Associate Editor Sees Hollywood

Herald Writer Visits Beverly Hills and Home of Movie Actors.

San Francisco Calif., July 15. (By Air Mail)—Beverly Hills, suburb of Los Angeles and the home of many movie stars, was visited by members of the N. E. A. party on Wednesday, June 30. Busses took the group of about 400 through the residence section of Beverly Hills, one of the most attractive home centers and is growing in popularity. This section of the city has been built within the past two or three years, so one can picture a city of beautiful new homes.

About forty residences of movie stars were shown. To the editors Helene Chadwick appeared at the door of her home and blew a kiss to the general. Ben Turpin, recognized by his eyes and features, greeted the group from the doorway of his home. Other stars were not seen on the side-walk. The picture appeared in a program in the evening. Beverly Hills, with its attractive, new residences, mostly Spanish and English architectural mediums, is one of the most favored, a fact which is true of most of southern California. The delicate shades of cream, tan, blue, green and yellow in the stucco of the various houses blend with the many flowers. Lawns are like green velvet. Palm trees, cacti, eucalyptus vines, massive pink lavender and blue hydrangeas, geraniums in hedges and climbing into trees, tall bushes of wax begonias make the background for the homes complete.

Jackie Coogan, who posed for a picture to take a few days later, is a new home in Beverly Hills. The residence of Harold Lloyd, Fatty Arbuckle, Mary Pickford and Douglas Fairbanks, Tom Mix and many others were viewed. Many of the stars, Mary Pickford, Tom Mix, Charlie Chaplin and others, live on the hills at the outskirts of the city. To have looked at the hills before they were covered with homes, one would think it impossible to build there. But the steep hills are popular now and many sites are being developed. The residences are valued from about $10,000 to $200,000. Those estimated at about $50,000 seem to predominate. Paved highways lead to all of the residence sections on the hills, so that travel is easy.

After a ride through Beverly Hills, the N. E. A. members were taken to the lawn of the hotel there for dinner and dancing. The stars, Tom Mix, Hobt Bosworth and others entertained the groups with horseshoe riding stunts. A Spanish dinner was served, the stars being seated with the editors. Following the feast, Fred Niblo presided as toastmaster and introduced the stars who spoke briefly. Mr. Niblo stated that all are not only "stars" but they are valuable citizens of Beverly Hills. The clever recognition of the actors and actresses made, led the guests to realize that these stars are capable in other lines than acting alone. Many of them are distinctively or comb their hair individually, so that one is able to recognize them easily. They are, however, interesting speakers and very genuine hosts and hostesses. The visit to Hollywood and the picture studios on a later day, brought the party to an even better understanding of their life and the movie industry.—Dorothy Huse-Nyberg.

bobbed hair vogue is at the present time and in spite of its obvious disadvantages, there is a perceptible sentiment growing up against it and one would not be surprised to see a complete reaction take place some day and a return to the old style. And why? Not because the bob is not of cases; for it is, but because the thing has been overdone and because girls and women are discovering that being cut in modern methods of dress, the hair are injurious. Probably the strongest argument advanced in favor of bobbed hair is that it facilitates its care, but as a matter of fact, this is not true. As a matter of fact, vastly more time and expense are being put on the former head now than when long hair was the vogue, and while this has given rise to a new and profitable business, it can no longer be urged as a defensive argument. It was said long ago that "the glory of a woman is her hair," and, while as we have above admitted, bobbed hair is not a matter of fact, it is that, we would not be surprised to see a reaction at some not very far distant date. There is a certain definite objection to the long hair which the bobbed head does not possess, and girls and women who crave the exclusive will, it may be assumed, retire eventually to the old fashioned mode. Then, others will follow the leaders, and gradually the bobbed hair will disappear, but the journey back to long and flowing tresses will be a hard and tedious one.

Officers of Alumni Association Elected

The officers of the High School Alumni association for the coming year elected at the banquet Friday evening are: Mrs. E. E. Galey, president; Maurice Wright, vice-president; Ronald Reed, secretary; Miss Pearl E. Sewell, treasurer.

About seventy alumni were present at the banquet held at the Gem Cafe. The Alaskan idea was carried out in table and decorations. The program included social singing led by Miss Martha Crockett and the following toasts introduced by Henry Ley as toastmaster: A—Alumni Toboggan, Mrs. R. W. Ley, '96. L—Loyalty, Mrs. E. J. Hantemer, '06. A—Associates, Mrs. Hobart Auker, '10. S—Ship, Supt. S. S. Hook. K—Klondyke, Maurice Wright, '26. A—Alaska, J. H. Kemp.

