Miss Laura Lyons Writes From West

Miss Laura Lyons who is spending the winter in Long Beach, Calif., writes March 4 as follows:
 "Four of the hottest days ever experienced were in the latter part of February here. Thousands of people flocked to the beach under big umbrellas and many were in the surf trying to keep cool. One day a flight of twenty degrees in four hours was noticed. Some danger was caused by a high tide on Feb. 13. Some property was washed away, and much more would have been destroyed if heaps of sand bags had not been placed along the edge of the walks.
 "The Wayne county picnic is to be held in Bixby park here we understand this winter.
 "A clipping from the Press-Tribune, referring to the national roping tournament here would have been of interest to Wayne people for it stated that Dr. W. C. Wightman was first and Bert Brown was second in the third class. This is a good record.
 "We see a few of the Wayne people who live here occasionally and all are well. Mr. and Mrs. John Elison and the latter's brother, Joe Swanson, have moved to Arcadia, Calif.
 "In memory of her husband, Mrs. M. Swartz gave a $10,000 set of the famous sixteen-tone tubular chimes to the First Methodist church. This is the third set to be installed west of the Rockies. They will be connected up with the $35,000 pipe organ. The chimes will be played all month each day and on Wednesday evenings, holidays and Sundays.
 "We have been especially interested in the historical articles being run in the Wayne Herald.
 "I never have told you of the Veterans' Union which meets each Monday night. At the meeting this week the first selection J. W. Peterson sang was "A Thousand Years

Tells of Early Wayne History

Frank M. Northrop of Portland, Ore., writes Pioneer Life in LaPorte and Wayne.

Frank M. Northrop, Wayne pioneer who is now living in Portland, Ore., has been glad to write you a number of letters that will be interesting to Herald readers. His many friends will be glad to hear from him and also glad to know that he will write other articles for Herald readers. His letter dated Feb. 24 is as follows: I shall begin to write you the first time to the date of the early history of Wayne county, particularly of the city of Wayne. At the time I left home (1858) I could say that I had seen every house erected on the town site during some period of its construction. I first came to Wayne county about July 1, 1841, from Sioux City, Iowa. I had spent the previous winter, leaving LaPorte, the residence on the east, by stage from Emmons, the nearest railroad point. I arrived a day or two before the building of a term of court, and helped in a law suit; the names of the parties I do not now recall. The term of court lasted one month, and was held once a year. It was several years until there was more than one term a year. John B. Barnes was judge; J. H. Smith, clerk; and A. S. Miner, sheriff. The only lawyers in the county were James Britton and D. C. Patterson.

LaPorte was a very small place, not more than a dozen or eight houses. The residents were: John F. Bressler, county treasurer; Edna Hunter, county clerk; C. H. Hunter, county judge; J. A. Landry, justice of the peace; Sheriff and Dr. R. Crawford, R. F. Feather, Ed. Feather, James Britton, Tom Hardenburg, Charles Johnson, J. A. Landry, Luther Dearborn, Wm. Ager, Mr. Maxwell, F. P. Martin, Eugene Jones, D. C. Patterson, and two or three semi-transients. The business consisted of the Logan Valley Bank, just started by Bressler & Patterson, who were also in the real estate business; and R. & Feather, real estate; Crawford & Brown, doctors; Britton, Hardenburg and Johnson, a general store; Luther Dearborn drug store; Mr. Maxwell hardware store; and Hunter & Childs, a newspaper. The LaPorte Tribune. The present Wayne Herald is the legal descendant of that paper.

"During the summer F. M. Sken arrived, driving from some point in Iowa, and later Mr. Flickinger came and bought out Feather's interest in the real estate business and the firm became and was for a number of years Crawford & Flickinger. "I had no need of an office even had there been one obtainable, so I made my annual headquarters around the court house and in company with R. F. Feather and I. N. Flickinger, (after he came) slept in what was called the grand jury room in the court house. I had brought with me a blank set of abstract books and immediately set to work making an abstract of the records of Wayne. At the time I began there were but two and a half volumes of records and now there is a volume of mortgage records. The reason for the paucity of mortgage records was that loans on real estate had been practically impossible to obtain until when they could be made the rate of interest was ten percent and a considerable bonus to the broker. The rate on chattel loans was two percent a month, and even higher.

A few days after my arrival in LaPorte I started for Emmons, Iowa, and was looking for a location for a hardware store, having in view the new town to be started where the railroad would be. And we decided to the town site of what is now the city of Wayne, crossing the Logan on a "flat" stretch. Here was the place to locate a farm. There was no visible evidence of a prospective town except two lath sticks in the ground, the high cross covering the stake marking the town plat. We drove a little farther to the place at which we found Mr. Tracy putting up some boards to make a rude stable on what is now a lot for a number of years the Ran Frazer firm. On our way over from LaPorte we passed through Chaffee with a load of lumber and on our way back from our talk with Mr. Tracy, we found him (Chaffee) unloading the lumber on the town site, the exact spot being on the southeast corner of the block on which the high school building now stands. The lumber was for a house built by Mr. Maxwell which I have mentioned. Two or three years later this block was acquired by the school board and the house was moved across the street, directly east, where it was standing to the east of the town site.

