Consider Plans For Pool Here

Wayne Citizens Will Probably Have Resort for Swimming Built This Summer.

Site Is Discussed

Will Likely Be Nucleus of Amusement Park to Be Promoted in or Near City.

That Wayne will have a municipal swimming pool this year is reasonably certain, and the site has been selected to satisfy local requirements, the site for a pool and the cost of the enterprise are being considered by the Kiwanis club, individuals will probably organize a company to promote the plan.

Representatives of a swimming pool construction company were here Monday, Feb. 15, to discuss the plan for a pool large enough to fill demands of the city size of Wayne and is to be built on a site near the center of the city. Such a pool is so made that it can be used for a skating pond in the winter. The cost does not include the building of a structure to be located. The company here Monday, stated that the construction work could be completed entirely in five weeks.

Wayne citizens have not definitely decided the best location for a pool which would cost about $100,000. It should be out of the city limits and a piece of ground which could later be converted into a park. Some of the suggestions for the site of such a pool is so made that it can be used for a skating pond in the winter. The cost does not include the building of a structure to be located. First Annual Pie Day of Wayne City Schools Scores Big Success Saturday

In Field of Athletics—Student Council Decides to Issue Certificates—Other News

Annual Pie Day

The annual pie sale held at Fred Blair's last Saturday, featured by a pie-eating contest and an auction brought gross receipts of $750. The sale began to "come in" about 11 o'clock and continued to come till late in the afternoon. Public demand was great, and the pie-eating contest, accordingly, many were turned away without pie.

The pie eating contest was held at four o'clock a Judge crowd gathering to see the "sights." Four boys participated—each being given one half of a pie. The hands of the participants were tied behind them and the pie placed before them and the word "go" they started in. As John Johnson finished first, he was declared winner.

A pie auction, took place after the pie-eating contest. Clyde Oman officiated as auctioneer. Bidding started rather slowly but finished up differently as the last pie passed the dollar mark. The twelve extra-fine pies sold for a total of $750, an average of 60 cents apiece. Allowing for expenses which were about $500, net receipts were $250. On these grounds the pie sale has been declared a success though there are always possibilities. In this case it was no exception. The school is to have a pie for each student; most was for money and hence a great deal of money was raised. When established, however, and we look forward to a bigger, better pie sale in 1927.

Athletics

Wayne high basketball teams suffered two defeats last Friday night. The boys' first team lost to Randolph 15 to 5. The girls' team lost to Carroll, 34 to 19. The boys played a hard, clean game but were outplayed by the Randolph squad. The Randolph team is one of the strongest in the state. The girls were handicapped at Carroll by the slippery dance floor on which the game was played. They held the lead throughout the game. The Wayne girls came back strong in the second half and held the opponents to a tie score. Had they played as well the first half, the score would have been more nearly even.

Boys' Second Team Wins

The Wayne high boys' second team, although at a disadvantage because of a slippery dance floor, defeated the Carroll second team 11 to 10, last Friday night. The boys played a lively game and displayed excellent team work.

The Wisner high school teams will meet the Wayne teams Friday, February 19, at the college gymnasium.

Student Council Action

That certificates should be given with letters, is the opinion of the Wayne high school student council. Letters soon become worn and faded and there remains only a memory of the letter. A certificate would be a permanent record of the student's achievement. It has been suggested that a duplicate certificate be kept on file at the high school for reference in case of disputes concerning the previous award of letters.

The new writing class has secured copies of the "No. 15" as the "Record" high school papers of Norfolk and Oakland. The use of the pen and ink is being given more prominence in the school course.

An error occurred in the write-up of the Student Council notes which appeared in last week's columns. The statement read, "Bills were allowed to the amount of $622.30." It should have read, "Bills were allowed to the amount of $282.92."

Office Notes

Dean Charles Berdyce of the University of Nebraska has been selected as a speaker for the commencement exercises. Dean Berdyce is the head of the department of educational measurement and research. He is one of the best speakers available for commencement programs.

Fire Drill

Fire drill was conducted last Thursday morning. The building was emptied in forty-five seconds. Mysteriously marching and duck work precision featured the drill.

