

Removal To New Building Dec. 22

Herald Will Vacate Present Quarters Last of Next Week if Plans Develop.

Add New Equipment

Pages of Newspaper Will Be Enlarged to Eight Columns to Meet Increased Demand.

After some delay, due to tardiness in arrival of material, the new building to be occupied by the Herald is nearing completion and according to plans prepared, removal of the plant to its new quarters will start Wednesday, December 22. The Herald will vacate its present quarters at the end of next week. It is expected that the work will be completed a day earlier than usual to give advantage to moving operations.

The new Herald building has been put up by Dorothy Huse Nyberg, associate editor of this newspaper, and is her property. It will go into the new building. The present building is owned by the plant, the proprietor has bought a lot of new equipment, including new press, forms, types and other things, and will be installed in the new building. The Herald is now printing on a new type machine installed here in the spring of 1911. A second line type machine was added some years ago, but the original machine was replaced with a later model a few years ago. All through the plant new things have been added, until, the building is now one of the most modern and complete in the city. The new building, it will be able to give better and more satisfactory service in all branches.

After the Herald is relocated and finishing touches have been given, the building will be opened to the public and will be invited to inspect the building and plant and get acquainted with the people in charge.

County Bank Case Appealed In Court

The case of Wayne county against the receiver of the defunct First National bank at Carroll is being argued in the U. S. Court of Appeals at St. Louis this week. F. S. Berry and J. L. Smith of Wayne, are appearing in the case. Wayne county has over $13,000 of county money in the bank which failed. The county has a judgment against the bank and a judgment given in the U. S. district court at Norfolk for the total amount against the bank and its estate. The bank at the time of its failure, thus making it a preferred creditor. The building and real estate have been sold and the proceeds amount to between $13,000 and $15,000, had been held in a Kansas City bank for nearly two years by order of the court. The receiver has appealed the case to determine whether the county gets the money as a preferred creditor, or whether the county must be considered as one of the other creditors.

SNOW AND COLD

A reminder of a blizzard came along Sunday, and the mercury precipitated itself down within easy reach of the bulb. Monday morning the wind was high but what fell was tanned into drifts by a brisk wind, reinforced with cutting barbouroid edges. The arrival of snow and wind rain is course early. But was followed by intensified cold. Sub-zero weather was the record for three nights, temperatures varying not far from 18 below at this point Tuesday night. East and west highways were so badly drifted with snow that it was almost impossible to get out if not impossible. North and south roads suffered little. Trains were operated about on time. Snow from the upper atmosphere and cold which caused inconvenience and discomfort, the weather conditions vary in intensity. It contained a lot of valuable oxygen and charged (foe) souls with new energy.

Speaks to Club On Legislation

Prof. O. R. Bowen Addresses Wayne Professional and Business Women Tuesday.

Prof. O. R. Bowen, in speaking to the Wayne Professional and Business Women's club at the State Normal Tuesday evening, on the subject of legislation, stated that the United States should cancel the European war debts. The European powers owe this country ten billions of dollars. If the countries which pay their debts, they must also pay their debts, they must also pay their debts, they must also pay their debts. The products cannot be sold here because the tariff protects American goods. If the tariff is repealed, European products will be sold here and local ones and people in this country will be out of employment and products will have no market.

Bitter feeling is arising in Europe and anti-American organizations are being formed to oppose this country's economy. America has been and is becoming more prosperous in the past year, says Herbert Hoover, than any nation has been at any time. Europe is now the most industrialized nation staying out of the war until the opportune time to reap benefits financially. No country in Europe is now in the hands of a dictator. Arrangements were made whereby England should pay the debt in sixty annual payments. The debt has been reached with France. Prof. Bowen asserted that the debts probably could never be paid anyway so this country would not be freed from the debt and be free from foreign troops.

Prof. Bowen also spoke of the world court and the League of Nations. He stated that the League of Nations is the best thing that has happened since the war and this country voted down entrance into the League, he asserted that it is but natural to oppose the world court. His opinion is that America should cancel the debt and join the League of Nations, thus freeing this country from any obligations to other nations. Then time could be spent to advantage on home questions such as farm relief, prohibition, etc., and other subjects.

Prof. Bowen introduced his talk Tuesday by naming the six basic principles of agreement as been adopted to Roberts' rules of order. These are the following: Only one question may be presented and disposed of at a time; one must obtain the floor by addressing the chair and being recognized before speaking; one must not speak too long; one must not speak too often; one must not address one member of the assembly besides the chair; one must not speak unless invited, seconded and discussed, cannot be withdrawn.

About forty attended the club members at a three-course banquet served by the domestic science students of the Normal under the supervision of Miss Estlin Wood. The banquet was held in the wood-paneled and red candles decorated tables. Plans and red cups were in evidence. The program was presented by Miss Estlin Wood and Miss Esther Dewitz sang "Star of the Night," accompanied by Miss Marie Johnson. Miss Ruth Johnson sang "The Christmas Song." Each read a Christmas wish. At a business meeting conducted by Miss Lettie Scott, the club will have a social evening at the Nebraska Children's Home society in Omaha. The club has a social evening January 11 with Mrs. A. L. Swan and Mrs. J. D. C. at 8 o'clock at a dinner. On January 25 Mrs. Winfield Main, who has returned from being in China, will tell her trip at the home of Mrs. Fred W. Nyberg.

Randolph Girl Fatally Burned Monday

When Kerosene Blaze Catches Clothing

Miss Myrtle Chambers Is One Who

Miss Myrtle Chambers, 19, died Tuesday morning at 2 o'clock from burns sustained Monday evening when kerosene in a can caught fire in her home in Randolph. Miss Chambers was alone at home preparing supper about 6 o'clock. A small can containing kerosene was on the door of the warming oven. In taking a skillet from the stove Miss Chambers accidentally tipped over the can. The kerosene caught fire and blazed up, setting fire to her clothing and hair. The girl ran out of doors just as her mother, Mrs. Laura Chambers who is employed in the Farmers Union store, returned home. All of Miss Chambers' clothing was burned excepting one shoe. Her wounds were so severe that she became unconscious and remained so until she died a few hours later. The Chambers residence was not burned.

Besides her mother, deceased leaves one brother, Charles Chambers in Kansas City, and two brothers, Harry Chambers of Omaha and Wayne Chambers of Honolulu. The first two named are here and the last named may come.

