Work Starts On Calif. Club Barn

Foundation Laid For Fair Building Supported by Young Stock Growers of County.

More Improvements

Addition to Grandstand and Extension of Fencing Planned—Entry in Pulling Contest.

The foundation has been laid for the proposed new calf barn on the fair grounds. Funds for the purpose were provided through the efforts of the boys of the calf clubs of the county.

Other improvements are being planned, among them an addition to the grandstand and an extension of the fence along the south side of the grounds. The fair will be held tomorrow night to further consider improvements and to enter on plans for the annual exhibition which takes place September 29 and 30 and October 1 and 2.

William Mellor is the first man reported to have entered a team in the county pull. It will be compared with that of hundreds of other teams that will test their pulling strength.

The dynamometer that will be used at the fair, requires no greater effort on the part of a team to start the load than to keep it moving. It will take only 1,200 pounds to pull it, but the 1,200 pounds will have to be exerted for the full length of the pull.

After a team has started a load on a wagon, the effort immediately becomes less to keep the wagon moving. This is not so with the dynamometer. Its operation is likened to pulling a load out of a well. It is a team as well as a 1,200-pound pull on the dynamometer would be able to pull a 1,200-pound weight out of a well. A constant, steady pull is required.

Feature At Crystal Theatre This Week

Ten years ago, between misgivings and hope, Colleen Moore stood tremblingly in the presence of David Ward Griffith.

His cool eyes measured her and sought to penetrate beyond her indefinite and exterior.

Her uncle, Walter Howey, noted editor, had just introduced her and suggested the possibility of a screen career for her.

Griffith observed vivacity, intelligence, temperament, in her features—and a marked photographic value.

His decision was quickly made. Colleen Moore, at fourteen years of age, boarded a train at Chicago for Hollywood.

Her career had begun. In a general way, Miss Moore's role in her latest Paramount starting vehicle, "Ella Cinders," which shows at the Crystal theatre Friday and Saturday of this week resembles her own beginnings in the cinema.

The heroine is pitched into a picture environment at an early age, and she struggles that of Griffith's art in the end wins the laurels she has dreamed about.

It is interesting to trace the career of this picture personality of the screen. Her youth was almost kaleidoscopic as the changing environments provided for her subsequent screen appearances.

After three lusty years in Port Huron, Mich., her birthplace, Colleen lived a year at Hillsdale, in the same state, and then her folks settled in Atlanta, Ga., remaining there four years. Here she attended Sacred Heart Convent.

For a year she continued her studies at St. Joseph's convent, Warren, Pa. Her last years of schooling occurred at Convent of the Holy Name in Tampa, Fla., where she lived five years.

In 1916 Colleen migrated to Chicago, where she met Griffith and was engaged by him for her first picture work.

She was sent to Hollywood and soon was seen in such pictures as "Little Orphan Annie," in which she played the title role; Charles Ray's "Eight-Guns Wally"; Marshall Neilan's "Dint"; Frank Borzage's "The 9th Commandment"; "Come On Over"; and "Through the Dark."

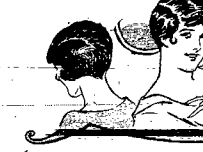

Since her affiliation with First National she has been seen in "The Huntress," "Flaming Youth," "Painted People," "The Perfect Flapper," "Flirting With Love," "So Big," "Sally," "The Desert Flower," "We Moderns," "Trene" and "Ella Cinders."

From Ponca Journal July 25, 1889:

The people of Dixon county will be pleased to hear that a vast bed of coal was alleged to have been discovered at Covington last week. Covington is the only town in northern Nebraska where an immense coal vein was not discovered some time ago.

Every city or town, excepting Covington, has in its march onward and upward, taken the coal deposit, finding it from 2 to 6 feet thick. Covington saw double what was found in other places and unearthed a coal bed twelve feet thick. Here in Ponca were found 4 feet of coal; in Cedar county 3 1/2 feet were bored through; in Butte county, 3 feet; in Washington county, 4 1/2 feet; in Omaha, 6 feet. $25,000.00 with interest thereon at the rate of six per cent per annum from April 11, 1925, for which sum with interest the several named parties pray for judgment and costs plaintiff prays for decree that the defendants be required to pay the same and that in default of such payment said premises may be sold to pay the sum so found due. You are required to answer said petition on or before Monday the 30th day of August, 1926.

Dated at Wayne, Nebraska, June 20th, 1926.

Usually maturity develops beauty of mind that amply compensates for loss of youthful beauty of face.

If one visits with a citizen who does all the talking, he is happily removed from the possibility of saying something which he will afterwards regret.

The Hartington Herald wisely suggests that the best way to secure the Declaration of Independence with a closer and more pronounced association between it and the Fourth of July.

