

New Postal Rates
Effective April 15

C. A. Berry, Wayne postmaster, reports following new postal rates effective April 15:

First class mail: No change except post cards (private mailing except on parcels) will be five cents each. Government postal cards remain the same as heretofore, one cent.

Second class mail, newspapers: Transit rate for eight ounces or less will be two cents for each two ounces or fraction thereof. Over eight ounces will be regular parcel post rate.

Third class: Includes all matter weighing eight ounces or less except first class matter and regular second class publications. The rate will be one and one-half cents for each two ounces or fraction thereof. Special rate of one cent for two ounces or fraction thereof for books, seeds, books, cuttings, actions and plants up to and including eight ounces. The rate will be the same as before plus a service charge of one cent for two ounces or fraction thereof for parcels originating on rural routes for which no service charge will be made. Upon payment of an additional fee of two cents, parcels will be given "Special Handling." That is they will be handled as fast as first class mail. No extra charge will be plainly indorsed by sender, "Special Handling." This does not mean special delivery.

Special delivery rates will be the same for articles under two pounds. Rates from two pounds to ten pounds will be fifteen cents and over 15 pounds twenty cents.

Insurance fees: Not over 55, 5 cents; not over $25, 8 cents; not over $50, 10 cents; not over $100, 25 cents.

Registry fees: Values up to $50, 15 cents; value up to $100, 20 cents. A fee of three cents will be charged for receipt for registered or insured mail.

Money order fees range from 5 cents for orders up to $2.50 to 22 cents on order from $50 to $100.

Changes in Nebraska Laws of School

Lincoln, Neb., April 8.—Seven changes given a chance to be of greater service to this and surrounding communities, see people take advantage of it as I have done. It is a boon to sick people as I was found out by my joy—I say these things from a heart that swells with gratitude over the saving of my joy—L. A. Fenske.

Under a house bill presented by Johnson, of Omaha, a 50 per cent vote, instead of 51 per cent, is necessary to form new school districts. The petition requirement also was increased from one-third to one-half of the legal voters of a district.

The legislature rejected two other school bills that it approved, among the discarded measures being one requiring display of the federal constitution in all public schools, and one requiring study of the ten commandments in all schoolrooms.

Ministers Meet In Wayne On Monday

The regular meeting of the northeast Nebraska ministerial association was held at the Baptist church in Wayne Monday morning. Peter O'Connell of Winfield, read a paper on "We Would Do It Better as a Minister." Discussion followed. Those present were: Rev. L. B. Keedler of W. O. Jones, W. V. Hull and Rev. W. C. Jensen of Sarroll, Rev. H. C. Seidel of Laurel, Rev. W. C. Powell of Laurel, Rev. S. E. Yemm and Rev. H. M. Ten of Wakefield and Rev. Francis K. Allen and Rev. John Grant Slick of Wayne.

Emil Lambrecht Has Three Freak Pigs

Emil Lambrecht of northwest of Winfield, his three freak pigs at his farm. Two of them are six-legged and the other is a morphoid. One of the six-legged pigs was born last year and now weighs 350 pounds. This one and the one born this year are alike in having two extra legs attached to the front legs. On each of the two fore legs are united with the extra legs as far as the joint and from each joint two legs grow. Both animals are healthy. The morphoid has two kinds of legs, those that are bent inward and those that are bent outward at the end.

Easter Morn
By Bill Cochran

"I said the fuzzy-wuzzy bunny to the clumsy wedding duck, ' Aren't you the fattest little duck I ever seen?' 'Absolutely,' quacked the ducking, 'and I feel that I'm in luck. You'll help to spread the Easter morning cheer, so will I help you and your fuzzy little nest, 'and then they all went quiet as a mouse. 'So they were married, as you surely might have guessed, 'To return the compliment and love of the house."

"I said a happy little chaplin, as he snuggled on the floor, 'Ooee, the Easter bunny sure has brought us a fine surprise, 'and his little sister married a girl had never smiled before, 'and a lot of hidden corners come the colored eggs and such. 'And a day of cheer and happiness was born, 'and Walter Master Easter Bunny's gifts are quite or are much, 'They bring the proper spirit Easter morn!"