A jury in the district court at Madison, Nebraska, has awarded Walter Savidge last evening, following trial of a suit against him for $35,000 damages alleged by C. O. Deen, aged 17, of Wayne, and Mrs. M. J. McKee, of Norfolk. The plaintiff complained that she had been injured by an electric shock by C. O. Deen, while he was at work getting off the sealine which is one of the attractions of the Savidge Amusement company. The injury was alleged to have been sustained September 18, 1924. The jury fully considered Mr. Savidge. A. R. Davis of Wayne and Hugh Boyle of Norfolk were attorneys for Mrs. McKee and Mr. Savidge. A SUPREME NEW

Of Wayne County that will take hold of a new hotel project with assurance of success are the Woman's club and the Kiwanis club. The two have suggested that the two clubs might well join forces in promoting such a worthy enterprise. Wayne will not be what it should be until it has a new, modern hotel structure, and it can have one if the two organizations mentioned will get behind it with determination. Nothing the clubs could do would give them higher satisfaction or more enduring fame.

proud of Miss Nancy weather if we had it. But the worst we ever experienced never consisted of such a conglomeration of cussedness as this weather which has just smitten the people of southern California. And we are quite certain that we are not tempting fate when we say that it never will. With the cheeriest of hearts and with good will we feel in the mood to offer our sympathies to the folks who sold out and went to California to get away from Nebraska storms.

Conductor Installs Radio Set On Train

Laurel Advocate: Conductor Hartman who has been on the run on this branch of the M. & O. railroad since the celebrated Hector was a pup has added to his laurels as a conductor and a man of service to his customers by installing a radio on his train and treating his customers to a musical program when they endure the long hauls which are incident to a trip over his line.

Your editor had occasion to ride on the train last Friday and from Lauro to Wakefield we were entertained with music, the market report, etc., from a half dozen different stations. Conductor Hartman and his able crew have fitted up one of the coaches with an inside aerial and have a "bullet" tube merely on its way music soothes the savage beast. It is an innovation in railroading on branch railroads and Conductor Hartman is to be congratulated for his progressiveness.

Value in Hard Winter. 6161f

Hartington Herald: Unmistakable signs of a long, severe winter with lots of snow multiply from day to day. It is now too late to hope for any more warm weather before Christmas and after that we may expect three months or more of cold and snow, with possibly an occasional thaw. Not a normal winter is a foreman of a normal rainfall and normal crops next summer, none will complain. It is a matter of observation that, as the winters have grown milder during the past few years, precipitation has diminished and crops have correspondingly decreased; and, in view of this fact, a return to the old-fashioned winter of low temperatures and heavy snow falls will be welcome. This county is long past due for a bumper crop which will restore normal prosperity and we are hoping that it is about to arrive.

Elgin Man Injured By Shotgun Wound

Norfolk News, Dec. 11.—Seven or eight bushels were removed from the right leg of Joseph Stoltz, 21, Elgin, yesterday morning in a Norfolk hospital.

Young Stoltz, together with several of his friends, went rabbit hunting Wednesday afternoon. In some manner a shotgun was accidentally discharged, the charge striking the young man in the leg. Whether the shotgun belonged to Stoltz or his companions was not learned by hospital attendants.

Heavy leggings and overalls prevented the shot from penetrating the skin near the feet. Some of the shots struck Stoltz in the calf of his leg, while others penetrated the flesh about his thigh. Stoltz was able to return to his home after the operation.

Open Season on Crows. 6161f

Omaha World-Herald: Every day is open season on crows in Nebraska, and they are being slaughtered right and left in the rural districts. The heads are taken to the county clerk and a reward of 10 cents a head is claimed. For a number of years the crow was immune from molestation, in compliance with a state law protecting them, as it protects quail, for instance, on which there is no open season in this state.

In many of the counties hunters are bringing in many hundreds of crows heads. One Adams county hunter carried 544 to the county clerk. The farmers are especially interested in the destruction of the countless crows that abound wherever fields of corn are grown. The loss through the depredation of the crows amounts to huge sums each season, it is alleged. Crows are also charged with carrying disease to animals from one locality to another.

The Rural Press. 6161f

York Republican: Wherever the editor of this newspaper reads of one of those giant daily newspaper mergers in which money plays the principal part, he thanks God for the unthought, unfettered press, that still continues to speak with independence and authority. It is the glory of the country press that its inspiration is the life blood of a courageous company of individuals who bow the knee neither to political bosses or captains of finance, but who continue to speak the will of the people and register the popular will. So long as these continue to parry the temptations of force they to exchange their opinions for money and their independence for the selfish will of others, the country is out-headed for the rocks and reefs of greed. The country press, notwithstanding the boastful claims of the cosmopolitan newspapers—and magazines, continues to be the spokesman of the plain people and the keepers of the still alert public conscience.

Speaking of Weather.

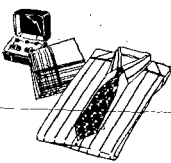

Omaha World-Herald: You know how sunny the Californian is about his weather. It doesn't matter what difference what kind of Californian he is, native son or recently arrived immigrant, he becomes a hundred per center just as soon as he learns the local dichromatic patter about sunshine and balmy breezes. This is all right of course because weather in California is merchandise and requires some kind of selling talk. If California weather ever takes a slump in the market the state's sunk.

But the Californian isn't content to stop with huzzling the advantages, if any, of his own weather. The natives is forever running down everybody else's weather, and anyone who has taken the Y. M. C. A. course can tell him that isn't ethical salesmanship. If there is anything he knows more about than the beneficence of California climate it is the ailing and arrows of the outrageous weather of New England, the middle Atlantic states, the south, the central west and the Rocky mountain region.

Well, we've got to reply that with a blast the best California pokes a flabby finger into our solar plexus and tells us that Nebraska weather fits in snugly with the weather he is going to impale him with one of our most disdainful glances and sneer in to his face, "So your old weather man is for mark you it never rains in California but it pours."

The voracious and impartial and reliable Associated Press reports that in California experiencing all at the same time, gales, earthquakes, water sports, thunder, lightning, rain, snow and hail.

Of course, we are willing to admit that some vigorous weather as befits a vigorous people. We shouldn't be

Commercial Head On Salesmanship

In Selling Goods or Service, One Should Seek Mutual Profit and Satisfaction.

(By Walter C. Lewis.)

Perhaps a good way to approach this subject is to ask a few questions and try to answer them: "The term 'Salesmanship' is one that is usually rather loosely defined. There are almost as many definitions for salesmanship as there are writers on the subject. One definition which seems to be rather all inclusive may be stated thus: 'Salesmanship is the art of successfully selling anything that there is a mutual profit and satisfaction and a permanent business relationship established.'

Coming now to a consideration of the questions and answers, our first question is: "Why are we selling the particular merchandise or service which we are offering to the public?" To this question the most of us would probably answer that we are selling these things in order to get money or because we are being paid for doing so. However, we do not believe that any man is justified in going into business or trying to sell any commodity for the sole purpose of making money. He may go into a particular business because that business needs a real need in the community and because there is a demand for it. If there is no need for the service to be rendered by it, the business will fail. This statement may seem a little far-fetched. However, it is the failure to recognize this fact that causes many men to fail in business and many salesmen to fail to make a livelihood in their business undertakings. The only justifiable motive for engaging in a business or selling is to render a service that is really needed by the community. The primary purpose of all business and selling should be to contribute to the needs of civilization by meeting the needs which have arisen because of the standards which it has set up. So then the reason we sell is to render a service to society.