Following the banquet the party adjourned to the community house for a dance and general mixer. Executive committee this year included: Ed. Reynolds, president; Miss Martha Crockett, vice-president; Henry E. Ley, secretary; Miss Pearl E. Sewell, treasurer.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Fortner, jr., left last Thursday afternoon for their home at Long Beach, California, after spending a few months visiting the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George W. Fortner. Mr. and Mrs. Fortner will spend about two weeks with the latter's parents at Ogden, Utah, on return, and they plan to take the boat trip from San Francisco to Long Beach.

Pagant For Fair Is Being Planned

Written and Directed by Mrs. S. A. Lutgen, it Will Set Forth Historical Facts.

Story of the pagant, "Wayne County," presentation of which will occupy three nights at the Wayne county fair, has been completed by Mrs. S. A. Lutgen, and the work of choosing directors and characters is now going forward.

The pagant is based on historical facts concerning Wayne county, and it will call for unique costuming. The plan is to represent Wayne county this year, Nebraska next year, the United States the next year, the world the next year, and probably some other world the next year. It will be an enlightening and impressive series.

Organization of the work incident to presenting the pagant is sponsored by the Fair association, under the direction of Mrs. Dugan, assisted by the following committee: Miss Mabel Dayton, chairman, Mrs. H. B. Craven, Mrs. Rollie W. Ley and Mrs. Leon F. Beery.

"Wayne County" contains three acts, one act being presented each night. The four main characters and their attendants who take part each night are: Miss Wayne County and her fourteen attendants, Miss Nebraska, Miss Columbia and her forty-eight states, and the voice. These characters will be chosen from Wayne and neighboring sections.

Epic one, "Creation of Wayne County" is under the direction of the Wayne woman's club with Mrs. E. W. Huse chairman. This will be given the first night and portrays "Mother Nature" in four episodes: Spring, under the direction of Mrs. E. S. Edholm, summer under Mrs. A. Ann Gumble Johnson, and winter under Mrs. F. S. Berry. In this epic all the elements of nature are represented by children in costume.

organizing Wayne county with an old-time dance, mail and passenger wagon serving Wisner and Ponca through La Port, moving county records from La Port to Wayne, Wayne's first ball, pioneers representing all nationalities leading Wayne county, establishing the Normal school in Wayne and the first graduating class, and Nehardt, post-laysure, here dreams his boyhood dreams.

The last epic is the present ideal upon which the future of Wayne county depends. This includes the following fourteen qualities: Beauty, happiness, health, wealth, purity, faith, hope, charity, patriotism, education, justice, equality, firmity, and hospitality. This will include special dances. The general committee, in charge of the last epic: Miss Nettie Craven, Mrs. J. E. Hufford, Mrs. Wm. Von Suggers and the attendants of Miss Wayne County.

In his notes a pastor speaks about the approach of the vacation period, and how the vacation period will be well along and about over.

Patrols given to swimming pools. The city may encourage Wayne to get up enough steam to put over such an enterprise before another summer rolls around.

The primaries for nominations for the fall election will be here August 10, and in the meantime candidates will be active in the business of extending acquaintance and winning support.

We wish correspondents and others who write for newspapers would make sure of the spelling of names and words. It is a matter of course, but the initials. People do not like to have their names incorrectly spelled, and just "Mr. Smith" or "Mrs. Jones" is not sufficient identification, does not mean anything and had better be omitted.

By way of reducing the number of fatal automobile accidents, we would suggest to young people that they should refrain from holding each other's hands while driving. A young man is not intelligent enough to slow up or stop when one yields to the impulse to grab the vehicle, and of an accompanying victim, and of a young woman who is choked down by thought of possible wreck and by imagining the big pile-up that will result. The number of broken bodies and busted prospects. Imagine how quickly the change may be made from the enjoyment of a ride to the blasting smell of coffin varnish and embalming fluid.

Plans for the annual county fair are being made, and the directors have reason to anticipate a bigger and more gay one than ever. While one has a fairly clear idea of what the county grows, he does not have full appreciation without the exhibition. The exhibits are assembled at the fair, and people are impressed by unexpected variety and excellent qualities. Our hope is often expressed to what has been accomplished on Wayne county farms and in Wayne county. The fair is a most interesting and is to be strengthened next year, and in all respects the fair will be made more attractive.

