FRAIL HUMANITY INDIFFERENT TO ITS ADVANTAGES

Over at Hamburg, Iowa, a rich woman left $40,000 to build a hospital, providing the town would raise and contribute an equal amount, which has been done. Here we have a modern hospital that did not cost any one but the owner a cent, and then we do not support the institution half so well as we should. This is but one of many human inconsistencies every day apparent in the world. We yearn for advantages we do not have, but we grow cold and indifferent to those, to whose possession and service we have become accustomed. It is even thus, and doubtless ever will be so.

Bankers Evince More Optimism Than in Years

We are told that bankers at the recent annual convention in Norfolk manifested more optimism than they had before in several years. Following collapse of the war-time inflation, banking was a difficult and perilous business, but the many who weathered the storm were strengthened by the experience, and they are now usually resting on a foundation of sound business policies. The bankers gathered at Norfolk felt encouraged and talked encouragingly. In a considerable measure bankers reflect the prosperity and feeling generally of the country, and it is stimulating to know that these human barometers show improved conditions.

According to the Norfolk News the substance of his address was as follows: "We'll never remedy the present conditions, caused by lack of common honesty and character, until the morale of the people of the United States is changed," declared Fred Berry, Wayne, president of the Nebraska Bar association, in his interesting address at the banquet.

Asserting that the authority of the home is passing, Mr. Berry said, "You can't expect children to have respect for schools, churches and laws, unless the boys and girls respect the authority of the home. There's one thing to do and that is to change the morale of the people."

"Every dynasty that crumbled in the dust died because the people did not keep step with the prosperity and material advance of that country."

"Don't cuss the courts and the lawyers! Lawyers of the country want to see justice administered, and the lawyers will fight any organization that takes a downward step."

Mr. Berry flayed the type of individual who is not willing to work to pay a honest debt, saying that these persons have the idea they do not want to work one, two or three years to pay an obligation."

Bar President Gives Address At Annual Banquet

F. S. Berry, president of the bar association, addressed the Wayne Professional and Business Women Tuesday.

Club Has Fifth Entertainment at State Teachers College Calisthenicum

Mr. Berry pointed out the disturbing forces at work in this country and the need for good leadership. As women have gained the right to vote they have a great opportunity and also a great responsibility. In regard to law and order, Mr. Berry stated that the sensational things are the ones which are given prominence. Successful business men and women do not display law. Of this the country has reason to be proud.

As a class lawyers are honest and have integrity in serving the end of justice, Mr. Berry stated. The country must have justice; the courts are functioning; the delay in cases is due to the fact that legislative departments of government have grown much larger while judicial departments remain the same. Lawyers are the only persons required to take an oath. This binds them to a duty of honest service.

This country has representative government. Since adoption of the constitution a big change has been made in choosing of representatives and in other matters. Mr. Berry stated that with the rapid increase in population and with the majority of people living in cities where most of the population there will be prejudicial influence. Such untrained masses in the hands of a demagogue could be the ruin of Russia. Mr. Berry stated that such groups, in the hands of an undesirable leader in any country, could cause the same destruction of orderly government. When Taft, Wickersham and John W. Davis became alarmed, there is need for others to be alarmed, he stated.

Trained leaders who have studied important questions thoroughly are better able to pass judgment on the government's needs than indifferent and ignorant individuals who vote as a leader may tell them, asserted Mr. Berry. One of the greatest hopes for the country is the young generation. The country's worth depends much on the leaders. Mr. Berry stated that the high morals are being taught in the schools and in this fact lives much hope for the future.

Men respect women just as much as ever, Mr. Berry asserted. The business world is better because women are in it. Members of the club and Mr. and Mrs. Berry were seated at a long table attractive in yellow and blue. Entertained was the speaker, Miss Jessie Woodworth, and the domestic science department served the dinner. Prof. W. C. Hunter, Miss Margaret and Miss Marion Aherm played during the banquet.

Walter Savidge Season To Start

Amusement Company Opens in Wayne for Twenty-First Year Early in May.

Many Students Enter Contest

Twenty-Four High Schools Are Represented by 296 Pupils in Academic Meet.

