Midland Wins In Game With Wayne

Single Touchdown, Near Close of Contest Gives Visitors Victory On Friday.

The football game between Wayne State Teachers College and Midland college of Fremont, played here Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock, resulted in a 6-0 victory for the visitors. In the last few minutes of play, the visitors recovered a Wayne fumble and scored a touchdown on a forty-yard run by a player who was aided by a score of 6 to 0 in favor of Midland.

The contest was notable for being the first of its kind in Midland. Neither eleven was able to score in the first three quarters, though Wayne was better able to advance the ball than the visitors.

The closing game of the season for Wayne will be this Thanksgiving-day with Western Union college at LeMars, Iowa.

Early Resident Dies On Tuesday

Mack Miller, Dies Here at Age of 85 Year After Illness of Several Weeks.

Came As Pioneer

First Located On Peter Miller Homestead Southwest of Wayne—In the Eighties.

Mack Miller, early Wayne county resident who had been ill at his home in Wayne the past five weeks, passed away Tuesday evening at 10:30, aged 86 years, 1 month and 16 days. His arrangements for his funeral were definite but it is planned that E. Parker Smith of Tekamah, will be in charge of service at the Beckenbush funeral home.

Mr. Miller came to Wayne in 1885. For a number of years he was on the Peter Miller homestead southwest of here. He later moved into Wayne where he since resided. Though he had been in failing health for about thirty years, he was always cheerful with esteem his fine type of character.

Mr. Miller was born in Pelee, Ohio, on October 7, 1841. He married Miss Caroline Shaw at Birmingham, Ohio, December 26, 1878. The family came to Wayne county in November of 1885.

Besides his wife, Mr. Miller has three daughters and one son as follows: Mrs. L. S. Smith, Mrs. Walter Miller, Mrs. Guy Strickland and Mrs. Lloyd Fitch, all of Wayne. One sister, Mrs. Lucy Cole of Portland, Ore., also survives.

County Pioneer Passes Away Here

Funeral Service Held Wednesday for Mrs. Anna Vahlkamp Who Dies at Age of 87.

Mrs. Anna Vahlkamp, pioneer of this county who had lived southwest of Wayne since 1888, passed away Monday morning, November 22, at 8 o'clock. She was 87 years old. Her funeral service was held Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the home of her son, Herman Vahlkamp, and afterwards in the Theophilus Lutheran church, Rev. William Fischer being in charge. Interment was made in the cemetery southwest of Wayne.

Mrs. Vahlkamp's maiden name was Miss Anna Meier. She was born September 16, 1839, in Westphalia, Germany. She was married September 24, 1864, to Friedrich Vahlkamp in Germany. The family came to this county in September, 1888, and located in Otse county, Nebraska. In 1888 they moved to Wayne county and had since then made their farm home southwest of Wayne.

Mr. Vahlkamp died July 8, 1919, and one son, Henry Vahlkamp, died in March, 1920. Decedent leaves two sons and four daughters as follows: Herman F. Vahlkamp, Fred W. Vahlkamp, Mrs. August Wright, Mrs. August Vahlkamp, and Mrs. August Reuter of Syracuse, Neb. Twenty-eight grandchildren and thirty-two great-grandchildren also survive.

Mrs. Reuter of Syracuse, came for the funeral so that all of the children of deceased were present.

Mr. Vahlkamp's wife, Mrs. Anna Meier, made their home for a number of years with their son, Herman E. Vahlkamp, near Stanton. The estate of the deceased was administered by her and her friends will know her and her friends will know her fine Christian character.

Boy scouts of Wayne located Red Cross members Saturday and they received $45 which goes to the treasury of the organization. The annual roll call closes Thanksgiving day.

"Impossible!"

—That's what you'll say. But it's the truth. Here's the story. A customer was paying for his Hot Lump Coal and said, "When you told me Hot Lump is a better coal than Pinnacle, I didn't believe it. But it is. I let my fire go from Monday to Friday without putting in any fresh coal and there was still enough fire left to start, corn-cobs. That sounds almost unbelievable. It is a statement of fact. For obvious reasons, we do not publish the name of our customer who told this to us, but he is a well known farmer in this community and if you doubt this story we will furnish his name so that the statement may be verified.

Hot Lump is truly a wonderful coal. Clean, hot, lasting, little ash and almost smokeless. If satisfactory results are not obtained with it, we usually find it the result of improper firing on the part of the user.

Spilling hairs over church dogmas appear trivial and foolish in the presence of great, common problems that need united, earnest attention.
Following on the heels of pig calling contests which are losing out, are promised ascending popularity of blowing contests. An average town may supply plenty of likely winners.

We are thankful among other things for handy proximity to a capacious wastebasket to receive the steady flow of free propaganda, and are further thankful that said propaganda is not impervious to fire.

Queen Marie of Roumania, is cutting short her visit and turning back home in response to word that the king is sick. We are a little suspicious of the king's reigning illness, having known men to become terribly ill when their wives are away visiting and then suddenly recover when they do so. We do not know the king, but he may be dissembling.

A politician who carefully withholds his judgment on anything to everything that is said, maintains popularity longer than the one who expresses himself adversely at who allows himself to take issue with another. An accomplished politician in office will smile benignly and say nothing that could possibly be construed as reflecting an opinion.