To impress people with sincerity, a man ought to make a fairly good job of practicing what he preaches. If he should be observed of the Volstead law, he should not go around

EN ROUTE HOME.
 Finishing their sightseeing tour of the California coast, some of the editors in attendance at the convention of the National Editorial Association, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Ross, of the Wayne Herald staff, left San Francisco last Thursday night for Klamath Falls, Oregon, birthplace of "the letter." The trip was made in a motor car, Friday night, according to a letter received from the associate editor who says that while she is kind to laugh at the twenty odd years she has made in the old home town, she will be more glad to get back to Wayne, Klamath Falls has grown from a raw frontier village of 1,000 people to a modern city of 12,000. The travelers went there bearing the name of a woman who had a photograph taken twenty years ago, and who took pictures of the associate editor when she was a young girl. In the twenty years, this friendly woman was expected to be a source of information and helpful interest. But it was not that in a moment of sentimental derangement only two weeks before, she had jumped into the Klamath river and drowned herself. Thus, happy expectations were sadly disappointed. Journeying from Klamath Falls to Crater Lake—scenic wonder of the Cascades—the travelers made a short motor on over the mountains to Medford, and from there go to Portland, Seattle, Vancouver and on home to the Pacific. They will be here in a few days, enriched by a month's experience in the new and old West, and will be glad to have their generous hospitality, with their other editorial guests, met on every hand in California.

the dinner and violate it. Practice should harmonize with profession to make for stability and good citizenship. Talking one thing and doing another destroys confidence and weakens character. Stimulus in the direction of saying what one means and meaning what one says is a needed force in our social evolution. Sly duplicity is but thinly disguised, and the influence of playing double, whether with respect to the Volstead law or something else, separates ignorant from wise and effort for higher standards.

Many people are inclined to be excruciatingly and good citizens. One who is naturally optimistic, sees the bright side. "One hunts for grubs in the soil, the other finds signs and indications that lend encouragement. In contemplating the drought and possible damage to growing corn, one person goes no longer for the crop, while another stands firm in the belief that the outcome will be far better than expected. One side creates a favorable sign, while another finds the silver lining and hoists it high above magnified forebodings of evil.

We were pleased to note in a newspaper published in the Pacific southwest a contrast drawn between the state conventions held in southern California. As pointed out, the editors behaved as examples of propriety and self-restraint. They did not want the lid lifted. They desired no entertainment in which their wives and daughters could not properly share. Besides the business of the convention, the editors were bent on seeing the wonders and beauties of California, learning about resources and industries with which they had little or no first-hand knowledge. The editors reflected the best type of citizenship, and their good work was rewarded by assurance of appreciative guests.

A farmer near Keokuk, Iowa, is dead as the result of interference with young couples in cars parked on the roadway near his farm. It is presumed the farmer was the victim of a shotgun which he carried, and which was accidentally discharged in a scuffle with the young men. Regardless of what one may think of the judgment of young couples who park on roadides, we doubt if any authority can prevent them from doing so. Besides the business of the convention, the editors were bent on seeing the wonders and beauties of California, learning about resources and industries with which they had little or no first-hand knowledge. The editors reflected the best type of citizenship, and their good work was rewarded by assurance of appreciative guests.

Too much time is devoted to choosing a president. No sooner is he inaugurated than opposing forces combine to discredit him. With his term less than half over, President Coolidge is the target for fire calculated to put him out of the running two years hence. The president's refusal to say whether he will be a candidate to succeed himself or not. If he said he would be a candidate again, he would stir up bitter rivalries, whereas if he said he would not be a candidate he would be more likely to be ignored by congress. If the administration's opposition to the defeated farm relief bill as impractical were followed by an amended policy to reduce the tariff of manufactured goods as a more practical help to farming communities, likely the present work regimen much less strength in the middle west. But the presidential campaign is unnecessarily prolonged with the energies of politicians directed more to safeguarding their future than to promoting public policies that will be best for the future of the country.

GNATS.
 Picnic dinners, spread under leafy boughs, with the mercury hovering around 100, not only vary the monotony of domestic life, but promote to the dizzy limit, but give a great boon to gnats that have to nurse for a living like the rest of us. Gnats have large families—nothing hinting of race-anxiety in their habits—and without frequent and liberal exposure of victuals, their struggles would be doubly hard and sometimes utterly unavailing. Gnats do not labor from the want of food. They work in large enough groups, so they may visit and avoid becoming lonesome or homesick. When any number of gnats gather on the rim of a cup filled with appealing fluid, we always sense the danger they risk, and tenderly brush them away. We think that gnats, like the public at large and even our politicians, are often though it is misunderstood as an invitation to go off to round up and bring back more gnats. If there were no picnics we suppose beneficent nature would make some other provision for them.

From Other Editors

York Republican: The executioner who came from Connecticut last week to take the life of Donald Ringer, complained that his business was bad. He told the reporters there were not enough executions to keep him busy and he had to resort to some other work between times to make a living for himself and family. Every time he got a steady job and took a few days off to go and electrocute somebody he lost his job—his employer did not want a professional murderer around. The plaint of the executioner doubtless drew many shudders from those who read it. But what some of them did not remember was that it was not the man from Connecticut who was to do the execution but the people of Nebraska who made and maintain the law that one who takes the life of another shall be electrocuted for it. They, the people, are the executioners, and no one who agrees to the statute that legalizes and approves capital punishment has any right to feel a sense of superiority or aloofness for the agent from Connecticut whom they employ to do their murdering work for them.

