People are glad to know that the American Legion is going ahead with organization of a brass band, and we feel sure substantial support will not be lacking. It will be a credit to the Legion and a source of great benefit to the town.

Youth often views lapses of memory on the part of elders as premonition of decaying old age, whereas youth forgets so often that it attests more attention than the average of the hand which implies hovering responsibility which has yet failed to take root.

We are glad that there will be a surplus of $150,000,000 in the United States treasury at the end of the current fiscal year. Private treasuries over the country which have not been so fortunate, will rejoice if the federal reserve department is able to get out somewhat in its demands, as indicated by its present showing.

Will Maupin who schollastic through the Omaha Res. has suggested a "better feeling" week, as we recall. Intensive cultivation of better feeling among neighbors, and the pros of incalculable benefit to the social and business structure. If there happens to be any vacant week the better feeling idea ought to be worked in.

It has been suggested that members of the faculty of State Teachers college and people of the town generally ought to exert themselves more in behalf of getting students maintained and their education placed over the school and the treatment received while here. Out in the far west, people used to speak of stripes without the formality of an introduction, which was comforting if no proposed real estate deal were involved. While it might not be proper for us to do away with careful conventions, it would make for good feeling to manifest as far as possible the interest all feel in the welfare and happiness of the town's temporary residents.

Kansas prosperity had become a great issue since the days of overbearing populism that the state had been neglecting its advertising. Senator Pefter, Stockless Simpson and Carrie MacFarlane, who are now in the state come back into the limelight with a report that electrical wires have made an organized assault, charging fences and windmills and everything else susceptible to the subtle and dangerous force. The tips of cow's horns, illuminated, look at night like the headlights of an automobile. Corn fields look like myriads of burning tapers. Kansas is struggling back, but it cannot make the animals stir for attention that it did when it had a lot of political Don Quixotes and was also suffering from a succession of years of drought and grasshoppers.

Among the important golf matches of the past week, H. J. Felber and Rex, William Kearns, were pitted against F. S. Morgan and the writer hereof, and we want the world to know we were not defeated. Conscious instructs us to contest in this next breath, however, that victory was due to Morgan's wonderful expertness. If he had fallen only a trifle short of overcoming his handicap, we would have been outstripped by the opposition, because Felber is a topnotcher and the priest is not. Out of defiance to the clergy, we permitted the priest to carry a package of the editor's favorite tobacco which had been conferred as a bribe to a thrillier, but the priest feels that this tobacco was legging against him and for the editor, for whom, on account of family ties, it felt a powerful bias. Out of the great number of strokes, it was but natural for chance to favor us in making one or two good ones. One we remember especially as a burst of overcoming the others, with possibly one more exception, were so bad that the priest's record notwithstanding the number of and opposing influence of the editor's tobacco, towered in comparison. Our hat is off to the superiority of the three shots of the group and as especially to Morgan who carried his lead to triumph without flinching and without audible profanity.

RELAXATION.
 "When one retires for the night which he should do early, it is deemed desirable for him to relax his mind. This gives his body and mind a chance to rest and store up strength. When he goes to bed, he should lay aside his books and other things. Then he gets up in the morning refreshed and able to undertake his task with vim and determination. Thus, fortified, it is not necessary for him to relax as he moves about and does his work. There are periods for sleep—complete relaxation—as there are periods for work and play, but they should not be mixed.

A BOON TO SOCIETY.
 We have often differentiated between the shyder lawyer with no scruples who seeks profit by getting people into trouble, and the noble-minded lawyer of fine conscience who bends his efforts toward quelling the trouble. Recently a lawyer told us of his frequently repeated task in smoothing out domestic grievances—mostly imaginary—restoring peace and concord and steering away from divorce courts.

Some couples—perhaps many—do not manage their relations as harmoniously and happily as they were sure they would when they married. Sometimes a man and wife think they see to each other, and that they may have to be civil and considerate. As time goes on, they grow in neglect and asperity, and try rather to needle than to please. A mob-hill of causes is magnified into a mountain. Each cultivates contempt instead of clinging to love, and in the end each of them both seek freedom from marital obligations.

