As modern as the living room

People wouldn't think of furnishing their living room with the rough, clumsy and uncomfortable furniture of the frontier cabin. Yet, how many otherwise comfortable homes still depend on the outdoor closet instead of the indoor closet.
Why allow this constant threat to health? Why suffer discomfort—daily and year after year?
The modern indoor water closet adds health protection, as well as comfort to your home. And the cost is far less than many of the other improvements you have paid for cheerfully.
Let us prove it to you by visiting our sales-room. Plan to have this modern plumbing improvement this spring.

Legislature Shows Liking For Song

F. C. Rundle of Lincoln, member of the state legislature, gives the following opinion regarding the song, "Nebraska, My Native Land," written by Mrs. S. A. Lutgen and set to music by Prof. Leon F. Beery of Wayne, in the Hamilton County Register: "Nebraska, My Native Land" was submitted to the legislature as a state song but was rejected. I like it though rather hard to sing. Nebraska has no state song, this being the first one ever submitted to a Nebraska legislature. The objections, I think, were not well founded. "While it is true that 'Nebraska, My Native Land' was written to meet a sudden demand, it might more truthfully be said that for years the beauty and prosperity of Nebraska had been stirring the heart of the author with pride and patriotism. "Grace Welsh Lutgen (Mrs. S. A. Lutgen) was born in Sterling in the southern section of the state and is, therefore, a native Nebraskan. At an early stage she began teaching in the rural schools of Johnson county and it was while driving to and from school, a distance of three miles, that she learned to love the gorgeous coloring of the wild flowers, the melodious songs of the birds and the wealth of golden harvests. "At about the same time the Nebraska Federation of Women's clubs announced a contest for a state song and this song was entered, winning over strong competition. Since then, 'Nebraska, My Native Land' has steadily grown in favor among clubs, civic organizations and schools, and the dearest wish of the author and composer is that every boy and girl of Nebraska will love the song because of its truth and sentiment."

Basis For Rotation of Crops Is Old

Out of the practical experience of farmers over a period of 3,000 years or more has finally developed the fundamental principle of modern crop rotation, says W. W. Weir, Bureau of Soils, United States Department of Agriculture. This principle is the growing of an intertilled crop, a small-grain crop, and a grass or leguminous crop in the order named, and in recurring succession on a given piece of land. Four stages of farming practice during these 30 centuries have resulted in the present system of cropping, and they are recounted by Mr. Weir in order that the importance of crop rotation may be fully appreciated today. When cereals became the chief source of food of the early peoples it was natural that these crops should be grown on the same fields year after year. It was noted, however, that such cropping resulted in land depletion, and that resting the land renewed its producing power. This knowledge gave rise to the practice of "resting" the land, or abandoning it, at intervals to the natural growth of rough and weedy herbage. The oldest record of such a practice according to Mr. Weir, is to be found in the Mosaic laws (about 1400 B. C.) commanding the people, "And six years thou shalt sow thy land, and gather in the fruits thereof; but the seventh thou shalt let it rest and lie still." Thus we have the first or "resting" stage of cropping. About 29 B. C., the "resting" practice gave way to one in which "bare fallow" was practiced to control the weeds. In this second stage the rotation consisted of a winter grain like wheat, followed by a spring grain like barley, which in turn was followed by bare fallow. The third stage was marked by the introduction of legumes or clovers into the cropping system. The Flemish farmers about 1600 A. D., abolished the bare fallow practice, and grew clover in rotation with hemp, turnips, and small grains. This was a big step in the improvement of husbandry because it permitted more livestock be kept and renewed as well as rested the land. The fourth stage was the introduction of intertillage in the field.

Although the art of hoeing in between rows of plants grown in the garden had been practiced by the early Romans, apparently nobody thought of carrying the practice to the fields until English farmers adopted it during the eighteenth century to meet the problem of weeds. The introduction of intertillage into the field gave rise to one of the greatest improvements in agriculture, and to the completion of the basic principle of crop rotation as it is known today.

McCormick-Deering Farm Implements

With the starting of spring work on the farm, it is important to be aided by the best machinery. The famous McCormick-Deering lines which we carry, have stood the test of long experience and users are invariably well pleased. If you need new machines or new parts, let us show you what we have to offer. Look over your equipment, and let us know your needs. Our prompt service will help you save time and avoid costly delay.

SPREADERS

For Hardest Plowing Jobs

The McCormick-Deering Little Genius tractor plows are built to stand the hardest kind of plowing. The beams are made of heavy I-beam steel and are tied together in rigid beam units by between-beam braces which extend clear down around the throats of the beams, adding a great deal of strength at the points subjected to the heaviest strains.

The two-bottom Little Genius, with 14-inch bottoms, and the McCormick-Deering 10-20 tractor, make an outfit that is equal to any reasonable plowing conditions. A three-bottom Little Genius and a McCormick-Deering 15-30 tractor make an ideal combination. In average soils and under average plowing conditions the 15-30 will pull the four-furrow Little Genius.

The owner of a Little Genius plow and a McCormick-Deering tractor has little to fear from the weather man. In late seasons, a little speeding up—a few hours' overtime, and the owner soon catches up his plowing and is enabled to get his planting done at the proper season.

If you need a spreader of the most improved kind, the McCormick-Deering is just what you want. Call and see it.

McCormick-Deering Corn Planters

In developing the "100 Series" line of McCormick-Deering planters and drills, the aim has been not to find something radically different and untried, but to give the American corn grower a simpler, more practical combination of principles which particular farmers have found good. The result is a line of planters and drills which meets admirably the planting requirements in the different sections where corn is grown.

As is always the case, greater dependability and increased accuracy follow simplification of design.

For Anything You Need

Any one who has tried a McCormick-Deering harrow, has all good words to say for it.

For anything you need to make farming easier and quicker and production greater, see us. We have all kinds of parts and repairs.