Boys and girls should understand that it is honorable to work hard and to have a good job. They should know that when they are employed in useful service, they are very much enhanced in popular esteem. Besides, the habit of work to which the will to do it, they will develop stronger characters to resist evil temptations. Many crimes in large centers are perpetrated because the practice of failure to understand the importance of work and failure to develop ability to work. Then come those who take to crime without money, and then surrender to crime to secure unearned profits and gratify unearned luxury. Of Saturday of this week and problems of interest will be discussed: Prof. J. G. Lewis, Dean H. E. Hahn, Miss G. C. Conroy, Miss V. T. March, Miss Blair, and Miss Pierce of Wayne. Mrs. Catherine Tunberg and Mrs. Ada Riedler, former students of this school, were elected to the committee in charge of the program; and Prof. I. H. Briell is chairman of the entertainment.

Graduates of the Wayne State Normal who have been this fall elected officers of county superintendent are as follows: J. W. Miller of Neligh, Miss Anna Will of Ponca, Miss W. P. Richardson of Wayne, Miss M. P. Pierce, Miss Mabel Marsh of Blair, and Mrs. V. T. March of Wayne. Mrs. Catherine Tunberg and Mrs. Ada Riedler, former students of this school, were elected to the committee in charge of the program; and Prof. I. H. Briell is chairman of the entertainment.

MECHANICISING
We were surprised to hear a man say mechanizing methods were a deceptive new way to be used to be used. We are far from agreement with him. We would not disparage old-time merchants, but we think that the new and employed questionable means to gratify greed for gain. But we would say without fear of successful contradiction that people engaged in selling to the public at this time occupy a higher plane than was ever known before in other times that peddled household goods. The old days people did not come to frontier towns to embark in business for fun or for health. They had no other money, they had no stocks, and then their customers ran long-time accounts, making settlement on a year. There was no question of the working party and the dealer who was not overly scrupulous, was tempted to take advantage of the opportunity. Now, with general money, with stocks, utilities and values, it would be impossible, if one were so inclined, to take the inferior goods or the cheap, low priced goods, and the dealer who was not overly scrupulous, was tempted to take advantage of the opportunity. Thanksgiving
With every recurring Thanksgiving day we are reminded of many things for which to be grateful. A day set apart for the purpose gives emphasis to our blessings. It centers attention on the good that has come into people's lives. It is not intended to make one country or one group or an individual feel puffed up over advantages bestowed by special favor or divine providence. It is not intended to sharpen contrasts between the good and the bad. It is intended to give us a sense of unity and to give us a sense of unity and to give us a sense of unity.

Love Nebraska.
Dr. A. L. Birby, Dr. B. Jarrett, name to Lincoln when the state was in its swaddling clothes. It was the first of the old state from which they emigrated, and are much inclined to "boost California" without knowing Nebraska. Mr. Jarrett visited in Nebraska for the first time two years ago along the journey and in the full use of his mental powers.

New Officers of Society Chosen

Convention of Missionary Delegates Closes in the Wayne Methodist Church.

The Women's Foreign Missionary societies of the Norfolk district, at the annual convention held in Wayne last week Wednesday and Thursday elected Mrs. A. E. Johnson of Stanton, president for the ensuing year. Mrs. A. E. Fowler of Wauza, is corresponding secretary and Mrs. E. Gildersleeve of Wayne, is treasurer. Mrs. Carl Jeffrey of Laurel, was named superintendent of the young people's work. Mrs. V. A. Seiler of Wayne, was one of the members of the nominating committee.

The program of last Thursday evening with an address by Mrs. Ors Reynolds of Topeka, Kan. Mrs. F. M. Gregg of University Place, and Mrs. W. C. Long of Waverly, were other principal speakers here. The college choir sang Wednesday evening and a play was presented by the students of the school. The orchestra furnished music Thursday evening. The Standard Bearers gave a play Thursday afternoon.

The Standard Bearers had a one session meeting in connection with the women's conference. The girls sang "The Methodist" paraphrase and the conference. The conference and district secretary of young people's work spoke to them of what had been done by the society in the past and what are the goals for the future.

The delegates, numbering about twenty-five, were entertained in the home of Mrs. V. A. Seiler. The missionary society served dinner for the group Thursday noon.

W. A. Hunter Hauled First Lumber Here

The first lumber was brought to Wayne July 3, 1885, by W. A. Hunter. The lumber was to build a house for Mr. Maxwell on a site which is now the southeast corner of the high school grounds. Mr. Hunter was a hardware and lumber dealer in LaPorte for about a year and a half before coming to Wayne. His was the first house here. He also had the first hardware store here and for this he built a frame structure on the lot now occupied by the Garhart hardware store.

Mr. Maxwell was particular as to the kind of lumber used in his home in Wayne so the very best was brought by Mr. Hunter from Wauza. The material was brought by lumber wagon. Mr. Hunter went to Wauza on July 2 and took the lumber as far as his home near LaPorte that evening. He came the rest of the way to Wayne on the following day.

