GAMES OF CHANCE

W. Van Sapperton, Henry Korff who attended the meeting of state, district and county fair managers in Lincoln last week have failed to discuss the question of permitting games of chance to operate on fair grounds, and the majority was a vote showing the preference in favor of excluding all gambling devices. Those favoring such concessions based arguments largely on financial grounds. The speakers pointed out the injurious influence. Attorney General Spillman who spoke to the group, referred to gambling games as illegal and urged law enforcement. It is doubtful if concession to chance games is necessary to financial success, and it is believed that the loss in dollars and cents is more than lost in apparent sanction of an unlawful operation.

Donald Milliken Weds Mamie Wert

Miss Mamie Wert, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alvin G. Wert of York and Miss Constance C. Milliken of Mr. and Mrs. O. W. Milliken of southwest of Wayne, were united in marriage Friday afternoon, Jan. 23, at 5:30 at the Presbyterian parsonage. Rev. Fenton C. Jones performed the ceremony. ### Tells Club Of Care For Flocks

Dr. W. M. Hawkins Explains Best Methods of Preventing Loss in Chicken Raising.

Test Plan Used

Dr. Spencer Describes Area Work in Eradication of Tubercular Cattle in Herds.

Dr. W. M. Hawkins of Wayne, speaking to the members of the Pleasant Valley club and Rural Home society and their husbands at a meeting Jan. 20 in the Elmer Noakes home, discussed the problem of raising healthy chickens. He emphasized the need of sanitation in the raising of chickens. He mentioned the need of clean quarters and clean houses and yards are essential. If possible yards should be rotated. This is the best way of getting rid of diseases among the flocks. Dr. Hawkins spoke of sanitary white diarrheas as causing the greatest loss among chicks. This is best prevented, Dr. Hawkins stated, by testing the laying stock. The disease is transmitted to the egg. Dr. Hawkins plans to go to Lincoln next week to have his chickens tested at the agricultural college in poultry diseases, feeds and feeding, and management.

Dr. Spencer of Omaha, veterinarian for the livestock commission firm, told of the area work being done by the state and government in eradicating tuberculosis from herds. The plan is carried on by organizing the county and circulating petitions which must contain 25 percent of the voters to get the testing established in the county. The plan takes an interest the cattle of all farmers, whether signers or not, will be tested and those with tuberculosis will be eliminated. All cattle excepting feeders are tested. Eradication of the disease among cattle will also eradicate it among hogs. Healthy piglets bring higher prices on the market and hogs from counties tested also bring better prices. If enough are interested in the project, the project may be promoted here.

C. R. Young, agent of Dakota county, told of the work being done by the organization of women's clubs for sewing, cooking and social activities. He told of the value of these clubs to the women in rural homes.

Funeral Service Is Held Thursday

Funeral service was held last Thursday at the C. A. Hiserote home in Homer for James Hatch who passed away Jan. 18, from abscess of the brain. Rev. Fred Walhill, was in charge. Mrs. H. J. Miner and Mrs. Charles Heikes of Wayne, were present.

James P. Hatch had lived in Wayne and vicinity for several years, was born near Sloan, Iowa, April 29, 1888. Until the age of 7 he lived with his father, Mr. Bertha Mable Hiserote O. 1912. To this union were born three children, Velma aged 12, Charles Frank aged 9 and Donald James aged 4. Besides his wife, Mrs. Ernestine leaves his father, Thomas C. Hatch, one brother, two half sisters and seven half brothers.

Mr. Hatch was employed at the H. J. Miner and Charles Heikes farms near Wayne and the past two years was in the Mahbott barber shop. He moved last fall to Coleridge where he was in a barber shop. When taken ill Mr. Hatch consulted four doctors and all was done that could be done. He passed away at Charles Hiserote home in Homer.

G. A. Kesting Weds Miss Esther Nitz

Mr. Gustav A. Kesting, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Kesting of Pierce county, and Miss Esther Nitz, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Nitz of north of Hoxkins, were married Sunday by Rev. E. Boelling of the Lutheran church near Hoxkins.

Calf Clubs Start Drive For Building Needed For Exhibits at Fair Grounds

Auction of Produce Is Planned to Begin Fund With Which to Promote Hall.

To have a calf club barn at the Wayne county fair grounds is the ambition this year of the forty-five members of the Wayne, Hoxkins and Deer Creek clubs. The fair association does not have funds with which to erect the needed barn this summer and the young folks are planning a campaign for this purpose. The boys and girls will solicit people of the county for donations of produce which will be sold at the Wayne pavilion in March, the proceeds to be used for the barn fund.

In the past the calves of the clubs have had to be housed at the fair grounds. The fair association has put in a large amount of work on their animals each year and they feel that suitable permanent quarters are needed. The fair association work is also increasing rapidly and it should be urged to grow even larger so it is thought the boys and girls should be well as encouraged more young folks in the work.

Club work for the young folks of the county and small towns is becoming increasingly important. The boys and girls of the county are benefited and for this reason the work of the clubs should be encouraged.

Kiwanis Club Hears Talks at Luncheon

Prof. J. G. W. Lewis of the State Teachers College, gave a report on the Kiwanis Club regarding the headway being made in the request for a government building in Wayne. Letters from Representatives G. Howell were read. Members of the club were appointed to present the matter to some of the women's clubs Sunday, requesting the club for the government building and urging the women to support the movement. Prof. O. R. Bowen visited the club at the luncheon. The club is occupied attention of the young folks.

ESSENTIALS TO HEALTH

In the course of a book which has been written, Dr. Richard C. Cabot, prescribes work, play, love and worship as essentials to health. The four things mentioned, sensibly proportioned, would certainly give one fully occupied and evenly balanced. Results from an accepted task, wholesome play at proper intervals, love of the good and beautiful, and earnest contemplation and worship of Omnipotence tend to harmony and contentment. A state of mind that is bound to exert a powerful influence in behalf of health and longevity. The doctor would not have one work without play nor play without work. The doctor would have one work without play nor play without work. The doctor would have one work without play nor play without work.

Addresses Club On Use of Colors

R. C. Hahbeck speaks to Women's Club on Psychology of Interior Decoration.

R. C. Hahbeck addressed about thirty women at the meeting of the Wayne Women's club in the home of Mrs. James Miller Friday afternoon on the subject of "Color Law in the Interior." He stated that there is a law of color which cannot be law will change, but in truth there are no laws of color. The combination brought to the brain produces what is called color. The sun and the brain are the only things in the universe which have color. The combination brought to the brain produces what is called color. The sun and the brain are the only things in the universe which have color.

In 1668 Sir Isaac Newton put in sunlight a glass prism which threw out to him three colors, red, yellow and blue, and from these three he discovered that everything that comes from the earth vibrates and the vibrations produce the color in one's mind. The mind naturally soon combines the other primary colors and one will see green. To strike a complimentary color one must combine those of the lower group.

In the vibratory sense, Mr. Hahbeck stated, color is only psychological. Color and music are practically the same in their effect on the brain. The evidence of the eye is superior to that of the ear and therefore, the speaker asserted, and the science of color is easier than that of sounds. This accounts for the fact that the science of color is imperfectly understood, and yet color governs our lives.

According to statistics, stated Mr. Hahbeck, only one woman in four thousand is color defective and one man in four is very nearly color blind. The reason unreliable information is given.

Red, yellow and blue are used and from them about 1200 variations are possible. Red and yellow should not be put together however, because they fight. Mix blue with the yellow and the green will harmonize with the red. Blue pushes forward while red pulls back. White is an absorbent. White is an absorbent but is a reflective one and gives back intensified anything put near it. A reflected light coming from the ceiling will be intensified.

