The approaching completion of the great system of locks and dams in the Ohio river for the benefit of inland navigation and the establishment of barge lines on the Mississippi river has greatly stimulated river transportation, and it is increasing to such an extent that a general ice-reporting service by the Weather Bureau of the United States Department of Agriculture has become necessary.

Accordingly, beginning December 20, 1926, a daily ice service was inaugurated throughout the Ohio river basin, including the larger tributaries, and also over the Missouri river east of Kansas City and the Mississippi river from the mouth of the Missouri to the Ohio river. An interlocking system of reports will permit the collection of daily information at Pittsburgh, Parkersburg, Cincinnati, St. Louis, Evansville, Cairo, and Louisville, and later summarized transmission to Cincinnati from the other stations except St. Louis. The Cincinnati office will then prepare a resume of the general ice situation and telegraph it to the other five Ohio river stations, where it will be utilized for dissemination and, when necessary for making of forecasts of the ice movement. There is already a similar system of interchange of river-station information.

The information received and the forecasts issued will be broadcast by radio, published in the river bulletins, weather maps, and newspapers, and telephoned to lock masters along the Ohio river. The services between St. Louis and Cairo will be more local, but of the same character. Special surveys and reports will be made of the formation and breaking of ice gorges and it is expected that the new service will prove of great value to all affected by the rivers, whether they are inhabitants of the valleys or directly engaged in inland waterway service.

Find Pre-Historic Bone. Hartington, Neb., Jan. 19.—What is supposed to be the jaw bone of some pre-historic animal is on exhibition here at the Hartington National bank. The specimen was brought to the bank by L. A. Case who owns a sand and gravel pit near here. It was found about 30 feet from the surface of the ground. It is believed by some to be the upper jaw bone of a pre-historic rhinoceros, as a sort of horn or tusk is attached to the front above the teeth. Plans are under way to send the bone to Lincoln for examination by experts.

Horse Injures Man. Hartington, Neb., Jan. 19.—Dietrich Edelhauser, a farm hand employed by Frank Grewick, after being kicked on the left side of his face by a horse and being rendered unconscious for a short time, got up from the ground, cranked his car and drove to a nearby farm with a broken jaw and bleeding lip.

Within One's Limitations. Hartington Herald: Every active individual is exposed to the temptation of spreading himself over too large an area and, by attempting to do too many things, of becoming more or less superficial. It were better to concentrate on a few things and do them well than to undertake a number of projects and excel at none. This is a notoriously busy age, with constant demands upon one's time, strength and ability, and, unless one is on his guard, he is liable to assume greater responsibilities than he is able to properly handle. The wise man or woman is one who knows his or her limitations and refuses to spread energy and endeavor over too wide an area. Such a one will accomplish far more in the end than the person who essays too much.

Interesting Bits of Wayne County History

Pioneer families built two kinds of homes. Many dug holes in the ground and when these were boarded up on the inside they made comfortable quarters. Others built homes of logs, often boarded on the inside and covered with slough hay roofing. Occasionally such a home would be built in a hill, the ground forming part of the walls. Homes were far apart and early settlers kept in touch with neighbors by watching small curls of smoke from the chimneys.

BEAUTIFUL FLOORS

People today appreciate the floors of their homes as more than something to walk on. They expect beautiful floors—floors that will give long time service at low cost.

The extraordinary strength, beauty and wearing quality of oak has made this wood the nation's favorite flooring material. Nature grew in oak a grain that is distinctive and one that cannot be reproduced with success.

The most beautiful of all flooring materials, oak, is also the most economical because of the superior qualities of the wood.

Let us tell you how little it will cost to put oak floors in your home.

