Wilbur Glenn Voliva, overseer of Zion City, is several lengths behind the most pronounced fundamentalist. He believes the earth is flat or nearly so, and that Columbus and others were wrong.

Since the Oregon law which sought to designate the kind of school children could attend, has been declared unconstitutional by the United States supreme court, it may be suspected that what will happen finally to the Tennessee law which proposes to regulate what teachers shall think and teach.

The boy and girl scout organizations are grounded in the right principles to encourage clean living and good character, and are wonderfully effective in laying the foundations for future citizenship. But more children should join the organizations and share in their benefits. Parents ought to encourage their children to do so.

Seeing a lot of players and endless scolding over the Wayne golf course, a hovering crowd, apparently envious of participants, and a crowd that quickly descended and picked up and carried off one of the little balls that figured in the match. The intruding crowd disappeared with its look beyond the vision of the witnesses, and it was managed to get it. Its insides will be torn by indignation that "will make it wish it had attended to its own business."

Cho Cho's health hits its twentieth year in Wayne county last Saturday night will have been heard and considered by old as well as young. People are not advised to eat or what not to eat unless they become sick and are placed under a doctor's care. Cho Cho's purpose is to develop healthy appetites and muscles and establish the master of diet to produce the best results. More talks like the one given by him on the occasion of the eighth week graduation exercises here would prove generally enlightening and helpful.

Dr. A. L. Bixby, Lincoln Journal's genial poet and philosopher, who is journeying in southern California, and contributing to the paper, writes the deflection of home folks. And plenty of snobs in his travels. He says he went into a costly hotel at Los Angeles and got along tolerably well until it leaked out that he had to work for a living. Then there was a change to colder weather and a cold from frost. But we would rather have Bixby's talent and big soul than all the "material" possessions "in" and "out" of it. It is with a sense of profound sense of humor is his surpassing power to separate the false from the true, taking sham by the wrist and stripping it of its thin veneer.

It seems that members of the American Legion have been considering the advisability of organizing a brass band previous to the suggestion made in last week's Herald, but had been hesitating on account of the funds that would be necessary for the purpose. A number of Legion members in this city met Tuesday evening and ascertained that a total of $700 might be made available for a band during the coming year, but that a large amount could be secured each year hence through an increased levy. It is believed local clubs or business institutions would cheerfully contribute and see that the band was well equipped and maintained. A band would be such a signal benefit to the community that there is no doubt that adequate support would be forthcoming.

Heat prostrations were happening in the east while it was snowing in the Blue Hills region. Nebraska was oscillating between the two extremes, sometimes a trifle over-heated, while at others brushed by the tail of a cold rain wave. The rainfall of the past week has been a wonderful stimulant to growing crops. But people do not agree as to the amount of rainfall. We heard a group of farmers talking about the weather Saturday night, and some contended that the rainfall was sufficient while others said more would help. As to the wind which prevailed with varying violence for several days, all agreed that it was "blowing. It is a fact that the wind can do a great amount of damage to the inhabitants thereof. But last year the weather was often worse than the last favorable variety this year and together conditions are quite as promising as could be expected.

It would be most worthy enterprise if some public service organization could develop a source or sources of employment for the unemployed men and students during the summer. Many of those who do not go to school in summer, do not relinquish these months but would like some definite, productive employment. Some others who attend school, summer or winter, would like to work part of the time. It would be most desirable to link up with advantages of education, opportunities for employment, that would accord profit as well as develop habits of industry. We wish Wayne could be completely responsive to the demand for employment, and it does to the desire for schooling.

EDUCATION

Speaking of the late commencement exercises of Wesleyan University, Bishop Francis John McConnell said there had rid the world of the fear of disease and had eliminated the probability of people starving to death, but it has not yet brought about a spirit of good will. He urged the development of better social relations among the high essentials of education.

Dr. George Edwin McLean of Washington, D. C., former chancellor of the University of Nebraska, speaking to the graduates of that institution last week, stressed the importance of education as a force for friendship and peace.

Superstition and intolerance thrive on ignorance. People with undeveloped powers of reasoning are more likely to see vaguely and to be influenced by judgment by selfish prejudice. A narrow vision tends to make people violent from impulses of mere hateful bias.

