The Newer Type of Bungalow

The newer type of bungalow which is well exemplified by this plan, shows refinement and simplicity of line combined with economy of building material. It is a home which radiates much character and attractiveness. About the first thing noticed is the well balanced proportions of its exterior. The interior is in keeping with the exterior—simple floor plan, comfortable rooms, plenty of closet space without detracting from the general spaciousness and each room accessible in relation to the entire plan. You will also notice another touch of modernism—the combined living and dining room—a practical feature much in vogue these days.

Books Accessioned At Wayne Library

A number of new books have been accessioned at the Wayne city library. Among them is a set of new books of science, containing valuable information on the following: "The Life of Pasteur," "Creative Chemistry," "The Riddle of the Rhine," "Discovery, the Spirit and Science of Sir Isaac Newton," "The Future-Independence and Progress of American Medicine in the Age of Chemistry."

Other science are "Chemistry in Industry," "Chemistry in Agriculture" and "Chemistry in Medicine."

"Heliations," by Sir Harry Johnston, is a story of Australia, modern El Dorado. Adventurers are seeking gold and glory in Australia and the perils of the wild are told.

"Honor to Dreesa Well," by Margaret Story, is the blue book of personal style. The writer is an authority on matters of dress and she shows how harmony in attire is as much a matter of money as it is of fashion. She blends colors and knowing suitable lines.

"Standard Etiquette," by Anna Beaumont, is a book of information on etiquette presented by a unique method.

"Way We Behave Like Human Beings" is written by George A. Dorsey, Ph. D. The author believes human beings are most important things in the world and their chief problem is to get along with themselves and others. Dr. Dorsey gives theories in science which concern happiness and destiny. Problems of love, fear, hate, nerve, glands, thought, civilization, evolution, progress, marriage, race, death and other vital subjects are treated.

"Black Zulu" is a novel by Alexander Dumas.

"The Emigrants," by Johan Berger, tells the part the Norwegian emigrants played in America. The heroic labors to establish prairie farms and the final conquest of the wilderness are explained.

"Getting Together" is by Edna Geiser and Mary Wood Hiltman. The book contains new tricks, stunts and games particularly adapted to entertainment for large groups.

"The Great Gatsby," by F. Scott Fitzgerald, sets before the reader Long Island, not as in fancy, but as it actually is. The social influence of Long Island is shown.

"The Private Life of Helen of Troy" is by John Erskine. After Troy Helen reestablished herself in a home in Ionia. From her divine beauty and entire frankness she was conventional. To her "only while love lasts do we catch a vision of our best selves."

"Jane Eyre" is by Charlotte Bronte.

"Letters from a Senator's Wife," by Frances Parkinson Keyes, tells of the author's views of life in Washington. D. C. Mrs. Keyes is the wife of a New Hampshire senator and from letters to friends she has compiled a record life in which official public circles, social life, international conferences, receptions, burial of the unknown soldier and other topics of interest.

"Wings of a Girl of Dublin," by Katharine Adams, is a story of a girl of 14 who lives in a dingy tenement house and has friends. She makes a beautiful world out of the things she imagines.

"Possession" is a novel by Louis Brockfield.

"The Chemical Foundation," "The Fifth Estate" and "What Price Progress" are pamphlets just received.

Among the new books for juveniles are the following: "Little Cockleburrows," by Wallace Simpkins; "Little Cockleburrows Again," by Wallace Simpkins; "Red Eagle Island," by Kenneth Kempton; "Baba at Home," by Alice Colver; "Coins and Crossbones," by Morris Longworth; "Midsummer Story for Boys and Girls," by Katherine Adams; "Sally Sims' Adventures In," by Gus Steinar; "Little Joe Deter," by Thornton Burgess; and "The Adventures of Paddy the Beaver," by Thornton Burgess.

Sheriff Of Pierce County In Accident

Pierce, Neb., June 11.—Sheriff and Mrs. E. A. Kinkaid, Pierce, are lying in the Lincoln General hospital, suffering from serious injuries received when their car crashed into a truck on a highway between Beatrice and Lincoln, Wednesday evening between 11 and 12 o'clock, according to word received by their daughter, Mrs. George Lambert, Beatrice, south of Plainview.

