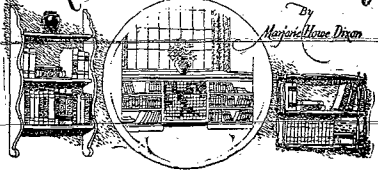

Whether the home be tiny or wide and spacious, it can be made most inviting by studying its possibilities and deliberate setting about making it usable, hospitable and comfortable.

This can be done, however, and simple and yet pleasing effect is produced. A plain paper and an un-patterned rug are to be recommended. Painted furniture with insets of cane and cushioned seats attractively furnished one room.

Either side the small black marble fireplace stood small desks, with gay bits of pottery on them. An open dresser with shelves for china stood on one wall, opposite a painted glass cabinet hung on the other wall.

Book Shelves as Decoration

Is there any home more totally uninviting than that one, rigidly furnished and carpeted, whose walls, tables and shelves contain no books?

Bookshelves and china find a place on them. Built-in bookshelves have been suggested and indeed very cleverly designed for use in many rooms—the living room particularly.

Books and bookshelves are being used more and more in many fascinating ways to add to interesting rooms.

The idea of locking books away has largely gone out of use, as indeed have glass doors for bookshelves. One man found he just had more and more frequently radiators need coverings and often stand just below windows.

Like in Grandmother's Day. Pairs of shelves are being devoted in ever increasing variety. One quaint old pair stood in opposite corners on its own pedestal.

Each window effectively framed its cabinet and serving table to a arch. Bits of blue glass on the table repeated the dominant color.

In both living and dining rooms, wide fireplaces, simple in construction, were found, plainly meant to be used.

Dining rooms are usually somewhat formal and restrained, while breakfast nooks, or dining porches may go the limit in gay color and bright effects.

Bed rooms present many contrasts—each room reflecting the tastes and habits of its owner. One started with the prints of the Louis XV period (I am sure the prints were bought first to furnish inspiration and color effects).

Somewhat the living room with its deep, luxurious couch, the ruffled walls, its shaded lamps, and glints of polished brass, suggested snug and easy winter evenings, while the dining room, for all its wide fireplaces, suggested merry summer days, warm and fragrant with cool and fragrant within.

Rest the dining be too formal and seem to exert a repression on room look on a light tone and painted its garlanded walls in ivory. Open shelves for china have been spoken of before.

Colonial, Chippendale and modern American furniture all bobbed cheerfully and harmoniously together in this unusual room.

Effective Good Taste. The living room, too, showed how effectively good taste may be used to unify different periods and types of furniture.