In the fall of 1885 and the spring of 1886 a number of houses were moved from LaPorte to Wayne and others were built here. Progress here was slow until after the county seat was moved and then Wayne prospered.

Find Buffalo Heads.

Randolph, Neb., Nov. 19.—While hunting wild ducks on Pearl Creek, near here, Mike Hosh and his two sons, Francis and Leo, found two buffalo heads which were the result of rains had unearthed and were left showing in the swampy bottom of the stream.

One of the specimens includes almost three-fourths of the head of what must have been a large buffalo, the left horn being broken off. The other was a right horn, perfectly shaped with a part of the skull attached, the size indicating that it must have been from an extra large buffalo. The number of buffaloes ranged over this part of Nebraska 60 or 70 years ago.

Treasurers Meet In Session Here

Ten Officials and Three Representatives Discuss Common Problems Thursday.

Ten county treasurers of the Third congressional district of Nebraska and three representatives met at the Wayne court house last Thursday afternoon to discuss the automobile license question. The automobile license matters to come before the next legislative session. The meeting was also to help newly elected treasurers in an understanding of the work.

The treasurers here included the following: G. A. Ireland of Burt county, E. G. Fechner of Stanton county, Earl W. Reynolds of Knox county, Fred Wackel of Cuming county, W. L. Boettcher of Platte county, Nettie Baker of Thurston county, Clara B. Kaul of Madison county, Bertha Watson of Boone county, Mr. Rockwell of Dakota county, and J. J. Steele of Wayne county. Angus Wiegler of Wayne, Mr. Brown of Stanton, and Mr. Reagan of Columbus, were representatives present.

The Wayne county treasurer, Mr. Steele, has received the automobile license plates for 1927 and these may be obtained when the certificates are ready and this will be about December 10. The new plates are maroon background with white figures. Stanton county has 400 in stock, 300 for trucks, twenty for dealers and a few for motorcycles and trailers.

Reginald Denny Is Coming To Crystal

A real star can be a star in any picture or any cast.

That's the theory of William Seiter, Universal director—and he's confirmed that Reginald Denny is such a star. Consequently, Denny is surrounded not by obscure players who cannot dim his own personality. His casts are chosen from among the most capable and popular players in the film industry, and Denny has yet to be shadowed by a performer in a lesser role.

Law Moran—former two-reel comedy star of the "Lyons and Moran" team, and Ben Hendricks, jr., popular leading man, have roles almost as important as that of the star.

Ethel Wales, prominent character actress, Lucien Littlefield, featured in many big productions Tom O'Brien of "Big Parade" fame, Vera Lewis, Frances Dale, Betran Johns and others, are also in the cast.

"Take It From Me" is a screen version of the New York musical comedy success of the same name, written by Will B. Johnston and Will R. Anderson. Harvey. They wrote the screen adaptation.

The meek shall inherit the earth, but not, maybe, till all of the other kind shall have died.—Louisville Times.

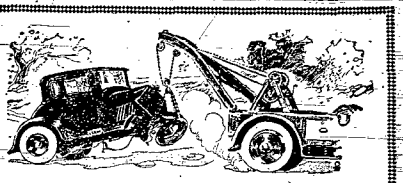

Favorable Mention of Wayne Men's Talks

The Emerson Tri-County Press gives the following favorable mention of speeches presented by Supl. T. S. Hook and J. H. Kemp of Wayne, at a recent father and son banquet in Emerson:

"Prof. T. S. Hook, superintendent of the Wayne schools, now took the floor and being more or less of a humorous turn of mind entertained as well as gave out many suggestions for serious thought both to the dads and the lads. He stated that Prof. Hodapp had covered most of the ground and many of the questions he had intended to touch upon but for that reason his talk would be short one, merely touching the more important things as they appeared to him at an instance and from what he had gleaned during his many years in the work of handling boys. Mr. Hook is a pleasing speaker as well as an impressive one and the large crowd present gave him its undivided attention from start to finish.

"The closing address was made by John H. Kemp, also of Wayne, an educator, whose talk was more particularly to the boys and for 20 minutes Mr. Kemp dealt upon subjects covering the period from boyhood to manhood, his remarks being well received. On account of the lateness of the hour his address was cut somewhat short. He laid particular stress upon the subject of education spiritually as well as materially, and advised all the boys as well as all others to attend divine services regularly for the reason that they would be better boys and men for it."

Money made the mare go, but it's credit that runs a lot of motor cars. Wall Street Journal.

You Never Can Tell!

Accidents have a peculiar habit of happening to people who neither want nor expect them.

To the motorist especially there's always the danger of some reckless driver or faulty road taking its toll of damage to the car.

Schools Have Their Annual Thanksgiving Vacation On This Thursday and Friday

Debate Live Questions Entire Convocation Period—Other School News of Week

Assembly Notes.
School will be closed Thursday and Friday, November 24 and 25, for Thanksgiving vacation. Report cards were issued Wednesday, November 24. Some of the pupils of the French classes have bought imported French dictionaries, of pocket size, through New England publishers. The English class is playing the assembly each this week.

The convocation periods of November 16 and 17 were given over to the debating team. On November 16 Elmer Exleben debated the affirmative side of the Curtis-Reed bill and the Richards bill. On November 17, Clarence negative. On November 17, Clark Wright debated the affirmative side of the Curtis-Reed bill, and Walter Reep the negative.

