Business

Sioux City Journal: Business observers, particularly those in the industrial regions of the east, have been informed by the beginning of summer trade activity, and some of them are revising their opinions as to what is going to happen this fall.

There always has been a seasonal lull in business activity, and critics figured it was bound to come again this year—but it didn't. Instead of business waiting for the fall for an upturn, the summer months showed a distinct advance over the figures for April and May, car-leading being over the million mark for several weeks, manufacturing and wholesaling expanding rather than contracting—and the stock market maintaining its robust activity unchanged or hitting an even higher price.

An impressive thing noted following the unexpected trade expansion activity this summer is the close approach made by the class I railroads to the return allowed under the act of 1920, that piece of legislation so often misrepresented as promising or insuring the carrier that they would make a profit of 5% per cent. There was a fair return mentioned in the transportation act, but the error lay in saying it was guaranteed rather than permitted. Anyway, the leading railroads are close to the 5% per cent on the average, having gone farther in that direction this year than at any time since the return to private management.

Of course it is inferred that the reason for this promise of profits to the railroads shown by the figure of 5.49 per cent as the expectation for 1926 lies in the nationwide stimulation of shipping. Car loadings simply cannot go over the million mark after week without money being made by the carriers. It is now the expectation that the road will do some necessary financing in the near future through the sale of capital stock as a result of the gains shown. Incidentally, there also may be increased agitation for reduced rates or increased wages or something else. Verily the day of a railroad executive filled with worries of one kind or another.

The agricultural outlook is better than anyone believed it would be before the recent rains fell so generously in the corn belt. The leading corn

Answering the COAL QUESTION

Eastern Kentucky coals have become very popular in recent years owing to the fact that, considering heat values, they have been, relatively low in price.

We are stocking a very high grade of Eastern Kentucky coal called Blue Flame. This coal is unusually high in heat units, stocks well, and is extremely low in ash. In fact, there is so little ash that we can safely say you will not have a bushel of ash from a ton of coal. Try a ton. You'll want more.

Helpers who stem to work to cooperate on farms as well as in industrial operations, should try to figure out how to do things rather than how to do them. The same thought and energy used in figuring out how and when cannot be attained, would usually accomplish it.

The movement generally to do away with toll bridges over the Missouri river is gaining momentum. One toll bridge, that of the Missouri river at that point, it has been pointed out that a river crossing should be made a part of the free highway. The toll bridge, like the toll road, is stamped as old-fashioned and a hindrance to progress.

Attack on the primary system as being expensive and not expressive of the popular will, has been renewed in different states. The same thought and energy used in figuring out how and when cannot be attained, would usually accomplish it.

Promoters of the late Beatrice chautauque assembly found no encouragement over this year's experience, according to reports. Attendance was light and indifferent. The Beatrice chautauque is one of the oldest in the state, and interest in it has been on the wane for a long time.

Madison county has the champion pig caller, and he is ready to defend his title to the last. One of his antecedents who stood on the roof of Noah's ark and shouted to the denizens of the near and remote world, "This is the ark, this is the ark, this is the ark," and it is hoped one may be added to the attractions at the coming Wayne county fair in the fall.

We have always had an abhorrence of the idea that one person is naturally better than another. We prefer to think that people are born into the world on an equality and that each has as good a chance as another. Probably this is the reason why we find one who is unable to tell the difference between truth and falsehood, and who makes no effort to try to do better than he is.

The demand for houses to rent is greater than the supply. People are unable to find homes moving from Wayne by lack of living quarters. One looking this way for a home to rent is advised to move to the city until he becomes acquainted and convinces himself of values. He wants to convince himself that he is satisfied to stay before investing. However, it is often necessary to buy or pass up the town for some other location. Some modern houses to rent would be a profitable investment. Any one with idle capital could not turn it to better advantage, we believe.

