Wayne Welcome Is Felt as Well as Manifested

One would have to travel a long way and probably even then not find a town with better stocks of merchandise or a higher type of either professional or mechanical skill than will be found in Wayne. As many have learned by experience, Wayne is a good town to come to for supplies or any service that may be needed. It is a good town to get acquainted with and tie to. Merchants and their clerks do not have to be blasted out of concrete settees anchored in the rear of their stores to persuade them to use on the alert, courteous and obliging, and they like to get acquainted and show their lines whether you buy or not. Put Wayne on your regular calling list if it is not already there. Come every day if necessary or possible, but anyway, when you go anywhere, come here.

HOME SLIPPING NOT DUE TO TOO MUCH BUSINESS

Development of home life which is believed to have been slipping, was stressed in the educational convention at Dallas, Texas, recently. Growing neglect of home is attributed in a measure to too much absorption in business. But we doubt if attention to work and business has deflected as much interest from the home as pleasure-seeking. We doubt if people anywhere ever devoted less time to earning a livelihood than they do now. We doubt if people ever played more than they do now, or would quit work for play with less excuse than they do now. The home may be anaemic and in need of an infusion of new blood and new interest, but we do not believe it is suffering from too much perspiration or too long hours in the mart of trade or in other fields of useful endeavor.

Desires Prairie Fire at Coleridge

Mrs. J. W. Linkhart has written for the Coleridge D. A. R. chapter a paper describing a prairie fire which swept through the country near Coleridge in the latter part of October, 1884, the year after the town was established. The article describes the fire as follows:

"The prairie was covered with a dense growth of grass and weeds, and with the wind behind the fire made a dense smoke, and the air was hot from the burning grass. No one can realize the terror from such a sight until he has once seen it. As the smoke came nearer the people came running up to meet the fire, some with buckets, some with gunnysacks, and others with nothing. One man brought a team and plow, but it was too late for him to do any good before the flames were on us. Nearly every man in town was fighting fire, and some of the women. We used all the water out of our wells and I then stood at the cistern and pumped water filling one pail after another as fast as the water could be pumped. Such a busy time you never saw. Some of the men were almost ready to give up and plow, but I never can put it out, but I kept telling them to stick to it and fight the fire as long as we could. We all realized that if the fire once got into town no part of it could be saved. When the fire came to the paths or little roads running out of town, it died down, and then the people would take courage and worked all the more.

Tekamah, Neb., March 3.—Testing poultry flocks for tuberculosis now widely done in herds of cattle and swine, has been started in Silver Creek district, this county. It is believed to be the first precinct in the United States where such work has been done.

ORDER

Nowhere is order more important than in the management of funeral services. Here the slightest mishap or delay takes on serious proportions and lays an added burden on hearts already heavy.

It is to this intangible quality in our service, we believe, that we owe a considerable part of the confidence placed in our organization.

Correct Ideas. Dr. A. L. Bixby in Lincoln Journal: Uncle John Ruskin, who had correct ideas and knew how to express them more clearly than most writers, on the subject of education, declared that the entire object of it is not only to make people do the right things but enjoy the right things; to be not merely industrious but to love industry; not merely to be pure but to love purity; not merely to be just but to hunger and thirst after justice. Amen to every word of it.

Debating Season Opens at Wayne High In Contest With Wakefield On Monday

C. H. Hendrickson Speaks to Students Wednesday—Other News of Past Week.

Wayne high school debating team was to have gone to Ponca Friday evening to uphold the affirmative of the state question, but just before leaving the team received a message stating the Ponca school had been closed because of a scarlet fever epidemic. The Wayne team did not make the trip. The question this year is: "Resolved, that the present congress should adopt in substance the principles involved in the Curtis-Reed bill, constitutionality waived." Louis E. Rickabaugh, Natalie Johnson, Bernard Pollard and Elmer Erxleben comprise the Wayne team. Bower Sageors trains the students.

Wayne high school will meet Wakefield high school in debate Monday, March 14, at the Wayne high auditorium. Wayne will uphold the negative. Wakefield has two experienced debaters on the team while Wayne has none. Wakefield held Hartington to a 2-1 decision, upholding the negative. Here, Wakefield will uphold the affirmative.