Senior Class.
Members of United States history class have studied up to the constitution. They will study the critical period and the constitution. The naval battles of the war and foreign aid made up part of the study. Economics class has finished the unit on exchange and transfer. It is now working on the unit reform in distribution. It takes up such theories as seal tax and commission.

The last football game of the season will be played Saturday, November 27, when Wayne meets South Sioux City. Last Wednesday there was no practice. The team with Coach Peterson studied a new pass defense and Stanton's offensive play.

A meeting of the "W" club was called Wednesday to discuss plans for future entertainments. An entertainment committee was appointed by the president to make definite plans. The matter of a constitution was brought up, but was postponed until the next meeting to be held the first Monday after Thanksgiving.

Kindergarten Notes.
Kitchen and dining room furniture is being made by the kindergarten class this week. The kindergarten class is trying to carry out the rules of a health chart called "The Six Best Doctors." The doctors are sunshine, water, rest, fresh air, exercise and diet.

Mrs. A. W. Christensen was a visitor this week.

Health Grade Notes.
A health contest is being conducted. A poster named "Health Fairy House" is used. The room is divided into two sides—girls on one side and the boys on the other. There is a story connected with the poster.

The rules are: Drink only milk, cocoa or water; eat some vegetables and fruit on table at each meal; eat cereal whenever it is prepared for a meal; brush teeth every day; after breakfast and after supper clean hands and nails; wash hands before each meal; clean faces, necks and ears and comb hair before coming to school; sleep ten to twelve hours with window open; and a tub bath at least twice a week and clean underwear after each bath.

Indian tents and caps are being made for Thanksgiving. Also free hand drawn turkeys have been cut, colored and designed in rapidly.

Catherine Young, Eugene Peterson and Anson Mau were absent this week because of sickness.

Second Grade Notes.
The children are working Thanksgiving projects such as nutcrackers, turkeys from pine cones and planning Thanksgiving menus. They are studying about the Pilgrims, and also about the Indians in connection with the Pilgrims.

The children are making booklets about clothing. They put pieces of different kinds of cloth in the booklet showing what materials are used for clothing.

Bonadell Porter, Paul Milder and Anson Jones were absent last week on account of illness.

Third Grade Notes.
A contest is being conducted in the third grade room. A race track chart is used on which miles are marked off. The room is divided into two sides, each side choosing his automobile. The goal is four hundred miles. The side reaching the destination first wins the contest.

If everyone on his side eats one apple every day, the side that reaches one mile, and for each additional vegetable eaten, an additional mile is covered. They must also brush their teeth twice a day; drink only milk, cocoa, or water; wash their hands before each meal; wash hands, clean fingernails, and comb their hair before coming to school each day; and sleep from ten to twelve hours with windows open each night.

The A class supplementary reading is making posters of the gringham dog and the calico cat, also Indian tents decorated with original designs.

Anson Jones was absent this week. Beery by the language class, telling her what kinds of stories they like the best. Prizes are to be given to the ones writing the best letters.

Mrs. O. B. Haas and Robert Haas were visitors this week. Gladys Downing and Margaret Jones were absent because of sickness last week.

Fourth Grade Notes.
The history class is reading stories from girls and boys of weeks up town, from the book of health stories and citizenship. Jane Gayle Jones fixed an apple to represent Santa Claus and brought it for the room Thursday. The spelling class had a perfect lesson of one hundred per cent Tuesday. John Oliver Johnson had his collar bone broken out of place Wednesday, while playing. Frank Gamble and Helen Green were absent on account of sickness Wednesday.

Fifth Grade.
The A class sent to San Francisco for material on Asia. It received maps, ship routes, maps of cities and literature on the country. The pupils have been giving special reports taken from the literature received. The class has completed the study of Asia. Members of the A language class are writing letters to their friends in Santa Cruz, California. They are finding out about the trees, flowers, the ocean, the climate, and other things that are to be seen in California. The class is studying letter writing in this way.

The study of history was started by the B class. The pupils have completed the study of hygiene. The B class has also completed the study of South America. Each pupil of the fifth grade is trying to win the pin which is awarded for the completion of the first twenty-five Palmer method drills. The drills have to come up to a certain standard before the pin is awarded. A tidy contest is being held. Each row is inspected at noon and at night for its appearance. The desks, the inside and top of the desk, the books have to be arranged neatly inside the desks, and only the ink bottles may remain on the top of the desks. The rows having one hundred percent are marked on the board.

The A class had one hundred percent in spelling last week. The score for the multiplication contest being held is Pirates 16, Senators 14. The contest is to last six weeks. The fifth grade has been reviewing towards the six weeks' examinations.

Sixth Grade Notes.
The sixth grade has started work on the first twenty-five Palmer method drills. Each pupil is trying to earn the pin that is awarded when the first twenty-five drills have come up to a certain standard. They intend to finish the drills by the end of the first semester.

A health contest between the A class and the B class was started last week and is to last six weeks. Each day the pupils are inspected for clean hands and teeth and for the appearance of their hair. The winners are to be awarded prizes.

