"Lost World" At Crystal Next Week

Amazement, surprise, disbelief in one's own eyes—these are some of the emotions aroused by "The Lost World," which appears at the Crystal Theatre October 5, 6 and 7.

The picture makers have long promised "something really new—a picture 'Big as Nature'—a spectacle which will start a new chapter in film history."

"The Lost World" comes nearest to living up to those promises any picture we have seen in a long time. School text books say that the last of the dinosaurs became extinct at least 10,000,000 years ago. Yet on the picture screen these fearsome creatures of the Reptilian Age actually come to life—with a reality that makes one tremble for the safety of Bessie Love, Lewis Stone, Wallace Beery, Lloyd Hughes and the other film adventurers who find the huge creature still alive in an unexplored area of South America.

The amazement that these reptiles, inertly as they are, are actually able to do it. This picture might be described as a masterpiece of universal appeal. Every class of movie patron will find a superthrill in it.

For those who like romance we have Lewis Stone and Lloyd Hughes struggling for the heart of Bessie Love, and at the same time trying to capture the last of the dinosaurs, hungry, man-eating dinosaurs.

For those who hanker for adventure the picture offers the hunting expeditions, where Stone, Beery and Hughes attempt to bag a 150,000-pound monster that doesn't mind elephant guns any more than bears one getting you less. Write or phone John H. Roper, Dodge, Nebr. 0115

CHURCH ANNOUNCEMENTS

First Lutheran Church. (Rev. F. W. Knul, Pastor.) Service will be held at the city hall next Sunday at 10 p. m. These will be in the English language as usual.

Methodist Episcopal Church. (Rev. L. F. Townsend, Pastor.) Sunday school at 10 a. m., Carl E. Wright, superintendent. Epworth League at 6:30 p. m., Bower Sageser, leader.

Public worship at 11 a. m., and 7:30 p. m., with sermons by the pastor. Next Sunday will be promotion day in the Sunday school. It should also be rally day, with every member present.

Attention is called to the change in the hours for Epworth League and the preaching service at night—now held earlier than for the past summer months.

These notes are written by the religious editor. I would commend my success to the church and the public. He is in every way worthy of your esteem and confidence. May his ministry among you be one of growing favor.

St. Paul's Evangelical Lutheran Church. (Rev. Coy L. Stager, Pastor.) Sunday, October 4: 10:00 church school with lesson.

11:00 morning worship. Annual congregational meeting. This is an important meeting and should be attended by all our members. Three councilmen are to be elected.

Last Thursday afternoon the Ladies Aid society met at the home of Mrs. Hans Madsen. The following officers were elected for the coming year: Mrs. Charles Heikes, president; Mrs. Otto Eber, vice president; Mrs. W. C. Martin, secretary; and Mrs. L. C. Hahlbeck, treasurer.

At the regular session of the church school Sunday, September 28, the following officers were elected for the coming year: Miss Louise West, superintendent; Albert Bessan, assistant; Miss Mabel Harestad, secretary and treasurer; Miss Alma Martin, assistant; Miss Clara Korff, organist; and Miss Henrietta Hurstad, assistant.

First Baptist Church. (Rev. Francis K. Allen, Pastor.) Sunday service will be observed as Woman's day.

All women of the church and congregation are requested to be present at 11 o'clock.

Public worship at 11 a. m. The ladies will conduct the service and the subject of the sermon will be "The Word."

Young people's meeting at 6:30 p. m.—one half hour earlier. Evening service at 7:30, special music. Sermon: "Some Wonders of Nature and of Grace."

Rally day will be observed one week ending Sunday, October 11. Mr. and Mrs. E. Miller were received into the membership of the church at the morning service last Sunday.

The men did a good piece of work in conducting and cooperating with the pastor in presenting the claims and opportunities of the church.

An officers' and teachers' meeting on Monday evening made arrangements for promotion day in the Sunday school and considered plans for improvement.

Evangelical Lutheran Church. (Rev. H. A. Teckhaus, Pastor.) October 4: Sunday school, 10 a. m. There was a slight decrease in attendance on account of the bad roads last Sunday. We hope for more favorable conditions next Sunday.

Evening service, 7:30 p. m. Right after the service the quarterly congregational meeting will take place.

Beginning with October the fourth, there will be regular service every Sunday.