"Mr. Morris returned to Sioux City and bought a lot for $75. On this the firm of Morris and Steel built the first hardware store in Wayne. The lot is now occupied by the store owned by Harry Crawford. Many years ago Morris and Steel sold the property to Chase and Newby. The first Morris and Steel store was a very small building, I think not larger than 10 by 14 or such a matter, as the lumber was hauled from either Emmons or Wakefield, late in the fall of that year (1881). The winter of 1881-82 was very mild and work went on all winter at Wayne. The two most substantial buildings completed were the bank building by Brown brothers for their bank on the corner where the First National now is, and the store building just across the street corner by Merriman, always called 'Capt.'

"During the winter of 1881-82 a number of buildings were moved from LaPorte to Wayne. James Britton moved his store building to the lot where the State Bank of Wakefield is now one of the old story, wooden building. Some three or four years afterwards Britton built the brick-veneered building now owned by the bank. Dr. Crawford moved his house, and I think there were some others. Bressler & Patterson had a building for their bank about the middle of the block north of the present bank, and a few months later bought the Brown brothers bank building, and moved to the present site. A year or two later they converted it to the First National bank. Robert Taylor built a two-story frame building on the same lot as the present Citizens National bank and started a bank (Citizens) which he later sold to Mr. Patterson, a brother of Mr. Patterson, and Mr. Gamble. In a few months they sold to A. L. Tucker.

"I moved my 'impediments' (not much of a load), from LaPorte to Wayne in February, 1882, and occupied the building in the rear of Browns' bank (about ten feet square) both as an office and sleeping room. For a time I. N. Flickinger was with me for the reason that he could get no other place to sleep. "The foregoing seems to be about all I can think of that would be of possible interest down to the beginning of 1882. I will later write of some things occurring later that may be of general interest and not perhaps known to many."

Mrs. G. J. Hess and Miss Beryl McClure went to Kearney, Neb., Friday to visit Mrs. Hugh Drake, formerly Miss Ronnie Hess. Miss McClure returned Sunday and Mrs. Hess will spend this week in Kearney with her daughter.

Film Work Doesn't Interrupt Studies

Robert Fraser, featured with Anna Q. Nilsson and Edward Barrymore in the film romance of the California gold rush of 1849, "The Splendid Road," showing at the Century theater, March 12 and 13, is a serious student of electro-chemistry, higher mathematics and physics and spends his spare time in a modern scientific laboratory which he has outfitted in his Hollywood quarters.

Sill Entitled to Respect.
Tim Sedgwick: Notwithstanding the fact that women have been accorded equal civil rights with men, there are those old-fashioned fossils who cannot get rid of the idea that they are still entitled to respect. The tenderest sentiment has not been extended, neither has the charitable sentiment of protection for the weaker women, as a whole, whose respect we ought to have for the finer natures. But here comes the everlasting, poisonous, stinking cigarette and buds up in the dining room filled with ladies, or even at the table where ladies are trying to eat. Of course he has the nerve to ask the lady who sits at his side, if she objects, which of course she knows she does, and she is almost compelled by the situation to lie about it, or at least to give her consent. Then the bog party unwelcome, nauseating cigarette smoke in her face, while she tries to eat her pastry and pretend she is not offended.

Two Men Burned.
Bloomfield, N. J., Wayne, James Britton moved his store building to the lot where the State Bank of Wakefield is now one of the old story, wooden building. Some three or four years afterwards Britton built the brick-veneered building now owned by the bank. Dr. Crawford moved his house, and I think there were some others. Bressler & Patterson had a building for their bank about the middle of the block north of the present bank, and a few months later bought the Brown brothers bank building, and moved to the present site. A year or two later they converted it to the First National bank. Robert Taylor built a two-story frame building on the same lot as the present Citizens National bank and started a bank (Citizens) which he later sold to Mr. Patterson, a brother of Mr. Patterson, and Mr. Gamble. In a few months they sold to A. L. Tucker.

Eugene Thayer Finale (pedal etude on "America")

Charles Leech Gulick was born in Clinton, a hamlet in the hills of northern New Jersey, and at an early age was interested in the organ. He attained the enviable position of organist in the "Old Dutch Church of Brooklyn, N. Y.," compelled by increasing concert work to relinquish his church duties. Gulick has played in all parts of the country to capacity audiences and has been greeted by ovations known only to operatic cities and not to country folk. In the organ—because of the extent of his appearances and his great popularity Gulick has been fittingly termed "America's Concert Organist." His recital in Wayne, Friday, March 12, will be undoubtedly the musical event of the season.