Assembly Notes

Dorothy Davis, Grant, was selected winner of the Lincoln essay contest held in Wayne high school. She was awarded the medal, a relief from the bus fare to Lincoln last Friday morning. The contest is a yearly event. It is carried on under the auspices of the Springfield Water Control Board. The essay contest was won by Mrs. E. S. Berry, Mrs. S. A. Lutgen and Mrs. E. E. Galt.

At a meeting of the old members of the "W" club, Cyrus Jones was elected president. Plans were discussed for the coming season. The members of the new writing class are taking turns serving as editors-in-chief of the newspaper column. Genevieve Wright is editor-in-chief.

This week. Next week Alice Berry and Armand Hixcox will have charge of the column.

Debate Notes

The debating team of the Wayne high school, utilizing all available time in preparation for the coming debate.

Every Tuesday and Thursday evening from one to two hours, are given to study at the high school, public library or normal library. Besides this, a large number of the debaters, and the fifth period to team work. The team is thus rounding out the newly by its coming debates.

The first debate is Wayne vs. Ponca scheduled for the week of Feb. 15 at Wayne. Our team will have the negative side of the question: "Resolved that the Cabinet Members should have the right to the floor of Congress."

The speakers rank in the following order: Genevieve Wright, Warren Townsend and Maurice Wright. The debate is an excellent activity in the curriculum of our school. It is also a competitive activity and therefore all the advantages as well as the disadvantages are given publicity before the contests take place.

Debating is based upon logical reasoning power and good judgment, but an experience has shown, decisions are often obtained from the fluency of the speakers. However, the Wayne team is well equipped with all requisites for argumentation, and is solidly backed by its school. It is confidently expected that Wayne high school will make a good record this season.

A Bohemian School

Miss Vianik of the high school, submitted interesting material concerning the schools of Bohemia. The pupils of Bohemia call their teacher "master." The little pupils are first taught the alphabet and their numbers in the Bohemian language. The stories they begin to read are mostly fairy tales written in the Bohemian language. Then they begin to study about the same things that an American school teaches. The master is very strict and often boxes the children's ears if anything does not please him. Instead of little red balloons sit on high stools at a table. These chairs resemble those in a cafe. "In the Bohemian language," Miss Vianik said, "there are many words which cannot be explained adequately in the American language."

Take for instance the word "Krosnig" used in describing a ring. It is not merely "grand" as that does not adequately explain it.

Then, too, the master's word is law. If the master said that cold water was best for washing the face in the morning in order not to catch a cold the pupils would do just as the master had said. Miss Vianik thinks it would be nice to teach pupils of her own ancestry. Schools of other countries should be given the same contrast is often very interesting.

The art classes in the grades have been making valentine boxes. Some are round, some square and some oblong, but all the children were excited about them.

Laboratory Notes

The physics class will resume its work in the laboratory soon. The study of expansion of metals, heat of fusion, thermometry, testing and the effect of pressure on the boiling point will be taken up.

The botany class is continuing the study of yeast, mold, and algae. B. Captivity action in the sea is being ing taken up by the agriculture classes.

The Declaratory Contest

The pupils entering the declaratory contest have sent for pieces this week and hope to start practicing Monday. There are twenty-nine entering the contest: nine dramatic, one oratorical and eighteen humorous. Miss Anderson, Mrs. Fisher and Mrs. Pollard will coach the pupils. The contest will be held either March 10 or 15. The definite time has not yet been determined.

Music and Art News

Miss Douina informs us that try-outs for the operetta are being given to determine who will be the leading characters. No definite selection has been made but probably "Miss Cherry Blossom" will be chosen.

The French class is using "Le Petit Journal" in addition to the work in its book, "Le Petit Journal" or "The Little Newspaper" is printed in Garden City, N. Y. It is especially arranged for students in French.

Junior Notes

The Junior class is looking forward to the junior-senior banquet which will be given in the spring. The success of the year will warrants this anticipation.

English VI classes have been studying sentence length. The average sentence length should be six words. Prominent writers such as J. G. Quinn, are found to average thirty words to the sentence. Through counting words and estimating average sentence lengths, the class is securing knowledge of correct sentence length.

The typing class has been having speed tests this week.

Sophomore Notes

English IV class is studying "The Song of Hugh Glass" by John G. Neihardt. Special emphasis is placed on the figurative language and moral development.

The ancient history class is studying the Renaissance period.

Grade Notes

The first grade had a valentine box and party Friday.