Ringling-Brothers' big circus exhibited in Sioux City Monday and in Norfolk Tuesday, and Wayne county people took the event quite about equally, half going one way and half the other. And speaking of the Ringling circus, people are impressed with the wonderful system by which it sets up and takes down its camp in various places to another every day. There can be no delay on the part of any branch of the show. No one can object to the system, for it is the same, whether he is driving stakes or walking a high wire. Every one must be on the job without any faulting and the work must be done promptly and finished on time. The handling of a great circus is a big job, but it is a job that is done to all of us who are traveling in comparatively small circles.

TWO SHIFTS. Files belong to the day shift, when they are used at night shift, thus leaving no dull moments for exposed humanity. Files like sunlight and heat. They cut the record all day under a scorching sun without danger of being overcome. On the other hand, musceteers thrive in shady, dark places. Stagnant water, their birthplace and seems like home to them. It is only the female mosquito which breeds in the water, equipped with a sharp needle with which to penetrate animal skin for nourishment. It is the female mosquito that drops her eggs and quickly cuts through the cuticle. She provides a living for the family. A mosquito, hatched in the spring, feeds the weight of time so soon that it is likely to die of old age, if it is not killed, before it is born. It goes into hibernation.

From a hospital in Chicago, F. O. Edwards of the Chicago Signal, wrote for his newspaper the details of an operation that was performed on him for removal of a kidney stone. He took local anesthetic, and therefore he was wide awake to the different steps in the operation. His description is more complete than that usually given by either hospitals or patients, and discloses impressions that are very interesting. Edwards is a well-known local publisher, and was president of the National Editorial association last year, presiding over late sessions of the association in a hotel at Los Angeles, Calif. He is a man of wide knowledge, wit and fine tact. Though blind for many years, he is able to accomplish more in a life than most of us. His numerous acquaintances will be glad of the assurance that the operation was not serious and that he is still in the harness with accustomed vigor.

The Land Boom. Lincoln Journal.—Two former western governors, Jackley and Edwards, and Allen of Kansas, were in the National Business organ of the United States chamber of commerce that week. The article is a good one, and is due to a past misstep of the farmers themselves. There was a land boom following the war, and farmers were buying land, but they were buying at inflated prices. When the boom broke, these farmers and their bankers were broke too. That is the nature of a boom.

This was unquestionably the cause of the most acute troubles of a good many farmers. Whether it is the same explanation anybody acquainted with rural neighborhoods can ascertain for himself. To account for the agricultural depression, it would be necessary for a large proportion of the farmers to have been speculating in land. The farmer who did not speculate, who went ahead as a tenant without buying land or who stuck to the old farm without buying more, should have been as prosperous as before the war.

It is impossible to find complete statistics in answer to the question, "How many farmers have been ruined?" In such cases it has appeared that only a small percentage of the farmers, seen in the light of the land boom, owed their troubles to land speculation. Farmers can be reassured that their own neighborhoods determine their own localities. There is reason to believe that this cause holds as to only a minority of farmers. The general causes of the agricultural depression. Farm price levels have become radically lower, relatively to the prices of a decade ago. That is a statistical fact, felt by the non-speculating farmer as well as the speculator. Speculation in land could hardly have caused this occasion of agricultural depression and resentment.

Market Report

Furnished by Steele, Sman & Co., Sioux City Stock Yards.

Sioux City, Stock Yards, Aug. 25.—Following the rather sensational bulge in the general cattle delivery over the country in the last two weeks the moderation in the movement seen early this week allowed the trade to assume a healthier aspect. Feeders in particular moved freely at strong prices, with some buyers in shape owing to almost nightly rains.

At the middle of the week feed steers and yearlings reflect just about the same picture, but not quite so better, than any seen this season. Tops have been moved up another dime to $10.35, while many loads of yearlings have reached the market at $10.25. Many of the $10.25 transactions have been on mixed cattle. Fair kinds sell from a little below $9.00 to $9.75, according to weight and quality. Lightweight material continues getting all the preference and the highest relative value.