Former Resident Has Novel Display

Miss Laura E. Lyons of Long Beach, Calif., is writer of an article titled "The Gun Museum which Nels Utter has in his home there. Mr. and Mrs. Utter lived north-east of Wayne in the early eighties and later moved to a farm near Laurel. Excerpts from the article are as follows:

"Firearms, ranging from a Polish matchlock of the sixteenth century to the latest model American signal pistol used in the World war, are contained in the remarkable collection of weapons belonging to Nels Utter of 4461 Vermont avenue. A room in the Utter home is devoted exclusively to the display of this valuable collection.

There are 632 pieces in Mr. Utter's collection. Many of these are unique, several are exact duplicates of famous firearms and a number are relics from the great wars of history, gathered from battlefields and the trench.

"All my life I have been interested in relics and antiques," declares the owner of this valuable collection. "During the 23 years we spent on our farm two miles east of Laurel, Cedar county, Neb., I had occasion to talk with many of the Winnebago and Omaha Indians to the south and east, and with the Sioux and Poncus to the north and west, as they made their semi-annual pilgrimages from reservation to reservation."

"They called me the 'Bee Man' and 'Friend.' I always permitted them to camp in our grove, and the place was very desirable because a creek running through the grove furnished them with water. Often I traded a chicken for a pair of beaded sandals or other pieces of their handwork. Most of these I have disposed of, however. I have kept one cabinet of arrowheads, representing practically every state in the Union. It is interesting to study the variations in color, size and shape of the arrowheads coming from the various tribes in different sections of the country."

"Relics of the World-war were added to the collection through the assistance of Carl Utter, a son of Mr. and Mrs. Utter, who died as the result of his service in the war."

Average Cost for Soil Survey Low

Gathering the important facts about the soils of the country and publishing them as county soil survey reports is being done at an average cost of 25 cents per acre according to figures recently compiled by the United States Department of Agriculture. Cost data from 12 representative counties or areas were taken as a basis for figuring the average cost. This figure covers all expenses, state and federal, from the time an area is first inspected for survey until the completed report is published, and comprises such items as field expenses, salaries, preparation of base and field maps, writing the report, typing, editing, photographic service, printing, engraving, and department overhead.

The soil survey, one of the most important projects of the Bureau of Soils is the only medium through which soil facts of the United States are gathered and classified and the various relationships determined. The survey frequently supplies valuable information for operations other than crop production. For instance, in southern Ohio, newly laid concrete roads were demolished by slipping hillside soils. Soil surveys show that the same slipping of hillsides is going on in other areas and that the process may never stop under natural conditions. Wherever the survey shows such soil action to be present, road builders are forewarned and can thus adopt measures to avoid destruction of their work.

Four Wayne Men Attend Meeting

Prof. I. H. Britell Compares Texas With Nebraska and Tells of Program Features.

Pres. U. S. Conn, Prof. I. H. Britell, Prof. O. R. Bowen and Supt. T. S. Hook represented the State Teachers College and the city school at the convention of superintendents and principals of colleges and high schools, held from February 25 until March 3 at Dallas, Texas. About 15,000 were present for this annual gathering. All of the states, Porto Rico and the Philippine islands were represented.

Dallas is one of the most beautiful cities and appears to have been built by quick wealth, Prof. Britell asserts. The often heard remark in Dallas is "Have you seen our sky line?" The people are proud, and justly so, of their magnificent buildings which cost well into the millions. Rich oil fields contribute to the wealth of Dallas. The city is surrounded also by a rich loam soil for a radius of 100 miles and here is said to be the largest cotton market of the world. Dallas represents the east, being the home of the moneyed and aristocratic. Fort Worth represents the west, attracting the cow boys and others who like freedom of the west. Climate in these Texas cities is about six weeks in advance of the climate here. Fruit trees are in blossom and grass is green there now. March in Texas is a more windy month than in this section.

Colleges and schools in the south are doing a similar work to those here. The equipment and subjects offered are also similar. Tradition and environment modify the work somewhat as the south holds recollections of the past. March 2 was independence day in Texas. The day was celebrated and the flag of the Lone Star state was displayed with the national flag.

Dallas and Fort Worth also have immense auditoriums, hotels and such buildings to care for huge numbers of visitors.

Among the speakers for the program was Mrs. Panabaker of Austin, Texas, who asserted that the United States should join in the conference for world peace. One statement she made was that the "United States is a derelict on the high seas of international peace."

