

Rev. William Kearns Speaks to Wayne High School Students on Season's Resolutions

Though Defeated by Narrow Margin by Piger, Wayne Quinist is Filiping Up for Future.

Assembly Meeting. The assembly meeting for Tuesday, Jan. 12, was exceedingly interesting. The speaker was Rev. Wm. Kearns. He spoke to us on the New Year's resolutions. Among other things he asked us to make resolutions and to observe one of them? Wouldn't it be better to make one of importance and keep it? Let it be one that will really better our lives. Mr. Kearns recalled that youth can hardly wait to become older. The years seem so long when we grow older we find our days passing too fast. "As thou sowest thou reapest." This is the way in life. If we sow bad seed in youth we shall have nothing for harvest in old age.

He asked us to make the resolution to obey our parents. Various questions set us thinking of our duty in this respect. Who loves us more than our parents? Whose feelings do we hurt more than theirs? How do we hurt our parents? They sacrifice greatly so they may care for us correctly. Why shouldn't we pay heed to the interests of those who are so dear to our parents? Our folks advise us because they know of the pitfalls and the dangers that will be met in the future. In conclusion he said: "Let our two resolutions be to save the springtime of our lives by not wasting our time in useless deeds. And to obey and love our parents."

There was no program Thursday, but Friday there was a pep meeting. Head news was given.

The first one was by Harry Ellis Fisher who gave a short speech about the team.

The next was by Mr. Sagar on "The History of the Side Lines." He said the coach always tells you the history of the game, so he thought it would be interesting to hear at the beginning of the side lines. He did this in a very amusing and instructive manner.

Mr. Hook gave a short speech on "Sportsmanship." He said: "We must have patience and consideration for the outsiders." He asked us to question these resolutions and to make it agreeable or disagreeable for them? Do they like to come here to play against us?

Mr. Johnson next entertained us by telling a few stories. This program was different from preceding ones. It put the students in the right spirit to play and to receive our guests.

Athletics.

The Wayne high school basketball game was defeated by the narrow margin last Friday night by Piger. The score stood: Piger, 17; Wayne 16, when the last white blow by Piger and a jump on the part of the Wayne squad at the opening of the last quarter lost the game for the local boys. The game was close throughout, Wayne having a slight advantage up until the fourth period. With three minutes to go the score 17 to 12, Wayne made desperate and failed to make the winning basket.

The Wayne squad had improved slightly since their first game but still they must improve both offense and defense to make them a winning team. Both teams played a clean game with Guy Beat as referee, and sportsmanship was shown. The final day the Wayne scores with 7 points, Fisher 5, Dennis 2, and Keyser 2. Wayne's passing game was good, but a big percentage of their shots missed their mark.

This week, Wayne will drill to meet a strong team at Stanton Friday, Jan. 15. They will have many chances to work for, but nevertheless a good game is expected. A good home crowd has many times brought a victory let us go to Stanton and root for the boys.

The Wayne second team defeated the training school team in a closely contested game last Friday night. The score being: Wayne high second team 12, training school 8. Elmer Erickson and Maurice Wright each scored five baskets to win the game. The training school team exhibited good team work and made a stiff opponent for the Wayne high school team. The line-up for the Elmer team was as follows: Center, Dennis; forwards, Jones and Fisher; guards, Keyser, Perry; substitutes, Perry for Perry, Erickson for Schmidt.

Shower for Miss Rester. About seventy friends and relatives attended a kitchen shower in honor of Miss Mathilda Rester, on Friday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Averman. The rooms were prettily decorated in pink, white and blue, the bride-to-be chosen colors. A mock wedding was a very pleasant feature of the evening's entertainment. Miss Ruby Holt acted as bride. Her bridesmaid was bridegroom, Marcela Hale, bride's maid, Myrtle Soden, best man and Frank Soden as the minister. Visiting and music were also much enjoyed. The honored guest received a large number of useful gifts for her new home. Luncheon was served from the baskets brought by the guests. The wedding of Miss Mathilda Rester and Lou Bair has been announced as Jan. 20. Mrs. Herbert Hin-riches and Miss Lora Haberman will entertain at a miscellaneous shower at the home of the former Tuesday evening.

Cows Make Record. West Point, Neb., Jan. 8.—Raising six calves from a cow in one year is the record set by William Paul, Jr., of near West Point. One cow, a Holstein, had four calves during the year, from January 18, and again on December 30. The other cow also had twins during the year. All of the calves are living and in good health. The Holstein cow gives over 16 quarts of milk at each milking.

Some fathers have a hard time making their sons do as they say, instead of as they did.

Many a self-made man can credit his wife with being his self-creator—if he will.

Business. Sioux City Journal: The most gratifying and convincing proof of a much improved business condition is in the announcements from various sources that new high records were reached the past year. This was the case with a majority of the principal industries. Manufacturing, banking and railroading all showed surprising development and established records. Failures were reduced in all these lines, but the total of such was smaller than for any year since the war.

Transportation figures available for the week to week revealed all along the growth in business activity. More goods were being hauled by the railroads for the reason that larger industrial production had resulted from an increased demand. There was more buying both as to individual purchases and, of course, as to the volume of turnover. Some of the increases in goods, it readily is admitted, were due to natural causes. The population is greater year by year and so are its needs. Yet the increased demand for goods was out of proportion to population growth, wherefore it may be correctly inferred that the change was influenced by a distinct enlargement of the people's buying power. Much of that was, in turn, the result of restored confidence, together with the natural desire, for luxuries along with necessities.

Sioux City's own experience during the past year as shown in the Chamber of Commerce report reflects what has been a rule all over the country. Records of many kinds were established here. Bank deposits for the first time in history exceeded $1,000,000,000. Manufacturing reached the impressive total of $176,112,000, making a gain of more than $30,000,000 over 1924, while jobbing reached a new high figure with an increase over last year of nearly $9,000,000 to establish a record with $216,277,000 worth of business.

The trade territory was enlarged somewhat, which accounts for a part of the increase. The greater increase, however, was due to a stronger demand and a more satisfactory business situation. Sioux City's gratifying experience is similar to those of other communities throughout the country, the only difference being found in the degree of improvement.

Indeed it is a certainty that business indications for this year justify the optimistic predictions made everywhere. With new records made in 1925, general business logically may be expected to duplicate or to exceed the figures shown. The era of prosperity not only is coming; it already is here.

UNWHOLESOME EXTREMES

Chicago has recently concocted a cartoon showing the dollar as one's god, money, but no friends, as one's goal and a costly monument, as marking one's final resting place, as marking one's final resting place. Off in the distance are graves dotted by simple headstones, which are attracted to people riding flowers and garlands. That is one very reprehensible extreme—hoarding money merely to satisfy one's vain ambition to contribute to public development or to aid scientific discovery or to promote social welfare. The man who will employ a share of his millions for the improvement of life's facilities is a public benefactor. The Crocker, the business heat, a river and light cheaply used is a public benefactor. Any one who adds to convenience or multiplies means for worthy achievement is hailed, lauded and remembered as a public benefactor. But the man who amasses wealth for mere love of gold, travels a narrow path, leaves no happy recollection and finally forgets his "unneeded, unwanted and unused."

The other extreme is represented by the man who shifts along impatiently on his overburdened horse, the small bankrupt with great mouth, but without thought of the morrow, allowing frivolity to monopolize his time and resources, caring not a penny for a secure foundation on which to build world-wide effort for self or society.