Funeral Held For Former Resident

The following from the Rushville Recorder is the obituary of a former resident:

"Russell Eugene Henderson, son of E. B. and Emma Henderson, was born at Elgin, Neb., August 3, 1902, and died January 15, 1927, age 24 years, 5 months and 12 days. When only 8 months of age his parents moved to Winside, Neb., where they remained until he reached young manhood, graduating from the Winside high school in 1920. He attended the Wayne Normal and later was employed by the Northwestern as an accountant at Northfork. In September, 1921, he was transferred to Chadron, where he stayed until July, 1923, when he was sent to the Sioux City division. There his parents joined him and no home was more content and happy than theirs until sickness entered there. An attack of the flu left him with a constitution undermined and in June, 1925, the home was broken up and Russell went in search of health, which he seemed to have partially regained in the sunny land of the southwest, crossing over into Old Mexico for a few months working in the accounting department of the Southern Pacific at Empalme, until the desire to see old friends led him to return to the states. Just five short weeks ago, he arrived in Rushville to see his mother and sister. There he contracted the cold which cut short a young life, so full of promise and success. A young man of unswerving character and a fun loving disposition he never failed to make friends wherever he went, as the many letters received testiplied to the esteem and respect in which he was held by those who had known him.

Those left to mourn his untimely death are a loving mother, Mrs. Emma Henderson and a sister, Mrs. Bertha Olds, of Rushville, and one brother, Clarence E. Henderson of Chicago, who was unable to be present at this sad time; two nieces and hosts of friends. His father preceded him to life beyond January 17, just a short year ago.

The funeral services were conducted at the home of his sister by Rev. O. E. Richardson, pastor of the M. E. church, Rushville, and the remains were laid to rest in Fairview cemetery by the side of his father."

AS TO AN IDEAL Harrington Herald: The Wayne Herald, which has long enjoyed the distinction of being one of the best weekly newspapers in the United States, has recently added important improvements which will advance it still farther in the attainment of its goal. Editor Huse modestly refrains from saying much about these improvements, referring to them simply as a step in the evolution of the paper, but from all we can gather, we infer that the Herald has moved into its own new building and has installed a new press and other equipment which will facilitate the printing of its rapidly growing edition. We will not say that we think the Wayne Herald has materially improved in appearance for it had already reached a perfection as far as typography was concerned, but we like the new, eight column size and we appreciate the fact that the paper is able to handle a much larger volume of business and handle it more expeditiously than it was before. The Wayne Herald is the practical working out of an ideal, faithfully adhered to for many years by its able editor, and in its present larger and improved form it is better able to serve its 2,750 subscribers and its 14,000 readers. Editor Huse has set a high goal in country journalism which should serve both as an inspiration and an incentive for the rest of us to follow.

Prospect For Baby Beef Clubs In State Lincoln, Neb., Jan. 22.—With a few clubs still to be heard from, the baby beef clubs of the state started the year's competition with 410 boys and girls entered; it was announced today by C. O. Waggener, of the agricultural extension service. With the enrollments yet to come, it is expected, he said, that this year's number of contestants will equal last year's record, when 505 members entered with 750 calves on feed. The boys and girls already entered represent 40 clubs, in 28 counties, and with feeding conditions as they are in some sections of the state, the number is considered unusually high, Waggener said. "The calves entered," he declared, "have been taken from the very best herds in the state, and undoubtedly will fatten into some of the finest quality cattle yet seen in Nebraska. By state fair time we will have another $50,000 exhibit of baby beef." Each boy and girl entered in the contest will be visited at some time during the year by men in charge of the club work in the state, and pictures will be taken of the calves for identification purposes. Any problems which may have arisen to confront the youthful farmers will be threshed out at these visits, he said. In addition to feeding the calves, the members are keeping records of the weight, feed, expense involved and methods of fattening, so that these may be compared at the end of the contest. In addition to this, they are receiving at various intervals, lessons from the agricultural college, designed to instruct them in the proper methods to use in fattening their calves. By state fair time, it is expected, the members will have learned both through theory and through actual practice, the best and most profitable methods of fattening and fitting baby beefs. Mrs. W. A. Hiscox went to Sioux City Sunday afternoon.