Suffers Back Injury. Five broken ribs and a severe back injury were sustained by Sheriff Kinkaid, an x-ray examination revealed yesterday. Mrs. Kinkaid was injured to the extent that she will be confined to a hospital for several days, it was reported.

Although it is not thought that Sheriff Kinkaid suffered a broken back, there is a possibility that this is the case, it was reported.

Pierce friends of the couple believe that the auto was traveling at a fairly high rate of speed as the report states that the Kinkaid car was demolished beyond repair. The new machine had been purchased this spring.

Unable to Talk on Phone. When Mrs. Lambert called the Lincoln hospital yesterday, an attendant told her that her parents were unable to talk over the telephone.

Wednesday morning, Sheriff and Mrs. Kinkaid, accompanied by a feeble-minded person who had been ordered to the home at Beatrice, left Pierce.

The supposition is that the accident occurred when the Pierce couple were returning to Pierce after disposing of the patient.

Mrs. Kinkaid is suffering from three broken ribs, painful bruises and lacerations, according to her son, Herold, who returned to Pierce from the hospital last evening.

The Kinkaid were crowded off of the highway by another car. To prevent a collision, the Kinkaid car was driven against a bank along side the road. On account of the gas feed being struck, the machine struck the bank with great force, it was said.

An Unsolved Problem. Albion News: The development of hard surfaced highways and the resultant increase in motor bus and truck transportation would seem to indicate a complete revolution in the whole realm of freight, express and passenger transportation. Up to now, the trucks and motor buses have been fair weather successes, but as the work of improving the highways continues they will without doubt make deeper and deeper inroads on the railway business of the country. Two things at least are going to be necessary. As the bus and truck lines extend their use of the public highway relation is going to be required which will not only increase their use of the highways but which will make them bear their proportionate share of the expense of highway maintenance. And, too, the railroads must make radical changes in their operating methods to the end that they may continue to function for the country, has not yet reached the point where it can do without the railroads. These are problems that are going to be pressing for solution within the next four or five years, if not sooner.

Has Limb Amputated. Plainview, Neb., June 10.—Mrs. Maggie Davis, 72, underwent an operation for the amputation of her right leg below the knee. About eight weeks ago she was taken ill and after recovery was unable to stand on her feet.

For several weeks she was cared for at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Norton Wright, southwest of Plainview, but recently returned to her home at Osmond coming here for the operation.

Would Repeal Liquor Law.
 Omaha, Neb., June 16. Wet politically, and personally, is Aaron G. Read, chairman of the prohibition committee from the Third district, according to his announcement made at a visit to Omaha.

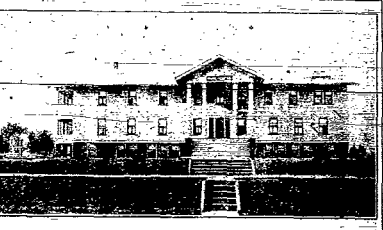

Mr. Read declared he was "set out and out." He advocates the repeal of the Volstead act and the eighteenth amendment, but says he wouldn't go so far as the old school. He holds the liquor business should be regulated.
 Mr. Read declared he would introduce in congress to re-submit a new amendment to the constitution, but the majority will elect a few real representatives, we would have a majority, at least, and could refuse to appropriate money for enforcement of the law. The fourteenth and fifteenth amendments are not enforced today. So it can be nullified today. With a majority we might be able to stampede congress into doing something to relieve conditions as we find them everywhere today due to prohibition.

Discussing personal witness, Mr. Read said:
 "My dress is long as they pass this moonshine liquor around but I let a drink of good old whisky come along and I'll show you how fast I can get it," said Mr. Read.
 Mr. Read's only entrance into the political arena was in 1886 when he was a justice of the peace in Omaha. For the past twenty years he has been farming. Two years ago he was admitted to practice before the state supreme court but he never took the call of the bar. He had no candidates have filed against him for the nomination.

Emil Weber and family went to Hot Springs, S. D.

Miss Nabel Clark and Miss Freda Ellis went to Omaha to visit.

Mrs. A. M. Jacobs entertained in honor of Miss Davis of Boston.