Hartington Herald: The ubiquitous Robert G. Ross, Lexington lawyer, man, has appeared again in the political arena, this time as a candidate for governor on the republican ticket. Ross has been running for office "since the memory of man runneth not backward" and it is estimated that it has cost the state of Nebraska thousands of dollars to print his name on the ballot year after year. For the past decade or more he has appeared regularly as a presidential candidate and, in the last presidential election he performed the remarkable aerobic feat of running for president on both the republican and democratic tickets. But being a non-presidential year, he can not aspire quite so high, having to contend with running for governor, but we may confidently expect him to be a candidate for president again in 1928. We are not acquainted with Mr. Ross of Lexington, but we judge he must be a man of parts and wital ambitions and not easily discouraged. Even if he fails to land in the governor's chair or the White House, he succeeds in keeping his name before the public and securing the expense of the voters a lot of good advertising for his liver stable. And as a lively stable man, this constant grooming of himself for office keeps him in practice.

Dr. A. L. Bixby in Lincoln Journal: Before we blame our public as we desire to give Congressman Howard full credit for securing the deficit loan due to the Omaha Indians from Lincoln, let us remember that we are one of our hundred percent Americans as a credit to the perspiring statesman who is able to put it across. If he had been thoughtful enough to slip this payment over onto our European debtors we had felt better about it than it is possible to feel under existing circumstances.

Fairbury News: A man who had seen many political battles in times gone by, and who is a candidate before the coming primary, was discussing the changes our public attitude towards elections in the News office the other day. He said "you have no idea how hard it is to campaign now. People absolutely will not express themselves and seem anything but interested in the men who are to be chosen to administer the government."

Auburn Republican: Sitting at a table in a hotel recently we saw a traveling man pouring his coffee in to his saucer and drinking it like a well, things are getting back to normal.

Neighbors.
 Baltimore Evening Sun: There are two kinds of neighbors—good ones and bad ones. The noisy ones are most invariably mean well. They function as they do because they were born with a mania for attending to other people's affairs.

One of these will knock at your door in the early morning and say "We have a man moving our lawn and I noticed yours needs it and thought maybe you'd like to hire him while he's here"

Another will hear the crash of glass when you drop a pitcher and appear breathless at the door to ask what has happened. Another will come because he smells something burning and tell you your gardener is loafing or your right rear tire flat.

Minding other people's affairs affords their chief joy in life; and the more they meddle the more virtuous and useful they feel.

There was a time when distance and the difficulty of communication limited the number of meddlers who could torment any given neighborhood. These pests bothered only those within earshot or walking distance.

But the things we call "modern improvements," made all of America one neighborhood, and now the noisy folk are in their glory. The field of their activities is unlimited.

In a metropolis, where nearly all are strangers, there are few neighbors and fewer meddlers. But the

Market Report

Furnished by Steele, Siman & Co., Sioux City Stock Yards.

Sioux City Stock Yards, July 21.—A sharp decrease in cattle receipts over the country on the opening day of the week failed to prevent slowness in the Monday trade, but when Tuesday brought another contraction of material proportions prices on the desirable classes of killer hit the up grade, while grassers generally and feeding grades held about steady on Monday's decline. Wednesday failed to perceptibly alter the trend and therefore the first half of the week finished with the bulk of the cattle not much different as compared to the close of last week.

Fat steers and yearlings of desirable quality reflect some strength, possibly 10 to 15 cents, and are quotable from $9 to $10.15 with a bare chance of $10.25 for something strictly fancy in the yearling line, and with no chance of really weighty beefs earning over $9.75. Pair to good kinds figure from $8.25 to $9, with common to fair from as low as $6 to $8.25. The lowest kind grades are light steers with only a slip on of flesh.

Yearling heifers are strong compared to the close of last week. Good to choice kinds figure from $9 to $10, with fair to good dry lot types from $8 to $9. Ripe fat cows command something in advance of $7.50 to specialty buyers, with good to choice from $7 to $7.50, and fair to good from $6 to $7. The best of the grass heifers now coming cannot be pegged over $7.25, with the top on heavy western cows to $6.00. Fair to good grass cows figure from $5 to $6, with cheap to fair kinds from $4.25 to $5.

Canners are grooving mostly at $3.50 and look 25 cents lower, while cutters from $2.25 to $4.25 look an equal amount down. Many grass bulls now coming and the standard of quality is lower, but considering that fact the market averages steady. Pair to good heifers are worth from $5 to $6.75, with beef bulls from $6 up and canner bulls from $4 to $4.75.