Dr. Gordon of Cincinnati, president of the association, conducted all meetings and showed himself to be a leader in the educational field. A San Francisco man is president for next year and this means that the convention will probably be held in the far east. Once previous to this year the meeting was in the south, that time being in New Orleans.

One interesting feature of the program, Prof. Britell observes, was the chorus of 600 negro children led by the daughter of Booker T. Washington. The president introduced the leader as the "most distinguished daughter of the most distinguished colored educator." She is music director in Dallas. She afterwards led the negro children and the gathering of thousands who were at the program, in singing familiar selections.

Alvin York of Tennessee, the "world's greatest soldier in the world's greatest war," spoke. He has turned down offers from motion picture companies which would bring him large sums of money, to serve his people in the mountains of Tennessee. He sees the need of education for these people and he will devote his life to this work.

Representatives of the college were taken to Denton to the Texas State Teachers College. This is a co-educational school with about 1,400 students. There are eight buildings on a campus of thirty twenty-five years ago. The B. A. and B. S. degrees are offered.

Prof. Britell was impressed with the very pronounced favor of the people of the south have for the Eighteenth amendment. There is no question of a return to days when prohibition was not in effect. Law means liberty to them and a proposal to modify or abandon prohibition is unthinkable.

Many in Texas think "Ma Ferguson never knew what it was all about." They believe that James Ferguson was governor. As an attorney he represents the wealthy. Dan Moody, newly elected governor who is about 33 years old, spoke to the educators and pronounced himself as in favor of every legitimate educational program. The newly elected governor is very young in comparison to the majority who appeared on the program. He seems, however, to be a progressive leader.

Passing Birthdays.

Fairbury News: With the last issue of the News this paper became fifty-five years old. As we enter that section of longer shadows the years glide by almost imperceptibly and the milestones pass "unhonored and unsung." When this paper was first started by the Honorable George Cross more than a half a century ago, a birthday anniversary was made much of, and well it should have been. It meant that the publisher had been able to withstand the trials, tribulations and privations of pioneer life another twelve months, and that his venture in the field of journalism was nearer its ultimate goal by that amount. In those days the fact that it had survived that long was perhaps as gratifying as it was surprising to its friends. Now a certain measure of success and the ability to "live, move and have our being" is taken for granted, and the days slip into months and the months into years, and our birthdays no longer become the occasion for vain retrospection and selfish adulation. So we forgot our birthday last week and it was well.

May Establish Star Mail Service Route

Hartington Herald: The chief of railway mail service recently sent notices to postmasters from Crofton to Wayne advertising for bids for a star route from Crofton to Wayne. The postmasters of Crofton, Fordyce, Hartington, Coleridge, Laurel and Wayne received bids and Louis R. Eby, Hartington postmaster, received four bids. If the star route is established, mail will be carried from Crofton and stations along the way to Wayne, making connections with train No. 12, the Sioux City-Norfolk train, at Wayne at 8:40. This is the same connection made when the morning train was run.

Triple-Power Tractors

1. Practical power on the drawbar.
2. Serviceable power on the belt.
3. Positive power and uniform speed on the power take-off.

The power take-off, which is considered the greatest single tractor improvement made in over ten years, is an original feature on McCormick-Deering tractors. It consists of a shaft attached to the rear of the transmission and driven by power transmitted direct from the engine. It is enclosed to protect it from dust and dirt. It can be used at the same time as the belt pulley, if desired. The power take-off operates in very much the same way as a propeller shaft, and drives the mechanism of the pulled machines, such as tractor binders, rice binders, corn pickers, etc. It enables these machines to do more work and do it more astisfactorily under very adverse conditions of both crop and ground. The power take-off always runs at the same speed whether the tractor is in low or in second gear. It can be run when the tractor is standing still. This is an advantage in clearing the pulled machine in case it should become clogged.

It would prove a real advantage to you in selecting a tractor to be sure that it can be equipped with a real power take-off because power farmers are finding more and more uses for the power take-off.

McCormick-Deering P & O Little Wonder Tractor Plow

The No. 2 Little Wonder combines every feature essential to good plowing with a mechanical design which puts plenty of strength where it is needed yet produces a plow that is very light in draft and as light in weight as it is possible to build a good tractor plow. It is all plow—there is no dead weight.