John Dobbin went to Carroll to enter the employ of Hoile & Ware.

Burdette Durgel and Glenn Durgel fell and each suffered a fractured arm.

A son was born July 9, 1906, to Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Stann of Haskins, arrived home.

A son was born July 8, 1906, to Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Enriss of Haskins.

Don Cunningham returned from St. Anthony, Idaho, and Billings, Mont.

Mr. and Mrs. William Dammeyer left for Germany to spend two months.

A picnic was held July 4 at the Lutheran church northeast of Wayne.

Meister & Bluechel of West Point, have moved an implement store to Wayne.

Mr. and Mrs. S. Taylor and son who spent the winter in San Francisco, arrived home.

J. G. Mines returned from Philadelphia where he attended the funeral of his mother.

Mrs. W. M. Wilkinson of Glenwood, Iowa, visited Mr. Roberts, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Bartlett.

Charles Robbins was in Wakefield to look after a new department store which is to be opened there.

Andrew Rissell, Andrew Colander and Peter Pearson of Haskins, went to South Dakota on business.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Lawrence were there from Red Oak, Iowa, visiting the Dr. T. B. Heckert family.

Mrs. James Struth sustained minor injuries as the result of an accident when her horse ran away.

Miss Marguerite Dornberger of Wayne and Mr. Jesse McMath were married July 5, 1906, at Panama, Iowa.

The R. Karo family moved here from Pender into the Wheaton residence. Mr. Karo has bought a meat market.

Fifty years ago, June 1, 1856, Father Tracy founded a colony at the old town of St. Johns in Dakota county and the anniversary is to be celebrated at Jackson.

Miss Ruth and Miss Kate Bressler who were graduated from the Birmingham, Penna., college, returned to Wayne. Miss Ruth is married, Harker, and daughter came with them for a visit.

Control leagues men are planning a street car with free seats and baseball games. C. S. Beebe, J. W. Johnson, John Melick, Stan Tracht and Henry Treatman comprise the committee in charge.

Scott Huff of Wayne, who was employed in Bennett store in Omaha, was drowned July 4, 1906, as a result of an accident at Lake Manawa. He was aged 24 years. He leaves a widow, three sisters and three brothers.

From Ponca Journal, June 20, 1926:

Mr. Sargeant of Newcastle purchased of Mr. Sayles, on Monday, a bill for $250 worth of lumber for a Congressional garage which is to be built at Newcastle this summer.

A gentleman from Dakota county states that he has been nearly rain enough to dampen the ground in that county, since last fall. In consequence everything is drying up and there will not be a fourth of crop. Dixon county has no reason to complain this year. In neighboring counties people are suffering from drought and in many localities there will not be a fourth of a crop. From reports from different parts of the state, it appears that Dixon county stands about at the head of the list so far as crop prospects are concerned.

Bandolph, which not long ago was almost unknown to fame, is showing the premonitory symptoms of a stupendous boom. It seems now well settled that it will have three competing railroads, and if it does it will naturally become a great center of business, and its population may confidently be expected to run up into the thousands. Speaking of the Ogden Short Line railroad, it may be built through that town, the Randolph Times says: "The progress in railroad work in this vicinity, is most wonderful. One mile after mile is graded up neatly and smoothly and is all ready to drop the ties and spike down the iron. The good weather of the past few weeks has been of invaluable assistance to the graders and they have improved it. The capacity for work of men and teams, seems to have far exceeded the expectations of all contractors. Work to the east of Randolph is mostly finished, the grade now being built up to, and within the corporate limits of the village. To the west the work is less advanced owing to the delay in leasing the line."

Chronic Candidate.

Fairbury News: The famous Robinson G. Ross, a former lively stable keeper from Lexington, Nebraska, has been heard from again. This time he is a candidate for the republican nomination for governor of Nebraska. At three different times, in 1912, 1916 and 1920 he was a candidate for a presidential nomination. He is both the republican and democratic tickets. His candidacy might be considered a joke were it not for the expense the state. It is probably a low estimate to say that it will cost $20,000 to have his name printed on the primary ballots at each time he runs. This will make a grand total of about $80,000 that his political an-tion will have cost the state, and the end is not yet. There is something radically wrong with a primary law that permits a nut of his calibre to continually saddle such an expense on the tax payers of the state. Of course it is one of the beauties of a republican form of government that any person may aspire to any office within the gift of the people, but this seems to be carrying a personal privilege too far.