Absences in the first grade this week were Betty Strahn, Betty and Susan Ellis.

Mr. and Mrs. Rhodes and Mrs. Ralph Crockett were visitors this week.

Third Grade

Fifth Grade

While giving out valentines the fifth grade decided to call the room the city of Omaha. Each row was a certain street and the valentines had to be addressed correctly. Those not correctly addressed went to the dead letter department. This was to give the pupil experience in addressing letters.

BURBANK'S OPINION.

While Editor Stone of the Harrison Herald expresses belief in immortality, refreshing relief to the opinion voiced by Luther Burbank, plant wizard, he defends the latter in saying what he thinks is a free country.

While every one has a right to express his opinion, we believe he does him and his society best by trying to say down a conviction cherished for ages by most people. Personally, it is unwise when no person is being harmed by such an opinion, and when doubt of extinction is just as apparent to the most skeptical as doubt of immortality. Hence, one should not derive a source of comfort without filling the void with something just as good or better.

Some people want to believe in immortality, and they want proof to sustain their deep-seated faith. Their opinions that they have in mind seem to be unshakable, and seem, seemingly unsupported, through thousands of miles of ether may not prove true, but it is a fact that the test of time, life, and identity after the material body has passed into nothingness is a reasonable operation.

Immortality is the thing we want most. It is more important than politics or the decrees of fashion. Anything that supports belief and gives hope, whether it be the scriptures, psychic phenomena or wonders wrought by magic should be encouraged. We think we know we are alive. We have run the gamut of measles, mumps, chicken pox, and other ailments, and do not grow up, and we think we are grown up. We work and think and expand, (or think we do), and finally we are told that we are a fair share of worldly goods and do something to develop Christian graces and advance civilization. While the belief that everything does not perish with the earthly tenement, that it is not to survive and continue, there is a certain amount of starting, and that it is no longer living life on and on to that have finally we are told that we are coming along without possibility of part and abruptly puts his foot on belief in immortality, people are astonished and are often prompted to employ vigorous defense.

It was the undoubted right of Mr. Burbank to express an unhappy opinion, and the conflict with the current desire of the ages, but we wish he had kept it to himself. Investigation or analysis might have led him to a more optimistic conclusion. If he wrought in changing and improving plant life, might we have had a look at his thinking for a better life of continuity instead of a lacking lack of visible proof as placing finally on life at the grave.

It is a period of self-denial and it might be a wholesome experience if it were observed somewhat throughout the year.

If success were measured merely by accumulation of dollars and cents, some of us would be woefully lacking. Success must be measured in considerable degree by what one contributes in effort and influence as well money to making people more useful and more content.

EDITORIALS.
 National and state press associations paid for the development of the past year to the development of original editorial pages among county weeklies, and they have done so admirably in this regard. It is believed a country editor ought to take enough time to write his own editorials, and not depend himself on abstracts of current interest. It is believed that while his opinions may not always be as good or as well stated as those of the English, they are more acceptable than the colorless variety purchased from a syndicate. It is contended that the reader needs to know what their editor thinks. They want his opinion even if it is a feeble one, and they don't want to be misled by the pen of literary generalities, appearing somewhere in particular, made up of a number of words, and by some unknown, indifferent individual, who runs more to self-promotion than to real ability. It is believed that the editor should write his own editorials, and not depend on sections to form and express their own opinions, making up editorial pages from their own "articles" and observations.

sympathetic, helpful state of mind is more to be desired than great material wealth.

The first of the week the national house-passed a public buildings bill appropriation of $165,000,000. Of that amount, a very small appropriation will be required to satisfy the building needs of Wayne.

As another political campaign approaches, old-time politicians are reviewing what they know about freer and other dead questions and getting ready to tackle new party issues when they appear on the surface.

A review of the coal strike, just settled, fails to reveal any advantage gained by the strikers. On the contrary, the loss was great on both sides, due to the obstinacy of rival leaders. Sensible arbitration would have saved such money and prevented much suffering.

Fred Mann, nationally known department store owner of Devils Lake, N. D., said in a speech recently that "steady, consistent advertising, maintenance of your own and your customer's credit, service to the customer, a neat and clean store and fair prices mean success for any retailer."

Former Governor McKelvie points out that farmers would resent government ownership and control of their land and earning possibilities. What farmers want is an organization to express their wishes, insist on their rights and safeguard surplus production. They don't want an organization to think for them. They don't want to take the initiative and preserve their independence.