We talk a great deal about selling but after all our attention should be centered on buying rather than on selling. Our second question, then, is, "Why do people buy?" Referring back to our statement above, the answer to this question is that people buy because the commodity purchased will be of service to them, and not because it will benefit the merchant. This leads us to say that the merchant is in business for the people and not for himself. With this in view we ask, "What are the points to be considered in the selling of the particular commodity which we are offering to the public?" We answer that these points are the buying points rather than the so called selling points. This being true the salesperson must get the point of view of the buyer and not that of the seller.

This leads us to a consideration of another question, "How may the seller get the viewpoint of the buyer?" This is done by visualizing the buyer and his needs. To do this the salesman must first sell himself; it is well for him to live in his imagination, the life of the buyer, to pass through the experiences of the buyer and to enter into sympathy with the feelings of the buyer. This will lead the salesman to a study of human needs, desires, fates, and interests. And the salesman will come to know that the satisfactions for these buying motives are the real selling points for whatever commodity he is selling. He will need to study the goods as used by the customer; he will need to know the satisfactions resulting from the particular commodity he is selling. This is true in the selling of all commodities from bed-room slippers to the latest automobile in the land. In order to be able to meet such a requirement the salesman must know his merchandise from A to Z, he must know its uses fully, he must test it out, and he must seek and answer every possible question about his commodity. It will be well for him to make a list of points on cards, a point to a card, which may be used by memory, in presenting his commodity to the customer. Remember that these points should deal largely with human needs, desires, tastes and interests, the makeup and construction of the merchandise receiving only a passing mention.

These cards containing the talking points on the commodity for sale should be filed in a systematic order behind other cards on which are listed the buying motives. Now, when we think of buying motives we think of such characteristic motives as, the desire for profit, possession, the imitation of acquaintances, the desire for knowledge, health, caution, pleasure, the love of others, the desire to excel and numerous others. Have one main card for each motive. Back of each main card file the smaller cards containing the talking points to excel and numerous others. Have one main card for each motive. Back of each main card file the smaller cards containing the talking points to excel and numerous others. Have one main card for each motive. It is well for the salesperson to keep up a large variety of items concerning his commodities and to use picture statements. These picture statements should be mental pictures of satisfaction. For instance, in the selling of blankets the major talking point will be concerning the warm, cosy bed on a cold winter's night. Again, in the selling of a steel range, the housewife does not particularly care that a big two-burner range can jump up and down on the oven door or that the lids of the stove can be slammed down on the floor without breaking them; but when you convince her that the biscuits will be well baked on the bottom as well as on the top and that the lower crust of the pie as well as the upper crust will be well baked, that a low even temperature can be maintained for the baking of a cake, you make a real appeal to her; for these are mental pictures of satisfaction.

Sell mental pictures of satisfaction, sell services, meet a real need in your community and you will find people ready to pay you a just and reasonable price for your services, in addition to paying for the cost of the commodity which they buy. This is the material approval which society awards for the merchant and the salesman's contribution to its welfare.

With Mrs. F. S. Berry.

About two hundred of the Wayne Woman's club and one guest, Mrs. O. R. Bowen, were entertained last Friday by Mrs. F. S. Berry. Mrs. R. H. Nelson read a story which she wrote on "The Independence of the Philippines." This told of a southern girl who went to the Philippines to teach. She had a natural aversion toward people not of the Caucasian race. A young doctor was on the boat going to the islands and his mission was that of helping his fellowmen. The doctor and a young wealthy man in the island were fascinated with the girl. The wealthy man spoke energetically of the islands and this turned the girl to favor the people. She learned to appreciate their desire for education, their ambition, their culture and other good qualities and the doctor won her as his wife. Edison records were played and Frederick Berry gave piano selections. A social time followed and Mrs. Berry served sandwiches, cookies and coffee. At the business session it was found that the club cleared about $280 from the bazzar and supper held and this will be used to pay insurance and taxes on the command house. The club voted to donate $10 to the H-Y organization. The next meeting is to be January 14. Mrs. Ferd Schmiedekamp is acting secretary in the absence of Mrs. Clyde Oman.

If boys would bank more on the counsel of their parents and less the frequently crazy impulses of themselves, they would escape many hard knocks.

Conscious of our class in the market discrimination, when we read down next week's report and come to the hog at $4.50, contracted with much higher prices, we feel that we are the object of personal affront.

After we get securely anchored in our new quarters, with new equipment installed, we will have a public reception, burn a quantity of red fire, have a telephone sold and make other noises to let people know where we are and what we are doing.

Over 1,000 letters received in response to Santa Claus' invitation shows the widespread interest taken in Christmas activities here, and the result will inspire local committees to do their best to meet highest expectations.

Approaching Christmas with the kindly, generous spirit which it implies ought to influence one to be permanently better. He should not take off his feelings as did some his hat or socks. After hoisting himself to a higher standard, he ought to brace himself and stay there.

Roads are being cleared following the storm early in the week, and travel will not long be a hardship. When all the "spinning" cottons for southern California people who must climb to the top of a mountain to satisfy a yearning for the magic touch of the beautiful, white flakes.

We have just passed another birthday anniversary, and as we do not have an older than we did twenty-five years ago, we have resolved to do more and better work the next fifty years than we have during the past fifty. If one follows regular and sensible habits of diet, sleep and employment, in the latter of which he has a wholesome interest, together with freedom from the besetting yamias of fear and hatred, he ought to be a useful member of society for a hundred years. After that he would likely have to slow down somewhat.

Speaking in Omaha recently, Rev. S. Parkes Gudman of the Central Congregational church of New York City said the churches need more imagination. He said they had stirred their imagination and looked for no science there would have been fewer ecclesiastical differences to excite and kindle the passions. He suggested that imagination should be employed as an incentive to constructive effort rather than an opiate to deaden action. Many people are spurred to initiative and achievement by no means. Others dream on and on, too listless to gather from their inspiration that may serve practical development. The churches may have tested too much on old-timers, not allowing imagination sufficient rein to admit broader interpretations of more practical application of religious principles in accordance with modern logic. Thinking in the light of scientific discovery is necessary in the evolution of the changes in the growth and progress of the individual.

The corn belt farmer and southern cotton grower are combining in a demand for legislation favorable to agriculture in the present session of congress. A measure lately introduced provides for a revolving fund of $250,000,000 to stabilize prices of wheat, cotton, rice and hops by exporting the surplus. What the farmer wants and deserves is a price for his product whose purchasing power equals that commanded by manufactured commodities, and any practical legislation that will encourage such fair equality will meet the welcome in agricultural communities.