The schedule for the services will be as follows: The first Sunday in the month German service, the second English, the third German, the fourth English.

October 1, Sunday school teachers meeting at 7:30 p. m. The time for the new teachers' classes will be announced next Sunday.

Any religion is better for society than no religion.

Teaching was underpaid before the war in comparison with other lines of service, and rather than reduce wages which are now too high, the general opinion is to increase the standards of fitness and efficiency for the same money.

Warden Penton of the state penitentiary, acquitted himself in a most creditable manner in the emergency Monday when fatal shooting followed the attempt of armed prisoners to escape. Guards of the prison also behaved with fine courage and wisdom.

The York Republican calls attention to the example of the district court at Aurora holding impressive ceremonies in connection with naturalization and the acceptance of foreign-born citizens into full citizenship. The Republican approves the ceremony as giving the emphasis to a great privilege.

The editor of the Hartington Herald writes that there is a general feeling and helpless potato in connection with such forces of nature as cyclones and floods and earthquakes. We are ready to acknowledge the equality of nature without argument and particularly without demonstrative profanity.

The authorities in Cedar county have put a ban on Sunday public dances and according to our sheriff, he is going to do the same thing in this county. Any public dance held on the Sabbath violates the Nebraska statute, and the movement indicated is simply enforcement of a long established law.

We were nearly dressed one morning when a letter from the editor of anything to worry about or to act as a blood-accelerator. We had no dog for any one to threaten. No saphead had said any mean thing that we could recall. Then suddenly came the harrowing thought that the war-torn season would soon be over, and we snapped back into normal.

Justice is not so evenly distributed in Omaha as it should be, according to a report in the World-Herald. It says that an attorney whose car had been towed twenty-seven times for violating traffic regulations, escaped with a reprimand, whereas a poor lad whose mother takes in washings, was fined for parking in the wrong place and whose wife has been sent to jail in the absence of the necessary cash if charitably inclined people had not come to the rescue with sufficient cash to help. According to the report, this boy had simply made a mistake, and he needed all his time and courage to help support a family while in a hotel for a few days. If authorities are going to be lenient they ought to practice on the under fellow, the fellow without money or influence.

The recent trade of Col. William Mitchell against the army and navy as a forfeit of the former's rights of forbiddings expressed while trouble between the United States and Spain over Cuba was brewing. Mitchell, ex-acting in Great Britain or Japan could invade this country in case of hostilities. Before outbreak of the Spanish-American war, a popular magazine explained that if now Spain could swoop down and wipe us out in short order. But results soon told a different story. We may not be in the pink of fighting condition, but we doubt if there is ground for the alarm sounded by Col. Mitchell's office. The army and navy seem to be disinterested with the idea of building up and maintaining a big military machine, while people in ordinary pursuits shied from armaments and war and would use their efforts to tranquillize the nations of the world through peaceful means.

Newspapers were not the only ones sustained in the early days by special favor. Newspapers were not the only ones who sought to punish those who did not patronize them. Tradesmen and professional men generally burned up a good deal of energy in despatching letters, and in fixing a penalty on any one who failed to shell out 'business. Newspapers and others did not think much about service and costs in the old days. They were too busy thinking about reaping success. They did not matter whether they had a circulation of 100 or 100,000. Circulation or was read by those who did take it. It did not matter whether merchants made advertising pay. It did matter whether they advertis-

SPELLING.

Forty-two years there has been a growing habit that spelling has been losing out in the public schools, that it was neither taught nor required. It has been assumed that the generations could spell little and that coming generations would not be able to spell at all. It was becoming serious. Members of the local school board and their wives and husbands who had been thrashing out their chests in the belief that they belonged to the last social stratum that could spell, had a terrible awakening at a recent fellowship meeting. In the hall that they belonged to the teachers, members of the board put on a spelling match. The latter gesticulated confidently as they swaggered into line for the fray. According to popular conviction, it would be easy. But as the last earthly remnant of high-voltage spellers went down and the teachers stood alert, with almost unbroken ranks, the conviction that spelling was dead and buried, was quickly and effectually dispelled. Napoleon could not have felt or looked more ill at ease after his defeat at Waterloo than did the elders on this occasion. These winning teachers are products of the modern educational system. Not only have they learned correctly and understandingly how to put letters together to make words and words together to make sentences, but they have accumulated stores of lore seldom carried in stock by elders who have considered spelling one of the discarded specialties.

ed or whether they used printed stationery instead of rubber stamps. Likewise the average business or professional man of our generation, and mature, would lift his nasal appendage high into the air to look upon beyond any one who did not but whose ways accept his service. The change for the better in all lines of human endeavor is marked. More modern newspapers and others do not make friendship dependent on business. Patronage is more and more sought on grounds of merit, and thus the world is making progress.