The Aurora Republican quotes some highbrows in saying that diminished use of the jaws is making men's faces more handsome. Their words are not surprising, for those of women, and the latter have done their full share of talking. In this connection, it may be of interest to know that the average of 250 people, a chorus of intelligent youth, by actual count, chewing gum. Men and women were about equally divided.

Young people who attend the state university are expected to study and to be serious. The purpose of the institution, there is no doubt, is to come for the lazier. Many who spend their "social" gayer days in making grades are invited to leave. One, Wayne young man, who has been working like a Trojan, and has been in the class for 96 and 97 last week in contrast with some who, wasting time, were dancing in line close to the danger point of dismissal, is exacting help to prepare for high scores, but it is better for health than to live frivolously, and the effort brings the satisfaction of a diploma. The young man, who works early and late and assimilates the university and inspires confidence in the future of our civilization, which depends on developing and coming generations.

The Fairbury News reports that if its over fifty-four years old and that its publisher, Lew Shelley, has been in continuous charge for thirty-four years. This distinctly progressive newspaper enterprise has gathered strength with its advancing years, and its worthy editor shows the progressive spirit and courage of youth, and is supported by the sound judgment of experienced veterans. Editor Shelley has kept pace with the times. His news-pen has equipped itself with that would have answered all the requirements of a metropolitan daily not many years ago, and his news and editorial and advertising columns do full justice to town and country surrounding territory. The Fairbury News reflects a combination of attributes and accomplishments that are rare in New York City. Editor Shelley has solved the often perplexing help problem by weaving into his newspaper development the strength of two alert and ambitious sons. Thus, flanked and reassured, the editor has multiplied reasons to be confident as he looks back in his forward course.

Frequently the crushing experience of a man who is going to a city without assurance of support comes to light. A young lady, aged 21, left her home in Portland, Ore., to establish her home in New York City. Her money was soon gone, and her dream of becoming a literary star in the cold, unfriendly atmosphere of Manhattan was dashed. To live, she forced checks, and in due time she was arrested. Her dream had betrayed weak judgment in daring to make a venture in leaving her home. Her talent among strangers in a hard-boiled New York City, trained at home and abroad to become an opera singer, for which she had natural gift, goes to New York City in triumph, amidst flaming press announcements, to make her debut and to take her place as a singer for the Metropolitan company. The over-enthusiasm and little thinking of youth, abetted by bold fancy, and an unhappy combination of circumstances, led to the result. The story is not unaccountable. The lady, a finished product of the west, and fortified by a reputation already established, is assured of success in advertising. It should be noted in spaces where they are known and appreciated, and not

SELF-APPRAISAL.

When one takes himself off to the basement or garret to dissect and appraise his own qualities with reasonable fairness, he undertakes a big, though wholesome task. Doubtless he finds some desirable attributes that no one else knows about or even suspects. He may find that his nervous system is so arranged that it does not manifest the depth and warmth of feeling that really exists. His sympathies may be so acute that effort, at concentration, causes the false appearance of cold indifference. On the other hand he may find he is demonstrating more than he feels. He may not discover one little heart-beat to support a big show that is regularly staged on the surface. He has grown so accustomed to grandstanding that he has neglected to cultivate inner consciousness that develops sincerity and prompts one to speak and act consistently. Self-appraisal should lead one to strengthen weak spots and modify glaring faults. Few of us are well proportioned or evenly balanced, and self-analysis and self-administration would make one better understood and put him in better tune with society.

Right Living.
 (Dr. A. L. Bixby.)
 "For forms of faith let graces zealous fight,
 He shall take the wrong whose life is in the right."
 — Pope.

The future is possible, not one just what is, what one merely may suppose. This will be thus or that will come about.

In the hereafter, when the light goes out. The world abounds in prophets—and as lively now as in the vanished years. Men, loaded down with theological ideas, who wax with age dogmatic, more and more.