Education deepens thinking and broadens understanding, and if it is developed under wholesome influences, without sinister designs, it sharpens the intellect and has a liberating effect. It makes people more generous and sympathetic in considering one another. Rightly grounded, education develops the power of better social relations, half of tolerance and peace in every community and universally.

Both speakers are eminently right. It is to quicken the mind by clearing up the world with respect to its rival hatreds, and we need healthful education everywhere to stimulate higher mental activity and to encourage against ugly self-interest and against the possibility of a relentless war.

THE WORK OF THINKING.

Former Governor Samuel H. McElroy, in his Nebraska Farmer, quotes Thomas A. Edison as saying that "there is no expedient to which a man will not go to avoid the real work of thinking, and then says: "This human short-coming begins with childhood and continues through the stages of life. The difference between a good student and a poor one, or between success and failure, or between leaders and followers, is not in their hands, but in their content, or between a keen mind and a slothful one is the real labor of thinking."

Thinking is the hardest kind of work. People who do physical labor will must think in planning and calculating, and their mental exertion is more fatiguing than expenditure of bodily energy. People do not shrink from simple manual duties but often find it impossible to keep their heads from aching with dread of such tasks as solving a perplexing problem, threading together intricate details or concentrating on a plan, the outcome of which means going forward or backward.

It says vitality to get down to brass tacks and think out a difficult question. It is hard work to analyze facts and determine the best course to pursue.

No matter what one is engaged in, he must often employ his mind vigorously and earnestly if he would make any considerable success. He can't drag around, shy from every proposition that involves tireless thought, postpone every mental task, and expect to get far.

SCIENCE AND CHRISTIANITY.

T. W. McCullough, editor of the Omaha Bee, makes a rational contribution to the discussion of evolution in Sunday's edition of that newspaper, and he shows quite satisfactorily that there is real concord between science and the Christian religion. He mentions that Henry Drummond taught science six days a week and that the Sunday school class on Sunday, and that the scientist likened the experience to two wells of sweet, pure water, springing up side by side. The editor says, by way of softening attacks of the memory of Charles Darwin, that "deep in his researches, his actual knowledge was less than the position by the first-year medical student of today."

Editor McCullough calls attention at considerable length to the unsolved mysteries of life and death, to the increasing quest for more facts and greater understanding, and then draws this conclusion:

"Science does not deny God. On the contrary, the deeper science delves into the mystery the more researchers disclose, the greater becomes the need of God. Only through God, it is said, can we attain to the wisdom and power. Can any of the questions be answered. Men may or may not believe in Him. That will make little difference in the working out of its great scheme, of which we know so little, and the unfolding of what does the Lord mean of us, but to do-justly, and to love-mercy, and to walk humbly with my God?"

"And a new commandment I give unto you, that ye love one another." "Concern yourselves with the things that you may feel certain of, or are responsible for, such as your own conduct. If God reigns, and no effort or teaching of man will do away with that fact, why worry because men, whose intellect is a gift from God, devote their efforts to discover knowledge which only serves to lead the understanding mind to a loftier conception of God?"

From Other Editors

Fairbury News: In Indiana they are going to make the man who buys liquor equally responsible under the law with the bootlegger. This may have a tendency to reduce the number of patrons, but it will also make it very much harder to get evidence upon which to convict the bootlegger. Naturally the fellow who buys the stuff will be very careful to conceal the fact. Having done this has not been criminally liable himself, and his stressless in the matter has furnished most of the evidence for the dry enforcement officers.

Wahoo Was: Newspaper advertising is the cheapest and the best way to reach the buying public. The cost is comparatively nothing. Figuring one of the smallest ads say 2 columns wide by five inches long at $3.00. Put that ad in the two Wahoo papers at a cost of $6.00 and the message will go into over 5,000 homes (eliminating duplicates) or be read by over 20,000 individual people. It would cost $75.00 for postage alone to reach these people by circular mail, separate separate mailing places—cost about 5c each. A merchant could place a page advertisement in both Wahoo papers and fill them chock full of more news and information of the people of Saunders county at a saving of $150.00 or more over any other method. This increased cost of second class postage in the newspaper a much cheaper and more satisfactory way of handling advertising.