The Kansas City Star, founded and reared to wonderful usefulness by the late W. R. Nelson, has been sold to a Chicago syndicate. It is a daily newspaper, and people will be glad to know it will continue along lines established by its founder.

Members of congress have returned to their constituents, and each will explain his every fish to those who have not been in the office or who had not been for the other reasons or duplicity of the other fellows.

In writing obituaries, one should state in the first sentence that the subject of his effusion is dead. This is not a necessary rule, but an aggregation of what follows. If a history of deceased is given in advance of any talking of what has happened, it is not reading, but whether he is running for office or has made some important discovery or invention. The gist of any news item should be stated in the first paragraph.

It seems that California has an annual onion week. Ontions have such a strong point of setting forth their powerful way, that a special week seems unnecessary. In fact an onion is naturally so egotistical and obtrusive that we doubt the wisdom of giving it such extraordinary honors. It is likely to redouble its already effusive bombardment of olfactory nerves. Encouragingly, the onion may be prompted by some one who has a lot of gas masks to sell.

The Herald family had a brief visit with Editor F. D. Stone and family of the Hartington Herald at Hartington Saturday afternoon. We mention the occasion here because the Editor of the Herald wisely, because each member is an active and enthusiastic member of the working force. And the Herald family has been in the city so long for a few years that every time he saw a hospital he turned in, he is going more in volume and better.

STRESSING VALUES.
An important lesson which we may learn from the study of the history of the support home industries is that we use home products. Too often we buy knock, whereas we should produce and locally bought. Californians do not hunt for imperfections. Their energies are set to work in the direction of pointing out the good and soft-pedaling the bad. They are not calling attention to the disturbing, anti-toxic disease of a few years ago, nor to the occasional earthquake. They stress the many favorable things.

To the overshadowing of sils and drawbacks. They applaud private and public enterprise, and they are on the alert to seek preference for home-made or home-grown products. On an account of a fat the combination of the climate, the fogue river valley in Oregon raises better pears and peaches than California, but peaches have not been sold in Oregon fruit as they have in California. A Rogue river peach imparts unique richness. It has been said to have come from California. The reason is traceable to advertising. Absence of other hangers in California contributed to a happy state of mind and to constructive effort. Nebraskans ought to study their state's resources and industries for their own appreciation and for the enlightenment of outsiders, as occasions arise. They should not only buy home products, but they should show windows and about their advantages to the world. Let us popularize boasting and crown on morbid souls with a new and better state. Let's find fault and test-down.

in quality than ever before in his life. And the Herald shows it. He goes to work at 6 in the morning with no fixed time to quit in the evening. He has been under the act of March 3, 1879. Known office of publication, Wayne, Nebraska.

Frank O. Edgecombe, retiring president of the National Editorial association, and whose Geneva Signal was awarded the silver cup for best community service at a recent convention in Los Angeles, said in the course of an interview published in the Los Angeles Times that the purpose of his organization to help elevate the standards of our own kind and to promote the best interests of the field where we serve. "Time goes when the average country weekly struggled along impudently, fawning at the feet of those who gave them service. From a respectable sycophancy. Its service was so restricted that it was worth little to its owner or to the public. From that time on, it has been kept from sinking by a narrow margin. Finally publishers aware to opportunities opened through broadened and unbiased service. They have been united, made selfish and mean by being compelled virtually to accept army country weekly. They are being forced into respected and self-respecting business institutions and an established and growing demand for service. They are being forced to adjust themselves to advanced rules of conduct by which utmost care is exercised in the selection of material. Petty differences and rival hatreds have largely given place to the spirit of good will. There is a greater service and greater demand.

While a man may deserve to be executed for the crimes he has committed, it is not desirable to execute him, legally or otherwise, is revolting. Capital punishment would not be so repulsive if the victim were not killed. A lawless takes life, and then refined society is invited under the law to take his life in exchange. It is not desirable that disposition may be made of murderers if we don't kill them? Faulty inheritance or faulty training or both probably were the causes. Violently insane people often perpetrate horrible brutalities, and they have to be incarcerated. If a murderer is not deemed responsible, why not deprive him of further liberty and subject him to corrective methods rather than ask people to indirectly participate in something that they have been taught to abhor? We know plugugies who outrage and murder for either revenge or sordid gain, do not deserve to live, but we do not wish seeing the state organization to which we belong, take part in retaliatory killing. We don't like to see the state do something that it has to hire some specialist in the execution business to come in from the outside to do. We have been off of this stage for a long time. We know that we cannot reconcile our judgment to it. Let efforts be multiplied to prevent crime. Let more attention be given to fundamentals in character building. Let the harvest be prepared by more careful sowing of seed. When murders or other crimes are committed, let the criminal be as securely removed from society as the violently and dangerously insane.