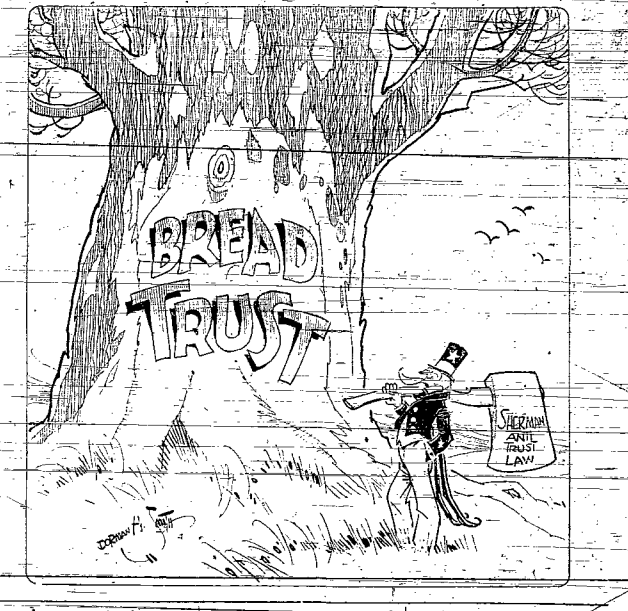

Knowing what was, and is, and is to be, each with the other, failing to agree. These theories my erudition slump, Confuse my thoughts and keep me on the jump. Since all these saints find scripture to be vain, Whatsoever takes possession of the brain. I am referred to this or that event, Read in the good Old Testament. To prove this claim, to verify this thought, Concerning sober sense or tommyrot, I've been "indocrinated," if you please, With such a vast array of foot notes, that I am sick of the discordant tune, From the infection shrouly impute, I think the Lord is good to those who strive To make themselves to human needs "divine."

Who in their attitude toward the state, And all it implies, let conscience demand, Who stands for duty and for nothing less than decent conduct, which means righteousness. Christ taught no creed—the message that he brought. We think—love one another was the thought that prevailed. And when that thought prevailed, The kingdom will be with us. All else fails.

Philosophy of Life.
 Geneva Signal: The other day a man in New York wrote me this inquiry: What is your philosophy of life? Now that stumped us. It sounds important but we don't understand it. Maybe he has something to do with the ditch digger in the story. He said he dug ditches to get money to get food, got to get money to get food to get strength to dig ditches, and so on until you are out of breath. Perhaps we were thinking of going to a city without assurance of support comes to light. A young lady, aged 21, left her home in Portland, Ore., to establish her home in New York City. Her money was soon gone, and her dream of becoming a literary star in the cold, unfriendly atmosphere of Manhattan was dashed. To live, she forced checks, and in due time she was arrested. Behind the Curtain. Lincoln Journal: Sir William Tyrrell, Sir George's personal representative at Washington, spoke to Colonel House of "Sir Edward Grey's desire to bring about a cessation of armaments, for he thought our present civilization would eventually be destroyed upon that rock."

We have been taught to think that this idea was the exclusive property of misled pacifists or weak-minded idealists.

Sir Edward Grey, the British secretary of foreign affairs, a practical politician and statesman, Tyrrell added, according to Colonel House, that "Sir Edward thought, too, that an armament trust was forcing all governments not only to talk of an international armament trust working up war scares to make business for itself has been regarded, commonly, as the work of a mad, radical imagination, a thing to laugh off."

Sir Edward Grey was not a mad or imaginative, but a very hard boiled person. Colonel House's story has President Wilson taking Sir Edward's view and eliminating the private armament interest in connection with his plan for peace insurance in the western hemisphere.

Sir William Tyrrell, Colonel House and President Wilson talked of the necessity of curbing armaments and the effect of the curbing of the world in our politics today.

Sir William was just as earnest in his opinion regarding this as either the president or I. The president said, it is the greatest fight we all have on today—and every good citizen should insist.

Thus the practical Texan, the seasoned Britisher and the occupant of the white house talked about the money power like a trio of old-time populists.

What a pity we must wait till people are dead and their biographies written before we can know their real plans and opinions.

Crystal Attraction February 22 and 23

"If you see 'A Thief in Paradise' at the Crystal theatre next Monday and Tuesday, you will wonder no longer how the success of the stage of Ronald Colman's spectacular film 'A Thief in Paradise' is being made in only a few minutes during the night. It requires several days to film because of the extreme difficulties of photographing and shooting at a depth of twenty feet on the ocean's bottom was necessary. This finally was achieved with a powerful mirror which reflected the sun down through the briny depths. Colman and Tourne spent a total of twenty-five hours under the water in the minute periods before the action was completed.

