Change in Method of Handling the Six Weeks' Examination in the High School

Under New Rule—Best Studies, Formerly Given in Weeks—Exhibit Benefit of Practice.

The method of conducting the six weeks' examinations has been changed for this year. Last year the examinations were given on the last two days of every six-week period with an average of ninety per cent or above were exempted. The defect in this plan was that the best students had to practice the art of writing examinations. Under our new plan all students will write on the examinations. But the better students will be given recognition in this plan. Three lists, one for this average in all subjects, is 90 per cent or above, one for those whose average in all subjects is 80 per cent or above and another for those whose average is 80 per cent or above, will be made. These eligible for these lists must be perfect in attendance and satisfactory in citizenship. These lists will be posted on the high school bulletin board and will be published in our high school column.

The program for examinations is as follows:

Thursday of the fifth week, first period examinations with second period omitted.

Friday of the fifth week, second period examinations with first period omitted.

Monday of the sixth week, third period examinations and fourth period omitted.

Tuesday, fourth period examinations and third period omitted.

Wednesday, fifth period examinations and sixth period omitted.

Thursday, sixth period examinations and fifth period omitted.

Friday, seventh period examinations and seventh period omitted.

All other classes in the day except those continued during periods used for examinations will be conducted the same as on regular school days.

New spring there will be interstate high school examinations held at the Wayne campus. By having all students write the examinations of the six-week terms, they will have practice in writing examinations. They will be better prepared for the tests next spring.

If a student receives the highest score on a subject or subjects at the Wayne Normal tests, he will be sent to Lincoln to compete with all the other honored students of the state. He would be sent in honor of the school, besides to the person himself, to be sent as a representative from the Wayne high.

Loyalty.
A good citizen is loyal. Citizens of Wayne and Wayne high will show their loyalty by coming to the games and helping the team. Enthusiasm and support are the things that the activities of Wayne high need in order to live. You can furnish this if you are loyal.

Athletic Notes.
The Wayne high school football team will meet the Ponca high football team at Ponca Friday, Oct. 17.

The game which was scheduled with Wakefield for last Friday, Oct. 9, was cancelled. Wakefield dropped football this year on account of lack of men.

The schedule is as follows:

Nov. 11, Wayne at Neigh.
Nov. 18, Wayne at Laurel.

The ninth grade has more boys than girls this year and Mrs. Ellis Pollard, principal of the high school, said that she hoped that the class has the same proportion at graduation because not many of the classes that are graduated have more boys than girls.

Sophomore News.
Edythe Prescott was absent from school Tuesday and Wednesday afternoon.

William Anderson was absent Wednesday morning.
Miss Segner has found it necessary to change some of the students from one division of his ancient history class to the other division.

The sophomore history class is making maps of the ancient empires.

Junior Class Notes.
Monday night the junior class held a business meeting. The president was given jurisdiction to appoint a social committee, and it was decided to hold a party in the near future.

The meeting was adjourned by the president.

Senior Class Notes.
The six weeks' exams have started in full force at the Wayne high school.

The following conversation was heard during an English class:

while even the plish types earned steady rates.
Selected western feeders commanded a peak in advance of $9, while the bulk of the fair to good kinds sold from $7 to over $8, with decent ordinary kinds hitting in a spread of $6 to $6.75 and plain kinds landed around $5. Low grade and trashy junk touched the price list around $4 and occasionally under.
Fishes feeding better passed out of first hands as high as $6.50, while the selected kinds, but thin, stopped at $5. Fair to good kinds sold from $4.25 to $5.50, with plain kinds sold $4 down to $3.50. Wat-hairy cogs topped at $4.25 and the bulk of the good-night feeding cogs clustered around the $3.75 mark. Steady prices obtained generally.
Hogs are taking a toboggan ride and sellers seem to be able to do little to prevent the discounting. Moreover lights are now suffering the worst of the ill treatment, with the result that medium weight butchers have been the market toppers for the last several days. Heavier butchers are closing in and it is generally expected that lights will be worth less than packing sows in another four weeks.

Market Report
Furnished By Swanson, Gilmore & Walsh, Sioux City, Mo. Yards.

Oct. 14—The western delivery of this week indicates that the crest of the seasonal movement was passed last week for the year 1925. The 11 leaders report an aggregate of 21,000 cattle, not including calves for the first two days of the week, a decrease of approximately 25,000 head, as compared to the record incoming movement of the previous week.
In view of the diminished, although still liberal supplies, the market held up well and no signs of weakness were permitted to creep into operations.
The percentage of the liquidation comprised of corn fed was very light, as has been the case for some weeks past. Packers took over such dry lot stuff as they could find at steady prices. A $15 peak is quotable for ripe material, but the best offered this week proved to be well advanced yearlings at $14.50. Included in the same consignment were some yearling heifers that earned $12.50, also a top.
Desirable grass killing steers sold firm, while the rank and file of the grassers sold steady. Toppes passed $2.50, while the bulk of the fair to good rangers brought $7 to over $8 to the killers, with ordinary kinds from $6 to $6.75 and plain kinds from $5 to $5.50.
Grass butchers opened steady and somewhat slow, but quickly hit their stride and entered the market here, which was never left a goose—good heifers are worth to $8, with big western cows around $6.50. The bulk of the fair to good butchers sold from $5 to $6.25, with plain and low grade stuff from $4 to $4.50, and ready turnover at such prices.
Canners and cutters continued the active sale they have been for three consecutive weeks. All sales landed in a spread of $3 to $3.75. Bulls were also in buoyant demand at such prices. Pair to choice bolognas sold consistently from $4 to $4.75. Veals topped at $10 daily.
Notwithstanding an expected slowdown in operations here because the annual stocker and feeder show passed into history last week, the market held up well. Liberal incoming supplies were freely moved back to stock fields and into feed lots. Some of the most attractive kinds sold strong.

