

New Machine Is Tested At Plant

Large Boiler Is Put Into Operation for the First Time Tuesday This Week.

Will Carry The Load

Water Extension in Roosevelt Park Is Finished and Is Accepted by Council.

The new boiler, ordered last June and recently installed in the city power plant, was tested Tuesday for the first time and it was able to carry the load which has been divided between the two smaller boilers. The city council visited the power plant after the business meeting Tuesday evening and watched the machine in operation.

The improvement in the power plant has been completed just in time for the winter. The winter months take more electricity and the people of Wayne are using an increasing amount for heating. These demands made the larger boiler a necessity at this time. The new boiler will probably be used only in case of emergency and at times the large machine is being used for the extra load demanded. The improvement in the power plant has been about $35,000.

The sewer extension north of the Bessler park has been completed and the work was accepted at a previous meeting.

The council at the business session Tuesday voted to accept the water extension and the sewer extension. This addition to the mains has just been completed and the work is satisfactory. The improvement gives the city a better water supply and city water. It also carries water to the stock pavilion.

Twenty-Eight Cars Shipped In and Out

Stock shipments from Wayne and the following: Harvey Haas, Albert Bates, W. S. Stuehman, Louis L. Gramberg, Fred Ellis, and Charles Meyer, Jr., each one car of hogs and one car of cattle; Ernest Harjell, four cars of cattle to Omaha; Chris Hanson and George Holckman, each two cars of cattle to Omaha; Rev. C. L. Stager, one car of hogs and one car of cattle; W. M. Suggers and A. G. Sydnor, each one car of cattle to Sioux City. Stock shipments into Wayne for the week: W. M. Suggers and A. G. Sydnor, one car of hogs; and Andrew Stamm, one car of hogs; and W. C. Schultze, one car of cattle.

Cream and Milk Are Spilled On Street

Cream and milk flowed down one street in Wayne Tuesday morning. The reason was that the milk and cream delivery automobile driven by William Weber and Roy L. Stager by Harry Granquist collided at the southeast corner of the school building. The Weber car was going west on the Grand and ran into the south when the accident happened. Several bottles of cream, thirty quarts of milk and fifty pints of coffee spilled and the bottles broken. The Weber car had a fender bent and the curtains broken. The Granquist car had the windshield broken and fenders bent.

Mrs. C. W. King Dies In Council Bluffs

Mrs. C. W. King, resident of Wayne for a number of years, passed away at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Arthur King, in Council Bluffs, Iowa, Nov. 15, aged past 83 years. The King family moved from Wayne about twenty-five years ago. Mrs. King was a devoted and active member of the Acme club. Besides Mrs. Mickel she leaves another daughter, Mrs. Mary King of Council Bluffs, and a young son of Tacoma, Wash.

Encampment Meets To Elect Officers

The Encampment of Odd Fellows met Nov. 23 and elected officers as follows for the ensuing year: Chief patriarch, H. C. Hostetter; senior warden, Harry McMillan; junior warden, Herman Lundberg; scribe, Frank Korff; treasurer, Herman Lundberg; and junior warden, Frank Sedstrom. Johnson-Behmer, Miss Mary Mae Behmer of Norfolk, teaching in the Wayne and Stanton city schools, and Mr. Harold Johnson of Stanton will be members in the Regis neighborhood south of Hoskins, were married at Stanton. Arthur Behmer and Miss Martha Puss of Norfolk, accompanied them.

Christmas. Christmas marks the beginning of Christian civilization. It commemorates the nativity of the world's noblest character. It teaches the generous, helpful fellowship which the Nazarene exemplified. Wayne is resplendent with varicolored lights and suitable holiday decorations. It will realize the Christmas spirit and in its series of programs it will impress the importance of kindness and good cheer. It is hoped that the Christmas idea that has come down through the centuries will, through emphasis given by the month's events, instill a more exalted conception of life, its duty and service.

Retail Manager Will Speak Here

J. W. Griest of Chicago, Will Lecture on Need of Practical Business Training.

J. W. Griest, general manager of the Retail Merchants Institute of Chicago, will speak to Wayne Kiwanis after their noonday luncheon on Monday.

His subject will be "The Need of Practical Training in Business." The aim of the institute which Mr. Griest represents is to assist local retail merchants in planning trade extension and constructive community work. The institute also conducts intensive short courses in salesmanship, personal efficiency, advertising, business management and control.

Mr. Griest stresses cooperation as the keynote to the successful conduct of any business or any community. He makes a plea for organization in business, asserting that trade difficulties can be solved by this intelligent working together, with the best interests of the community in mind, is the secret of successful work against mail order business, Mr. Griest believes.

Mail Delivered First Wednesday

City Postal Service Is Established With Carriers on Two Routes In Wayne.

To Make Five Trips

Men Go to Business Section Four Times and Residence Section Twice Each Day.

Postal delivery was started in Wayne Wednesday morning with 2500 papers being served on the two routes established. The schedule of four deliveries in the business district and two in the residence district each day will be carried out excepting on Sundays, according to Postmaster J. C. Herne.

The first persons to be served with mail delivery yesterday were Maxon W. M. Orr and Pres. U. S. Conroy. The route in the west part of Wayne and Richard Banister is temporary carrier for the east route.

The carriers report at 8:30 take the mail of the previous evening to the business district. Fair Association Stockholders Elect Officers and Directors Here Tuesday

Report Shows Management in County Was Very Successful in Work This Year.

Stockholders of the Wayne County Fair association met Tuesday evening in Wayne and reelected officers for the ensuing year as follows: H. J. Major, president; H. C. Gray, vice president; R. W. Ley, treasurer; and W. E. Von Seggern, secretary. On the board of directors Frank Erwin, William Herman and David Herne were elected to serve for three years.

Much favor was expressed by stockholders in regard to the management and success of the fair this fall. Cost of improvements on the grounds this year amounted to $25,500, exclusive of tree-truck, labor, for which was donated. The association has a surplus of $1,800 from fall receipts. The fall receipts were $1,800, paid as soon as possible from receipts and from stock sold.

The board holds a meeting soon to select a committee to manage the year next fall. At this time also a delegate to the County Fair Managers' association meeting to be held in Lincoln the third Tuesday in January will be chosen.

Main Points in the President's Message

Washington, Dec. 8.—The message which President Coolidge sent to congress last December 8th, strikingly characterized his administration. The highlights: "The fundamental principle of our government is not that of local government but of national government. The government has no justification for taking private property, except for a public purpose. The power over the purse is the power over life. It has always been our policy to retire our debts. Our economy must be constructive. Economy is the method by which we prepare today to afford the improvements of tomorrow. The government must reduce expenditures in order to secure a reduction in taxes. That purpose is about to be achieved. The policy of our foreign relations is solely on the foundation of peace, good will, and good works. It is our policy to support any court (world court), it will not be one that we have set up alone or which reflects only our ideals. The standard which we apply to a large degree for economic purposes. We ought to have no prejudice against an alien because he is an alien. The standard which we apply to our inhabitants is that of manhood not place of birth. Bigotry is another name for slavery. Agriculture is a very complex industry. It does not consist of one problem but of several. The government should support agriculture to the place all out of proportion with the high standard. We do not support any of the modern industry has many of the aspects of war in the modern world. The government should make no permanent gains at the cost of the general welfare. All the victories won by organized labor have been won through the support of public opinion. In all your deliberations, you should remember that the purpose of legislation is to translate principles into action."

Stress Importance of Current Events In Wayne High School Reading Habits

Basketball Team Starts Practice for Season's Schedule—Other News of Week.

Current Events.
We live now, not in the dead past nor in the dim future. We live in the vital present, the throbbing, interesting, important now.
No fact is isolated in history and every fact bears some definite relation to another so when we know and understand current topics we know and understand the past and have a firm foundation for the future.

Every occupation and every business enterprise laid upon present-day conditions and the one who manages cannot hope to succeed with little or no knowledge of these conditions.

The affairs of our nation and state constitute a part of the present and current events. Do you know your nation is failing? Do you know what the leaders of to-day are doing? Do you understand the conditions and the problems with which they are dealing? Is it your country. This is the government of the people, for the people and by the people and it is your duty as citizens and as future citizens to watch its progress in the current periodicals and daily newspapers.

The long promised "Library table" has at last materialized and with it has come your opportunity to read the current magazines and papers.

Athletic Notes.

With the football record for the past season put away, Wayne high school is looking forward to the basketball season. Practices began in the latter part of the week and on December with eleven men out for first night. The number increased to twelve on the second night. The team is left with much to do to the fact that some have been unable to acquire suits while other prospective men will be ineligible to take the opening of the second semester.

Coach Peterson will drill his boys on the fundamentals of basketball for a short period and then get on with the plays. The squad is rather inexperienced but contains players who will be able to get hold of the game in due time. At present there is only one basketball letter man out, but another efficient card is expected to appear in the near future as well as his health permits. Wayne plays the first game with Wakefield Saturday, Dec. 19, at Wakefield.

Senior Class Notes.

Senior class rings and graduation cards were discussed in the last senior meeting.
The freshmen initiation is to be held Saturday, Dec. 12. All high school students are welcome to come. Give your cards to the place in the district in the Citizen's Training camp poster contest.

Junior News.

The junior class met last Friday for the purpose of appointing a committee to select a class play. Bernard Galloway, Lucille Nodden, Elaine Mae Carhart, and Miss Glennie Bacon, were chosen by the chairman to meet with Miss Edith Anderson. Gerald Dennis has been absent from school since the Thanksgiving game on account of illness.
The junior play which will be given sometime toward the last of January, will be coached by Miss Ruth Anderson, commercial aid education teacher of the Wayne high school. It is intended to have the first act started by the Christmas vacation.

Tenth Grade Notes.

The ancient history class has started the study of Rome and the Roman world. It will be interesting to compare the civilization of Italy and Greece with that of to-day.
Friday the divisions of the ancient history class did not have class because they were making maps in connection with the six weeks' work. Bower Segesser will select the best maps to exhibit at the fair next year.

