Three More Days of Big Sale Thursday, Friday and Saturday

Coleman Cookers

Fry—Bake—Boil—Full Cooking Heat in 60 Seconds!

Three more days of our big Coleman Cooker Sale! Three more days to see this interesting factory demonstration. Don't miss it.

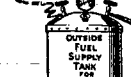

This event has been a great success—hundreds of women have attended our demonstrations—many are now proud owners of Coleman Cookers. We still have a complete stock—come early—they're going fast.

City Gas for Everybody!

The Coleman Cooker brings you all the conveniences of natural gas, no matter where you live. Fuel under pressure produces a clean, hot, blue flame, that's steady and sure. It's a gas-making plant within itself. Use any of the better grades of motor gasoline. Fuel can't spill; tank can't be filled while stove is lighted. Positive valve control. Pressure insures even blaze. No "crawling" flame.

In 60 seconds the Coleman warms up-to full cooking heat—heat that bakes biscuits in 6 minutes—clean burning gas pressure heat that won't blacken pots and pans.

Saves fuel because the pressure concentrates the heat where you want it—cooks the whole meal for 2 cents.

Bakes and roasts; fries, toasts and boils. It has speed, cleanliness, safety, fuel economy—everything you want in a cook stove.

Step in and see this gas-burning, gas-making wonder-stove. A great many folks are taking advantage of the opportunity our big sale offers. They like the Coleman. You'll like it, too.

All Coleman Products Will Be Demonstrated During This Sale.

Substantial Five-Room Dwelling

This design makes a substantial, good-looking home. The outstanding exterior features are the low, sloping roof, the broad eaves and the attractive entrance.

The floor plan shows a full five-room arrangement, as well as a good-sized breakfast room. The living room is comfortably large, with a good-sized fireplace. The breakfast room is between the dining room and kitchen. Both bedrooms are the same size and each has a closet.

A good floor plan like this means much toward the comforts and conveniences of a real home. Only the best of materials and workmanship go into these homes. Ask for prices.

HURT. A man nearly 60 years old, says his son who lives not far away, seldom comes to see him, and that he is disappointed and hurt. As people grow old and feeble, they naturally turn more and more to their children for strength and courage. Sons and daughters are busy with new tasks and multiplying responsibilities, but they should not forget that they are still standing in the same affectionate consideration for which their parents now yearn. We hope sons and daughters who have allowed busy lives to prevent them from paying due attention to aged parents, will adopt a new rule, and go and see them more frequently, and bestow on them the loving regard which they richly deserve.

By temperament, talent and training, he will never react joyfully toward life. He may stick stubbornly at his job, but he will always be a glib slave—a square peg in a round hole. It is only when he finds a job which is congenial that he can enter upon the day's work with any degree of aspiration and pleasure.

The Lure of Outdoor.

York Republican: There may be something tremendously important in the fact that four of the disciples of Jesus were fishermen. His opportunity for choice was limited when he picked his band of twelve, but four of them were men of the nets, who had acquaintance with the sea and spent long hours out under the arching sky in solitude. Undoubtedly there is something inspiring in close acquaintance with nature. Out under the sky, if one's heart is attuned to the mood of nature, he looks for the time his smallness, his selfishness. His little round seems such a tiny thing in the immense scheme of things. The things which perplex him in the daily tasks are dwarfed into mere insignificance by the vastness of space, the beauty of nature, the mystery of the spring, the over-watching providence that tares for each bird and insect, the song of the bird and the hum of the bee. It is good for every one to stand aside at times from his own life and see it in the perspective of the universe. Then he realizes he is over anxious about little things and has inflated mole hills into mountains. There is no place where one's soul can be washed free of its stains and one's eyes cleared of its dimness like the great out-of-doors. There where God's unfailing care is so richly manifested, one, if he is humble and courageous enough, loses the anxieties of the past, cleanses his vision of much that is false, and readjust his sight to new peaks of attainment and service.

Home. York Republican: There is something compelling of interest in the rising price of the home. For home is the biggest word in our social life outside of its antecedent, love. A home symbolizes family morale, community spirit and progress. You do not find discouraged people building homes, unless they are the rich who can indulge expensive pastimes. The building of a home is usually undertaken after the members of the family have deliberated long and carefully chosen. The choice speaks their approval of the community in which they live, the folks of neighborhood they have chosen, the hopes that animate their lives. We lay the cornerstones of churches with ceremonies—and that is proper. We observe the beginnings of public buildings with public approval—and that is right. But the laying of the beams of a home are as important and may have even a higher significance. For if there is a people more prosperous, law-abiding and contented than another, it is the community of home owners. The possession of a home, even though it be a dwarf besides its architectural neighbor, is the mark of civic pride, community spirit and family solidarity. They say it is cheaper to rent indeed, it is. But who rents for long misses one of the proudest, happiest possessions of life—a home.

Marutz and family, Norfolk; Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Hafler, Stanton; and Mrs. Ed. Knudson, Stanton.

Card of Thanks.

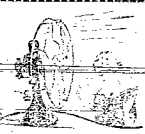

We take this way of expressing our heartfelt thanks to the people of Hoskins and Norfolk, who so wonderfully helped us during the sickness and burial of our beloved husband and father. The beautiful floral offerings and words of comfort will never be forgotten. God bless you all and when this trying hour comes, God will supply your daily needs. A friend in need is a friend indeed.

Austria lost the war, but the tenants don't have to pay rent.

My How Cool!

It's worth a great deal to keep cool these stilling, stuffy summer days. The soft breezes from a G. E. Fan caress the body gently and keep you feeling refreshed the entire day. A size for every home and office at special prices.