The Walter Savidge Amusement company, owned and managed by Walter Savidge of Wayne, opens its twenty-first season in Wayne the week of May 9. The company travels by special train of eleven cars, and goes from Wayne to Norfolk and then to the western part of the state.

Mr. Savidge has secured popular New York plays to be shown in the canvas theatre this season. "The Square Crook," favorite in New York for two years and just released, is one of the features. "The Bat" and "Apple Sauce" are also feature plays. Others, which are also new popular productions, are "A Red Man's Love," "A Country Editor" and "The Come Back."

Actors and actresses, who have come to join the company, have been rehearsing twice each day in order to have their parts perfect for the opening week. Carpenters, painters and other workmen have been busy putting the equipment into shape. The merry-mix-up, the merry-go-round, ferris wheel and other devices are in readiness. The special train is being completely overhauled. Scenery and other equipment for the dramatic company are being built. Many new features for the amusement zone are received each day.

Though there will be many faces with the big show, three popular members of 1926 have returned, Raymond Appleby and Clyde and Bea Davis. "Red" Harvey, who has been engaged to produce the plays, Arlene Althoff, who is no stranger to Nebraska theatre goers, and Bonnie Maize, recognized as one of the leading comedians of the American theatre, are among the stars. Blaise Whipper, well known in the middle west, has been engaged as assistant manager.

AS TO BAD GRAMMAR. F. O. Edgecomb in Geneva Signal: Editor Huse of the Wayne Herald is fusing because someone wrote a letter to a Wayne daily line and used very bad grammar and spelling, none of which the esteemed World-Herald copy reader corrected. Editor Huse insists that Wayne is an educational center, being the home of the Wayne state normal, not to mention certain other important advantages that modesty required to be left unmentioned, and that persons claiming Wayne residence should employ good English or keep quiet.

Madison Men Are In Search Of Gold

Norfolk News, April 22: Like prospectors of old, Fritz Kamrath and John Knapp, farmers living near Madison, are digging deep in the side of a hill in an effort to locate particles of gold which they believe to be lodged in the ground. While digging a deep well recently, according to reports heard in Norfolk, Kamrath and Knapp saw some glittering particles among the gravel and soil they dug out. Later they sent the shiny objects away, it is understood, and were encouraged by a report saying they had found gold. Although somewhat handicapped by the weather the two prospectors are diligently digging into the side of the hill which they have penetrated to a depth of several feet. The sides of the tunnel are being barricaded to prevent cave-ins as the men cut their way into the hill which they believe will produce sufficient gold to warrant their efforts. The hill is located southeast of Madison on the Kamrath farm. Several years ago particles of gold were found on a farm near Stanton, but at that time it was decided that the metal was not in sufficient quantities to warrant extensive mining.

Men of farm homes of Nebraska have taken a marked interest in a campaign of the Nebraska extension service to install more conveniences in the farm homes of the state. The campaign involves the holding of county leader-training schools. Two women and one man from each club in the county are delegated to attend the county school. Ninety-five per cent of the men chosen to attend the schools have found themselves very much interested in the possibilities for making the farm home more livable, especially with respect to water systems. A partial check-up of 7 of the counties in which schools were held show that 33 water systems and 30 septic tanks have been installed by farmers subsequent to the holding of these schools.

Getting Up Nights

For Bladder Relief is Nature's Danger Signal. Columbus Minister's Wife Relates Experience. Rev. W. H. Mitchell, 824 No. Mark St., Columbus, Ohio says: "My wife was troubled seriously with bladder irritation until we used Lithiated Buchu (Keller Formula). She would have to get up 6 or 8 times each night. Will gladly answer any letter." Lithiated Buchu acts on the bladder as a poison on the bowels. Drives out foreign matter and decreases excessive acidity, thereby relieving irritation. The tablets cost 2c each at all drug stores. Keller Laboratory, Mechanicsburg, Ohio. Pays Tribute To Purebred Raisers