The Two English Classes have been studying a group of short stories among them, "The Ambitious Guest" by Nathaniel Hawthorne and "The Pit and the Pendulum" by Edgar Allan Poe. For Monday the students will write original short stories something on the order of the two named above. No doubt some of our budding authors will be revealed Monday.

Ninth Grade Notes.

The ninth English class is reading "The Lady of the Lake". The class is deeply interested in the story. The English class also has book reports to prepare. The students handed fifty points in before Thanksgiving and they are to have another fifty points in before the Christmas vacation.

Eighth Grade Notes.

Members of the history class are taking an entire review. Five questions selected from any part of history studied before are given. The scheme is a fine one and we realize it was not forgotten quite a bit of our history.
Viola Jones is absent from school on account of sickness.

Windsor Notes.

Mrs. B. F. Straben and Mrs. Oser were in town Saturday afternoon. Rex Davis is a new pupil.

The author is judge of the permanent court of international justice, a member of the Hague court of arbitration and vice president of the Institute of International Law. This volume is the first authoritative and intimate story of the world as it appears in the English language. All of the questions raised about the court inside and out of the senate in the past few years, are answered. The book describes what comes under the court's jurisdiction, the relation of the court to the League of Nations, how judges are selected, the method by which judges do not represent national interests and many other important questions. The book is clear and has a historical perspective. It demonstrates that the court is not a new idea but a result of long-standing and widespread desire for an international tribunal. Delegates Give A Report On Meeting Twenty-five delegates from Nebraska attended the national Anti-Saloon League convention Nov. 9 to 13 in Chicago. A bulletin regarding the convention contains information as follows: "It was a great convention, the greatest in point of numbers, enthusiasm and domesticity. This convention since the convention held in Columbus, Ohio, in 1913 when the campaign for national constitutional prohibition was launched. This convention undoubtedly marks a new and better day for prohibition and law enforcement. "Every one recognized that we face a crisis. In fact it was really a 'crisis convention' but there was not a single note of pessimism sounded during the entire convention. On the other hand it was demonstrated over and over again from public records and the fact that progress is being made and that final victory is assured. "Dr. F. Scott McBride, general superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League, said: "Let us have war to the hilt with the enemies of prohibition. The Lord is on our side. We will win because we are right. "Bishop Thomas Nicholson said: "We have a bigger fight ahead than the adoption of the eighteenth amendment. This is the greatest test of the sanity of our people. The institutions since the Civil War, such as this evil must be torn up root and branch, and forever destroyed. It should challenge the Christian church to such an effort as never before in its history. "Bishop Nicholson as president of the National Anti-Saloon League, moved notice on 'officialism' from the present. He said: "It is no trifling and no nonsense in reference to the eighteenth amendment and law enforcement. "Miss Anna Gordon, national president of the W. C. T. U. said: "There is gravity in the situation but there is glory too. We, the highest, hold the victory. We need more spiritual power than we have had heretofore. "The Anti-Saloon League is not possible for society cannot enjoy half drunk and half sober any more than it can enjoy half dead and half alive. "Raymond Robbins is a very notable editorial attack made by a notable editor on the National Anti-Saloon League. The editor has asked where the Anti-Saloon League gets its resources and how these resources are expended. I know where some of them come from the maudlin and sobs thankful for the fact that because of the Anti-Saloon League they will never have husbands, chaps for their little children, and better furniture for their homes. Some of our funds come from some of the most intelligent working men in our factories who are working to the Anti-Saloon League. They are willing to get out of their automobiles to be engaged 300 working days in the year, because of the larger purchasing power that exists in the homes of the American people through the ceasing of alcoholic waste in this nation. Some of it comes from employers who bear testimony to the increasing efficiency and regularity of labor, the larger power of production in their shops the lessening of injury to materials and broken machinery that comes to view of sober workmen in the United States." WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 16

That is the date of my public sale on the Mrs. K. Weible farm, one-half mile south of Winside. Detailed descriptions appear in an ad. elsewhere in today's Herald, but I wish to emphasize the quality and worth of the offering of nine horses. If you are going to need a good team of horses, you want to attend this sale and inspect these animals.

EXTRA GOOD CATTLE
I am offering twenty head of cattle, including eleven extraordinary milch cows, young and good milkers, fresh or to be fresh soon. Any one wanting stock hogs will snap up the twenty-five head in my offering.

PRACTICALLY NEW FORD TRUCK
The Ford truck I am offering is practically new and has been used very little. It has Russell gear and steel cab. If you need a truck, this is your opportunity.

FARM MACHINERY
We have a most desirable lot of farm machinery, all well kept and in excellent condition. We have Wyanodette chickens, DeLaval cream separator, slat cribbing, bales of oat straw, and many things that will appeal to buyers.

See further particulars in ad. in another place in this paper.

The Desert Flower At Crystal Theatre

The real West was sought out to furnish the backgrounds for Colleen Moore's latest First National offering, "The Desert Flower," which will appear at the Crystal Theatre, Dec. 14 and 15.
When it was necessary to show life in a railroad construction camp at a Western terminus, the producers were able to locate just such a camp forty miles from Berkeley, in California.
When a desert sequence bobbed up in the company's first play, there was the storied Mojave not so far away.
When a mushroom mining town had to be located, the producers abandoned settlement was found—leaving the director free to make unhindered use of it after the picture had done the necessary tinkering and touching up.
These scenes were peopled with players picked primarily for their knowledge of Western customs and habits, so that "The Desert Flower" truly holds up the mirror to nature and is atmospherically and as picturesque as any picture of untrammeled life in the West that was ever possible to present upon the screen.

Mrs. James Kelley, Mrs. Charles Lanham and Elsie Kelley drove to Sioux City Friday. Mrs. Kelley returned for treatment in a hospital and the others came home the same day.

Market Report

Furnished by Steele, Sisk & Co., Sioux City, Stock Yards.

Dec. 9.—At the opening of this week big packers lunched one of the most determined offensives of the season in the big market. Some discounts were scored, but sellers are of the opinion that the losses are not lasting nature and that the latter days of the week will witness a reaction.

The bulls point to continued receipt of contracts in the delivery, which apparently looms as more each week as the season advances. The first two days of this week brought a total of 25,450 head, as against 23,450 head in the corresponding Monday and Tuesday in 1924. Last week receipts ran 33,000 less, as compared to the same week in 1924.

Despite the advanced season light lights are still out in front, although the market has been somewhat less active in the early morning. Top of river market figure around $11 and over 80 per cent of the hogs are of a grade to sell at $11.00.

On the packing side, some clearing of the first two days of the week brought 100,000 sheep and goats to the 11 leading markets of the country, about 15,000 less than arrived the same days last week. The delivery of a brisk external demand and an outlet for pelts as high as any time since the war, resulted in a schedule of bulliness that quickly faded as a series of new tops for the season.

Best fat lambs finished the Monday trade at a $16.70 top and received $14.85 on the Tuesday. Handyweight killing ewes sold to $9.10 and yearlings earned $14.00. Feeding lambs figure to $16. Gains of $1.00 to $1.50 on all the way through the trade, which are over and above the sharp gains of the previous week.

Colorado reports only a 75 per cent crop this year, which indicates a light movement for the late season and a maintenance of prices "on a high level."

Cattle receipts over the first two days at the 11 leaders aggregated 22,500 head, an increase of 6,250 head, over the delivery of the same days last week. In view of the fact that the runs now coming are largely of the short fed class, the increase, though light, was very much felt. Sellers had to work exceptionally hard to maintain rates on last week's level. The quality of the stock is of a quality that is not so good as the quality ran low they were not so successful.

From steady on the best kinds of killing cattle, the outlet for the best of the 25 cents "lower or inferior kinds."

Best steers this week averaged $14.20 pounds and earned $11.50. Some yearlings and yearlings sold from $11 to $11.25 at best arrived on choice, but mostly current arrivals are of a plain to fair short feed class and sell from $7 to $8.00.

Butcher stock received much the same treatment as steers and for much the same reasons. Plain to good quality of the best of the scattered loads of short feeds of fair to good quality, selling from $7 to $9 and a few top kinds up to $11.00.

Feeder calves and yearlings are scattered loads of short feeds of fair to good quality, selling from $7 to $8.00 and a few top kinds up to $11.00.

At which prices only a few sales of steers calves landed. Only a few of the best of the kind are coming right now.

Heifer calves sold to the feeders in lots of 100 and more, mostly of a choice quality sold above $5.75. Fair kinds sold around $5 and plain kinds sold around $4.50 and a few top kinds up to $6.00.

Notice of Hearing.

To the heirs, creditors, and all persons interested in the estate of Jacob Fuoss, deceased:

That the heirs of said estate are hereby notified that Olive Dillon has filed her petition in the County Court of Wayne County, Nebraska, alleging that said Jacob Fuoss and her husband, in Thawville, Ironous County, Illinois, on the 19th of June, 1908.

That at the time of his death he was single and of legal age and interest in the following described real estate, in Wayne County, Nebraska, to-wit: That part of the northwest quarter of section 16, township 26, north range 5, East of the 6th P. M., and left surviving him his wife, Mrs. Mary Fuoss, his daughter, Mary Fuoss, his daughter, the petitioner herein, Olive Dillon, his daughter, Hattie Lige, his daughter, Mrs. J. H. Fuoss, and his daughter, Edward Fuoss. That all claims, debts and demands against said real estate and said estate have been paid in full and each of you are hereby notified that said real estate has been administered in the state of Nebraska. That said Olive Dillon is the owner in fee simple of the above described real estate, to-wit: the northwest quarter of section 16, township 26, north range 5, East of the 6th P. M., Wayne County, Nebraska, above described.

Petitioner prays for a finding and decree determining the date of the death of said Jacob Fuoss, deceased, for the determination of the heirs, the degree of kinship, and the right of descent of said real estate, and for an order barring claims of creditors, and for such other relief as may be proper.

