Find New Method To Take Finger Prints

Bloomfield, Neb. Feb. 7.—A few years ago F. D. Boyd, of Bloomfield, conceived the idea that there is a better, easier, cleaner and more practical method of taking finger prints. He began experimenting before March, first you should save and secure the money you need on your land at our low rate of interest. John H. Roper, Dodge, Neb.

By his method the fingers are placed on a pad which has been treated to an acid solution and then are placed on the paper to which the prints are to be transferred. The prints are pressed to the paper and the acid burns its way into the paper, leaving a full and clear reproduction of the finger prints, which is permanent, non-changeable and which will last as long as the thing on which they are printed.—There is no staining or soiling of the fingers and the solution is absolutely harmless to the hands, and there are no blurred or indistinct prints as is the case with the present methods.

Mr. Boyd was born at Central City, Neb., in 1896, and grew to manhood

Juniors of High School Score Success In Their Annual Class Play Friday Night

Week's Basket Ball Events—Team Skied in Mud to Fill Excitement—Other School News

Junior Class Play.—The junior high school class play which was given last Friday evening, was a decided success. The cast was worked out by Ed. Cosmo. They had the ladies kissing among the girls. Pollard, Amy Grey, (she has been to the theatre and knows her), Lucille (Amy's bosom friend. Their love is shared), Elsie Garhart, Nurse, Alice Shields, Alice Grey, (a mother who takes her trousers off), Una Schramm, Colonel Grey, (the new language keeping up with his wife), Perris Gifford, Stanley, (the mad), Helen (the beautiful girl), Helen Thompson (we can provide), Cyrus Jones, Richardson, Steve's man, (we blush with shame to deceive you), Helen Thompson.

Synopsis of the story: Colonel Grey and his young wife, Alice, are victims of the "flu" and are waiting their return are a daughter and son who expect to find their parents quite old. The daughter and a friend come to the rescue and help to restore certain actions of the mother and a young man. The children are first won by the colonel, but finally wins them, and the daughter is taught a lesson. Between the second and third acts Miss Ruth Anderson is presented with a bouquet of roses. Walter Reeg played several numbers in the accompaniment. Between the fourth and fifth acts the junior orchestra furnished music. The money realized will be turned over to the student body fund of the high school.

Athletic Notes.—After a record of 5 consecutive wins, Wayne football team, which last Saturday and trounced the Carroll lossers for their first victory, 18 to 24. The Carroll quintet, in their best effort, were defeated by Osmond and this made two defeats for them in two days. The Carroll girls' team, that has established a record of 11 wins, by losing a single game, defeated the Wayne high girls by a 32 to 18 score. The Wayne team was handicapped by the absence of one of the players who had trained in signals. However, the local girls played with the needed spirit and won and exhibited some real team work. Lines: Centers, Una Schramm, Mary Alice Ley, forwards, Lucille Annals, Annals, guards, Amelia Kugler, Vera Sylvanus, Louise Rickabaugh and Marie Finn. The Wayne team has won its fastest game played this year by the Wayne high school. Wayne scored first and held the lead throughout the game, with Carroll trailing behind with about six points difference. Wayne excelled in team work and basket shooting, but Carroll had a follow in system that netted them many baskets. At the end of the first half the score stood Carroll 8 Wayne 14. Wayne carried over a lead in the last quarter. Erlebeben and Jones tied for high point honors for Wayne, each with nine points. Dennis and Jones tied for high points. Erlebeben proved a valuable asset to the team and put a firm grip on victory with his long shots. But Dennis played better in the light of sportsmanship, although there was considerable fouling of both sides. The lines for Wayne were: Centers, Dennis, forward, Erlebeben, Jones, guards, Keyser, Perry; substitute, Wright.

The Wayne-Pilger basket ball game turned out to be a "mud party." The boys met an unfortunate car on the way and left a helping hand. Then to make up time, Coach Peterson tried the cross country via the very muddy route and got mired. Turn about is fair play, but there was no turning any way, so the boys got out and decided to "hoof" it to their destination. After going about a mile in mud up their belts they pulled in at a farm house for help. The inhabitants could do nothing for the way was impassable, so the boys waited until a car from Wayne came and got them. They were stalled six hours.

The Wayne boys' team will play basket ball at Randolph this Friday night. The second team and the girls' team will play at Carroll that same night.

Assembly Notes.—Tuesday evening at the close of the school session the juniors presented several short talks on their play which was held Friday night. This gave the high school students an idea of what the play was to be like. The next sale was conducted Wednesday evening, for the junior play. Anyone who so desired could sell tickets for the play.

There has been a slight change in the supervisors of the assembly periods. This seems to be "test" or "quiz" work. The majority of the classes have been given tests.