Grass killing steers not showing a sufficient amount of hard fat to warrant serious consideration on the part of packers, but lots can be figured around $8. Old loads of fed yearling heifers are now $14 and medium weight grades of heavy corn-fed cows from $6.50 to $7.50 reflect an unchanged sale. With a preponderance of grass butcher stock in the runs packers are still holding the dual rates continue to show the 25 to 30 cent break of last week. Good to choice heifers are worth from $6.50 to $7.50, with fair to good from $6.50 to $6.50 and medium to choice from $4.50 to $5.00. A spread of $6 to $6.50 catches the good western cows coming, but some fancy might earn more. Fair to good cows sell from $5.25 to $6, with

"AS TO 'THANK YOU.'"
A new policy introduced by the National Telephone Company is for a telephone girl to say, "thank you" in response to a request for a number. The response is said to take less time than repetition of the number. Repeating the number, however, had the advantage of verifying it. "Thank you" is polite, but would seem unnecessary in answering a request. It is rather redundant in view of the essential of speed in handling calls on the job and is giving the service requestor. If "yes" is issued in an alto voice, it would seem polite enough and its brevity would save time.

common to fair from $4.50 to $5.25. Canners worth $3.75 to $4.25, and cutters from $3.75 to $4.25. Cattle butchers from $4.75, holsteins from $5 to $5.50 and heavy fed bulls from $5.75 to $6.25. Veals topping at $10.50 to city butchers. Packers at $10.50. Stockers and feeders getting a liberal rate. Prices almost constantly strong with some good. Heavy desirable kinds easiest sellers, with even the inferior kinds moving freely. Actual sales of feeders have filled with the $2 line, while fair to good thin steers of all weights are selling from $5.50 to $7.50, with plain fair from $5.25 to $6.50. Only trash outs, mostly light, sell down to $4 and under.

Feeding cows and heifers also selling in a lively manner on a firm basis. Choice fleshy steers feeding heifers, worth around $7, with fair to good kinds from $5.50 to $6.50 and common to fair from $4.50 to $5.50. Fair to choice feeding cows selling from $4 to $4.40, with common to fair from $3.50 to $4, although at the bottom figures they are only good medium canners.

Packers managed to grasp the upper hand in the hog trade this week. Rather severe treatment was handed out in which cows were forced back to the $10 line. Light lights continue finding an outlet through shipper channels and tops therefore manage to cling to a perch in advance to $13. Lambs continued to hold to the advanced top of last week over the first half of this week. Both natives and westerns are worth $14.25. The top on light killing ewes has remained at $8.25 for several days.

Barren Was Right.
Onish Bee, a circumstantial story from Berlin takes credence. Ehrlich von Ludendorf, quartermaster general of the imperial German army, bought a process to turn all metals into gold. A locksmith's apprentice sold it to the general. The hard-boiled head of the world's greatest military establishment was incredulous enough to believe the story of a boy. Spent his good money to gain control of the mystery through which base metals would be transmuted into precious. When it did not work as represented, the general was human enough to have the boy arrested for swindling. So the story was told in police court. After reading the account, it is easy to understand how von Ludendorf got mixed up in the revolution of a couple of years ago. Also why the authorities dismissed him from custody as being incapable of doing more for the public. Some simplicity desired at the protection civilized government can provide.

Cuming County Fair.
West Point, Neb., Aug. 25.—The Cuming county fair is all set for its opening Monday noon and the three days ending August 30, 31 and September 1. Exhibits promise to be greater and of better quality than any in its history. Max Maudel, chairman, secretary of the fair board. Because, he added, high grade crops this year made excellent exhibits. He also stated that the boys' and girls' club and pig club work will show improvement this year, and the mechanics' and auto exhibits will be interesting. The baby welfare department will be conducted free of charge. There will be a display of art performances twice daily. Baseball will be played every morning and afternoon. Three bands and two orchestras will furnish music. The horse and mill pulling contests are new features of this year's fair, and are exciting much interest. With the new additions to the grand stand, the seating capacity of last year is nearly doubled and all of the new additions to the grand stand. There will be no auto charge. This is one of the reasons why the Cuming county fair is so popular, concluded Mr. Baumann.