The wife with a child tagging at her side does to her former favorite lawyer. If the lawyer is the right kind of man, he visualizes the breaking up of a home and the injustice to be done on helping a man to get out of a home and the opportunity is presented for service to humanity of a high order. Usually he finds the basis for differences between the husband and wife is not out due reason. He sets about the delicate task of pointing out absence of real ground and knitting together threads of tranquility that had been carelessly broken one after another. Usually happy reunion is accomplished, and innocent children are saved from a crushing sorrow.

Such a lawyer is a genuine boon to society—an inspiration from heaven. And we have observed that a lawyer who prizes service seldom lacks business, and is abundantly rewarded by increased confidence and multiplied friendships as well as a sustaining bank account.

SUBSCRIPTION CONTESTS.
 By frequent letters from newspapers, we are reminded of four contests put on by this newspaper during the past fifteen years. Only the need of quick circulation beating justifies such a contest, in our opinion. No matter what the outcome may be, cash returns do not warrant the cost. We know of no other business organization of like proportions that is so lacking in lucid judgment that it will give away automobiles and other things for a few weeks' work. It matters not how much blood the publisher sweats in his determination to see that everybody gets a square deal, there is something to be learned from regularity. The contestant who wins a twelve-hundred dollar automobile, an amounting to a salary of $200 a week, is fairly well satisfied. Other participants are almost uniformly dissatisfied and they and their friends are likely to feel that the first award was by some hidden and diabolically surreptitious means unjustly denied them.

The contest manager is usually a suave individual with a modicum of intelligence and superlative nerve. In advance he convinces a publisher that he has a superior way of handling a contest. Before he has gone far he convinces the publisher that he is employing old buck and that his methods are not materially different from those used by his predecessors and contemporaries. He also convinces the publisher that no moving picture performer is more obviously overpaid.

Avant everything in the way of a contest! It is a sheer waste of time to write or talk to us about it.

A STRUGGLE FOR SUPREMACY.
 The Hartington Herald has lately installed a new linotype machine of recent model, has moved into larger quarters, and has made other improvements. It is one of the best weekly newspapers in the state. F. D. Stone who is a very resourceful writer, has recovered from a long siege of ill health and is grinding himself for redoubled effort. He is assisted by his wife and son, and foreman, C. D. Wiley. Hartington presents an interesting newspaper situation. The town is not large enough for two costly newspapers. The Herald and News, the latter of which is owned by A. P. O'Parry, are about on a par with each other, above the average, the Herald, even when it lacks comparative size or record, notwithstanding the number of and opposing influence of the editor's tobacco, towered in comparison. Our hat is off to the superiority of the three shots of the group and as especially to Morgan who carried his lead to triumph without flinching and without audible profanity.

Recently Mr. O'Parry of the News gained the advantage of a cooling station or outpost at West Point where brother Frank, from Iowa, bought the Democrat. The two brothers, hitherto occupying two states, but now concentrated in one and unsplit, are wedded together by mutual interests, may be expected to pull together with all their might in the direction which they elect to follow. This combination may not so much help the News in its immediate field as it might help the News editor to look louder and oftener in case he should decide to run for congress or some other office next year.

That is about the situation. The Herald and News are going strong, the former with less noise and flag waving than the latter, but both with a good deal of momentum and very evenly matched. We would say the race between them now is neck and neck.

Telephone Rate Decision.
Omaha, Neb., June 12.—An average increase of approximately 10 per cent in telephone rates in Omaha and the northern half of Nebraska was foreseen today by Corporation Counsel W. C. Lambert on the basis of the Northwestern Bell Telephone company's interpretation of Federal Judge Mungler's decree handed down yesterday Lincoln.

Telephone company attorneys advised President W. E. T. Bell of the company that the Northwestern Bell has the power to fix "reasonable rates" until such time as the state railway commission fixes rates, and the commission is enjoined from interfering with those rates.

"Fair" Rates Promised.
Bell's representatives went to Frank Bullitt, assistant to the president, who said:

"We do desire to establish new rates that will be only such as are fair and reasonable and will give a fair return on the value of our property."

Lambert said the company will certainly change rates upwards if the court has given it the power.

"The company's gross revenue in Nebraska is about $5,000,000 annually and value of property about $20,000,000," Lambert said.

