At each emergency landing field, spaced 25 miles apart along the route, there is a telephone which can be connected with long distance lines. If a pilot is forced to land, he can communicate immediately with headquarters, or if a sudden storm is impending, the warning can be telephoned to emergency field superintendents who then signal the pilot to land. A writer suggests that no good thing for the complexion is to put it back early.

Sometimes people say things they don't think, and often think things they don't say, while some others frequently just neither think nor say.

In one mail this week we did not receive one request for free publicity, and another basket opened its sections month in vain for the first time in many months.

We have been advised by custom publishers that a new work entitled "Summering, Its Cause and Cure," will be found in the Wayne library. We don't know of any heretofore who either or summer perceptibly except on the first of the month when bills come in, but if there are any so afflicted chronically, we would suggest that they consult this new work and get at the cause and effect a cure.

The Norfolk Daily News reflects that the railroads are large users of gasoline, and that they have to contribute to the tax fund which is used to build highways, and thus build up competition in transportation. We don't know how the railroads feel, but we know how the average individual feels. He has to see a share of his earnings go in strict opposition to his business. While we are all in favor of improved highways, and must have them to meet modern conditions and demands, it does look as though the railroads were somewhat in the position of a man who is forced to officiate at his own funeral.

in advance. With growing use of trucks and automobiles, doubtless the railroads will not be satisfied until transportation for pay on the highways is taxed and required to guarantee responsibility.

The Omaha Bar association listened to a speech by Rabbi Frederick Cohn recently, and the members were told that character was indispensable to success. He made it plain that ambition and brains were necessary, but that they must have high and laudable purpose. Whether a man belongs to the legal profession or to some other profession, he is soon found out if he resorts to sly tricks, and he loses confidence that is essential to success. He must be on the square to win popular respect and get far in his chosen work.

You ought to turn down a peddler who floats in from the outside, unless he can convince you beyond doubt he can give you a better deal than your home man. You ought to give the local dealer a chance to make comparison of qualities, prices and service. The itinerant peddler, or to some interest in your future. He will be gone tomorrow. The home dealer is here to make good any mistakes. He is here to help local enterprises, to contribute to value-building improvements, to congratulate you over your successes and sympathize with you in your sorrows. A helpful neighbor in business ought to be given the opportunity to compete with the transient. It should not take much courage to tell a peddler you will consult your home dealer first.

An advertising scheme or a canvass for donations, worked by strangers in the business district, ought to be required to secure in advance the endorsement of a committee of the Greater Wayne club. Sometimes a scheme of little or no merit is imposed on the business district in the name of a church or other organization, and is supported in the belief that a worthy local institution whose influence is the propelling force, is to be chiefly benefited, whereas the main beneficiary is the stranger who is the originator and promoter. So much is asked from business men in the way of contributions that they ought to have the assistance of an investigating committee in order to avoid the burden of giving unwisely. People are glad to help worthy local organizations, but they do not relish the idea of giving indiscriminately and unwittingly, with no assurance that their generosity will not be of greater benefit to the stranger than to the cause which is espoused. Introduction of any new proposition, contemplating popular aid, first ought to secure the endorsement of a committee. Any cause seeking patronage or charity, should first be recommended to a committee. The course would enable more intelligent contributing, and would protect the business district against individual expense and at the same time make something for a desirable enterprise or worthy charity comparatively easy.

MOTHER'S DAY.

Recurrence of Mother's day stimulates an already deep feeling of esteem. Departed mother is a happy and inspiring recollection; living, she is an object of warmest esteem and tenderest solicitude. If normal mother is always the same. She never tires of doing generous deeds. No matter how bad and worthless her descendant may have become, she is ever ready with demonstrations of sympathy and aid. And if her descendant is normal, he will do his utmost to lighten her burdens and smooth her pathway.

Mother love is one of the strongest forces in the world, and if it were heeded, as it should be, society would be freed of many of its evils and injustices.

