Rev. John Grant Shick left for Omaha Monday morning to give an address at the funeral of the Rev. W. St. John Sanders, who died last Friday night after an illness of about two years with Hodgkins' disease. Rev. Mr. Sanders was pastor of the Methodist church in Stanton for three years, being stationed there when the old church burned two years ago last February. His illness began at about the time of the fire. He was retired last September and made his home in Omaha since then. It is recalled that Mr. Shick was taken ill six years ago last February with influenza away from home and was taken into the Methodist parsonage in St. Edward by Mr. Sanders and his wife and nursed through three weeks of illness—sixteen days very ill in bed. Seven other victims of the dread scourge of 1918-1919 were also cared for by this worthy couple, all of whom came through to health. Mr. Shick speaks of Mr. Sanders as a man of remarkable talents and feels that the church has suffered a heavy loss in his death.

Group Meeting Here Proves Interesting

Dr. E. B. Hull of Norfolk, district superintendent of the Methodist church, and pastors from twelve nearby congregations, attended the group meeting held at the Wayne Methodist church last Thursday afternoon and evening. A number of laymen of the surrounding territory were also present. Speakers for the afternoon were Dr. Palsoul of Franco, Dr. Lipp of India; Dr. Cottingham of the Philippines, and Bishop George A. Miller of Mexico City. Each told of conditions in his field of labor and gave many encouraging facts. All stressed the handicap the foreign fields are undergoing because of decrease in the appropriations for the current year, the real purpose of this meeting as well as others throughout the state being the stimulating of giving for benevolence in the churches. Dr. Hull reported the prospect for a good increase in the world service gifts in the Norfolk district over last year.

Those in attendance at the program took dinner in the evening at the Chautauque cafe, Carl Gant making special arrangements for the guests.

Bishop Miller was the speaker in the evening session, which was also well attended. Others went to churches of the vicinity for meetings in the evening. Dr. Lipp was to have spoken in Winiside but because of illness was unable to go and Rev. W. C. Fawell of Dixon, missionary in India for several years, took Dr. Lipp's place. Dr. Palsoul went to Randolph and Dr. Cottingham went to Wakefield.

Bishop Miller told Wayne people of the work in his vast field in Mexico, Central America and northern South America. He discussed the tendency of the citizens of the United States to appropriate to themselves the term "American" and showed that the citizens of Central America and the southern continent have as much right to the term as people here. All are Americans, Bishop Miller spoke of the future of some of the South American countries, especially Argentine and Brazil, and plead for giving them a chance to develop along right lines. He stated that the missionary work of the Protestant churches meets with ready response throughout his field. Before his election as bishop last May Mr. Miller was superintendent of the Methodist work in the Panama canal zone.

Reflect

Your bathroom is a mirror of you—a reflector of the standards of your home. And bathrooms have a way of becoming shabby and out of date. To do one justice, they need to be re-modernized from time to time.

Re-modernizing bathrooms is a specialty of ours. We take particular pride in seeing how good a job can be done rather than skimp something just to see how cheap we can make it. We believe the "Recollection of Quality remains long after the Price is forgotten."

If you do not already have a bathroom and would like to know just what one would cost, we will furnish you an estimate free.

Victor Chick Starter

A tested starter made in your own state contains buttermilk, beefscraps, middlings, oil meal, bone meal, bran and corn flour mixed at a proper proportion to produce feathers, flesh and bone in the quickest length of time. If your chicks are properly housed you need have no fear of bowel irregularities. Feed VICTOR STARTER for three weeks--after the third day chick grains should be fed with the starter--grains should be fed in straw or chaff where they are forced to scratch and thereby secure proper exercise and reduce leg-weakness.

Have visited poultry farms where Victor foods have been used exclusively for three years and secured first hand information from feeders who make big profits by feeding the VICTOR VAY. Secure a 60c sack and start your chicks right. YOUR MONEY BACK for the empty sack if you are not satisfied.

The importance of using Victor growing Mash with VICTOR grains after the third week is very important for rapid and healthy growth. Ask for information how to secure free designs to build a self feeder for chicks. We will send it to your address free.