"The company claims it earned 4.55 percent on its investment in 1924—if the company fixes new rates to yield 7 percent on the investment, the average investor must be four times the difference between 7 percent and 4.55 percent, or approximately 22.5 percent."

Shows Earning Since 1917.
Bell issued its statement today showing the company has earned the following since 1917:

1917, 5.15 percent; 1918, 4.62 percent; 1919, 5.30 percent; 1920, 3.09 percent; 1921, 2.87 percent; 1922, 3.05 percent; 1923, 4.68 percent and 1924, 4.55 percent.

"It is our policy to refrain from increasing charges until every effort has been exhausted to operate satisfactorily on existing revenues," Bell said. "But when this cannot be done without a serious deterioration of service, we believe it our duty to seek an adjustment in rates."

Lincoln, Neb., June 12.—Judge Mungler of the federal court handed down a decree late yesterday in which the state railway commission was forever enjoined from enforcing its exchange telephone rates of 1922.

The decision was handed down in the case of the Northwestern Bell Telephone company against the attorney general and the state railway commission. The decision has no effect on new rate schedules that the railway commission may make, Judge Mungler said.

Sloux City Journal. The government forecast of the wheat crop puts the yield for the year at 661,000,000 bushels, the smallest production since 1917. The total is 212,000,000 bushels below the crop of last year. The condition of winter wheat as of June 1 is declared to be the poorest in 50 years. Spring wheat does not fare so badly, the poor condition of the winter crop being responsible for the low yield.

The average yield per acre of winter wheat is estimated at 12.4 bushels as of June 1. Reports from southern Kansas where the winter wheat harvest has commenced say the yield runs as high as 25 bushels per acre, but that is unusual. Farther north in Nebraska the cool weather of May and the absence of moisture hurt the winter crop already weakened by extreme cold. The Hessian fly and the chinch bug have added their difficulty to cut the wheat crop down still farther. The yield is not as heavy as about one-third less than last year for the country.

The crop report of the department of agriculture as of June 1 is not expected to be materially changed, whatever the weather conditions may be. The harvest to the southward is on. Within a short time it will move northward. Wheat cannot possibly recover now, even under ideal conditions. It simply means that a short wheat crop is to be harvested, which will produce only about enough for domestic consumption. It is not believed there will be any wheat for export. The estimated yield of 661,000,000 is described by the crop reporting board in this language: "The requirements of wheat for domestic consumption do not differ greatly from this amount."

This fact of a wheat shortage is bound to be impressive, especially at a time when it had been the hope that agriculture would make still further progress this year toward recovery. Of course it cannot be foretold accurately just what the world demand for wheat will be, but it always develops that considerable American grain is desired abroad. Therefore the shortage, all of which might have been demanded for export, is to be reckoned as a loss to the American producer. A way out of the difficulty in a degree may be found by the shortage forcing the prices upward. The country must have bread. The farmers can demand a price higher than the figure they would have asked with a bigger crop harvested. Let the law of supply and demand not operate to fix the price of wheat. If a burden is to be borne as a result of the short crop, the proper shoulders for it are those of the consumers.

Most of these cattle have been raised on his farm here or on his ranch in Wyoming.

Market Report

Furnished by Swanson, Gilmore & Walsh, Sioux City, Stock Yards.

June 17. - Conflicting forces threaten the fat cattle trade. Because of the warm weather demands upon the retail counter have diminished materially and packers insist that prices of live beef must come down substantially—around $1.

But packers do not seem able to work their will, for this week the runs over the country decreased appreciably. Under ordinary circumstances the falling off in receipts would have been sufficient to boost prices liberally, but under the prevailing adverse conditions the lightness of the delivery seems hardly more than enough to hold prices in position.

The first two days of the week brought only 75,000 cattle to the 11 leading markets of the country, about 15,400 less than put in an appearance the first two days of last week.

The opening liquidation of this week indicates that the aggregate for the full six day period will run under 170,000 head.

Monday of this week brought some losses, about 15 to 25 cents on other than really desirable yearlings and handweight fillers. Some strength was noted the following day and midweek the deal was practically back to steady.

The change covers the Sioux City market, but at outside centers fairly decent gains were registered. There is some unevenness in the fact that this market worked higher last week, while the others were sinking.