No Eyes, No Arms, but He Has Voice in Court

"No, I haven't had a hard time." First the Red Cross Institute for the Blind had this part, then the Veterans Bureau School for the Blind in Baltimore, then Johns Hopkins University and finally the University of Maryland, who in 1920 took his law degree recently.

"A consummation," comments a government report of the event, "of one of the most remarkable cases of abnormal intelligence which have come under the Bureau's supervision."

"Very Grad!" Bromner served throughout the war on the United States battleship New Hampshire and the destroyer Babson. An shore leave in Italy, on a deserted battlefield he picked up what looked like a tin can, which he poked in his hands, testing his both eyes and both arms nearly to the oblivion.

Just before his graduation Bromner visited Washington. "You've had a hard time," Congressman Edouard Rousser told him.

"No," said Bromner quickly. "The government has done much for me. I'm very grateful."

"Have you any messenger or other disabled men throughout the country?" they asked at the Veterans Bureau.

"Tell them for me," was the answer. "I wish you could see a good man down. You can do anything if you try hard enough. It's a safe prediction that when Carl Joseph Bromner takes a law case he'll fight it to a finish."

The legal profession will add to its ranks, when Carl Joseph Bromner hangs up his shingle in the near future, a man whom it is no exaggeration to call an optimist. Eyes, fingers, voice alone, and by a World War bomb—are a convenience but not absolutely essential to the successful practice of the law. Hands—the same bomb, too, of course—were as useful, but a lawyer can do without them.

This argued Bromner when Veterans Bureau officials consulted him concerning the calling he would like to have the government fit him for, that he might become a self-supporting, useful citizen, notwithstanding his maimed body.

"I'd like to be a lawyer."

"The Veterans' Bureau undertook it, and if Bromner has a right to be proud of the result, so has the Veterans' Bureau."

Stuck to It

There were more handicaps than mere blindness and handslessness to overcome. Bromner had only a fifth grade education. A long period of formal training was necessary before he could even begin to study law. He mastered the Braille system, which was perfected on the Braille typewriter. To read the code, however, was impossible for him because of the blindness. The necessity of inventiveness in the stumps of his arms. Hence all lessons had to be heard by the "talk" of the instructor.

Bromner stuck to it and so did the Veterans' Bureau.

McCutcheon Yarn Makes Great Film

The eyelids, fragile flower of the overwintering Alpine snows, forms an important bit of background for "Graustark," the celebrated George Barr McCutcheon novel which has been pictured by Joseph M. Schenck for First National, with Norma Tal madge as star.

When it became necessary for members of the company to devise an entire kingdom in which to set the charmingly romantic story, the eyelids was selected as Graustark's national symbol. It is easily used in uniforms of soldiers, in the city's decorations, and for drapes and bared feet figures inside the palace.

Norma Tal madge appears in one of her most charming roles in this romantic drama. As the Princess Yette, she is once more the lovely young woman who has won such a permanent place in the nation's affection.

Eugene O'Brien appears as Grenfell Lorry, the handsome young American adventurer, and the supporting cast includes Marc McDermodt, Roy D'Arcy, Albert Grant, Lillian Law, Michael Vartick, Frank Currier, Winter Hall, Wanda Hawley and others.

"Graustark" appears at the Crystal ball theatre on Friday and Saturday of this week.

The Noble Red Man.

Lincoln Journal: A few weeks ago there was a great celebration on the old Custer battlefield of the semi-annual of a great victory of the fighting Sioux. The "noble red man" is fighting long ago and is now a mainstay of North Platte valley civilization at beet digging and potato picking times. But for the hands of Indians which quit their reservations and come to the rescue of the pale faces at this season the beet and potato farmers would be hard pressed to get their crops harvested. The Dakota is still able to look out fairly well for himself. He does not trust the white man to this day, but demands his pay at the end of every day. Nor will checks answer with him. It must be substantial jingling silver in hand.

Officials Of County Make Improvements

The Wayne county commissioners, at a meeting October 1, 1884, changed the name of Township 25, Range 3, from Blaine to Brenna. The commissioners were E. B. Moore, J. H. Moses, The commissioners at this time were J. W. Fox, O. F. Crane and A. T. Chapin. T. J. Stock was county clerk.