Victor Flour

Every Kernel of Which is Washed Before Grinding. A few months have created an abnormal demand for VICTOR FLOUR. The price is always right and the quality is such we never have a complaint. It's always uniform and never fails to please. We solicit the trade of the most particular housewives. Your money back for the empty sack if you are not pleased.

After a most delightful "soirée" afterwards Mrs. Graef served a delicious luncheon. The guests departed wishing the honor guest many more happy birthdays. The men of this neighborhood quickly responded to a call for help Saturday to extinguish a fire which greatly endangered the buildings on the Harry Baird farm. The fire had been set in an old stack bottom the previous day by John Wendt, and having smoldered over night, was fanned into flames by Saturday's wind and spread rapidly northward until checked by the quick work of those present. However, the only one who sustained a loss was Frank Woelcher, who had a stack of alfalfa hay burned. Mrs. Fred Rung entertained Tuesday evening, March 24, complimentary to her husband whose thirty-seventh birthday anniversary was that day—an evening of cards, games furnished much amusement for the large crowd of friends and neighbors who were present. Mrs. Andrew Parker brought a large birthday cake and it, with its thirty-seven candles, added zest to the party. At a late hour the hostess served an elaborate luncheon after which the crowd dispersed, wishing Mr. Rung many happy returns of the day, and voting Mrs. Rung a royal entertainer. No, You Never

You never heard a woman proudly explaining that her kitchen sink had belonged to her mother and to her mother's mother before her.
No. Sentiment may attach to a fine old walnut chest of drawers, but there is no sentiment about doing hard work the hardest way. Every woman is right in feeling that her kitchen ought to be as up-to-date as her husband's office or workshop.
If you want a modern, efficient kitchen, start with one of our Kohler sinks. Then and there you will find that you have shortened and lightened hours of wearying work that the adjustable legs permit setting the sink at just the right height to save back-fatigue; and that the snowy white, durable Kohler enamel and the one-piece construction which eliminates joints and crevices, make cleaning-up a pleasure.
We have just the sink that will, for a very modest investment, make your kitchen a source of constant satisfaction. Let us show it to you.

Contest Over Sunday Pictures at Allen

Allen, Neb., March 28.—At the coming spring election for town officials in Allen, the question of Sunday moving picture shows and their rights will be the paramount issue. For the past nine months there has been friction between M. C. Freed, owner of a moving picture house, and citizens and officials of the town which culminated in the arrest and trial of Mr. Freed for the violation of a town ordinance prohibiting operation of Sunday shows.

Mr. Freed claimed that since the ordinance prohibited him from operating a show, while permitting religious organizations to operate on Sunday, it made an unfair discrimination and was therefore illegal. He lost in the trial in justice court and appealed the case to the district court.

Later an agreement was reached so that the question permitting the operation of Sunday pictures by any organization or individual is to be submitted to the voters at the regular spring election, and both sides have agreed to abide by the decision.

H. Allen, H. Mitchell and M. S. Zook are the nominees on the citizens' ticket for vacancies on the Allen board of that party. The outgoing officers are: Fay J. Clough, J. C. Gaughran and M. S. Zook.

Members of the school board for the school board are: J. E. Graham, V. W. McDonald, J. H. Allen and Walter R. Ellis, two to be elected.

Have Narrow Escape From Prairie Fire

Valentine, Neb., March 27.—Entirely surrounded by the blazing prairie fire, fire fighters who were trying to stop the progress of the flames north of Coody were trapped for half an hour yesterday and only the fact that they were able to make their way to a sand blowout prevented their being burned to death.

The men—Jack Stotts, Frank Yancy, John Yancy, Harry McGee and Harry Severin, the latter cashier of the Bank of Coody and themselves in the precarious position as a result of a shift in the wind which cut off their escape from the flames. They managed to make their way to a blowout which was clear of grass and by backing kept the flames far enough away from them so they were not burned. The heavy smoke almost suffocated them before they were able to make their getaway, however.

At one time they had almost given up hope of getting out and had started to dig themselves into the sand intending to cover themselves to keep from being burned. None of them was injured.