The world applauds and remembers the man who acquires material means to better fill his niche in life, to give his mind a freer range, to solve big and little problems, modestly contributing his share to lifting big and little burdens, aiding the weak, the helpless, the comfort and content of more and more people.

THORNS.

We examined one which cultivated roses, big, rich blossoms, and we found very few thorns on the stalks. The little, wild roses we used to gather for many children, which were so it was advisable to wear gloves.

Quite like cultivation of the rose, originally set full of thorns, culture of the individual removes the sharp, offending points and modifies his predisposition to ugliness and offense.

Admiration for the wild rose was replaced by admiration for the cultivated one, which was pleasing and smarting. The untutored Indian with many qualities to admire, but armed with a thorny disposition that could not be trusted, had to be handled with care.

The luxuriant rose, marvelously developed, has not many thorns, but is threatened or hurt, but just enough to remind one of the species. The cultured man or woman, wonderful in mind and character, is approached with assurance and no hidden thorns will cause stinging rebuff. An occasional thorn is a reminder that one is human and equipped for defense in an unenviable eventuality.

THE TARIFF.

The central west is willing to support a reasonable tariff if measures are provided to properly take care of the American farmer and his business. Farmers do not relish acceptance of low prices when they raise a surplus of goods.

This week every newspaper in the state will call attention to the fact that Tuesday, Jan. 12, was the thirty-eighth anniversary of the big blizzard that swept the middle west, causing many deaths and much suffering. The storm came on Monday evening, usually short for a blizzard, but it made up in severity for what it lacked in duration. As many remember, the temperature fell to thirty and warm and wonderfully soothing for a winter's day. No one suspected what the weather meant up to eleven o'clock, when at schools were called to order after dinner, a northwester, instigated by mischievous forethought, sudden change of position. A heavy snowfall was churned and pulverized and shot through the air by the wind. The rain was so heavy that a foot ahead of his face. Cutting cold added to the fury of the elements. Many teachers and children remained in school, as they were over night. Some perished. Nothing so bad in the way of a blizzard happened before or since, as oldest inhabitants will testify, and then pay high prices for protected manufactured goods.

"Touching this subject the Des Moines Register says:

"There may be some element of 'bluff' in the turn the debate is taking against the present tariff rates, but it is not a greater mistake than to assume that it is all bluff, or principally bluff.

"The renewed feeling of the farm West as it relates to the tariff is a serious one, and grows out of the belief that the tariff is used to create a home market with home market prices for the industries, but leaves the farm on the world market price-level. They believe they can not stand on that basis and have a profitable agriculture.

"If what the farmer's basket of corn has gone up because of tariffs, the price of the bushel of corn must be increased accordingly, or the tariff works a serious discrimination against the farmer and the consumer of a world market price—and buy at an American market price—and play even."

Congressman Edgar Howard who is naturally chivalrous, may decide, out of respect to advanced years, to place his campaign for reelection and permit his octogenarian opponent to defeat him.

When the different community clubs get together as they did here Tuesday night, they ripen acquaintance and cultivate desirable common interests. Friends of the sort would develop closer understanding and promote the general welfare.

Every day brings, many ups and downs, often more down than up. An encouraging note comes along with the news of the day. He does not get up very far, however, until something else comes along to take wind out of his sails. Nightly changes, however, multiply and problems are half solved when eight-fold invites repose and oblivion.

The Herald has received a copy of the Sonoma Valley Moon published in Sonoma, Calif., and at its masthead flies, as editor and one of the publishers, the name of W. L. Gaston, a former Wayne preacher and a former legislator and former secretary of state of Nebraska. The Moon shows very pronounced symptoms of prosperity, and reflects the success of the former editor and enthusiastic live-wire like Mr. Gaston, it should, as it doubtless will, show encouraging growth. From purchasing the paper, the friends and well wishers will be divided in opinion as to whether he is going up or down in the world.

A committee of fifty men drawn from over the state by Governor McCullen met at the capital Friday to discuss the tariff and the future of the market. The men generally favored organization of a corporation to handle surplus crops and prevent the waste of food.

A measure is being prepared to lay before congress to provide for a universal draft in case of the event of another war it is proposed to make everybody and every-thing subject to draft. While soldiers in the World war were paid $30 per month, people employed safely at home in making war materials received unprecedented wages. Industries were largely rewarded. As we understand, the proposed law will cut out all profits. War em-er-sions in the United States are a waste of wealth. If we have another war we will be expected to lay aside reaping profits and suspend extravagant gains in the United States. Besides being fair, this prospect will strengthen the movement to preserve peace. It is reported that members of the American Legion are in favor of the bill, and it is likely the masses generally would be found lined up for it.

In the Minden Courier is the story of a young girl who came alone from Russia to join her father at Minden. It is a simple, touching story, explaining that though she was born in Minden, she was taken to the wheat belt of southeastern Russia eleven years ago. She was a refugee from the horrors of war and famine, and she mentions the relief brought in the spring of 1922 when American ships arrived with supplies. Her father preceded her back to the United States and she followed as soon as possible. Her gratitude over her stay in America should awaken appreciation on the part of people who have not felt the hardships of the war. The girl is now in Minden, she explains: "I am glad I live in America. I do not care to go back to Russia since as I enjoyed the trip. There were no schools, work and school play, where schools are short and poor and teachers, always men, are awfully severe; where children don't have candy and good things, they are not happy. The people are so dreadfully poor. I love America! And I give my head, my hands, my heart to God and my country. Our country our language, our flag! The grand old U. S. A. for me as long as I live."

RESPECT.

Our school department gives emphasis this week to the duty of children to respect their parents. This is sound advice. In the next breath we would advise parents to merit the respect of their children. They may do this by not lying to them, by not deceiving them for convenience, by establishing examples of rectitude and square dealing, by leading them to understand a policy of cheating and unfair in all relations—just as wrong in the affairs of the world as it is in the affairs of examinations, athletic or debating contests, or other activities. If parents expect greatest possible respect from their children, they must encourage them to study earnestly and play wholesomely, to cultivate habits of industry, avoid waste and extravagance, and be un-satisfied by luxury nor un-satisfied in ease, but directed in overcoming obstacles and reaching worthy goals, extending their solicitude and steady the boat when it rocks—a life of such depth, vigor and usually win and hold respect.

The Hartington Herald employs a page of display matter in its last issue to show that the publisher of another newspaper in the same town belongs in the Annals class. It seems that the other paper assumed to publish the number of inches of farm advertising the Herald had carried during certain months, and according to the Herald, fell far short in mathematical computation, which the Herald attributed to premeditated and purposeful assault on truth, rather than to incapacity to figure accurately. Doubtless the Herald concluded that the o. p. were deficient in analytic brains capable of common measurement and addition, so-called would have been un-forgotten by less than the facts as found by the Herald. It would seem up to the editor of the o. p. to explain whether his motive was bad or whether he just didn't figure or to show that the Hartington Herald is not so conversant with its own business as somebody else.

Speaks On Roads.

Norfolk News, Jan. 13.—Seventy-five enthusiastic business and professional men of Randolph attended a banquet at which W. H. Blakeman and F. G. Humphrey of Norfolk were among the speakers.

The promotion of good roads is the paramount issue in Norfolk at the present time, was the theme of Mr. Blakeman's talk. He pointed out the advantages that have been gained by the improvement made during the past two years, and presented the future in a pleasing manner. The Norfolk also spoke on national highways and what they have meant to the development of this nation.