Admission, 25c and 50c

of twenty-five cents will be made. Every-one is invited to come and enjoy a social time. m412

For Public Welfare.
The newspaper people of Nebraska held their annual business session in Hastings last week and again took stock of their welfare and progress. They found that the business of making newspapers has advanced even during the year, due to the fact that there is a steady advance in the professional practices and business methods of the newspaper makers. The view is gaining ground that the newspaper is not merely the personal property of the publisher; it is the possession of the community. The publisher is only living up to the requirements of his profession, when he conveys his business to be that of disseminating information and opinion; that will be a true contribution to the public welfare. Some Nebraska newspaper people—not a few of them—have gained this viewpoint and are making success of their undertakings. When these editors and publishers meet in conference they find much to interest them in getting each other's viewpoints and putting by each other's successes and mistakes. With such a conception of newspaper work, the business of editing a newspaper is of great stature, as it does in importance; the editor or publisher himself becomes a better public servant and a more valuable member of his profession.

From Ponca Journal May 7, 1885:

On Saturday a scrimmage took place over the creek between Christian Gaesthcke and Ed. Lyon, and resulted in the arrest of Gaesthcke and his arraignment before a criminal justice.

The trial of the case was adjourned until next Saturday. As to which of them is most to blame for the row is a question which the evidence will bring out.

One rumor is that Gaesthcke willfully causticly and by and under the special and malignant influence of the devil, assaulted the said Ed. Lyon, and him then and there with a club not properly stuffed, smut, and knocked when by the said Lyon did language and lunging out live, but with hundred teeth, an aching head, and jointed ribs and with a body so covered with warts and wales, and so discolored with the bruises built upon that, it looked like a potato field recently plowed out.

On the other hand it is alleged that Gaesthcke's boy, and gave him away from the creek where he was fishing and took away his fish, and whacked him over an iron bar, his backache adjacent to the midriff with a fish pole, and that the afflicted boy took to his heels and conveyed homeward.

And that the said Ed. Lyon did and precipitated himself upon the field. And that thereupon Lyon knocked the old man down club and all, and straddled him and canted him around on all fours, and so belted and waxed him, that it seemed he would have to be newly hopped and needed to hold together.

And that the old man in his dire extremity, gathered all his wits and strength and grabbed his club, and in self defense, and for fear that his entire stuffing would forever be knocked out, gave Lyon a few of the same.

Four bolts on the head and body here, inbefore particularly referred to. Whatever the truth may be, it is to be brought out next Saturday.

Typographical Error.

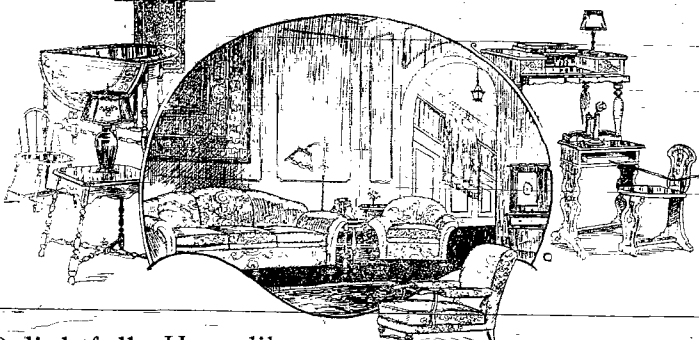

Harrington Herald: Editor Huse of the Wayne Herald was greatly distressed last week on account of a typographical error which crept into one of his leading editorials. The error consisted in the omission of the letter "y" from the word, immortality, which was obviously a serious mistake and as the editor played havoc with the sentence and sense.

But Mr. Huse should not lose any sleep over this error, serious as it was. The writer prides himself on being a fairly good proof reader, but he failed to notice it in reading the article; and it is safe to say that very few of the Wayne-Herald's readers noticed it either.

Gomer Jones who used to live at Carroll, but who is superintendent of the schools at Rosalie, was in Wayne Friday on his way to Norfolk to attend a conference in the interest of the forthcoming declamatory contest.

Speeded For the First Time $500 Buys a Closed Car. If you plan to spend over $500 F. O. B. Factory for an automobile, you can get the year-round comfort and convenience of a Ford closed car. The price advantage which the public enjoys in purchasing Ford cars is the result of volume production. In 1920, when the Ford Motor Company was producing approximately one million cars a year, the Ford Touring Car sold for $575. Today, with production on the basis of nearly two million cars a year, the Tudor Sedan, a high quality all-steel closed car, can be purchased for $320—$55 less than the Touring Car sold for six years ago. Open car prices are correspondingly low. While this program of price reduction has been carried on, important refinements and improvements have been made in Ford cars. The latest improvements include new and attractive body lines—a lower center of gravity, closed cars in color, all-steel bodies, new brakes and new style fenders. However, the basic features of Ford design have not been changed. The three-point motor suspension, planetary transmission, dual ignition system, torque tube drive, multiple disc-in-oil clutch, splash lubrication, thermo-siphon cooling system—outstanding features of automobile design—have all been retained, regardless of cost.