The A class has started the study of the valleys of central California. The study is of the state of the Imperial valley and the valley of southern California. The sixth grade has been reviewing for the six weeks' examinations.

Seventh Grade Notes.
The B class is studying the colonization period of America. The study of South America has been completed and is now making booklets on South America. The B class is studying the causes and results of the war of 1812.

Eighth Grade Notes.
The Fallen Arch Sixes are thirty minutes ahead of the class in their arithmetic contest. Whenever a pupil has a 100-per cent lesson, his side advances five miles. Deahli Livinghouse is captain of the Fallen Arch Sixes.

The class is studying the "Lost Battalion" for reading. The B class has been studying Dr. Trudeau's work in physiology. Robert Jorgensen was written to Saranac Lake, New York, to find additional material concerning the work at the sanitarium.

The B class in history is studying immigration. Members have been discussing the question, "Why has the United States been restricting immigration, and what restrictions have been made?" Genevieve Barlow and Murray Powers were the eighth grade notes this week.

Ninth Grade.
The B science class is starting the study of food and its sources. It has finished the study of the weather and climate for this six weeks. The A reading class has finished the collection of newspaper articles that have been written previous to this time. They have been chosen by the critics as the finest examples of feature stories, news articles and essays that could be collected from modern newspaper columns in New York, Chicago and Detroit papers.

The B class grammar class is using new blanks for exercises in grammar. They are closely connected with any grammar book that may be used in regular grammar work. The physiology class is studying posture.

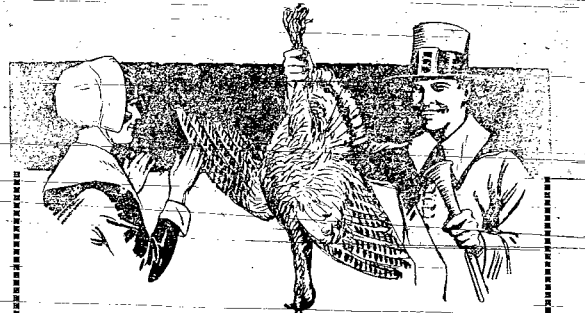

On Being Late.
The A class supplementary reading is making posters of the gringham dog and the calico cat, also Indian tents decorated with original designs.

Letters were written to the majority of people are habitually late. Late to everything—late to church, argument in favor of universal military training for both men and women—it would inculcate the duty of punctuality. Perhaps, there is some other method of teaching it, but if equally admitted and deplored, but for which no cure has evidently been

A. W. Teed Writes

On Rural School

Article for Nebraska Educational Journal of Interest to Patrons Here.

Prof. A. W. Teed of the Wayne State Teachers College, has written for the Nebraska Educational Journal the following article on "Needed Changes in Rural School Policies" which will be of interest to school patrons and instructors in our community.

"The outstanding problem of our generation is the problem of the rural school. If the perpetuation and improvement of our civilization depends upon the health of the people, then no state or nation should have one standard of educational opportunity for urban children and another for rural children. About fifty per cent of Nebraska's future are receiving their elementary education in the rural schools making the problem one of peculiar importance to our state. Improvement of these schools must come through educating rural patrons in just what constitutes a good school and providing sufficient funds to sustain the better type. The most discouraging feature in this process of education is the fact that as communities they do not stay educated. This year a certain district may have an excellent school, but five years may bring about changes in local conditions that make the school worse than no school at all. It seems that no school should be strong enough to prevent such calamity, even though we lose some of our boasted democracy of local government.

Teacher is Chief Factor.

"The teacher is the chief factor in any school but in the rural school her importance is multiplied by the fact that she must not only instruct her pupils but in addition she must be the superintendent, principal, art supervisor, music supervisor, penmanship supervisor, community leader and janitor. And there are those who would add to this list further duties as nurse, dietitian, physical director, household economist, and agricultural expert. And all from one little pile of uncertain youthful age, with little experience, less experience and for less pay than that given to the janitor of the adjoining town school.

"Most rural schools are taught by those with the preparation or experience to teach anywhere else. They are accidental rural teachers who have drifted into the work because of the lower standards required. The cumulative county examinations, normal training in high schools, short courses in the normal schools have given us all too many such teachers. During this shortage of teachers due to war such compromise standards were necessary in order to equip the schools with teachers of any kind, but happily no such emergency confronts us at the present time and there is no longer any valid reason for rural schools accepting teachers with less preparation than that demanded for the town schools. Higher standards of admission and the necessary longer term of training will give us intentional teachers who, because of the rewards offered, do not deliberately choose rural teaching as a profession and make special preparation for that work. School authorities should recognize this training by paying better salaries to such teachers.

"Better trained teachers alone will not solve the teaching problem. A new teacher each year and sometimes two or three in the same year is too often the fate of the country children. No teacher should receive maximum efficiency the first year in a position. Certainly a longer tenure even at a higher salary would be the part of real economy. Some counties have worked out a schedule calling for a regular increase in salary based upon preparation and experience. This is a move in the right direction but will be too slow in spreading over the state. A better plan would be to give such teachers a bonus from state funds.

Course of Study Basis.