Said petition will be heard at the county court room in the Court House, in Wayne, Wayne County, Nebraska, on the 10th day of December, 1925.

Nebraska, on the 12th day of January, A. D. 1926 at 10 o'clock a. m. in the County Court of Wayne County, Nebraska, in the presence of the heirs, creditors, and all persons interested in said estate may appear and show cause why a decree should be made and entered as prayed in said petition.

Dated this 10th day of December, 1925.

Decorative Papers for Christmas

BY MARJORIE HOWE DIXON

If one is clever with the use of paste, scissors and paper one can make many lovely things that are ever acceptable, and among this year's gift suggestions are new ones of unusual charm.

The use of wall paper to cover boxes is an old story, but a similar idea is popular—the use of small-patterned "Japanese papers." These are available at the art stores in strips, and exceedingly dainty and attractive are the patterns, and designs. When using a wooden box choose a color from the paper, and enamel the inside that color. Thin glue may be used for pasting the paper on the outside. When the top is hinged, a knob made of a large bead may be attached to it and thus add to the joy of the box.

Prints are being used for covers. For a lady, an old print from "Godley's Lady's Book" will appropriately adorn the lid. The inside of the box can be made to compartments with the use of wood partitions. One place should be large enough for a powder box, another for a box of divided tins, and so on.

Use Shellacked Paper

If paper is used to line this box, it should be shellacked, so that gilding will be easy. The easy removal of the partitions will assist, too, to keep it clean. A box of this kind will be a great help for storing the small things that are so hard to keep tidy on the dresser.

Inside the lid a mirror is placed. The edges may be painted or covered with gold braid. It is not always easy to find a print from Godley's Lady's Book, but the old prints will lend themselves to the same purpose. Sometimes an old catalogue of paintings, will contain some very entrancing which will serve excellently.

Besides prints, and patterned papers there is gesso to use in decorating boxes. The effects one may obtain are diverse and varied enough to please everyone, and all sorts of originality can be displayed.

For those who are not familiar with gesso it may be said that it is a thick gummy substance that is applied to rough or "raw" surfaces, to get raised effects, drying in a short time. Besides boxes, picture frames can be made with gesso at the decoration. Gesso can be bought at art stores, and sometimes at department stores.

When you start with a small box to hold playing cards. A small colored picture may be applied to the top, and glued smoothly in place. Feet for the box can be made by using tiny tacks to fasten squares of wood to each corner of the box.

Let us imagine that we want a curved front for the box. The cardboard can be used and glued into the desired shape. Now we are ready for the gesso. A good sized water color brush will be about right to use with gesso. Dip it in the gesso and apply freely all over the box, making a careful outline around the picture. When it is partly dry, varied effects may be obtained by dabbing at it with the brush. Too much rubbing will prevent the gesso from setting. For Christmas gifts, it is a happy idea since no two pieces will be alike, and one can do much interesting work in a very short time. Now cut the gesso, with gesso to allow it to dry. Yes, it gets to be very attractive. The edges of the gilt is softened by the top color, and gently blended to match the picture. It is well to do a small surface at a time, so that the paint will not dry before you have wiped away the surplus.

Picture frames are handled in a similar way. If you can get the prepared board with the frame, it will be better and will not warp. If not, get well-board-and-nail flat strips of wood to the back of it. Or these strips may be made by cutting a design around the picture. Magazine covers have been worked up on such a background, to form most effective panels.

The Finished Product.

When the picture is firmly glued in place, and the strips of wood or paper have been fastened tightly, then cover the exposed surfaces with gesso as you did the box, next use gilt, fast of all paint, wiping it away as before.

It is fascinating pastime—and yet a most practical one and the effects are often surprisingly good. Needless to say, people have been making atrocious things in this medium, but a moderate use of good sense and good taste will prevent this. For Christmas gifts, it is a happy idea since no two pieces will be alike, and one can do much interesting work in a very short time. Now cut the gesso, with gesso to allow it to dry. Yes, it gets to

Sunday school in the west part of the county at Northside which was established in 1884 with Miss Hope Horley as its first superintendent. It was thought that the town would be located at Northside, but it was located at Winside and after the change in location, the Sunday school continued in the depot until the church was built later. Rev. Mr. Love of Wayne, an American Sunday school missionary, organized this first Sunday school in the western part of the county where he preached occasionally during the summer. A. E. Edinger was the assistant superintendent. Miss Eton began teaching and working in Sunday school when 16 years of age at Red Oak, Iowa, and has nearly completed a half century of active Sunday school work, as teacher, worker and superintendent. At the school missionary, organized (Continued on Page Three)

Methodist Church Notes. (For 7:30, 8 o'clock, Eastern.) We have completed a fully accurate religious census of Winslow although we do not claim this to be absolutely perfect. There are six religious bodies fairly well represented in the community, and we have chased everyone under one of these denominations. We have a few Baptists, Presbyterians, Episcopalians and possibly some others, but as most if not all of these either attend or support one of the churches, they are classed as one of them. It is a little difficult to know where a family who means they attend more than one of the churches in the community. The census has also been put in the form of a religious plot of the town showing exactly where everyone lives and what church he attends. The census reveals there are in the bible-study association, three families and eleven persons; Wayne Catholics, five families, twenty persons; Danish and Swedish Lutheran, fourteen families, forty-two persons; St. Paul's Lutheran, twenty families, sixty-two persons; Trinity Lutheran, thirty families and ninety-four persons; Methodist Episcopal, seventy-eight families and 249 persons.

The Home department will hold its regular meeting at the Frank Wilgen's home Tuesday afternoon, Dec. 15, with a covered dish luncheon and exchange of gifts. Mrs. Bert Hornby is the leader. The young people's choir is doing very well and will furnish music each Sunday evening.

The session for next Sunday morning will be the second of a series on the Apostle's creed. In the evening the person subject will be "Choosing a Husband."

Young people's league next Sunday night at 8:00. Topic, "The League is Growing." The man is just about full each evening. We can still put in a few more chairs.

The Sunday school has begun to plan for a program for Christmas Eve in the church.

Five congregations were present at both morning and evening services.

COUNTY CHARITY.

To care for the county's poor, especially the county's indigent sick, is a good deal of a problem. Some people believe the county should buy a farm to provide for the poor. The county official expresses the opinion that a farm should be purchased while prices are lower than they are likely to be in the future. He expresses the belief that some people who need county aid would scratch out a living in preference to going to a poor farm. He thinks the policy of owning and maintaining a poor farm would be of great importance.

Looking after the indigent sick is an obligation that cannot be cast aside lightly. The county has no authorized physician because of the expense involved. The county official expresses the opinion that some people who need county aid would scratch out a living in preference to going to a poor farm. He thinks the policy of owning and maintaining a poor farm would be of great importance.

When we see a woman thimble on a cold day, we hesitate to offer criticism through fear that she has on all she can afford to buy and pay for.

The Albion News calls attention to a sign on the workmen door which invites visitors to keep out, explaining that the high cost of operation and small profit accruing to the publisher is to stay afloat.

A report states that a New York woman held up in Florida and robbed of $6,000. It would have been more polite to have said him something, and let consequences, if afflicting in less, develop naturally.

The president made a fair presentation of the country's problems and needs in his annual message to congress. Among many things advised, he asked for agriculture to act in an extraordinary manner in the future. In regard to agriculture, he asked for a measure to aid cooperative marketing. His message was clear and concise and could not be misunderstood.

Apprehension is felt over temptation to go on in the way of boys and young men, and of course it is advisable to remove them as far as possible. But we would suggest that one way to avoid temptation is PUNCTILIO PEANUTO.

That means carrying nicety of form or manner to sickening excess. We have added "peanut" for emphasis in the direction of counterfeiting. When you want to express "punctilio" with extra ordinary contempt, add "peanut." When a man is not uncouth and not veneered with affected manner, he reflects pleasing good taste. When a man is just naturally particular and exact in what he says and does, he is punctilio with a vengeance. But when he feigns fastidiousness, putting on mannerism as he would put on an overcoat, he may be said to be "punctilio with a vengeance." And we are extending usage without any unnecessary restrictions to "peanut" which is a justly popular and a savory delicacy.

HELL.
 He is possessed by envy and hatred and had a long and arduous course through his veins; he sees darkly and suspiciously; he is deaf, dumb and blind to appeals for sympathy; he is a creature of a different to the voice of children and the dulcet notes of birds; he lives for self alone, believes no one and trusts no one. Isn't that hell?

not to look for it, and to be too busy in work and study and what some play to be caught by it. If temptation lurks, be too occupied to be influenced by its enticing features. Gain an understanding of right and wrong and develop backbone and courage to say "no".

The Harbinger Journal complains that farmington writers of boom stories about crops to the farmers injury by unduly magnifying production and accordingly recommending slipping of prices in harmony with the law of supply and demand. The Journal charges that one exceptional field is taken as a basis for determining the quantity produced in an entire county or state. The result is an estimate inflated far beyond the truth and then the market weakens. The Journal would have writers avoid feverish excitement and keep well within the facts.

A policy to take school children on a tour to inspect industries and state institutions might be worth considering. A tour of places where and other big industries would be educational. A tour of places where inmates are necessarily kept in restraints might be a better course, might have a salutary effect in the formation and safeguarding of character. A visit to big cities, with evidence of their progress and their bright lights, might stimulate appreciation of wholesome advantages possessed in the country.

To a certain school superintendent at the recent boys' conference at Fremont was suggested the advisability of controlling the one of youth who was under the required 15 years in order to gain admission. The superintendent would not stand the deception. He was perfectly frank with the conference and the result was an impressive lesson in honesty and square dealing. The boy was admitted, but honor was not sacrificed. The superintendent mentioned, but he is a little devious which would lead to big frauds.