Color affects people and is a study of the brain. Mr. Hahbeck stated, "Color affects one physically, mentally and emotionally. Color affects one physically, mentally and emotionally. Color affects one physically, mentally and emotionally."

Board Votes To Join In Circuit

Wayne County Association Will Help Promote Interests of Northeast Nebraska.

Have Dynamometer

Contract for Machine Used to Encourage Better Horses and Mules.

The Wayne County Fair association has joined the Great Seven Northwest Nebraska Fairs Circuit, Washington, Burd, Thurston, Dodge, Stanton and Cuming counties are in the group. The purpose of the association are the following: To promote a closer harmony and cooperation among the fairs, to promote the public interest in the fairs, to assist the fairs in buying supplies, to encourage boys and girls to become interested in the fairs, to encourage education in agriculture, to encourage the natural resources of northeast Nebraska and to bring before the public a standard of excellence toward which all may strive. The group consists of a federated agricultural fair association with a central office in order that the county fairs may be to all the people the agricultural possibilities of northeast Nebraska. The organization assists in showing to the public the value of the fairs. It is unexcelled by any like section in agriculture, livestock and citizenship. The Wayne county fair board has contracted for the horse and dynamometer which has proved so successful in the middle west. The machine, furnished through the agricultural college, will encourage interest all, especially farmers. With it the fair conducts pulling contests for teams. The teams are numbered and the pulling contest is being increased at each successive pull until all teams are eliminated. Through results in the contests the agricultural college will encourage interest in better horses.

After the state fair association meeting in Lincoln last week, attending the joint meeting of the Great Seven Northwest Nebraska Fairs Circuit, Wayne County Fair Association, Wayne, Nebraska, was found that the dates chosen for the Wayne fair, Sept. 29 and 30 and Oct. 1 and 2, would conflict with nearby fairs and they have been definitely selected.

Mrs. Dorothy Margaret Elizabeth Woehler, nee Pflueger, passed away at the home of her father, Fred Woehler, Friday, Jan. 22, aged 68 years, 11 months, and 13 days. Her funeral services were conducted Monday at the home and at the church at Atlanta by Rev. Fred Schaller, followed by interment in the Altona cemetery.

The deceased was born at Hensen, Hanover, Germany, March 9, 1847. She came with her parents to America in 1854 and lived in Illinois. The family moved to Nebraska later in the same year, locating on a farm ten miles south of Wayne.

Mrs. Woehler had a light stroke of apoplexy two years ago, and suffered another stroke in the evening of Jan. 22. She was a devoted mother. Mr. Woehler died in February, 1915. Two daughters, Mrs. Anna Melcher and Mrs. Olga Willers, passed away some years ago. She is survived by five sons, William Frank, Fred, Carl and Herman and thirty grandchildren, one great grandchild, two brothers and one sister.

Owen Retires After Quarter of Century

L. M. Owen who came to Wayne county from Illinois in the Spring of 1900, is now retiring from the farm business in order to accompany his wife to southern California in the belief that the change of climate will benefit her health which of late has been failing. An only son, Leo Roy, who is advantageously and permanently situated at Los Angeles, is anxious to have his parents spend at least the winter months out there. Mr. and Mrs. Owen will retain their home in Wayne and expect to spend part of each year here.

Mr. Owen came here nearly twenty-six years ago with little but determination. He first farmed and rented a farm for five years, and then he was able to buy 320 acres just northwest of here, now owned by G. W. Albert. There he farmed for ten years, and then he bought the John Grimsey place just northeast of town. This he sold at the end of a year. He now owns 320 acres just southwest of here. Several years ago he built a modern home in Wayne where the family has been living.

In conducting his farming operations and looking after his live stock, he has been on the job early and late. He gave his herds personal attention and invite possible loss in order to take trips to California or elsewhere. He is selling out to free himself from the exorbitant price success in farming as in other lines of business requires. He says no field of endeavor is more inviting or more remunerative than farming and stock raising for the young man who will stick to business, accept responsibility and use sound judgment.

One car has been taken from the train on the Crofton branch out of Wakarusa. The expressman's work was done by the brakeman on this line.

Gloria Swanson In "Wages of Virtue"

Gloria Swanson adds a new nationality to her long list of characteristics in "Wages of Virtue," her new Paramount Picture. For the first time in her career she plays an Italian girl, Carmelita, a product of the slums of Naples who becomes the toast of the Foreign Legion in Algiers. "Wages of Virtue" was adapted for the screen by Forrest Halsey from the novel of the same name by Percival Wren.

"Wages of Virtue" comes to the Crystal theatre on Jan. 29 and 30. If you thought "Manhandled" had novelty, wait till you see this one!

Ben Lyon (courtesy of First National Pictures) plays opposite the star in the leading man's role. Norman Trevor and Ivan Linow also have excellent supporting roles. Others in the cast include Joe Moore, brother of Tom, Matt and Owen; Armand Cortez, Adrienne d'Ambriouct and Paul Panzer.

Allan Dwan directed the picture. Percival Wren is the author of the novel, and Forrest Halsey made the screen adaptation.

Gloria in "Wages of Virtue" has a role as decidedly different from that of "Her Love Story" as her part in "Her Love Story" was from "Manhandled." Gloria's never had a role just like this one.

Liberal Cash Saving.

Instead of offering premiums and making club offers The Lincoln Journal is selling for from 50c to $1.00 a year less than many other papers are charging. They believe people prefer a liberal cash saving. By the year the Journal is only $4.00 daily or $5.00 for daily and Sunday within the states of Nebraska or Kansas.

They are printing Bryan's Memoirs and will soon begin the publication of the intimate papers of Col. House, which in their revelation of the true President Wilson, and in their explanation of matters that have long been state secrets, have never been equaled in our time for vital interest and importance to the public.

Rural route patrons are best served by the Morning Journal. Most of the state getting today's paper today, whereas many other papers on account of their home of printing must lie in the postoffice until the day after publication. The special sport features, cartoons, serial stories, radio programs and a multitude of other attractions give tremendous value for your money. Don't pay money to strangers. Send your order direct to The Journal at Lincoln or subscribe through your local agent. 12811

TOO MUCH BUNCUMBE.

It has looked to us and doubtless has looked to most farmers that the ills of agriculture were being exaggerated and that the compensation of distributing a lot of political buncumbe. Due to organization and possibly to the favor of a few influential men, the farmers and labor centers have had advantages over farming communities. The trouble is not that farm prices are now too low, but that the compensation the farmers have for their products is too high even at this time.

But the need for remedy lies, as we judge, in the staples that cause a slump in prices for farm products with no corresponding decrease in costs for labor or manufactured goods. To take care of over-production on the farm, the farmer should handle, but solution of the problem will not be made by the wild guesses of political visionaries. We have heard the best of them themselves more than the helping of farming communities, and who know more about pounding tom-toms in parades than any other group touching farm problems. The opinion was expressed that farmers do not need or want more credit. They want more money, more credit, more crops, so that markets will not be flooded and prices wrecked at critical periods. They want their own funds similar to those that keep manufacturing and labor prices from fluctuating. Then they would like to have the farm to handle surplus prices they pay and prices they receive will be more nearly equal.

York farmers expressing themselves were generally optimistic. They were not discouraged, and they evidently appreciate advantages which city people do not have. One said he had not felt along with the eighty-cent dollar in the country where nature smiles, than that he is in the friendless environs of a big city.

The point is that farmers, even with some handicaps, will, taking one year with another, average above town people in financial success. The average successful farmer could pay the worldly possessions of the average politician without disturbing his farm capital in the least. Farmers do want to handle surplus funds, sympathy and the burning of a lot of red fire. A few things that may be done without pomp and ceremony would prove effective and efficient.

FOR FEDERAL BUILDING.