It would seem that something should be devised to place a limit upon the aspirations of men of the Ross calibre, and it might be a worthy problem for the next Nebraska legislature to wrestle with.

Cedar county will build two new highways this year. One runs from Margaret east to Coleridge. The other is four miles north of the first, running east and west.

The One Who Forgot

By RUBY M. AYRES

Begin Here—Today.

Peter Lyster lost his memory from that shock in France. Upon his return he fails to recognize Nan Murray, to whom he became engaged before he went away. Nan heartbroken has gone home to care for her three motherless stepbrothers. She has seen Peter often since he came to stay with John Armstrong, at the home of Arno and down sister, near the Marway estate. But Peter has failed to show any signs of remembering. "Nan," who has become desperate by her father's financial difficulties and Peter's apparent indifference, has agreed to marry John Armstrong, a money lender, who has told her that Peter is also in his debt. In London Peter meets Joan Endicott on her way to visit Nan. She tells him that he is the man who broke Nan's heart. They agree to find out why Nan is going to marry Sefton. The next morning the boys start on their way to the woods to meet Peter. Joan calls back the smallest of the trio and presses a letter into his hand.

Now Go On With the Story.

"That's for Mr. Lyster," she said urgently. "But nobody must know—promise me . . . quick!"

Clayton flushed with pleasure at the honor conferred on him. "Only you and me," he said in a stage whisper.

"Yes, mean it," even tell Jim or Baster or Nan."

"No," he peered round behind her towards the house.

"Well nobody," he said importantly.

"And mind you don't lose it," Joan entreated. "It's frightfully important."

He nodded vigorously.

"Not to tell nobody—only Mr. Lyster," he said again. Joan smiled and nodded.

"—Yes—good boy—now run along." She watched him patter off through the sunshine, his little feet sending small clouds of gray dust behind him at each step; then she went back to the house.

Clayton reached the end of the road hot and breathless; he looked up and down eagerly, but could not see his brother.

"Once he opened his mouth to call to them, but, remembering his precious mission, closed it again determinedly."

If they waited for him, they might see the letter and ask questions, and he had promised Nan's pretty friend "well nobody."

He clutched the letter tightly as he went—he felt more proud than ever in his life before; he wondered if Mr. Lyster would give him a penny for being so faithful to his charge; if he did—there were some new sort of lollipops in the village stores—his thought broke off as he heard a heavy step coming towards him down the narrow path.

Peter, of course! His little face brightened—he started to run; then suddenly he stopped dead, as Harley Sefton's shadow fell over his undergrowth and came towards him.

Clayton hated Harley Sefton. His anger-footsteps came to a frightened halt as he looked up at the man's hard face; it was quite unconscious of that he put the hand which clutched Joan's note behind his back in an effort to hide it.

But for that little gesture Sefton would probably have passed on without speaking, but as it was, he stopped and smiled down at the child unpleasantly.

"And where are you running to?" he asked.

Clayton shivered; his little mind flew to the story of Red Riding Hood and the wolf who had had her in the wood, and he wondered in terror if this man's smooth tones were purposely chosen to hide some sinister motive, as the Wolf's had been.

"Nowhere," he said stoutly. He looked anxiously past Sefton down the narrow path beyond where he had agreed to meet Peter Lyster and safety; but, alas! it was too narrow for even a small boy to pass along while this man stood there.

But Claydon was plucky, and, suddenly ducking his head, he made a dive forward, hoping to scrape past against the bushes.

But it was hopeless; Sefton caught him by the loose back of his sailor jacket, and he was held as if by a vise.

"So you'd run away, would you?" he said. He had never liked Claydon, Nip's affection for the boy, and now he was angry with him.

"You're the young man who said you hated me . . . and the young man to whom she once promised a thrashing—eh? Well, it seems to me that this is a most opportune moment—"

Clayton screamed; he struggled violently, beating one small fat fist against his tormentor's body.

"Let me go—let me go!" he said, over and over again. "Nan . . . Nan . . ."