Farmers in many areas occupy a precarious position with crops largely dependent on immediate rainfall, which does not seem to be forthcoming. Demands for stockers and feeders, as well as yearlings and calves, are correspondingly slow and the market is not any too lively, with all recent discounts in force. However, at the declines the better kinds are holding up, with new losses of 25 to 50 cents showing on only the less attractive styles. Good to choice thin steers now worth from $6.50 to $7.50 with fair to good from $5.50 to $6.50, and common to fair as low as $4.00 up, although at the bottom figure they are little more than trash.

Feeding cows of fair to good quality from $3.75 to $4.75 and common kinds from $3.50 to $3.75 reflect all recent losses. Fair to good heifers from $4.50 to $5.00, and with the top around $5.00 look enough lower to be tempting, but are not.

Packers have again succeeded in bringing prices down, but considering the relatively high prices in vogue the declines have not been great. Light lights are still worth in advance of $13.50, while heavy butchers figure about $11 less. Sows are averaging from $11 down and in that notch appear to be permanently down, with chances for recovery of moderate proportions, possible in the next few weeks.

Feeding sows slipped rapidly this week and at prices around $10 look over $1 lower. Pigs reflect the same loss.

Native lambs registered slight gain on light receipts and tops are around $14. Clipped light ewes to $6.50, strong, but weighty ewes at $4 are no better and are hard to sell at the price.

Assessment Upon Shareholders
 Treasury Department, Office of the Comptroller of the Currency, No. 9244.

In the matter of The Citizens National Bank of Wayne, Nebraska, Washington, D. C., June 25, 1926. To All Whom It May Concern:
 Whereas, Upon a proper accounting by the Receiver heretofore appointed to collect the assets of "THE CITIZENS NATIONAL BANK OF WAYNE," Nebraska, and upon evaluation of the uncollected assets remaining in his hands, it appears to my satisfaction that in order to pay the debts of such association it is necessary to enforce the individual liability of the stockholders therefore to the extent hereinafter mentioned, as prescribed by Sections 5151 and 5234 of the Revised Statute of the United States; Section 1c, 156, Act June 30, 1876, and Section 23 of the Acts approved December 23, 1913, known as the Federal Reserve Act.
 Now, Therefore, by virtue of the authority vested in me by law, I do hereby make an assessment and requisition upon the shareholders of the said "THE CITIZENS NATIONAL BANK OF WAYNE," Nebraska, for Six-ly Thousand Dollars, ($60,000) to be paid by them ratably, on or before the second day of August, 1926, and I hereby notice the demand upon each and every one of them for ONE HUNDRED DOLLARS—($100.00)—upon the second day of August, 1926, in full of their share of the capital stock of said association held or owned by them respectively, at the time of its failure; and I hereby direct Frank W. McRoberts, the Receiver heretofore appointed, to take all necessary proceedings, by suit or otherwise, to enforce to the extent the said individual liability of said shareholders.

In Witness Whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused my seal of office to be affixed to these presents at the City of Washington, in the District of Columbia, this twenty-fifth day of June, A. D. 1925.

Notice of Summons
 To Annie O. Brainerd, Dorothy Brainerd Reed, Arthur Fred Reed, Donald E. Brainerd and Owen R. Brainerd:
 You and each of you are hereby notified that on the 29th day of June, 1926, Fay O. Strahan, plaintiff herein, filed her petition in the District Court of Wayne County, Nebraska, against you (impleaded with Fred G. Philley, administrator, with the will annexed of the estate of Daniel E. Brainerd, deceased) the object and prayer of which are to foreclose a mortgage executed on the 11th day of April, 1925, by Daniel E. Brainerd and Annie O. Brainerd upon the following described real estate situated in the County of Wayne, Nebraska, to wit: Lot thirteen (13) and the south half of Lot fourteen (14) in Block Five (5), North Addition to the city of Wayne, Nebraska, to secure the payment of a note for the sum of Seven Thousand ($7,000.00) Dollars, now due and payable. That there is due and payable on said note the sum of $7,000.00 with interest thereon at the rate of six per cent per annum from April 11, 1925, for which sum with interest and costs plaintiff prays for decree that the defendants be required to pay the same and that in default of such payment said premises may be sold to pay the sum so found due. You are required to answer said petition on or before Monday, the 5th day of August, 1926.

 Dated at Wayne, Nebraska, June 30th, 1926.

Why "They Don't Answer" When the Telephone Bell Rings

Sometimes you place a telephone call and fail to get an answer, although you are quite sure the person called is at home.

Many situations arise about the house to prevent the telephone bell from being heard. The person called may be up in the attic, or in the basement. She may be running her sewing machine or vacuum cleaner. Perhaps the children are playing indoors and the noise drowns out the sound of the bell.

If you discover that noise frequently prevents you hearing the telephone bell, it might be desirable to call our Manager and have an extension bell installed. When you hear the telephone bell ring, a prompt answer may avoid losing the call.