UNNECESSARY HURTS. Often people who pretend to be followers of the merciful Nazarene, give newspapers for publication damaging stories that are intended for no other purpose than to hurt some one and obstruct his course. From cover, they want to deal an unnecessary blow and see the victim humiliated and injured. People who are thus anxious to have the misfortunes or trials of their neighbors paraded, usually have enough faults of their own to keep them busy. When one feels like pilorying another by dragging a skeleton out of his closet or by exposing his weakness or failings, he should carefully examine himself and see if his own stock of imperfections is not in need of a liberal cloak of charity. People who are thus anxious to report to a newspaper should one seek to hurt a fellow-being. He may need the very charity which he would coldly deny to another.

AN ESSENTIAL CLUB. Wayne would seem to have enough literary, musical and social clubs to satisfy different inclinations, but one supposedly essential organization is missing from the list. It is a business professional association. We have had commercial clubs, community clubs and greater Wayne clubs, but each has skidded along for a time, then doing nothing valuable for the city, and then it has lapsed into innocuous desuetude. What we need is coordinated business effort. We need a strictly business organization to look after and promote the affairs of the business district. Its initiation should not be based on the fact that it is a business professional association. It should be based on the fact that it is a business professional association. It should be based on the fact that it is a business professional association.

Wayne county, Dec. 13, 1927, voted to build the sum of $151,000 for construction of a brick court house at LaPorte, the county seat. On May 28, 1924, James W. Sawyer and W. P. Adler, as principals, and D. W. Wilkinson and James Scott of Dakota county, as sureties, were bonded for the construction of the court house and jail according to contract.

The county bonds of $151,000 were sold to J. King of St. Paul, Minn., for 85 1/2 cents on the dollar. W. T. Sperry was appointed superintendent of construction at the time the house and jail were bonded. In August of that year, it was voted by the county board that the walls of the building be increased four feet in thickness. The foundation of the building was also made wider. Mr. Sperry received $3 a day for his services. Sawyer received $1,000 above the original contract price for adding to the thickness of the walls.

J. O. Richardson proposed to the county board the need of a well on the public square and contract for digging one twelve inches in diameter and 40 feet deep for 40 cents per square foot.

On November 20, 1924, the county board voted the new building to be built on the site of the old one according to plans. On December 8 the men visited the structure again and found it complete to a certain extent. Payment of $2,400 was made. The building was completed in the spring and other payments were made.

The structure used for the court house until the brick one was built in LaPorte, was sold at auction January 3, 1925. It was sold to W. P. Adler for $151,000.

Nebraska Press To Meet In February

The 1927 winter meeting and convention of the Nebraska Press Association will be held in Lincoln, February 17, 18 and 19, with headquarters at the Cornhusker hotel. This promise to be one of the most important state press meetings ever held. Preparations are being made in Lincoln to entertain the editorial party all of the time the editors are not tied up with the business side of the convention. The Lincoln daily newspapers, the McKelvie publications and the Western Newspaper Union are working with the committee to make the meeting and the entertainment program, which it appears will be much more extensive than anything Lincoln has done for a state press association in the past. Aside from the entertainment feature, the convention should appeal to every Nebraska publisher because of the benefits now being received through membership in the Nebraska Press Association. This will be a big meeting in a number of ways. In a way it will be a forerunner of the National Editorial Association convention in Omaha and tour of Nebraska and the Black Hills next June. There should be no attendance at the state editorial meeting in February.

New School at Neligh. Neligh, Neb., Dec. 10.—Architect J. C. Stitt of Norfolk met with the board of education of this city last evening to present to the board tentative plans to solve the overcrowded condition of the high school of this place. His plans call for a new building of fireproof construction located about seventy feet in front of the present structure, to be used as a high school and to contain the assembly room to seat 400, with class rooms, gymnasium and other rooms for high school purposes.

His plan contemplates the use of the present building for the junior high school and the grades. The two buildings are to be connected with a well lighted and ventilated tunnel with heating pipes to supply both buildings. Mr. Stitt, like other architects who have examined the present high school building, declares it perfectly safe, although it is inadequate. Since the beginning of the school year, an account of the overcrowded condition in both the east and west ward buildings, the pupils in the kindergarten classes are allowed to go to school only half time.

Women in Contest. Bloomfield, Neb., Dec. 10.—The contest between two women for county superintendent of schools of this county was renewed in the recent election that a recount of the ballots has been asked and necessary steps in the procedure have been taken so that the recount will be made sometime before January 1. There were only 24 votes more cast for one candidate, Miss Saunders, than for her opponent, Miss Bloomfield.

Come and get the holly paper. It is here. Jacques.

Bus Goes Into Fence. Homer, Neb., Dec. 13.—The Sioux City-Omaha bus, which is due in Homer at 6:30 in the evening, going north, did not arrive on schedule due to an accident near the schoolhouse south of Homer. As the right front wheel snapped off, the bus skidded off the grade and into a cornfield. Those who saw the accident reported fence posts thrown down and about 100 yards of barbed wire tangled around the car. None of the occupants of the bus were injured.

State Finances. Charles Q. DeFrance has been putting his expert lead pencil through the reports of the state tax commissioner for the years 1921 to 1925. He finds a lot of things. One gathers that the state has no system of financial management that would pass muster in any country, and it takes a real ability to analyze the figures. Mr. DeFrance thinks he has done fairly well as a sleuth accountant. His summary makes the state live on taxes run $20,273,000 short of meeting the appropriations, Bryan ran $1,342,682.32 short, while McMillen overruns by $103,150.98.

The construction headed by Mr. DeFrance is that the records show that the McMillen administration is not to blame for the shortage although it has not made up very much of the deficiencies of former administrations.—Lincoln Journal.

Mr. DeFrance has a demerol but he is also an accountant. In more recent years he has not been bitterly partisan and it would be reasonable to expect that he would give deliberate judgment on statistical facts that he had carefully examined without serious partisan warring or against the claims of politicians. We are more willing to accept the above figures from Mr. DeFrance because they represent the conclusions we arrived at in looking at the figures. He is only careful study by someone used to handling figures in a non-partisan way could develop the truth.

What is the meaning of the term 'tax' which a tax levy will raise. Candidates for office want to make a good showing and their tax levies are not too high. They are small. Most tax levies raise less money than they are expected to raise. Even to a casual observer, it seems certain that the McMillen administration did not try enough tax to pay the appropriations made by the legislature. The result was invariable. A deficit of one hundred million dollars was created and carried over to the administration.

DeFrance is probably right in saying that the McKelvie administration left a small deficit aside and that the McMillen administration did not levy a tax high enough to take care of the deficits created by the two preceding administrations. This newspaper hopes that next year's taxing board will have the courage to fix the tax rate at a figure that will wipe out some of the present deficit. We should pay up and stop arguing about taxing. Nobody has ever really lost anything but we should improve our bookkeeping and do a little less borrowing from trust funds.—Geneva Signal.