The Right Kind of Hitch

A two-wheeled plow requires a hitch that is rigid when the bottoms are raised, in order to hold the bottoms up. The Little Wonder hitch is so designed that it is rigid when the bottoms are raised but becomes flexible, up and down, when the bottoms are in the ground. This prevents the tractor from interfering with the work of the plow and results in the plow cutting a uniform depth and leaving a smooth furrow bottom. Where a plow is rigidly connected to the tractor with respect to up-and-down motion, its work is interfered with every time the tractor wheels cross a ridge or depression. The hitch is equipped with an improved spring trip which protects both plow and tractor. It can be very quickly returned to position after being tripped.

Makes Child's Play of a Man's Job

Making child's play of a man's job is just what happens when a McCormick-Deering Primrose ball-bearing cream separator is used. The McCormick-Deering is truly a time and labor-saving convenience and an asset on any dairy farm. A woman, or even a child, can operate a large capacity machine with ease. That is the advent of the ball-bearing McCormick-Deering Primrose, separating was a man's job where strength, endurance and considerable energy were required. Today, however, the McCormick-Deering ball-bearing cream separator, with its close-stirring and sanitary qualities, has encouraged the farmer to increase his herd, raise better cows and sell cream—thus adding considerably to his yearly profits.

Ball-Bearing Spindle

Great Achievement in Cream Separator Construction

The ball-bearing spindle—an exclusive McCormick-Deering Primrose feature—is without question the greatest achievement of recent years, in cream separator construction. Other McCormick-Deering Primrose features are equally important, but its light running qualities, due to ball bearings, has solved the dairy farmer's problem of separating more milk without loss of butter fat, in less time, with less effort, and at less cost.

prevent rather than to punish. An officer is on the alert to direct people and keep them from disturbing legal restrictions. People are prevented from trespassing on excursions through the woods and the fewer arrests made, the more efficient an officer is believed to be.

Some one who has grown up in a congested metropolitan center and who has watched efforts for increased population, writes an article urging less attention to developing bulk and more to developing quality. He thinks the great centers are great enough in number and that the energy and money spent to bring in more people should be devoted to improving the lives of those already there.

The Lincoln Journal calls attention to the system followed in handling school athletics in England. According to the plan, all school students take part and not just the few who are selected to make up winning teams. Though groups for final competition are chosen, all share in whatever benefits accrue from the regular exercise from day to day. The otly injury resulting from athletics is due to excess, and this possibility would be largely removed if everybody participated.

University graduates are forming themselves into a club that will be a part of a national organization. We are thinking of organizing a club for those who did not graduate for which there is ample available material. And we who were not equipped and flaked with college training, need the booying and sustaining influence of organization worse than those who have A. B. M. A. and other degrees. This suggests a way for everybody to be a member of one or more clubs. Have a club for those who did a specified thing and another for those who did not do it. This suggestion is offered without expecting to be rewarded with the presidency of the one constituted by those who did not do it.

When a turtle gets through with its legs it draws them in and tucks them away under its shell. When it tires of looking, or feels a prolonged gaze is neither profitable nor advisable, it drops its head and neck into a cavity provided for such convenience. A turtle does not need a lot of expensive hosiery to embellish a constantly passing pageant of pedal extremities. Neither does it require an assortment of finery to make its neck winsome. In providing turtles with leg and neck retreats, nature hit on a plan that might well be used generally in the interest of economy when one is other plot getting up to people. Offering his help as far as we wish to go in advising nature.

We are inclined to believe the president's position in vetoing the McNary-Haugen bill is sound and tenable, but in making the concession, we do so with a feeling that the west should be conceded a reasonable reduction in the tariff on goods manufactured in the east and sold to western farming communities. A lowering down of the tariff would seem the logical way to create a just parity between prices the farmer receives for his products and those he pays for manufactured commodities. Solution of all problems affecting agriculture as well as manufacturing should be met with fair compromises, with exercise of power modified to comprehend the best interests of all sections and all groups. Many farmers who are attracted to western agriculture and stock raising, were doubtful of the practicability of the proposed relief measure. They believed it would favor some products above others, that it would help the middle-man rather than the producer, and that it would do the cause under consideration more harm than good. But we think they would welcome a sensible readjustment of the tariff, so that it would give more nearly equal advantages to all parts of the country.

Steps in the direction of paving and of more gravelled roads are appropriate taken at this time when the argument for such improvements is powerfully compelling.