Farm Residence Near Pilger Is Burned

Pilger, Neb., July 17.—The residence of Carl Schultz, living seven miles south of Pilger, was burned to the ground last evening, the flames being caused by a defective gasoline stove. Richard Vahl, another Pilger farmer, owned the building.

The evening meal had been prepared on the stove and as the family was eating supper, Mr. Schultz noticed the flames that were spreading about the kitchen.

The flames were fought by the family, but reached the telephone box and could not be summoned.—Mrs. Schultz saved the other buildings and telephoned to the Pilger fire department, which arrived at the farm in time to save other buildings that were threatened due to the high wind that fanned the blaze.

Effective work of the chemicals and the bucket brigade which was organized, saved the other buildings.

Household goods, the farm house and about $250 in money were destroyed by the flames. Mr. Schultz had a few days before, acquired the money.

The house was covered by insurance, which had been renewed only a few days before. Some insurance was held on the furniture by Mr. Schultz.

Primary Voting.

Many people can't get their primary election in their heads correctly. Some voters want to vote for a few on the republican ticket and for a few of the nominees on the democratic ticket, and can't understand why they can do this. They say, "many women are there, when they appear at the polls and ask for a ballot don't like to have the judge of election ask them in which party they belong? This they treat as personal, yet it must be known, and it must be made plain that they can give only one ballot. Some-time women have been known to leave the polls without voting rather than to disclose their political affiliation to the election board. The primary election is simply a big convention. At a convention you vote for the candidates of your party only. At the primary it is the same. No voter would think of going to the republican convention and after taking part in it, would then go to the democratic convention and take part in it also. But it seems hard for some of our voters to thoroughly understand this point. The primary election to be held the 10th of next month is for the nominating of candidates for office only. It is your duty if you are a democrat to vote the democratic ticket, and vote for the names thereof. This is true if you are a republican. But in no event is it any business of the republican voter who the democrats vote for; neither is it any business of the democrat voter who the republicans care to nominate. Then, at the fall election in November you are at liberty to vote for either the democrat or republican to fill the office as specified.

EYES TRAINED TO SPOT LOST GOLF BALLS, BOY DISCOVERS SITE OF LONG-LOST FORT

By NEA Service
THIS buried ruin of old Fort McKeanie, outpost of civilization of stones that evidently were used in building fortifications. There are eight of these, in orderly arrangement, about a two-hundred foot square, showing where the buildings had been.
The excavator soon began to unearth other evidences of an Indian trading post. One foot of silt had settled over the remains of the fort. Under this covering were found beads ranging in size from Linobath to small marbles, and all of bright color.
Other objects brought to light were clay pipes, lead musket balls, hand-made iron nails, a knife and broken pieces of blue pottery—probably Deift ware—all of which objects were of "Indian origin."
The Indians took and ornaments also were found. There were hide scrapers, bone needles and ivory beads. An ivory ornament, somewhat curved, was found in one of the piles of stones. Perhaps some white man had bought it from an Indian and placed the treasure on his mantle, where it was forgotten in the rush to abandon the fort.
Fort McKeanie was established by the American Fur company in 1823 and did a thriving business with the redskins until, in 1842, P. A. Chardon was placed in charge. Jesse James

He loaded a cannon and trained it on the gate. Then, with a brace of muskets to finish off the struggle, he waited for the killers of his servant to enter. Accounts vary as to the extent of the massacre, but it aroused such hatred among the northern Indians that the fort was abandoned and burned to the ground.
The Indians are visiting Tomahawks in the Happy Hunting Grounds, the buffalo and elk and antelope are gone. Only a few little piles of debris remain of old Fort McKeanie, but the memory of it lives again.

Banner Steel Posts

When the ground is dry and hard, digging holes and setting wood posts is no easy job. During such a time as this, many customers are getting a great deal of satisfaction in using Banner steel posts. Very much less work is necessary to drive them to any depth desired even in the driest and hardest of ground. They are stiff, strong and sturdy. Made like a railroad rail, they stand more side pressure without bending or breaking than any other steel post that's made. The price is less than most steel posts of less weight and strength.

Dynamometry Has Arrived in Lincoln

The Collins dynamometer which will be used in the horse pulling contest at the Wayne county fair this fall was scheduled to arrive in Lincoln this week. It was immediately tried out in an unofficial pulling contest at the agricultural college. It will be shipped here for the contest during the first of August.

E. J. Collins of the Iowa experiment station, inventor of the machine, and member of the engineering department of the Iowa state college, came with the dynamometer and helped direct the first contest. Mr. Collins has been connected with the agricultural contests that have been held in Iowa, where the machine was first used in pulling contests. While in Lincoln, he started training the men who will work with the dynamometer in the Nebraska contests this fall.