It is worth just as much as, or even more than, the figure paid some months ago when it reached its high figure. It is simple enough to understand. No wheat whatever has been produced anywhere in the world since the harvest of last fall. Meanwhile vast quantities of the grain have been consumed. And even when one is forced to admit that the value of wheat may decline in a degree with the passing of every day which brings the next harvest closer, the necessity of a foodstuff of this kind operates to remove that element of time as having an influence on the market.

The speculators in Chicago have disturbed the wheat market considerably in the last few weeks. The disturbance, however, had no noticeable effect on the farmers, who are to grade the grain. The major portion of the crop had been sold at increased prices months before, with the greater part of the surplus exported. The farmer will not worry about wheat prices, particularly if he has no wheat to sell.

Consequently, as the speculators manipulate market prices to serve their ends of gambling in grain they do not impress business generally with their activities.

Mr. Hoover goes on to announce that reports from every industrial and commercial activity encourage him to believe that business generally will improve.

buying is continuing at a good rate, reflecting, of course, by the volume of orders and the quality of the goods, general prosperity. Merchants are not overstocked, nor is there a shortage of goods. These two facts are indicative of a healthy business situation directly under the influence of the law of supply and demand. The country's buying power is being maintained evenly with no menace of an unfavorable reaction anywhere. In addition, employment continues good.

Car loadings are topping last year's figures. The weekly average for the first quarter of 1924 was $81,829 cars. In the week ending March 28 there were 92,414 cars loaded. The railroad operations last year made a record for the volume of goods hauled. It is fully expected that a new record will be made this year. Another surprising announcement from the commerce department is that the country's construction for this year will exceed that of 1924. The contracts are running far ahead up to this time, with expansion in all lines extending throughout the country.

Meanwhile the agricultural department experts declare that farming promises better results now than in five years or more. Farmers everywhere have been encouraged in the hope that their period of depression actually has ended. Returning strength in livestock prices practically would iron out the worst inequality now suffered by agriculturists, and this applies for the most part to cattle. Hogs have been recovering rapidly. Cattle represent practically the only farm surplus in the country.

Lawn Mowers

It will soon be time to mow the lawn again. If you are not already equipped with a good mower, we suggest you permit us to demonstrate our mowers to you. We give a season's free service with every mower we sell. This service consists of keeping the mower in proper adjustment—a very necessary thing to do if the mower is kept at its best. Keeping a lawn mower well repaired along with the lower bed plate blade eliminates better than 50 per cent of the necessity of having the mower sharpened.

Our Prices Range from $7.50 to $25.00.

HERRICK
The Aristocrat of Refrigerators

Perfect refrigeration depends as much upon dryness as it does upon coldness. A refrigerator may be cold almost to the freezing point and yet fail to keep food for a reasonable length of time. Such a refrigerator will be found to be very inefficient. For this it will become mouldy and tainted. The lining will require much cleaning. Dry air circulation prevents moisture, mould, taint and decay.

The Herrick system of forced purified dry air circulation is based on the fundamental law that cold air is heavy and always descends. The Herrick refrigerator is designed so that cold air drops from the ice chamber to the bottom of the refrigerator, becoming slightly warmer as it drops. From there it is forced, by the cold air above it, over to the other side and up into the ice chamber again. Here it is cooled and then drops again, continuing the circuit indefinitely.

As the air passes upward in the food chamber it carries with it all free odors until it reaches the ice. Here the odors are absorbed by the ice in the process of condensation and carried off through the draining system.

This dry air circulation prevents formation of moisture. The walls of a Herrick are always dry. There is no interchange of flavors—no conflicting currents of warm and cold air.

The Herrick refrigerator produces a dry cold by means of circulation. It manifests no dampness.

Our Prices on the Various makes of Refrigerators Vary from $28.50 to $58.50.

Miss Margaret Owens remained to attend business school. The Way of the World. (Dr. A. L. Bixby.) At first when I heard it I thought it a joke. That millions now living are never to croak; But so much there is that nobody may know. Until he finds out—do you think it is so? For scores of years, since creation's first dawn The millions have come and the millions have gone, The sea—a vast—and the land is a grave. The earth ever claiming the dust that she gave. Men come as a flash, and as swiftly depart, The cheerful and gay, and the broken of heart. Their voices resound for a season, and then The silence—the speakers speak never again.