If a woman can perform service as well as a man there is no sound reason why she should not receive as high pay as a man. If she does it better, her reward should be larger. Ground for discrimination on account of sex is so feeble that it weeps.

The only way we can account for a cold, unsympathetic attitude is to accept belief in transmigration, involved in theosophy, and conclude that the supply of soul sometimes runs out, creation continuing without waiting for replenishment.

Teachers of the city schools have adopted the age-old idea of reaching the understanding through the medium of the gastronomic organ. They have planned to feed members of the school board and their satellites—wives and husbands—this evening.

One derives just as much exercise from moving the grass as from stoking stoves and furnaces, and the cost is but a trifle in comparison. Therefore, as spring approaches, and the need for fuel abates, every diaphragm, not played out, should have a big sigh of relief.

March shows off about as usual in the matter of high and mighty winds, but it is rather better than normal in freedom from cold and storms. But one can't bet on it. It is stuck between icy winter and balmy spring, and sometimes it is instigated by one and sometimes it is inspired by the other.

In appointing Mrs. Marie Weekes, editor of the Norfolk Press, to represent Nebraska at the annual luncheon for famous women in Chicago May 24, the governor has acted wisely. The honor is bestowed on a worthy and well known contributor to the high standards of Nebraska journalism. The appointment is also due recognition of northeast Nebraska.

A police officer used to be rated by the number of arrests he was able to make. The more people dragged into court for violation of ordinances or statutes, the higher was an officer's standing in the eyes of the appointive power. Of late, however, there has been a rapidly growing tendency the other way. Modern police policy is to

There is really nothing new to say in condemnation of the habit of peddling around poisonous gossip. Men are quite as glibly as women in dealing out stories or insinuations which, on investigation, are often found without remotest foundation. An inborn inclination to misinterpret people's motives and put false construction on their deeds, often leads the mind, not only employed, to indulge in idle speculations. Imagination which seems to be possessed even by dullest mental hodge-podge, does not allow a tale to suffer from lack of facts, and the same are supplied in sufficient quantity to make a gratifying recital for those who are wont to listen, and who, in a sort of ghoulish glee, relish the injury wrought to another. A busy mind, engaged in something constructive, is quite as important to keep one from wild suspicions as it is to prevent one from evil ways. Work and responsibility are wonderful antidotes to bad thinking.

SABBATH GOLF.
Down in South Carolina the governor is attempting to enforce the state's blue laws, and accordingly he has ordered the arrest and prosecution of people who play golf on the Sabbath. If people in Nebraska were to be prosecuted for playing golf on the first day of the week all religious denominations would be liberally represented in the arrested groups. The proportion of elders and deacons under the shadow of the law would likely be as large as the ratio of officers to ordinary members in the average church fold. But in defense of a more liberal statute, we feel sure the governor of Nebraska would say to the governor of South Carolina that pursuit of a little white ball over the great open field, swarded with nature's green, is more wholesome than the hated policy of some to sit and brood, or sit and envy, or sit and hate, or sit and listen to the arteries harden, or even just sit. Golf or other outdoor exercise that does not infringe on the rights of those not thus engaged or does not interfere with private or public worship has come to be regarded no violation of the sanctity of the Sabbath. On the contrary, outdoor recreation that tones up the body and mind is deemed an aid to spiritual development. Anything that makes one think less of petty differences, or leads one to forget trivial annoyances of the week-day, or makes one grow in fellowship and sympathy, steals the soul against evil ways. Play in proper moderation is as essential as work or prayerful meditation. It strengthens one for his task as well as shortens his face and makes him more endurable.

PUZZLED.

In his popular department in the Omaha Bee, our esteemed fellow-mariner, "Bill" Maupin, uses this fine compliment to evidences of enterprise on the part of the Wayne territory:

"Two things, newspaperly speaking, have always puzzled us. How Emerson Purcell of the Custer County Chief gets away with it politically, and how E. W. Huse of the Wayne Herald manages to produce such a wonderful newspaper in a city the size of Wayne."

The Long Islander, a combined wit and hard work, combined with the life and ambition, explain why the Herald is able to develop. As to hard work, when we falter in our fatigue, looking back to review accumulated footsteps and recollecting the perspiration that has exuded from our lean anatomy in the long past, we are given the encouraging assurance by the associate editor that the next hundred years will be easier.