Presentation of Letters and Swatters.—The class of 1925 presented several boys were presented with swatters and three with letters for their football activities. Those receiving letters were: Gerald Devore, Homer Ickhoff and William Benshof. Those receiving swatters were: Harry Elber, Arthur Chichester, Charles Keyser, Carroll Trumbauer, Manley Keyser.

Freshman Class Notes.—The botany class performed its second experiment dealing with blood glucose. The members of the class all seem to enjoy this course and take a great deal of interest in the accompanying lessons.

The English class has been giving oral talks on subjects assigned by Mrs. Fisher. By reciting orally they improve their speaking ability and learn to give interesting and well developed talks.

First Grade.—Betty Strahan, Violet L. Porter and George Oliver were absent last week.

Garrett Rhoades was 6 years old Friday, Feb. 5. He celebrated his birthday by having a party at the school.

February is a very patriotic month. This month there are the birthdays of Lincoln and Washington. These grade children are learning the "salute to the flag" and are learning to sing "America".

All the children who participated in the Dutch play that was given, some time ago posted for their pictures in the costumes. Members of the carnival pool also had their pictures taken.

In the language class, Lincoln and Washington are being studied. A health contest is being held concerning the children to be clean.

The girls were ahead for the month of January. There was a one hundred percent record for Thursday.

The children every day are inspected—the teeth, hands, hair, their appearance. All the children have a desire to be clean and neat to get a "star" as reward.

To celebrate St. Valentine's day a large mail box will be put into the room in which the children may put their valentines. These will be distributed on Valentine's day.

Third Grade.—These third graders are having a Valentine spelling book contest. It lasts until Valentine's day. For those who have perfect books, a surprise will be given.

There is also a spelling contest between the boys and the girls. "The Monkey and the Elephant" is being dramatized by this grade.

The children absent were Margaret Jones, Lloyd and Floyd Jones.

During the absence of Miss Tyrell, Mrs. Galley was substitute teacher in the fifth grade.

Sixth Grade.—The language class had an "array and array" contest. The first student gave a common noun, the next student had to answer back with a proper noun.

One book must be read and reported on every week. An outline blank is filled out. They pick their books from a list the teacher has prepared. This is done to inspire in the student the desire to read, and to read good literature. Some students are excused on account of their eyes.

A "picture show" was held today in the room which the children had picked a slide and picture. The children were given a chance to see the picture.

Often one who does not tell the truth, not necessarily a willful pre-varicator. He just lacks capacity to hold the facts intact until he sees some one on whom to unload.

Foreign public sales than usual of the past winter indicate less moving in prospect for March 1. The fact reflected in a reduction of the season for farming. The condition suggests more widespread contentment.

Supplementing the Herald's late vote on the question of modifying the prohibition law, a resolution for a non-wide referendum has been introduced in congress for the purpose provides for submission of the question at the congressional election next November.

The district basketball tournament to be held in Wayne the last of this month will attract to this city hundreds of young students with their supporting friends. Hundreds will come here to see the wholesome sport and share in the recreation enjoy of the occasion. Wayne will do its part in welcoming the young people and their friends and making them feel the hospitality and culture that here abound.

Col. Homer says President Wilson used to complain of forgetfulness, in which respect he was just as common at the rest of us. When the other is discussing things all the ground that their thinking is full of air and unsettled. (When people are advancing in years, forgetting is a consequence of being old, the decline and getting ready to be checked out. Fact is, everybody forgets through multiplicity of things on the string or through lack of concentration. As we judge, the mad, even though sweeping toward the end of things, is not overloaded and if it is not allowed to become indifferent.

Some people seem to sympathize sickness. They are ever complaining and ever seeking sympathy. They do not know that one trouble or another is distressing them all the time.
 They do not submit to a diagnosis through fear that they will be pronounced blind and all right. Sometimes almost an entire life is spent seems best by the misapprehension that gloom vendors retail and magnify the ill of others. They advise neighbors until a healthy man feels like joining an apartment majority and taking to his bed. We would say that the most useful thing that any one's mind will prove an effective antidote for imaginary ills which doubts are more numerous than the other ills.

The Greater Wayne club is officially financed to go ahead under a heavy head of steam, and will accomplish many little goals and perhaps some big things before the end of the year. It is hoped Color schemes in homes and elsewhere are said to affect nerves and influence the state of mind. Some color combinations make one feel like budding spring, while others like late fall when the sky is drab and the chill wind sighs across the fields. It is becoming important as the selection of colors is the selection of social companionship that contributes to health and happiness. The society who is ever seeking to smooth rough places instead of leveling them for opportunities to nettle and hurt you is who brings Almost every proposition has two sides that can be supported by convincing arguments. You feel better in the presence of the fellow who sees and emphasizes the encouraging side. The one who is chronicling their own misfortune is a constant and liberal distributor of crepe, may serve some useful purpose, but he is oppressing and disheartening. He spreads gloom and invites blue devils.