The movement led by Prof. J. G. W. Lewis to secure a federal building in Wayne, which has found expression in the introduction of a bill by Congressman Howard to appropriate money for the purpose, is not prompted by mere pride or a gross anxiety to show up the distribution of public funds. As a growing community of varied interests, including a teachers' college, a government building to house the post office and take care of its business, is a pressing need.

Not only the people of Wayne and vicinity are interested in the improvement, but the armies of students who come here from over the north part of the state would like to see the home of their education. Some of them given due consideration in the way of post office quarters and facilities.

A few less shots in target practice, a fraction of the cost for dredging harbors or making federal improvements in Washington City would apply freely in the building we need and ask for.

The so called flu is reported generally prevalent. We had an attack of influenza under the name of flu, but we could find no one who would believe it. We were informed that we did not look or act any worse than usual. With encouragement, we abandoned the idea.

The world court would seem to be a means to extend American influence and to reduce the number of foreign sign countries. But the policy adopted by the senate which may carry so many reservations that its practical value will be reduced to the zero point.

Railroad fans have been busy this week trying to catch up on the South American, and many have succeeded. Local fans, among them Mayor W. M. Orr, heard London and Aberdeen, Scotland, and they were willing to get the rest of the foreign world before the end of the week.

This week we heard a railway official express the opinion that in serving the ends of fairness and equity, automobile buses should be required to pay an occupation tax which raised no objection to the tax on railroad companies, but he thought one transportation business ought to be treated the same as another.

Editor Stone of the Hartington Herald is naturally a peaceful citizen as would be anyone with his attitude as a scholar and thinker, but he is now aroused by what may be termed righteous indignation over what he deems unfair treatment of the citizens of Hartington, a village of the town. Last week he devoted another page to scathing criticism. Developments will be watched with interest.

The Greater Wayne club which has just organized for another year, has made good headway, not only in its out with large financial support than ever. It is the club to which people must look for leadership in business and industrial development. It is expected to take the lead in the acquisition of public improvements or private enterprises. Instead of predicting defeat for the club's efforts to meet the needs and the stimulus of encouragement as well as substantial support. It would be a big accomplishment of the year if the club could figure out a way to build a new hotel which has long been a crying need. There must be a way to provide an institution to handle the surplus of the club is the logical organization to take the initiative. Let the club, fortified by ground gained, build bigger than ever.

A successful real estate dealer out in California or down in Florida must be somewhat of a hypocrite. He must be able to convince a prospective victim that a sand dune, a marsh or a field of sage brush and boulder holds possibilities for great riches. He must be able to arouse the imagination of the man who has just arrived from Nebraska or Iowa, and when he has him well keyed up, he may safely ask him to exchange the money he realized from his herds and flocks for acreage that may be converted into a luxurious home. The dealer who has a client from the substantial middle west does not understand the toll, cost, risk and time required before the prospect is ready to be cashed out, and he has overlooked the likelihood of loss instead of profit when the fruit is ready for market. For instance, Nebraska land, to Nebraska hogs and cattle, milk, butter and eggs.

Business.

Stout City Journal—Adviserhood has been a blessing to the most hopeful predictions made before the close of the year. Trade and industry generally are improved over the past years. The only serious personal decline easily is perceptible. Which is not to say, however, that anything suggesting a decline has been needed to bring about a steady weekly car loadings have fallen under the million mark. For the week ending January 9 the car loadings numbered 1,100,000, a decline of about 27,000 cars below the loadings of a year ago, but the difference was represented in a drop in coal shipments and a rise in other car loadings were about equal to those of last year when general merchandise is considered.

More impressive is a comparison of the car loadings for the week cited to those of the week preceding. There was an increase of 165,880 cars. The grain was represented by a heavier shipment of miscellaneous freight, merchandise in less than carload lots and coal. Obviously, coal shipments picked up somewhat. The other commodities included a heavy loading of last year. The anthracite miners' strike may be responsible for a part of the decline, together with the fact of earlier, heavier

HOW GIRLS MAY HELP.

It is important for girls to avoid drinking liquid poison and avoid other bad habits. It is important for them to keep their bodies healthy and their minds sound and clear in order to compete in the swiftly moving and ever changing affairs of the world. They must have a sturdy character if they would make worthy husbands. Girls may help fashion fine manhood by assisting to assure that the girls who fail to measure up to right standards of behavior. Let girls fix rules of conduct in conformity with the requirements of the world. They thereby will strengthen assurance of later happiness. Let it be understood by the girls that careful requirements in the way of behavior will be admired by all boys and men, even by those who are weak and on account of delinquencies. And in selecting a wife, a man usually is attracted to one who has compelled him to toe the mark.

Shipments having been made to present fuel shortages.

There is a strong demand for operations for the month are sure to be on a larger scale than for December. Structural iron and steel contracts of the administration are in the heaviest demand. Farm machinery plants also are placing heavy orders, and heavy specifications for rails and track accessories are being made.

Westward from Chicago general business is in a good condition for the time of year. General merchandise movements are satisfactory. The holiday trade was good, and the slump after the first of the year was not heavy enough to cause alarm. The year is being maintained with consistency that shows a healthy condition. Confidence in the agricultural sections that relief in some form will be provided by the next congress is believed to have influenced the general business situation in the farming states. There is no marked depression anywhere. Instead, the people seem to have won new confidence as demands for legislative action increased in volume. Threats of the administration to hold up action on the tax reduction bill pending definite settlement of the world-courts case is being maintained with a business even in a slight degree. The point is that the people continue to feel that congress must and shall meet its taxon. The provision measure passed by the house and sent to the senate are familiar to the business world, and the schedule of the administration has been written into law at this session. Naturally, business would be affected if nothing were done to reduce taxon, but the probability of such a failure is considered to remote for any alarm to be felt. Plans for industrial expansion, therefore, are expected to remain unchanged.

Capital depending on the belief it has been encouraged to expect.

Market Report

Furnished by Steele, Siman & Co., Sioux City Stock Yards.

Jan. 27—Cattle receipts at the leading markets of the country are considered the first half of the week and strength gradually developed that sent the price basis to a 25 cent advance position by the close of the week.

The 11 leading centers of the country reported an aggregate of 105,000 cattle, with a 10 per cent increase over the corresponding week in an appearance the corresponding two days last week.

Several loads of fed steers of yearling to heavy weight sold to tops above $10 this week, but nothing fancy to figure in the vicinity of $11 arrived. Bulk of the fed steers proved to be fair to nearly good news and earn from $8 to $9.50.

Butcher cows and heifers shared the strength in a general way. Order buyers reported that the best kinds are making up the arrivals as a general rule and command prices within a spread of $8 to $9, with the best of the yearling cows to $9.25 to $9.50 for a top.

Kosher cows to the Boston trade still top around $8, while the bulk of the medium to light hatching are from $6.25 to $7.50. Cammers and cutters are now moving in a range of $5.50 to $4.50. After the heavy close of last week, the market came back strong this week and advanced all of 25 cents. Weighty beef bulls figure from $7.75 to $7.25, with fat hogs from $6.25 to $6.50. Light hogs topped daily at $10.50.

The new week brought no let up in the stocker and feeder as all firm and strong prices obtained at all times, with the country apparently as anxious as ever about taking home the apparently high priced fed steers. Current arrivals run largely to fair and good kinds. Practically all weights sell from $7.25 to $8.25, with virtual inclusion of a few light hogs showing of select stuff to $8.50 and $9.

Feeding cows and heifers also strong with top heifers to $7.50 and best thin cows of not too much weight to $8.

The first two days of the week brought 1,000 hogs to the leading markets of the country, a decrease of 68,000 head, as compared to the delivery the same days of the corresponding period in 1924. Prices are right up against the season's high point, but are not expected to rise too long, especially unless the country further curtails the movement to market centers.