At the same meeting of the commissioners it was decided that a proposition be submitted to the voters of the county at a tax of three mills on the valuation of real estate to pay for the same. At the election more than two-thirds of the vote favored the building of a jail.

Plans and bids for the new building were submitted May 1, 1885, to the county commissioners. The new building was to be a two-story red brick and jail on the public square. The jail was to contain steel cells for eight persons and room for additional ones to be hereafter. The material used was to be brick or stone, and the cost was not to exceed $5,000.

According to the bids received it was found that a jail in compliance with the requests could not be built for the sum so the number of cells was reduced and the cost was let to G. W. Kortright for $5,000.

The county clerk asked landscape gardening companies for bids on determining and planting trees on the courthouse square. The gardner also was asked to locate the plot of ground in square for the jail site.

A barred fence and pine posts was built around the courthouse square. This structure was let to W. M. Rhodes for $68.86.

For the new building at the courthouse the levy of 3-1/2 mills in taxes was made. The levy for other funds for the year 1885 were as follows: General fund, 6.4; bridge, 3.2; and road, 2.7. This raised a sum of about $15,000.

At a meeting of the commissioners March 13, 1885, the county bought eighteen lots in Greenwood cemetery for a paupers' ground. The cost was $250 and the lots were estimated as being sufficient to care for 144 paupers.

Petitions for many public roads were acted upon by the commissioners in 1885. Most of these were on the section lines and were marked by the county. In November, 1885, it was decided by the commissioners that no new road or section lines would be voted existing that parties desiring them pay expenses of operating same.

Many bridges were also built in 1885 and J. F. Brown received the contract for these for that year. He received $6.44 per foot.

Sloux City Journal: Senator Couzens of Michigan, is a man of enormous wealth and does not need the farm he has bought and improved at the cost of some hundreds of thousands of dollars in the Bloomfield section of Michigan.

He has been able to make it pay, and he now offers it rent-free to any man who can prove to him that he can make a profit from the land. The legislator will even go so far as to pay the taxes on the 900-acre tract, retaining some 400 acres for his own use and releasing 500 to the right man for an indefinite period. In addition, Senator Couzens would make an investment in the stocking of the farm with sheep and cattle or whatever may be needed.

This may look like a bonanza to an enthusiastic farmer of experience, yet he might not be able to make the farm show a profit, according to Couzens' standards. In the first place, let it be understood that the farmer has invested several hundred thousand dollars in purchasing the estate and improving it. There are numerous buildings on the place among them a barn alone that cost $125,000 and said to be the finest in the world. Modern apartments have been built on the second floor of the barn for the employees of the estate. The farm's equipment is costly and modern, the senator's idea having been to make it a model estate, a ward it was a hobby with the Detroit millionaire, and, as hobbies go, a most expensive one.

That would necessitate turning the Couzens estate into a stock farm of some kind, and it also would force a demand for the price for above actual values. To sure it is possible, as it has been on other farms of this character, to breed fancy stock and to raise fancy crops, but at straight farming venture is bound to be a failure. The middle west is thoroughly unappreciative of the facts. When farm land is brought at prohibitive prices it cannot be depended upon to show a profit from one year to another. The thing to watch in the first place is the size of the investment and the possibilities of reasonable yield.

Mrs. James was driving north and Mr. Morse was driving east when the accident happened.

Stanton County To Hold Fair Next Week

The Synthetic Future.

Omaha, Neb. Herald: Chemists seem less inclined than economists to worry over what is going to happen when the population finally catches up with the earth's food producing capacity to support it. They are less inclined to worry because they are more inclined to take the broader and more optimistic view of the world producing capacity of the globe. Instead of viewing that capacity in terms of so many acres yielding so many bushels and so many animals, they take in the sea, the air and the sunlight as direct sources of food supply which have as yet hardly been tapped.