"Get acquainted with your neighbor, you might like him," was the keynote of Mr. Humphrey's speech. He stressed the importance of cooperation among business men of a town, this being the secret of a city's advancement—"It is only through knowing your neighbors that cooperation can be accomplished," Mr. Humphrey declared.

Senator C. H. Randall of Randolph gave a short talk that sparkled with wit. Plans for a membership drive were promoted by the Randolph men who are enthusiastic boosters for their home town.

Our Home Attractions.

Will profit good and plenty. The red man, white man, and the nigger

Find in this climate pep and vigor

To Florida the wealings flock, A motley aggregation, For fear this atmosphere will block Their "blood's" circulation. They eat and drink, and tip the waiters, And dodge the hungry alligators.

Perhaps they seek the western shore, Where earthquakes sometimes rumble. To hear the wild Pacific roar, And watch the whitecaps tumble. This soon becomes their sad condition, Lost strength, lost vigor, lost ambition.

Nebraska weather stands among The life-preserving factors; It makes the aged man feel young, It makes us all good actors. Would I had language for revealing, Upon this theme, my depth of feeling.

The atmosphere today is raw— An overcoat comes handy— Joy takes in every breath we draw; We're feeling fine and cozy. It makes me happy when confessing Nebraska is a constant blessing.

The New Year.

The new year went with gentle touch, Like health of early fall. Now, maybe, we shall not have much cold weather after all. So, is it not the proper thing? To stay right on the job till spring?

Some people at the thought of cold Begin to fret and worry; Or sweet comfort they lose their hold, And fly at every flurry. Such actions, cowardly and vain, Distinctly go against the grain.

Start Soon on Road.

Norfolk News, Jan. 13.—Within about ten days construction on the Norfolk Hotel building will start according to E. C. Eppley, owner.

This announcement was made following a meeting of directors of the Norfolk Hotel company Monday evening at which time the local company and the Stevens company agreed upon a compromise of their controversy, by which the Stevens company will receive $5,000 and the hotel company the balance, amounting to about $38,500, of the payment made by Arthur Sanford when he purchased the hotel property.

As a result of the agreement the Stevens vs. Norfolk Hotel controversy case which is in the Nebraska supreme court, will be withdrawn.

Because of the conditions between the hotel company and Stevens company, construction work on the hotel was delayed. It had originally been planned that the work was to start on Jan. 3.

The $38,000 will be distributed among holders of stock in the hotel company, in the near future, it was also announced.

Plans are that a large crew of skilled workmen and laborers will be employed and the hotel building will be completed by the middle of next summer.

"The System Bible Study," a new book by many of the world's greatest bible scholars, has been received at the city library. The purpose of the book is to give a complete, concise and useful book of classified bible helps.

The material is arranged so as to make it as easy as possible to secure the greatest amount of biblical information in the least possible time.

The book is not a commentary but it simplifies the study of the bible. Historical laws, quotations, the teachings of Jesus and other valuable pieces of information are classified.

Another new book at the library is "Hooked Rugs and How to Make Them." This is by Anna M. Phillips and tells what materials and needles to use in making these new rugs.

Frederic Stoddard, pioneer Nebraskan, has submitted to the inland waterways commission a plan to eliminate an eight and a half mile "cut" in the Missouri river between Blair and Omaha.

About three miles south of Blair the river "cuts" to the northeast, shooting eight and a half miles towards Iowa. By digging a sixty foot canal two and a half miles long, this "cut" would be eliminated and the river would become navigable at that point, Stoddard believes. It would also salvage thousands of acres of valuable farm land, Stoddard declared.

Major Grant Is Third In Family to Win Honors

Major Grant Is Third In Family to Win Honors

THE Grants for three generations have won distinction. There was first the war hero and president; then his son Frederick Bent Grant—a major general with the army record and now the latter's son, Major U. S. Grant, who is director of public buildings and public parks of the capital.

This is an unusual circumstance in this appointment of Major Grant. The principal construction work in his charge will be the great Arlington Memorial Bridge. This symbolic link between north and south, extending from the Lincoln Memorial to the home of General Lee, will be welded by the grandson of the nation's largest aggregation of public buildings.

The tall officer with the square "Cavalry" face will have little time for looting on the new job. He succeeds Lieut. Col. C. O. Sherrill, who resigns to become city manager of Cincinnati. He will direct construction work and see to the maintenance of the nation's largest aggregation of public buildings.

Twenty years ago in Washington as First Lieutenant Grant he got into the habit of performing many duties. At that time he was in charge of instruction of cadets at the Washington Barracks, was battalion and post adjutant, secretary of the engineering school, and a student there, and to fill his spare time served as a White House aide.

Major Grant was born in 1871, four years before the death of his famous grandfather. He has a fragmentary, scientific memory of President Grant—a child's impression of a kindly old man and a monument that he was not allowed to play in the room where his grandfather was ill.

With Major Grant's commission interrupted the direct succession of soldiers in the family. He has three children, but they are girls. Mrs. Grant is the daughter of former MAJOR U. S. GRANT Secretary of State and Senator Elisha Root.

Major Grant attended school for a time in Vienna when a boy there with his parents. He was graduated from West Point in 1893, and served in the Philippine Campaign and in Mexico with General Pershing and at Vera Cruz. During the 1896 war he attained the temporary rank of colonel and in 1898 he was with the American peace commission in Paris. He was decorated by France, Great Britain, Italy and other foreign nations awarded the American distinguished service medal.

Dr. A. D. Lewis Returns From Davenport; Attended Special Course On Chiropractic

Dr. A. D. Lewis, local Chiropractor, reports a most interesting and highly intensive course of Neuroanatomy and Spinegraph instruction given at the Palmer School of Chiropractic during the holidays.

The review course was of two weeks' duration and included most comprehensive instructions in the very latest phases of modern Chiropractic work. Lectures and clinical work were demanded of each Chiropractor in attendance at the course.

Dr. Lewis reports that hundreds of Chiropractors from all over the American continent were present, and that the instruction given was of immeasurable value. Dr. Lewis feels himself benefited to a very great degree and is inspired to render an even finer and more complete service to his patients as a result of this special work.

