Five years of growing popularity. That is the record of our HOT LUMP and HOT NUT coals.

It is "uphill" work to take an entirely new coal and try to introduce it into a neighborhood already served with high-grade coals. We would not have undertaken it except for the fact that we knew we had the best coal to be had of its kind and that time would prove its worth to the consumer and value to us as distributors. We now know our faith in this high grade coal was wholly justified, for after five years of constantly increasing sales, it now stands at the head of all coals distributed in Wayne. A mere trial has convinced scores of customers who now buy nothing else. If you have never tried it, just order a few hundred pounds. We know you will want more.

When any one goes to the trouble intentionally not to speak to you he is paying more attention to you than he would if he acknowledged your presence.

Inquiry reveals the fact that people at coming here from longer distances to trade. Many new faces from outside the usual circle are seen in local stores every week. Thus, Wayne's trade territory is extending, and it justly deserves to do.

The way the state's financial record is coming to front to expose and confuse Charles Bryan's claims, it looks as though his candidacy for the governorship might crumble before election and have to be borne to the goal on the shoulders of some of his party's stalwarts.

Some farmers expect to begin gathering their corn crop next week, while others will delay the work until about November 1 in the belief that it will be better condition to pick then. Corn is more valuable than usual, because it is not overly abundant, and therefore people are anxious to safeguard as far as possible against loss.

Corn husking matches will soon be in order, and Wayne county ought to capture the championship. It has the champion plucking team and is up around the top in nearly everything except swimming the English channel and battling for supremacy in the fist arena, and probably it could score high in those things if they were worth while.

We regret the necessity of omitting several columns of reading matter from the Herald because of lack of room. Insufficient space to accommodate demands has happened frequently of late, but we expect to reverse this handicap when we relocate in a new building and install a new press and other equipment which have been bought.

Our set is off and high in the air to let the culture of Des Moines. One evening recently fiftythree hundred people gathered to see Marion Talbot, Metropolitan opera prima donna, and hear her voice in richest song, while only 700 assembled to see the Eddie Egan and Lucie Arnoux by swimming the English channel.

The Republican, published at Red Wing, Minn., reports that an investigation of "Pawnee Bill" self-styled "Blind the Man," who floods communities with neckties—on request that they may be paid for or returned. It reveals that he is a tough element in St. Louis and that he is unworthy of the sympathy which he

A SHARP TURN.

Seasons follow in quick succession. Winter's icy grip yields to springtime with its rebirth of vegetation. Summer with its heat and sunshine and moisture. Autumn's harvest gives hint of the last lap in the twelvemonth. The breath of October winds foliage and sands leaves, browned and crumpled, scattering to the ground. Thus, years come and go, more slowly and less perceptibly than the recurrence of the seasons and the annual advent and passing of plant life—but just as sure as the individual develops, at first a little, helpless creature, fondled, steered, instructed, encouraged. Then a creature untaught, the marriage altar looms to tear the soul. No matter how worthy a young man may be, no matter how nature and proper it is to surrender a flower from a cherished garden, the relinquishment sends her armaments around her body. It is not long since we husbander to sleep with Mother Goose rhymes. Softly and then come wedding bells, less increase and interest ideas. Is it any wonder sensibility sharp turns in the road? Is it any wonder submission to the correct social process prompts the inevitable? (But who is it that tears for if not to be shed?) It is not a source of regret nor a conventionality to be defined nor a custom to be followed. It is just a natural thing in the course of the maturation of time.

seeks. The Red Wing chief of police wrote the chief of police at St. Louis and received the information contained in the Red Wing Herald. People are advised not to yield to the "Pawnee Bill" style of merchandising.

An appalling story of shoplifting comes out of Fairbury, and it would seem that only a pronounced kleptomaniac could be capable of such wholesale stealing; spread over a long series of years. A trusted lady clerk for fourteen years, being a woman who stood high in social circles as reported by the Fairbury News, was finally caught taking packages out of the store. Her home was searched, and officials were astonished to find rooms crowded with merchandise of an approximate value of $10,000. Among unlawful holdings were fiftytwo ladies' hats, fortyfive ladies' handbags, 711 spools of thread, 400 pairs of ladies' gloves, 400 pieces of hose, and many other things far in excess of the needs of any ordinary family. She and her husband were arrested. D. A. R. officials and police were to be the secret stealings of a trusted employe. Any business may be wrecked by fraud practiced under the cloak of confidence.

THE PEOPLES.

Before the days of rural post-delivery, rural telephones, automobiles and radios, people did not know in so close touch with the outside world as they now are. They could not brush shoulders so easily, and communication was restricted. Now people go everywhere and hear everything. They travel much and observe everything. Speeches are read into the most isolated homes from remote corners. People are kept informed, and they have learned to analyze quickly and justly. The political "bunk" that used to be peddled out with controllable results to excite favor and catch votes, gains little or no credence now. A man who goes up to make a political speech in these days must present unquestioned facts and have sound basis for his argument if he expects to make a political support. He cannot blather in red lies and noise for clear logic and expect to make any headway. He cannot brag with unsubstantiated facts. The people cannot be fooled by thinly disguised demagogues. They are thinking for themselves and they are not afraid of politicians who have had the training to enable them to do so. They are not automatons, moved by the gestures and shouts of designing politicians who know less and accomplish less than the average farmer or townsman whom they would design to instruct and lead.