Society.

For Rev. and Mrs. J. G. Shick. Miss Lettie Scott and Miss Ethel Stephens entertained Rev. and Mrs. John Grant Shick at dinner Monday evening at the Expo hotel. The Shicks moved the first of this week to University Place and the former will have a year's leave of absence from his ministry to recuperate his health.

Boy Scouts Open Year. The scouts of troop Two, with Prof. K. N. Parke, met Tuesday evening in the Methodist church parlors. Franklin Phillips and Charles Ingham have been taken into the troop and six other boys are working on their tests in order that they may be admitted next week. Boy Scout finished Tuesday the requirements for a first class scout and he was awarded a badge. Three patrols have been granted in the troop and, under the direction of Milford Wright, Henry Reynolds and Fred Davis, the groups are competing for highest honors. The award to the best patrol will be made next week. Henry Schmitz was elected treasurer of the troop. The boys play a hike next Saturday if the weather permits.

Try My Check-Up System

If you have any doubts that you are not getting the proper test on your cream, Consider This Proposition:

Next time you come to town to ship or sell to another station stop and let me take a sample of your cream. I'll just take a minute. After getting your cream check, drop in and see how my test and net proceeds compare. If there's a difference and there should not be, then I want you to know I am a firm believer in the guy that has to milk cows twice a day for 1 sat on a low priced milk enough to get the stock of milkers to know it's no snip. I am willing to let any of my customers check on me too. I'm game if you are. Try me once.

Call the Chicken Prince

Ask anyone who has sold me chickens. See whether I don't give them honest weights, and all that the market will pay for them. I will gladly sell you some chickens and you can ask them. That tells the tale. If you have chickens to sell, call me and get my prices. On large lots of 400 pounds it will pay you because I can afford to run out and pick them up free of charge and stand all shrinkage.

Give me a trial on your cream. 46c a pound Today

Wool Materials

The wool materials for making into dresses at home, with bordered effects, 54 inches wide, are the new goods, both in silk and wool. Are very popular with the home dressmaker because 54-inch goods are so easy to make up, cut and fit and the buyers furnish all the trimming that is required; only 1 1/2 to 1 3/4 yards are required for a dress which keeps the cost of the garment away down and making it yourself saves the difference. Plain flannels continue popular. I am showing them in all widths and colors at $2.95 to $3.45 a yard for very new qualities. The new fall styles call for buttons in all sizes and shapes and fur trimmings and new braids in all colors.

Advertisement for Everfast Suiting and Shoes. Includes an illustration of a woman in a dress and a pair of shoes. Text: 'Everfast Suiting. You will find Everfast stamped on every yard of the selvage, are absolutely fast color and I am authorized when selling Everfast wash fabrics to make this same guarantee to my customers, refund your money on every yard which for any reason does not hold its color, but also the cost of making the garment, and hereby insure you against loss in connection with any claim arising from this guarantee. You will find the suiting in all the new colors. Once you try it and you will always have it in your home.' Below: 'Shoes. We have just received a new lot of Queen Quality shoes in patent leathers and kids, low heel and military heel, priced from $5 to $6.50. Soft shoes for tender feet, cushion in sole, rubber heel, two-strap, the kind that mother likes, only $3.00. H. W. THEOBALD. Wayne, Neb.

All the life of H. Zerby, Anderson, Ind., had envied the life of a farmer, and when his chance came, as it did a few years ago, he took it. He bought an abandoned factory site in Anderson. It was covered with brickbats and clinders. But Zerby pitched in and changed it up. Now he has 100 stands of bees. He has 400 young fruit trees coming on. He has a garden, and he has a chicken yard, and chickens which are the pride of the town. Zerby says he is happy, and is not worrying about old age.

Long-Wearing Shoes For Hard-Going Kiddies

"My children have never worn out a pair of Kewpie Twin shoes," said one of our customers this week.