Belated reports coming into Valentine today told of heavy loss of farm buildings and grain in the farming country in southeastern Bennett county. Pat McCoy and M. J. O'Neill, farmers, reported that they had lost everything including their homes and barns. They believed that many of their neighbors suffered the same losses. There are few cattle in this region but there were many dead horses to be seen where the fire had caught them.

Except for a few scattered fires the flames were under control today and no further damage is looked for.

As to the U. S. Senate.

Congressman Howard says that putting things across in the house by the operation of the present gag-rule-of that body menaces the people who are thus apt to be imposed upon in spite of their outcries. The situation is then saved only by the rule of unlimited debate in the senate.

THE GREAT AMERICAN HOME

BY STANLEY

THE LITTLE DEAR

"Feet of Clay" To Be Shown in Wayne

In "Feet of Clay" to be shown April 3 and 4 at the Crystal theatre in Wayne, the scene opens at a fashionable California beach resort. A gay carnival is in progress. We see Amy Loring and her step-sister, Mrs. Fergus Lansell, both in love with Kerry Harlan, young efficiency engineer. Tony Channing, wealthy idler, is also attracted to Amy.

There is a surf boat race. Channing is paired with Mrs. Lansell. Kerry with Amy. Harlan's boat develops engine trouble and blows up. He swings to Amy's surf board and proposes in the middle of the Pacific. In the midst of the scene a shark appears. Harlan attempts to fight him off but is drawn under, his foot mangled. Channing sees trouble, speeds back and harpoons the fish.

On the Lansell yacht on the way back to New York, Amy changed, proposes to Kerry. Bertha Lansell is desperately jealous. The pair are married on shipboard. Amy losing a large allowance from Mrs. Lansell, Kerry and Amy take over a cheap apartment.

There is a dance at the Lansell's. Kerry is a wallflower. Serious trouble threatens if he uses his injured foot. He claims his wife from Channing however, and collapses in the middle of the dance. Dr. Lansell says he'll die if he stands on the foot again. Help is refused from Bertha and Channing, and Amy takes over the position as mediate's model.

Bertha is in Kerry's apartment when her husband makes a professional call. There is a scandal attached to the affair, and when Channing makes advances to Amy, Kerry tells him to take her—makes no defense. But she loves Kerry and returns to him to save him from himself.

The scene changes—We come to a bridge. Thousands of people are passing one way, Kerry and Amy among them. They come to an archway in back of which are two doors. A slender man, book in hand, directs the crowd. He turns back Amy and Harlan—he hasn't seen them before. There is nothing for them but oblivion.

Again the scene shifts. We see Amy and Kerry entering upon a new life, ready to finish their job right—and the Lansells reconciled.

Early Days In Two Counties

H. E. Fote of the Benson Grain company of Carroll, went to Minnesota to visit his relatives.

Mrs. E. S. Blair and Mrs. H. S. Simpson witnessed a "surprise party" for Mrs. George Damon.

C. B. Thompson and Jake Wingert escaped injury when a team of horses fell from the wagon.

J. G. Miller returned from a trip to the Big Horn Basin country and other places in Wyoming and Montana.

E. E. Driskell of Wakefield, shipped four cars of cattle to Chicago and received one of the top prices on the market.

Captain Brown of the college has been in Fort Leavenworth, Kan., taking examinations for entrance to West Point military academy.

Mrs. H. J. Robinson and daughter of Carroll returned from Highland, Kan., where they attended the funeral of the former's mother.

Robert Ahern went to a Sioux City hospital for treatment. He was accompanied there by Father Haley, Eugene Leahy and Hugh McConnell.

William Bleke of nine miles northwest of Wayne was killed May 8, 1905, when the wagon he was driving home from Wayne in the evening turned over. Mr. Bleke was driving over a bridge when one of the wheels of the wagon caught in a hole at the approach and turned the wagon. He was 50 years old. He left his wife, whose maiden name was Wilhelmina Thun, and two children.

nightmare has been wiped out, the price of land in Dixon county has advanced 25 per cent. But it is still low compared with the prices in neighboring counties.