York Republican: Shades of Ben Franklin! What's this that has happened to the post office department. It has just issued a circular about misdirected mail matter that everybody can read and understand. "The post office department is a cemetery of life ideas entered in misdirected envelopes." "Uncle Sam has indignation. His system is clogged with undelivered mail." "The man who mails a letter without a proper address expects the impossible. Uncle Sam can't tell its destination by finger prints on the envelope." And more of that style. For years the department has been trying to keep the people informed through bulletins and state papers that embedded meanings in legal and departed phraseology. If one wanted to know the happenings and news as much as before he started. Whoever is responsible for the change to the present-day American language of "reserving a Nobel prize or a Carnegie medal, because he has done a heroic and seemingly impossible thing."

Ord Kid: Hereafter it has been the custom to allow university students to go home when their work was finished and to have their money. About all that were left in Lincoln for the last week of school and the Roundup and other school activities. This year the students were held there for all the school activities. It was said that it was for the purpose of instilling into them a stronger school spirit. Their final examinations could have been given last week and they could have gone home but instead of that they were allowed to loaf last week, running all over without restraint and this week they are getting their final examinations. There are about 7,500 of the lower class students and a conservative estimate of their expense for the extra week would be $10 a total of seventy-five thousand dollars that could have been saved to the people of the state who have to pay the bills and the students would have been free to the discretion of students went over to Omaha for a dinner at the Blackstone, giving as an excuse that they didn't have anything to do all week. Probably seventy-five thousand dollars is in reality about half what the week extra in Lincoln actually cost the parents of the students and it was a wholly unnecessary expense.

Class of Nine-two Graduated in Wayne

About one-half of the eighth grade graduates attended high school. The new legislation also requires that each teacher register his or her certificate with the county superintendent, without fee before contacting for a school. The board of each district also is required to inform the county superintendent as soon as a teacher has been hired.

Applications for transfer from one school district to another for school purposes will be made each year under the new law.

All teachers' certificates will be issued on the date of the county superintendent instead of by the county superintendent. This will eliminate shifting of records. After July 1 of this year an applicant for a certificate must finish a twelve-year high school and either earn two-year college credit or attend a summer session at a state normal before receiving a certificate.

The new course of study put into effect this year, by changing the work of grades so to allow longer vacation periods and fewer classes for each teacher, is working out well. It is a better system organized and the schools are protected from incompetent teachers because of the new law.

One need is more reading material for the schools. One text book cannot be used for all the subjects. The need is for more text, more library books and good teachers. The teacher is the heart of the school and much depends on her ability to organize work and teach it.

Mr. Teed said that the young folks having graduated should have ideals in life, something to work toward. The home, school and church must cooperate to help the young folks.

For the school system it is urged that they be equipped with a fund of information, that they should furnish desirable attainments which develops character in students and that they should train young folks in best habits.

Mr. Teed urged the pupils to resolve that they are going to do something worth while and that they are going to be thrifty. An education helps but this alone will not do it. Students must be willing to work hard to gain success.

The list of graduates, their districts and home addresses is as follows:

Why Do People Take Baths?

A foolish question to ask perhaps. The answer is to be clean. Then why isn't it better to apply the same idea to wheat? You'd never consider merely "dusting" wheat, would you? No, you'd give it a good soaking. And so with wheat, Victor Flour is actually scrubbed with brushes to remove every particle of dust and dirt. You might be interested to see what most mills leave on wheat but Victor Mills Take It Out. It's Dirt. A sample of foreign materials is on display. When you've seen them then you will understand why we emphasize that Victor Flour is Clean.

The wind was the topic of conversation and the source of much discomfort the past week. During that time it blew unusually at a high rate of speed. Thursday and Friday were perhaps the worst days, for so much damage was done. Fields of fall plowing lay in ruins, and the farmers plowed narrow strips across their fields to keep the soil from blowing away. The wind was so strong that it rolled from fields not such treated and hurt the corn to such an extent that it will be necessary to replant much of the corn.

Market Report

Furnished by Swanson, Gilmore & Walsh, Sioux City Stock Yards.

June 10.—The fat cattle market over the country was a very spotted affair the first half of this week.

Some Missouri river markets, particularly Sioux City, had the advantage of relatively high receipts and higher prices.