"The breeders of purebred dairy cattle are among the world's greatest benefactors, because by their efforts they add to the wealth of the world without diminishing the prosperity of any individual," says J. C. McDowell, husbandman of the Bureau of Dairy Industry, in an address this week at Orono, Me., before farmers attending Farmers' Week at the University of Maine. "It is a common practice to select dairy bulls on their appearance and their pedigree, but the day is coming when dairy bulls will be selected on appearance, pedigree, and progeny," he said. "The production records of a large number of daughters of a dairy bull, when compared with the production records of their dam, determine the breeding value of the bull as certainly as the records show the production ability of the cows themselves. If a sire has a high-production dam, he may transmit high production to his daughters, but if he has already transmitted high production to everyone of his first 5 or 10 daughters, it is a practical certainty, not that he may, but that he will transmit high production, on an average, to all his offspring. The record of the dam of any sire is a promise, but the record of a large number of high-producing daughters is the fulfillment of that promise."

Percentage Living. York Republican: A student in York high school who had repeatedly been warned that he must bring his grades up to a higher percentage or he would miss the prize of graduation, thought it over a few days and then went to the superintendent and propounded this question, "Is eighty per cent and more all there is to life?"

The superintendent is still thinking about it.

It is the tendency of these times to fix standards in everything and insist that folks be graded according to these standards. Children in the schools must be a certain percentage of the standard of weight. The student must not fall under a certain percentage study rating. Workers must show a certain percentage of the standard of efficiency. These things are proper to a certain extent, but the troubled young man was voicing a reasonable complaint when he demanded if all living were judged in percentage.

There are no exact standards upon which personal success may be judged and there never will be. Some of the towering intellects of the world would have been ruled out by the percentage tables.

Some of the physicists that have won great physical and moral battles would have been sentenced to the scrap heap by the percentage tables of health efficiency. Humans are not to be measured with yardsticks and weighed on the scales to determine their efficiency or happiness. No amount of material teaching will ever fix true standards of human efficiency.

"Eighty per cent and more" is not the goal to be striven for in education—not that alone. The purpose of education is to make reasoning, discriminating individuals out of students. If the teacher has succeeded in awakening the sluggish mind of the pupil and arousing to action his faculties of perception, his education has truly begun. After that percentages do not matter.

In 1890 Prof. James Pile, who was teaching in the Fremont Normal, was invited to Wayne to conduct a summer term for teachers. He had planned to go to Montana but gave up this offer to come to Wayne. He was so well liked here that he was invited to take charge of a new college, promoted by business men.

SUSTAINING MEMBER

Time flies. Years multiply. The courage and snap of youth soon pass, and then it is too late to accomplish the big things that ambition has suggested. Procrastination is easy, but it hinders headway and never arrives.

Roads in every direction have been dragged during the past week, and people are now long to come to Wayne in case of long distances that for several months. And the Wayne business district offers inducements that are certain to attract from a greatly widened area.

Making garden is in order. It is a healthful and agreeable experience even if one is painfully ignorant on the subject and makes egregious blunders. Besides having one's nerves soothed by getting close to the earth, developing a garden contributes liberally of the right sort to the daily bill of fare. For our ill let us permit garden making to share with golf and doctors' prescriptions.

In disaster such as has overwhelmed the lower Mississippi valley, the world is found to be sympathetic and generous. People in safety elsewhere have joined the government in extending aid to helpless sufferers. Donors to southern groups, now in want and distress, do not know when they, too, may, through the wrath of uncontrollable elements, become objects of charity.

The weather this week has been warm and sunny, and it has been turned to good advantage by the farmers who have been putting in over-time to catch up with their work. The soil had been soaked to a great depth, and it is in the best possible shape for the planting and germination of crops. This week's sample of weather gave a foretaste of summer in the way of heat. The prospect for big crops is at this time reassuring.

The Golden Rule is not something to eat or drink. It is not something to put on and take off like a pair of socks. It is a sound principle of living to be followed every day everywhere, and its application strengthens character and makes a sturdier and happier race. It buoy and safeguards civilization. It simply means to treat one's neighbor as he would have his neighbor treat him. It is perfectly fair, and one cannot afford to do less.

Local interest in permanent road improvement hereabouts encourages the hope that unusual headway will be made in that respect this year. We are assured of graded roads north and south, and it is understood united efforts will be put forth to hasten similar improvements in other directions. In addition to work by the state, it would help materially in developing permanent roads if the county could see its way clear to appropriate a reasonable sum each year for that purpose.