The ditch now being cut in the northern part of town, to carry off the extra dose of water to which Ponca is occasionally treated, is assuming the size of a river bed. It will be about fifteen feet wide and five or six feet deep. It will be a good thing for the place in wet weather.

From the recent annual report of County Superintendent of Interest concerning schools in Dixon county:

The number of districts in the county is 61.—There are 18 school houses. Number of children of school age, 2260, of whom 1145 are males and 1115 are females.

The county during the past year had two graded schools, 45 districts having six months school or over and ten districts having four months school.

Of the school-houses, 45 are well furnished with patent desks and seats, and 32 have some apparatus, as globes, maps, etc. Eight new school houses have been built during the year. Total valuation of all school houses in county, $24,210. Total cost of the schools during the past year, including teachers' wages and expenditures of all kinds (except building school houses) $30,000.

The Lunch of Wealth.

Dr. A. L. Bixby in Lincoln Journal: We dislike to think of William J. Bryan in the character of a plunger, of one who possesses wealth beyond the dreams of avarice, and at the age of sixty-five is adding to his accumulations rather than subtracting from them. He is of them. He pointed out the menace to civilization, the dark danger to popular government where large accumulation makes for social degeneration.

Yet, if reports be true, Mr. Bryan is a man of millions who income is almost violent in excess of his actual needs, while all about him countless thousands mourn man's inhumanity to man, of which the making of millionaires constitutes the unforgivable offense.

I see my friends in poor estate, All struggling like the deer; I grab off dollars while they wait, And what is my excuse? Ah, friends, the cash is not disbursed Because I saw the money first.

So wags the weary world along, A puzzle, so to speak; Some are aware who should be strong, Some strong we thought were weak.

The acts of many we condemn, And later, do the same as "them." The spirit wills to make us whole, First in our mind and soul— The flesh is weak and, bless your soul, We fall before the road.

Yeans we fall to rise again, Firm in our mind and soul; And in that case I saw again.

The Nervous Wreck

by E. J. Rath
©1924 - by NEA Service Inc.

Begin Here Today.
The "Nervous Wreck," an eccentric fellow, is driving Sally Morgan from her father's ranch to the station, when they run out of gasoline. At the point of a gun the Wreck takes five gallons from a passing car.

Later Charlie McSwen, foreman of a ranch along the route, hides the Wreck's car and forces Sally to act as a cook. Then they discover that Mr. Underwood, the owner of the ranch, was in the car they hid up. Sheriff Bob Wells, Sally's fiancé, is awaiting her at the country side for the "bandits" who held up Underwood. Chester Underwood, son of the owner, finds the hidden car and identifies it as being the one owned by the bandits who held them up. McSwen, fearful of losing a good cook, denies before Underwood that he knows how the car came to be on the ranch. The Wreck and Sally discuss making an escape in Underwood's big car.

At the Story.
"I could make him put the valves back," said the Wreck, "but I couldn't give him any good reason for it. I suppose I'd have to lock him up after he did it, to keep him from telling."
Sally dismissed the idea with a wave of her hand.
"If we can't find the wheel to our own car," she said, "what do you say about trying to make it on horses?"

"I'm not sure about you," she said. He began ruffling with familiar symptoms.
"Henry, there's no need for you to be sensitive about it. You're not supposed to be a good rider, any more than I'm a good cook. You haven't had the training. I think you'd made a beautiful rider in time, but you're a very bad one just now. You ought to agony every time you get on a horse."
"You haven't heard me squealing," he said, sharply.
"No, I haven't. You wouldn't squeal if you were dying. But so far as making a getaway goes it's not a question of squealing. It's a question of falling off."

"I've seen you fall off four times," she said, "three times in one day."
"But the second ride I only fell off once," he declared, stubbornly. "I showed improvement, didn't I?"
"You fall off any time the horse stops suddenly, Henry."
"All right, I admit it," he said. "But after we got started we're not going to do any stopping, are we? And after we've made the getaway, what difference does it make if I do fall off?"