Top for light lights are now between $12.75 and $13 on the river, with feeding pigs in brisk demand from $12 to $13.25. Heavy hogs are worth around $12 on the average, with choice packing sows bringing from $11 up. On the average the outlet is the best shown last year.

Sheep and lambs arrived on contracted numbers on Monday of this week and prices advanced 25 to 50 cents. The market for the range tops mounted to $15. On Tuesday increased numbers sent to market, but prices were not so high. Best handweight killing ewes are worth around $8.75 and fancy western feeding lambs to $14.50.

No Evidence Against Man.

Paul Ring, who was captured at Norfolk and brought to Wayne on suspicion of having been connected with the shooting of Mrs. J. F. Giffries store, has been discharged on account of lack of evidence to warrant filing a charge against him.

Farms of the Future.

Omaha Bee: While the question of farm is getting most consideration at the moment, another phase of the general problem is looming not far in the background. Principal reasons for the intensive study of farm prices is the immediate need for financial improvement. The farmer is not getting out of his farm the profit he is entitled to and rightly deserves. Before the American farm as such has disappeared before the march of giant industry. Its owner will remain as he is, the independent individual, with a close eye to his own best interest, and beyond the control of the proletariat that crowds the cities; a home owner and a steady producer of wealth. The backbone of the republic, as he has been from the beginning.

Apparently, old-style agriculture is a dead duck, and agriculture is to be saved by organization and machinery. Food will have to be raised, and it probably will be raised, some of it as a by-product of factory living; the bulk of it by large-scale farming, cooperative marketing, and such contrivances for wholesale production and distribution.

Down the vista thus opened, one may peer into a future where there will be the work of men—secretary stenographic and clerical. Large scale farming, if anything, the elimination of what we now know as farmers. Machinery to do the work of men—secretary stenographic and clerical. The machine comes in, the man goes out.

Then follows the trek to the city. Urban congestion follows the depopulation of the rural region. "Back to the land" no longer has any savor. Unless the views of another more or less silent group finds its voice, drift to passivity will be accelerated by the trend to large scale farming. Not all the small farmers would be wiped out, but those that persist would be economically reduced because of inability to compete.

Those who vision a future of small farmers are not reactionary. Do not resist the course of development. They do regard this problem one of humanity rather than of machinery. Small holdings, with closer cultivation will mean larger production. Before the American farm as such has disappeared before the march of giant industry. Its owner will remain as he is, the independent individual, with a close eye to his own best interest, and beyond the control of the proletariat that crowds the cities; a home owner and a steady producer of wealth. The backbone of the republic, as he has been from the beginning.

Nebraska Editor Is Touring Washington

W. O. Jones, editor of the Lincoln Journal, writes the following to his newspaper from the national capital, Washington, D. C., Jan. 19:—The national capital is the most beautiful city in the world. It is also a place of hope to see. It is also a place to see with attractions such as are not found in equal number and variety in any other part of the world. It is drawing an increasing number of people of wealth, culture and intellect to become permanent residents. As the time here is ever decreasing without feeling that it must be a much better place to visit than to live in. Even a small and unfortunally man from a thousand miles away becomes a person of consequence when he sets foot on capital hill or makes a call on petty business men.

One doesn't attempt to much in Washington unless he has official position or some literary or other intellectual name or is a politician with the politics of his home state that makes it worth while for the people in office here to pay him some attention. They don't open many doors in this peculiar city.

Consciously or unconsciously everywhere in Washington is thinking in terms of politics. The "sphere" of the city is created largely by the necessity of being in the political swim if one is not to be shooed out of office and sent back to the sticks. A clerk or minor official who comes here on the recommendation of an influential friend who is no longer in power is always apprehensive, even if he is in a position protected by the civil service. There are so many ways of skinning a political cat that the most respectable unless he has a little political derrick in his fist to be used in case of need. There is always a tinge of winfulness in the inquiries that are sent back to the "office" about home affairs and people. It is also significant that many of these questions relate to politics. At least that is the case here, except for a few weeks in the election years. Here it seems to be a constant source of inquiry and interest.

I believe you will see more middle aged, well groomed, thoughtful, intelligent men in Washington in proportion to the population than in any other city. The young people, especially young girls, are very much in evidence. You see an arduous mixture of colored folks, of course. They have flooded Washington ever since the war. You also see quite a number of men who are gradually worn down and out and hopeless because of advancing years. It may be imagination, but in three or four days I have seen large numbers of men who seem to be almost a Washington type. They look as if they had been caught in some department backwater or bureau eddy and have stayed so long that they are unable to back home even if they wanted to.

Professional men of all kinds collect here in shoals. For example, the telephone directory lists 416 patent attorneys. There are nearly two thousand regular attorneys in the book. The directory has well filled occupational sections that are hardly represented at all in the average city. There is a long list of newspaper correspondents, more tax accountants than you can shake a stick at, a host of scholars who come here for research, a raft of officials of national organizations, most of which are either here or on the way and so on. It is a peculiar city in the variety of its appeal, and the way it holds people after they are once here. There is the class of middle aged, well dressed men is created. Even the men who are slipping are careful to keep their shoes shined and their trousers pressed. No doubt some go without dessert occasionally in order to show a flower on their coat lapels.

This meeting was a pretty fair clearing house of information from every corner of the country. The man from Waterbury on my left from Connecticut are doing well, but that all over New England the textile factories are having a hard time. The meeting in Washington is only left claimed that Delaware has less crime in proportion to the population than any other state. He said he is not sure that it is not due to the arrival of the fly whipping criminals at the post. To be sure the whipping is mostly a merciful bluff. The officer takes an enormous and pretends to swing it viciously, but the force is stopped before it lands and no serious welts are raised. But the fact that they were might slip at any time may cause the wretch he is whipping to watch his step. May be so.

The Present Winter

During a recent warm spell when he saw a robin and heard a frog, Editor Stone wrote this for his Hartington column:

"The present winter is a good illustration of how little people know about the weather. Last fall the prognosticators, oldest inhabitants and other wiseacres predicted that this was going to be the worst winter within the memory of the present generation. They had it all doped out according to infallible signs and portents and one shivered to think of the terrible things that were in store. Blizzard after blizzard with anticipated high winds, deep snows and unprecedented cold, and then—what happened? We had the mildest winter in recent history and the prognosticators were put to shame. Although it is now the middle of January, the weather is still mild and spring like and up to date this reality has experienced so little of the rigorous that it is hard to believe that it is winter at all. No snow, no severe storms, a minimum of wind and only two or three days of a sub-zero minimum. This is the middle of January. It looks as though the weather prophets had doped it out wrong."

Miss Laura Lyons Writes From West

Miss Laura E. Lyons who is spending the winter in California, writes Jan. 18 from Long Beach as follows: "As I have seen only two or three from Wayne this winter I can tell nothing about the Nebraskans who are here. The winter has been one of little fog. Rain is needed for precipitation is below normal now. "A new coast artillery gun, the largest of its kind, was brought to Fort McArthur recently. It outguns any weapon on battle ships of any country in the world. Its range is twenty-six miles. It weighs 740,000 pounds and fires a 16,000 pound shell. The navy leaves soon for a several months' cruise. The fleet from here will meet the Atlantic fleet unexpectedly near Panama and stage a battle as though enemies."

"The Pasadena—Tourament-of-Roses on New Year's day would have been wonderful this year if the cold weather had not been so bad. I stand had not taken place. Long Beach was proud to bring home first prize and grand sweepstakes on the presentation of the Spirit of the Sea." A tiny girl driving a white swan was seated in a massive flower gondola on which was mounted a small shell of a boat.