Norfolk Grows Lemons. Norfolk, Neb., Dec. 10.—On Christmas day Mr. and Mrs. James Venders of this city, intend to eat lemon pie from a lemon grown in their own home.

Forty-five years ago Mr. Venders, who then was living in Seward, Neb., bought a baby citrus tree from a nursery there. When the Venders family moved to Norfolk 13 years ago the tree was brought along in a large candy bucket during the winter months it plays the role of a house plant, while each spring it is moved into the garden.

The tree bore its best crop three years ago, when it produced six fine lemons. The largest measured 13 1/2 inches in circumference. This year the single lemon on its branches measured 10 inches in circumference. The tree has never borne more fruit for the fruit because the spring was late and cool.

The tree is 3 feet high and its trunk measures 9 1/2 inches in diameter. Mr. Venders thinks that the fragrance of the lemon blossoms surpasses all flowers in his garden. He attributes the large size of the tree to the fact that he leaves only a few lemons on the tree to mature.

Will Study in Austria. Hartington, Neb., Dec. 10.—According to word received here, Dr. P. H. Gillespie, of Belle Plaine, Mo., Dr. P. H. Gillespie of this city, is planning to leave for Vienna, Austria, this coming spring, where he will take a postgraduate course in surgery in one of the large universities of that city.

The Dairy Cow. North Platte, Neb., Dec. 10.—For business purposes a cow is a factory, the efficiency of which depends upon the management and upon the factory's production. H. P. Davis, professor of animal husbandry at the University of Nebraska, declared today in an address before the Nebraska State Irrigation association here.

Free From Debt. Butte, Neb., Dec. 13.—St. Paul Fried, Butte, was elected president of the Lloyd county fair association at a meeting this week.

Other officers chosen are: A. L. Dix, McCully, first vice president; William Prescott, Lynch, second vice president; C. W. Carlson, Spencer, third vice president; A. W. Latta, Butte, secretary; J. H. Sailer, Butte, treasurer; C. M. Ball, Butte, general superintendent; William Nelson, Spencer, livestock superintendent.

The following men were chosen directors for three-year terms: E. E. Wakefield, Napier; Anton Roeder, Baker; and G. Hanson, Butte. All indebtedness has been paid by the fair association, this being the first time in the history of the organization that it has been out of debt. With all debts paid, $302 in the treasury and good improvements on the grounds, the directors are looking forward to a successful fair next fall on September 28 and 9.

Teacher in Poor Health. Hartington, Neb., Dec. 10.—Miss Blanche McCormick, Latin-teacher in the high school here, who has been ill for some time, was compelled to give up teaching for the sake of her health. She will take a complete rest, until after the holidays.

A London newspaper complains that the interest taken by Americans in the rest of the world is very slight. It should have read 'from.'—Des Moines News.

DeFrance is probably right in saying that the McKelvie administration left a small deficit aside and that the McMillen administration did not levy a tax high enough to take care of the deficits created by the two preceding administrations. This newspaper hopes that next year's taxing board will have the courage to fix the tax rate at a figure that will wipe out some of the present deficit. Handkerchiefs

Every one would be disappointed if they did not get handkerchiefs for Christmas. They are the safest, small gift you can send. Thousands of them are here to choose from at 5c to $1.50. Painty hand embroidered ones made in China are priced extremely low at 50c. Beautifully boxed handkerchiefs are 50c, and up to $1.25. Hand Bags

They are especially appreciated, because much as she wants a new one she puts off buying one for herself hoping, "I can't wait." The pouch bags of soft leather are now most favored and we secured some on our buying trip at a good reduction which permits selling at lower than usual prices. Two groups to choose from—$1.98 and $2.98.

Women Attend First Gas Engine School

Geneva Signal: Blue Mondays will not be just history for some Fillmore county women. No longer will the old gas engine go to play possum in the middle of the weekly washing while the perplexed farmers "wonder, 'What's the matter with it, anyhow?'

The first gas engine school that has ever been held for women started last Wednesday morning with fifteen women at school when the bell rang and more coming in during the day. So many had registered, fifty-four, that it was necessary to have two divisions of the school and about half of the women came in Thursday.

R. W. Oberlin of the agricultural extension service, Lincoln, took charge of the lectures and demonstration each day. Miss Hauke had charge of the local details, arranging to have the machines in the Smith-Hughes rooms of the high school and getting three gas engines to work on.

Mr. Oberlin began with the fundamental principles in his first lecture. He showed the ladies a chart of the parts of the average engine. Then he explained the four strokes, intake, compression, power and exhaust that every four-cycle engine goes through while running. After listening to this explanation, the ladies went to the engines and figured out how to tell the strokes on each engine. This is one of the things that every one must have clearly in mind before he or she can determine "What's the matter with the thing, anyhow?"

In the afternoon, Mr. Oberlin went on to explain ignition, then lubrication and then lubrication. He then "fixed" the engines so they would "act up" and he showed the ladies how an engine acts when it is out of time, when the valves leak, when the governor fails to function properly, when the gas line is stopped up, when there is no spark and several more of the most common ailments of the small farm engine.

With these principles as a background, this latter part of the school was probably the most interesting to the ladies because each of them who had run an engine had had some experiences before that brought up questions.

It is not to be expected that in one short day the farmers' wives can learn enough about an engine to have any sort of a magic wand to wave over their balky Monday morning machines. Mr. Oberlin said: "The farmers who have in the past heard all about the behaviors of the engines when they came in from the field to Monday dinner may still have a chance to give their wives a laugh once in a while, but the women who attended the two schools seemed to get a great deal of good out of them. This school was held here as one of the minor projects of the home extension agent with the women of the county. Gas engine schools are quite common for men but Fillmore county will probably receive national publicity from staging this kind of a school for women.

Describes Trip To Points In Arizona

Mrs. Jennie G. Davis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Gaertner, who is teaching in Salton, Arizona, writes that she and her son, Lucian, went to Globe recently to attend a teachers' meeting and then went to Phoenix. She traveled over the Apache trail and saw the Roosevelt dam. The scenery is beautiful but "one's hair fairly stands up straight" when he looks down from the narrow mountain roads to the gorges below. The dam is a huge thing, holding the water which forms Roosevelt lake. From the dam one can look down into the lake and see many fish. Around the lake are cottages and bungalows.

She says in part: "While out for a ride at Phoenix we saw many oranges and dates growing. There are two varieties of dates, the yellow and the dark ones. The yellow ones taste best."