RURAL NEWS.

H. D. Leggett says in his Ord Quiz: "An editor in Nebraska who consistently pokes fun at papers using country correspondence, prints a column of Washington news, a column of national news, several columns of state news and 'filler', together with three or four scant columns of local news. Neglecting local happenings he calls his publication 'the home newspaper'. If he ran a filling station he probably would sell gas only to cars, bearing foreign license plates."

If the editor of the Quiz will put the brand of identity on the accused editor clearly enough for our rather imperfect vision to detect we will help define and dissect him. We know of no good reason why farming communities are not entitled to their own news as well as to the news of towns and cities. We do not know why an editor should lift his usual apperception high in the air in thinking of the happenings in the country and at the same time hug the decision that his farm patrons who comprise the bulk of his readers if he has a representative list, will be satisfied with a literary diet devoted chiefly to foreign affairs. Farmers who take a country newspaper and who patronize its advertisements, are eminently deserving of representation in its news departments. Any editor who adopts a contrary policy, treating with indifference the affairs of rural communities, attacks the foundation of his success as a country publisher. Without farm subscribers, a county newspaper's usefulness would be almost nil.

Observe a pilgrim walking ahead of you, during that period between no teeth and store teeth, his face full of tobacco and his two jaws bare in case he together with the tireless regularity of a Corliss engine. You want to pass him, but his head moves from side to side like a marionette swaying along on a wire, and you don't know which way nor when he is going to shoot. You cough or whistle to attract attention, and then gathering courage, you speed by, feeling you have taken a chance of a fifty-fifty chance, though figuring signals given and probable partnership between jaws and brains, really the escape is not so narrow as suspected.

The Sioux City Journal was 58 years old last week, and during its life it has served three states with utmost fidelity. George D. Perkins was the founder of the publication, and for many years until his death was its editor. He was a man of broad and broad vision, and the impress for high ideals he gave the newspaper has, in able and faithful hands, continued to shape its course in the years that have followed his departure. A. F. Allen on whom the task of directing the Journal fell after the death of the veteran publisher, is a tireless worker and a man of sound and constructive judgment. The founding of a model newspaper daily, big and comprehensive, but sympathetic and charitable. Everybody likes it, and nearly everybody takes it.

Editor O. Bryon Copper of the Fremont Herald has joined Editor F. D. Stone of the Hartington Herald in an onslaught against mince pie, comparable to strawberry shortcake in delightful and wholesome qualities. The Fremont editor thinks one must have a zinc-lined, closely riveted stomach, to stand a change of mince pie. We regret that the two otherwise sensible and capable editors have been endowed with such feeble gastronomic receptacles that they are convulsed by thought of food that is nourishing to most people whose internal works have been constructed according to standard blueprints. But we shall not altogether attribute to faulty digestive architecture an outcry for crucifixion until we have sampled the make of mince pies they have tried in vain and horror to eat.

Patil love runs at low ebb when children want to leave home. Either too much or too little parental leniency or too few or too many restrictions would seem largely responsible for a condition which makes young people scorn home environment and fight for greater freedom. In this day the rule has been too many liberties, too much entertainment and too little work. Often young people have been reared by luxury and pampered by ease. In sharp contrast with such extreme, were regulations in a hearing in the county court this week over a 17-year-old girl who had left home. It seems the father and mother had been divorced several years ago, the former given custody of four children and the latter three, alimony having been arranged accordingly. Bitterness against the father was very pronounced, charges of overwork, limited privileges for education and scanty provision for style having been made against him. According to the girl, freighting under what she deems to be the restraint and injustice, fled to her mother. How much at fault the father may be we do not know. We do know that if genuine love exists within family circles, parents do not want to separate and children do not want to leave home. And love is not based on dollars and cents. If parents do all they can for each other and for their children, giving advantages, though meagre, with the thrill of movement by ease, in sharp contrast with such extreme, were regulations in a hearing in the county court this week over a 17-year-old girl who had left home. It seems the father and mother had been divorced several years ago, the former given custody of four children and the latter three, alimony having been arranged accordingly. Bitterness against the father was very pronounced, charges of overwork, limited privileges for education and scanty provision for style having been made against him.