sent to Winside friends pictures of the school building where he teaches. A new $50,000 grade building is under construction at present, but will not be finished in time to move into this spring. The Hansons spent Thanksgiving at El Paso, Texas, Mexico. They plan to drive to Nebraska next summer. The Standard oil truck driven by Ben Benoshoff, Saturday, came too close to the dry team of Ben Saunders. The horses were hitched to the dry and were standing, driven, on the street, both blind and when frightened by the truck ran into R. A. McCleary's automobile, parked, partially wrecking it. They turned into Adolph Miller's car parked on the opposite side of the street and damaging it. The team was then caught before further harm was done. The cars were taken to the garage for repairs. Mr. and Mrs. Louis Needham who moved from their farm into town this week, were delightfully surprised Friday evening when thirty-seven of their neighbors brought well-filled lunch baskets and took possession of their home for a full day. The evening was spent at cards and dancing. The Needhams have not been long in the neighborhood, but already they are making as many friends as they were "old-timers." The guests included the families of John Dunkan, Henry Bush, Fred O'Neil, H. Hanson, Lester Jensen, Herman Franzen, Lester Hofeldt and J. Hewichs. The woman's club met Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Bert Lewis. Fourteen members and two guests, Mrs. George Lewis, Mrs. Ben Lewis and Mrs. George Pinion attended. Dwight Pinion; wampum bearer, Dale Brugger. The scout dues will be 5 cents at each meeting. It was decided to sell candy at the union play to raise money for the tribe treasury. Lone scout caps are to be bought and worn by all scouts at regular meetings. Meeting of grade boys was held on Monday, Saturday, to organize the second tribe of Lone scouts. The changeable weather seemed to bring an epidemic of colds. Mr. and Mrs. Paul Killion visited at Chas. Killion's Sunday. J. P. Clausen shipped cattle last week and accompanied the shipment. Mrs. Henry Albers who recently fell and injured her hand is improving. Corn shelling is still the order of the day and many are disposing of it immediately. Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Bressler and others spent Thursday at Mrs. Robert Sneath's. G. C. McNeil is assisting at the W. C. Schoffeld home, as they plan on moving onto another farm this spring. David Herzer, Mrs. Orville Puckett and Ernest Pruessing were Omaha passengers Monday to attend the convention. Mr. and Mrs. Charles Farran entertained at an oyster supper Saturday night; Mr. and Mrs. George Farran, Mrs. Etta Perrin, Lauritan, made and hung new, white curtains in the library which add greatly to the appearance of the room. The library board and librarian with other assistants plan to give a chicken supper in the M. E. church basement next Wednesday, Jan. 20. Mr. and Mrs. L. S. Needham of Norfolk were here during the weekend bidding friends goodbye. They leave next Sunday for Hot Springs, Arkansas for a month or so of winter and from there go to Long Beach, California, for the remainder of the winter. They plan to return some time in April. Several of the business men are planning to arrange for a skating rink, when the weather gets back to freezing, for the benefit of young as well as older skaters. Fred Weible has consented to have the pond in his pasture, adjoining town. A pond 75 by 150 feet has been arranged for. The use of the pond will be free to everybody. The reporter received Saturday, the year-end edition of the Oregonian, a Portland daily paper, sent by Nina B. Ecker, former editor of the Winside Tribune. The paper is a readable, and very interesting in its articles on the growth of Oregon. The picture section, semi-colored, would naturally look good in a book-bound Newaskan. Miss Gertrude Bayes and Wednesday, Will Bayes, entertained last Wednesday at a 6 o'clock dinner Mr. and Mrs. Gurney Benoshoff, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Morrow, Mr. and Mrs. I. O. Brown, Mr. and Mrs. Art Auker, S. H. Rew and daughter, Miss Bess Bess, Mrs. Etta Perrin and Arlington Prince. A radio program was enjoyed during the dinner hour. The evening was spent playing some record. Two special events had been planned for the last week that had come in too late for publication were birthday parties. On Tuesday night Mrs. Jens Anderson entertained at luncheon Mr. and Mrs. Chester Wylie, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Anderson, Mr. and Mrs. Lauritz Hanson. Mrs. H. E. Peterson and son, Fred, and Mrs. H. E. Sيمان, and the same guests to a radio and card party on Saturday night in honor of Mr. Tidrick's birthday. Luncheon was served. The library board met last week and placed upon the shelves for the month of January the complete set of Billy Whisker books. The young readers are very enthusiastic about Billy Whisker and it was quite an event to see the complete set on their faces and hear the exclamations of delight at the full set of books. Market Report

Furnished by Stevel, Siman & Co., Sioux City Stock Yards.

Jan. 13.—More than the unusual unevenness of the past was prevalent in the live stock trade this week as values fell in a number of lines. The pig and hog firms in reactionary climb, which left only ovaries at discounted rates by midweek.

At the leading markets of the country absorbed approximately 298,000 porkers the first two days of the week, a decrease of 45,000 hogs, as compared to the same time of the same two days last week. On the first day of the week packers labored under the impression that they finally had the live pig deer on the hog gun. However, even before the close of the Monday trade, values were again headed upwards and by Tuesday the early Monday discount was ancient history. At midweek tops on lights are floating around the $12 line and heavy butchers are only a few cents in the rear. Light hogs are about $1 under big butchers.

Figs are getting an exceptional sale. Tops are now at $12.50, for the highest price of the season and at that great all incoming supplies are being moved back to the country rapidly.

Approximately 140,000 cattle arrived at the 11 leading markets the first three days of the week, an increase of 8,000 head, over Monday

Tuesday of last week. Monday brought a 15 to 25 cent decline for all killing cattle, which was wiped out Tuesday on a shorter run. Wednesday the deal progressed on a level not greatly different from the Tuesday release and practically unchanged as compared to the close of last week.

Fat steers are moving in generous numbers and an increase is noted in the number of fair to good kinds. Heaviest trading this week was at $8.00 to $9.50. Tops reached $9.75, there being no outstanding fat steers offered.

Fancy yearling heifers figure to $10. Best here this week earned $9.50, while fair to good kinds from $7.50 to $9.00 were shown in larger numbers. Better cows to $8, with the majority to the Boston trade at $7.00 show a firm average. Fair to good butchers generally sold from $6.00 to $7.00.

Bulls sold a quarter higher over the first half of the week and by so doing regained most of the late week slump. From last week, Bologna of fair to good quality are now selling from $5.25 to $6.85, and heavy beef butters are carrying from $2 to $3.35. Veals figure steady to a $10.50 peak.

Stockers and feeders are a constantly brisk sale and firm and strong prices. Demands more than match incoming supplies at all times. Fair to good thin steers of practically all weights clear from $7.00 to $8.00, with a few extra good kinds, including some warm ups, to about $8.50. A very little junk is showing, while only a light percentage of ordinary types to sell from $6.25 to $6.50 are coming.

Fancy feeding heifers to $7.00 and fair to choice kinds from $5.75 to $6.50 are firm and active. Best light cows figure around $4.50.

Moderately increased numbers of sheep and lambs sold lower this week. Arrivals in the main consisted of fat lambs. At midweek the crest is just above $15, with the top on fancy western feeding lambs to $15.25.

The market is 25 cents under last week's low close. Because of extreme scarcity fat handweight ewes are practically steady, with the top at $8.75.

Stanton Lawyer, 80, Files For Congress

Lincoln, Neb., Jan. 12.—Aaron C. Read, of Stanton county, who recently was admitted to the Nebraska bar at the age of 80 years, has filed for the republican congressional nomination at Stanton. He is the oldest candidate to file for the coming political race.

As a youth he was admitted to the bar in Ohio. He came west to farm and after retirement from agriculture again sought a law career.

The second in the series will be "Why the Devil Got Kicked Out of Heaven." The third, "The Little Fellow Wins." To get the real story you will want to hear all.

On Opposing Sides During Civil War

Ponca, Neb., Jan. 12.—Sixty-five years ago the boys of the "blue and the gray" met on the battlefield. Today they meet with a handshake. This is exemplified by the last of Ponca's civil war veterans, one representing the "blue" and the other the "gray" in the annual pledge of fellowship, the veterans are John Armstrong and Cummings Gilmer.

Mr. Gilmer was born and reared near Lebanon, Va., and at the age of 13 he enlisted in company G, Twenty-ninth regiment of Virginia, in Pickens' division under Gen. Robert E. Lee. He served in campaigns in Virginia, North and South Carolina, Kentucky and Tennessee, and participated in the battle of Cold Harbor, Five Forks and Petersburg. He says the blue army often was compelled to march over flooded roads due to heavy rains, but he never missed a day from duty or was sick or wounded during the war.

Mr. Gilmer can tell how the "Johnnies and the Yanks" used to swap newspapers, when the armies were stationed between Richmond and Petersburg. He and his company were captured by the union forces on April 5, one day prior to Lee's surrender to Gen. Grant at Appomattox.