"From Phoenix we drove to Tucson. Just a few miles from Phoenix we went through the Mormon town of Mesq. The Mormons are building a big temple there. After it is dedicated no visitors will be allowed in the building so we went through it. The walls of one room are painted to represent the creation of the world, another to represent the Garden of Eden and another the world after the fall of man. One is done in white and is called the marriage room. Part of the decoration in this room is of Tullier marble. The baptismal room contains a round tank of stone, held up by twelve oval carved from stone. There are two large pipes down the aisles are being painted green, brown and other colors to represent mottled marble. The present was Spanish. We also went to the San Xavier mission about 100 miles from Tucson. The original mission was established about 400 years ago. This church was built in 1783. There were many old statues and paintings. The altar had statues and other decorations which were decorated in gold leaf. This church is still used."

Export Bounty Plan

Lincoln Journal-News, writes L. S. Herron, editor of the Nebraska Union Farmer, discussing the grant proposal for farm relief. This export bounty plan, in our opinion, is safer and more practical than any of the variations of the McNary-Haugen plan. It would be easily administered, and would not set up a governmental bureaucracy to dominate the marketing of farm products and undertake competition of all the bootstrap-lifting plans designed to overcome the evils of tariff exploitation without stopping that exploitation. The export bounty plan impresses us as being the least worst."

Emil Ahlman sold his farm at Vinton, Ia., for $1000 and moved to Colorado.

Cost of Electricity On Nebraska Farms

Lincoln, Neb., Dec. 10.—The cost of electricity used on Nebraska farms will continue high until we learn to use more of it profitably in the farm business, Prof. E. E. Brackett of the agricultural engineering department of the University of Nebraska, believes.

The rules for getting cheaper electricity from the farm lighting plants are the same then in an interview today are: give the plant good care; run the engine for heavier loads with battery plants; load at least one-fourth rated capacity for automatic type plants and use as much electricity as can be put to work profitably. "Owners of battery type plants can often reduce fuel costs by using current direct from the generator," he said. "You never get back all the electricity that goes into a battery. When it is now, only about three-fourths can be drawn out, and as the battery grows older as much as half of it may be lost."

Compares Costs.

"Tests at the agricultural engineering department on several farm electric plants showed that the electricity used direct was produced at a cost of from 2 1/2 to 3 cents per kilowatt hour for fuel only. This cost was almost double when the current was taken from the battery. Another advantage of using current direct from the generator is the higher voltage which makes the electric iron heat faster, the motor pull better and the lights brighter.

"In using current direct the battery is relieved of the heavy load. This tends to lengthen life. Figures show that the cost of the battery is probably not less than twice the cost of the fuel."

Fuel, oil and repairs are not the total cost of electric service, Professor Brackett said. The total is made up of overhead expense, which includes interest, depreciation, taxes and insurance; operating expense, which includes fuel, oil and labor; and maintenance expense, which includes repairs.

Cost About $10 a Month.

"Our observation leads us to believe that very few farms get electricity from small electric plants at a total cost of less than $8 per month," he said. "On most farms it is probably higher, more nearly $10."

In speaking of getting the most use from the plant, he said, "If the plant is operated just a little, a small quantity of electricity is produced at a high cost per unit but as more current is produced by the plant this unit cost continues to decrease."

Some farmers have used the windmill type of electric plant but the recent one year test of one of these outfits at the college of agriculture shows that although about twice enough electricity for the ordinary farm use was generated, there was a total of fifty-five nights during the year when no current could be used on account of the low conditions of the storage battery.

A battery can be overcome by using a battery of greater capacity," Professor Brackett said. "But when one considers that a battery costing from $200 to $300 will last only from four to five years, the cost may be excessive for the limited service. With battery appreciation and other items of cost, current generated with windmill driven plants will cost about $9 a month. There is also the possibility of being without light."

Capture Chicken Thieves.

Geneva Signal: Farmers residing near Cortland in Gage county, suspected two men of chicken stealing. They formed a vigilance committee, procured necessary evidence, took the men into custody and delivered them to the sheriff at Beatrice. The men confessed and probably by the time this paragraph is published the district judge will have sentenced them to prison. Farmers don't have to submit to chicken and hog stealing.

Kindergarten News.

The children are making Christmas decorations such as red stars, bells, red and green paper chains with which to decorate the room. They are also making jumping Santa Claus of paper and cotton. Miss Will and the pupils of the kindergarten are fixing up the sand table to represent the community Christmas tree. They have put artificial snow over the top of the table. In the center of the table there is a small house which represents the home of a family at Christmas time. There is also a small Christmas tree decorated to represent the community tree; near it is Santa Claus with his reindeer and sleigh. Boys and girls made of paper are standing around the tree. It shows the Christmas spirit of the little folks. The children are making Humpty Dumpty rag dolls to give away as Christmas presents.

The class was given a copy of the "Broken Flower Pot" and acted out the play afterwards. The B class has started the flag project. The Christmas decorations were put up last Thursday. The eighth grade notes. The class set a banquet of arithmetic conducted in the eighth B grade. The class was divided into two classes, the Hutton and the Ford. Each 100 per cent lesson in arithmetic counted five points. The losers are to entertain the winners. A new contest is to be conducted soon between the two basketball teams. brighter ones, so they worked to their full capacity. Wayne school students would be more easily divided if there were no mid-year promotions. Intelligence tests might be given in the eighth grade and groups thus arranged for the high school. Miss Flanagan, in her paper, explained that intelligence tests are unnecessary at present by all educators. These tests aim to measure general intelligence. They determine the degree to which individuals are capable of learning. There are two types of tests, general and individual. The individual tests measure the ability of a pupil, because of the time taken for individual tests and complicated means of examination, the individual test gives way to the group test. The group test resembles the individual one in aiming to measure general intelligence, scoring the group according to age. They serve to classify pupils according to ability, diagnose capacity of pupils who present problems of adjustment, furnish educational guidance and measure efficiency of education units. The educational use of the tests is the big problem. Tests may be used to determine the right age to enter school. Some start with a handicap and others with an advantage. The measure then that there must be classification. Mental classification may not be satisfactory as children do not develop the same advancement. This classification also places together children of varied ages. Mental ability also varies at short periods. It ranges on account of eating habits, sleeping habits. It varies at different times of day. It varies with the surroundings. Columbia university has started using intelligence tests for college entrance alone. This seems radical. The entrance examinations were also unfair. Mental tests are expensive to give for they require considerable material. On the other hand such tests may develop students' ability in such lines that the cost would be trivial in comparison to the good done. Among the slower students may be found men and women with genius in particular lines. Mrs. Holloway's paper was on "Ability Grouping in the Grades." The purpose of the tests, she explained, is to make a difference in the educational treatment of pupils, not to furnish amusement or to gratify curiosity. The results must be used if tests are given. At every stage in the child's progress the school should take account of its educational possibilities. Irregular attendance, ill health, mental ability, disciplinary causes and environmental causes are reported responsible for failures in one school. Forty-eight per cent of these were attributed to low mentality. Mental level should determine the classification of pupils, though classroom accomplishment, age, interest and intelligence are also factors.