AHERN'S

Cost of Electricity to Wayne Consumers

Commenting on an editorial paragraph in the Herald, calling attention to rates for electricity at York, and suggesting a reduction in rates here, the Geneva Signal says:

The electric plant and service are entirely owned and operated by the city of Wayne. It is a fair guess that the improvements to the Herald speak of so hopefully will never be completed sufficiently to permit the rates to be cut to the point to which the Nebraska Gas & Electric Co. has cut them at Geneva, York, Aurora and all similar towns in its territory. It gives no service in the Wayne territory.

That is an old story, the one about rates that are to be cut as soon as improvements on a municipally owned plant are completed. Every new mayor and council discover many errors to correct and much equipment to be changed. By the time they get these things done a new mayor and council appoint a new electrician and whatever the boss is called, and he has a lot of changes to make. And so they go around in a circle. This is the well known history of a great majority of municipally owned electrical installations. It is only now and then that a municipal plant comes somewhere near to living up to its promises made when the bonds were voted.

The more common rule is for municipal plants to deteriorate so fast in spite of high rates that it is necessary to put out a new bond issue to buy new equipment to take the place of the old and obsolete. Every casual newspaper reader knows this fact.

"We learn from the Herald's article that the initial electric rate being charged by the municipality of Wayne to its customers is more than 10 cents but the Herald does not say how much more.... That would have been interesting.

"When Porter Sloan was in Kansas City with his cattle shipment recently he had an opportunity to learn something about the electric rates being charged in that metropolitan city, where current is produced in great volume, and he was surprised to learn that the initial charge for current is exactly the same as the new rate in Geneva, 7 1/2 cents. Unless the city authorities can show a strong probability that municipal ownership and operation would cut electric rates in Geneva it would be unwise to venture the addition of $40,000 to our present bond debt."

Here are some facts about the service in Wayne: Rates charged are: First 30 k. w. h., 75 cents; next 100 k. w. h., 13 cents; next 200 k. w. h., 10 cents; over 300 k. w. h., 8 cents. A discount of ten per cent is allowed on all light bills paid before the tenth of each month. Power rates: First 100 k. w. h., 8 cents; over 100 and less than 500 k. w. h., 6 cents; over 500 k. w. h., 4 cents. Charge for gas is 4 1/2 cents regardless of the quantity used.

For ten months from May 1, 1924, until March 1, 1925, the average earnings amounted to these figures: Light, $25,452.89; power, $9,969.02; heat, $3,284.27; water, $5,743.51; total, $34,449.69. We do not have the figures to show the operating cost for the past ten months, but the total cost for the year 1923-1924 was $31,645.7. The net earnings for that year were figured at $14,685.53. During the past year a sum somewhat exceeding $15,000 has been paid on permanent improvements, including $11,187.11 on a new unit and $2,500 for waterworks extensions.

During the year from May 1, 1923, to May 1, 1924, a six-mill levy produced $4,906.47 for the electric plant. During the past year the levy was cut in two. The cost of lighting streets was figured at $5,164.64; maintaining hydrants, $2,300; lighting city hall, $312.08; lighting library, $120. The cost of producing electricity at the head works figured in February, 1925, at $3.61 per 100 k. w. h.

The above are a few facts under municipal ownership and operation. Friends of corporation ownership, such as prevails at Geneva, York and a long string of other towns, point to lower rates as justification. Friends of municipal ownership point to street lighting and other free service as ground for favor.

Declamatory Contest Is Held on Thursday

In the sub-district declamatory contest held last Thursday evening at the Wayne State Teachers College, auditorium Dorothy Green and Lillian Erickson of Wakefield, won first honors in the oratorical and humorous and dramatic and Andia Stuber of Wakefield won first in the dramatic class Genevieve Wright of Wayne was second in the oratorical class, Ruth Anderson of Wakefield second in the dramatic class and Frederick Berry of Wayne second in the humorous class. Eva Richardson of Tilden was the only contestant in the extemporaneous speaking and she received the honors in this work. Mr. Erickson of Lincoln was Judge.