An encouraging tendency of youth is reflected in a report from Sioux City where it is said eighty-six percent of the school children have savings accounts. If Sioux City children are an indication of developing habits generally, the future gives promise of more widespread distribution of money, and more nearly equal advantages insured by its possession. Industry and frugal habits give reasonable assurance of adequate material support and of independence in declining years, and if children are practicing thrift habits by starting savings accounts, they are laying foundations for later success and security. Children should be taught economy and self-restraint, and they should be encouraged to turn to advantage the savings departments now provided by all banks.

Business.
 Sioux City Journal: If a way could be found to bring the farmers up to the level of profits and prices enjoyed by all other business men in the country, America could claim to be such a prosperity as never before known in the history of any nation. As the man in the street might put it, everything else is O. K. but the farmers are still holding the bag. As long as this inequality between farming and other businesses is permitted to exist, that long will there be a jarring note in prosperity reports.

As this is written one of the problems of the farmer is showing symptoms of solving itself in the best possible way. Corn is advancing, having shown a considerable gain in the last few days. The price of corn, which fluctuates downward at any time, but if it continued to advance and went far enough it would solve the problem with a close approach to perfection. Meanwhile live stock prices are much more satisfactory than the figure offered for corn. This suggests something is out of line. The farmer who feeds either cattle or hogs and uses corn in the process actually becomes a net purchaser for the grain by letting it "walk" off the farm. If corn is potential hard, pork chops, pig feet, beefsteak and the like, then the relationship is so close as to urge that a farmer ought to obtain with reference to comparative prices. Sixty-cent corn may become 85-cent corn after it is eaten by a hog or steer. None of which is to suggest that the prices of live stock ought to come down to the level of corn, but that the grain ought to be lifted to the figures commanded by beef-steak and live stock. Live stock is too high; instead, corn is too low.

Observers in the east are sounding a note of prosperity that would strike the ear of the middle west a little more harmoniously. If the business success for the year had been given wider distribution. New York is now envisioning what one observer calls the "big business" of the Christmas season, in all history. Unprecedented holiday sales have been forecast throughout the eastern half of the continent. No one doubts that the turnover in merchandise in that section is going to be greater than ever before known. Christmas holiday business done and gifts purchased by far the best since 1914, the year the world was in a Christmas mood.

Detroit, the motor car manufacturing center of the country, has reported that automobile production has been heavily curtailed. It is far below what it was in November, and it is suggested that the only immediate impetus to increased production will come from possible new models of the big motor cars. The big dealers who sell winter stocks. Retail sales, while not discouraging, are far lower than they were two weeks to a month ago, but higher than in any year previous. Whether the change is an indication that the manufacturer's firms have met the demands of legislation to interfere with industry. President Coolidge has sounded the keynote of the republican party's policy toward business, which, on the whole, is believed to have brought great encouragement.

Obey the Law.
 (By A. L. Bisby.)
 This inference I clearly draw,
 From what I've lately heard,
 The people should enforce the law,
 Because of the matter is absurd.
 And let me urge on those who do
 That duty, please observe it, too.
 Too many officers pursue
 Offenders, but to smooch
 For profit when there comes in
 The exemption with the hostess.
 When comes the chance to compromise
 Offenses dwindle in their eyes.
 Lord help all lovers of the race
 To see their duty clear.
 We need to be baptized with grace
 To meet the glad new year.
 With purpose to redeem the state,
 Or do our best, at any rate.

To Patrons of the Wayne Postoffice

Owing to good business conditions throughout the country, I am anticipating an enormous volume of Christmas mail, same to exceed any previous holiday mail, with ramifications as I see them. I will have in the past, make a few suggestions relative to holiday mail, which will be to your advantage to follow.

First of all shop now and mail early to avoid congestion and delay in doing your parcels to reach destinations in time and in good condition. Fourth class or parcel post: All parcels must be securely wrapped and packed. Use strong paper and heavy twine. Use special delivery or perishable matter. Special packing includes umbrellas, canes, golf sticks, hats, cut flowers, candies, drawings, paintings, sharp pointed or sharp-edged objects, cigars and all articles easily broken. If you do not know how to pack these articles, ask any of the clerks in the post office for the manual to inform you. Address should be complete, including house and street, post office box or rural route number, also returning address, should be placed in upper left hand corner. A copy of the address should be inclosed inside of package. No parcel shall be more than 84 inches in length and girth combined and weigh not over 70 pounds for the 1st, 2nd and 3rd zones and 50 pounds for the 4th returning zones.

Third: Owing to the enormous volume of Christmas cards, these should be mailed early to avoid congestion. Particular attention is invited to the fact that post cards except government cards, now require a cent postage. Printed greeting cards inclosed in envelopes without sealing and unsealed may be mailed for 1-1/2 cents. In view of the fact that we should have village delivery in operation in a short time and since under this system drop letters require two cents postage, please begin posting on this matter and affix postage accordingly. Please avoid the use of very large, very small, or odd shaped envelopes for Christmas letters.

Postal service will cease at 12 p. m. on December 24 and will start again at 12 p. m. December 25. As Christmas day, there will be no city delivery, village delivery, rural delivery, window service of any kind or distribution of mail on that day. Mail early to insure your parcels and greeting cards arriving for delivery before Christmas.

Wishing you all a Merry Christmas and a Happy and Prosperous New Year.
 C. A. BERRY, Postmaster.
 P. S. In regard to the village delivery, I wish to inform you that, if no further obstacles confront me, I will be ready to serve you by the first of next week. To please advise your correspondents to address your mail to street and number, and have mail box in place.

Overcoming Handicaps.
 (Hartington Herald.)
 People who are fond of interesting, fascinating biography could read the sketch of Mayor Smith of Detroit in the last issue of the Litigator. There is striking parallel between this Smith and that other well known Smith, governor of

New York, for they both came from the townships and both have achieved a remarkable success. The "Litigator" of the midwestern of New York entered into and dominated both of these boys and drove them on until they had overcome every handicap and attained their goal. If an individual has a spark of ambition anywhere in his makeup, it will be kindled to flame by reading this sketch of this most remarkable man.

Leigh Office Burned.
 Leigh, Neb., Dec. 3.—Fire yesterday practically destroyed the building and equipment of the Leigh World, weekly paper, which is edited by Charles R. Kuble. The Linotype machines, presses, type and cases and all the machinery are practically a total loss, which is partly covered by insurance.

The Creston Statesman, weekly paper, was also published from this plant. The flames also threatened the I. O. O. F. hall, which adjoins the Leigh World building, but hard fighting by the firemen saved this building. The World building will be wrecked.

Outline of Program

Saturday December 12, the boy and girl scouts, under the direction of Mrs. Leon F. Berry, Mrs. S. A. Lutgen, Prof. K. N. Parke and Prof. A. F. Gulliver, will give a parade through the business section, and then a playlet in the auditorium of the State Teachers college. Cho'cho, the famous clown, will entertain the young folks at the school auditorium during the afternoon.

Saturday evening, December 12, the volunteer firemen of Wayne will give an entertainment.

Wednesday evening, December 16, the Wayne Professional and Business Woman's club will have charge. On this occasion the Legion band, now developing under the leadership of Prof. F. C. Reed, will make its first public appearance.

Saturday, December 19, a parade and singing will be provided under the direction of Superintendent T. S. Hook, Miss Ruth Doudna, Mrs. Elva Brockway and Mrs. Dorothy Huse Nyberg.

Saturday evening, December 19, the American Legion and Auxiliary will have charge, and the Legion band will enliven the occasion.

The Woman's club will serve wafers and coffee.

The Kiwanis club will furnish a program Monday evening, December 21.

Programs will be provided for December 22 and 23. Turkeys and geese will be distributed under the direction of Walter Savidge and V. A. Senter.

Fred L. Blair of the Good Fellows, is looking after distribution of a Christmas treat for the children.

Dr. W. B. Vail is getting ready to receive mail directed to Santa Claus and when the box is ready to receive mail, the children are asked to write to the generous old saint.

Bring the children to hear this wonderfully funny and instructive fellow. Most of them know him. He was here last spring and the children were wild about him.

Only children can be admitted as the auditorium is not large enough to seat both the grownups and little folks who will come. Bring the children to the College Auditorium at 1:30, after the Boy and Girl Scout Parade, and call for them after the show at 4 o'clock. We will take good care of them during the show.

There will also be a parade by the Girl Scouts and Boy Scouts at 1 o'clock on Main street, and they will give a play-let in the Auditorium before the Health Clown gives his show. It will be a big day for the children. Bring them early so they can enjoy it all.

To Extend Drainage Ditch Along Dogtown

Work on the drainage ditch north of Wayne is being hastened by the use of new machinery. The dog-town ditch is a creek, the dog machines the past summer dug and straightened the north end of the ditch. The work is being done at their junction east of Waterfield. On the south Logan the work was completed to the Wayne county line this summer. Recently the machine has been widening and straightening the creek for those in Wayne county who wish this done. Work has been finished on the south Logan through the land of W. A. K. Neely and C. J. Lund. The south Logan and Dogtown creeks join in the Lund land. The creek is now being extended along Dogtown creek through A. T. Claycomb's land. When this is finished plans are to extend this digging along Dogtown through the land of Henry Giese, John Beckman and A. B. Clark. The next few months will be spent on the west of the Claycomb farm. It is thought this is all that can be accomplished this winter as the main season of the winter is frozen to a depth of fifteen inches. Men have been surveying the south Logan southwest of the junction of Dogtown creek and it may be that this creek will be straightened and deepened next spring. Whether this is to be done or not will depend on the wishes of the land owners along its course.

Bar Association To Hold Essay Contest

Students of more than twenty colleges in Nebraska are to be represented in the selection of the best essay on a subject suggested by the Nebraska Bar Association. E. Matson of Lincoln, is chairman of the committee in charge. F. S. Berry of Wayne, is to support the contest or the association. All essays will be submitted to him and he will in turn send them to judges, without the names of the writers. Candidates should send their essays and their names to the office of Free Masonry in Nebraska. "What Are the Functions and Limitations Under the Federal Constitution?" is the subject of the essays. All students in teachers' colleges may enter. The contest and manuscripts must reach Mr. Berry not later than April 15, 1922. Each college in the state will choose the one essay considered best by school authorities, for entrance in the contest.