Though not every person is given to much demonstration, each is uplifted and sustained by remembrance of his mother. More and more he should try hard to do and say things that would comfort and please her, whether she be living or departed. No one grows so old or feeble that he does not test profoundest love for the one who rocked his cradle and watched over him when he was sick and who counseled and encouraged him through all the succeeding years.

SUCCESS.

A speaker before a group of college students is quoted as saying this: "There are about 800 young men here, too bad that they will amount to anything." What does he mean? Does he mean that only one out of one hundred will be successful? If so, what does he call success?

If the speaker measures success by the number of dollars accumulated, and the amount of money he has amassed high enough, he may be correct in his figures. But we would not say that piling up great material wealth is a constructive proof of success. Many who give their families advantages of education and home culture and comfort, besides helping and enriching the lives of others, should be considered successful even if they have not laid away material fortunes. The man who has been so successful in dealing with his dependents and others, seeking no advantage that would oppress and hurt instead of help, is successful even if he has not built up a great estate in lands and chattels.

Many people cannot be judged because all the facts are not known. Their unknown service to others costs them much that otherwise might be saved. They carry burdens and discharge obligations of which the world is ignorant. If their apparent material holdings have not increased as fast as a superficial view would say they would, there is worthy, concealed reason that means more real success than a niggardly policy of mere financial increment.

Success involves money, but even more essentially, it involves character and service. The material and spiritual combine in possibilities for great service, and when it is harnessed in the evolution of a useful career by the absence of the other. This does not mean that a great fortune must be gathered to one's credit in order to be successful.

If the speaker who addressed the college students, means that only one in one hundred will be successful, as we would interpret success—apart from amassing large material wealth—we think he is mistaken, and that he should guess again, which is a word of gloom do not so much beset him.

RAQUEL MELLER

Al Paris was at her feet, then repeating, calls upon the Savior to forgive her. Just a song it was to Raquel Meller. A bit of music and dancing, and she did it well, with never a thought that she would be called upon to act out the part in real life. Church authorities, learning of the song, sent representatives to hear it. They were shocked at what they considered a mockery of religious sentiment, and they warned the singer that she must cease singing.

Miss Meller failed to comply with their request. She received a warning that the pope, hearing of her song, was displeased to have the church profaned on the vaudeville stage. She then Raquel Meller canceled her contracts and hurried to Rome to promise that she would never again sing a sacrilegious song. "No matter what fine I have to pay, I must go and ask forgiveness," she said.

BUILT OF VIRGINIA STONE, THE BUILDING HAS STOOD FOR 100 YEARS. SENATOR DALE, STATING.

The capitol, built of rotten stone, is falling to pieces. It is now being held together by patches of concrete. This is the startling disclosure of Senator Porter H. Dale of Vermont. He conjures up a picture of the "great, gray dome," its supporting walls and columns crumbling away, crashing to the ground! "The central building of the capitol," he said, "is constructed of Virginia sandstone. It is rotten stone. It is chipping and crumbling away. Every year it is soaked with rain, to hold it together. Otherwise it would fall to pieces. 300 FEET HIGH "But despite the manifold paint coats, anyone can see the holes where the stone has soaked away. "To verify this, it is only necessary for one to look at the walls behind the magnificent east portico. "The capitol is known for its more

NEWTON S. HILL AND HIS BEG WITH RUBBER-TIRED WHEELS.

DOWN but not out!

That's the motto of Newton S. Hill, Piqua, O. Hill has not been able to see up from his bed or even to raise his head from the pillow since Mar 27, 1912. He was put to bed, and he has remained there ever since. He was stricken with a peculiar form of rheumatism in 1912. He tried all the known remedies. None of them did him any good. His condition had grown so bad, and the doctor, after an examination, told him he would never walk again.

JOINTS PULLED FROM SOCKET.