Here the trend on all classes of fat steers and yearlings, as well as butcher cows and heifers, mounted 25 cents by the central session.

The advance puts prices in a position largely 75 cents higher, as compared to the opening of the previous week.

The price gains, together with reasonable quality improvement, have been responsible for added volume of sales up around $11 and over.

More sales landed between $10.80 and $11.00 than any time this season.

In a general way, choice to ripe yearlings and handweights can be quoted from $11.25 to $12.00, with good choice yearlings as high as $12.50, fair to good from $9.50 to $10.25, ordinary to fair from $8.50 to $9.50, common to ordinary from $7 to $8.50, and low grade coming down as low as $6 and even under. Heavy beefs hit $10.50 in straight up fall loads sales this week, which is more favorably than has been shown the excessive weight class in weeks.

Yearling heifers mixed with steers are still commanding steep prices, while some of the older yearlings of cyc yearling heifers can be quoted to a peak somewhere between $10.50 and $11.00. Koolies will have a ready-made plan for attending high school the coming year. It is our wish that before school opens this fall that lings and calves, that followed the several rainfalls of last week, got into full swing this week. Consequently the heavy advances of last week were augmented. Practically all arrivals in the steer division are $1.00 and more higher, as compared to last week.

The call of the incoming supplies are for other than heavy-weight feeder material. Green yearlings and calves of good quality are being quoted from $7 up, with fair to good kinds from $6 to $7 and ordinary fat kinds from $5 to $6. Trash sold down to $1 and under. The first ten market days of June brought approximately 500,000 hogs to the eleven leading markets of the country, a decrease of around 150,000 hogs as compared to the liquidation of the corresponding period in 1924. That packers are looking on the June decrease of this year with grave concern is proven by the fact that operations on hog butchers are being constantly curtailed up around the $12 line on the river. It will bear recalling that big packers were very leary about time ago to figure only short time ago. But with their reluctance to play around the $12 line fading into the background, the sellers are endeavoring to figure only short time ago. But with their reluctance to play around the $12 line fading into the background, the sellers are endeavoring to figure only short time ago. But with their reluctance to play around the $12 line fading into the background, the sellers are endeavoring to figure only short time ago.

The price differential between top butchers and packing cows did not change with the new week. Full loads of fair to good sows are selling about $1.50 per hundred weight under the top butchers. If anything, this spread is expected to widen in the near future, especially when more grass is shown.

The new crop of sheep and lambs has not been holding to the full delivery anticipated. Accordingly valuations are higher. Top lambs are now up to $15.00, with yearlings to $17 and ewes to $6.75. In most cases the above prices not only cover the cost of the market, but also Chicago.

Estimate.

Estimate of probable amount of money necessary for all purposes to be raised for the City of Wayne, Nebraska, for the fiscal year ending May 1, 1925, as prepared and adopted by the city council of said city, including a statement of the fiscal year ending April 30, 1925:

Table with 2 columns: Item and Amount. Includes Salaries ($12,000), Light plant ($2,500), Water plant ($3,000), Parks ($2,500), Library ($3,000), Bonds ($15,000), Sewers ($1,200), Fire department ($3,000), Highways ($12,500), Musical and Amusement Organization ($700), General fund ($111,600).

fine work this would be if people would spend as much energy practicing their religion as they spend quarreling about it.

Health Clown Visits County on Saturday

Cho-Cho, the popular health clown from Omaha, visited the county on Saturday and delighted children and grown-ups with his entertainment. In the morning he was in Winnsie and program at the Wayne Community house. Large audiences greeted him enthusiastically at each place. The County to the children of the county to know that the young folks might have benefit of his helpful health hints.

Cho-Cho appears in a red and white clown suit and presents his talk in an amusing and yet a forceful manner. He has no national recognition for his good work among the children.

Five health hints he urged children to remember are: Keep clean, eat right kind of food, exercise, breathe fresh air and get plenty of rest. In regard to keeping clean Cho-Cho urged children to brush their teeth twice a day, in the morning and in the evening. He urged them to take a bath once a week and to wash their faces, ears and neck each morning. Deeds and thoughts also should be clean, Cho-Cho urged.