Special Study Clubs For Older Farm Boys After the farm boy has outgrown the smaller enterprises he enjoyed in his pig, corn, or calf club as a youngster, and before he has a farm of his own and can carry on adult farm demonstrations, he may get out of touch with progressive methods of agriculture. It is this boy between the ages of 14 and 20 whom extension workers cooperatively employed by the United States Department of Agriculture and the State colleges are interesting in a program of better farming. Among the most effective of these organizations for young men on the farms are the younger farmers' clubs in Connecticut, successfully carried on for the last four years. These young farmers are working on a standard farm, saving on the farm that will compare well with the opportunities offered in other lines of business, and are not content with mastering only the production side but are studying the marketing and economic side of farming as well. Each member keeps a complete set of farm accounts which serve as a basis for study of the farm business and the working out of plans for improvement. They analyze the business on successful farms in the state and study business conditions in their relation to agriculture. A junior fair in Middlesex county, where there was no other fair, has been a successful project, with most of the responsibility borne by the young folks. Next year they plan to take entire charge of the fair. The farm record clubs of Iowa and the farm account clubs of Oregon are helping to meet this need of young men of the farm. Wisconsin in this year organizing forestry clubs for boys between the ages of 14 and 21, while Maryland's program aims to keep in touch with the older club boys and get them ready to enter business for themselves at 21 years of age. Redwood county, Minn., last year developed an organization for these rural young people in which the boys decided to take up advanced projects in swine, dairy, and corn, and studies of the business side of farming.

The Best Age. Thomas Edison's opinion of the age of an English author that he should step aside and make room for younger and more progressive men and women. Mr. Edison believes that the man who has reached the age of thirty-six has just about achieved readiness to discard the illusions built on the false theories of youth.

Some years ago a study was made of 400 of the world's most eminent men to determine at what age they did their best work. The result of this investigation seems to confirm Edison's opinion. It was found that while the average age at which these men began their life work was forty-four, the average age at which they reached the height of their powers was fifty.

Stealing chickens that are worth $1 or more is a more serious offense to owners than when they were worth only 25 cents. Thus, the policy of sending chickens to the penitentiary is justly going.

The weather the past week has been fashioned to suit all imaginable desires. It has been warm and cold, sunshiny and snowy. Whatever one's inclination, he was able to extend a vote of approval to at least a part of the week.

A feeling is expressed that more building will be done in Wayne during 1927 than in any one year in many years. Many new residences and a few new business houses are contemplated, so we are told. We hope so. And the business district needs a great deal of improving to bring it up to par with residence sections.

People who nurse a grudge years after the cause has been removed, have little conscience and no Christian charity. Ground which caused ill will may be trifling and due to an inflated state of mind induced by circumstances which were temporary and of no great consequence at the time.

An epidemic of flu, in modified form, is sweeping Europe, and the United States authorities are exercising every precaution to keep it out of this country. Any had cold with fever and aching bones is likely to be called the flu or grip, but if the real flu has not reached here yet, we hope it will be kept at a safe distance.

"Whatever our preconceived notions about another and better world than this," says Dr. A. L. Bixby in the Lincoln Journal, "it is rarely that anybody is ready to make the change. That Madison, Wis., lad whose curiosity got the better of him, prompting him to set a bullet through his brain, was certainly abnormal if not sub-normal."

According to a report introduced in the course of a discussion at the meeting of county superintendents at Lincoln this week, pupils from rural schools enter high school earlier and are graduated earlier than those from the grades of the city schools. The rural pupil is so inclined to outrank the city child in scholarship honor and high averages. The rural child has less to divide attention and to hinder concentrated effort.

Where the little inoffensive-looking nail that put our newspaper press out of commission, causing much expense and annoyance, came from, we do not know. We know that it appeared between the cogs and crushed two of them. The nail may have been carelessly laid where it would work in between the cogs or it may have been thoughtlessly tossed aside.

AN UNUSUAL CLASS. The Presbyterian Sunday school has a men's class that is developing wonderfully in numbers and interest. A few months ago it had six or eight members, and it was dragging along rather indifferently. Now it has sixty members and is growing from week to week. At a meeting last fall it was decided to organize and awaken interest by discussing live subjects—subjects that would appeal to men and encourage Christian living. It was not deemed so important to analyze the quirks in the minds of Moses and Joshua or other prophets as to understand practical Christianity as related to every-day affairs. Each few Sundays, Clarence Darrow's attitude toward crime and immortality has been considered. This discussion involved capital punishment and other current problems that influence people's lives. Members of the class were divided in regard to Darrow as a menace or a benefit to society. One more meeting will be devoted to Mr. Darrow, and then he will be deemed settled and disposed of.