The English star now is preparing to challenge Anette Kellerman to a diving contest. The picture, a Goldwyn-Pittman production, is adapted from Thomas Marlowe's classic 'South Sea' adventure, 'The Worldlings,' for first National release.

Get Us Right.

The Nebraska Farmer: Because we have not delivered ourselves, body and breeches, to the theory of lifting the farmer into a realm of greater prosperity by legislative fiat, we would not have any one believe that we are opposed to any practical plan of legislation or organization that seems sound. Surely, no one could be more immediately benefited by an improved agricultural condition than we. But we repeat to continue in business for quite some time and we regard it incumbent upon us to advise the farmer in the present—Nor is this saying that an honest effort has not been made. We would have the government do everything it possibly can, particularly in maintaining a fair equality of opportunity among all classes. To that end, our service is pledged, and we will not be found quarreling with any measure which the incentive that plague agriculture may be removed and kept out.

Complain of High Rate.
Hartington, Neb., Feb. 13.—Wide publicity of the disaffection of local residents including Hartington, with the high rates charged for electricity by the Tri-State Utilities company, has resulted in an offer from two local owners of power to sell their plants, equipment and distributing system here and to provide rates considerably lower than those charged now. Representative of the Deisel Engine company of Lincoln and the Fairbanks-Morse company, north of Wayne, and attended asked for a franchise offering to erect an electric plant, equip it with modern machinery, and build a distributing system and furnish electric power and light for approximately one-fourth less than the present rate charges by the Tri-State Utilities company.

Representative Gordon, of the Tri-State Utilities company, acknowledged that the company paid only 2.67 cents kilowatt to the Minnesota Electric Distributing company, which concern is owned by the same financial interest. According to President Henley's statement to the state railway commission that the average rate received from the Hartington distributing system was only 16 cents compared with other rates, this shows too wide a spread, in the opinion of those who have investigated the matter.

Advices from Lincoln indicate that the Tri-State company has been granted permission to issue $65,500 worth of bonds to raise funds to pay the W. B. Foshay company, which owns both the Tri-State and the Minnesota Electric Distributing company.

Coleridge Church Destroyed By Fire

Coleridge, Neb., Feb. 12.—Fire of an undetermined origin broke out in the First Methodist church building here Friday morning about 1 o'clock and burned the structure to the ground with a total loss estimated to be about $5,000.

On account of the headway gained by the flames before the fire was discovered, the fire department was unable to save any portion of the building or its contents in spite of a gallant effort. Two streams of water and chemicals were used, but were unable to stop the flames from spreading was futile. The firefighters made several attempts to enter the basement, but on account of intense heat were unable to pass through the door.

The church is one of the old landmarks of Coleridge, having been erected during the early days of the town.

Many residents in the town were aroused from their slumbers and left their homes to witness the fire. Only smouldering remains served of the structure that has remained the Methodists of this community for many years.

The Rev. Mr. Essert is the pastor. While nothing definite has taken place, it is believed that the congregation will erect a new building.

A Driver With a Heart
(Hartington Herald).

"As the jury's verdict was announced and his friends sought to congratulate him, Adkins sank to his knees on the floor, raising his clasped hands as though in prayer and muttering in a choked voice, "Thank God, thank God."

"He was crying like a school boy when his companions assisted him to his feet again.

"Oh, God, I am sorry for his poor parents and that dear little girl," he said.

The above quoted paragraphs are not taken from a popular moving picture or a novel, but from a reporter's graphic story of an accident of the Omaha Bee. It is refreshing in an age when hard boiled automobile drivers are the rule and we read almost every day in the newspapers of hardened and calloused individuals who knock down their victims "in the street and then stand away without waiting to ascertain the extent of their injuries. This was a particularly sad story which the reporter relates in his simplest, straightforward way. A young man was crossing a crowded street in Omaha with his fiancée and two other ladies when an automobile driven by an acquaintance of the young man hit him and inflicted injuries from which he died in a short time. As it developed at the inquest, the driver of the car was blameless, as speed, but the most impressive thing about the whole pathetic incident was the genuine and ever-behavior of the driver. He was not as much concerned about the verdict of the jury as he was grief-stricken over the fact that he had been the unintentional cause of the death of his friend and the young woman's price reductions, have aroused the most interest ever displayed in any of the twenty-one annual shows held in Omaha.