"One of the interesting sights here is the municipal market which is two blocks long and which 112 vendors sell fresh fruits, vegetables, home-made articles, fancy work and such like. From 6000 to 10,000 people are seen at the market most of the time. The market is open on Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays from sun-up until noon.

"Several new 'gushers' in the Los Arrios section of Long Beach have made people abandon their homes at that part. This had become a nice residential section after Signal Hill section was abandoned.

"I have a class of pupils in the First Methodist Sunday school junior department. Christmas Sunday 1800 people passed by the church and in the church and placed gifts there. Those who gave were in age from small children to men 93 years old. The gifts of food were passed to needy persons in Long Beach, and the money was sent abroad for mission purposes."

Gives Glimpse Of Early Wayne

Forty Years Ago City Resembled Small Factory Village, Judge Cherry Observes.

To take a glance at Wayne in 1884 is to picture the little settlement as a group of store buildings and a few homes huddled together within a couple of blocks, making the little town sitting alone on the prairie look like the western villages as they are pictured in the old days. Few places who have not watched the change take place it is difficult to imagine that the business district forty years ago consisted of a few frame structures in front of which were wooden porches and high board walks. This, however, is the way Wayne looked when Judge W. M. Cherry here on March 5, 1884.

Wayne was somewhat over two years old when Judge Cherry came. Where the depot now stands was a hotel built by the Vermont man, built and first operated by Mr. Vroman who moved here from LaPorte. Sandy Scott later operated the hotel. When Judge W. M. Cherry came in charge of Charles Wilkins. The Boyd hotel was built by Henry Boyd of Ohio in 1882 and in 1883 and 1884 Ellis was in charge of the Boyd house.

J. T. Bressler and D. C. Patterson built the First National Bank building having been moved here from LaPorte. The bank building is located in the frame structure on the west side of Main street, wrecked last summer by J. S. Lewis. Later the bank built a fire building at the present location and this was afterwards moved to the west of the site and is now occupied by William DeWitt. The brick bank building was then put up.

On the east side of Main street in 1884 was a six-foot board walk raised about three feet from the ground.

Robert Taylor came to Wayne from Iowa in 1884 and started the Citizens Loan Company. He came near camp with him and built the bank structure. Mr. Gaertner at this time started in the furniture business in Wayne. Willis Heister came at the time and was employed in the Gaertner store.

In 1882 S. D. Relyea and Roy Olmstead put up a frame building where the Gem store is not located and they started the first cafe in Wayne. The building is now used as a residence and is located east of the Gem building on the south Main street. In 1884 J. S. Lewis opened his harness shop in the restaurant building and he lived in part of the building.

On the corner now occupied by Larson and Larson was a frame building in which C. C. Merriman had a general merchandise store. Later W. B. Light and P. M. Corbit had interest in this store.

The corner now occupied by the State Bank of Wayne was formerly a building in which J. M. Brittan and Charles Johnson had a general merchandise store. The building was put up in 1884. When Mr. Johnson was clerk of the men sold to Neil Harrington. Later Henry Ley bought the building for the bank.

When the Gem store on the west side of Main street, this was later bought by Link Neely. Another Gem store was on the east side of the street. Linn Brothers owned it at one time and sold to E. K. Moller and E. P. Olmstead. They in turn sold to C. A. Berry and Luther E. Peterson. This is now the Carhart hardware.

In 1884 the old Peavey elevator was located here and Jonas K. Rydell agent. The contractor J. A. Milligan & Co. built an elevator on the east side of the road south of the depot, on the site of the present Hawthorn building. Jones had charge of the lumber yard at that time.

Peter Mears who had lived south-west of the depot, his store here came here in 1883 and built the rooming house now occupied by A. G. Bohner.

Henry Hill built a butcher shop on the site of the Central market. Jake Brown, in 1884, started a meat shop in a small frame building on the east corner of the city hall lot; the store had a drug store on the site of H. J. Feiler's. S. R. Theobald and H. W. Theobald started a dry goods store in the present John Hawkins building early in 1885 and the same year moved to their present location. Frank and D. L. Strickland had a gent's furnishing store north of the Theobald place. Two smaller buildings were in the north half of the second block of Main street in the summer of 1885 when all the buildings were destroyed by fire.

Mrs. M. P. Ahern had a dressmaking and millinery store on the east side of Main street.

William Sonneck, in 1884, built the brick store now occupied by the Love barber shop. This was a general merchandise store.

James Deary had a drug store in Wayne in 1884 on the east side of North Main street.

On the corner now occupied by the Artistic Ice company, there is a very barn, owned by Ed. Morton, grandfather of Miss Hattie Morton. Mr. Morton moved to Norfolk in 1884 and the block west of the Gem cafe was a dairy barn owned by Perry Brothers & Warner. This was later owned by Simon Gohman,

A few years ago it burned to the ground. Of the residences nestled close to the main part of town was the Frank F. Stacey, now the Dr. T. T. Jones house. Orin E. Chaffee had a house north of the corner and Edward Perry's residence was next. Henry Cherry, the one which the present administration of the State Normal replaced, was built. The business men of Wayne bought Mr. Perry's interests and entered a contract with J. A. Miller later agreeing to maintain a college of not less than 250 students for a period of five years at the end of which the school property was to come his. Mr. Perry carried out the agreement though during the hard times it was difficult many times to get sufficient numbers. Mr. Perry built two dormitories. In a few years it became necessary that another building and a heating system be bought and the cost was $45,000. At this time the structure now used by the training school was put up. Mr. Perry built other dormitories. The citizens of Wayne raised the $45,000 for the improvements and the sum was to be paid back by the school. When Mr. Pile died Wayne citizens sold the school to the state.

When Judge Cherry came to Nebraska in 1884 the railroad map showed a plan of having stations eight miles apart from Sioux City to Norfolk. From Sioux City to Wakefield the plan worked nicely. When the site for Wayne was chosen two miles east of the present location, which would be eight miles from Wakefield, the corner of the land and the company could not come to an agreement at first and the company, being urged by owners of the land on which Wayne is located, moved the site so the plan of eight-mile stations was broken. It was decided at first to have a station at the east end of Winside, a station at Northside which was west of the present site of Winside and then at Hoskins and Norfolk. When Wayne was moved east the company abandoned plans for locations at the Risee land and at Northside and located Winside where it is now. This made the stations five miles apart from Wakefield to Norfolk.

A switch was thrown out at Winside. Several houses and a few barns had been built on Northside when this happened. In December, 1885, Milligan & English company opened a branch at Winfield and sent Mr. Cherry there at first twice a week to manage the business. Later he was stationed there and boarded at the Hornby stock yards. One day in February, 1886, men were sent to Northside and they loaded the most of the property in Northside on flat cars and moved it to Winside for a year. No town was platted and no lots sold. The four families there for the year were the McDerbys, Phillips, John Morans and Cherrys. In the spring of 1887 A. H. Carter and Al. Clark came from Iowa. They built the two-story structure north of the depot and put in a general merchandise and hardware store. The railroad company built the depot. The shacks which were along the track, were moved onto North street when the town had been platted.

Five nights of schooling have been organized in Boone county. C. C. Gradler, instructor in agriculture in Albion has charge of the instruction. Farmers and others of the county may attend. The programs are scattered through January and February.

According to a report from Newman Grove George H. Gatu of this county has farm holdings in Madison county to construction firms of Lincoln and Chicago. Mr. Gatu owned sixty quarter section of land and the sale would involve over one million dollars.

The Emerson commercial club voted last week in favor of calling a special election for bond issue to install a municipal ice manufacturing plant. It was also suggested that the present ice plant be bought and converted into a swimming pool for the city. No definite action was taken.

Mrs. Rose Garvey, oldest resident of Nebraska, died last week at her home near Albion, aged 114 years. She had lived there since 1882. Three of her sons remained bachelors in order that they might stay home and care for their mother. The fourth son lived but a few miles from her.