IDEAS AND DICTION. At the meeting of correspondents and others during the Herald's opening Saturday afternoon, Will M. Manly of the Omaha Bee, stressed the importance of ideas, and F. D. Stone of the Hartington Herald, gave emphasis to need of using correct and concise English. Both men are rich and resourceful in ideas, and both express themselves in excellent phrases. Students will do well to heed both—have something to say and then express it in as nearly faultless style as possible.

ordinary in fact that it may be put down now as extremely improbable. Yet, it is sensible to say that, 1927 could fall short of the 1926 achievements and still be a good year. Let business men remember that.

Just here seems to be the place for the suggestion that indications point to a closer approach to normal conditions than at any time in years. The midwinter slackness in activity may be a sign that business is getting back to old habits and methods, is more responsive to various influences. The program of reconstruction after the war was one of intensity. Old rules were swept aside. The compelling thing was to get the plans through. Neither midwinter nor midsummer seasons brought declines. But conditions were abnormal as was reflected in car loadings, bank clearings, industrial production and sales. Perhaps now there is to be less nervousness in many directions and a more reasonable understanding of actualities.

Business could decline somewhat from the figures of last year and be eminently satisfactory. Activity was so great in 1926 that too much was expected of the future. No sharp decline is indicated in any particular line, however, and the future seems safe enough. The only thing to which attention ought to be given is the possibility that American business may have to be satisfied with results that will fall short of smashing high records.

Desirable light shorted heifers in a spread of $9.25 to $9.25 look steady for the first half of the week, as do the medium and heavier heifers from $7.50 to $8. Feeding cows and heifers also active and strong. Feeding heifers of choice quality and of little more than calf weight topped at $7.50. Good light veal heifers selling around $6.50 to $6.75, with feeders from $4 to $5.

Market Report.

Furnished by Steele, Siman & Co., Sioux City Stock Yards.

Sioux City Stock Yards, Jan. 26.—A modest contraction in the cattle delivery over the country this week kept the market on a firm edge, except possibly in the division through which the less attractive shortfed cows sold. Even the inferior cow stuff did not feel any heavier as order buyers were on hand to furnish an outlet when big packers exerted too much pressure.

Shortfed steers and yearlings still comprise the bulk of arrivals, with fair to good quality kinds predominating. Sales therefore land most freely in a spread of $8.50 to $9.25, with the advancing season bringing about a gradual increase in the number of transactions showing above the $9 line. Scattered sales of vealers good to choice shortfed material on up to $10 and over are interspersed with occasional clearances of long feds to a peak above the $11 line. According to weight and quality the warmed ups sell from $7.50 to $8.25, with odd lots down around $7 that carried just a slip-on of flesh, but were too plain in quality to merit feeder buyer attention.

The Farmers' Union Co-operative Concern Has Prosperous Year. Makes 2 1/2 Million Pounds of Butter and Sales Exceed $1,000,000.00.

The Farmers Union Co-operative Creamery company of Fremont experienced a phenomenal increase in business during the past year, representing sales for the year of more than a million dollars and manufactured product of 2,532,000 pounds of butter, which is more than a million pounds above last year's record of approximately a million and a half pounds of butter.

All this is shown in its annual report prepared by Manager Martin Nelson, for presentation at the annual meeting of shareholders of the local co-operative concern, set for Wednesday, next week, January 26. Mr. Nelson attributes the phenomenal increase of his concern's business principally to the expansion of the field by the establishment of several additional cream-buying stations throughout surrounding territory. The Co-operative Creamery maintains a total of 53 such stations scattered throughout the state.

Total Sales of a Million. The concern's total sales for the year, according to the manager's report, is $1,010,323.23. From this a profit of $50,000 will be distributed among stockholders at the annual meeting next week. And this, after $24,932 had been paid out in salaries to the 12 employees employed by the firm the year around, and $48,000 has been disbursed in the form of commissions to buyers at the company's 53 branch stations.

This record places this Farmers Co-operative creamery in the category of Fremont's greatest business concerns, and exemplifies likewise the possibilities in this country in and from the business of dairying. And the great advantage in the whole story, as Manager Nelson points out, is that this huge sum of business represents money that has been drawn to Fremont and to the farmers of Nebraska from the great financial centers of the east, where the Farmers Union Co-operative Creamery company's product was largely sold.