Fit your girls and boys out in "Kewpie Twins" shoes this fall and see what wonderful service they give. They are good looking, too, and made over roomy toe, arch-fitting lasts that let the little feet develop as they should. They are of soft, flexible, sturdy leather with no nails or screws used in their construction.

$2.25 $3.50 $4.50

Mrs. C. E. Benschoff and son Wesley, Mrs. Gurney Benschoff and son, Donald Quinn were shopping in Norfolk Thursday. Mr. and Mrs. Ben Miller of Lincoln, who were expected to arrive at the Irving Gaebler home Saturday night, did not arrive until Sunday morning. They spent the night in their car seven miles from Winside. The rain storm prevented them from going in search of gasoline when their supply had been exhausted. Charles Unger, jr., who has been with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Unger, returned Sunday to New York City, where he has a position as chief public accountant. Charles Unger went through his study period in New York the same as he did the Winside school, never missing a day, and young as he is, he has secured a good position.

Mr. and Mrs. Herman Boutheon returned at dinner Sunday in honor of their son, Raymond and Hal, Mr. and Mrs. John Damme, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Kleensaag, Mr. and Mrs. Rolfe Tidrick and Mrs. Anna Ruschman. Out of town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Henry Beutheine of Hoskins and Mr. and Mrs. Henry Eiders of Wayne. John Fleer left Sunday for Chicago where he will study window decorating, advertising, card printing and in general, study to be a first class merchant before returning to his father's store. John has already a good helping along these lines, having helped in the store since he was old enough to begin running errands to bring head-sock. His pleasant personality and polite patience with customers help to make a successful merchant. Mrs. Clarence Wite entertained Tuesday afternoon in honor of her little daughter, Betty, who was 3 years old that day. The afternoon was spent playing games and Mrs. Wite served a dainty luncheon, the cake with its three candles. The little attraction being the birthday cake with its three candles. The little guests were Russell Hanson, Loren Ray Meade, Gordon Francis, Theo. Wite, Marian Lee, Mary Anna Reinbrecht, Adeline Fleer and Opal and Pearl Schneider, the latter two assisting with the games and luncheon. The Social Circle met last Wednesday afternoon of last week with Mrs. Harold Quinn. Fifteen members returned to roll call with articles on assigned subjects. Early school experiences were related by each member after which quilt blocks were cut for the quilt the club plans to give to the Nebraska Children's Home at Lincoln. The hostess served luncheon. Guests beside club members were Mrs. C. E. Benschoff, Mrs. Gurney Benschoff, Mrs. Mark Benschoff, Mrs. Emil Swanson, Mrs. Rasmus Nelson, Mrs. Alvan Young and Miss Beew. The next meeting will be with Mrs. J. Bruce Wylie.

Marjorie Wagner celebrated her sixth birthday Friday, treating her school mates to candy bars. The first and second grades had a perfect week last week. Holte Francis celebrated his eighth birthday Monday. He treated his school mates to candy bars. The pupils of the third and fourth grades are enjoying their new chairs. Joy Jensen was absent all week on account of illness in the family. The fifth grade is studying the New England states. They are making posters illustrating the industries and products of this group. Native Erzbium and Arminio Hillier returned to school Wednesday after a few days' absence on account of illness. Plans are being made in the high school to organize a basketball team. The fifth and sixth grades are choosing sides for a health contest to be held on October 5 and continue for four weeks. The side gaining the greatest number of points by observing ten of health checks will be entertained by the losers.

The seventh grade is making coffee and rubber booklets this week. Joy Jensen, Elsie Fleer and Robert Wylie were absent from high school Monday. The high school boys brought their health checks to school Monday afternoon and cleaned the ground for basketball. Supt. Rhodes superintended the work.

Methodist Church. The pastor has been returned for another year and was greeted by fair congregations last Sunday at both services though the roads were not good. We hope to see even more at the services next Sunday. Let us start right at the beginning to make this year's work the biggest the charge has ever had.

The W. F. M. S. meets on Friday afternoon of this week in the church basement. Mrs. George K. Moore and Mrs. Alex Gaebler are hostesses. The regular meeting of the Home Department on Tuesday afternoon, October 6.

The young people will have their first meeting this fall next Sunday night. This will be a get-together meeting to formulate plans for the year with a very short devotional meeting beginning at 6:30. Regular preaching service next Sunday both morning and evening. The evening subject will be "Patience." The evening service will change from 8 to 7:30 p. m.