"The course of study is probably the most perplexing problem of the rural school. There must be an everlasting compromise between what we should like to teach and what we can teach. The key of all lies in basing the idea that we are going to give a complete education in the eight grades of the elementary school. Too many things have been forced into the rural school curriculum upon the assumption that the child will quit school at the sixth or seventh grade, therefore if the child is to be taught in the grades or never. Thus we have some work attempted in the grades that belongs in the high school or college. Splendid teachers quit rural schools every year on account of the great number of classes they are asked to teach knowing that good work is impossible with such short recitation periods. Those who are less capable or less conscientious are often satisfied because they do not realize their failure. It would seem that the first objective of the rural school should be a thorough training in the essentials. If a child goes out of the eighth grade with the ability to read he has the key that will unlock the information of the world. If he can speak and write good English, he can communicate with his fellow men. If he has been trained in self control and cooperation, he will be a valuable member of his social group. If he has been trained to appreciate nature, music, literature and art, he will have an appreciation of life that satisfies and leads to contentment. The work of the rural school should be social rather than vocational. There is no reason in depending that the rural school teach in terms of agriculture than there would be in depending that Omaha teach in terms of the stockyards or Lincoln in terms of politics. Certainly the rural course of study should develop an appreciation of country life but democracy demands that the pupil be prepared so far as possible for any kind of life that he may later see fit to choose.

Lack of Supervision.

"Omaha with 380,000 teachers and 40,000 pupils all within easy reach of one central office has almost as many supervisors as do the 4,255 teachers and 184,000 pupils in Nebraska's rural schools scattered over 77,620 square miles. The contrast is even greater when we recall that those who supervise the Omaha schools are high class specialists with the best of training for the specific work they are expected to do.

"Nebraska's system of electing county superintendents by popular vote will never secure trained supervisors for the country schools. Can anyone imagine Omaha or Lincoln selecting a city superintendent by such a process? The administration of our schools will never be divorced from politics until our state and county superintendents are selected on the basis of educational fitness by boards competent to pass upon the training and experience of the candidates. But all the training and experience that money can afford will not enable one person to properly supervise the schools of an entire county in addition to the office work required of our Nebraska county superintendents. Some townships in Indiana employ a township supervisor. Minnesota secures supervision for some of its rural schools by affiliating with the adjoining city school. In other states the county superintendent has one or more supervisors who spend their entire time in the field. This movement toward better supervision is probably the outstanding feature in rural education today. Our county superintendents must have trained assistants if the rural schools are to have the advantages of modern supervision.

Regular Attendance Means Loss.

"The need for full time attendance on the part of rural pupils is too evident to require much argument. With average conditions the school with sixty per cent attendance cannot be more than sixty per cent efficient. In other words the taxpayer cannot receive more than sixty cents on the dollar invested. With minimum attendance the rural pupil cannot be expected to finish his school grades in less than twelve years. This means that he will become over-age and never finish. If education is of sufficient importance to justify the taxation of those without children on the grounds of public good, then the public good demands that all pupils attend full time.

Cost of School Houses.

"It is poor economy to spend money on a school in which pupils and teachers suffer from lack of materials and equipment. Modern education requires tools and any district is short sighted that fails to provide them. Plenty of text-books, maps, a globe, supplementary readers, writing materials, primary supplies and a well selected library should constitute the absolute minimum equipment for any school.

"The school building in many Nebraska districts misrepresents the community. What should be the best building in the community from the standpoint of architecture, convenience, and conservation of health is often the poorest and suffers by comparison with the barns and other farm buildings. Often one man has more invested in his pleasure car than the entire community has invested in the education of its children. A good looking building with good lighting, lighting, seating and ventilation pays dividends in health and contentment. We often pity the poor children of the city slums but even they usually have a better school home than the children of the well-to-do farmer."

Vehicle Traffic Is On The Increase

Lincoln, Nov. 20.—Traffic on Nebraska state highways is heavier on Sunday and Wednesday and during the week it is heaviest during the hours from 10 a. m. to 2 p. m., an analysis of the check on vehicle traffic made during the week of August 15 to 21 by the state highway department disclosed today.

25 per cent increase.

Traffic was checked for the week at ninety-two points. The average number of vehicles passing the ninety-two points each day during the week was 888 or an increase of 23 per cent over a check made in 1924 by the department. The number of horse drawn vehicles was surprisingly low.

From the check, the highway department is enabled to make comparison of highways where truck traffic is heaviest with highways where it is lightest and determine to a certain extent the severity of trucks on the highways.

It was interesting to note that traffic in the eastern section of the state, where the population is greater, was not much heavier than in the western part of the state. As an example a total of 4,312 vehicles passed the checking point near Chisleville, while 4,032 vehicles passed the checking point near Beatrice.

Business.
Sioux City Journal: Business interests of all kinds are looking forward to the next session of congress in the hope that Uncle Sam may declare what might be called a tax dividend. No one doubts that the reform it will take since the two major political parties are wrangling whether it shall be a refund or a reduction in rates, but the public's interest lies not in method so much as in the possibility of paying less on 1926 incomes.