Among the several hundred models to be displayed are several entirely new faces—especially around the $1,000 class. Refinements in motor design and accessories are first to be noticed, being found in greatly increased numbers upon everything from the new five to the highest priced automobile.

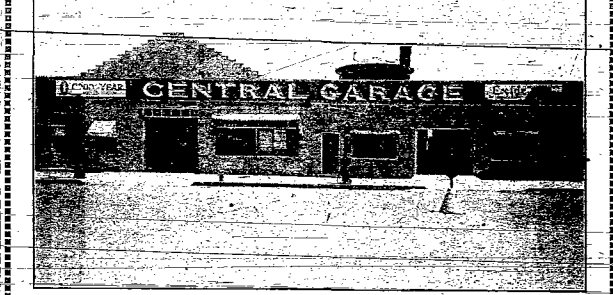

From the number of advance hotel reservations, prospective buyers from four or five states will attend the hundreds where they can see all the new models under one roof.

James Rennick Early Settler

Came with Cousin to Farm South-west of Wayne from Iowa in Fall of 1883.

James Rennick of Wayne, pioneer who came to this county in 1883, lived in bachelorhood with his cousin for several months in a shanty southeast of Wayne. His observation is that if one wants to be a poor, ragged man without a coat on his back or shoes on his feet and want to grow old before his time, he should remain a bachelor. If one wants to live happily and respectably, says Mr. Rennick, he should marry and have his own home and family.

Mr. Rennick and his cousin came from Muscatine county, Iowa, in September of 1883. They had bought land just over the line in Stanton county in July of that year and the land was broken for them. They ran a quarter section southwest of Wayne and farmed this land which was broken. From Iowa they had brought two sets of household implements and what household goods bachelors need, in an immigrant cart to Pilger.

No improvement had been made on the land which the men rented. The house was a typical bachelors' shanty. A single board all enclosed, in September of 1883. as well adapted to it as land that has been under cultivation longer. One advantage of the early days, Mr. Rennick says is the fact that there were no collisions of automobiles. People seldom met others on the highway and if they did their horses had to be going slowly over such roads. The lack of automobile accidents may account for the fact that Mr. P. Dickens and his wife were few newspapers and seldom did one come to his home.

Dear friends, Dickens and his wife were few newspapers and seldom did one come to his home. They were few newspapers and seldom did one come to his home.

Test Your Seed Corn

THE Iowa College of Agriculture says: "Each report we receive piles up more evidence as to the seriousness of the seed corn situation in Iowa." Reports from other corn belt states are much the same. But, freeze or no freeze, it is always good policy to test seed corn. Far better to test before planting than to test it later at heavy cost in the corn field.

Owing to the seriousness of the situation and the need of some reliable testing method, the Harvester Company has decided to make up a quantity of good, inexpensive but practical seed-corn germinating boxes. As our welfare is closely linked up with that of the farmer, and as we prosper only as the farmer prospers, we are desirous of lending such aid as we can in the emergency, and will furnish these seed testing boxes at the lowest figure at which they can be manufactured in quantities and without a cent of profit to us.

When so much depends on the germinating qualities of the seed, and the testing is so easy, you can't afford to gamble with your crop. Every corn-growing farmer should have three or four of these test boxes. They will be furnished at 50 cents each at most points in the corn belt, with a slight additional charge in some localities on account of transportation expense. Take advantage of this opportunity.

From Ponca Journal, March 26, 1925: At the special term of the district court held in Cedar county last week, the case of the county seat removal came up and the decision was in favor of the removal to Huntington, which removal is ordered to take place on April 1. It is understood that H. B. Martin was elected secretary of the Wayne county agricultural society, has refused to serve, in which case the office will fall back upon J. W. Radford, who for the two years past has given best satisfaction in that position. The executive committee of the district court yesterday afternoon met and Monday paid Mr. O'Connor $242, being principal and interest on land. A year ago the society bought of Mr. O'Connor 40 acres for fair ground for $280, which is now half paid for. Pretty good showing for society four years old. Mr. Radford digging a well at this house on Monday, and he found the ground frozen five feet deep. This is the greatest depth of frost ever heard of in this part of the country and shows that the cold weather of last winter was no joke in its job of freezing things up.