Instructors Hear Valuable Program

Annual Wayne County Teachers Institute Held Here Thursday and Friday

Teachers of Wayne county met at the high school building in Wayne last Thursday and Friday for the annual institute planned by Miss Pearl E. Sewell, Supt. of Schools.

Dr. Supt. Beverage of the county is primary instructor in the Lincoln schools, I. N. Clark of the state superintendent's office in Lincoln, and Miss Ruth Doudna who is a teacher of music in the Wayne city school, were instructors and gave much of the value to those in attendance.

Dr. Supt. Beverage stated that education depends on physical, intellectual, and social welfare and ethical welfare. Every organ of the body should perform properly in order that the child may be physically fit. In the attitude of the way the individual thinks, feels and acts should be controlled into right directions. In social life the child should be able to understand and act in ethical welfare he should receive instruction in character building. Education should mean acquiring of knowledge, skill, right attitude and power. There are two types of students, Supt. Beverage stated, and they are the motor-minded and the synthetic-minded. The teacher must know each. To be educated the child has a right to and must have physical, mental, literary, ethical, institutional and religious inheritance and the school does much in providing most of these.

Supt. Beverage spoke at the institute on "The Type of Teacher We Want." He stated that teaching had been defined by some as a profession, by others as an occupation and by others as a vocation. A good teacher must be a vocation, able to put herself in the place of others in order that she may understand the children. She must have accumulated a wealth of knowledge. She should live actively, invigorating her learning by reading constantly to her information. She must be willing to be subordinated in order that the child may be developed. Lastly, she must have a pleasing and attractive personality that will inspire.

Miss Henzgen spoke on "Individual Problems in Teaching." She gave a list of many types of pupils one will find in every school. Each type requires an individual treatment and the teacher should be as far as possible understand these characteristics and be able to handle each. A teacher must put herself on the child's level and by so doing motivate him to best work.

The instructor who is able to connect the things a child is interested in with the things he does not care about will lead the pupil to do all his work with interest.

Mr. Clark, in an address on "Vitalized Education," stated that the vital is not the formal study of history and literature, but the living, active learning. Children learn by doing, asserted Mr. Clark, and for this reason he favors the laboratory method of teaching. He stated that he would have each pupil take an active part in the recitation.

Supt. Beverage, in dealing with the subject of "What We Are Trying to Do in Our Schools Today," told of the plan to substitute the recitation for the lecture. He explained the organization of the school into a group with a council similar to the city life.

Sectional conferences were held and the instructors as well as teachers of this county took part in discussions of topics of interest in school affairs.

In each session Miss Doudna led singing and arranged special features for each day. Edmund Werner and Miss Lola Peck of the Carroll school, accompanied by Miss Mildred Reed at the piano, sang solos. The wind instruments sang composition written by Mrs. H. N. Rhodes. Wayne teachers sang and Miss Ruth Anderson of Wayne gave readings. Supt. Hook the olympics in developing the bodies of participants. Those with the strongest bodies are usually the best placed mentally. The pupil needs good food, plenty of rest and regular recreation. As to the recreation, continual and systematic training of the body is the kind that counts, according to Supt. Beverage.

Mr. Clark, in speaking on "The New Course of Study," explained the individual instruction plan carried out in Wisconsin. Here pupils are allowed to go on as fast as they are able and each receives only individual instruction. Mr. Clark stated that the method fails to give the children the inspiration of competition and it does not give them social values which are the basis of character. He stated of the method of memorizing, explaining that it is purposeful, requiring recall, repetition and constant attention. Work should be of the senses of the child. Subject matter should be organized. These considerations are of importance in the new course being used in the rural schools of this state.

Supt. Beverage closed the institute session with a talk on "Stopping Land Slides." This has been the fact that all great things have been accomplished by some or other person who followed the advice in this subject. To do is to think, to look is to gather facts and to listen is to classify the facts. By so doing the problems are solved. Supt. Beverage urged teachers to lead the All County Club and not drivers of students. He also urged each to read one hour a day and add one new word to the vocabulary each day. He stated that by reading one hour each day a person may gain the knowledge from thousands of books in a short time and have a fund of information of the highest value. He also explained the importance of reading in a short time and how it is possible to read a better hold of the language than any great writer of the past.