Read Papers Before City Teachers Here

Miss Glennie Bacon, Miss Helen Flanagan and Mrs. Mabel Holloway read papers before the meeting of the Wayne city school faculty members Monday evening, the subjects being "Ability Grouping in the High School," "Intelligence Tests" and "Ability Grouping in the Grades."

Miss Bacon, in her paper, explained of what use intelligence tests may be in the high school. The backward pupils now get most of the attention, she asserted. The brighter pupils accomplish the tasks, unaided. The backward child may be helped in one way that a certain amount of work may be covered. The backward pupil puts forth more effort usually and requires more of his mental capacity than the brighter one. The brighter pupil thus acquires lazy habits and it is he who is being neglected. Some classification of pupils is needed. This will place the brighter and slower ones into separate divisions. Such a classification might help care for some of the less able students who have to drop out soon after entering high school, because of being unable to accomplish more. A plan worked out in Trinidad, Colo., seems one which will best fit the conditions. In this system, completing the eighth grade are registered in high school classes largely based on intelligence. Boundaries between various classes are not fixed alike for all subjects, but necessarily are changed according to the number of sections in the various subjects. Freshman English is in six divisions. Other subjects may be in fewer divisions. The amount and quality of work required in these divisions are then adjusted according to the ability of the group. In Wayne, most of the freshmen and sophomores are in two divisions. If seems that it would be possible to make the division according to ability. No more teachers than present are needed for this work done by the different groups would vary with the ability. The more capable students might do research work in addition to the courses of study. The plan in Trinidad made competition for the ness from one season to another, and on this assumption it may be written now that 1927 looks promising. Railroad car loadings were above the million mark all summer. They dropped somewhat for the week ending November 27, the figure being 942,792 cars. This was due to decreases in shipments of grain and grain products, miscellaneous freight, live-stock and lumber. Coal and merchandise in less than railroad lots showed an increase. This fluctuation was to be expected and really means nothing discouraging, especially in view of the actual gain made by the weekly car loadings. In the same week of last year the car loadings were 1,950,000 cars less. In the same week of 1924 the difference in favor of this year was 65,661 cars. Therein lies the point to be made that business now is in a stronger position than for two years. No one expected car loadings to stay over the million mark throughout the year. A decline was confidently expected. The unexpected, although not yet finished has decreased in volume. That always has its effect on car loadings. The gains made during 1924 and 1925 in car loadings are most encouraging. This is a heavy percentage of increase. It simply means that the business momentum is stronger than it was last year of the year before, and on that may be based the conclusion that 1927 will be another period for the further advance of the country's prosperity. CARROLL NEWS. Fred Jarvis was in Sholes Sunday. H. W. The opera, "The Mikado"

To be presented by the Music Department of State Teachers College

Final rehearsals are being held for the production of the popular and fascinating Gilbert & Sullivan comic opera, "The Mikado" which is to be given by the Music Department of the State Teachers College on Tuesday evening, December 21, in the College Auditorium. Prof. Leon F. Beery, who, with Mrs. Beery, is directing the performance, says the rehearsals are progressing nicely, and believes that this will be one of the best productions of this kind ever sponsored by the Music Department. Students of the Voice Department will take the leading roles, the College Chorus and members of the College Choir will constitute the chorus and members of the College Orchestral Club will furnish the accompaniment. Special scenery and stage effects are being planned in order to give the performance an artistic setting.

This clever, sparkling and entertaining Japanese opera is considered by many to be the masterpiece of the inimitable collaborators, W. S. Gilbert and Sir Arthur Sullivan, whose works still stand as the last word in clean, high-class comic opera. Two of their operas, "The Pirates of Penzance" and "The Gondoliers," have been presented by the College Music Department in the past, and were greatly enjoyed.

Tickets for this performance will be fifty cents, and will be on sale for the people of the town on Friday morning, December 17, at the Wayne Drug Company. All seats will be reserved, and as usual, a block of choice seats on the main floor will be set apart for the town people. It is strongly urged that tickets be procured in advance, as the houses is always sold out for these performances. Holders of season tickets for the College entertainment course may use them to procure reserved seat tickets for the opera performance.

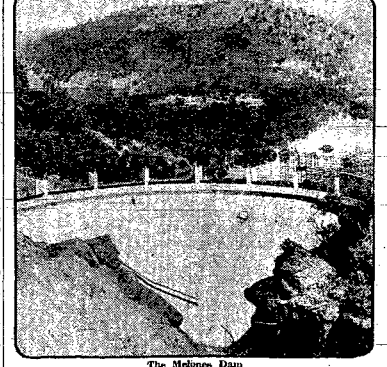

Farmers Co-operate With Corporation In Huge Power-Irrigation Project

FOR what is believed to be the first time in history a great power corporation and the farmers have joined hands in a co-operative enterprise. The project was fostered in Oakdale, Calif., where the Oakdale and Santa Joaquin irrigation districts have reached an agreement with the Pacific Gas and Electric Co. and the Sierra and San Francisco Power Co. The irrigation districts furnish the water, while the power companies make electricity and pay the farmers for the cost of the reservoir.

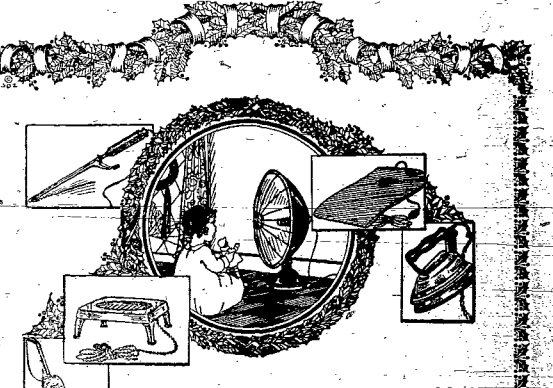

Under this first co-operative agreement of its kind, water rights on the Stanislaus River, where there had been clashes for years, are set aside forever.

The power companies are to pay the irrigation districts $5,176,000 over a period of 40 years, after which the reservoir becomes jointly the property of the companies and districts. In addition the farmers get 300 acres of storage water already impounded by the power company, and free use of all water hereafter.

The power companies will get the electrical power derived from the stored water, and in addition will impound 112,000 acre feet of water. The two districts include 145,000 acres of irrigated land, and a heart of the San Joaquin valley, and irrigation will increase production of grapes, cotton, almonds, grains,

The Melones Dam. The dam takes its name from the town of Melones, which water located by the dam will reach. The dam was formed as a mining center of the Melones Lodge, and the great dam, over many years, has accumulated mud during the California gold rush.

Order Declaring County Area For Inspection of Cattle in Wayne County

Wayne, Nebraska, County of Wayne, ss.