"It was something about the stubbornness that secretly delighted her, but she did not mention it."
"Well, we may have to try it," she said. "If you really don't mind falling off."
"I don't mind."
They decided, if it came to a question of horses, that the Wreck would take Charley McSwen's big bay, while Sally would take the rangy animal that Jerome Underwood rode. "That's the two best horses on the ranch," she said, "with the exception of that ugly roan that one of the boys rides. But he's out riding fence somewhere so we can't get it. If we're going to steal horses, we want good ones."
"Sure. The best," affirmed the Wreck, speaking as a connoisseur. "We'll have to leave most of our baggage behind. Of course. We'll have to travel light and fast—as fast as we can, anyhow."

"Don't you worry about me. I'm all right so long as they keep going."
"And of course we can't start until it's dark and everybody is asleep."
"Suits me."
The vision of getting away, even though it was not beyond the rough planning stage, brightened her wonderfully. She became as cheerful as though she were already far on the road. Of course, she knew it would be an awful long haul, but he was so willing, even eager, to undergo the torture that it reconciled her to the prospect. Whatever he would do she knew that he would take it standing up, like a man—except, of course, when he happened to fall off.

The Wreck, despite his brave front, was not looking forward to the exploit with joy, even though it might bring discomfort to their enemies. He would have to look out for himself. He knew too well what they did to him. But with Sally determined to make an early departure, he was the last person to interpose any objection as to method. If it became necessary to crawl all the way to the Bar-M on hands and knees, or even to Chicago, he would have taken the same attitude. It was his business to see that Sally reached her destination, whatever it was, and he proposed to attend to it.
"I'll put up all the grub that we can carry," said Sally. "That'll be more important than spare clothes. If we'll have mostly sandwiches, I'm afraid. What kind do you like?"
"Any kind."
"But you must have some preference."
"I'm not particular."
She beamed at him, and he did not know why.
"You're not fussy about your cooking, are you, Henry?"
"Not that I know of."
"It's not the main thing in your life, is it?"
"No."
"And if you were marrying a girl that isn't the first thing you'd think about?"
"What in thunder was she driving at, he wondered? Was she making fun of him? He was not marrying cooks or anybody else. Why couldn't she let him alone?"
"No; I wouldn't think about it at all," he answered, rather stupidly. "Would I be supposed to?"
She laughed without restraint; he was such a queer, awkward person.
"No; it would be rather nice not to think about it," she said. "But just the same, I'm going to put you up the nicest sandwiches I know how to make."
"All right. Anything at all."
"And I may even expect you to praise them."
"Sure," he will.

EXTRA GOOD HARNESS
There is a reliable harness man near you who sells H. B. Brand harness. He has probably sold it for years, knowing it's honest value. Made of finest leather by expert workmen. H. B. Brand outwears and outlasts ordinary harness. "Two" is the best horse on the ranch, she said, "with the exception of that ugly roan that one of the boys rides. But he's out riding fence somewhere so we can't get it. If we're going to steal horses, we want good ones."
"Sure. The best," affirmed the Wreck, speaking as a connoisseur. "We'll have to leave most of our not stand women, and he would never learn how.

"I guess I'll have another look for that wheel," he mumbled.
"All right. Good luck, old timer!" She watched him with a half-amused, half-puzzled look in her eyes. There was a hint of motherliness in the smile on her lips; but it was not all motherliness, either.
The Wreck was making another search of the outbuildings, squinting through his spectacles at places where the wheel might possibly be.

He had looked in all the likely places, so far as he could remember; now he tried looking in the unlikely ones. The part that puzzled him most was his patience and lack of temper. Ordinarily, he ought to have been fuming, with his nerves raw and his muscles twitching with irritation. But a stolid mood seemed to have settled upon him, and he continued his task with a phlegmatic calm that astonished him.

He saw Chester Underwood emerging from the shed where the silver stood on its crutch, but took no notice of him. There was nothing that Chester could contribute in the way of information, and he felt that it was politic to let him alone. The more he searched the more probable it seemed that he would ride away on Charley McSwen's horse. He would not allow the small matter of a bet to detain him, although he would have found pleasure in tripping over the foreman of the Underwood ranch.