Golden Wedding Day Is Observed

Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Packer Receive Relatives and Friends on Fifteenth Anniversary.

Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Packer celebrated their golden wedding at their home Monday, March 7. About fifty friends and relatives were entertained at a bounteous dinner. The table decorations and menu were carried out the color scheme of gold and white. A large, decorated wedding cake and five nice bouquets of cut flowers also carried out the colors. The honored couple were the recipients of about $75 in gold, besides several other gifts. Out of town guests were: Dr. and Mrs. J. M. Packer and daughter, Virginia, of Ashland, Miss Nelle E. Packer of Valparaiso, and Mr. and Mrs. Cleve Murphy of Laurel.

Emily E. Church and George Washington Packer were married on Wednesday, March 7, 1877, at Covington, Neb., at the home of Philo Graves, now known as the "half way house." They lived here for about three years when they moved to Mr. Packer's homestead in Dixon county, to what is now known as the Park Hill locality. The first summer they shared the home of the William Park family while building a house on their homestead. They hauled the lumber from Ponca where there was a saw mill. In those days, they traded at La Porte and obtained fuel from South Creek near Allen. On one of these trips Mr. Packer recalls how he and a neighbor were caught in a terrible snow storm and the next day the neighbor was found frozen to death and the horse had drifted with the storm. The first winter was especially hard as they lost nearly all their cattle. They endured all the hardships of the early pioneers and many are the interesting things Mr. Packer can tell of those days. He has made one trip back to Pennsylvania, in 1898, to see his two brothers living at that time.

Mr. Packer was born in Pennsylvania on February 6, 1838, being 89 years old the past month. He is the only surviving member of a family of twelve children. He and a nephew came to Nebraska in the summer of 1871. The nephew returned but Mr. Packer remained and homesteaded the farm which is still his home. He was actively engaged in farming

There is really nothing new to say in condemnation of the habit of peddling around poisonous gossip. Men are quite as glibly as women in dealing out stories or insinuations which, on investigation, are often found without remotest foundation. An inborn inclination to misinterpret people's motives and put false construction on their deeds, often leads the mind, not only employed, to indulge in idle speculations. Imagination which seems to be possessed even by dullest mental hodge-podge, does not allow a tale to suffer from lack of facts, and the same are supplied in sufficient quantity to make a gratifying recital for those who are wont to listen, and who, in a sort of ghoulish glee, relish the injury wrought to another. A busy mind, engaged in something constructive, is quite as important to keep one from wild suspicions as it is to prevent one from evil ways. Work and responsibility are wonderful antidotes to bad thinking.

Market Report.

Furnished by Steele, Siman & Co., Sioux City Stock Yards.

Sioux City Stock Yards, March 9.—The first two days of the week brought 102,500 cattle to the 11 leading markets of the country, about 6,000 less than arrived the same days last week. The decrease, while not large, proved sufficient to keep the market on the upgrade. The undertone of stability extended to all departments with the trade.

At midweek fed steers and yearlings look strong to 25c higher. Also the advancing season is showing more of the good kinds, which makes it possible to quote the outlet for the rank and file of the fair to good shortfeds from $8.50 to $10. Choice long feds moved from $11 up and this week some 1,230 pounders put a new top on the 1927 trade by earning $3.60. Inferior warmed ups are not moving in any great numbers. Only scattered sales dot the price list down to $8 and under.

Desirable light yearling heifers look strong in a spread of $8.50 to $10, as do the medium and heavy heifers from $7.50 to $8.25. Light heifer beef cows to a top at $7.50 look considerably higher, while the fair to good shortfeds cows of regulation weight from $6 to $6.75 are mostly 25 cents higher. Canners and cutters reflect no change in a $3.75 to $4.75 spread.

Bulls are a strong to 25 cents better sold at midweek owing to active demands from order buyers. Fair to good bolognas are worth from $6.75 to $6.15, with heavy fed bulls to $6.50 and handy weights to $7. Veals reflect unvaried treatment for the week. The practical calf top remains at $12.50, with only light fancy selections to $18 to city butchers.

Spring trade now another week closer and all changes of cheaper stocker and feeder prices in the near future seem to have vanished. Country demands more urgent than ever and the incoming meager supplies of thin steers are strong at the season's most lofty prices. Good to choice thin steers of all weights now quoted from $8.25 to $9.25, with fair to good from $7.50 to $8.25. Most light kinds coming, but the call is all for quality, with little attention paid to weight.