As the deal now stands choice to ripe yearlings and handweights are quoted from $11.25 up, with good to choice from $10.25 to $11.00, fair to good from $9.50 to $10.25, ordinary fair from $8.25 to $9.50, common to order from $7.00 to $8.25...

Speaking of operations, a lead piglet two and one-quarter inches long was taken from the mother...

Since a week ago Wednesday the pork market has dropped $1.50 per hundred weight. Local tops at $9.50 at midweek are 50 cents higher than at Chicago.

A suggestion of what was to be expected in the way of contracted hog liquidation for June was carried in this report some weeks ago.

Strength has already resulted because of the decrease. More is expected. Prices on the river for butchers are upwards to $12.60.

Packing sows has followed the lead of butchers to higher levels, but are still the same margin off the top, namely $1.50 per hundred weight.

Keeping Up-to-Date

Having the newest and best styles is the all important business at our store. We watch carefully every possible source of fashion information and by promptly the new things called for by the latest styles.

Merchandising has changed a great deal during the past few years. "Manufacturers" used to make up their styles at the beginning of the season and that ended it. Merchants bought a season's supply of those styles and no newer styles came out. Nowadays new styles are being brought out every week and the merchant who would keep his stock up to the minute in style must watch and be ready to buy these later styles "all" during the season.

Every day now we are buying new merchandise and you can come here expecting to see a selection of whatever is fashionable and up to date.

From Ponca Journal June 18, 1925:

Barney Cavanaugh of South Creek was in town yesterday. The storm of Sunday night wrecked his large grove of walnuts and elms, doing it a damage it will take years to repair.

On Friday evening a big storm occurred, and the heaviest display of thunder and lightning of the season. Several of the people cultivated an artistic acquaintance with their cellars during the storm.

Patner Martin's tale, "the conflict, how of money," has now reached its 293rd chapter. It has been progressing about ten years. At the rate it gets ahead, it will in 20 years more have a thousand chapters, or about that many pages.

On Sunday night, Irwin Orr was caught out by the storm. He was across the creek when the storm first broke, and his horses were frightened and upset the buggy. He held them, however, and after a long time got them over the bridge and into secure winter quarters.

He was out during the whole blow. We are surprised and sorry to hear that some of the boys of this town have been cultivating bumps of destructiveness and cutting up Cain, as though the devil was in them.

They are naturally good boys, but lately they have been acting in a manner that desire to destroy everything within reach. Thus, one day last week, several of them went down and smashed in the windows in the engine house.

The next day they went to Gamble's warehouse and served that as they had the engine house. The next day they interviewed the Baptist church and broke out the window glass in one side of it. Boys ought to have fun and enjoyment, but to do so, it is not necessary to destroy property.

For Rules of the Road.

York Republican: A suggestion in the interest of safer automobile highways that the rule of the road be that the car at the right always has the right of way. Another rule should provide that cars traveling on highways shall have right of way over cars coming on side roads. Unofficial rules of the road and systematic highway markings will relieve congestion, avoid accidents and make auto travel more pleasurable. Let the experts decide and the rest of us will do our best to comply.

To the Telephone Users of This Community:

As telephone users, I think you will be interested in the following statement of the action this Company has taken to obtain authority to adjust exchange rates in Nebraska up to the time we appealed to the Federal Court.

We consider you and every telephone user as essential partners in the successful operation of this business and therefore we want you to know at all times that we are doing our best.

Efforts to secure adequate revenue from our operations in Nebraska to pay expenses and earn a fair return on the value of our property, date back to September 30, 1916. At that time we applied to the Nebraska State Railway Commission as authority to increase our exchange rates 20 per cent in order to meet the high operating costs resulting from the war.

Hearings were held on our application during October that year, after which the Commission issued an Emergency Order, authorizing our Company to increase its exchange rates 10 per cent effective December 1, 1918. The order was to expire after six months.

On April 23, shortly before the Commission's authorization of the new rates was to expire, our Company applied for authority to substitute a higher schedule of exchange rates in Nebraska. Hearings were held, and our application was granted on May 19, 1919. The order specified that the new schedule of rates was to terminate at the end of that year. As the close of 1919 approached, the Commission continued the rates for another year.