His condition had grown so bad, and the doctor, after an examination, told him he would never walk again. He was stricken with a peculiar form of rheumatism in 1912. He tried all the known remedies. None of them did him any good. His condition had grown so bad, and the doctor, after an examination, told him he would never walk again.

of the finest examples of fortune since Job.

For, you see, Hill did not drop back upon charity for a living when he learned his fate.

He just called his wife, and together they faced the future with a determination to see it through on their own.

MAKES OWN LIVING

What could they do to make a living?

Disease had ruined Hill's body, but his mind was unimpaired, and Mrs. Hill could get about and also help.

So they opened up a magazine and newspaper subscription agency, and from their small home in Piqua they are doing fairly good business, and making a living.

Hill's bed is equipped with rubber-tired wheels, and when he had his wife attend any of his local concerns, she rolls the entire unit to the station, and places on the train.

There are familiar figures in Columbus, Cincinnati, and other Ohio cities.

Due to the fact that the schools will close on the next regular club day, the next meeting will be held Thursday, May 14, with Mrs. Clint Troutman.

Wait Hoffman, assisted by his father, Wm. Hoffman, spent the greater part of last week planting trees on the quarter of land belonging to Hoffmann Bros. About three hundred and fifty walnut trees were set out, and it makes a row along the entire west side of the farm, and a few on the north. Within a few years these trees will have grown enough to make a great change along that particular road. It is with great interest that this writer has noticed the changes made in Brenna during the past ten years. It is just such work as the above that contributes to the development of a country.

"Coming Through" at Crystal This Week

They said he eloped with her for her money. The girl's father even threatened to "get" him. Tom didn't blinch, and he came "coming through" in spite of them.

Never before has Melicham had such a role as that of Tom Blackford in the new picture, "Coming Through." A screen version of Jack Beben's mining novel, "Bed Rock," coming to the Crystal theater on Friday and Saturday of this week.

His father-in-law, the president of the concern, sends him down to Colton, the toughest of mining camps hoping that he may get a job through some "accident." Market Report

Furnished by Swanson, Gilmore & Walsh, Sioux City Stock Yards.

May 6.—Cattle receipts at the main markets of the country eased off the fore part of the week and a resulting measure of health was lent the trade-together with a moderate degree of strength on light and desirable steers in both the fat and feeding divisions. The 11 leaders reported about 12,000 less cattle the first half of the week, as compared to the corresponding period last week.

While eastern orders buyers and big local packers at practically all points, could not entirely conceal their urgency for good to choice light yearling material, they gave absolutely no indication of any relaxing of the concessions previously garnered on inferior and heavy heaves. At midweek the deal looked largely strong to 25 cents higher on good to choice yearlings, long yearlings, and handy-weights, while excessive weight heaves and inferior cattle of less value feature steady to as much as 25 cents lower.

In their search for choice light cattle packers are including yearling hinds fixed steers. Choice consignments hit tops this week at $11, while straight loads of yearling heaves frequently earned $10 and $10.25 on the fever market.

Kosher cows are coming through another week without being thrown off of the stable basis they have occupied some weeks. Choice heavy kosher cows are worth $8 to $8.50 now, as in the past.

In a general way the following quotations would like to see next morning in the current market:

Classes of fat cattle: Choice to prime yearlings from $11.25 to $12, good to choice from $10.25 to $11.25, fair to good from $9.25 to $10.25, ordinary to fair from $8.25 to $9.25, with low grade and undesirable lights, too plain for the dealers, from $5.50 to $7.00.

Heavy beefs cannot be gotten for $10.50, which makes choice to prime kinds worth from $10.25 to $10.50, good to choice from $9.25 to $10.25, fair to good from $8.25 to $9.25, with ordinary and plain prices down around $8.25, at which price some 1400 pounds actually sold this week.

Choice to prime yearling heifers are quoted from $10.25 to $10.75, good to choice from $9.50 to $10.25, fair to good from $8.50 to $9.50, and ordinary to fair, together with deshy heavy heifers, from $7.50 to $8.50.