 When he was created some of his gifts were omitted—some of the leaving the soul out of biscuits.
 The pessimist, frowning on the world and seeking to obstruct everything as he progresses, is not needed, but he is not the associate to those to build hope and preserve mental health. He is a to a nose as long as the prospect holds a breath of hope, and the sun might be supplemented by favorable activity in behalf of any worthy improvement. It is unphilosophical to let the grain no longer be successful. One surpassing needs a new modern hotel building, and if it could be built, the investment would be profitable, it is believed. It is believed ample capital for the purpose would be forthcoming. This "national" enterprise, which the local community well undertake.

Abraham Lincoln was not a society leader, a man of pretense. He was unaffected and profoundly sympathetic. After he had given his Gettysburg address, he was widely acknowledged in the belief that his effort, judging from lack of demonstration, had failed to gain the response of the world. His quiet reaction, his utter absence meant a profound sense of appreciation that was too sacred for noisy acclaim, and the words that he uttered were not forgotten. His indifference at the time, will illumine American literature as long as the world stands. Lincoln's lifework is an inspiration for fine character, firm conviction and helpful advice. His death anniversary, his birthday, review his life, read his precepts, and thereby to be encouraged and strengthened for present and coming tasks.

What we resent most in the frenzied political cant about farming is the idea of a national committee than other lines of endeavor.
 We once heard of an ambitious society woman who was secretly and vigorously accepting charity while serving on a committee of a philanthropic organization bent on relieving indigent families. In her pride, she would not admit she might be the circumstances it would have been better if she had expended her energy in the direction of saving the lives of the needy by helping charity. So it is with ambitious politicians who are sobbing over the condition of the farmers and organizing a popular group as a means to carry political favor. Farmers are not asking special legislation, they are asking accepting charity while that deal equally and justly. An organized plan to take care of surplus crops and avoid flooding the market would be best if it were done in branches of production. Farming communities need additional proof to be convinced that they are worse off than the politicians who are regarding their partners in tearful solicitude for them.

INVEST AT HOME

If you have any money to invest, you should invest it in something at or near home. If you put your money into real-estate of other property, instantly located, you have no subject to strange laws and customs. The investment is too far away for your personal attention, and you run the risk of employing agents and tenants who make you suffer every disadvantage. The agent located your investment, and who seemed warmly interested in your welfare, has forgotten you in the quest for other victims.
 You run the risk of employing agents of your home neighborhood. You know conditions and probabilities.
 You know the people with whom you are dealing, and know what property has done and what it is likely to do. You cannot make a serious blunder. You are not in a foreign country. But the chances are for an elaborate shaking if you take your savings and plant them in a foreign country. You note and about which you know nothing excepting what has been told you by some plausible agent.

Time was spent in cards and lunchon was served afterwards.

THE Iowa College of Agriculture says

Each report we receive piles up more evidence as to the seriousness of the seed-corn situation in Iowa. Reports from other corn belt states are much the same. But, freeze or no freeze, it is always a good policy to test seed corn—Far better to test before planting than to test it later at heavy cost in the corn-field.

Owing to the seriousness of the situation and the need of some reliable testing method, the Harvester Company has decided to make up a quantity of good, inexpensive but practical seed corn germinating boxes. As our welfare is closely linked up with that of the farmer, and as we prosper only as the farmer prospers, we are desirous of lending such aid as we can in the emergency, and furnish these seed testing boxes at the lowest figure at which they can be manufactured in quantities and without a cent of profit to us.

When so much depends on the germinating qualities of the seed, and the testing is so easy, you can't afford to gamble with your crop. Every corn-growing farmer should have three or four of these test boxes.

They will be furnished at 50 cents each at most points in the corn belt, with a slight additional charge in some localities on account of transportation expense. Take advantage of this opportunity.

Bureaucracy. Lincoln Johnson, when that vigorous Nebraska R. R. Commissioner made director of public expenditures by whom fringed that congress is not the sole cause of government extravagance. If all could be made strictly in accordance with the wishes of the committee, an appropriation of $100,000,000 would be saved for the taxpayers. Unfortunately, congress itself is not master of the treasury. The bureau has become so powerful that they continually spend money in ways not contemplated by congress. Shiftful inverted clause in the appropriation bills permit the heads of government divisions to make purchases and to render payment to the contractors. There are thousands of disbursing officers who pay out money on the order of their superiors. Mr. McCall often finds that these orders contain more money than congress intended to appropriate. After the money is paid out it is irretrievably become the property of the new watchdog of the treasury to go to the man who has legitimately sold commodities to the government and demand a return of the money on the ground that the expenditure was unlawful. He has succeeded in restoring large sums of money already drawn from the treasury, but it is a painful process and is nearly always unfair to the citizen who has made an honest sale and received a fair price for his property.