DOWN TO BRASS TACKS.
In considering the wholesome California way of pushing the front home products, we are reminded that the bakeries of Wayne do not receive the patronage they deserve. The goods made at home are admittedly products of the "highest" mill. Why then go outside for bread when the home product is unsurpassed elsewhere in quality? Why go outside when nothing is thus saved in price? Why go outside when convenience is served by buying at home? With no advantage gained by taking money to other fields, why not buy the goods of local bakeries, make them stronger industries and enable them to do of greater usefulness to the community? Every dollar spent for bread when the home product is used is an indirect help to every person in the community. Every dollar spent with a local business is an indirect help to every person in the community. Every dollar spent with a local business is an indirect help to every person in the community. Every dollar spent with a local business is an indirect help to every person in the community.

Eagle's Nest Stops Transcontinental Telephone Service

Service on telephone lines between New York and San Francisco was interrupted recently by a snaggle's nest built in the wires near Elko, Nevada.

Pieces of wire and automobile parts in the nest short-circuited the lines and put them out of order.

A tree hanging against the wires, a kite string tangled in them, and countless other things may interrupt service. Keeping the telephone alive is an endless and expensive task.

Few Barberry Bushes Located in County

The accompanying cut was made from a photograph of a statement signed by a group of citizens of Hamilton county, Nebraska. Burton Kiltz and H. B. Harris, barberry scouts of the United States department of agriculture, demonstrated to the satisfaction of these farmers the spread of black stem rust from the infected hedges to winter wheat and barley. Mr. Kiltz is now in charge of the educational and publicity work at located here at Wayne.

The Scouts found no new plantings of common barberry in their farm to farm survey in Wayne county last week. Sunday afternoon while walking in Wayne Mr. Harris located a bush in front of the residence of A. B. Clark on Main Street. This bush

This should not be the case. A comparatively small percentage of individuals is able to identify the common barberry. Many others do not associate the name with the stem rust of cereals. Property owners when they purchased the bushes have not recognized their harmful nature and are not to be blamed for having planted the shrub. No greater service can be rendered than by making known not only existing plantings of common barberries but properties where common barberries formerly existed. This will give the scouts a clue to regions in which a particularly intensive search should be made for possible escapees that otherwise might be overlooked.

Report all suspected or known plantings of common barberry to A. P. Thiel, college of agriculture, Lincoln, Nebraska.

Horville, Nebraska, June 26, 1928.

We the undersigned farmers and citizens of Hamilton county have this day made observations on the spread of stem rust, from two infected barberry bushes on a grove on the farm of Albert Larson of Horville, Neb., to a winter wheat field located about 100 feet to the north just across the road from the barberry bushes.

We observed that the wheat along the road across the bushes was heavily infected with stem rust and that the prevalence and severity of rust increased with the distance from these bushes. We further observed that the barberries appear rust covered at least 1/4 of a mile.

Having seen this typical case of barberries spreading stem rust we pledge ourselves to cooperate in every way possible with the Federal Government and other agencies in the eradication of these harmful barberries.

Address
 Stanley Gayson, Maryetta Neb.
 Albert Larson, Horville, Neb.
 W. H. Rayson, Marysville, Neb.
 J. B. Peterson, Maryetta, Neb.

There only a single rusted leaf as far as has been determined.

Barberry scouts are more than pleased with the splendid spirit of cooperation that is being shown on every hand. Mr. Thiel is proud of the fact that in over six years as state leader he has not reported to the west in a single instance, to effect the eradication of common barberries. An eradication law is necessary only for exceptional cases. Most property owners have shown the highest type of patriotism and loyalty by sacrificing bushes and hedges that in some cases were objects of considerable pride. Barberry eradication workers regret very much that a feeling exists on the part of some that some stigma or disgrace is attached to the finding of common barberries on one's property.

Whooping Cough.
 Dr. A. L. Bixby: Let great doctors quarrel if they will about when and how whooping-cough is communicable; we know by experience that with one whose system is well nourished, whose blood is pure and kept in vigorous circulation by abundant exercise in the open air, whooping cough is not a distemper to be dreaded, but a diversion to be enjoyed. If a fellow can't whoop when he coughs, what's the fun in coughing?

The funeral of the late Mr. Sarah Rebecca Michell Nichol of Plainview took place July 5, followed by burial in the Neleigh cemetery. She and her husband resided in Andeocpe county in 1882.

To Compel Issuance Of Certificate

Lincoln, Neb., July 15.—Hearing of the mandamus suit brought by Miss Darlene Johnson, 17-year-old Tilden girl, to force John M. Matzen, state superintendent of public instruction, to issue her a certificate to teach was held before the supreme court today.

After a short hearing, the court took the matter under consideration. It was not indicated when decision will be rendered.