In his fright, he let the precious note drop to the mossy pathway, but he never saw it. Harley Sefton picked it up. He kept hold of Claydon by one and taught him fairly between the eyes.

In a contest between a brave man and a coward the ending is a foregone conclusion.

Claude jerked out, but with delight now rather than fear, and Nan hid her eyes.

But in a contest between a brave man and a coward the ending is a foregone conclusion, and in two moments Lyster had broken the riding crop across the coward's back, and Sefton had disappeared—a limping, raging thing, to hide his shame in the heart of the wood.

Peter was breathing heavily and his face was very pale.

There was a dazed sort of look about him; his men as he went, he trembled like a girl now his rage had died down.

And, then, quite suddenly, without comment of any sort, Lyster turned on his heel and began to walk slowly away.

He was dazed—his head was down—he walked like a man who is thoroughly exhausted.

Nan gently released Claydon's clinging fingers and flew after Peter down the narrow path, her light steps hardly making any sound on the mossy ground; she caught him up—she spoke his name breathlessly, fearfully.

"Mr. Lyster!"

But he hid and stop, or look at her, he just said hoarsely:

"Let me go—let me go!" as if he could bear no more, and Nan fell back almost without speaking. "I met them in the doorway," she gasped when she saw the nervous agitation on both faces. She asked a volley of questions. What had happened? Was anybody hurt? Oh, how dreadful!

Long Distance Telephone Rates Reduced in Nebraska Effective June 12

A reduction has been made in the charges for long distance calls handled over the lines of the Northwestern Bell Telephone Company from towns in Nebraska to points within the state and to towns in Iowa, Minnesota and North and South Dakota, effective on and after June 12.

A reduction in charges for calls within the state was recently authorized. In order to place our rates from Nebraska exchanges to points in the four states mentioned on the same basis, a similar reduction is being made in these charges.

Charges for all classes of service, except for station-to-station calls between midnight and 4:30 a. m., are reduced beginning at various distances. For person-to-person calls the reduction begins at 72 miles. For station-to-station calls at 96 miles, while all calls are reduced for distances greater than 120 miles.

Under the new changes, the reduction in rates which formerly applied on station-to-station calls from 8:30 p. m. to midnight will be in effect from 8:30 p. m. to 4:30 a. m.

The following examples show the old and new charges for long distance calls to points called frequently from

Market Report

Furnished by Frank E. Scott Commission Company, Sioux City Stock Yards.

June 16.—Abundant rains were more than sufficient to overcome a long drought. In general cattle delivery over the country this week, with the result that prices on both fat and feeders, particularly the latter, advanced. At the same time practically all grades are 25 cents and more higher.

The first two days of the week brought 116,000 tons of cattle to the leading markets of the country, an increase of 7,000 head over the equivalent the same time last year. Fat steers and yearlings advanced 25 to 40 cents to midweek. Beves of weight sold at $10.15 and yearlings to $10.25. In both cases the prices stand as the most lofty in over three months of trading. Pair to good kinds are still making up the bulk and are an outlet from $8.50 to $9.50. Common types sell as low as $7.

Yearling heifers mixed with steers have hit $10, but sold alone heifers would hardly earn such a peak. Good to choice yearling heifers can be safely figured in the $8 to $9.50 spread, with fair to good from $7.50 to $8.50. Fancy heavy cows to $7.75 look strong, while the fair to good kinds from $6.25 to $7.25 average 25 cents higher. Plain and low grade beef cows, together with canners and cutters, such as suffered so severely last week, advanced around 25 cents, but are still occupying a relatively low position. Canners figure from $3 to $3.75 and cutters from $4 to $4.50, with cheap beef cows around $5. Veals consistently hit the same old peak at $11.

Stagnant conditions surrounding the stocker and feeder trade vanished with the recent rains. The daily outgoes became liberal and naturally prices hit the upgrade. At midweek virtually all classes of thin steers are 50 cents higher. The market continues active at the advance.

Fair yearling classes still make up the bulk and sell from $6.50 to $7.50, with more than a few notably good sets of light cattle up around $7.50. Choice yearlings and feeders would again bring well in advance of $8.