Motor Car Homicides.

Sioux City Journal: Philadelphia courts may be offering, through examples of punishment, a solution in the vast number of motor car homicides. The heavy death toll resulting from automobile traffic in the largely reckless, carelessness and drunkenness. In Philadelphia, motor car homicides are imprisoned for terms of years for a contributory negligence in fatal accidents.

Fred Thorpe, a Philadelphia mechanic, was driven and killed a family of three October 25. He pleaded guilty to the charge of manslaughter. He has been sentenced to serve 6 months in the penitentiary. Henry G. Brock, a wealthy Philadelphia clubman, committed an almost identical offense near there, seven years ago. He was found guilty in a bitterly fought court trial and sentenced to serve 6 to 10 years. He had served 2 years and 8 months in the penitentiary for a pardon recently having been refused. The sentences imposed hardly could be expected to satisfy relatives of victims or other persons interested in cases in which human beings have lost their lives. Homicide of a kind and punishable under a law that is not the same as murder in any degree for the reason that automobile accidents are unintentional and, therefore, no punishment is imposed for the reason that persons have been deliberately killed by the driver of a motor car. That lessens the offense in the eyes of the law, yet the fact of recklessness, carelessness and drunkenness, the three contributing elements in accidents of this kind, all being preventable makes such punishment fair and just.

Leds Six Counties.

Hartington, Neb., Dec. 5.—Barney J. Lammer, recently appointed to fill the vacancy on the state committee of the American Legion, caused by the resignation of Dr. L. Stark, has been named by State Commander Kinler of Madison as chairman of the finance committee. He will lead the 1922 membership drive in six counties, Arizola, Colfax, Dakota, Dixon, Pierce and Knox. There are 23 American Legion organizations in these six counties and the work of recruiting will be organized and carried out from these centers.

Little folks' questions that mothers can't answer, are always called silly-ones.

The Missouri River.

A. L. Bliven, showing in his plan for the widespread dissemination of the Congressional Record among those long deprived of its fascinating contents and the nation in making the Missouri river a pathway of progress, of interstate commerce and maritime adventures, instead of what it is, a treacherous surge of mud from Montana, shifts in its course as a democratic politician, and totally unfit for navigation, until made so by the magic of a potential appropriation. Not deterred by any threat of the railroads to die unless rates are raised or truck competition cut out, here comes Howard with the menace of water competition in the carrying trade, the same to be fostered at the expense of all the people, for the benefit of some of the people, and the furtherance of the main reliance of most of the people.

Just think of the dredging that would be done—
(And who pays for it? You and me)
Ere the coast is clear and the freight boats run
On the river "that seeks the sea."
And how is reduction to be put through?
By scraping the bed of the Old Missouri?

How easily congressmen seem to learn
The trick and it is a trick,
Of spending the money that others earn.
And doing it so damn quick
No taxpayer sees it, beneath the sun,
That money means after the job is done.
But this is the program—they all stand at Each pulling a selfish string—
A million for this, and as much for that,
And the same for some other thing;
And all so adjusted that by and by
Each man has the money with which to buy.

I am not complaining; it may be well
To carry things on this way;
But all of the people are stung, Lykell,
For fiddlers must have their pay.
The congress is lavish, as I discern,
In blowing the money it doesn't earn.
Things are not as bad as they seem,
But they seem so.

This Week's Show At Local Theatre

Silence is the "one thing" that is absent from D. W. Griffith's silent drama, "That Royle Girl," to appear at the Crystal Thursday, Friday and Saturday of this week.

It becomes articulate. It ceases, it shouts, it laughs, it cries. Produced by the master director, D. W. Griffith, "That Royle Girl" tells a story of that part of city life where morals and money are "easy come, easy go."
Joan Royle is a waif of the Chicago Loop. Pretty, appealing, chased by men and liking it, W. C. Fields as her father is a veteran confidence man, three card monte expert, special film flammer, always ducking the landlords and the cops. Fred Kellar is the leader of Chicago's latest jazz band. A patrician sheik. Lots of nerve. Married but living apart from his wife. He's after Joan from his wife on the ground level and falls for him. They zig around together. Plunge into Chicago's roaring night life with the speed of a young fox. Joan is bent on living life to the full and living it quick.

Joan is in Kellar's apartment. Kellar is away. Next comes that Kellar's wife has been mysteriously murdered. Kellar rushes into the apartment. The cops fish in around him. He is arrested for the murder. Joan is held as accomplice. Joan's father is mixed up in it too. James Kirkwood as Calvin Clarke, straight laced, honest, district attorney is to try the case. He hates jazz. He thinks women like Joan are indecent. He's arrested for the murder. He swears he'll hang Kellar and put Joan behind bars.

Kellar's crafty lawyer realizes Joan's say against his best bet to help her. He tells her to go to the camp. She does. She falls. He is torn between love and duty. He tries to hate this girl, but he wants her all the time. The trial scene. Joan using her wiles on the jury. Sudden news that somebody else did the murder. Acquittal of Kellar. Joan leaves the court with him. Clarke is heartbroken. Think of the terrific dramatic way, she comes back to him.

That's the story.
Minus the tip-rorying comedy of W. C. Fields.
Minus the marvelous melodramatic effects—fire hurricane, the chase—
That Griffith put into it.
Minus the hundred and one touches that only D. W. Griffith is master of.

Appreciating Nebraska.

Raymond S. Berry, secretary of the Nebraska State Fair, says that Nebraska is more apparent that Nebraska lines do not have a proper appreciation of the true worth and greatness of their own state.

Next year, Nov. 27 of the year 1922, he says that it will be a wonderful day for Nebraska. The state is occupied by tourists, while the owners, or a considerable percentage of them, are absent. It is a wonderful day for Nebraska. Notwithstanding its comparative youth, Nebraska is the most progressive of the states in the diversity of its crops, and the importance of its industries, yet state pride and loyalty to our institutions is at a low ebb. No other state in the Union has superior advantages or greater possibilities for a future development. Not two many of our people have fallen into the habit of speaking apologetically and with the humility of a poor relation when it comes to standing up for Nebraska. They don't do that way in the eastern states; they are inclined to be a little "sassy" in their western states; but they are sure to proud to borrow our money and to feed their hungry millions with the products of our fertile land. The foreigner never misses an opportunity to glorify his state, and Florida is shameless in her greed to exchange her oranges and sand dunes for western corn. In the old blue grass state they fondly sing of "My Old Kentucky Home," and the southerners cry to frontal applause when they hear "Way Down South in Dixie."

The fact is Nebraska needs an awakening of state pride and loyalty. We need more boosters and less knockers, and that goes for some of our eminent representatives in congress as well as for some of our lesser political lights of the crop-hogging type. In the production of at least five staple commodities, Nebraska ranks well among the top nations among the sixtieth of states. Our invigorating climate is such as has always produced the highest type of man and woman. There is no reason why Nebraska should take a back seat for any state or any people. On the contrary, we should assert our true greatness and demand consideration in keeping with our importance. The newspapers of Nebraska are about to enter upon a campaign to remedy the conditions now existing in Nebraska as much as possible. The effort will be directed so much to convince the outside world of Nebraska's real importance as one of the world's greatest sources of foodstuffs, but to arouse Nebraska.

Philip Leonard died in Poncha, Neb. Nov. 27 of the year 1921. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Mary Leonard, and his son, Guy Leonard, who is now in the army, going there from Nebraska.

Corrected Date.

The date in the public sale advertisement of W. H. Moore in last week's issue should have been Monday, Dec. 14, instead of Tuesday, Dec. 15, which latter is the date of Nels P. Johnson's sale. The same mistake was made Monday, Dec. 14, in accordance with corrected advertisement which appears elsewhere in today's Herald. It has a lot of desirable things to offer.

The Traffic Problem

Aurora Republican: The day is fast approaching when the traffic problem will be a very serious one. Large cities are already getting a taste of what the future holds in store, and have resorted to various devices to prevent jams and to speed the autoist of his way while saving as much as possible of time to the pedestrian. As the use of automobiles becomes more general however, these devices will not be sufficient, others will have to be devised. One way streets are suggested by some as a means of speeding the traffic, but have evident disadvantages. It seems probable that if the population continues to center in the cities, the automobile must give way to some other form of travel, or be greatly restricted.

Thor Case Recalls Harry Thaw Trial

Staff correspondent in Sunday's Omaha News, Neb., Dec. 6, 1925, said:

In those three words are expressed the feelings of residents of this little town who journeyed to Stanton, Neb., that they might hear the confession from the witness stand of Mrs. Peter Thor, whose husband stood trial for the killing of Lars Jensen, his rival.

And, like Evelyn Thaw, Mrs. Thor bared her soul that her husband had been seized from a murderer's death.

In their broad outlines the stories of the Thors and the Thaws ran parallel until a jury's verdict saved the two men from the electric chair.

The story which Evelyn told in the world famous "Thaw trial" captured the hearts of the people of Stanton, Neb. Thaw was suffering from a "brain storm" when he shot and killed Stanton White, internationally famous architect.

Attorneys for Thor also pleaded that their client was mentally irresponsible when he killed Lars Jensen. Mrs. Thor took the stand to show that there was ample evidence for Thor's mental derangement. Thus Thor is free because his wife confessed.

Both Thaw and Thor supplemented their pleas of temporary insanity with an appeal to "the unwritten law."

But in the sequel to these two famous trials the parallels diverge. Thaw went to Mattewan asylum for the insane. Thor was found to have regained the sanity he lost when he sought out and killed Jensen, and left the courtroom a free man.