A. L. Bixby, Nebraska Poet, Visits Wayne

Dr. A. L. Bixby, for thirty-five years poet and philosopher of the Nebraska Journal, accompanied by Mrs. Bixby, motorist to Wayne Thursday afternoon and remained here until Friday afternoon, guests of the Herald family. Dr. Bixby, who was taken on a tour of the city, visiting the State Teachers College, Breagter park and Goulety club grounds.

On invitation, Friday morning, Dr. Bixby talked to the students of the high school, being introduced by J. H. King, president of the school board. Dr. Bixby reviewed early-day experiences and recited some of his poems, to the delight of his audience. His happy-optimism and wistful good humor, reflected in his "Daily Drift" were in evidence and were thoroughly appreciated.

Dr. Bixby had the following in his "Daily Drift," in Sunday's Journal, concerning his trip here: Wayne, Neb., Sept. 24.—Dear Wayne: A happy and appropriate slogan for any and all residents of our fair state who yearn for change, are not quite certain what ails them, is "See Nebraska First." People who travel by rail from Julesburg to the jumping-off place, get the impression from the generous width and length of the Platte valley, that the state is about as flat as a board and, as some one once facetiously remarked when you have seen a corn field you have seen it all.

Tonight Mollie and I are domiciled under the hospitable roof of E. W. Huss, editor and publisher of one of the very best weekly papers in the west. I modeled in make up and with an editorial page that people read because the editor has convictions and the effort to spite his mind without any childish reserve through fear of offending his appreciative constituents.

We drove up from Lincoln this morning by way of Fremont and up the Elkhorst valley as far as Wisner, and for 22 miles over as glorious a rolling prairie as ever feasted the hungry eyes of a city resident pining for change of scenery. And all the way to the broad Missouri valley this sort of thing continues, miniature mountains, now clad in green and gold, are picturesque in the suggestion of things worth while than the more commanding views where the great old earth is corrugated with rocky eminences that spell nothing but desolation.

Thru this region Mollie and I drove the Texas ponies when we first came west in response to Horace Greeley's advice. Then this country of Wayne with its state normal school, and paved streets, and a population of 9,000, was not even a wild conjecture. The county seat, at La Porte, seven miles southeast of here—had a small brick court house, a blacksmith shop, one little store, and great hopes for the future which were doomed to perish for the court house is now a private residence. It was forty-seven years ago when we drove across the hills and stopped at La Porte for a frugal noonday lunch. It was the night before that we stopped at a sod house some miles above on the Logan crest where the old man said he didn't get lonesome because he was busy during the day and evenings sat outside his little shack and "listened to the corn grow."

That was the inspiration for a poem written many years later with which a good many Nebraska people are familiar. Then the road across from Sioux City wound among the hills through a region very sparsely settled, and no timber in any direction save scattered patches along the streams that flowed toward the Missouri or Elkhorst rivers. Of course the transformation is indescribable, from the wilderness of an uncultivated region to one with a teeming population where every prospect bright and man is only vile who has had a bad bringing up.

As we came through Wisner, clean and thrifty little city, I thought of the evening we drove down the long hill into town forty-seven years ago. Then it was a hamlet, with high hopes for the future. It was the northwestern terminus of the Fremont and Elkhorst railroad, and its train, with freight and passenger combined, was tri-weekly.

Of course we stopped a little while in Fremont for a visit with L. D. Richards and two or three other old friends who were more in the limelight some five years ago than now. Some time ago Mr. Richards wrote to Corporal James Tanner, suggesting that the next meeting of the G. A. R. be in Washington, and that the confederate veterans be invited to the convocation. At first the corporal demurred. He had two perfectly good eyes shot out from under him at Bull Run, and was ill disposed to forgive the ones who did the shooting, but he softened when Richards wrote that all of those engaged against him at Bull Run were dead.—BIX.

Culled from Herald's Exchanges for Week S. L. Criss bought the James Keogh case in Pierce last week. The Boone county fair which was held at Albion last week was a great success. Herman Wendt died September 17 at the home of his daughter, Mrs.

Huber of Madison. Mr. Wendt's death was caused by the effect of a stroke.