Mr. Armstrong is one of the two surviving members of Ponca post, No. 116, G. A. R., which once had a membership of more than 75 members. He served for more than 18 months in the union army in company H, Forty-eighth Illinois infantry. He marched with Sherman to the sea and in the capture of Atlanta witnessed the killing of his corps commander, Gen. McPherson. He took part in the battle of Kennesaw mountain and helped capture Fort McAllister, which guarded Savannah. From there the victorious army marched to Columbia, S. C., then to Richmond, Va., and on to Washington for the grand review, where they laid down their arms. Mr. Armstrong, like Mr. Gilmer, can recount how the Yankees and Johnnies traded tobacco.

Mr. Gilmer and his wife have been married 47 years and have six children and eight grandchildren. Mr. Gilmer will be 82 on March 4, and Mr. Armstrong will pass his 82nd birthday just four days sooner, but due to an eccentricity of Father Time he cannot celebrate a birthday for he was born February 29. He is in good health and takes long walks to town. Mr. Gilmer also may be seen on the streets each day.

Mr. Gilmer and his wife, who have lived in Nebraska 41 years, will celebrate their 47th wedding anniversary on February 4 and Mr. Armstrong and his wife, who have been here 40 years, will celebrate their 84th anniversary on March 14.

Director in Florida Bank.

Lincoln, Neb., Jan. 12.—Reports were current here today that former Gov. Charles W. Bryan had entered the banking business in Coconut Grove, Fla., created a stir in political circles. Bryan, who is considered a potential gubernatorial candidate on the democratic ticket in the coming primaries, is reported to have been made one of the directors of the Florida Exchange bank.

Friends of Bryan, however, reiterated their predictions that he would return to Nebraska within a short time.

Tells of Early Life in County

Mrs. Mary Brittain Describes Experiences in LaPorte About Fifty Years Ago.

The late James Brittain and Mrs. Brittain were among the pioneers of Wayne county. Mrs. Brittain had written to the Brittains, who then lived in Paw Paw, Ill., telling them the wonderful opportunity for development in prospect at LaPorte. The Brittains had considered going to St. Louis and perhaps to Ackerly, but after the Brittains returned from Mr. Hunter, they came to Wayne county, leaving Illinois April 19, 1876.

After crossing the Missouri river at Blair they came by train to Wisconsin, then the terminal of the railroad. To this place they shipped their household goods. At the same time a group of Irish settlers were on their way to O'Neill to locate. They did not know that Wisconsin was the end of the road until they reached that place. Mr. McMillan who kept the hotel in Wisconsin, had his house crowded to capacity the morning of April 19, 1876. These bonds for O'Neill sought horses and wagons the following day to take their possessions to their new home which was a long journey from Wisconsin.

Crossing the Missouri had been an experience well worth mentioning. Missions the ferryboat had taken the party over the river. It was early in the morning of a rainy day. The water blew a gate and the sand was flying through the air so thick that members of the party were almost blinded. Cars could not be taken across the boat that day. The travelers sat on the ferry where they could find room, out of the wind. The river looked oily and black. The train on the Nebraska side of the river carried the passengers over the gray and desolate prairie to Wisconsin. The Brittains, Mr. Brittain and Mrs. Brittain, were taken a distance of twenty miles in a wagon, over prairie roads, to the Ackerly home. Mrs. Brittain had been through the roads were surveyed, some of them were high roads because every farmer had his own road across the prairie. After going into whatever direction he wished to go. Unless one was a keen observer it was easy to get lost over such roads even in daylight. No fence or trees were to be seen. The grass was every hillock and bunch of grass was a guidepost in the landscape. The hand of man was not yet visible. The Brittains had been in the school in 1876 and learned much, she says, about the prairie. Some of the children were able to distinguish persons a half mile away against the landscape. One warm summer afternoon when she was in season, a big black cloud appeared and Mrs. Brittain went to the window to watch developments. The wind blew from the north and the cloud came from that direction. One of the school children stated that the cloud was grasshoppers. It was a very heavy storm settled on everything and stayed until the next day. They ate every green thing in sight and some things underground, but onions were ever eaten. Gladioli and dahlias bulbs which Mrs. Brittain had in the ground and covered with packing boxes were eaten.

For a time the Brittains stayed with the Joe Agler family who lived in a dugout north of LaPorte. This was a dugout with a hole in the ground below ground and the rest above. The dugout was built in a hill so that the hill could be used for the back part of the sides of the house. Three steps led down to the door of the main room which was below ground. Two windows lighted the room. The arrangement plan made the sides of the house and also the floor. The planks were covered with tar paper and were then papered on the inside so as to keep the cold out. Planks separated the first from the second story. The second story was above ground and the windows in this opened onto the ground. The walls of the upper story, which was used as a bedroom, were also of cottonwood planks. Mr. Bevin, county treasurer in 1876, had built a store and was starting to put in a stock of groceries and dry goods when Mr. Brittain bought the building and started the store, as there was not then enough law practice in the village to keep one busy. The first goods to be bought in the village which was a distance of about eighteen miles. Afterwards he went to Sioux City to select his stock. The trip to LaPorte by truck. The Sioux City to Sioux City was long and hard as there was no railroad. The most treacherous place was at the bridge a block in length, east of the present site of Emerson. If a wagon wheels had cut through the bottom of the slough it was dangerous. Travelers who made the journey took "vaders" with them. In these boats they walked through the slough to get to a safe place for the wagon to follow. If the bottom had been broken the wagon would strike sand which had no safe bottom. In returning with a load of goods to Sioux City it was necessary to leave part of the goods on the east side of the slough and then return for the rest taking part of the load because the weight of the wagon and goods would break the ground bed of the slough. Mrs. Brittain remembers going with Mr. Brittain to Sioux City for goods when he waded and she drove the horses and in returning had to make two trips over the treacherous place to get the goods across. Mr. Hardenburg who had a store in LaPorte had two buildings. When the Brittains sold their house in the winter of 1880, Mr. Brittain and the smaller of the Hardenburg buildings for the winter. The store was in the front of the buildings and the Brittain house was in the back which was arranged for rooms. The winter of 1880 and 1881 was the one of the worst to snow fall in the country and stayed until late in the spring. The Brittains had more furniture than could be used in the rooms so they placed some on shelves. They had a large buffalo robe that covered one end of the building and when this was not stretched across the front of the room, keeping the cold out, members of the family would sit in the center of the room, under the robe, and then draw the robe up around themselves. It was so cold that the snow did not stay packed on the ground but it blew and was excellent for the Brittains, they were not particularly strong that winter and Mrs. Brittain says, the air seemed laden with fine snow all of the time. The snow was very heavy and it was during these cold winter months. One of the sad events of that winter was the death of the little Root boy, about 12 years of age, who had come to LaPorte to attend school for the winter. His parents lived near the site of the present town of Sholes. Then there were no schools at Sholes so they sent the boy to LaPorte. The boy was taken sick and died. Mr. Root had a team, sleds and shovels, started for the parents' home to take them word. The men worked a day and a night and returned about the following day. They wore out from trying to get through the snowdrifts. Another set of men and fresh horses were sent to assist them. The next morning Enoch Hunter had a homestead in the neighborhood. A. T. Chapin came about the same time and located on the land in the northwest of Grass Brittain came in the winter of 1880 and bought the Crawford homestead. Philo Graves, Mr. Muelten and Mr. Crane, Mrs. James Fox and sons and Mr. Skilas located north and east of LaPorte. A Cook family lived near the town of Lone Hill and his wife, who was a native of the east of the county set a drug and toy store in LaPorte. The group included some of the earliest settlers in LaPorte and on homesteads near there. Settlers came rapidly after 1870 and in a few years there in the southeast part of the county were the only ones here. The north and west parts of the county were very sparsely settled.