Mrs. Thaw's story on the stand led to the eventual separation of the Pittsburgh millionaire and his club-woman wife. A divorce was the eventual outcome and Thaw even refused to recognize as his a son born by Evelyn. Mr. and Mrs. Thor have returned to their farm home, the land which threatened to send Thor to his death—an unhappy memory which they are eager to forget.

They are at their farm today, living happily with their four children, building back. Thaw is free, but he finds the constant fear of a return to an asylum. Mrs. Thaw turned back to the stage for a living.

It was in 1912 that Lars Jensen, son of a Pittsburgh millionaire, met pretty Evelyn Nesbit, at that time a chorus girl. Already his mind was so warped by the seduction of two continents and his wild courtship of Evelyn, extending over three years, was to provide many a line of newspaper copy.

In April, 1915, the pair were married and Thaw's friends hoped for the end of a spellbinding career. It was only the calm before the storm that was shortly to bring Thaw into the criminal courts, a murderer fighting for his life against one of the most able of New York's prosecutors.

On a June evening in 1906 Thaw and his wife were dining at a Broadway restaurant when Stanford White entered. Thaw knew of the relations of Evelyn and White which had preceded his marriage to the Broadway chorus girl. Evelyn had confessed to him one day in Paris when she was "importuning her admirer."

Two days after their marriage in New York, White had spoken to Evelyn. Once, she claimed, he followed her. The flames of jealousy in Thaw's heart were fanned into flames by White's paralytic of his wife and he was in an ugly mood when White walked into their Broadway restaurant.

Evelyn saw him first. On a scrap of paper she scribbled, "There's that brute!" and passed it to her husband.

At the sight of White, Thaw's mad anger grew until, he said the court, he was no longer in possession of his senses. He and Evelyn rose, left the restaurant, and drove to old Madison Square Garden, brain child of Stanford White whose architectural plans had already made him a leader of American design. High up in the tower of the building White had his quarters.

White, who had preceded them, was seated at a table at the old Madison Square Roof Garden when Thaw and Evelyn entered. The couple were seated but, a moment later, Thaw rose and walked to White's table. A bitter word and Thaw pressed a gun against White's head and fired. White fell from his chair, dead.

"He ruined my young wife," Thaw stammered to police as they took him to jail. It was the first chapter in a legal fight which was to occupy the interest of Europe as well as America.

Thaw pleaded temporary insanity and the "unwritten law." His millions assembled a notable battery of lawyers and alienists who fought to save him, but none fought like pretty Evelyn Nesbit, who proved the seduction of two continents and his wild courtship of Evelyn, extending over three years, was to provide many a line of newspaper copy.

The first trial ended in a draw when the jury at last announced itself unable to reach a verdict. Another trial and on February 1, 1908, Thaw was acquitted on his insanity plea. He was ordered to Mattewan and spent six years there while his mother nursed him in an effort to secure his release.

Thaw at last wearied of his futile efforts and took matters into his own hands. He fled the motherland and sought refuge in Canada. Canadian authorities, embarrassed by his presence, seized him, carried him back over the border and turned him loose in New Hampshire. He was again captured and another legal fight ensued. William T. Jerome, New York state attorney and a close friend of Stanford White, who had prosecuted Thaw, fought tooth and nail for his extradition to New York. Success crowned Jerome's fight but it was only a temporary success. Thaw, brought back to New York, carried his case to the United States supreme court and at last retained his freedom when a jury of alienists found him sane.

But Thaw could not stay out of court. He was accused by a boy, Frederick Gump, Jr., of beating him. Thaw and Gump were together in a New York hotel.

Charges were filed and Thaw again faced his loss of freedom. Depressed by his newest setback, Thaw sought suicide. As police were battering at the door of a friend in Philadelphia to arrest him, he slashed both wrists and hid himself in a room. A Philadelphia physician was found lying on the floor in a critical condition. Physicians saved him, saved him for another asylum.

Protruded insanity in Philadelphia, Thaw was ordered to the Pennsylvania Hospital for the insane by the governor of the state who removed New York's plea for the prisoner.

Again Thaw took up the fight for freedom and at last won. He was released on the condition that he should be under the supervision of a young Gump, but inability to secure witnesses after such a prolonged lapse of time made the case practically hopeless. The possibility of prosecution, the charge has not been dropped; Thaw still has it hanging over him. But it has not prevented his return to Broadway and twice, within the last few months he has come back from the farm in Virginia where he makes his home to his old haunts along the White Way.

Only a shell of the Thaw who once Broadway knew in 1903 when he was seducing with Evelyn Nesbit, met her. A broken man with a bleak and unhappy future. Evelyn? She was in a cabaret in Atlantic City until a short time ago. Now she holds a similar position in New York. They have both lost their fight for happiness.

And in that they are as far apart as the poles from the heart broken Nebraska farmer who shot and killed in a moment of insanity and who now, through the death of another, has found peace and happiness with a wife whose love for him led her to the witness stand to tell of her relations with another that her husband might be freed.

Thor and Lars Jensen were both suited for her hand. And Thor was the victor. It was a marriage destined to be filled with moments of unhappiness because of Jensen who, remaining a bachelor, secured a position on a neighboring farm. He was a frequent visitor at the Thor farm. Once he was alone at the farmhouse with Mrs. Thor and Thor learned of it. Finding Jensen he ordered him to stay away from his home. But his suspicions were now thoroughly aroused. He started one night for Pilger to attend a lodge meeting. Before he arrived he had a premonition of disaster and turned back. When he reached his home he discovered through a bedroom window and found Jensen there, alone with Mrs. Thor.

He ran into the house, aroused Jensen and his words, which led to bloodshed. Jensen apparently was the victor over his physically weaker opponent.

Jensen at last left the Thor home and Thor turned to his wife for an explanation. A divorce was discussed, but both opposed it because of their four children. A visit by Mrs. Thor to the old country was finally agreed upon as a solution.

Mrs. Thor went about with preparations for a trip to Scandinavia and, as she did so, Jensen, apparently untroubled by his recent encounter with Thor, called frequently and apparently took great interest in the coming journey.

The climax, Jensen asked Thor to divorce his wife. Further, he demanded that Thor deed all his property to his wife that she might carry on him Jensen's well-prospered business there and that Thor indignantly refused. But the proposal was constantly on his mind. He feared that Jensen might follow his wife and that fear increased as the day of departure drew near.

At last his wife boarded a train for the east. Thor drove her to the station, saw her off and returned to his farm home and his four children. But a greater peace of mind which came with that departure vanished the next day when Jensen drove past the Thor home. To Thor, he addressed a remark which practically drove the farmer into insanity.

He ran into the house, picked up his gun and set out in pursuit of Jensen. Before Thor found his rival he had driven into Pilger, completed his business there and was three miles out of Pilger on the road home. Thor drove up alongside and demanded if Jensen meant what he said when he asked the unhappy husband to divorce his wife that she might marry him.

That was enough for Thor. He pulled out his gun and opened fire. Jensen tumbled from his wagon, but he was not fatally injured, picked himself up and ran toward the woods. Thor shot him as he ran and Jensen fell dying.

Thor stood over the body of his rival until he was satisfied that he was dead. Then he turned, climbed into his car and drove at top speed to Stanton county seat. The first man he met was Judge Clinton Chase, the same judge who was to later preside at Thor's trial for murder. To Judge Chase he surrendered himself. The judge turned him over to Sheriff Eli Best.

A telegram found Mrs. Thor in Chicago and she returned to Pilger. That was on September 11. A few weeks ago Thor went to trial. A jury was difficult to secure. The Thor family was prominent and highly respected in Stanton county. Practically every one in the county had discussed the case and formed some opinion on the action to be taken against Thor.

Finally a jury was agreed upon. Ten of the 12 were farmers. Daily the courtroom was crowded with eager spectators. It was the one subject for discussion on the streets of Stanton. Daily the routine testimony was Better Books Coming. Sioux City Journal: Mrs. Anthony French Merrill, of Chicago, book reviewer and lecturer, told an Omaha audience that there was a strong reaction setting in against frothy fiction, and that a "spirit of conservatism in literature was on the way. She has observed a trend toward such reading as is "both wholesome and important." It is interesting to note that she credits the younger generation with helping largely to influence that trend upward.

Believing that truth and frankness are splendid in their place, Mrs. Merrill is strongly opposed to their exploitation and is against the "exaltation of next to nothing" into a popular appeal. Exposure is good, the critic admits, when the author is truthful and has a worthy purpose in mind, but she draws the line at this indulgence when the effort merely is to entertain.

Let it be hoped that Mrs. Merrill has vision of the future in literature correctly. Many had feared the trend was in the other direction, although in the last few years some noteworthy examples of better books have been offered. Book shelves have been reeking for a long time with books of the "Eric Dorn" and "Simon Called Peter" type. There some of the magazines have dared touch in the publication of shorter fiction, sex being exploited to the extreme limits to which the postoffice department would permit them to go.

Authors, learning from playwrights or vice versa, insisted they were writing what the people wanted. A new era had come. Sophistication now belonged to youth as well as to mature age. Candor had become a wonderful virtue, and under its guise came some shocking revelations and developments. Literature suddenly was exploited a literary demand for truthfulness, but some who retained old fashioned ideas about books never succeeded in discovering any beauty in truth that was ugly. It was like inviting a visitor to look into the garbage bucket for truth instead of enjoying the consensatory.

What a revel it was for those authors who evidently had been aching a long time to go on literary sprees. Common decency often was outraged, but the authors did not feel obliged to defend themselves. They find their clientele just as the playwrights of the Eugene O'Neill type have theirs today. They were selling their books and that seems, after all, to have been the thing that mattered. They were content to entertain from the garbage bucket instead of in the conservatory, and they found many Barkleys will!

A new era in books, a renaissance is indicated. The promise sounds too good to be true. Still, it is said that a sinking man will cling to a straw in the hope that it may help him to rise. If there is a promise of something better, however faint and vague it may be, let it be considered for what it is worth. Anything, however may be tried in an emergency.