Young folks must have the right kind of foods to grow strong and healthy. Cho-Cho would have children eat all vegetables that grow in the garden. He does not wish them to eat pickles, celery, Irish and sweet potatoes, lettuce and tomatoes are all good food. Potatoes are most healthful when baked. Carrots are especially good for young folks for they help make rich red blood. Greens contain iron that are healthful. They are the best kind of medicine for the system. Cho-Cho said cabbage, boiled or in salad, is a healthful food. Onions that are cooked are also good. Beans, peas and chick peas are also good. All these vegetables are healthful excepting artichokes. They have been made into pickles. Artichokes are not good for children and are not good for the system. They which they eat. Lemon juice is better. Cho-Cho urged children not to drink tea and coffee but he asked them to drink at least a quart of milk with cream in it at each meal. One quart of milk a day is most desirable for a child. In one school in Hamilton county children gained a national health permit for making the most gain during a period of time and the gain was made by eating oranges and milk.

Children should have fruit each day. Cho-Cho explained. Oranges, grapefruit and apples are all good. Bananas and figs are also good. When brown places begin to form on the skin of the fruit. At this time they are ripe enough. Prunes are most desirable and are the best dried fruit. Children need some candy. Cho-Cho said. They should have good-quality candy just after dinner about twice a week. Candy should not have it too often and should not eat a great deal at any time. Children should sit straight in school and at home so they can grow tall, straight and healthy. They should have lots of exercise in the fresh air. They should get their lungs with fresh air ten times a day at least. They should go to bed each night at 8 o'clock and sleep with windows open. They should get up early and have enough time before going to school so they can eat breakfast and carry out the other health hints mentioned.

Cho-Cho urged young folks to live so as to be healthy in mind and body. He urged them to be good, to be clean, think clean "throughout and in their hearts." By observing the hints he has given they will become better men and women.

Brother And Sister Are in Same Cast

For the first time within the memory of Paramount's production department officials a brother and sister have been given important roles in the same picture. This unusual event occurred at the Faugus play-ers Long Island studio where Joseph Henabry was making "A Sainted Devil" with Adolpho Valentino's new picture for Paramount in which Helen D'Algy and her brother, Anthony, have prominent parts. Helen has the sympathetic role of Julietta, whom Don Alonso (Valentino) married at the end of the picture. Anthony plays Don Luis, intimate friend of Don Alonso.

Miss D'Algy, who is only 20 years old, was born in Madrid, Spain, and at an early age played on the stage there and in South America. She came to this country with her mother and brother a little over a year ago and was immediately signed by Flo Ziegfeld for his famous Follies. After the Follies engagement, Miss D'Algy took up motion picture work and has since appeared in "Let No Man Put Asunder," "The Fool,"

"Lend Me Your Husband," "Lawful Love," "Zaza," and "The Side Show of Life."

Antonio D'Algy also appeared on the stage in South America, but took to the motion picture work exclusively upon his arrival in this country. In the short space of ten months he has played in "Lawful Love," "Zaza," "The Children's Children," "The Rejected Woman," "Mediting Women" and "Monsieur Beaucaire."

"A Sainted Devil" which appears at the Crystal Theatre, Wayne, on Friday and Saturday of this week, is an action-romance of the Argentine and includes in a strong supporting cast, Nita Naldi, Louise Legrange, Dagnar Godovsky, George Slegman, Raphael Bongini and others just as well known.

The story is an adaptation of Rex Beach's story, "Rope's End."

From Ponca Journal, July 4, 1884: During the storm Tuesday night, the wind let loose and blew great gusts. A number of trees along Front street were broken off, and Wm. Gilchrist's barn near the school house, was blown off its foundation. No other damage was done.

Pay Mattison returned from his California trip Saturday evening. He is now on the Northern Pacific R. R. to its end, and made a brief visit to Oregon and Washington territory and then went down to San Francisco and from there came home.

Mr. Winstone of Montana started for home on Monday. He has been here about two weeks visiting old friends whom he knew twenty years ago.