Sioux City Journal: America's present prosperity, according to Arthur Reynolds, Chicago banker, seems destined to continue indefinitely. Back from a tour of Europe and a study of industrial conditions in various countries, Miss Reynolds and Miss Minkler convinced the United States will go on as the world leader in business. He has not fear whatever that America is to lose her international trade supremacy.

Mr. Reynolds bases his conclusions on what he saw in Europe and what he knew to be the facts at home. A great effort is under way in Europe, he reported, but this movement is still overshadowed by American productive genius and great natural resources. The United States, he points out, can still go forward with its foreign trade. Meanwhile, its domestic business is better than ever, and it is strong financially. Consequently, he can see nothing but a bright economic future for this country.

In making comparisons of this kind it is always in our mind to be impressed with the fact that this country's economic momentum. Momentum is a wonderful factor in any kind of contest. It is a powerful one in trade. Especially is this true under present conditions. Here industry and general trade are moving swiftly, although steadily, while elsewhere there is more or less economic lethargy. Several European countries seem to have difficulty in getting started on the way back, and when they do make a beginning they move slowly. Their plans for reconstruction following the war evidently were not sound. At any rate there was no carrying through such as characterizes every economic advance in this country. There must be something in what Mr. Reynolds says of productive genius. America is going ahead in trade while the rest of Europe is moving slowly. This country is in a strong position to command an enormous amount of foreign trade. Its foremost rival does not threaten it. America has markets everywhere and will hold them if the same aggressive spirit is manifested. Freight shipments in domestic trade have fallen off somewhat, but are still ahead of those for the same period last year. This is attributed to a decrease in the production and shipment of coal because of the bituminous miners' strike. Merchandising is in a satisfactory position for good summer business.

IMPULSE.

Impulse gets one into oceans of unnecessary trouble and expense. It is always on the job. Common sense comes along sometime too tardily to head off of costly errors. Impulse prompts remarks that one does not mean, or if he does mean them at the time, he finds he did not mean them as soon as common sense arrives to take control. Impulse makes one register below zero in personal popularity. It leads one to invest unwisely. It fires him to buy things he cannot afford and does not need any more than a bald-headed man needs a hair-cut. One acts on impulse when he races an automobile and goes into a ditch, or jaywalks across a street and is rolled out thin by a passing car, or the undertaker knitting his brow in contemplating the task of restoring original proportions. Impulse is a valuable asset, but it is accompanied and regulated by a liberal allowance of common sense. But without such restricting influence, it is dangerous and often disastrous.

Gives Views of Cornbelt Needs

Frank M. Nortrop, Resident of Wayne for Many Years, Writes About Farming.

Frank M. Nortrop of Portland, Ore., former resident of Wayne, writes to Herald readers regarding his opinion of the cornbelt. Basing his remarks on his long experience in Wayne and on authoritative sources of information he makes the following observations:

"There has been for the few years just past such an outcry from the cornbelt for what is so glibly called 'farm relief' that it has necessarily come much to the attention of all former residents of that territory. Therefore the opinion of a disinterested observer may not be inopportune. It is true that the cornbelt, in common with all the other parts of the country, has passed through a more or less drastic reorganization following the war. But in view of the tremendous advance in prices of land during that period it would not seem to have been excessive. It is the estimate of the best informed, that in Iowa only ten percent of the land was affected by these war conditions, i. e., only that percentage of the farms were sold at the inflated prices, and that now forty-seven percent of the farms are now in the hands of the original owners. I have no figures for Nebraska, but suppose they approximate those of Iowa. It would seem that the price of land in Wayne county is now pegged at about $200 an acre; that is an increase of 800 percent in less than thirty years, and would seem to be enough to satisfy all reasonable ambitions.

"Wayne county, with less than 10,000 population, has deposits in banks of nearly or quite three million dollars and so little demand locally for money that a very considerable amount of these deposits are invested in U. S. bonds at the low rates these bonds draw. Cattle, hogs and fed lambs are bringing very good prices. These would not seem to indicate any very serious adverse financial conditions, but rather the contrary. The fact is, the cornbelt farmer, (for the purpose of this article I will call Iowa and Nebraska, the 'cornbelt') is the most favored and the wealthiest farmer in the world, taken as a whole.