Choice to ripe heavy cows figure from $8 to $8.50, good to choice from $7.50 to $8, fair to good from $6.75 to $7.50, ordinary to fair from $5.75 to $6.75, and low grade fleshy beefs to demand kinds from $4.25 to $5.50.

The demand in the stocker and feeder division continues to be all for the light and great cattle. Every rain increases the demand for thin steers averaging less than 750 pounds, such as will go into the pastures and grow. Heavy feeders are not wanted generally. The market on such kinds is constantly slow. Only specialties go above $70 per year, with really good kinds selling from $7 down.

Strictly choice green yearlings can at least be quoted to $8.50 for a summertime good kind, with others from $7 to $8, ordinary to fair from $6 to $7, common to ordinary from $5 to $6 and trash down to $4 and under.

Rather than continue to put out a check to the hitherto declining tendency of the trade. But even the decrease in good kinds makes it a loose play and therefore it is logical to assume that packers will renew their bear campaign once the delivery estimate that expanded volume that has long been predicted for June. It still looks like a $10 deal for June.

Some increases in the sheep and hog markets this week underlined the top heavy position that values so abruptly assumed in the last two weeks.

In the face of the increasing demand for hogs, with public demands narrow values backed up around a half dollar the first half of the period. Wednesday shows weak lambs on the river at $15 and clippers to $13.

KEWPIE TWINS
Shoes for Children

Growing Feet Demand Good Shoes

Many children in Wayne have been raised in Kewpie Twin shoes and there are no blisters on their feet. Their feet have never been crowded—their arches have been held in place as nature intended and the bones of their little feet have been helped to form straight and true.

Between the ages of 2 and 9 the line sets in the bones of the child's foot. If the foot is bound up in ill-fitted shoes at this age, the bones are inclined to set that way—that is why properly shaped shoes like Kewpie Twins are so important.

The leathers used in them are of the finest and most flexible kind.

—Ahern's—

"Direct from the factory" is the slogan thought up by the house-to-house canvasser to make you feel that he can undersell your home merchant.

If you knew of the several middlemen's profits and also other expenses attached to house-to-house selling you would quickly see the impossibility of this statement.

Do you know about the state managers and district managers who get a share of your money?

Do you know about the expense of constantly hiring and training new salesmen which the house-to-house factories are able to do in the short time which most of their salesmen work for them?

Do you know about the great forces of bookkeepers, billers and packers required to handle the thousands of small orders of the house-to-house factory, all of whom you must help pay?

—Ahern's—

"Direct from the factory" sounds fine—it would be fine if it would work—just as it would be fine if the city folks could get a dozen eggs from our farmers whenever they wanted them. But in real practice it just won't work. Some one has to find the buyers and collect the money and pay the transportation and make good on the order. Our grandmothers tried buying of house to house canvassers and peddlers and gave it up as unsatisfactory. So will you.

Sunday being one of the first suitable days for that purpose, much corn was planted in this vicinity. We are sorry that the Sabbath was broken, but glad to have the corn put in.

On the whole, the wickedness and the benefits were perhaps a stand off, and, especially if there is a good crop, the recording angel will perhaps dry his tears over the matter and wipe out the charge of breaking the Sabbath.

Six years ago this spring, we stated in this paper that land in this county which was then finding a slow sale at $5 per acre would within six years sell for double that sum, or $10 per acre, and plenty of buyers at that price. Time has verified that prediction and much more than verified it. Land which then brought $5, has during the past year sold for from $10 to $30 per acre. Land along the Lehigh which could not find a purchaser at $25.00 per acre, is eagerly bought up at an advance of at least 500 per cent.

Exide BATTERIES

When is a battery cheap?

The price is only one—and the least one—of three things that tell whether a battery is a good bargain. More important considerations are: How long will it last and how few will be the repairs? One repair job may change the lowest-priced battery into the most costly.