Mrs. Brittain tells of having driven with Mr. Brittain to the Enoch Hunter homestead which was about three miles east of the present site of Wayne. In the timber they hunted for prairie chickens. The land was not cultivated. Looking over the hills to what is probably now the Wayne county club grounds, the land had been broken and prairie grass and brush were there as they had grown at will. Mrs. Brittain was fond of horses. Much of the pasture of the early settlers was spent in riding. She and Mrs. J. T. Bressler started one pretty fall afternoon to drive to the Bressler homestead in the southern part of the county. Each invited a friend to go along. Mrs. Bressler took Jennie Hicks and Mrs. Brittain took Maggie Barelay. People on the ranch insisted that the young women stay for supper. They did so and the sun went down before they started home. At a cross road they turned onto a way seldom used. After going some distance Mrs. Brittain was in the lead, decided to let her horse find the way home. The horse started at a rapid gait. Suddenly a mound appeared in the road. It was a cross road and the wellridgers had thrown up that day. The horse did not stop. Mrs. Brittain and baby daughter and her friend were thrown out; the buggy was tipped over and things were in a mixup. One shaft was pushed in to the horse's shoulder and the animal ran a circle to get rid of the shaft. Mrs. Brittain kept hold of the lines and the women finally quieted the horse. The party went to the home of F. Childs, who came about the same time, started a newspaper with C. E. Hunter. Mr. Bevin was county treasurer. The Scott family lived north of LaPorte. The group was organized. Joe Agler had a farm north of LaPorte. Mr. Morrison was on a homestead. Enoch Hunter had a homestead in the neighborhood. A. T. Chapin came about the same time and located on the land in the northwest of Grass Brittain came in the winter of 1880 and bought the Crawford homestead. Philo Graves, Mr. Muelten and Mr. Crane, Mrs. James Fox and sons and Mr. Skilas located north and east of LaPorte. Philosophy. Harrington Herald: Speaking broadly all systems of philosophy may be divided into two general schools, the materialistic and the idealistic. There may be an infinite number of systems embodying one or the other principle in various forms, but, broadly speaking, these are the two grand divisions. Materialism is the working philosophy of the average man and woman. This does not exclude religion by any means and generally includes it; but simply means that we believe that the things around us, the things which we can feel and touch are real. On the other hand, idealism teaches that matter has no real existence—that it only appears to be real; and that the only actual reality in the universe is ideas. Now, to the average person, we know that idealism seems absurd. You say matter is real—this table, this book, this world are real; but how do you know they are? How do you know but what all these so-called material objects simply exist as ideas in the mind and that the only reality in the mind itself and the ideas which it projects? You have no proof for the mind is the court of last appeal and it is the mind that these ideas exist. Therefore, while we have suggested, materialism is the working philosophy of the average individual; the theory of the idealist is not to be scoffed at. He may be right and at any rate, it is interesting to note how thinkers, antipodal in their points of view, have arrived at the same conclusion. Jesus, for example, said "The kingdom of heaven is within you," and, at the other end of the line, poor Oscar Wild explains De Profundis. "But why was I not told. That the human brain can hold in a tiny ivory cell, 'God's heaven and hell' and it is a fact of common experience that the same things, the same people and the same world appear entirely different to different minds and to the same mind at different times. How account for this except on the supposition that the mind and the projected idea are the reality rather than the matter by which it appears to be surrounded? It's worth thinking about, anyway, brother materialists: Hunter Claims Court Record. Croton, Neb., Jan. 8.—Joe Schumacher believes he holds the record for killing the worst crow the past year. He turned in 260 crow heads at the county seat of Knox county for the bounty.

Life at Its Best. York Republican: There are many satisfactions to be derived from living in an agricultural section. Life is at its best. The extremes of wealth and poverty are not encountered. There are no classes, no social castes. There is parity of interests, a more general agreement concerning the things of true value. There is no clash of racial feelings, no inferior working class to encounter. The problems of capital and labor do not exist. There is more understanding of each other, more friendship and more real humanity. Truly it is good to live where men are men and women are women, and life is at its best.

To Be Married in Fremont Thursday

Miss Freda Hinrichs, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Hinrichs of near Wakefield, and Mrs. Albert Peterson of Red Oak, Iowa, were married this Thursday in Fremont, Rev. George Mendall of the Lutheran church performing the ceremony. The bride and bridegroom will go to Red Oak and then to California for a few months. They will make their home in Red Oak when they return.

Banquet Is Held For Isard Monday

About fifty men and boys of the Wakefield bands enjoyed a banquet Monday evening at the Logan hotel. Members of the band committee were also present.

After the dinner the time was spent in discussing the reorganization of the Wakefield bands, the selection of a new leader and the ways of making the band bigger and better than ever. All present were anxious to promote the bands and were willing to help in the work. Talks by several present were given.

Several band leaders have been interviewed. A. M. Hyspe, G. August Johnson, Albert Wendel and Clifford Carlson, the band committee, in regard to the reorganization. Mr. Wilson of Cuba, Ill., was here last week. Mr. Meyer of the Monahan post band in Sioux City, came Tuesday evening. A Kansas man is expected next Sunday. The committee will probably select a leader soon.

Married Fifty-Two Years on Thursday

Mr. and Mrs. John Baker have been married fifty-two years this Thursday, Jan. 14. They are among the early settlers of Wayne county. Mr. Baker is 75 this spring and Mrs. Baker is 71 years old. Mr. and Mrs. Baker were married in Peru, LaSalle county, Ill. They lived in Buckley, Ill. for ten years and then came to Nebraska in 1884, locating on a farm ten miles southeast of Wayne. There they lived for twenty-two years. The past sixteen years they have lived in Wakefield.

When the Bakers came to Wayne county there were few houses. Many were living in dugouts. Homes were not close together. In a night to Wayne they drove over fields, having only one mile of improved highway.

Of the furniture which Mr. and Mrs. Baker had when they were married, only one piece remains. This is a clock and it is keeping time just as well today as it did fifty-two years ago.

Mr. and Mrs. Baker had five sons and five daughters, two daughters, Mrs. Henry Brudigan and Mrs. Charles Jager, having died a few years ago. The other daughters are Mrs. Henry Brudigan, Mrs. Fred Mathiesen and Mrs. Fred Thomsen.

Persistence will win and we are determined to tackle it again if there is a possibility that we might get through.
Official board: The official board met in a brief session on Monday evening. A number of things were discussed such as promoting the attendance at the church and Sunday school by urging the regular attendance of the members of our congregation. You do not realize how careless in attendance by your- selves will react upon your children and your neighbors. We have enough folks enrolled in our work to pack our church at services.
The board elected Mrs. Robt. Pierce as music director of the church. She will have absolute charge of the work of the choir as she thinks best in promoting the interest of the church music. She will designate an evening as choir evening and will expect that to be the time of choir rehearsal. Many disappointments have come up as to changing the evening of practice. Friends, do not change your fraternal meetings or other appointments back and forth and make them a success and it seems to me that it will be impossible to do so in choir rehearsal.
Miss Ghiron was elected as recreational director and as such becomes a member of the church conference. Her work will include the development of child play and organized play work for youth even up to the age of grandparents.