Dr. H. C. Benedict, president of the American Institute of Baking, told members of the Institute of Politics in Williamstown, Mass., that synthetic food prepared by chemists from sunlight and the nitrogen of the air is one of the possibilities for the support of the additional billions of people who may one day inhabit the world. Illustrating the possibilities which lie in concentrated food production he said 20 to 30 men could produce in one day in a manufacturing plant covering a city block yeast to equal the food production of a thousand men working on 70 thousand acres for an entire year.

The answer to that perhaps is that men cannot live by yeast alone. But we are probably inclined to underestimate the importance of yeast as a food because chiefly we have used it not directly but as agent for the chemical transformation of other foods into more palatable forms.

Having in mind the American "excess" in so-called synthetic beverages we aren't inclined to envy the people of the future their sun and air foods. Still, synthetic drinks have been found to be potable and there may come a time when synthetic food will be consumed without accompanying regret which comes after gastro-nomic sickness with buckwheat cakes and sausages.

Fatal Auto Accident Sunday Near Orleans

Orleans, Neb., Aug. 23.—A. C. Stock, 25, farmer, living six miles south of Orleans, and his wife, 30, were seriously injured, the former probably fatally, and their two little children, 2 and 8 years, instantly killed, when their touring car was struck on a railroad crossing a mile and a half west of here at 8 o'clock Sunday morning by Burlington east-bound train No. 45.

The view was unobstructed both ways from the crossing for quite a distance. Road No. 2, two miles west of Orleans, being out of order, a detour sign was up. Each, seeing the train, turned to go south and was caught on the crossing by the Burlington passenger train.

The engine struck the rear wheel of the car, throwing all four occupants from it.

The bodies of the two children were found nearly 20 feet from the scene of the accident. The touring car was demolished.

Train No. 45 stopped and picked them up. The children were taken off at Orleans. Their parents were brought to Alma and are now in the Alma hospital. The father is in a critical condition. The mother will probably recover.

The family had started for Franklin, where his father lives, and intended passing morning by Burlington west-bound train No. 45.

Reincarnation.
Dr. A. L. Birch in Lincoln Journal: According to the doctrine of reincarnation you will be a more amiable baby next time if you grow old gracefully now, calmly considering the situation, and making the best of it.

If you fill the air with discord, and you neighbor's ears with blab, your next incarnation will be a shade more morose than this one, and you earthily habit a home for the feeble-minded.

Discontent.
The A. H. Hix in Lincoln Journal: W. W. Bramble at the beach—we have because the hot winds misbehave. We seek for relief of distress, but every effort makes us tired. We think of other times and say, "It will be better anyway when winter comes." But who the storm king does its worst, some where near January first; when, with a practical cold foot, we struggle through the snow and sleet, we take a vow before all men, we never will complain again when summer comes.

Corn and the European.
Gleba Bay: One of the discoveries made in America still remains strange to Europeans. Ample fulfillment—the pervasive nature of man. Old World dentists took almost unanimously to tobacco, which came from the New World. Indian corn, maize, beneficent gift from nature, they reject. Ranchmen Hampered By High Land Values

High investments in land are one of the most serious problems, the ranch cattlemen has to face. A study made by the United States Department of Agriculture into range-cattle production costs in Colorado last year has shown that the average investment per ranch among 41 ranches was $132,400. Approximately 48 per cent of this was in land and 52 per cent in stock. The rest of the investment was in work stock, buildings, and equipment. Ranchers using high-priced land, says the department, are handicapped, and can succeed only by producing more and better beef at a lower cost.
Some ranchmen whose affairs were studied in the Colorado investigation had as much as 75 per cent of their total investment tied up in high-priced land. It was brought out that the operation of range land, a good share of it on lease, have a great advantage over ranchers operating owned land, especially if it is unimproved. A few ranches were found to be paying more interest on land per cow than the entire net cost of running a cow on other ranches. As a matter of fact, says the department, it has been cheaper to lease than to own grazing land in Colorado in recent years.
Cattle ranching is a heavily capitalized business. Sometimes the capital of a single ranch is greater than the capital and surplus of several banks in its vicinity. Investments in the 42 Colorado ranches studied ranged from $12,000 to more than $500,000. Yet it is common for one man to handle all the business affairs of a ranch and to keep its books. The department says that where land prices are out of line with the productive or grazing capacity of the land, readjustment in interest rates or in land values, or in both, may be necessary to make cattle ranching on owned land a reasonably attractive enterprise.