ETHYL

IN the International races at Indianapolis, in every race sponsored by the American Automobile Association in recent years, the winners have used ETHYL in their gasoline.

Now you can get it in combination with RED CROWN, the gasoline that has been the choice of Nebraska motorists for a generation.

Drive to the nearest RED CROWN service station, drain your tank and re-fill with RED CROWN ETHYL. You will think you have added a couple of cylinders to your motor.

No more knocking when you take a hill on high.

No more knocking when you have to crawl in traffic.

More power all the way, because the carbon in your car merely raises the compression and helps instead of hinders.

RED CROWN ETHYL gasoline costs three cents more, but it's worth it. Fill up with it at the nearest RED CROWN service station and prove it for yourself.

To avoid dilution, drain your tank before you fill it with Red Crown Ethyl gasoline for the first time, and use Red Crown Ethyl exclusively thereafter.

A man always chases a woman until she catches him.—El Paso Times.

A Range Advertisement for Men Only by a man

We men are supposed to be practical, above all things. We are supposed to know all about iron and steel and mechanics, etc.

The women folks depend on our judgment in such matters. But if your wife came to you tomorrow and asked your advice about the range she was going to buy, could you give her any real help? Honestly now, could you?

I am going to tell you some plain facts, because I believe men are really interested. We have to pay the fuel bills — we have to eat the food — why shouldn't we be interested?

First you should know why malleable iron is used in the Monarch. Of course you know what malleable iron is. It's different from cast iron because it's tough. It cannot crack or break.

The quick heating malleable top of the Monarch is really much stronger than a heavy slow heating cast iron top would be. You never need to worry about breaking any of the castings of the Monarch.

But that's not only the reason for using "malleable" in the Monarch. By using this unbreakable iron it is possible to rivet every joint. No need to plaster such seams with stove putty. These riveted joints are tight to start with, and "Air Leaks" can never open up to spoil the draft and waste fuel. A leaky range doesn't draw any better than a cigar with a broken wrapper.

I don't want to burden you with too many facts. Just remember these few things when you have a chance to give advice to the women folks.

Or, better yet, why wait for her to ask you? Why not suggest that she get a Monarch? It would save you a lot of money you are now spending for fuel. Yes, it would pay for itself very soon.

Drop in and let's talk it over.

Death of Prominent Stanton Pioneer

Norfolk, News, Jan. 21: Adam Pilger, sr., 74, prominent Stanton man, passed away at his home Friday shortly after noon, death being caused by anemia from which he had been suffering about a year.

Mr. Pilger was the son of the late August Pilger who was one of the first settlers of Norfolk, coming to this city in 1870. For a number of years Adam Pilger lived in Norfolk, growing to manhood in this city. Later he went to Stanton where he was engaged in the hardware and implement business.

He was one of the most well-to-do men of Stanton, being one of the strongest stockholders in the Stanton National bank. He also owned considerable property in the eastern part of Norfolk.

Surviving relatives are his wife, sister of Herman Buettorf of Norfolk; three sons, Albert, Pilger; Adam, jr., and Leo, Stanton; three daughters, Mrs. Sadie Miller, Pilger; Mrs. Ella Brovejoh, Washington; Mrs. Martha Corth, Niobrara. Dr. Walter Porter of Norfolk, is a nephew.

What Is Life of Battery?

"How long will this battery last?" is one of the most frequent questions battery men are asked, claims Mr. Swanson of the local Willard station. To ask such a question is like asking your doctor, how long the boy playing ball in the lot across the street will live. He would tell you that if the boy lived according to such and such rules and conditions he would live a long time barring accidents. In other words, not even the specialist on the human body could answer such a question definitely.

So each battery specialist cannot tell with any reasonable assurance of accuracy just how long a battery will last. In fact, there are instances of batteries lasting for ten years or more, some for only a few months. According to officials of the Willard Storage Battery company of Cleveland, Ohio, the life of a battery is determined by four conditions, use, time, care and quality of the battery itself.