Junior choir for the evening service will come and join them in making the evening service attractive as well as helpful.
Church notes: Many responded to the request made last week regarding the church notes. Many have expressed themselves as appreciating them very much. Some who are shut-in during this severe weather enjoy these items from the church. We thank you for the response. It encourages us to write the notes and the editor to publish them.
Presbyterian Church.
(Rev. Stephen J. Yerm, Pastor.)
Sunday was an excellent day and we expect another next Sabbath. We are advancing with the new year. Achievement is the call to advance. Sunday morning sermon, "The Expediency of Jesus' Going Away."
In the evening a bright, cheerful and happy program will be presented in story and song.
The church school and C. E. are indispensable parts of the church. All members are urged to attend.
The Wakefield ministerial association met Monday afternoon in the Presbyterian manse. All were present and Rev. P. Farmer of the Methodist church, became a member of the group. The fellowship was enjoyed and plans for constructive work were discussed.

-The State of Nebraska, Wayne county, ss.
At a county court, held at the county court room, in and for said county of Wayne, on the 11th day of January, 1926.
Present, J. M. Cherry, County Judge.
In the matter of the estate of John W. Ott, deceased.
On reading and filing the petition of Mrs. William and Jas. D. Plank, praying that the instrument filed on the 11th day of January, 1926, and purporting to be the last will and testament of said deceased, may be proved, approved, probated, allowed and recorded as the last Will and Testament of said John W. Ott, deceased, and that the execution of said instrument may be committed and that the administration of said estate may be granted to Mary E. Waltham as Executrix.

Ordered, that January 29, A. D. 1926, at 10 o'clock, P. M., be assigned for hearing said petition, when all persons interested in said matter may appear at a county court to be held in and for said county, and show cause why the prayer of the petitioner should not be granted; and that notice of the pendency of said petition and the hearing thereof, be given to all persons interested in said matter by publishing a copy of this order in the Wayne Herald, a weekly newspaper printed in said county, three successive weeks prior to said day of hearing.

Remodeling Brings Lower Prices at Davidson's During January
It has always been the aim of the Davidson Bros. Co. to continually go forward, and again for 1926 we are preparing to make big strides. Our greatly increased patronage compels us to re-arrange and remodel nearly every department to give you better service and to help in the display and handling of merchandise.
And rather than move great stocks of merchandise from section to section, we are willing to take our losses now and get the goods out of our way before making these departmental changes, which have been planned to help make 1926 our greatest year.
Come and See!
As you come into the store daily, you will notice the first, second, third and fourth floor departments being re-arranged, in a manner intended to be most pleasing and convenient for our patrons. We are employing hundreds of Sioux City workmen to do this work, and by the first of February we hope to show you a new and greater Davidson's, so close so arranged that shopping will be made a real pleasure.

The Nebraska Speed association met in Wayne and voted that the local county fair be held August 13 to 18. Takamah, Fremont, Lincoln, Auburn, Beatrice and Wymore were represented at the meeting.

From Ponca Journal Feb. 5, 1885: Wayne still wants a flouring mill, and is prepared to offer liberal inducements to parties who will build one.

During the two months of cold weather ending last Saturday night, thirteen rails have been broken on the railroad between this place and Hartington. The train has been off the track, no injury has been sustained to either persons or property.

This section has experienced a 18. degree heat strike, unusually speaking, during the past ten days. The face part of last week the thermometer stood 20 below zero, and since has been modifying at the rate of 10 to 15 degrees per day, till yesterday it was 58 above. The snow which made gradual sleeping last week has gradually disappeared before the mellowing influence of the sun, till now it is nearly gone, only occasional patches being seen here and there.

The first rain shower of the season occurred on Tuesday. The trees are beginning to bud and the birds make the air joyous with their songs. Verily, we seem to have jumped from the dead of winter into the life of spring. If the weather-machinery doesn't slip a cog and set us back into winter again, we shall all feel thankful.

Interesting Books Accessed Here

A few books have been accessioned the past week at the Wayne public library. One is "Art in Every Day Life" by Harriet and Velta Goldstein, instructors in art in the University of Wisconsin. The book deals with interior decorating, dress design, proper use of color, harmony, balance, rhythm, emphasis and many other subjects. It is also full of making cities more beautiful.

"Dee-Dee", by Eliot H. Robinson, is an uncommon account of a commoner of crime. It is a story of romance and mystery. "The Man of Property" is a novel new by John Galsworthy. "The Cactus" by Charles Chadwick is a mystery story which concerns the tangled fortunes of a girl of Mexican descent in New York.

"Insect Adventure", by J. Henri Fabre, gives a great deal of knowledge about the life of insects. Mr. Fabre is a noted scientist and he presents the facts in terms of adventure that make them interesting.

"Feeds and Feeding", by W. A. Henry and F. B. Morrison, professors of agriculture and animal husbandry, respectively, in the University of Wisconsin, is a study that will interest men who raise livestock. The book gives an interesting and condensed presentation of the results of experiments in the Old and New World, by scientists who have studied animal nutrition and the results of feeding. The importance of vitamins and minerals and the differences in quality of foods are discussed. The feeding of all animals is considered.

The Lincoln State Journal has been added to the list of daily newspapers received at the Wayne city library.

In addition to the magazines received the past year in the city library the following new ones are on the list: The Golden Book, Scribner's magazine, Forum, Theatre Magazine, The World Magazine, Men's Magazine and The Century. All are for adults excepting The World Magazine and Music Magazine.

A Stygian View.

Lincoln Journal: A Stygian view of American patriotism is taken by the citizenship committee of the Nebraska state bar association. The committee notes that in 1920 one American out of every hundred voted for a presidential candidate then in prison for opposition to a war in which his country was engaged. Still worse, in 1924 nearly one-fourth of the American voters supported for president a man who had the endorsement of the socialist party and who proposed to subordinate the judicial department of the government to the legislative and wanted popular election of federal judges. The committee hears that in Omaha last year a meeting was held at which Lenin was pronounced greater than Washington. What agency is combating such terrible tendencies as these? "Not the pulpit," says the bar committee; "not the press and not the schools, but only the executive men of the nation, their auxiliaries and the bar." All the country has gone off after Baal and only a few lawyers left faithful. One comfort can be discerned. Where only one per cent of the Americans voted for the distoyal Debs, France has tolerated a minister of finance and England a premier, who, during the war, were in Debs' own difficulty because their views of patriotic duty did not coincide with the majority view. And if a fourth of America patriotically gave countenance to Bob LaFollette, who wanted to elect federal judges, what of all Italy in the grip of a boss who doesn't want to elect anything? It is no real comfort, of course, to know merely that other countries are in more delirious dumps than ours. But the fact that these other countries are bearing their burden gives ours hope to survive till the Lots of the bar have time to rally to stop our Sodomward slide.

Merit System in School. Wausau, Neb., Jan. 8.—The pupils of the public school here, by a new year plan, have instituted the merit system to encourage good behavior. To begin, each pupil will be given 500 credits and to them will be added or subtracted others according to the behavior of each. If one should lose all his credits, he automatically will be suspended for a week, after which he may begin over again.

Randolph Hogs on Market. Randolph, Neb., Jan. 8.—A shipment of 100 head of Duroc hogs, eight months old and raised by M. Rasmussen, brought the top price, when $11.75 a hundred was received for the lot, which was 25 cents a hundred more than any other shipment.

The One Who Forgot

By RUBY M. AYRES

Begin Here Today.