He was one of the first settlers of Dixon county, and when he left, 20 years ago, Ponca had about a dozen inhabitants. He ends quite a different picture between the town then and as it is now. During his present visit, he bought a farm near Ponca, and will remove here next spring. During the tremendous rain on Monday afternoon the benefit of the big ditch or canal, which was dug along the street south of N. S. Porter's place, was seen. The water did not come rushing like a young Niagara, down East street, but was caught by the ditch and sent skimming towards the Missouri without getting a chance to wash down the streets at all. The ditch is a good thing and will save wading or boating when rains come and floods break out in the future.

Rupture Shield

Expert Here

E. J. Meinhardt, the well known expert from Chicago, will personally be at the Vacuum Rupture Shield, Neb., on Monday only, June 15th.

Mr. Meinhardt says "The Vacuum Rupture Shield" will not only hold the rupture perfectly but also prevent the opening in ten days on the average case—usually giving instantaneous relief withstanding all strain regardless of the size and location of the Rupture.

WARNING: Every ruptured person should be cautioned against wearing trusses with understraps. These trusses usually place the pad on the lump and not on the rupture opening. This often causes strangulation which usually necessitates an immediate surgical operation or results in sudden death. Therefore, do not expose yourself to the danger of wearing old style trusses with understraps.

"The Vacuum Rupture Shield" has no understraps or straps around the body or legs. It is also perfectly sanitary and practically indestructible, and should be worn while bathing.

The following guarantee is given to produce results or no payment accepted. Mr. Meinhardt will be pleased to demonstrate "The Vacuum Rupture Shield" at gentlemen who call at this Hotel from 10 a. m. to 4 p. m. Only gentlemen are invited to call on the above date as a special visit will be made here at a later date for women and children.

Notice: Do not write asking to be fitted as we do not fit it is impossible. Every Case Must Be Seen Personally. If interested you must call at this hotel on the above date. Business demands prevent strapping at any other city in this section.

The NERVOUS WRECK

by E.J. Rath
Copyright, 1924, by G. Howard Watt

Begin Here Today.

The "Nervous Wreck," an eccentric young easterner, is driving Sally Morgan, from her father's ranch to the station when they run out of gas. At the point of a gun the Wreck takes five gallons from a passing car.

Sally is held captive at a ranch owned by Mr. Underwood, who was in the car which they held up. They finally escape from the ranch, run into a camp, find handkerchiefs are empty, and in a second time, they escape again. Fleeting from the bandit camp, they are suddenly confronted by Sheriff Bob Wells. Wells, why, why, why, in a fit of fancy, is at the head of a posse searching for the "bandits" who held up Underwood. Sally breaks off her engagement with the sheriff and says she is going to marry the Wreck. The Wreck, with the upper hand, orders the sheriff and his men to put his overturned car on its feet.

New Go On with the Story. CHAPTER XXV. —And the Flivver Rolls.

The Wreck bossed the girl. He took an arrogant tone, particularly when the sheriff was present. Sally was glad. She was glad because the bossing job gave the Wreck something to do, and in its performance he forgot his embarrassment about other things, at least temporarily.

He was terse and confident in his commands. Not a finger would he lift against the bandit men. He looked for him. It took their united strength to put the flivver on four wheels. Bob Wells wanted to get it over with and be on the trail again.

"Not that way!" called the Wreck, sharply. "Want to buckle a wheel for me? You can't push her aside!"

Sally listened to this with a sense of satisfaction. The flivver was back in the abandoned road, but Henry Williams was not through with his helpers. They expected that he would fill up the gasoline tank, turn the crank and get going.

"Not that way!" called the Wreck, sharply. "Want to buckle a wheel for me? You can't push her aside!"

not want to be left alone with Henry Williams. That was the woman of it.

"Don't you worry," repeated the Wreck, suddenly bold. "You don't have to. He don't know what I mean, is you're not really engaged."

It was a reckless speech and he felt instantly that he ought not to have made it. Sally was looking straight ahead.

"Of course not," she said, in a low voice.

The Wreck cursed himself. He knew that he was clumsy, and yet he was desperately groping for an understanding.

"What I mean," he said, "is that it's working backwards, if you can understand. First we were supposed to be married. Then that's off. Then we were supposed to be just engaged. And then that's—for the love of Mike! Don't put your shoulder against that mudguard. You'll bend it!"

"Get hold of the body. And show! Show! Don't they grow any brains in Montana?"