The Cumming County Corn club, including a group of eleven boys of Wisner vicinity, completed its year's work by showing that members had received thirty prizes at county and state fairs. Robert McGuire and Merin Anderson took first prizes at the Wayne county fair and the latter was named champion of the club for having received the most prizes. The members tried seven varieties of corn and found that the seed provided by August Biermann of Wayne county, bringing the best returns.

WAYNE'S LEADING CLOTHIER

James Brittan, A. A. Welch, James P. Fetter, W. H. Riley, J. D. King, W. M. Wright and F. M. Northrup were attorneys located in Wayne in 1884. Not all of them however were practicing at that time.

Walter, Emil and William Weber came to Wayne in 1884 and started the roller mill which is now operated by Walter Weber. Their former home was Tekamah.

Wayne's first courthouse was a brick veneered building which was located on the present site of the William Beckenbauer funeral parlors. The county was bonded for $30,000 to erect a court house at LaPorte. Men who wanted the county seat moved to Wayne because they had land here, agreed to put up a courthouse and furnish it free for a period of years, this being to get voters to change their vote.

The brick veneered building was erected here. On July 4, 1884, the building burned. At the time a priest, for whom the building was built, was checked to the floor of the judge's office. When the building was burning the man was found hanging from the rafters as far as the chain around one of his feet would allow. He was the one also who turned in the alarm and it is not known how the fire started unless he had set the match. He had agreed to furnish the building for a period of years and therefore to fulfill their contract they hired R. M. Farr to build two cottages east of the building as possible for $1800. This wooden building was on the site of the one burned. This served as a courthouse until Christmas, 1885 when the officials moved to the present brick courthouse. The frame building was wrecked and the material used to build the two cottages east of the Beckenbauer parlors.

The Wayne Herald occupied part of the brick veneered courthouse at the time of the fire. M. DeWitt, John and W. McNeal were editing the paper. C. E. Hunter had started the first paper in Wayne county at LaPorte. He set the type here and took the galley of type to Ponca to have the printing done as he had no press. When the county seat was changed to Wayne, A. F. Child and Lou Harris, sons of C. E. Hunter, brought the LaPorte paper to Wayne. At one time a retired minister started a paper here but the enterprise soon died out. The Wayne Republican was started and was located east of the German store. This later was bought by E. Cunningham. Eventually the Herald and Republican consolidated.

In 1884 Dr. R. B. Crawford, Dr. H. G. Leisinger, Dr. Love and Dr. Eli Bradford were located in Wayne. Dr. W. C. Wightman came in about 1886. Dr. Leisinger was first to own an automobile in Wayne, though there was many years later. There was no dentist here until about 1890 when Dr. T. B. Heckert came.

Mr. Yost, a promoter, came to Wayne in the night and wanted to build a school. The plan was that Many find opportunity at their door. Others find bill collectors.

New Courses Added to the High School Curriculum With Start of New Semester

English Department Adds New Writing-Mathematics and Civics Given New Branches.

New Courses Offered. The curriculum of Wayne high school has been strengthened by the addition of several new courses.

Advanced Civics has also been added. Nine weeks of the semester will be devoted to the study of the state government, particularly the government of Nebraska.

The dinner hour for country students at the school is under supervision. The girls' table is in the former domestic science room and there is a table for boys in the corridor of the basement.

The playground is under supervision from 8:30 in the morning until dismissal time at night.

Gayle Gildersleeve, Genevieve Craig and Esther Taylor were graduates of the Wayne high school this semester.

The French class has ordered a French newspaper to be used in class.

A radio program was broadcast from Norfolk Sunday under the auspices of the Wayne American Legion.

The seating of the assembly was rearranged Friday, Jan. 21, and the marching system was reorganized.

The senior invitation committee has been examining samples, but has not definitely decided on invitations for the class of 1926.

The students in the algebra IV, III and 9B classes are keeping individual graphs of their daily grades for a week.

Assembly News. Rev. L. F. Townsend was the speaker at the assembly held on Monday, Jan. 19.

Athletic Notes. The Wayne high school quintet went down to defeat at the hands of the Wisner high school team last Friday night at Wisner with the score, Wisner 28, Wayne 12.

The girls played in the light of victory during the first half, but fell down in the final period to lose the game.

Their defense was rather weak, but their offense was very effective. The defense was strengthened in the last half when the team scored only five points.

The boys' second basketball team met at Wakefield Friday night. The result was a score of 10 to 7 in the favor of the visitors.

Real sportsmanship was shown by both teams. It is hoped that the same spirit will be shown when the team meets on Wayne's floor Saturday evening.

The lineup was as follows: R. F. Trumbauer, L. F. Erbelein, C. S. Burdette, E. G. Jones, G. S. Sander, substitutions, Davis and Chenevett.

The Class and the High School. There can be no A class spirit but it will be of no benefit to the high school if the spirit of the class is not in the city and the school.

Junior Notes. The Junior play, Alice-Sit-By-the-Fire, is developing very nicely.

Group pictures from the play were taken last Saturday for advertisement.

Your High School. Whether you know it or not, it still the same old hill.

Years ago it was thought that if a student learned the subject matter presented, that was enough.

A student should take part in some of the school activities even if it is very small matter.

A number of seniors have entered the English IV class this semester.

Both divisions of English IV are making maps which show the locations of some of the places in the battle of Gettysburg.

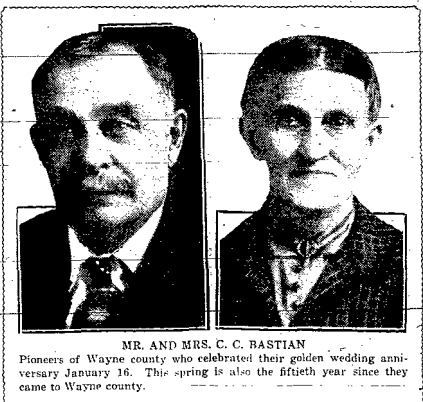

The ancient history classes are outlining a little differently this semester than last semester.

Ninth Grade Notes. The students who were absent last week were Marie and Arthur Hohenstein.

Last week the botany class studied "Bacteria" and "The Algae."

The high school does not have as good cooperation at football and basketball games as it should.

The two yell leaders should be on the floor leading the yells and

MR. AND MRS. C. C. BASTIAN

Pioneers of Wayne county who celebrated their golden wedding anniversary January 16. This spring is also the fiftieth year since they came to Wayne county.

each class should have a yell leader. If classes would cooperate in giving the games would undoubtedly be more enthusiastic displays of high school spirit.

The Referee. You've probably all heard of Jim Jones who goes to all of the games warning the opposing team that it will be defeated.

Now referees have human limitations and will quite naturally make mistakes sometimes or miss some points of the game.

The kindergarten will start the study of the Eskimos.

Fourth Grade. Mrs. Perry and Mrs. Foltz visited last week.

Sixth Grade. Miss Davis, Miss Schrupp, Mr. Robinson and Mr. Mack began piano teaching Monday.

Seventh Grade. Mrs. Hiseok was a visitor in the seventh grade Friday.

Local News. A. R. Davis went to Omaha on business Tuesday morning.

Another car load of furniture has arrived at the store of R. E. Judson Company in Wayne.

Mr. and Mrs. G. G. Porter of Madison, S. D., came Friday and visited with the father's mother.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Watson who were here visiting the families of William Watson and Chas. White, returned Tuesday to their home at Pierce.

Miss Doris Diemer of Carroll spent the week-end in the Wm. Brueckner home.

Miss Doris Buss was a guest Saturday and Sunday of Miss Rosella Kallath.

Oliver Chapman of Omaha came Saturday for a few weeks' visit with relatives.