The World "is" a great sorrow to untold numbers, none more bitter than that allotted to Mr. Marbury, who had parted from his sweetheart, retaining only his promise to make her his bride on his first leave home. She had learned of his serious injury. She had lived somehow through the weeks of waiting with new fragments and infrequent.

Peter Lyster had finally returned to London, but when he faced his betrothed, he failed to show signs of recognition—the shell which had him low had also robbed him of his memory.

Joan Endicott, whose husband is also serving, is living with Nan in a small London apartment. There we find —Lily John Arnott, pal of Peter's attempt to persuade Nan to go to her sister's home with him and Peter in the hope that Peter might under these favorable circumstances regain his memory. Nan finds it impossible to accept. Arnott starts to leave while Nan is still in reverie.

Now Go on With the Story. Nan tried to smile. They had planned such a time when he got his leave, his last letter to her before he was wounded had been full of all that he meant to do when he came home—some sentence he had written some time ago to leap out of the past and stare at her.

"We'll spend our honeymoon in London, I think, Nan. There are such a lot of places I haven't seen, and I shall love doing the round of the shops with you and buying you lots of things. I suppose you know that you haven't got a proper en-

"Home on Friday, five days' leave."

She read the message aloud. Joan gave a little hysterical scream. "I don't believe it—you're teasing me. . . I just don't believe it!" She snatched the paper from Nan, read it and burst into tears.

"Oh, it's just too wonderful—I'm so happy. . . Oh, Nan, you must hurry up and finish that pink blouse for me."

"Nan walked out of the room without answering; she did not mean to be unkind or unsympathetic, but her heart felt like a stone.

She passed Joan's room, and went into the little sitting room where the small bundle of letters returned to her by Arnott still lay on the table. She picked them up and held them mechanically. It was quite time now that she wrote up, she was telling herself, "I have had dreams like this before—not quite so bad, perhaps, but still very bad."

Then she turned toward the little passage outside, and Joan came into the room.

"I hope you won't think me very horrid," Joan said, in a sort of whisper. "But, of course, when Tim comes home he'll want us all to himself. He has said so so many times, and I was wondering—you won't be hurt, Nan? I was wondering if you'd mind going away for just those few days?"

"Nan did not answer. "You could go home just for a few days, couldn't you?" Joan went on. "Or to some friends—I'm sure you won't mind me asking you, but . . ."

She looked up anxiously. "Are you angry, Nan?"

"No," said Nan; she gave a queer

ed not quite so well as a servant, and Nan stayed with her for two years. Happy years they were, of uneventful, not at all exciting, memory, but it was better than being at home. Nobody ever spoke unkindly to her or made her feel that she was not wanted, and it was a relief to Nan when one morning she went to Miss Lyster's room as usual to wake her, and found that the little lady had been in her sleep.

Mr. Rook, Miss Lyster's solicitor, came and went and was kind to Nan in his dry sort of way.

You had better start on for the present, my dear young lady," he said. "It is impossible to make final arrangements till I hear from Miss Lyster's nephew. Yes, there is a nephew, as of course, you know."

"You will find that you have not been forgotten," Mr. Rook told her gently, and later, when Miss Lyster's will was read, Nan found that she had been left a sufficiently large amount to bring her in sixty pounds a year.

Everything else went to Peter Lyster, but it was many weeks after Miss Lyster's death and after the war had broken out that the little maid who had stayed on with her came to the door to say that a solicitor had been asked to see her. And that was how Nan met Peter.

Nan had also met Joan Endicott when Tim joined the army the two girls went to live together, and had lived together ever since.

Service That Counts: York Republican: "Patronize home industry. Be loyal to your home town." These slogans no longer have power to stir the action of the people, because they have been worn threadbare. Run to its logical end, it is a selfish doctrine. Home town merchants are not entitled to all the patronage just because they are in business in one's home town. They must supply the goods and render a real service. When they do, then they come under the heading of favored business. Until they do, they cannot slip into favor under the plea of preferred home institutions. A merchant who demands your patronage because he is your neighbor, has no argument at all. But if he has the goods and truly serves you, you are a poor citizen if you do not give him your enthusiastic patronage.

"I have had dreams like this before."

gagement first ring yet, madam? That's the first thing we'll do the morning after I get home—go and choose a ring."

And now he was home, and he had forgotten her. He was quite content to go the rounds of the shops with Arnott instead.

She went to the door with Arnott and bade him goodbye.

"I shall see you again, shall I?" he asked anxiously. "We shan't be going down to my sister's just yet. I hope you will let me see you again."

Nan answered that she would be very pleased. At the back of her mind she was wondering if she dared ask him where he and Peter were going that morning—if the dared go in the same direction herself, in the hope of meeting them. If she could just see Peter, just watch him from a distance, it would be something.

She shook hands with Arnott mechanically. The telegraph boy ran up the steps as they stood there. He handed Nan a telegram.

"That is from Endicott?" he said locally. "For-Joan," said Nan. A little pang of envy went through her heart. Once the sight of a telegram set all her pulses racing, but now she cared less than nothing. She bade Arnott a hasty "goodby" and went in to find her friend Tim.

little laugh. "As you say, I can go home. . . or—to some friends." And the thought of John Arnott's embarrassed invitation crossed her weary mind.

Joan gave a little sigh of relief. "I suppose you would go if I asked you?" she said. "It was the first thought that came into my head after I read Tim's telegram. I've been without him so long and we used to be so happy here just by ourselves."

Nan said yes, but she felt curiously hurt that Joan should be so anxious to get rid of her.

"I should have offered to go, anyway," she said, with a touch of dignity. "I quite understand how you feel."

But the tears started in her eyes as she went to her own room with her little parcel of letters.

Home had been a small child to Nan since her mother died and her father married again. That was years ago now, but she could remember, as if it were yesterday, the night when her father brought his second wife to the nursery and told Nan that she must love her too.

For ten years she had been forced to stand it; ten years during which three smaller stepdaughters appeared to add to her burdens, and push her more and more out of favor. Till at last she had begged her father to allow her to leave home.

So Nan went to London with nothing but $10 and her own pluck to help her, and for a whole week she had taken in the money which she had taken in an unattractive suburb and answered advertisements and tramped to and fro from agents' offices.

And then one day she answered an advertisement for the post of companion to a devoted lady and got the delicate lady proved to be one of the few women who did not regard a companion as someone to be treated not quite so well as a servant, and Nan stayed with her for two years. Happy years they were, of uneventful, not at all exciting, memory, but it was better than being at home. Nobody ever spoke unkindly to her or made her feel that she was not wanted, and it was a relief to Nan when one morning she went to Miss Lyster's room as usual to wake her, and found that the little lady had been in her sleep.

The Florida Bubble. Lincoln Journal: It gives a fair idea of the stretch of the bubble to know that upwards of forty million lots have been plotted and put on the market in Florida. In families of three, this provides lot-room for the population of the whole United States. If it were conceivable that all of New England, New York and the Dakotas might be willing to move to Florida, there remains southern California which would rather die than do it. A sizeable surplus of Florida lots is thereby assured, and wheat and corn farmers have bitter knowledge of what surpluses do to prices. When the Florida lot buyers calm themselves sufficiently for a simple problem of arithmetic concerning this forty million lots, the strain on Florida will become—well, all bubbles finally burst.
 In Hands of State. Bloomfield, Neb., Jan. 11.—Word has reached here that the bank at Brazile Mills is now in the hands of the state planning board and that it is probable a receiver will be appointed in the near future.