On the 20th day of September, 1926, this matter came on for hearing before me, H. J. McLaughlin, Secretary of the Department of Agriculture, State of Nebraska, upon the petition of H. J. McLaughlin and other persons filed herein, alleging such owners to be 60 per cent or more of the owners and representing 51 per cent or more of the breeding cattle of Wayne county, and requesting that said county be declared to be an area for the testing of cattle for the purpose of eradicating tuberculosis. Upon examination of said petition and being advised in the premises, I find that notice of the time and place fixed for said hearing has been given to all persons interested in said matter by the publication of an order fixing the time and place of hearing and published in the Wayne Herald, a legal newspaper published and circulated in said county.

The time having now expired for the filing of objections with the Department of Agriculture against declaring such county to be an area for the purpose of testing cattle for the eradication of tuberculosis, and no objections being on file, said matter came on for hearing. Being fully advised in the premises I find that the petitioners named in the petition filed herein are more than 60 per cent of the owners and represent more than 51 per cent of the breeding cattle as disclosed by the assessment rolls of the last general assessment within such county, and that said county should be declared an area for the testing of cattle therein for the purpose of tuberculosis eradication in the manner provided by law.

It is therefore ordered by me that the county of Wayne is an area for the testing of cattle for tuberculosis eradication in the manner provided by law and that the department shall proceed as its earliest convenience for the testing of cattle within such area for the purpose of tuberculosis eradication therein.

In witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand at the Capitol in the city of Lincoln, Lancaster county, Nebraska, this 8th day of December, 1926.

H. J. McLaughlin, Secretary Nebraska Department of Agriculture.
(Seal) Approved:
Adam McMullen, Governor.

Under provisions of the state law requiring that notice be published in at least one newspaper of general circulation in any county where an area has been established for the tuberculin testing of the county, it is hereby announced that the tuberculin testing of cattle in Wayne county will be commenced on or immediately after December 20, 1926.
H. J. McLaughlin, Secretary Nebraska Department of Agriculture.

Farm and Fame.

Lincoln Journal: Probably the happiest youngster in America at this minute is Ray Greathouse of Hinsdale, Illinois. Ray is the youngster who grew the steer which won the prize at the international livestock exposition. This is the animal which, at the auction to dispose of the prize was bought by the Chicago market, brought the pretty price of forty cents a pound on the hoof.
This youth reached the goal toward which he has been striving, a club division of the boys and girls clubs of America aspire. He perfected a work which has won national recognition. It was a work of art. Let no one dare question that the moulder of a champion steer is any less the artist than the moulder of a statue. He is entitled to the same satisfaction to which George Bernard Shaw is entitled for landing a Nobel prize. He is entitled to greater satisfaction than is ordinarily due the achiever of great things. Merit, accident or low cunning may lead to the heights of politics, even, sometimes of wealth. One doesn't win a national beef contest without some worth and merit of his own.
The glittering prizes in life's race have been going to cities. It is the city lawyer who spellbonds the jury, and incidentally the world of headlines follows. It is the city politician who gets known as the Napoleon of finance or business. That is one reason why the world has trooked into the city. It is the city business man who gets known as the Napoleon of finance or business. That is one reason why the world has trooked into the city. It is the city business man who gets known as the Napoleon of finance or business. That is one reason why the world has trooked into the city.

Foreign Advertising For Country Papers

Ole Buck, secretary and field manager of the Nebraska Press Association, was in Chicago December 7 and 8 in attendance at a conference of eastern advertising men. Mr. Buck is one of the most successful state-press associations throughout the United States chosen to represent the country press. The meeting was attended by representatives of advertising agencies and national advertisers and was for the purpose of discussing ways and means to create more foreign advertising for the newspapers represented by the state press associations.

G. D. McClaskey, former Nebraska country publisher, now associated with Mr. Buck, says that this is probably the most important meeting viewed from the angle of the country publishers ever held to discuss national advertising. Mr. McClaskey was at one time connected with an advertising agency and was also associated with large publications which receive most of their advertising through the advertising agencies. He gives it as his opinion that if all of the country publishers could get a vision of the agency's place in the advertising field; could be brought to an understanding of the agency's real mission in life; could realize the power of the agency in creating new business, and could appreciate the advantages of retaining the business from the agency in "tailor-made" form, there would be no problem to solve in connection with getting a large volume of national advertising.
"The whole trouble confronting national advertisers and advertising agencies," McClaskey said, "in dealing with country publishers is the lack of co-operation on the part of a large number of publishers. Many publishers are lined up, mindlessly with the agencies and as a result of this their volume of business has been materially increased. Other publishers are getting some of the desirable business in spite of themselves, but the agencies are having no end of trouble with these 'other' publishers in keeping their records straight and correct.

in making settlements for the space they order. No doubt the publishers of this latter group should not be criticized for their seeming unwillingness to co-operate, but they should at least put themselves in a receptive mood to be enlightened as to how they may, with advantage to themselves, take care of things at their end of the line.
Every angle of the situation was discussed at the Chicago meeting and Mr. Buck will shortly have some valuable information for the members of the Nebraska Press Association, which had to do solely with the proposition of creating more business for the country press. He is doing numerous things that he, as secretary of the Nebraska Press Association, is doing constantly to make the life of the Nebraska publishers more pleasant and profitable. Because of this important work, the official organ of the Nebraska Press Association should be one of the most carefully read pieces of literature that reaches the editor's desk.

Simple, but Oh My! How Vecto does heat!

You'll find the great secret of VECTO'S operating principle under the handsome green enamel jacket. The air is "rubbed" against a mass of ribs or fins and as it expands and rises it is thus made to carry off every particle of heat, faster than bread soaks up gravy.

Ordinary heaters of same size must be driven to 750 degrees of red-hot heat to equal the volume of low, gentle warmth poured out by the VECTO. Its fuel-rate does less in all about and coal-gases, ideally clean. The Ideal VECTO Warm Air Heater at $97 (freight extra) offers best heating to those not prepared to invest in Ideal ARCOLA Hot Water Radiator Heating. Easy payments. Write to Dept. Injured at Car Turn Over.

Norfolk Daily News, Dec. 14.—Al m. Larson, 21 years of age, is slowly recovering from bruises and scratches about her left foot, leg and knee, and right hip, which were suf fered when the car in which she was riding turned over at a railway cross ing one mile west of Pilger Tuesday afternoon, the back end of the ma chine being struck by a C. and N. W. train.

Henry Laudmaster and Roy Fink, both of Norfolk, and Miss Elsie Pe terson of Stanton, all of whom were riding in the same car, suffered in juries, but no fractures.

According to the report given by the Northwestern officials in Norfolk, Laudmaster, who was driving the ma chine, upon seeing that the car might be hit by the speeding train, drove off the highway, the automobile up setting in such a manner that the back end was over the rails. The train struck the rear end of the car, shov ing it off the track.

It was a fortunate escape for the four young people whose ages range from 19 to 21 years, it was reported. The car occupants sustained their injuries when the car turned over and not when the train pushed the machine from the tracks, according to a report.