"The present price of land is far above that of pre-war times and to such as are obliged to earn interest upon these prices, there must be some readjustment so as to give increased earnings to such farms. I suppose the old rotation of corn feed and oats goes on to a considerable extent. Oats have been for the nearly fifty years that I have known the Iowa and Nebraska farmer, the most profitable crop, a loss, and now that it is greater than ever there must be some substitute for oats. I have read with much interest the letters from Col. Woods of Lincoln, in the Breeders Gazette concerning the great success of sweet clover for pasture. I am also advised by men owning farms in North Dakota, that the cow and sweet clover are beginning the restoration of that state to prosperity. With the aid of some drought resisting crop like sweet clover for pasture and the side to get the full value of the corn crop, very much larger income from land can be obtained.

"It must be true in the future as in the past that the main stay of the cornbelt land must be live stock. Now the question is, how shall it be handled? The owner of land at pre-war prices can continue in almost any way he pleases with results sufficient for him, but others must get more, and the buying of feeding cattle must be to some extent controlled by a rate raised upon the farm. The regions where a cow can be kept solely for the calf are becoming fewer steadily. The cattle of the west of the Rocky mountain area have steadily decreased during the eighteen years I have been here, and now faster than ever. Sheep are crowded dattle from the ranges as they are more profitable. Range cattle are everywhere relatively decreasing. I believe the 'best bet' for the Iowa and Nebraska farmer who must get increased returns from his land is to raise thoroughbred milking strains, raising the calf on the separator milk. It may not be possible to raise the choicest 'baby beef' in this way, but I know from personal experience that fine beef can be profitably produced in this way. I was told as a boy that I could not have 'my cake and eat it' but to milk a good cow, run the milk through a separator, feed it to a calf, a pig and chicken, and sell the butter fat, comes the nearest to it of anything I know of.

"Returning briefly to the matter of 'farm relief', the center of the agitation seems to be in Iowa, the state of all others that needs it the least. The movement was principally promoted by the officers of 'busted' banks, that had permitted their funds to be lost in ill advised land speculations, and by professional politicians who hoped to see in too many hands, the tide into office based upon gross slanders of the people of the state they so much misrepresented. The principal agitation was to artificially raise the price of corn. It would seem to be a most absurd thing to undertake, thus to burden a crop for the benefit of only fifteen percent of the growers, the other eighty-five percent having no interest in the price. As they use corn only for feed, swine were placed in the list only to make weight. It is certain no governmental process could exceed the efficiency of the packers. No great industry is carried on more economically or at a smaller percent of profit than the meat packing business.

"There have also been many assertions that the tariff is injurious to the farmer. Whatever opinion may be entertained as to the wisdom of protective tariffs, the facts are that all the products of the farm, are, at the request of the farmer, given the protection of a tariff. All the things purchased exclusively by farmers, implements, binding twine and fertilizers, are free of duty; and further, of all imports, two-thirds are duty free. It is continually asserted that the products have been much curtailed in last few years. Aside from cotton, wheat and hog products (bacon and lard) agricultural exports are and for many years have been negligible. The cornbelt is not interested in the two first items. The figures for the latter show that the exports of lard for the four year period just previous to the war were one hundred eighty-seven millions of pounds; for the four-year period ending with 1926 exports were three hundred fifty-five millions of pounds. Of bacon for like periods the figures were seven hundred eighteen millions, and eleven hundred ninety three millions. In the first case almost double and in the second more than 50 percent worth increase. This would not seem to indicate that the cornbelt had the worst of the export trade.

"What Iowa and Nebraska can hope to gain by sending such men as Brookhart and Norris to the senate passes my understanding. They have no even reasonably sound propositions to advance. All they do is to obstruct and as one Iowa farmer aptly expressed it, to 'holler' and conclude that all the cornbelt heads do is to make some minor changes in farming and livestock handling, to keep the 'clammy-hawling' politicians at home, and to just keep right on 'sawing wood.'"