Work on the new municipal light and power plant in Bloomfield has been started. The Wausau band will broadcast a program from the Norfolk News radio station Nov. 3.

The contract for gravelling the Albion-Genoa road was let last week to the Platt Gravel Company of Schuyler.

Lew Tuttle of Allen was quite badly injured last week when he fell from a load of shingles he was taking to his home.

James Black of Randolph, former Wayne State Normal student, is studying to be a veterinarian at Ames, Ia., this year.

Bess Gearhart Morrison of Lincoln, will read "The Pool" in Laurel, Oct. 5. Each of fifty men will invite ten to the program.

Charles A. Lyons and Mrs. Emma Lassau of Laurel, were married in Sioux Falls, S. D., last week at a church north of Laurel.

Lightning struck the cattle shed on the George Bohl place near Plainview last week and destroyed the building. Several tons of hay were also lost.

Frank Krapchy of Wisner and Edgar Havens of Fremont, have leased the Blackstone ranges in Norfolk. J. W. Lewis was the former proprietor.

An automobile tour has been established to give Allen and Edgerton in the same line not having Sunday railroad service, the Sunday papers.

The annual Stanton county fair is in progress this week. The Walter Savidge carnival company is there. Races and a better baby contest are features.

Dr. G. B. Desmarois of Pierce sold his practice to Dr. Walter Benthal of Omaha. The former will go to Philadelphia to take another course in medicine.

The new $20,000 Lutheran church in South Sioux City was dedicated Sunday. Rev. Gagee Mortenson, pastor, was assisted in the services by other ministers of the vicinity.

Miss Verna Stallbaum of Emerson, and Carl Harder of Silver Creek, Dixon county, were married Sept. 23 at the Martinsburg Lutheran church.

They will live on the Harder farm at Silver Creek.

The machine digging the drainage ditch northwest of Wakefield, and close to Laurel. The ditch directing the southwest branch of the ditch, completed its work between Wayne and Wakefield. The two will drain the land and straighten the Logan in many places.

A new school building has been erected and is ready for use in district 37 of Cedar county. Fred Johnson, Frank McNeal of Hartington and Sam Case of Wausau are directors of the district. The structure cost $3,000 and replaces the one built in 1860. A picnic for patrons was held last week.

Cedar county teachers met at Hartington last Thursday and Friday for the annual institute. Instructors were J. W. Seaman of the state university, Supt. J. H. Beveridge of Omaha, H. O. Eason of Lincoln and Miss Myrtle Mills and Miss Maude Brown, headmaster and primary teachers in Des Moines.

Here Are New Styles In Hair

GOVERNOR MIRIAM FERGUSON

MRS. EDITH WILLMANS

New styles will prevail in hair-dressing this winter, say members of the National Hairdressers' Association. Here are four styles that may well be the most popular. From top to bottom, pictures were posed by Miss Marie Bolson, Miss Betty Bianchi, Miss Beth Hoffman and Ida Peterson.

GOVERNOR MIRIAM FERGUSON

MRS. EDITH WILLMANS

THE Hon. Miriam Ferguson is to see two women campaigning for the gubernatorial nomination in Texas. Out for the Democratic nomination for governor, which is equivalent to election in Texas, is Mrs. Edith Willmans, Kansaswoman of Dallas.

She is a good speaker, a good mixer and a good politician. Against her will be Governor "Ma" Ferguson elected a year ago on an anti-Klan ticket.

While Mrs. Ferguson is not reputed to be a good speaker, she is known to have quite a following because of the popularity of her husband.

Jim was impeached by the Texas Senate a few years ago and disqualifies for office.

Politicians expect Mrs. Willmans to make quite an attack upon Mrs. Ferguson's pardon record. Since taking office she has issued about 300 pardons.

Thousands are Profiting by the Big Buy in Gasoline!

Are you eager to learn of a gasoline which positively is superior to ordinary gasoline, yet retains at the same price? Thousands of motorists—men and women who appreciate our efforts to supply extra value—now use Skelly Gasoline. Every day new users, new friends, are won. Many who have tested it critically, both in the laboratory and on the road.