All these things prove once more that a bureaucratic government is a breeder of extravagance. Mr. McCall would reduce the number of disbursing officers in the service to thirty or forty and prevent the handing over of money on the order of an ambitious and wasteful minor official. The situation calls also for a complete reorganization of the government, its simplification and a general tightening of the purse strings in the hands of congress. Many precedents have attempted to bring about these reforms. They have always failed. If the Vermont Yankee now so softly entrenched in the confidence of the country cannot bring about this reform then it must be looked upon as hopeless.

Miss Laura Thompson Writes From Africa

Miss Laura Thompson of Concord, Mass., writes from Africa to do missionary work, writes to home folks. An account of her journey to Africa will be given by her many friends. It is as follows: "After bidding relatives and neighbors adieu, I left for St. Paul to visit Lois Thompson, and then in Chicago I went to the Moody Bible institute to visit Tille Estler, Anderson, and other school friends. I arrived in Cleveland, Ohio, in time to take part Oct. 4, p.m. I remained, in the rally day program. E. B. Young, of Wayne, had, when attending conferences in New Jersey and Ohio, told of his desire to do mission work in Africa and the Cleveland church decided to support my field work.

"Miss Elizabeth Wilson, teacher of the school where I was in England, met me and entertained me last night in her home. At the farewell service I told the audience of my plans. The following morning I was given a farewell reception and each of us gave a parting message. The following morning I left for Africa on the steamer 'The Deutschland' ready for sailing Oct. 20. Many letters, packages and telegrams were received at the steamer.

"Six were in our party, Rev. and Mrs. S. H. Downing, Rev. W. J. and Mrs. W. J. Downing, Miss Hutton and myself. All but myself were returning to their fields in Africa. The Downings have been on Africa for two years, having returned and put their three children in school. They are leaving the children in America for schooling. Miss Hutton will work with the Downings in the field. The Maynards went out in 1914 and have been on furlough for a while at least. I will work with them for a while at least.

"We sailed from Brooklyn Oct. 29, just one month from the 1st of Concord. Miss Hutton and I shared the same cabin. It was about 9 by 9, located near the center of the ship. It had one window and was necessary to keep this closed if the sea was rough. The cabin was modest 1000 passengers and still it was rocked back and forth like a cradle by the big waves.

"When we had been out at sea two days I sent mother a radiogram from the ship. The cost was $1. The radiogram was elaborate and served in many courses but they did not taste like home-cooked ones. While on shipboard we were awakened the morning at 7 by a coronet who played a familiar melody. Breakfast was served at 7:30. Our group had morning devotions together and read the Bible. Then we wrote and rested until luncheon time which was 12:30. On Sundays Rev. Downing preached.

"Arriving at South Hampton Nov. 7 we waited until Nov. 12 to take the other steamer. We went on a sightseeing trip to London where we waited. About two hours after leaving South Hampton we were in London. Rural England is beautiful. The houses were green when we were there and the leaves on trees had turned to beautiful shades. In London there are no skyscrapers or big steel bridges. In Westminster Abbey we saw the tombs of kings and nobility, also of John and Charles Wesley. The one that impressed me most was the tomb of David Livingstone. Not far away was the grave of an unknown soldier. This represents all the unknown soldiers of the late war. We were there on Armistice day and the king and queen and other nobility placed flowers on this grave. When they were gone that day the immense crowd was in attendance for two minutes and every automobile motor was stopped. We saw an article in London and was unable to go to see the London tower.

"On the day the lord mayor of London was elected we went to the parade. Besides the nobility, foot soldiers and cavalry were in the parade. All were in attractive dress and the houses were green when we were there and the leaves on trees had turned to beautiful shades. In London there are no skyscrapers or big steel bridges. "From South Hampton we took the Tanganyika steamer for the rest of the journey. I found a greeting from the Cleveland people at the could be I learned that these people had rubbed red clay into their hair to make it this color.

"After two days I have been visiting native schools which are most interesting. The school work is a means to teaching the natives, the gospel. The natives are taught to read and write.

"My address is Shinyanya, Tanganyika Territory, East Africa, in care of W. J. Maynard. Letters from home folks and other friends mean much to me in the mission field so I will be glad to hear from all.

Colors Affect Weather. Hartington Herald: An address delivered recently in Wayne by some expert on the psychology of color is wonderfully suggestive. According to this speaker, there is a vital relation between colors and the nervous system. Colors affect and do so through the senses and the reaction of the nervous system to color has a corresponding effect upon the physical health so that it becomes literally true that an individual will be sick or well according to the color scheme by which he is surrounded.

The Home Paper. York Republican: It was reported in the press a few days ago that there is one newspaper that comes to President Coolidge's desk that has no irrelevant shears laid upon it before it reaches its destination. It