Feeding heifers hit a new season's top on Tuesday at $7.65. Offerings in this division light, with good to choice kinds selling from $6.50 up. Feeding cows firm and selling from $5.50 down.

Packers seem unable to bring any more pressure to bear in the hog yards than that already in force. Shipping demands liberal and runs considerably lighter in the last ten days. Current tops for light butchers just over the $11.50 line, with heavy butchers selling from $11 up.

The 11 leading markets reported an aggregate of 192,900 porkers for the first two days of the week, 1,600 and 14,400 less than arrived the same days a week and year ago.

Fat lambs jumped back to the season's crest level on Tuesday of this week. The top was at $15.25. Feeding lambs to $14.25 figure 25 cents higher, while fat handy-weight ewes to $9.50 are steady with the season's top.

Diet and Health.

Omaha World-Herald: Without doubt we are dietetically a stiff-necked and perverse generation. We eat daily like a returned prodigal. Our regular menu consists of fattened calf, when we should be filling up on husks. The result, as one specialist tells us, is that we are overfed, but undernourished. Or as another puts it, we are digging our graves with our teeth. And all because we eat what we like instead of what is good for us.

Mother lays herself out to get up a tip-top Sunday dinner. She is guided only by long experience over the cook stove and a knowledge gained from observation of what the family likes. It is one of those meals that begins with fried chicken and winds up with mince pie and coffee, while such tit bits as hot biscuits and strawberry jam are sandwiched in between. The family shows its appreciation by making a clean sweep of the table and mother, viewing the devastation wrought, feels amply repaid for her labor. She glows, not only with the heat from the kitchen range, but with the thrill of the artist who recogizes that he has created a masterpiece.

But mother has been all wrong. She has overloaded the table with carbohydrates and gone fearfully shy on vitamins. Right at the moment when she is feeling proudest she ought to be most ashamed of herself. And she would be, too, if she would just take lessons from a dietitian. In time we suppose mother will come to realize how badly she is treating us. She will throw away her cookbook and recipes and substitute calory charts, reference works on vitamins and instruments for the determination of the carbohydrates, starches and fats that enter into her cookery.

In the meantime we shall have to put up with the good old death dealing foods of our boyhood and keep on, as the statisticians inform us, boosting the life expectancy figures from year to year.

Grateful Acknowledgment

WE wish at this time to express appreciation to the business men of Wayne for their fine spirit of good will and to people generally of the city and surrounding country for manifest interest and support of our newly installed store. We are profoundly grateful for words of encouragement from fellow-dealers who accept us as one of them in a movement for trade extension and development and for a greater and busier city.

The people who braved bad roads and unfavorable weather to attend our opening, showed appreciation of the volume and kind of merchandise we have to offer. That this store will be a material aid in keeping business at home, as expressed by many, encourages belief in the future.

We may be depended on to do our utmost to make Wayne a still more powerful trade magnet, deservedly drawing people here from longer distances and making Wayne the logical trading point for people in widely scattered communities.

We invite people from Wayne and the surrounding country to call and get acquainted, inspect the lines we carry and see if we can be of service to them.

THE WHY OF SHOPPING. Folks "shop" from one store to another in order to try and find greater values in the articles they may want to buy. In other words they want to buy satisfactory goods to them at a lower cost. By means of shopping around many times much money is saved.

WHY NOT LEARN TO "SHOP" FOR GROCERIES? Groceries are bought more frequently than most anything else for the home. It is said that the average family spends about $400.00 per year for groceries. Just think of the amount of money that can be saved by "shopping" round, if only twenty per cent saving is made!

At 417 East 23rd St., University Pl., Lincoln, Neb., lives Emil G. Jonscher, a happy and healthy man as Nebraska can boast. But Mr. Jonscher was not always so. He had his full share of trouble due to ill-health. In his own words, "I was so weak and rundown that the most tempting food could not arouse my appetite, and I had absolutely no energy or ambition left. Headaches and dizzy spells were frequent. I felt 'all in,' and took no interest in anything."

"Some of my fellow-workers urged me to try Tanlac, and I did. From that time dates my present splendid health. I am at a loss for words to praise Tanlac. It simply made a new man of me, banished all my ailments and restored my old-time vigorous health."