Mrs. Wm. Brueckner is visiting a few days this week in the Ed. Brummels home.

Miss Zelma Waechter of Hadar visited the week-end with Miss Emma Mittlesteadt.

August Ruhlow, Sr., went to Crofton Tuesday where he will open a cream station.

Ferdinand Pfeil returned home Saturday after a week's visit with relatives at Wayne.

Mrs. S. A. Lutgen of Wayne spent Friday and Saturday in the Gus Schroeder home.

Mrs. Emma Coleman left Wednesday for Yankton, S. D., after an extended visit in the Gus Schroeder home.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Koles and family of Winslow were Sunday afternoon guests in the Fred Kleinsang home.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. F. Dreesen and family called Tuesday evening in the Chas. Fuhrman home.

"Grandma" Dreesen returned home Saturday after a few weeks' visit in the John Dreesen home.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Jones and son, Junior, returned to their home at Carroll Saturday after a two weeks' visit in the Wm. Ruhlow home.

A number of friends and relatives were entertained at a 6 o'clock dinner Thursday evening in honor of Mr. Mann's birthday anniversary.

A number of friends and relatives surprised Mrs. Ernest Langenberg Sunday evening at the home in honor of her birthday anniversary.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Behmer, Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Behmer, and Mr. and Mrs. Otto Behmer and family were visitors Sunday in the August Behmer home.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Brummels and family, Mr. and Mrs. Reinhold Brueckner and family, and Miss Edna Olson were Sunday dinner guests in the Wm. Brueckner home.

Mr. and Mrs. Merin Ellis spent Saturday and Sunday with the former's parents at Crofton, Neb.

The past week, Ed. Behmer shipped one carload of cattle to Omaha; Art Klug one carload of cattle to Omaha; Herman Martin, one carload of cattle to Omaha; Gus Schroeder three carloads hogs to Sioux City; Otto Lenox one carload of hogs and cattle to Omaha.

 Bruce Spears who was in charge of the Hoskins Headlight, has decided to move from Hoskins.
 Mrs. Nellie Porter of Carroll, was called to St. Louis to help care for George Porter who is ill.
 Raymond Roberts of near Wayne, and Miss Nellie Martz of Colorado, were married in January, 1906.
 James Perdue has bought of J. D. King, the residence occupied by Dr. Edols. Consideration was $2200.
 John J. Hayes of Winslow, died at the age of 80 years, Feb. 6, 1906. He was Mrs. Ed. Cullen's father.
 Mr. and Mrs. O. D. Franks who are moving to the west, were given a party by the home club.
 William Larsen sold his farm northeast of Wayne to Peter-Nygen, consideration being $62.50 per acre.
 Elwin Strong, will appear in "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde" under the auspices of the Presbyterian Ladies' Aid society.
 Mrs. McLeod of Stanton, and Mrs. Sigworth of Wayne, went to Sioux Falls, S. D., to visit their sister, Mrs. Mark Miller.
 A farmers' institute was held in Wayne and E. R. Lundberg arranged the program and the presentation of prizes for corn growing was awarded to Herst Pond, Edward Steele, Almond Pond, Alfred Thomas and Willie Evans. Henry Wallace of Des Moines spoke and other men who have been successful in farming talked. Officers were elected as follows: F. E. Moses, president; W. A. K. Noyes, vice president; E. E. Lundberg, secretary and treasurer; and W. O. Gamble, Levi Dilts and A. E. Little, members of the executive board.

the northern part of Florida, but few northern people have settled. The people here have the same manners, customs, style of speech and continued here that they had 25 years ago. This region is altogether different from the more southern part of the state.
 Thus we rode along through country which was interesting only by comparing its horrible dullness and monotony with the energy and rush of the north. We have seen ten times more people, teams and business in the streets of Ponca during one hour, than we saw in all the towns combined, between Pensacola and Jacksonville.

 About noon, and when within a few miles of Tallahassee, the engine gave out and the train halted for repairs at a little station where there were three or four houses, and our party started out to find dinner.
 The lady of the house where we called, proposed to furnish us dinner

(at the hospitable price of a dollar per head,) and we took a seat in the parlor to wait for it. While sitting there we saw one of the institutions of the country, which we had often heard of, but never before had the pleasure of coming in contact with. It was a small tin cup in the bottom of which was an ounce or two of snuff. On the top of the cup lay a little pine stick with a swab on the end of it. It was a snuff dipping apparatus, and from its color and the aroma of the swab, had been in use from time immemorial. It thus appeared that the good woman of the house, had, among her many accomplishments, the pleasing one of snuff dipping. We were not permitted to partake of her hospitality, as she was so long in getting dinner that the whistle blew and we had to leave in a hurry on a run for the train.

 The train arrived at Tallahassee at four o'clock, afternoon, being several hours late. It contains about 3,900 inhabitants, and is a very beautiful place. The buildings are built with taste and elegance and are nearly hidden by the great amount of foliage surrounding them. After a few moments look over the place, the train moved on.

 A couple of miles east of Tallahassee we came to a small lake, and while passing along its border, saw an alligator which had been sleeping or catching flies on the shore, but

The One Who Forgot

By RUBY M. AYRES

Begin Here Today.
Peter Lyster lost his memory from shock when a shell on the western front in France laid him out and killed his two buddies. Before leaving London Peter had become engaged to Nan Marraby, who is brokenhearted over the fate which has matched all thoughts of his former love from the man she had promised to wed. Nan has been making her home with Jean Endicott, whose husband has wived from France that he is coming home on leave. Joan wants Nan to go away while her husband is away. She agrees to go after Joan has a new hat, and on her way meets Peter and Lieut. John Arnott, who is also home recovering from a wound. They drop into a tea shop and Nan leaves their table to buy some sweets for Joan. Peter turns to Arnott with the question: "Who is she?"

"April showers never last long!" She was standing so close to Peter that their arms were touching. "I turned her sick for a moment to remember the last time they had been together before he went to France—even now she seemed to feel the clasp of his arms round her—the throbbing of his heart beneath her cheek. She spoke hurriedly to Arnott. "Do you think you could get me a taxi?" Arnott dashed out in the rain—and Nan leaned against the doorway with a sudden feeling of unconceivable weakness. Lyster looked at her curiously, he spoke to her with sudden gentleness. "Is anything the matter, Miss Marraby?" Nan raised her eyes to his with an effort, her lips quivered into a smile. "Nothing, of course not; no, there is nothing the matter, thank you." Unconsciously she shrank a little from him. "Do you know," he said abruptly after a moment, "I've got a sort of feeling at the back of my mind that you and I have met somewhere before—any chocolate factory was that anyone I ought to know?" "No," said Arnott. "At least, Miss Marraby lives with her—a Mrs. Endicott."

Now Go On With the Story.
Arnott colored. "It's the girl I told you about the other day, Nan Marraby," he said. "Oh!" Peter's voice was indifferently. "And—someone else she spoke of, someone else she spoke of, someone else she spoke of, was that anyone I ought to know?" "No," said Arnott. "At least, Miss Marraby lives with her—a Mrs. Endicott."

He paused, but Nan gave no sign, though her heart seemed to leap almost from her body. "Have you ever seen me before?" he asked painfully. "You know—I am sure I had told you—that the shock I had when I was knocked out in France has made me forget some things in my life. They say it's only temporary, and that I shall be all right again, but it's got on my nerves—I'm always dreading that I shall run across people I ought to know, and not know them."

"I've let me know when you're leaving town?" "Yes, and now having got it all I can get out of me. I'm going to be mean and mean away," she said. "I've got lots of shopping to do." She held a hand to Arnott. "Goodbye."