The district contest for the winners in each of the eleven sub-district programs, will be held in Wayne on April 17. Mr. Mianer of Omaha and Miss Alice Howell of Lincoln will be judges at this time and the winners in the four groups will go to Lincoln for the state competition. It is thought about forty-four will be here for the district contest. Supt. W. S. Cook of West Point, has charge of the contest. The contest was conducted by C. C. Jacobson of Wayne made arrangements for the program last Thursday. Medals will be awarded in the district contest.

In the oratorical group speakers were Dorothy Green of Wakefield, Everett Robbins of Sholes and Genevieve Wright of Wayne. Richard and Annabel Hillier of Winside, Mazie Mitchell of Carroll and Audis Surber of Wayne. The humorous reading was given by Eugene Richardson of Wayne, Lillian Erickson of Wakefield, Mabel Lewis of Winside, Alice Robbins of Sholes, and Frances Whitcomb of Carroll. Eugene Richardson of Tilden was the only representative in the extemporaneous class.

The Waica contestants, were in Lincoln for the program here Thursday but because of a misunderstanding in the date they came Friday, thinking the contest was that evening. They received permission to go to Hartington the same day that comes in that elimination program and Byron Johnson took first honors in the oratorical class. Eugene Richardson in the dramatic class and Vivian Tunberg in the humorous class took second and third honors. Mrs. Larson accompanied the students from Wayne to Hartington and back here Friday evening.

Large Chorus Gives Messiah at Fremont

"The Messiah," presented by a chorus of 250 voices and accompanied by an orchestra, pipe organ and piano, was enjoyed by 1,800 people last Thursday evening at the new gymnasium at Midland college in Fremont. Those from Wayne who attended were: Rev. H. A. Teckhaus, Rev. Coy L. Stager, William Kugler, Peter Henkel, Miss Ida Hinrichs, Miss Rose and Miss Amelia Kugler. The number was the closing song of a three-day music festival, the first sponsored by the school. It is planned that the festival be held annually. Students and some other talent took part in "The Messiah," which was directed by Mr. Jones, supervisor of music at Midland. The program lasted for three hours and those from here who were present felt that it was one of the best musical numbers ever heard.

R. W. Haller Weds Viva Carr Tuesday

Mr. R. W. Haller, son of Mr. and Mrs. G. G. A big horned owl was caught on Tuesday by Sam McKinley and Warren Beller. The owl was shut up in a room over night with the family cat. The next morning the cat was on the inside of the owl, having been eaten for breakfast.
We heard a gentleman who has had much experience in the mining business, state that he believed that within a few years, coal in paying quantities and of good quality would be mined in this country. Also that at several places near the river, he thought that gold or silver would be found at a depth of not to exceed sixty feet. We hope this is true and shall ardently desire to see the auspicious day arrive when this locality is found to be one of minerals, mines and mining.
One of Father Martin's admirable heroines in his novel "The Conflict, love or money" has recently died. Her death was decided by the coroner's jury, was broken by a heavy combination of love, brandy and a natural predisposition of the pericardium to explode whenever disappointed hopes or other causes occurred. Fortunately there are several other heroines in the tale, who, to use the language of Daniel Webster, "sint dead yet," and we hope they will continue to live and shed an honorable lustre on the esteemed and talented author of their being.

The BULL'S EYE
Editor and General Manager WILL ROGERS
EVERYWHERE you go everybody is figuring out a Cross Word Puzzle. Nobody is working or even exercising. America will lose the next War but win the next Puzzle Contest. It's the greatest craze that hit this country since Prohibition. People say to me, "Why Will, you don't understand, it is an Education, it learns you more ways to say one word." If you know one way to say a word, what do you need to know any more? Nobody is going to give you anything for nothing. It don't care how many ways you ask for it. Our nation has never been so smart on words. We might lack ideas sometime but never words. This puzzle has done one thing, it has learned us which is Horizontal, and which is Vertical. But a Cross Word Puzzle is not new. Railroad Time Tables have been out for years. Smoke Bull Durham while working one, that is, if you want to, if you don't, why smoke wherever you want to.

The NERVOUS WRECK

by E. J. Rath
©1924 - by N.E.A. Service Inc.

Begin Here Today.

The "Nervous Wreck," an eccentric young easterner, is driving Sally Morgan from her father's ranch to the station when they run out of gasoline. At the point of a gun the Wreck takes five gallons from a passing car.