are certainly getting thick, the latest census showing one auto to every six people. If trucks and motor buses were counted in there would be a machine for every family. The city man wants to get to the country and the country man wants to get to the city, so everybody rides. And while riding they are coming to know each other better, to like each other better and to get more out of life. Nothing, not even war, has served to bring the entire United States closer to each other and make one big family of them as the auto.

That Wonderful Dream.
Harrington Herald: The wonderful dream which the editor of The Herald had recently descriptive of Custer's Last Stand elicits nothing but levity from the Wayne Herald, which remarks coarsely "we wonder what it had been eating." We are sorry the editor of the Wayne Herald is unable to appreciate the fine artistic conception of the above mentioned dream, but he may live to regret his ridicule. Some day, when this dream has been immortalized by being embodied in a great painting to be displayed in metropolitan art galleries, and the dreamer has become rich and famous, he will realize that it was a case of genius and not indignation.

Big Day and Night Fair--

Come to Stanton

Prospective.

(Dr. A. L. Bixby.)
Wheat is near, there is no way to stop it;
Corn will be ripe; and the children will pop it.
North winds will howl, with a rising temperature;
Snow-curtains in every direction; bridges of ice will appear on the river;
Horses will whinny, and cattle will whiver.
Come in your car, but take heed when you park it.
Don't leave a long or the copper will mark it.
"Dollar and costs," and no way to get by it.
Have you a doubt in the matter? Just try it.
Get in your fuel today, my advice is: Don't leave for dealers to "strengthen" their prices.
Now, white conditions are maddeningly propitious.
Shape your defense for the weather when you vicious.
Put up the stuff that the appetite tickles.
Fill up the "treatment with preserves and pickles."
Fruits from the orchard, one thing and another.
That my idea of "preparation," brother.
Now, if my kind admonitions are heeded.
Cats will be seen with supplies that are needed.
When peace and plenty abound thus together,
Who gives a darn for the season or weather?

Party Solidarity Hurt.

York Republicans: Query: What has become of the old, fashioned campaign committee that used to function with great activity and influence in behalf of candidates?
The answer is: A wide-spread campaign against party solidarity has been set on foot. Candidates from governor to county supervisor do not seem to be waiting for the party committee to organize and get the guns unlimbered. The fact is, that with the mixed voting now going on in Nebraska, and the party solidarity is shattered to bits. It is a game of personal political science which each candidate mans out his own plan, and conducts it in his own manner, and accepts the verdict without shifting the blame to a committee that should have done better but didn't. From present indications, the voting in November, 1926, will be done with very small regard to party allegiance and the winners will, in a large measure, be those whose popularity and connections are the most favorable to the political winds that are now blowing.

Rev. Mr. Horne of Grand Island, and comes to Wayne.

One of the worst storms in way of visited Wayne and vicinity September 15. The train going to Norfolk was stopped west of Winside because of the soft ground. The train almost tipped over twice and when it was stopped the roadbed was so soft that the engine was starting down enough in suspension it from the rest of the train. Flood waters from the Carroll vicinity caused Deez Creek to overflow. The water swept down the valley west of Wayne, taking fences, small buildings and railroad tracks. Six miles of track between Wayne and Wakefield were washed out. Several miles of track are out between Wayne and Carroll. Some telegraph poles on the Bloomfield branch were washed away. Some of the railroad track between Wakefield and Concord was washed three-fourths of a mile from the grade. Wayne was cut off from mail four days. Fred Brown carried mail by stage from Emerson to Wayne for a few days. At the Rock & Fortner feed yards, south of town water reached the top of fences. About fifty hogs and some cattle were drowned. W. J. Braslin, James Bressler, Kirwin brothers, James Finn, J. W. Jones, Ray Hurst, James Sheath and Frank Owen also lost stock. John Sherban lost 375,000 brick in the drying yard and these are valued at $3,000. John Lewis lost about 2,000 brick. Many bridges in the country were washed out. Hay stacks on the L. P. Tharp place south-west of Wayne, were piled up and carried about 200 yards. Water was 22 inches deep at Pender and Guy Warren, 8 years old, was drowned while he and his family were moving from their home because of the flood. The damage to buildings in Pender is estimated at $10,000. Lightning struck the Presbyterian church of Emerson and damaged it considerably. Water was several inches deep in business houses in Ponca after the storm. C. J. Rundell who was in Sioux City, came home by way of Norfolk, walking in from two miles west of Winside.