This dynamometer is built on the principle of constant resistance dynamometer, designed and patented by the agricultural engineering department of Ames, Iowa experiment station. It is the greatest load that the machine is not starting when the machine is in motion. It can be set at any load within the pulling range of the horse. The load moved is indicated and plainly visible to the spectators. Tens are required to be lifted a double tree similar to the usual hitch on a plow. The point of hitch on the double-tree must not be less than twelve inches from the neck of the horse.

Tests are made by setting the machine to a given tractive resistance, then placing the team to it, and having them pull just as though they were pulling a heavy wagon. When they overcome the resistance by raising the weight, the hydraulic break releases the machine and moves forward. In order to complete the official pull test, the team must pull it 2 1/2 feet.

Business.
 Sioux City Journal: Freight car loadings to August 10, 1926, for the seventh week this year. This is the third time it has been done this summer, the figure for the week ending July 8 being 1,072,623. This was an increase over the preceding week of 10,312 cars, over the corresponding week of last year of 206,425, and over the corresponding week of 1924 of 314,720.

Miscellaneous
 Freight loadings for the week ending July 3 reached a total of 1,022 cars, or a drop of 8,178 over the figure for the preceding week and 74,768 above the same week last year.

The increase for the last week noted is more interesting in that it is reported that coal, coke, forest products and live stock all decreased, some of the decreases being heavy. Still the gain was made in car loadings, showing that general merchandise movements are stronger in summer than they were in the spring and late winter. It is good news in the business world since it means greater shipping activity, for the methods, stronger demand in the market for general merchandise and an all round cheerful outlook for industrial growth.

What has been Canada's loss has been this country's gain. Wheat reports from the Dominion were discouraging enough to send the price of the grain up to a new high point, a gain of 2-3/4 cents being noted in one day in Chicago. Meanwhile the harvest so far has produced wheat of excellent quality and heavy yield. The Kansas crop was excellent, and, no doubt, the northwest will duplicate the results farther south.

Business is good, generally speaking. America's foreign trade has increased in the last year over $600,000,000 according to the commerce department's figures. Exports have sold more readily, especially in Europe, and a more healthful condition is freely predicted.

Corn is in fair to good condition, but no one expects a banner crop except in some favored sections where moisture has been plentiful. Hot, dry weather has held the crop back considerably, and in regions affected the yield will not be up to average. Whether this is going to affect prices materially is a question. The shorter crop if of good quality naturally would be expected to do that, with a closer relationship of supply and demand regulating prices.

Fewers who buy corn will not be so delighted if a short crop boosts prices, although that, surely will operate to keep prices high or to send them higher. Under the circumstances, buyers are not expected to show any inclination to come down in price.

Employment. For midsummer is good, although some statisticians advise that the supply of labor exceeds the demand. Factory reports show little change in production figures, an indication that industrial employment is holding its own at a time when slackness is expected.

The failure of another bank is no cause for particular alarm, although such developments usually create more or less nervousness elsewhere. Some of the failures are attributed to the southern boom of the past year which was carried farther than sound business methods justified.

Good Example.
 Lincoln Journal: Uncle Sam continues to do his children a good example with his debts. The war debt, which seven years ago stood in the neighborhood of twenty-five billion dollars, has been reduced to $19,643,216,315. Last year nearly a billion was paid—$872,638,067, to be exact. Payments should grow progressively larger, for with each year the interest charge diminishes. Interest is now nearly a quarter of a billion a year, less than when the debt was first big. This year we can keep on paying without missing it. At the rate thus far maintained, the most serious war in all history will have been paid for, as to our share, in another twenty years. There is every reason to hurry the payment. The money paid now is costing less, it is almost certain, than will the money with which we must pay in the future. The 50 cent dollar of 1919 is now a 65-cent dollar. If we don't hurry, the last payments will be costing us 100 cent dollars. The appreciation of the dollar is expected by economists to continue for a long time to come.

object of his affection as she comes through the hallway between classes or elsewhere on the campus, greet her with outstretched arms and let his hands flutter lightly over her dimpled cheeks, fondles her silky hair, and gazes searchingly into her dark luminous eyes. Another kind of a girl emerged from the crowd in a somewhat different fashion. He sights his maiden on a walk on the campus, calls loudly for her to halt, strides up with a "Lo, bid! twice one of his heavy arms firmly about her neck, pinches her cheek, grabs her hand, and after a slight, noisy struggle appropriates her books or quality case. Finally the girl goes to her next class thinking herself popular. The fellow, with the spirit of conquest still high, seeks another victim. "Sex attraction is inborn. It is something we cannot well destroy. However, it can, to a desirable extent, be controlled. This open, unchained mauling mode of lifting the safety valve of civilization is entirely out of date. It is primitive, barbaric and indecent."