The estimated treasury surplus of $300,000,000—some estimates ran as high as $500,000,000—would be distributed throughout the country if a refund were agreed upon—rates were revised downward. This means, of course, that the refund, if put through, would be applied on tax payments next year, or if the rates are changed, that less would be paid by the taxpayers. So it amounts to the same thing in the end in its effect on business and business interests.

Business, itself, has been responsible for the surplus, whatever the figure is to be. Or, it might be the same thing in the end in its effect on business and business interests.

Business, itself, has been responsible for the surplus, whatever the figure is to be. Or, it might be the same thing in the end in its effect on business and business interests.

A dividend in this amount declared by the federal government, either in a refund or reductions, probably would not signify that an impressive amount of the present administration's policy is being abandoned or employed in expansion of business. It is more likely that it would find its way for the most part into bank accounts, some of them perhaps, into free securities. Expansion has lost its force as an argument for tax reduction for the simple reason that the industrial establishment is such as easily can handle any production—the market at home or abroad—demand. It is still possible, however, to view this tax relief promised as a sign of prosperity. In the first place prosperity was responsible for the surplus and in the second millions of citizens and taxpayers would find they had more money than they thought they possessed.

As the time for the next session of congress approaches, taxation, apart from new efforts for farm relief, is about the only thing seen in legislation that will affect business materially. The railroads, which have done well this year, do not seem to be threatened with a new movement to harness them as they have increased in net operating income by some scores of millions of dollars for a total. The present administration is adhering pretty well to its promise, not to interfere unduly with business, and the tailed of the present congress is not particularly interested in starting something it will not have time to finish.

Farm relief legislation is taking a new lease of life since the southern planters and the middle west farmers have discovered they had a mutual cause. If some kind of farm legislation could be passed in the next session of Congress with the agricultural interests given an equal chance with other enterprises, business would receive an impetus stronger than possibly could be produced by anything else. The important thing in business, of course, is maintenance of a strong buying power undisturbed. Higher prices for farm products would mean the distribution where needed—of hundreds of millions of dollars, much of which would go to increase the general public's buying power throughout the country. Industrialists might study this phase of the question with an advantage since buying power means more to them than to anybody else.

Galley and Mrs. L. C. Gildersleeve.

Alison Neely.

Alison Neely, who has wondered a good many times just what genius was. In an issue of The Shaft we find a partial answer to our query. She is a genius. The word genius calls a genius. Or the life of any man you call a genius. And in every life you will find a genius. It is only the genius of taking pains. The genius of being willing to pay the price. The genius of staying with it and staying with it long after "enough"—and then wanting out of it all the answers—the right answer.

Injured by Gun.

Hartington, Neb., Nov. 15.—Beckley, a backfire from a defective shell which he fired from a gun while hunting on his farm near Laurel, Clarence Meyer may lose the sight of his left eye. The shot entered the face near the eye. Several articles are embedded in the eye itself. The man was taken to Sioux City, Mo., under the care of a specialist. Mr. Meyer was lost recently in a damage suit filed against him for $500 for cutting down trees on a farm which he was renting.

Dr. A. L. Bixby—Once upon a time a public prosecutor in a case against certain malefactors accused of going through in a pet-bird-mice in a gran where it had been the part of wisdom to follow the main-traveled road, Samuel J. Tilden stoutly maintained in addressing the jury that the jury that there was but one way to attain independence from a standing start. "Accumulation" said he, "is clearly the mother of mathematics. Spend less than you earn. If your income is small; let your outgo be correspondingly cut down. But large or small it is the only way." It was course the great salesman advocated industry as well as frugality, and he must have practiced what he preached.

For when he wandered thru the gate, He left a competent citizen. To relatives and friends.

The stuff that he had parked away, A consequential load, Each million dollars, so they say, Where moth and rust corrode.

Sam Tilden's method may be learned With profit, since his death; He spent less money than he earned, As long as he had breath.

So let us handle our affairs Until we close the Styx. We need not all be millionaires, But we'll have something.—Bix.

Free Education.

Lincoln University, of Wayne, Flury teaches history in the city of Washington high school. The Forum, a monthly magazine, offered a prize for the best definition of socialism. The award went to Flury, not as a teacher, but as an individual.

General Amos A. Fries, chief of the army chronic warfare service, is in the Flury mind. The general strikes the school board, accordingly, demanding that it dismiss a teacher so "un-American" as to criticize the American industrial system. Flury, it happens, fought in the world war without waiting for the draft and possesses an honorable discharge. It isn't enough, it seems, General Fries, to fight under military command. To be a good American one must also think under military command. The Washington school board hasn't yet dismissed Flury, but the pressure for his removal continues.

General Fries reflects a point of view which is very strong and active. It is a view which would accept for a teaching position no person unwilling to impress his mind in the world's history. A jacket which such as General Fries would frame for him or her. It would have our children "educated" and trained to do by the parents who wanted never to do any thinking themselves—a brilliant prospect.

The Legislature.

Geneva Signal: Nineteen members of the Nebraska senate two years ago were re-elected and eight other members-elect have had legislative experience in either the senate or the house, leaving but six of the members of the new legislature who have had no legislative experience. A good per cent of the members of the house have had legislative experience also. Experience helps greatly in facilitating the work of the legislature. The senate is made up of twenty-three republicans and ten democrats but in these later years members of the legislature seldom have a partisan matter on which to vote. The house is made up of sixty-five republicans and thirty-one democrats and Trenton Game, elected a progressive. It is Trenton's usual habit to be a democrat. If the republicans can agree on what they want to do on any matter they have the votes with which to do it.