However, on September 30, 1920, because of continued high cost our Company was granted an increase of 10 per cent increase on all exchange rates in Nebraska. This application was granted on November 1920, after a number of hearings, and a 10 per cent surcharge on exchange rates was authorized until June 30, 1921. Later it was continued until December 31, that year.

The situation when, on December 14, 1921, after it was evident that a level of prices higher than those in 1914 would prevail on Company property, to the Commission for authority to establish a new schedule of exchange rates was such as to necessitate an increase in exchange rates. The schedule applied for was such as to meet the requirements by result in satisfactory earnings but it is now clear that it would not have produced the desired result on the cost of our property in this state as shown by the books of the Company.

After a series of hearings on our application, the Railway Commission on November 4, 1922, handed down an order which, if it had been enforced as directed, estimated, would have permitted only the payment of our expenses and a return of 2.92 per cent on the cost of our intrastate property in Nebraska, based on 1922 operations.

Following the Commission's order, compliance with which would have resulted in the continued loss of our Company on November 22, 1922, we appealed to the Federal Court. The court on December 1922 issued a temporary injunction against the enforcement of the Commission's order and appointed a Special Master to hear evidence from the Railway Commission and the telephone users.

For years our earnings in Nebraska have been inadequate. In 1917 we earned only 15.7% on our Nebraska property. In 1924, our Division property, which included all of our Nebraska plant and a small part of our South Dakota plant, earned only 3.05% on the same property in 1919, 5.30% and 4.19% only 3.05%. Since 1921 we have lost the cost of our property in Nebraska. In 1921 we earned 2.97% on Nebraska, in 1922 we earned 2.92%, in 1923, 3.05%; in 1924, 4.53%, and in 1924, we earned 4.55%. All of these figures represent earnings from operating operations. In connection with the increased earnings in 1923 and 1924, it should be borne in mind that the rates allowed by the temporary injunction were in effect during these years.

Notwithstanding the fact that the rates of our Company in Nebraska have been inadequate for many years, its members have enjoyed a good quality of telephone service at prices relatively lower than what they have paid for other services and products. That they have been able to obtain their telephone service at such rates has been due to the fact mentioned—that the Company has not been earning a fair return on the fair value of its property.

The public demands and is entitled to reliable telephone service. The employees who help supply this service should be fairly paid. And those who invest their money to build telephone plants to meet the needs of the public service, must be paid a fair return on the necessary new equipment and on the service they have provided. The interests of these three—the public, the employees and investors—are identical. The interests of the telephone service are such as are necessary to pay expenses and earn a fair return on the value of our property.

It is the policy of our Company to maintain from increasing its charges for service until every effort has been exhausted to operate satisfactorily at existing rates. But when this cannot be done without impairing the quality of telephone service, we believe it our duty to seek an adjustment in rates.

If there is any further information we can supply regarding our efforts to obtain additional revenue in Nebraska, please send an employee, or call our Manager and we shall gladly send a representative to you.

A Miracle, A Truthful Ad

Did you ever read a truthful Ad. I mean one when you read it you would say "That fellow really means what he says"? No you never did. You read every one Guy endorses an Overcoat, and to prove it he has one on, (or one they loaned him for the picture). Now even if he did like it, what has that got to do with you? Payless rates are not alike. What difference does it make to anybody what some prominent Statesman, or Actor or Actress, or Movie Star wears. You are no kindergarten, you know what you wore last year and if it pleased you try it again. Now I don't smoke "Bull" Durham, I am not going to smoke "Bull" Durham, but if you did and you liked it, why don't let some Guys Picture and indorsement tout you off on something else. Now the only way I could ever be caught in a falsehood with this ad would be to smoke it myself.

THE NERVOUS WRECK

By E. J. Rath
Copyright, 1924, by G. Howard Watt

Begin Here Today.

The "Nervous Wreck," an eccentric young easterner, is driving Sally Morgan from her father's ranch to the station when they run out of gasoline. At the point of a gun the Wreck takes five gallons from a passing car. They are held captive a month owned by one of the men whom they held up. They finally escape, run into a camp of real bandits, then escape again. Fleeing from the bandit camp, they suddenly are confronted by Sheriff Bob Wells, Sally's fiancé, who is at the head of a posse searching for the bandits. Angry Sally breaks off her engagement with the sheriff and says she is going to marry the Wreck. The Wreck, with the upper hand, compels the sheriff and his men to roll his car onto level ground. "Now I'll get you home in no time," the Wreck tells Sally.