Loess Foot Under Train. Norfolk Daily News, July 19: Loess of one foot and the mangling of the other was sufficed by Lawrence Retzlaff, 16, Okadale, yesterday morning when he fell under a Chicago and Northwestern freight train in the Okadale yards, according to railway officials at Norfolk.

Young Retzlaff, together with Richard Saville, also of Okadale, were "hunting" their way from Chardon to their home, the report stated. When the train attempted to alight from the track, which was traveling between eight and ten miles an hour, he slipped and fell under the moving cars.

The boy, accompanied by an Oakdale physician, was taken to the Tilden hospital on the same train under which he fell. Whether or not he will live his other foot has not been determined.

Public Sale Extraordinary! 32 Head of Stein Cows and Heifers At Wayne, Neb. Saturday, JULY 24. On the above date, in the Sale Pavilion at Wayne, we will offer at public sale 32 head of registered and high grade Holstein cows and heifers. Nineteen head of these cows are milking at the present time and consist of cows that have been fresh for some time down to cows just recently fresh. Four head of cows due to freshen in the next six weeks—they are all real ones. Nine head of real two-year heifers all in calf to a well bred Holstein bull. All are tuberculin tested. A Word About This Offering. These cows are not cows shipped in from a distance or a market. We bought the entire herd of Harry Mallett, who has been raising and producing these cows from a purebred foundation, and who has been in the dairy business at Hartington. The only reason we were able to secure the cows was because of the fact that Mr. Mallett had no pasture or feed for this herd on account of dry weather in his territory. Remember, we have bought every cow and heifer Mr. Mallett had. The producing cows range in age from 3-year-olds to 8-year-olds, and of the 22 producing cows nine are purebred, registered cows on which pedigrees will be furnished. The balance consist of purebred cows on which the registration has not been kept up. The cows have always been hand milked and there is not a spoiled teat or bad udder in the entire bunch. We have seen the cows milked and will be able to give you full particulars as to their milk production and also the breeding dates on these cows for they are all in calf to an exceptionally well bred Holstein bull. The 2-year-old heifers are an exceptionally nice lot and a real foundation for a herd. On account of the scarcity of feed and being big producers these cows are not in high condition but we want you to come and see them, for we feel that it is an offering that will merit your attendance at this sale and justify your coming to see them. They are of the correct Holstein type and conformation and every cow is a good, big, producing cow and has been kept in this herd only because of that fact. They have been selected for years for type and production. Sale will be held regardless of weather conditions. Come whether you buy or not. Cunningham & Auker, Owners. D. H. Cunningham, Auctioneer. State Bank of Wayne, Clerk.

The Editor's Chair. Sioux City Journal: Out in Yakima, Wash., a preacher sat in the editor's chair and tried for a week to run a daily newspaper. When Saturday night came, the parson was ready to end his career as an editor. He has had enough. He had found by trying on the other fellow's job that either he or the job did not fit.

Rev. D. W. Ferry of Yakima, thought he could discharge the editor's duties from day to day as easily as he could mount the pulpit every Sunday and preach a sermon. Col. Robertson, editor of the Yakima Daily Republic was willing to let him try it. It is a foregone conclusion that the editor knew what would happen. The minister took the job, but he now says that if he ever leaves the ministry he will not seek "press in the editorial class" for "fit there."

This experience recalls another of a learned Iowa judge, who some years ago believed he would prefer journalism to any other work. He had been on the bench a long time. He was a scholar, a man of wide information and many experiences. He was forceful, well educated, a man of parts who had been demonstrated long before. Much was expected following the announcement that he would write the editorials for one of the leading daily papers of the state.

The judge had lasted for years on the bench. He lasted two weeks in the editor's chair. Voluntarily, he surrendered the job and walked out never again to undertake journalism. He had been a trying time for him. He had found a grueling task. Every day he had been required to sit at a desk and write editorials. At first it was easy. He had such a fund of information, such a background of general knowledge, so many experiences in life, so many contacts with men and things and such energy and ambition that he expected success and happiness in his new work.

The judge who had become an editor discovered many things in that fortnight of editorial work, the most convincing one of which was that he actually did not have the ability to do the things required of him. He simply could not go on. He quickly exhausted his reserve store of inspiration and enthusiasm. It is said that he was often beside himself to know what in the world he would write about next, and that when he looked ahead and saw that condition constantly before him he made up his mind that he would not try to keep it up.

Editors readily will agree that the judge was a sensible man in reaching the decision that has become Iowa newspaper history, and when they reach that conclusion they will look over the news, listen to comments from their friends in the germ of an idea may lurk and praise their desks and turn on the copy demand just as they do day after day, week after week, and year after year, smiling a little, perhaps—if they have time—for the wonder's suggestion that the job looks so easy.