From Ponca Journal, September 19, 1889:

The amazing ox, not the oldest but the biggest in the county, met his fate and was tomahawked yesterday by Mr. Lister, and thus having had his life snuffed out he was duly and bravely interred for indignation by being divested of his hide, head and tail in which condition he was conducted onto the fair grounds and assised to mount the mile of wood for roasting. And there he roasted all night; and this morning he was ready to be cut up and devoured.

It is reported from Lonia that the lively condition of the fish market prevailed. Last week Allan Elyson and Alena Farr built an immense cat fish trap, patterned after Noah's ark, by which it was expected to clean out the Missouri river. They set the trap in one of the romantic shells of the river where it circumambulates the base of the cincture of Lonia volcano, and confidently awaited the coming of the cat fish. The meantime they employed A. B. Cuffee to haul away and market the fish they expected to catch. But for the day the trap did not work. Divil a fish they caught. Come to find out Messrs. Elyson and Farr had baited their trap with corn. The fish would come around and smell of it, and turn up their noses at it, but wouldn't bite it.

The proprietors of the trap had the mistake of baiting for prairie chickens instead of cat fish. Hence they caught none. The fish, with that sort of bait stuck under their noses, became so disgusted that they refused to bite, and they went up the river to the net of T. J. Ryan. There 500 cat fish, weighing in the aggregate 2,500 pounds, were captured in a single night. Mr. Caffee brought them down and sold them in Ponca on Tuesday.

As We Predicted.

Nebraska Farmer: In a recent issue, we observed that the costs of prairie chickens had been raised. The Committee would do "44¢ more, but than good" for they would "shake the confidence of thoughtful men who would like to lend a helping hand" to the farmer.

We hardly expected that our prediction would come true so soon, but scarcely had the news of the fall from our lips until we picked up an article of Commerce and Finance to find the Following editorial comment by Theodore H. Price:

A special committee of agricultural economists appeared at Des Moines and announced that it had ascertained that the cost of farm production in Iowa plus a fair profit for the farmer were as follows: Eggs, 72 cents; wheat, $2.39; corn, $1.22; hay $21.44; hogs, $14.32; veal, $17.24; wool, 67 cents; lambs, $29.77; chickens, 28 cents; eggs, 67 cents.

Of course, these figures are approximate. If they were true, however, the farmer would have been bankrupt years ago. There fore, their publication at this time is most suspicious. It has created an impression that those who had the audacity to announce in the newspapers that they had ascertained that the cost of farm production was so small that the farmer would have been bankrupt years ago, would have been prepared to contribute any reasonable plan for bettering the condition of those who till the soil.

Commerce and Finance is one of the leading business publications in the country. To be sure, it is editorially published in the Standard of Wall Street, but its editor has shown a pronounced leaning toward the agriculture of agricultural inequities. Especially has this been true of his attitude toward the tariff.

Regardless of how we may feel toward the spokesman for eastern interests, the fact remains that without their cooperation we cannot hope readily to progress in securing a better deal for the farmer. Those men know even better than we do that the failure of agriculture would mean their downfall; and once they understand the facts, they will come to the rescue. That tendency is very pronounced now, and it is growing, but as Mrs. Price says, such figures tend to chill the sympathy of those who are in the best position to be of real service.