A motorist making unusual demands upon the battery will probably reduce its life by a few months, but all other things being equal he will attain a very satisfactory mileage. Consequently cost per mile in such a case is as fair a basis for comparison as cost per month. If you bought a pair of shoes and wore them day in and day out, you would not consider yourself cheated when they wore out after a few months whereas your other shoes of same quality and price last for a year because you only wear them on Sundays and holidays. In either case it is the use you get from an article that determines your degree of satisfaction.

What does time do to your battery? Going back to the shoes again, if you bought a new pair, wore them a couple of weeks and then left them on the back porch, exposed to all conditions of weather for a year or so, you would find that time had worn them considerably. In fact, you would discover that they had become worn out without use. It is the same in the case of the battery. It was made to use and the way to get the most value out of it is to use it day in and day out.

The third factor upon which battery life depends is also almost entirely in the hands of the individual owner. A battery is something not only to use, but to take like a tank of gasoline. You provide the electricity for starting, lighting and ignition by using up the battery. The battery does not constitute an inexhaustible supply of electricity.

The fourth factor in getting months and miles out of a battery is the quality of the battery itself. When you obtain a battery of a known standard make you can rest assured you are getting your money's worth, for the manufacturer of a well known make of battery must stand behind its product and can only have existed because the product is satisfactory.

Editorial Opinion.

York Republican: A local critic complains that York has some keen people in the newspaper business but they do not write daring and outstanding things for their newspapers. The charge is well founded.

There will always be considerable difference of opinion about what is good editorial practice. Some prefer heated utterances that sign and scar. But the fields of journalism are strewn with the wrecks of newspapers committed to that practice. Experience proves that those journals committed to careful speaking and the exclusion of sharp comment upon things that are controversial, rather than basic, live longer and wield greater influence. They build steadily and quietly—but they really build.

There are times, when the facts are not presented or there is deceit and perversion, for the editor to speak frankly and forcefully. But he will not be forceful if he has previously won a reputation for a scold or a carping critic. He needs to keep his superlatives and offensive pen for the time when they shall be greatly needed.

Solid community building is done with bricks set quietly in mortar, not hurled at the heads of dissenting people. And a horn in the symphony of community harmony always is preferable to a squaker in a knocker orchestra.

The country is divided into postal zones. We presume the six-mail routes will be called ozones—Tampa Tribune.

"WORM ON WHEELS" TO REPLACE STEAM ENGINES ON STEEP MOUNTAIN HAULS

One section of one of the giant electric locomotives built for the Great Northern Railway.

The west has been introduced to a new type of electric locomotive, said to be the largest and most powerful in the world. Tests at the East Pittsburgh works of the Westinghouse company built the locomotive, show it to be more powerful than a steam "double-header." It can haul a train of 200-loaded freight cars.
It draws current from the high-voltage alternating current lines already up, but it converts this power to direct current for its own use.
Going down hill, it uses its motors as brakes and at the same time generates power enough to supply current for other purposes. Like a giant worm on two dozen wheels, this power engine splits in two, so that its cast-iron cog turns more easily. It has a total length of 100 feet and weighs 715,000 pounds.
It has a continuous rating of 3500 horsepower at 15 miles an hour, but can exert as much as 7000 horsepower. Its speed is variable from two to 35 miles an hour.
Eight motors drive it, operated through a huge transformer from an 11,000-volt, 25-cycle overhead trolley.
Conversion of the alternating to direct current by the locomotive itself eliminates the use of substations ordinarily required to provide the direct current along the right-of-way. This is a great economic advantage.
An important feature, in addition, is the system of regenerative braking by which the heavy train can be taken down steep grades without the use of airbrakes. The traction motors are used as generators, braking the load and at the same time feeding current back into the power system for other purposes.
This huge locomotive is one of two ordered by the Great Northern Railway to surmount at double speed the heavy grades of the Cascade Mountains which rise abruptly from the coast in Washington. The present line of the Great Northern crosses these mountains at an elevation of 3385 feet.
The first of the pair of giant electric locomotives will operate over the 24-mile section out of Skykomish, Wash., the eastern portal of the Cascade tunnel at the summit of the mountains. It covers one of the longest and steepest mountain grades in America.