Now Go on With the Story.

She faced without a warning symptom.

"Step talking to me, Henry Williams?"

"Now what have I said?" he asked.

"Nothing." She almost shouted it.

"Then what are you sore about?"

"I—I'm not sore. I just think you're the biggest idiot in the whole county." She screamed.

"He puzzled over that, got no sense out of it, but became suddenly convinced," she said.

"I suppose so," he said. "I can't see you to do things right. Only I thought you were in a hurry to get home and—what?"

"He did not catch it."

"What did you say?"

"You're always putting words in my mouth," she declared. "I never said I was in a hurry to get home. I never said I'd be glad, I never said—"

The tears were in her eyes again and she made an angry effort to dash them away with her hand.

"Oh, stop this!" screamed the Wreck. "I didn't say anything of the kind."

"Sally, I'm just a honest man. I'm a near-sighted, goggle-eyed man. I'm all nerves. I'm a wreck. I've got a real temper and a real disposition, and I know it."

"Do you really believe all that, Henry Williams?"

"Certainly I believe it."

"Would you let anybody else say it?"

"Neither would I," said Sally.

The Wreck started. He swallowed hard. His taut nerves, it seemed to him, were vibrating a million times per second. He could almost hear his ears roaring far above the common things of earth. Did she really mean it? No! He was scared—abominably appalled—yet triumphant. How was it that everything hit him so suddenly? For—he saw light at last! So the light was in his eyes! Well, did not show him the way. It blinded him. It fairly made him dizzy.

"Sally!"

"Henry!"

"Sally Morgan! Honestly, could you—"

There was a surly interruption for a moment.

"We've rolled this darn thing as far as we're going to. There's the main road in front of you. If you can't manage yourself from now on, you can stay here for the rest of the summer, for all I care."

The Wreck came back to earth, but it wasn't very lightly. He shook himself, blinked, grined, laughed aloud. His chin was up and his shoulders were back. He was awake, because he saw Henry and Henry's men, and other familiar objects. He also saw Sally Morgan, very pink in the cheeks and with a queer, incredulous expression in her eyes. He strode forward like a champion. He swung a great little. He was ragged, a trifle absurd—but kingly.

"I don't mean a sweeping gesture that belonged in melodramas, but with the Wreck it was intense realism. It was a dismissal.

"In your way!" he commanded.

"Get out of here. You're all through. Beat it!"

The middle-aged, solid-looking man, with his hands on his hips and his head leaning heavily, spoke up from the heart.

"Last time I'll ever go out on a posse with you, Bob Wells," he said. "I don't mind performing the reasonable duties of citizenship, but I'll be dogged if I'll ever roll a flivver again nor if it stands between me and the state of Wyoming. When I get through with this job I'm going back home and I'm going to stay there. If you want a justice of the peace, you know where I am. But if you want a garage hand—"

The Wreck interrupted him by waving his hand and turning him on the breast with a rigid forefinger.

"Justice of the peace, did you say?"

"Justice of the peace," said the middle-aged man.

"Issue warrants, try cases, send tion about being married. The only point is whether we broke any laws doing it. But I reckon that won't worry you."

The Wreck tossed himself from a dog.

"How do we get from here to the Bar-M?" he asked.

"Easy," said the judge. "Hand me the license a minute."

He unfolded it and turned it over. (To be continued.)

Do Motorists Appreciate

extra value?

Yes, and here is the proof: Men and women everywhere in the Middle West have been making the Skelly Triple Trial. And they have been following up the test by becoming regular users of Skelly Gasoline.

For years many of them had paid too little attention to careful buying of gasoline. "The tank is low—where's the nearest service station?" That appeared to be the easiest way, and haphazard buying became a habit.

Now thousands of motorists demand fullest possible value for every gasoline cent. Skelly Gasoline, long known to oil men as the Big Boy in gasoline, is winning, gaining, convincing more motorists every day.

If you appreciate the sincere desire of a refiner to give you extra value, surely you will make the simple, fair test which we have evolved. It is known as the Skelly Triple Trial.

Three times in a row fill up with Skelly Gasoline. Then compare. Then step on the throttle!