The true way to put a value on your battery is to take the first cost, add the repair bills, and consider the length of time the battery lasts. Do this and you will find that an Exide Battery costs you less than any other per month and per year of service.

Now even the first cost of an Exide is low—with the quality as high as ever.

Horse Racing As Fair Attraction

As the Wayne County Fair association has under consideration the addition of horse racing to its list of fall attractions, a discussion of the subject elsewhere in the state will be of interest here. Following are excerpts from the York Republican and Fairway News.

Officers of the Hamilton County Agricultural society had a banquet a few days ago and the secretary announced that the organization would return to the old way of operating a fair, with horse racing a leading feature. York county will begin operating a publicly owned county fair next year and the experience of surrounding fair associations will be very valuable in determining what the people do want in the way of amusement. The Republican thinks the agricultural fair is going through a period of transition and it is not possible yet to say just what the people do want and what they do not. There is also the same question involved that engages every newspaper publisher about news. Shall the people have what they seem to want or shall they be given what they ought to have? If they are to have what they seem to flock to best of all, they will have races and carnivals; if they are to get what constructive boards think they ought to have, they will have exhibits and high class, clean entertainment. The York county fair will have one advantage—it will not have to be run for profit. It can try out its plans without fear of a jolt from the stockholders. And the editor confidently believes that it will find at the beginning, or at least soon after, that horse races are passe and only seem to be important in the business of running a fair because of past associations.—York Republican.

This is a subject that is being discussed in all its phases by fair boards all over the country. Of course it is a bit problematical as to just what the effect of horse racing is on the fair. The present fair board of Jefferson county has never had horse racing at its fall exhibits. A couple of years ago there was a strong effort made to add that feature, but there was such a difference of opinion among the promoters that it was finally abandoned. But the fair has been signally successful, both in the matter of attendance and financially. Consequently the adding of horse racing would increase the attendance, as would the adding of any other attraction, but there is a grave question whether it would not in a measure detract from the main purpose of the fair. The gate receipts would undoubtedly be larger, but the expense of the fair would perhaps be nearly doubled, as racing is an expensive feature, and it is questionable whether the additional expense would be justified. The racing feature is also a fruitful cause for much dissension and dissatisfaction, and so long as the exhibition can be rated as financially successful and beneficial to the stable interests of the county, it would hardly seem wise to make a change and include a feature that has no particular advantage aside from its entertainment feature.

Considering the financial end of the fair, when we increase the expense we increase the hazard from rainy weather and other causes which might cut down the attendance. And then again, racing is not what it once was. There are very few counties that have horses good enough to contend for the honors, and the same string of horses that race at nearly all the other fairs in the state are matched.

Every person familiar with the horses known before they start just which horse can win, and in order to make any money out of the enterprise there is a strong temptation among the handlers to "fix" a race, and it frequently happens that a string of tin horn gamblers travel over the state together for the sole and only purpose of fleecing the communities where they light, and there is nothing that kills real sport so quickly as the suspicion of dishonesty or a "fixed" contest.

There are so many angles to this horse racing at a county fair that it is well to consider it very carefully before we embark in it.—Fairbury News.

According to the air service officials, the flow of Arctic Ocean currents indicates there is land to be found. But even if this could prove not to be the case, they say, it would not be impossible to install air base equipment on the ice.

The voyage of the round-the-world flyers proves that airplanes can be successfully operated under the most extreme climatic conditions. Tests made in winter at northern Lake Michigan by army aviators using planes equipped with runners instead of wheels, showed that it is practical to land on snow or ice.

Those interested in the proposed North Pole air base declare, that when they come, said, should be already "on the ground."

THE most expensive motor, like the cheapest, only has the power which gasoline develops. The better the gasoline, the greater the power, mileage per gallon and motorizing satisfaction.

Red Crown—the balanced gasoline—is built to definite specifications. It has low boiling-point fractions to assure quick starts, and the valuable, power-developing fractions that burn just a bit more slowly and maintain pressure to the end of the piston stroke.