Today the supreme court of Nebraska is hearing the case in which Darlene Johnson, 17, Tilden, through her father, Gustaf H. Johnson, as relator, is seeking to obtain a third grade elementary school certificate which will permit her to accept a position with district No. 83, Madison county.

John M. Matzen, state superintendent, has filed with the supreme court his answer to the application of Mr. Johnson. The state officer says that the reason he has refused is that Miss Johnson is only 17, while there is in effect a ruling that no one may be given a certificate until he or she is at least 18 years of age.

Matzen talks.

Matzen claims that the rule was made because his experience of twenty-nine years as a teacher, as a county superintendent, and as state superintendent has convinced him that in nearly all cases a person under 18 cannot do efficient work in a school room.

The statute, he says, imposes upon him the duty of seeking to improve the efficiency of teachers and advance the cause of education in the state, and he knows nothing better calculated to improve their efficiency than this rule, which not only calls for the requisite scholastic attainments and moral character, but for the good judgments and maturity of mind that rarely, if ever, are attained under the age of 18.

"No Drouth in Supply"

Matzen points out that there is no drouth in the supply of teachers in the state and that there are more who are over 18 years of age and who possess the requisite qualifications with respect to their scholarship and good character than there are schools in Nebraska, and that no emergency exists which would require that the schools accept those who are inefficient because of their extreme youth.

Miss Johnson says that she possesses all the requisite qualifications, and she has been offered the school in district No. 83, near her home, except that Matzen arbitrarily deprives her of the opportunity of signing the contract by his discretionary ruling.

Matzen says that a vital question is involved in the law suit that goes far beyond the fact that her age deprives this particular young woman of her chance to teach. A check of the records show that there are now nearly 2,000 others taking this course in the training school who will be under 18 when they finish it.

If Miss Johnson wins these will be eligible. He says that additional youthful teachers would also be taken from other states where the statute fixes 18 as the limit.

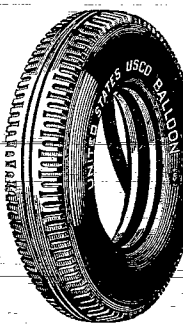

Miss Anna Johnson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Axel Johnson of Newman Grove and Nester Lawson of De Kalb, Ill., were married June 30, at the home of the bride's parents. The bride is a graduate of the Wayne State Teachers College.

Mrs. C. C. Hill of Randolph died July 5, at the age of fifty years and four months. Her death was caused by a stroke of apoplexy.

The two recently organized scout troops in Laurel under the scout masters, Carl Jeffrey and Vic Henry, at show great interest in the movement. A pony scout troop is also to be organized for boys under 12 years of age.

Methodist Church Notes. (Rev. F. Farmer, Pastor.) The Christian religion is an expression of the highest aims and hopes of man. It embodies the desires of the soul and the foundation of the church is the servant of mankind about its cooperation with the holy spirit, these desires manifested in the life of men.

The church has a noble task; one that appeals to the thinking man or woman; one that challenges the life of the individual and the people of life. Its program towers over all other activities, inspiring, encouraging and uplifting man. It lifts his head for above all else in the real analysis of community life and symbolizes the Christ, who said, "I, if I be lifted up, will draw all men unto myself."

A DODGE BROTHERS SEDAN

People are surprised to learn that this beautiful and sturdy car now sells for $895.

They have heard so much about its exceptional value that they are under the impression it sells for a higher price.

Moreover, the Sedan possesses all the roominess and character of closed cars that call for a much greater investment.

It is substantial in appearance because it is substantial in fact. And serves its owners far beyond the period usually expected of a car at any price.

The body is all steel—safe, sturdy, fireproof, and smartly finished below the belt line in coolie blue lacquer, with cartouche yellow stripe—upper body in black lacquer—shields and fenders in black, oven-baked enamel.

Blue Spanish genuine leather upholstery, removable rear seat-back, and optional wood or steel wheels are included among many other features that commend themselves forcefully to the buyer.

Many who expected to buy a cheaper car, now find that Dodge Brothers product is well within their means. Many who had expected to buy something more expensive, now find everything they could possibly desire in these smart and dependable vehicles.

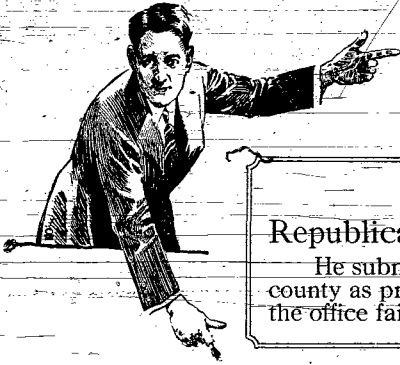

See the cars for yourself—and investigate our attractive time-payment plan.