The sheriff and the posse glared, and snarled.

"And then," remarked Sally, "the Wreck remembered that he had forgotten something."

"Why, then the engagement's off, I suppose," he said, as he gazed at the posse. "Which leaves everything exactly where it is."

There! He had reached the subject at last. He had dealt with it boldly, perhaps roughly; but he had not dodged it. Sally's eyes had a queer, uncertain look. There was something blurring, even when she looked at an object as plain, and familiar as the flivver. Sally, of course, but she could not get the blur out of her eyes unless she rubbed them, and she scorned that, with the Wreck at her elbow, he would say, "Let go-of that steering wheel!"

commanded the Wreck. "Can't you see that she'll stay in the ruts? All right, she can't do it to get busy and shove. You act like you were pushing a five-ton truck. No, No! The other way. Are you trying to bust my springs? If you haven't got any brains, can't you have a little beef?"

He came back from the bossing job with the air of the dictator of Sally. What? She was crying. He could feel his soul aching. She was crying, but it was so unobtrusive, so nearly tearless, that the Wreck knew he was not expected to observe it.

"I'm sorry everything has gone busted," he said.

"Oh, nothing much is busted," said Sally, quickly. "That's all right."

"Oh."

He stole another glance. She was not crying, after all; at least, not now. Strange people, women. You never could tell how long they were going to stick to one thing. Still, if anything, he would not have been so angry for Sally Morgan, all she had to do was to say the word.

"Of course, we don't need to tell the sheriff it's all off," he said, suddenly.

"No?"

"What's the use of giving him the satisfaction? We could just keep on—"

He broke off in a cry of rage. The flivver was diving into the brush again and the posse second time to stop it. He leaped to assist, blammed on the emergency brake, smothered the cantankerous thing to a halt and fired a broadside of denunciation. But it was more amusing to see that they were not only endured it, but followed his directions about putting the car back on the road.

When he came back to her she hastily smothered a laugh. Not for the first time she wanted him to know that she amused her.

"They don't get anything right," he complained.

"Still, I think they're trying," she said gently.

"But they don't understand."

"Lots of people don't understand things."

"Fish?"

She meant something; he felt certain.

"FOR OVER 200 YEARS"

has been a world-wide remedy for kidney, liver and bladder disorders, rheumatism, lumbago and uric acid conditions.

tain. Did-the men—that there were some things that he did not understand. Well, if so, what were they? "What don't they understand?" demanded the Wreck.

"All kinds."

"Now you're just talking nonsense in circles."

"I suppose so," said Sally.

"Do you mean me?" he asked, sharply.

"Oh, don't let's quarrel again."

"I'm not quarrelling. I never quarrel. My nerves may get on edge, but I'm always pleasant. I'm always—"

"They were doing something wrong with the flivver."

Eventually they got it right again and once more resumed painful progress toward the main road. They were not far from it now, almost to the top of the last rise. When the Wreck returned to Sally he was mopping his forehead.

"Excuse me," he said, "but they get me all worked up. Once we get to the main road, we're all right. Plain sailing then. We'll be almost at the end of this foolishness."

"Yes," agreed Sally.

"I bet you'll be glad."

She hit her lip until it made her wince. He was probably the most impossible person in the world.

"Get you home in no time after we hit the road," he added.

Selective or Planetary Transmission

but BALANCED GASOLINE for ROWER

THE most expensive motor, like the cheapest, only has the power which gasoline develops. The better the gasoline, the greater the power, mileage per gallon and motor satisfaction.

Red Crown—the balanced gasoline—is built to definite specifications. It has low boiling point fractions to assure quick starts, and the valuable, power-developing fractions that burn just a bit more slowly and maintain pressure to the end of the piston stroke.

While Red Crown won't work miracles, it starts your motor promptly. It burns up so completely that little carbon accumulates and little unburned gasoline passes the piston rings to spoil the motor oil.

For economy that comes from running on a lean mixture, try Red Crown—the balanced gasoline. It is uniform and dependable wherever you buy it.

Nebraskans who owned the first automobiles, used Red Crown. Today thousands of Nebraska motorists always quick starts, and the valuable, power-developing fractions that burn just a bit more slowly and maintain pressure to the end of the piston stroke.