While Red Crown won't work miracles, it starts your motor promptly. It burns up so completely that little carbon accumulates and little unburned gasoline passes the piston rings to spoil the motor oil.

For economy that comes from running on a lean mixture, try Red Crown—the balanced gasoline. It is uniform and dependable wherever you buy it.

Nebraskans who owned the first automobiles, used Red Crown. Today thousands of Nebraska motorists always pull into the nearest Red Crown Service Station. Prater buried at Nohara. Neb. or is it some other soldier boy and is the young man who claims to be Prater, right in his contention? A vote taken at a meeting in the opera house showed that everyone present believed that Prater is alive and that the veterans' bureau is wrong in its contention that he is an impostor.

The meeting was held under the auspices of the American Legion post and James Garvie, of Nohara, was the emcee. Prater's brother made the main talk of the evening and told of many incidents and facts which go to prove that Prater is what he claims to be. He stated that the confession obtained from Prater in which he admitted that he was an impostor and that he was a Mexican named Arthur Lopez, was obtained after 15 hours of third degree.

Business

St. Louis City Journal. Leading industries throughout the country, in replying to more than 10,000 questions asked by the National Association of Manufacturers, indicate that they expect the best business this summer that has been experienced since the war. The prospects for an immediate improvement in general activity are described as healthier and on a sounder basis, with stability replacing hysteria and indecision.

Production at this time, according to the replies received by the association, is at a healthy flow, wages are high, employment is increasing, competition is keen, consumer's prices are lower and price variations are less severe than a year ago. This condition is expected to prevail for the next few months, which would see summer well advanced. With the momentum constantly increasing and with new efforts inspired by strengthening confidence, appreciable progress ought to be made in the next six months. By fall, business is expected to be moving more steadily and swiftly than for many years.

The volume of business is higher now than it was a year ago, according to 51 per cent of the industries in the association's survey. Some of these report that increases in volume go as high as 100 per cent. Thirty-seven per cent of the industries advise that the volume is about the same as it was last year. About 19 per cent of the businesses interviewed report a sluggishness general falling off. When an average is struck, however, it is seen that generally the economic situation is much better than it was a year ago.

Wholesale prices, it was revealed in the reports, have been reduced materially, some houses having cut figures down full 10 per cent. Cuts from 2 cents to 8 cents are common. This has reduced consumers' costs, which tells the story of generally lower prices which affect the cost of living. A stronger buying power has been produced as a result of the lower prices, it is advised in the association's resume of the reports. Also a more natural leveling of production demand has helped manufacturers to scale their prices downward to the consumer through the wholesaler and the retailer, despite the fact that wages have remained unchanged, or have advanced.

As to employment, it is the conclusion of the association's experts that there will be no slack season in production this summer. The great bulk of the industries are running to capacity, with 75 per cent of those reporting prepared to increase their pay rolls. Sixty-three per cent will operate with their present forces, leaving only 12 per cent making reductions, and these are declared to be seasonal. Attention also is called to the fact that 22 per cent of these plants have increased their wages over last year, that 70 per cent will go on with the present high wage scale and that only 8 per cent are making reductions. The survey, an annual spring analysis made by the association, has covered a wide field, with every industry and various related branches included in the reports.

The association infers from the reports received that much of the improvement has been due to the reductions in taxation. The lower tax rate, it is pointed out, has released vast amounts of capital for investment purposes, thus creating new enterprises, or has given businesses already established a chance for expansion. Another feature of the tax reduction aid to business is that consumers themselves, having been relieved of the heavier burden, are buying more freely, especially in lines usually described as luxuries. Incidentally, as the domestic business situation shows marked improvement, the return of several foreign governments to the gold standard is seen as an encouragement to American trade in all directions. Secretary of Commerce Hoover considers this improvement a boon to trade everywhere. Ninety per cent of the world's business, he says, is now stabilized.