Feeding cows and heifers more active and 25 to 50 cents higher also. Feisty heifers might again earn a front figure of $7, with choice beef feeding cows up as high as $5.

Prospects of temporarily heavy receipts of hogs over the country, together with an indication in that direction, furnished packers with sufficient leverage to reverse the porker trend. Values now current are a few nickels under the crest of the season, but the shortness of the delicatessen proves that packers are in no position to force lasting or tough bearishness. The spread between lights and heavies has also narrowed down to desirable proportions, although suitable shipper classes still receive a noticeable margin. Hog receipts over the country continue to run consistently under the level of the corresponding period in 1925.

Sharply increased sheep and lamb receipts came as expected the last few days and prices dropped sharply. Spring lambs at a peak at $15.50 are more than $1.50 lower, while yearlings to a $14.75 top look all of 75 cents down. The already low position taken by clipped ewes is concluded if not necessarily for further discounts. Best ewes are not worth over $6.

Wild Deer Near Bloomfield.
Bloomfield, Neb., June 16.—J. B. Gosard, Emil Johnson and J. F. Koffler are authority for the statement that a wild deer is roaming about the country in this vicinity. They were returning from an automobile trip into the country north of here when they saw the deer standing in the middle of the road. The driver of the car slowed down in an attempt to get close to the animal but it took fright and vaulting a four-wire fence, sped away to the west.

According to their statement the deer would weigh about 300 pounds and had horns about nine inches long. The deer was seen later at the Brunken farm, west of here, grazing with the cattle but it again took fright and soon disappeared from view. It was a real deer and not an antelope, according to Mr. Johnson who is a pioneer of this country. He states that it is the first deer he has seen running at large since 1889. The animal may have escaped from some park or it may have wandered down from far to the north, where advancing civilization has not yet spelled the doom of this wild animal.

Sheriff's Sale.
By virtue of an order of sale, to me directed, issued by the clerk of the district court of Wayne county, Nebraska, upon a decree rendered therein at the March, 1925, term thereof, in an action pending in said court wherein Lawrence D. Spalding and Walter T. Waldron were plaintiffs and Theodore King, Horan King and Areta King, were defendants, I will, on the 15th day of July, 1926, at 10 o'clock a. m. at the door of the office of the clerk of said court, in the court house in Wayne, in said county, sell to the highest bidder for cash, the following described real estate, to-wit: the Northeast Quarter of Section Twenty-seven (27), Township Twenty-six (26), North, Range One (1), East of the 6th P. M., Wayne county, Nebraska, to satisfy the aforesaid decree, the amount due thereon being $8,000.00 with interest at 6 per cent from March 1, 1924, and costs and accruing costs.

Dated at Wayne, Nebraska, this 16th day of June, 1926.

Auxiliary Has Banquet. The American Legion Auxiliary held their annual banquet Tuesday evening at the Baptist church parlors with gold star members as the chosen and honored guests. Tables in the dining room were arranged to radiate as points of a star and the gold star members were seated at the head of each table. In the center space was a floor lamp and baskets of yellow flowers. Yellow and white flowers were also placed on the tables. Plates, cards and napkins bore gold stars. Women of the Baptist church served the dinner. Miss Minnie and Miss Rose Will favored the group with two vocal duets. Miss Genevieve Wright read "The Death of Crazy Horse" by Dr. John G. Nuhardt. Mrs. E. E. Galley, president of the Auxiliary, introduced Mrs. C. E. McGlasson of Lincoln, past state president of the organization and this year's poppy chairman, who spoke about rehabilitation work being done by members. The women are helping ex-service men in hospitals, families of the men and nurses who were in service. The speaker mentioned the 220-acre farm which has been given in Kansas for newly children of ex-service men's families. This state helps keep up the farm and children from this section are cared for there. Mrs. McGlasson also told of the plan to arrange separate institutions or annexes to other state hospitals for care of ex-service men in order that they may have more privacy. At present many are cared for in single rooms. Ex-service men are receiving military training at the state university. Mrs. McGlasson stated that the Legion and Auxiliary are in charge of the work which means 192 hours of training and gives four hours of credit. The required training is no more than health exercises and the organizations feel that this training is good for all students. A business session closed the evening Tuesday and the women discussed serving ice cream cones and pop at the park on the nights of band concerts. No definite action was taken.

and Kenington. Cakes and coffee were served. The hostesses were Mrs. A. A. Welch, Mrs. H. J. Felber, Mrs. J. S. Horney, Mrs. R. B. Judson, Mrs. P. N. Parke and Mrs. F. L. Blair. Only a dad...