Later Charlie McSwen, foreman of a ranch along the route, hides the Wreck's car, takes off a wheel, and forces Sally to act as ranch cook. Then they discover that Mr. Underwood, the owner of the ranch, was in the car when he was shot. Sheriff Rich Wells, Sally's fiancé, is unwittingly searching the countryside for the "bandit" who held up Underwood. Chester Underwood's son finds the hidden car on the ranch. McSwen pretends not to know how it came to be there. Sally and the Wreck have decided to make an escape on horseback. But now Sally says, "We may not have to ride horses, after all."

Now Go on with the Story.

"Halt!"

"Chester has found the wheel!"

He merely stared.

"I know he has something on his mind," she said. "That's the main reason I went for a ride. He was all purged up with importance. He has the idea that he's going to put something over on the sheriff."

"Where's the wheel?" demanded the Wreck.

"He wouldn't tell me."

"Well, what did he tell you?"

"In the first place," said Sally, lowering her voice, she told me about his wonderful discovery of the silver, and all about what happened between his father and Charley McSwen. He's terribly proud of what he has done. He thinks he's a sort of detective. So, having found the car and stirred up a lot of excitement, he thought the next thing to do was to find the wheel. He told me that he found it inside of ten minutes."

The Wreck had a twinge of chagrin. He had spent whole hours on the job, without obtaining so much as a trace.

"Of course," added Sally. "It was just to show that I was especially interested. I wasn't going to stir up any suspicion. I got just as interested as I could get, but I didn't say any more. I told him I thought he was wonderfully clever, and I even asked him where he found the wheel. But he said he would like to tell anybody until he caught the hold-up gang—not even his father. He has an idea that if he doesn't say anything about the wheel it will help him to find the people who own it."

The Wreck considered the information.

"Anything else?" he asked.

"Nothing else, except—" She hesitated.

"What?"

"Well, I thought if Chester knew where the wheel was, that perhaps you could find out, too."

That was an interchange of glances.

"I think I got you," said the Wreck.

"I think you do, Henry."

"Much obliged."

"But not till after supper," she warned him. "We've got to wait for dark. And of course, I'll help any way I can."

So Chester Underwood had discovered the wheel, had he? The Wreck began to study the situation, and he became absorbed in it.

"It was all right for me to go riding, wasn't it?" interrupted Sally.

"He came out of his reverie and looked at her as if he did not get the point."

"Of right?" he echoed. "Why not? I guess anything you do is all right, isn't it?"

"It all depends, Henry Williams. You're so awfully queer."

CHAPTER XVII
Recklessly Thorough.

It was after dark when the Wreck began his riding. He got up out of the bunk-house and carried it up to the shed where the filver stood. He tossed the grip into the car and placed an unlighted lantern where he could easily find it. Then he walked back to the kitchen. Sally was there, pretending to be busy, but her mind was not on her work.

"Go up-stairs and throw your grips out of the window," he said. "I'll be waiting for you."

"You've been thinking," said Sally. "Suppose he won't tell?"

"He will. But I want your gun."

"You've got to be careful, Henry. It'll be careful!"

She saw that his mood seemed to be wholly calm, and it reassured her.

"The gun will be in the small bag," she said, as she went out of the kitchen.

But before she tossed her grips out of the window, down into the shadow where the Wreck stood, she took the precaution of emptying the cylinder of the six-shooter. She was thinking less about the safety of Chester Underwood than she was of the welfare of the Wreck.

"He's been lying in the shadow, picked up the grips as they thudded on the ground and hastened away in the direction of the shed. He had several things to do before he was ready to recover the missing front wheel. That would be the final deal, he decided. It was not as easy as it seemed. Doubt that he would find what he sought."

He went over to the shed where the big Underwood car was kept and found a couple of five-gallon cans. Two big metal drums, filled with gasoline, stood outside, and a hemisphere of moon lighting in the dense sign of the Wreck warned him not to touch it.

"You give me a fair chance to fight and I'll show you," he said.

"I'm not fighting tonight. Fifteen seconds gone. Come through."

Chester was not a coward, but he knew when the cards were against him.

"Time's up," said the Wreck, significantly. "Now!"

Chester sighed, and his figure sagged.

"It's in the back of the car," he said.