How Times Change. Father's Day. Already the "fear of Christmas" is getting in the air, and each day now will find it growing stronger. Even though it may be older citizens that it held in the days of their youth, we are safe in saying that not one man or woman in Fairbury would vote to abolish it.

We like to think back to Christmas seasons gone by, and especially to compare the customs of celebrating it then with customs of the present day. Time was when it was not considered good form for a young man to give his best gift articles of wearing apparel. It indicated that he was neglecting to clothe her. His gift had to be an album or a book or something along that line. Today Christmas evening is on a more sensible basis, and gifts of service, gifts the recipient can get some good out of, are the most appropriate. Today, too, people buy more for the home than formerly. An odd chair, a new rug, dishes of silverware, linens, dining clothes for the house and even new-fangled cooking utensils are "favorite" gifts now, instead of worthless gew-gaws that did not possess comfort or lighten the household burdens.

Give a woman something serviceable to wear or something she can use in her home and you are gladdening her heart. Give a man something for his auto, or something he can wear besides neckties, and you will win his thanks. Human nature hasn't changed, even if Christmas has. It is only in recent years that we have learned human nature craves something serviceable.

Thor Case Recalls Harry Thaw Trial

(Continued from Page Four) heard and then Mrs. Thor was called to the stand. To a courtroom filled with eager spectators she told of her relations with Jensen. In every detail it tallied with the testimony given by Thor earlier in the day. It was the strong part of the defense and the sensation of Stanton county. And it won! The jury filed out. Several hours of deliberation and Thor was found "Not guilty."

Without a moment's hesitation Thor, his face revealing the happiness he could not put into words, stepped to his wife's side and together they walked to the jury box to thank each juror for the verdict. Together they turned and faced the friends who had gathered to express their delight at the outcome of the trial. And together they left the courtroom, left for the farm home which had witnessed so much unhappiness in the days of Jensen, and in which they are now reunited.

Threatened Waste. Dr. A. L. Babby in Lincoln Journal and Center north Illinois is adding up the number of automobiles and will make starting this week the system was for pedestrians. Marshal provided more room for the hanging off the parking places.

Franked in all public and parochial high schools within the United States. This would mean a tremendous expenditure of public money for print paper, extra labor and transportation by our already overburdened mails, but what does the political care for expenses? Higher education languishes for want of the intellectual stimulus of that inspiring publication which contains the daily drive of disputatious patriots who say more and accomplish less than any other legislative bodies on the face of the earth.

We hope for economical, educational and moral reasons, the Congressional Record be withheld from circulation save among those who care so deeply they are willing to pay for it and that such be investigated by a court of competent jurisdiction as to their sanity. Are our high schools to endure such degrading literature? Does it fit the curriculum we teach? When the Bible is in reach? I feel justified to screech, "Aber nit!"

If a decent law gets thru in one session—something new—We shall read. Beyond any sort of doubt, How it all was brought about, How the victors figured out To succeed.

But the "Record," that is punk. One part seems to nine parts bunk. Here's a hint: That the gable lally heard On the floor is so absurd That there can't say one-third, Fif to print. Yet, it isn't all in vain; Since the aged and insane Love it best, It may do the foolish good. The contentious find some food For their hate, or else it would Be suppressed.

Changes Parking System. Pilger, Neb., Nov. 28.—For several years Pilger has been parking the cars in the center of the street, but number of automobiles and will make starting this week the system was for pedestrians. Marshal provided more room for the hanging off the parking places.

Somebody is going to get rich from the minerals found in the river bluffs, for there are riches there and in time they will be revealed. In those bluffs there is coal, eight inches thick where it crops out and rapidly increasing in thickness as the bluff is penetrated. But coal is not the only wealth in the bluffs. At a depth of fifty or sixty feet there is some kind of mineral which has been claimed to be silver. It is also asserted that copper and lead ore are to be found. Also, there are in some localities layers of rock which are so saturated with oil, that it burns as well as coal. Coal, silver, copper, lead and kerosene oil are enough to stimulate the explorer and investigator of the river bluffs.

Notice of Hearing.

To the heirs, creditors, and all persons interested in the estate of Mary E. Lindsay, deceased:

You, and each of you, are hereby notified that Thomas E. Lindsay has filed his petition in the County Court of Wayne County, Nebraska, alleging that the said Mary E. Lindsay died intestate in Wayne, Nebraska, on the 20th day of February, 1925.

That at the time of her death she was seized in fee simple of the following described real estate in Wayne County to-wit: Lots eight (8), nine (9), and ten (10), block fifteen (15) original town of Wayne, Nebraska and left surviving her husband and only heirs at law her sons, Thomas E. Lindsay, William Lindsay, Harry Lindsay, John Lindsay, and her daughters, May Lindsay, West and Stella Lindsay, Chester. That all claims, debts and demands against said real estate and said estate have been paid in full. That said estate has never been administered in the State of Nebraska. That said Thomas E. Lindsay, William Lindsay, Harry Lindsay, John Lindsay, May Lindsay, West, and Stella Lindsay (Chester) are the only owners in fee simple of the said lots eight (8), nine (9), and ten (10), block fifteen (15) original town of Wayne, Nebraska, above described.

Petitioner prays for a finding and decree determining the date of the death of said Mary E. Lindsay, deceased, for a determination of the heirs, the degree of kinship, and the right of descent of said real estate and for an order barring claims of creditors and prays for such other relief as may be just and equitable.

Said petitioner will be heard at the County Court room in the court house in Wayne, Wayne County, Nebraska, on the 4th day of January, A. D. 1926 at 10 o'clock A. M., at which time and place the heirs, creditors and all persons interested in the said estate may appear and show cause why a decree should not be made and entered as prayed in said petition.

Dated this 2nd day of December, 1925.

The One Who Forgot

By RUBY M. AYRES

The monotonous whirring of the sewing machine that had been the only sound in the little room stopped suddenly, and Nan Maraby leaned her elbows on the table over her head and ran her fingers through her rough hair with a weary gesture. "Fed up, fed up, fed up!" she said faintly. "Then all at once she seemed looking across at the girl who sat in a low chair by the fire, with a newspaper spread on her knees. Nan watched her for a moment in silence, a little frown bending her level brows; then she said softly, "Please that old cousin—let me do that. What is the proof of everything yourself, when you know quite well that Tim is all right. It's no use crossing an imaginary bridge before you come to it." She turned back her chair, rose, rising, went over to her friend and, stooping down, took the newspaper gently from her hands. "I don't believe in meeting trouble more than half-way," she said briskly. "Heaven! what a sight I look like in this evening!" "Mind Providence present me with a sleek head like yours?" she demanded. She glanced down at the smooth hair of the girl beside her with envy. "I don't believe you're getting the least attention," she complained aggrievedly. "Jan Eudleott raised her eyes. It was perfectly evident that she had not been listening. "There are only three casualties in the Middlesex today—the one who was wounded and one missing. Oh, Nan—"

"Absolutely decline to discuss the war!" Nan broke in, curiously though her eyes were very tender. "The man's sake let's pretend to be cheerful, even if we're not. Stand up and let me go on your house—it's almost finished."

"She took Joan's hand—dragging her to her feet. "I should never smile at all if it wasn't for you," Joan said. And then she added: "I own all accounts—Peter must be a wonderful man!"

Nan laughed. "He isn't—not a little bit! I don't that he was out of danger and coming home."

"If it had been me I should have gone to France if I had had to walk down the stairs and swim the Channel," Joan said after a moment, her thoughts still with that fateful night when the yellow envelope had been thrust into Nan's hands.

Nan made a grimace. "Ah, but then you're Tim's wife," she said thoughtfully. "And the War Office will recognize a sweetheart in the same way. I suppose it's all right—but—" She shrugged her shoulders. "Anyway, I shall see him soon," she added cheerfully.

She and Nan were a great contrast, for Nan was tall and straight as a willow, with blue eyes that looked fearlessly at the world from beneath level brows, and a firm mouth with a whimsical line at one corner that gave it an odd, crooked sort of appearance, and a mass of thick brown hair that curled like a boy's about her face, and was caught up in a hat of artistic dishevelment at the back of her head.

The cotton overall she now wore was as blue as her eyes, and the rather severely cut—fashion was turned down at the neck, showing a white firm throat, and the glimpse of a thin gold chain on which, as Joan knew, hung Peter Lyxter's big signet ring.

She had tried so hard not to be impatient—had to let the draft and looking now down at her, but this evening the shadow she had kept at bay so determinedly was very persistent. It seemed to be hovering all about her, waiting for an opportunity to envelop her with its stifling embrace.

"What's go on, I believe I'm tired of the house—let's go to the palace and laugh..." She broke off suddenly. There was a knock at the outer door of the little unpretentious flat which the two girls shared together.

Nan dared not look at Joan. She dared not raise her eyes from the glowing heart of the fire.

It seemed an eternity till the little maid servant went down the narrow

"No, no—I'm sorry if I started you; it's nothing—nothing like that. Please don't be afraid. I promise you that Peter is all right—he is all well."

Nan forced a shaky laugh. "I'm sorry—I'm not often such a fool. What's your name?"

"—this is Lieutenant Arnold—Mrs. Eudleott." She pulled forward a chair. "Won't you sit down?"

But John Arnold shook his head. He was a square-built, rather clumsy-looking young man, with a freckled face and reddish hair cropped close to his head. He seemed ill at ease.

Nan watched him closely. Deep down in her heart was the conviction that this man's visit was in some way connected with Peter. After a moment she said: "Oh, do please sit down."

"Arnold, please, thank you," he went on—his eyes were fixed on her. "I'm a friend of Lyxter's. We went out to France together last October. He has just and cleared his throat violently. "—er—of course, you know he's been wounded."

"Yes," Nan's fingers were monosyllabic answer; something was her soft palms.

"But he's out of danger now," she went on. "They told me that he was quite out of danger."