Savidge Reports Much Improvement

Walter Savidge reports that his amusement company which closed during the fair, did better during the past summer than during either of the two previous years. He found marked improvement in the sales, his experience convincing him that the people were generally prosperous. He says some parts of western Nebraska had the best crops in the history of the country and that the year was reflected in better spirit and improved business conditions.

Silence and Wisdom.
York Republican: They call him Silent Cal. But sometimes and often from the lips of silence drop golden words. Silence, we think, is a necessary precursor to wisdom. For it is the only state in which wisdom can be heard speaking to consciousness. So, it occasionally happens, when men of light tongues and close lips loose restraint they say things others can't hear with profit.

Before he left his summer camp, Calvin Coolidge sat on the veranda and under the spell of the parting hour loosed his silent tongue. A reporter rather fell to his knees in admiration and they made a very important increase to Coolidge sayings. For example:

"I do not think there is much of a factor of luck in the success of men. I should say that it much more depends upon being prepared to take advantage of luck when it comes along. I have never been able to think that fate was guiding my destiny. I never rather fell to my knees to thank after myself. I have found, however, that when I was doing the right thing a great many unforeseen elements were coming in aid to turn to my advantage."

Again: "Presidents are broken down by outside enterprises. Traveling about the country, making speeches, undertaking to furnish inspiration and leadership for all the good causes in the land are some of them. I try to remember there is only one expression of living. I am in first class physical condition. And, while the work of the executive increases every year it is not beyond the capacity of one man to discharge. There is no way that it can be much relieved. The people accept no substitute for the President. In my own experience I have found it most helpful to find out what the President gave voice to that require the executive to do and confine myself to that."

"These utterances, plucked out of many the President gave voice to that talkative day, reveal the sound logic and rare common sense of one whom high duty has not unwarred or spoiled. They reveal, too, why this quiet, unassuming man was there in deathly hour to take the reins of government and handle them with such preparedness and skill."

Let the Herald print your stationery.

The Pageant.
Montgomery, W. Va., Oct. 8, 1926. Dear Huse: Some gracious person has been so kind as to send me a copy of the Wayne pageant and so modest as to conceal his name (or hers). I want, through the columns of your daily journal, to voice my sincere thanks to the one who gave me a few minutes of joy in the reading and much time for meditation over the memories aroused. Of course I have much pride in the fact that an alumna of Wayne college is the talented author and that one of my colleagues helped to stage the action and lastly I have much pleasure in reading the names of my neighbors who helped to make this history and of the children who celebrated the achievements of their elders. Neighborhood feeling is worth cultivating and Wayne has a history worthy to be recalled. And it is not peculiarly fine that Wayne and its college were once the home of the poet whose work will inspire to heroism and lift to joy as long as the English language is spoken and that our people are eager to read his admiring—Sincerely, J. J. House.

"The way things have been going we shouldn't be surprised to wake up one fine morning and realize the English channel had been swum in eight hours by a grand-nephew with one leg.—Chicago Daily News.

clution that during the six McMillen months there had been unnecessary or needless expenditures for me point out that on July 1, 1925, there were still unexpended of the fixed Bryan appropriation the amount of $961,000.45. Under the last appropriations do not lapse for three months after the close of the appropriation period and most of the $961,000 was spent subsequent to July 1, 1925.

"So at the end of Bryan's appropriation period there were shortages: Unexpended appropriations $ 961,000.00 Overdraft in general fund 1,500,000.00

A total shortage of $2,461,000.00 "To offset this there was available only what might still come in from delinquent taxes, which would not amount to a great deal and probably would not reduce the Bryan deficit below two millions."

Gravel for Highway. Fremont, Neb., Oct. 8.—The Cornhusker highway from Hooper to Fremont is being gravelled at the present time and in the past few days between three and four miles of gravel have been laid from Hooper south. There has been no graveling on the south end of the stretch yet, but with the highway's drying rapidly so that gravel may be haulled, the contractors are expected to begin work in the next few days.

The highway project between Winslow and Hooper has been completed, this road being gravelled.

No gravel will be placed on the Black Hills Trail from Scribner to Hooper until the graveling has been completed on the project from Hooper south.

Too Much "Acid"?

Excess Uric Acid Gives Rise to Many Unpleasant Troubles.

Authorities agree that an excess of uric acid is primarily due to faulty kidney action. Excretion of this toxic material often makes its presence felt by sore, painful joints, a tired, languid feeling and sometimes, neck, backache and headache. That the kidneys are not functioning right is often shown by scanty or burning passage of secretions. Doan's Pills cleanse their kidneys at such times by the use of Doan's Pills—a stimulant diuretic. Doan's Pills are recommended by many local people. Ask your neighbor.

cow ponies; riders also no doubt, and that a load of Mexican cattle will be procured for the show... We have at present two rodcos on the 101 range in Oklahoma and one in the city of Mexico, in addition to a few imitations of the real thing, and we have no hesitation in pronouncing every rodco wholly undesirable... We have seen steers get their horns crushed and broken in some respects... In some respects a rodco is more undesirable than a prize fight... In a prize fight two men accept large sums of money and voluntarily undertake to be whipped and punished and blood-letting connected with every real prize fight... The steers that are maulated in a rodco have no defense against their persecutors... We have never willingly attended a rodco, recognizing the fact that it has no redeeming features, but a newspaper man finds it necessary sometimes to go to uninviting places...