The Skelly Triple Trial 1. Fill on the tank the first time with Skelly Gasoline. 2. When the tank is low, fill up again. Still there is some Skelly. 3. Fill up for the third time. Skelly gasoline is there with all the safety power, all the life it has, and all its Skelly response. Now compare!

say Skelly Gasoline is good enough to sell at a premium. Yet it doesn't. Probably you do not wish to test Skelly Gasoline in a laboratory, but you can in your car. The Skelly Triple Trial has been evolved so that you may make a simple, fair test of Skelly Gasoline. Three times in a row fill up the tank with Skelly Gasoline. Then compare!

Order to Show Cause.

In the District Court of Wayne County, Nebraska.

In the matter of the application of A. R. Davis, administrator of the estate of David Roberts, deceased, for leave to sell real estate.

Whereas A. R. Davis, administrator of the estate of David Roberts, deceased, having presented his petition under oath, praying for license to sell the following described real-estate of said David Roberts, to-wit: the east one-third of Lots eight, nine and ten (8-9-10), Block one (A) East Addition to Wayne, Nebraska, or a sufficient amount thereof to bring the same to $5000.00, for the payment of debts allowed against said estate, and the costs of administering said estate, for the reason that there is no personal property in possession of said A. R. Davis, administrator belonging to said estate to pay said debts and costs.

It is therefore ordered that all persons interested in said estate appear before me at chambers, in the courthouse in the city of Wayne, Wayne County, Nebraska, on the 16th day of November, 1925, at the hour of 9 o'clock p. m., to show cause if any there be why a license should not be granted to said A. R. Davis, administrator to sell so much of the above-described real estate of said decedent, as shall be necessary to pay said debts and expenses.

It is further ordered that a copy of this order be served upon all persons interested in said estate by causing to be published for four successive weeks in the Wayne Herald, a legal weekly newspaper, printed, published and of general circulation in said Wayne County, Nebraska.

Anson A. Welch, Judge of the District Court.

Begin Here Today.

Norman Slater, in love with Kathleen Glesler, searches for her on a moonlit night after the dead body is left to visit a lonely spot by Sir Dudley who wishes to marry her to ally suspicion that he is the murderer of her brother, James Glesler. Slater is made prisoner by Sir Dudley's agent, when James Wrage, detective, assigned to the case begins a search for the two young lovers.

Now Go On With the Story.

The Whispering Gallery. Inspector Wrage followed the old butler through the green baize door on the tip-toe of expectation. Here at last was a man who for years had been the very heart of the happenings which led up to the Beechwood mystery and who seemed to want to tell him things. The party proved to be a cozy and secluded den, far removed from the clutter of the kitchen and evidently a salubrious retreat which minor satellites of the house had been not dare to intrude upon. Hinkley produced a bottle of wine and with trembling fingers filled two glasses.

"All shaken up, sir," he said. "I heard you tell the master that Miss Kathleen and Captain Slater have closed—didn't you?" "There was no news of the sort," replied the butler. "Both of us and Lady Marrables set on the match. There's something behind it all." "Wrage felt that you were good policy. I'm confident for confidence. I agree with you," he said. "I don't mind telling you that for the moment, in a more confidential way than Kathleen Glesler's safety than with backing her brother's murderer."

"What exactly do you apprehend has befallen her, Mr. Hinkley?" "God knows," was the reply. "I don't trust the master since our young lady turned against him over the matter of her engagement to Slater. He was away all yesterday till late at night and he went out again after breakfast this morning. I don't know just what he was up to."

"See here, Mr. Hinkley, all this is very serious," the inspector said in his most emphatic tone. "The gravity has been increased by the arrival of the lady who admitted as I was leaving the library. I have reason to believe that she is culpably implicated in the case."

"No error there, sir," the butler rejoined with quivering heart. "I can't be too strongly advised to Lady Glesler—you can lay that to it. It would suit her to rights for the girl the master hankered after to meet with foul play."

"You are a colleague to be proud of," Wrage pursued his advantage. "You're raising my suspicions. I've crept back into the entrance hall and use my ears at the library door?" "The butler's face lit up with sardonic gleam. He could do anything but what he said. "I'll take you up to the whispering gallery. You can hear every word spoken in the library and any other room in the house."

"Wrage finished his wine and stood up. "Take me there at once," he said. "We need any of the maids you are a plumber, sir," rejoined Hinkley. "But they met no maids as with all due caution they mounted a bare staircase, traversed several corridors and came to a spare bedroom on the front landing. Here the butler did something to the carpet matting that made it possible for them to pass through a suddenly disclosed aperture in the wall to a narrow space that smelt of all the ages. "There is the Judd-hole," said Hinkley, pointing to a pin-prick of light in the darkness of the secret passage. "I will wait in the bedroom, but I must shut you in or you won't hear anything. Tap when you want to come out."