"What is it? ... It's Peter—tell me tell me."

suppose you'd even call him good looking. He's big—if you like a big man. I remember the first thing that struck me about him were his eyes and the size of his hands." She laughed again, a tender little laugh of reminiscence, as she thought of the day when she had first met Peter Lyxter, of the queer feeling that had seemed to shoot through every vein of her body at the very time, for no earthly reason at all—she had felt the color rising in her face as his eyes met the whimsical smile in his gray eyes.

It was not often Nan allowed her thoughts to stray like this; she realized how necessary it was to keep a firm head on herself during those days, for her own sake and also for the girl with whom she was sharing homes—the poor little wife of two happy years, who was waiting herself to a shadow for the sake of a man with a jolly laugh and a heart like a lion, who was facing death battles at—times a day out in France.

And it had been to Nan that trouble had come first. Peter Lyxter had been wounded, seriously. Afterwards better news followed, and Nan drew a breath of relief and the strained look from her eyes a little, till now when she knew passage from the kitchen to the front door—a lifetime until they heard the man's voice, and of torture till she came back again.

Nan was on her feet then—she had crossed the room and flung the door open—she felt as if she were out-eating.

"Yes, who is it?"

"If you please, miss—a gentleman—He said, if you please, miss." Nan grabbed the card.

"John Arnold, Lieutenant,—th Middlesex."

She read the name aloud; the blood hammered at her temples.

"It's John Arnold—the man who wrote to me when Peter was wounded—she said breathlessly.

She passed the girl and went out into the narrow hall. A man stood in the open doorway—a man in khaki; he turned rather stiffly as he heard her step; he saluted gravely.

"Miss Maraby?"

"Yes," Nan felt as if all her breath had gone out of that little clenched, the nails cutting deep into the matter—he had come to tell her to tell her—she swayed forward with momentary loss of self-control, gripping his arm.

"What is it? ... It's Peter—tell me!"

The man answered hastily.

Dr. Samuel Johnson.
Harrington Herald: The life of Dr. Samuel Johnson is told by his intimate friend, Boswell, is full of inspiration, especially for young people who are struggling to get a start in the world. In his young manhood, Johnson was desperately poor—so poor, in fact, that he and his actor friend, Garrick, often walked the streets at night for lack of lodging place, and not only was he poor but he was also physically handicapped. He had a gigantic intellect, however, and in spite of his poverty and handicap, he finally succeeded after years of hard struggle to become one of the great literary figures of the world. As the author of "The English Grammar," "The Dictionary," and "The Rambler," in his later years, he enjoyed such emoluments as to permit him to live in the quiet of his own home, as the child where he and Goldsmith and other congenial spirits went to gather. Honored with degrees by several universities, he achieved fame, and he was showered with attentions by his associates and was even sought after by his supercilious patron, Lord Bute, who had scorned him when he was poor and struggling and whose favor Johnson now appreciated. "A fine old gentleman," he was in spite of his grivous infirmities, and a most prodigious worker. One cannot help but admire his solid virtues, great energy and independent spirit, and his peculiarities may be forgiven in view of his early struggles. "I was miserably poor," he wrote in his autobiography, "I made my way by my literature and my wit," in explaining his impatience of authority while in school.

Indian Takes Prizes.
Winnebago, Neb., Dec. 2.—Joseph Payer, veteran Indian corn grower and showman of Thurston county, was in the matter of the 1926 grain and hay show at Chicago, showing 10 ears of yellow dent and 10 ears of silver king corn of his own raising. Payer, a member of the Winnebago tribe of Indians and has a fine 100-acre farm in Thurston county. He is the first and only Indian to win a prize in the international grain and hay show, having taken two prizes on corn there in 1923. For many years he has been raising the first prize in county fairs and this year he won first on yellow dent and silver king at the Interstate fair at Sioux City, Iowa. Payer is a member in the show of corn growing and selection by his two sons, William and Charles, the latter a student at the state agricultural college at Nebraska, and the first Indian student to enter that institution.

Reasons.
Albion News: It is definitely known this far in advance that Edgar Howard will not be the next governor. One reason is that Mr. Howard finds it much nicer to run for congressman in a democratic district than to try his luck as governor in a republican publican state. Another reason and a very good one is that Mr. McMullen may wish to be governor again.

Notice of Hearing on Probate of Will.
The State of Nebraska, Wayne county, ss.
At a County Court, held at the County Court Room, in and for said County of Wayne on the 3rd day of December, 1926.

Present, J. M. Cherry, County Judge.

In the matter of the estate of Daniel McManigal, deceased.

On reading and filing the petition of Lucy W. Edward P. McManigal and Roland B. McManigal, praying that the instrument filed on the 3rd day of December, 1926, and returned to me by the last Will and Testament of said deceased, may be proved, approved, probated, allowed and recorded as the last Will and Testament of said Daniel McManigal, deceased, and that the execution of said instrument may be committed and that the administration of said estate be entrusted to Belle W. Ley and Herman Lundberg, as Executors.

Ordered that December 26th, A. D. 1926, at 10 o'clock A. M. be assigned for hearing said petition, when all persons interested in said matter may appear at a County Court to be held in and for said County, and show cause why the prayer of the petitioner should not be granted; and that notice of the hearing of said petition and the hearing thereof, be given to all persons interested in said matter by publishing a copy of this order in the Wayne Herald, a weekly newspaper printed in said County, three successive weeks prior to said hearing.

Line Links States.
Furdoy, Neb., Dec. 5.—Winnebago has a new stringing wire on this side of the Missouri river in Cedar county. The new telephone line which will link the Winnebago and South Dakota, we had in fact will not have to be routed by Sioux City.

A gang of men is installing steel braces on the Meridian highway bridge, as the line leads from Yankton, S. D., across the bridge and over a new string of poles to a point a mile west of Furdoy, where it will join the Crofton toll line from the Cedar County Farmers' Telephone company at Hartington. Another gang is working on the poles and lines between here and the bridge.

The line, which will be completed in a few weeks, will carry cables through Crofton and Wausa to Randolph, which will become a center for the messages, according to present plans.

Notice to Creditors.
The State of Nebraska, Wayne county, ss.
In the county court.
In the matter of the estate of Mary Ellenberg, deceased.

To the creditors of said estate:—You are hereby notified, that I will sit at the County Court Room in Wayne in said County on the 2nd day of January, and on the 2nd day of April, 1926, at 10 o'clock A. M., each day, to receive and examine all claims against said estate with a view to their adjustment, and allowance. The time limited for the presentation of claims against said estate is three months from the 2nd day of January, 1926, and the time limited for payment of debts is One Year from said 2nd day of January, 1926.

Witness my hand and the seal of said County Court, this 4th day of December, 1926.

Loose Fingers in Shelter.
Orchard Neb., Dec. 5.—Sylvester R. Reed, 45, suffered the loss of four fingers on his right hand yesterday when he caught his arm in a corn sheller that was being operated on the M. F. Ickes farm, near Orchard.

Reed was working with Ed Bubbs at the time—He was rushed to the Orchard hospital where Dr. Fletcher found it necessary to amputate the four fingers that were badly mutilated and mangled. The physician was able to save the thumb.

The injured man, lives in Orchard. He has a wife and a daughter. He is a school teacher in South Dakota.

Wedded 25 Years Ago.
Wayne, Neb., Dec. 2.—With eight of their nine children present for the occasion, Mr. and Mrs. Frank J. Pinkleman, of St. James, celebrated their silver wedding anniversary at their home, a large number of friends calling and extending congratulations during the day. One daughter, now present, is in an Ursuline convent in New York.

HAVE YOU A BAD BACK?
Then the Advice of This Wayne Resident Will Interest You.

Does your back ache night and day; hinder work; destroy your rest? Are you tortured with stabbing pains? When you stoop, life or bend? Then likely your kidneys are weak. More troubles may soon appear. Headaches, dizziness, nervousness, or uric acid and its ills. Help your weakened kidneys with a certain diuretic—use Doan's Pills.

Read this Wayne testimony: Mrs. Grant Davis, 302 Blaine St., says: "When I stooped, sharp pains shot across my kidneys and household work got to be a real burden. I could hardly straighten. Standing increased the lameness and stiffness in my back and when night came I was completely tired out and nervous. too. My kidneys acted too freely. After using Doan's Pills from Fubler's Drug Store, I was rid of the backache and my kidneys were in a healthy condition."

Improved Roads.
York Republican: "One does not need to drive very far these fine fall days to appreciate the value and pleasure of Nebraska roads. They are fast becoming arteries of traffic and travel. The gravel surfaced roads are the best but the dirt roads at this season are good and people are making the most of them. These good roads have widened acquaintance, expanded communitities, broken down walls of isolation, increased trade, and are instruments liable aid to better living, more of benefit, whose value cannot be friendships and distributed prosper estimated. A good road is an inviol. ty.

BETTER Than a SEDAN Even at the Same Price

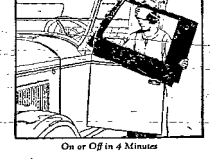

A good touring car modernized with Glassmobile is a better "buy" than a sedan—even at the same cost—for these reasons:

- More "pep" and power.
- Greater roadability and safety.
- Equal comfort and convenience.
- Less weight—lower operating costs.

But, as a matter of fact, the touring car curtailment with Glassmobile is much lower both in first cost and upkeep than a sedan of the same make.

Always with the Car

On or Off in 4 Minutes

Ventilated without Movable Glass

The whole set of panels is carried flat in a shallow container when not in use—easier and quicker to get out or put away than celluloid curtains—no fuss or bother as is necessary with the same space and involves no loss of leg room.

An entire set of Glassmobile panels can be put on or taken off in four minutes without tools and from inside of the car when necessary. Each panel operates as a separate unit permitting an entirely closed, partially closed or open car at will.

A clever patented feature exclusive with Glassmobile provides perfect ventilation without the dangers, annoyances and discomfort common to movable glass panels. With these glass curtains a change of air without draughts is secured by sliding, either or both panels, back from the windshield—scientific, simple and effective.