Sally informed him at lunch time that the sandwiches had been made and put away, and that she hoped he would not complain about them. He merely shrugged. She also told him that she was going for a little ride in the afternoon with Chester. He shrugged again, but there was a scowl that went with it.
She did—He saw them ride away towards the hills, and then spent a part of a miserable afternoon in further quest for the missing wheel. It was none of his business, of course, but it did not seem to him that a girl who was engaged to the sheriff, or anybody else, ought to be galloping over the range with any young man who happened to come along.

The afternoon of Jerome Underwood was equally unpleasant. He wanted to get hold of Bob Wells and acquaint him with discoveries, but the sheriff was somewhere on the road and could not be reached by telephone. It seemed to Underwood that the whole system of suppressing crime was unnecessarily primitive. He saw the situation entirely in terms of New York—the expected metropolitan scene. He fumed and expostulated, and he shot grim fancies at Charley McSwen, who maintained his calm, although he began to be sorry that he had ever bothered himself about obtaining an emergency cook.

Sally came back from her ride, flushed and chagrined. She told Chester that it had been delightful, every foot of the way, even saying it in the presence of the Wreck, who happened to be in the vicinity of the corral, apparently still looking for an essential part of his fiver.
Back in the kitchen again, she became serious and wordless. She waited awhile for Henry Williams; she had something to say. But the Wreck was evidently minded to keep aloof. He did not appear until after she had sent Timothy to find him, with a message that she wanted to talk to him. He came into the kitchen with a sullen look on his face and without a word, began putting on his apron, grimly resigned to the performance of at least one more hateful task.

"Never mind the apron yet," she said. "There's something more important."
He waited for the explanation.
"We may not have to ride horses," she whispered, after a cautious glance

McCORMICK-DEERING Triple Power Tractors

Now Ready to Demonstrate to You at Our Place of Business

There has been constant improvement in tractors since the first ones were built about twenty years ago. One of the most important improvements is the power take-off which delivers power direct to the pulled machine. It was originated on the McCormick-Deering tractors and has a positive drive and is thoroughly enclosed. The McCormick-Deering is the tractor with the most uses because it has three ways of delivering power: First, on the drawbar; second, on the belt pulley; third, on the power take-off.

Oil Air Cleaner Insures Clean Air.
It is very important that the air which enters the cylinders be free from dust and dirt. This oil air cleaner is very efficient in removing the dust and dirt from the air. The oil cup is located at the bottom and is held by a wire bail, which makes it possible readily to remove it for cleaning or for renewing the oil supply. The filter is composed of fine drawn annealed wire, crimped and matted in place. There is over a mile of wire in the cleaner, which being covered with a film of oil, provides a better surface for collecting dust. Waste oil from the engine crankcase is satisfactory for this use.

Replaceable Cylinders

The cylinders we all know must stand the most wear. The cylinders of these engines are cast separately of hard, close-grained iron, which takes a high polish and wears longer than the ordinary engine cylinder. If for any reason a cylinder should become scored or worn, a new one can be put in place easily and quickly on the farm with a minimum loss of time and with very small cost when compared with the expense of reborng, which is necessary on most other tractors. The practical man sees to it that his tractor has replaceable cylinders.

Lifelong Guarantees

To show the complete confidence which the International Harvester company has in the heavy-duty two-bearing crankshaft and efficient crankshaft ball bearings, every purchaser of a McCormick-Deering tractor is given a warranty printed below. It is without doubt the most liberal and far-reaching warranty of its kind ever made in the history of the automotive industry. See that the tractor you select has a guaranteed crankshaft and bearings. READ THE WARRANTY GIVEN BELOW:

Special Tractor Warranty.

The seller agrees to replace free the two-bearing crankshaft in any 10-20 or 15-30 McCormick-Deering tractor, should it break during the life of the tractor, provided the broken parts are promptly returned to the factory or one of its branch houses. Further, the seller agrees to replace free any crankshaft ballbearing in the 10-20 or 15-30 McCormick-Deering tractor which may break, wear out or burn out during the life of the tractor, provided that the defective ballbearing is promptly returned to the factory or one of the branch houses.