"I saw you that night at the hotel," she said gently. "I dare say you are thinking of that." "Perhaps I am," he sounded relieved. He gave a quick look and looked down the wet road in the direction in which Arnott had vanished. Arnott seems very backed to think of him at Leavenworth, he said with sudden change of voice. "I suppose you are old friends."

"I've let me know when you're leaving town?" "Yes, and now having got it all I can get out of me. I'm going to be mean and mean away," she said. "I've got lots of shopping to do." She held a hand to Arnott. "Goodbye."

fighting for your heart," she cried with sudden fire. Jean's little maid knocked at the door; she thrust a scared face round. "Please, Ma'am, another telegram." Joan rushed out of the room. For one of those moments when the yellow envelope, glanced at it and gave a little laugh. "How silly! I was so sure it must be for me but it's for you, Nan." Nan took out the message. "I have got to go home at once," she said dully. "My stepmother has died, you know."

GIOTRE CAUSED
Loss of Voice, Nervousness, Headaches and Cholera. Relieved by External Home Treatment. Mrs. L. E. Brabson, R. R. No. 4, Lincoln, Neb., says: "Two days ago I was using Sorbol Quadruple in relief of my voice twice in one day. 24 hours after using Sorbol Quadruple, those choking spells disappeared. I was a nervous wreck. My doctor says the giotre is gone."

Early Days in Two Counties
(Continued from page six.) which, as the train went by, tumbled himself hastily into the water and disappeared. As long as daylight lasted, we noticed that the route east of Tallahassee, was about the same as it had been since we left Lake de Funiac. There was a vast monotony of sand, rocks and trees, and a few underbrush, but having a great number of tall pine trees. The lack of vines, moss and underbrush gave the forests a very clean, open appearance, through them one could see a long distance. After dark we saw a forest on fire, the flames streaming to the top of the pines, the trees, presenting a magnificent appearance. About midnight when near the town of White Oak, the train came to a halt. A feeling of uneasiness had been jogging over the road had in part run off the track, and the way before us was blocked. Here, therefore, we stayed for three or four hours. Efforts were made to clear the road, but the sleepy trainmen were not equal to the emergency. Finally a train came up on the other side of the wreck, and the passengers and baggage were transferred across, thus swapping trains. Then once more rolling along, passengers congratulated each other that they had got past their tedious delay, and thought no farther mishap would befall them before getting to Jacksonville. But they were mistaken. We had another accident. The train stopped to take on wood, and with the careless indifference so natural to the railroad men, the logs were placed at the back of the train. Pretty soon we heard a continuous and appalling roar coming down the track behind us. The train was in the rolling of wheels and the puffing of a locomotive showed that a tender was rapidly approaching. A tremendous clanging and grunting was heard from those on the ground outside who could see the coming danger, and the passengers within, frightened out of their wits, ran to the side of the road, and the doors of the cars. A few got out and jumped off, but the greatest number, huddled at the doors like a flock of sheep trying to squeeze themselves out, and were suddenly tumbled pell-mell into a heap by a tremendous crash. An engine and a lot of flat cars, at a high rate of speed, had run into our train, knocking the sleeping cars into kindling wood and injuring by the concussion every other car, more or less. The attacking engine which thus tried to beat us all to eternity, was dented and tumbled into the ditch. Nearly every passenger was bruised, but none seriously. Of our party, Dr. Haslow had a bone lacerated on his leg of the size and color of a stove lid. As for Mr. Herrick and the writer, we sat down with force, but no injury. After a good deal of laughing and by-ways of the amusing side of it. Previous to this attempt to telegraph a train, a man on the car where we were sleeping soundly, and snoring loudly, high on the back of the seat before him, had laid his two feet clothed in red stockings, all to stretch his wonderful back. Of him sat two gold spectacle-wearing females from Boston, who were annoyed by the man's noise and endeavored in an un-aesthetic sight of the feet, which, on their impressive nature, was like the flaunting of a red flag in the face of a bull. They scornfully regarded him and made fun of him, and pointed at his feet. Suddenly came the roar of the approaching train behind us, and the various tribulations which which ran like two frightened red calves and jumped safely off, but the two women when near the door were by the crash thrown into an indiscriminate and shrieking chaos of petticoats, waving limbs, false hair and gold spectacles.

Obituary. Eli Buchanan Henderson, who died Jan. 17 at Rushville, Neb., was born at Buckhorn, Iowa, aged at the time of his death, 69 years, 11 months and 21 days. In 1881 he moved to Atchison county, Missouri, on December 24, 1883, he was united in marriage to Miss Emma Wilson. To this union three children were born: Mrs. Bertha E. Olds of Rushville, Neb., Clarence E. Henderson of Chicago, Ill., and Russell E. Henderson of Tucson, Arizona.

The family came to Nebraska in 1889 and engaged in farming. In 1908 they moved to Winside, where Mr. Henderson took up the real estate and insurance business. His health failing, he moved to Sioux City, Iowa, first coming to his daughter's home at Rushville, where Mr. Henderson possessed the fraternal spirit. Very early in life he affiliated with the lodge of Odd Fellows and practiced its principles. He was also a member of the order of W. O. W. He was a member of many organizations.

Mr. Henderson was a devout Christian and practiced the teachings of Jesus Christ. Besides the immediate family, one brother, Reuben D. Henderson and two grandchildren survive him. The funeral was held from the house Wednesday afternoon at 1:30. The burial was in the Lutheran cemetery. The pallbearers were: Henry Bay, Ed. Brugger, Fred Hodgson, Andrew Davis, Joe Barte and C. L. Mayes.

In the center of each table was a pink lighted taper tied with tulle and at the base of the candle was a pink nut cup and pink and green opera sticks were attractive at each place. Roses in pink and green were used on the cakes.

For Bride of Week.
Miss Bertha Longe, whose marriage to Edward Frevort of southwest of Wayne place Wednesday, was guest of honor at a magnificent shower given 28-29 by Miss Thora Longe and Miss Edwita Frevort at the Henry Frevort home. About 100 relatives and friends were present. The evening was enjoyed in dancing, music being furnished by Elmer King's orchestra of Hoskins. At midnight a mock wedding was a feature. Miss Longe received many useful gifts. Luncheon was served by the hostesses.

For Miss Dorothy Brainard.
Mrs. J. H. Foster, Mrs. E. Kostomatsky, Mrs. W. A. Hixcox, Mrs. H. L. Miner and Miss Eloise Miner retained about forty friends Saturday afternoon at the Foster-home complimentary to Miss Dorothy Brainard who is to be married next Sunday to Arthur E. Reed of Cleveland, Ohio. Tables for the two-course 1 o'clock luncheon were attractive with pink roses as centerpiece, pink nut cups and pink and white place cards. The table at which the guest of honor was seated had a miniature bride, dressed in the satin as a centerpiece. Above the table hung pink paper streamers which were blue and silver but tied in bouquets of pink roses. After the luncheon gifts were presented Miss Brainard in a box which looked like a large white wedding cake with a pink rose as trimming. Bride was enjoyed as pastime for the remainder of the afternoon.

Troop Two Meets.
Troop Two of boy scouts opened the meeting at the Methodist church last Thursday evening by singing well known songs. After the business had been taken care of Prof. N. N. Parks introduced D. E. Brainard who talked to the boys on the scout law, "A scout is thrifty." Mr. Brainard emphasized among other things that one might be thrifty with things other than money, the most important of which are time and health. After a couple of interesting games the meeting was adjourned. Visitors were Carl Wright, Rev. L. F. Townsend, D. E. Brainard and Burl Craig. The troop and its officers

Officers welcome visits to the meetings by any interested persons, especially parents of the boys. The regular meeting night is Thursday at 7:15. The place is the Methodist church parlors. Scout work can do the maximum of good for members only when parents and the community cooperate with the scout officials. All are urged to come and help the work along.