Mr. Jonscher's experience is by no means unique. Many thousands of men and women credit their present happy, healthy life to Tanlac. Many Cities Require Tuberculosis Testing

More than 1,800 cities and towns of the United States have adopted ordinances requiring that all of the milk that comes into the communities for human consumption must have come from tuberculin-tested cows according to a recent survey report received by Dr. D. M. Purdy, who is in charge of the tubercular testing of cattle in Wayne county. The Bureau of Animal Industry believes that it will be but a short time until every town has such a law. While the city people are protected, no such laws have been passed for rural districts and the farm families have no protection excepting through the tubercular testing being done now in this county.

For Purebred Sires.
The last report of progress in livestock improvement under the systematic "Better Sires-Better Stock" campaign, conducted by the Bureau of Animal Industry, shows that 17,047 have enrolled. All have agreed to follow the department's recommendations in using purebred sires for all classes of livestock raised. Union County, Ky., is the first county in the United States to rid all grade and scrub bulls from its limits.

Elimination Cattle Tick.
Plans for speeding up the eradication of cattle-fever ticks in the south is attracting considerable attention now. A few years ago the cattle tick was a menace to stock in the middle west. It has largely disappeared through measures similar to those being taken to rid herds of tuberculosis. The tick still bothers herds in the south, however.

Of the 3,070 counties in the United States, only 248 remain under the tick quarantine. Cattle men in the north and west began twenty years ago to adopt measures to rid the herds of the menace. To make the work effective large territories must cooperate and conduct the campaign systematically. This is what the present plan proposes.

Regional Camps for Farm Boys and Girls

Young farm champions in pig, calf, corn or poultry raising, health champions, sewing, cooking, and room improvement champions, in fact the best agricultural and home making club members in the states are meeting together each year at three regional camps held in connection with interstate fairs. Here these young farm leaders learn how the best was accomplished in other states, forming high ideals of rural living and rural leadership under the direction of national and state boys' and girls' club leaders.

Boys and girls from the north-east attend Camp Vail, the oldest of the three, where for 10 years six boys and six girls, from each of the thirteen eastern states, winners in farm activities, have received training in educational exhibits, public demonstrations, judging, and standards of rural living. Camp Vail is held in connection with the eastern states exposition, Springfield, Mass. A special training school for leaders is conducted here and in 1926 one boy and one girl from each of eighteen states and one Canadian province received intensive training.

Club members from eleven of the middle western states held their tenth annual encampment last year at Camp Eaton, Interstate Fair, Sioux City, Iowa. The club members' conference is an important part of this camp, with its inspirational discussions of club work and rural leadership by club leaders and members.

Camp Plumer, the youngest of the three, was founded last year at the Pacific International Livestock Exposition, Portland, Ore. Six hundred boys and girls from six western states attended the first encampment and put on a very creditable program of judging, demonstrations, and exhibits. Next year it is planned to enlarge the program to include leadership studies.

These camps are events looked forward to each year by the farm boys and girls, members of 4-H clubs conducted by the United States Department of Agriculture, cooperating with the state agricultural colleges, for there is always the possibility of being selected to attend camp and all members follow with interest the successes of their delegate at camp and reap the benefits of the new ideas and methods brought back.

Bloomfield to Gravel.
Bloomfield, Neb., March 8.—The proposition of graveling the streets of this city as well as the roads leading into the city is being agitated.

The excessive amount of moisture during the past three months caused the agitation, as the roads in and around the town are nearly impassable.

Farmers are offering to furnish trucks, teams and men to assist in putting the roads in better condition.

At a meeting of the Community club, the matter was discussed and committees appointed to take the work in charge as soon as the weather permits.

No knocking and all the motor's power

Power on the pick-up and no knocking on hills or when snow, slush or mud makes the going hard. That's what you get from Red Crown Ethyl Gasoline

It's the combination of big-mileage, reliable Red Crown with Ethyl Anti-Knock Compound that gives you all the motor's power all the time.

Carbon in your motor can't make your motor knock. It increases compression and makes Red Crown Ethyl Gasoline do better work.

Fill your tank with Red Crown Ethyl Gasoline. Notice how much better your car handles in traffic, how little gear shifting you have to do and what power you get. Costs 3 cents a gallon more—and worth it.

To avoid dilution, drain your tank before you fill it with Ethyl Red Crown Gasoline for the first time, and use Red Crown Ethyl exclusively thereafter.