Only a dad with a tired face, Bringing little of the gold or fame, To show how well he has played the game, But tried to his heart that his own joy and his child's heart should be glad.

Only a dad, of a brood of four, One of ten million more in more, Plodding along in the daily strife, Bearing the whims and scorn of life.

With never a whimper of pain or hate For the sake of those who at home await.

Only a dad, neither rich nor poor, Merely one of the sarging crowd, Telling, striving, from day to day, Facing whatever may come his way, Silent, whenever the harsh condemn, And bearing it all for the love of them.

Only a dad, but he gives his all, To smooth the way for children small, Doing with courage stern and grim, The things that his father did for him;

It is the line that for him I pen; Only a dad, but the best of men.

There was no doubt about it. The buzzard killed in Georgia in the one I tied a bell to 44 years ago. I've recognized that bell anywhere.

These were the words of H. B. Caldwell, of the Southwest Gas and Electric Co., Shreveport, La., when he read a recent report from Cassin Gray, editor of the shooting of a hinged buzzard by W. C. Birchmore, of Comer.

"It was a Swain sheep bell" said Caldwell. "I was in my thirties then. I was 44 years ago and there had been a flood in the Mississippi that spring. Many animals had perished. With some of the boys of the neighborhood I was out hunting for some of my stock that was missing. The carcass of a horse had lodged against a tree near the bank of the river, and after the water receded it was left high and dry, attracting a flock of buzzards.

"We decided it would be a great stunt to catch one of the buzzards and tie a bell to it, so one of the boys hid close to the carcass and captured one. I tied the bell around the neck with a metal clasp, just as the news dispatches stated."

Caldwell described the bell before seeing a picture of it, his description tallying with the bell found.

How 10,000 Acres of Alfalfa Change Community Life

THIRTY acres of alfalfa on every farm would change American rural life as much as the coming of the automobile.

That is the contention of M. A. Nye, representing the New Valley Creamery Institute Farm Service, at Sauk Center, Minn., and who is largely responsible for the 10,000-Acre Alfalfa Club here, the first of its kind in the world.

The institute is co-operating with farmers, bankers and business men in many sections in establishing more of the club.

"Alfalfa, if managed properly," says Nye, "can bring the farmer a richer life. On the basis of profits from acreage around Sauk Center, we estimate there will be an additional community profit of $300,000 a year as a result of the 10,000 acres of alfalfa."

Sauk Center's alfalfa club goes back three years. A few farmers in the vicinity had grown alfalfa for years, but most of them had gone right on planting hay without regard for the superior qualities of alfalfa.

In 1923 a survey by the institute led to the profits to be made from alfalfa and a campaign was begun. In 1925 the acreage had jumped from 200 acres to 2500 and it is expected services have arrived and were used for the first time last Sunday. Our Sunday school picnic will be held Monday, June 22, at the church. Dinner will be served after which a program will be rendered.

On Friday evening, June 25, our father League journeyed to Wakefield and will give a program there. We would like to see as many young people along as possible.

If there is anyone who wishes to send children to the week-day school here, during the month of July, and has not given in their names, please do so as quickly as possible.

"God is our Refuge and Strength, a very present Help in time of trouble."

Rains Are General. Omaha, Neb., June 14. General dry, hot weather in Nebraska and droughts of two months' duration, in some sections of the state, have been squelched by intermittent rains during the last three days.

Steady precipitation of the ground soaking variety ranging from a half to 2 inches in depth, drenches the parched fields of growing crops which were beginning to suffer from lack of moisture.

In some sections the rainfall was accompanied by electric storms and high winds of near tornado proportions which disrupted electric service, hampered wire communication and unroofed buildings, but generally the damage was slight.

Winnipeg, Neb., June 14. An eight-hour steady rain covered Thurston county, Neb., adding 16" prospects for one of the greatest crops this section has ever produced.