Advertising Campaign.

York Republican: Roger Babson, the economic expert, recently made this important observation: "Today the success of most businesses is becoming more and more dependent on intelligent advertising because it is such a powerful factor in breaking down sales resistance. So above all things, take good care of the advertising account when compiling a business budget." It does not take a big merchant to prove the truth of Babson's statement. A small dealer has the same right and privilege to profit by the wisdom of this financial adviser.

Gene Tunney says that if he ever marries he'll be the first game. Optimist.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Mussolini is interested in Modern Machinery.—Hedding, Neely, the steamer.—Arkansas Gazette.

The World's Heroes. World History: It is interesting to note that the school children of the world, in electing the twelve greatest heroes of history, omitted the names of its outstanding military geniuses: Alexander, Caesar, Frederick the Great and Napoleon Bonaparte are omitted in addressing the world. Washington is the only genuine soldier of the lot and presumably it is his devotion to the cause in which his military talents were employed rather than the possession of those talents which won the children's admiration. Distinguished service seems to have been their least concern. The heroes were made rather than the possession of those high qualities of physical or moral courage which we usually associate with heroism. Many of the qualities are sufficiently prominent in the list too. At that the list is probably more notable for what it omits than for what it contains. That is to say, while all twelve chosen are probably deserving of niches in the hall of heroes, an attempt to single them out as the greatest, excludes too many equally great.

The names in the order of their choice are: Louis Pasteur, Abraham Lincoln, George Washington, Benjamin Franklin, Woodrow Wilson, Florence Nightingale, Joan of Arc, Socrates, Johann Sebastian Bach, Livingstone and George Stephenson. There are various names on the list which can be duplicated by others who for services of an equal character are equally deserving.

Is there no place among the scientists for Galileo and Bacon and Darwin and Huxley, no place among the heroes of the American revolution for the Adams and Jeffersons and the humanitarian for Father Damien, no place among the inventors for Morse and Bell and Daimler and for that matter Marconi and the Wright brothers and Edison? Were the early Christian martyrs minor heroes? Was Martin Luther? And how about Paul and Amundsen and Commander Byrd?

About the only name on the list which defies duplication from any standpoint is that of Joan of Arc. She was unique in the world's history. There never has been another like her nor is there likely to ever be.

Carroll Young-Man To Engineer Society

John R. Gemmill who is an engineer with the Colorado Fuel & Iron company in Pueblo, Colo., has been elected president of the Young-Man Society of Mechanical Engineers.

The various distinctions are junior, associate, associate member, member and full member. The following is from the secretary's letter to Mr. Gemmill will explain the society:

"The older men are supposed to give the boys and girls are encouraged to work with them in such capacity and feature of the work as you may prefer. In fact, joining the society one's profession is a self imposed obligation to serve. It is not intended that the society gives and receives nothing in return for it is the contribution of the members from their storerooms of information and experience which the society, acting as a clearing house, gives to other members of the profession. One usually benefits in proportion as he gives."

Mr. Gemmill also sends word that the company has received a $7,000,000 rail order from the Atkinson, Topeka and Santa Fe railroad.

Farm Prices. Lincoln, Nov. 26.—(Special.) Nebraska farms in 1926 have had a decided shrinkage under 1925, comes, says the November bulletin of the Nebraska economic situation issued today by Prof. Howard H. Hoge of the state agricultural college.

Although the 1926 wheat crop is larger it is smaller than last year. The price of wheat is lower than last fall, the bulletin said. High base prices prevailed this year, but there were fewer loaves to be had. "A lean winter looms ahead, especially for those farmers who have hard by drought," Hodge believes. "Seasonal influences will probably be such as to keep crop prices at a low present level. A normal increase in the market is likely to cause a rise in hog prices. Choice hogs and butcher cattle prices may maintain present levels but medium grade short fed steers are likely to show increasing supplies. All live prices should be reasonable tendency to advance at thirty days."

Next Sunday, the last of the joyful campaign, let us make it the best. The record for the past week is as follows: prayer meeting, 85 per cent; morning service, 70 per cent, and last Sunday night, 71 per cent. This record week by week tells something of the results of the campaign; however, there are other results that cannot be so easily tabulated. We believe that permanent cause will be recognized later.

Next Sunday night we will present "The Challenge of the Cross." This is a dramatization of the story found in Matt. 16:24-26. The characters will be seven girls. Music to be the choir. We want that many people will be invited to the message of the evening together with the presentation will close with a special appeal to every listener. Do not forget the Sunday school begins at 10 o'clock. We want to see more in attendance and on time.

This department of work will be next in importance to the services for worship or perhaps better yet on an equal with the preaching service. Let everybody on their part by bringing others.

The "World Tour" begins January 1, 1927. Booking agents have been appointed and have the tickets ready for every family and member. The tickets must be secured by December 31 if you wish to travel with the Baptists of the North.