"The butler did back into place and Wrage at once heard voices in heated altercation. "I don't believe you," the woman was saying. "You've got the girl somewhere and you are trying to force her to marry you. I want you here and now, Dudley; that I won't let you go. You had better marry me or take the consequences."

Wrage's eye was glued to the Judd-hole by now. The scene before him was a library as it viewed from a stage box, yet he was peering through a perforation in the wall so small that it might have been the puncture of a needle. "The consequences" sneered the master of Beechwood. "What consequences can you threaten me with, my dear boy?" She raised one of her clenched fists. "I will denounce you to Scotland Yard," she replied in low, tense tones. "I will report to the police the revelations of my brother's diary, showing how you faked the details of George Glesler's death. Simon Trickey shall come back from the grave to accuse you."

Sir Dudley's laugh rang out unafraid. "If Simon is dug up he will make it a good deal hotter for you than for me," he retorted. "You are hardly in a position to throw stones from your poor little glass house, Ivy. Your disclosure to me about last night and of poison would interest Scotland Yard far more than your unconfirmed recollections of Simon's diary."

"For a moment the woman seemed to be nonplussed by the baronet's counterstroke. "I don't care," she broke out again. "I'll go to the gallows gladly, if you were to hang too. And Simon's diary will work that all right."

"But you haven't got Simon's diary, have you?" "Sir Dudley returned. "Look here, Ivy, I don't believe you were fool enough to burn Simon's record, which would be your own real trial by a jury. I will give you ten thousand pounds for it." "You brute—to suppose I want your money," her anger rang out. "I have got to accept my terms or I give you anyway."

Sir Dudley shrugged and, walking to the table, poured himself a stiff drink. "If that is your ultimatum, here's mine," he said calmly. "As soon as you start giving me away I shall lay an information against you for doing Simon's dirty."

Wrage's complaint thought that the information was as good as laid, but he was not to be so easily deterred. He flashed on his vision from the quarter apart from the principal actors in the scene before him. It took place outside one of the French windows of the library, and as it focussed through the monkish spy-hole on the retina of the detective, that it gave him the surprise of his life. The whole pile of evidence built up during the last ten minutes fell with a crash.

For standing outside the window, his fishy eyes staring through the plate glass into the library, was Mr. Simon Trickey. He didn't look as if he had been buried very deep, unless it was in the recesses of a saloon bar. His nose was perhaps a little more flattened and his cheek suit hung a little looser than when Wrage had seen him last. But there was no doubt that he was very much alive, and deeply interested in the couple in the library.

Wrage concentrated all his attention on immediate developments. Did the reprobate intend to reveal his presence, and if not what were the chances that he would be able to retrace his steps without being seen? Mrs. Coningsby had her back to the window and unless she turned round the apparition there would remain unnoticed by her so long as it preserved silence. But Sir Dudley had only to raise his eyes from the woman confronting him and he could hardly fail to perceive the malign countenance of his former clerk.

This was exactly what happened. In setting down his empty glass the baronet had to turn slightly to the window, and the detective, watching him like an cat, saw by the gleam of surprised horror that he had recognized Trickey. Wrage could scarcely contain himself. Wood Sir Dudley rushed forward, flung open the window and demanded explanations from the disolute blackmailer who had so maliciously risen from the dead, or would he conceal his discovery from the woman who had somehow failed to administer a fatal dose to the man outside?

Five seconds later, by the masterly manner in which he adopted the latter course, Sir Dudley had earned a grudging respect of admiration from the detective. With perfect composure he addressed the lady in the only way possible if he was not to loosen his hold on her by revealing her failure.

"Well," he said. "Are you going to face the music, Ivy?" "The shortest way down to the garden, Mr. Hinkley?" he begged. "There is not a moment to spare." The butler gave some brief directions and a minute later Wrage emerged from the gun-room door by which Norman and Kathleen had left the mansion on the previous evening's flight. A few steps brought him round the angle of the house and so into view of his quarry. Mr. Simon Trickey was still hovering near the library window, having only withdrawn far enough to be invisible from the interior.