Interest Taken In Swine Sanitation

The Bureau of Animal Industry has received requests from abroad for description of the method devised by the bureau and used in this country for keeping pigs free from intestinal parasites. One of the most recent inquiries came from Salonica, Greece. The international interest in the subject is believed by the bureau to be due to the close and cordial relations which have been maintained by the bureau with foreign parasitologists, one result of which has been the building up of an index catalog of animal parasites, which the bureau believes is the largest in the world. The bureau is constantly exchanging information and specimens with foreign scientists.

Overdoing?

Hurry, Worry and Overwork Bring Heavy Strain.

MODERN life throws a heavy burden on our body machinery. The climatic organs, especially the kidneys, are apt to become sluggish. Retention of excess uric acid and other poisonous waste often gives rise to a dull, languid feeling and, sometimes, toxic backaches and headaches. That the kidneys are not functioning perfectly is often shown by burning or scanty passage of secretions. More and more people are learning to assist their kidneys by the occasional use of Doan's Pills—a stimulant diuretic. Ask your neighbor!

The Most Moisture in Ten Years.

Nebraska Farmer: From a crop yield standpoint, Nebraska agriculture is in the most favorable condition this spring it has been in years. As a matter of fact, the frequent general rains and snows of March and April have made the spring moisture content of the soil the greatest in ten years. Fortunately, this moisture has been general throughout the state, being particularly heavy in the western section, where in many instances the moisture already recorded this year exceeds the total amount received during all of 1926. Green pastures are tempting the farmer to turn out the livestock, but care should be exercised in the early pasturing of soggy pasture land.

Such an abundance of moisture practically insures a good crop of winter wheat and other small grains and provides unusually good soil conditions for corn and other spring-planted crops. The season is especially favorable for seeding grass, clovers and alfalfa and for tree planting. Under such conditions farmers will do well to take advantage of the opportunity to establish permanent pastures and to increase their acreage of legumes and forage crops, bearing in mind the benefits of diversification and of lessening slightly perhaps the acreage of those major crops which the intentions-to-plant survey shows will be increased this year. Such adjustments are particularly desirable in sections of the state where several different crops may be grown with assurance of good returns.

Farmers in central and western Nebraska who may be planning to summer fallow some land this year should consider whether they will get just as good or better results to plant a part of this intended fallow land to corn and seed to winter wheat in the fall. Should it prove a season of continued rains, the corn is likely to do well, and since the moisture is already stored in the soil, there would not be much more added through summer irrigation. The elimination of weeds will be obtained through proper cultivation of the corn, leaving a good seedbed for winter wheat regardless of the outcome of the corn crop.

State Men Here To Assist In Testing

Dr. A. H. Francis of Lincoln, inspector in charge of federal foci of Nebraska at work on eradication of tuberculosis among cattle, cholera among hogs and scab, was in Wayne Wednesday of last week to confer with Dr. D. M. Purdy in regard to tuberculosis work here. Testing in Wayne county will be speeded up and completed. Dr. Meyers and Dr. Parish of the state department came to begin work Monday in Brownia precinct. They will assist Dr. Purdy and the local veterinarians.

China.
Albion News: American foreign missions would have had a far more reaching effect in China and perhaps even have saved the world from the threat of another dread war had the commercial interests that followed in the footsteps of the missionaries practiced somewhat as the missionaries preached. The fact that the men and women who brought them the gospel preached one thing while the commercial interest that followed all too often practiced something else hampered the spread of the gospel and engendered in the hearts of the Chinese people a good deal of distrust, which has not been conducive to world peace. China needs civilizing and modernizing but more than these—far more—she needs the influence of the Christian religion. She needs the gospel, not propaganda; she needs doctors and hospitals, not dope and booze; she needs a helping hand, not a plundering one. China may be on the wrong track, but if so the civilized and supposedly Christian nations of the world put her there.

The Treasury Deficit.
Albion News: At last the state treasury deficit has been investigated and to all appearances the work was done fairly and without prejudice or partisan bias. The committee making the investigation found that there had been no misapplication of funds, that there was no evidence of criminal action on the part of any state official. The blame for the deficit, was placed on the taxing boards of the McKelvie, Bryan and McMullen administrations, who were found to have failed to make tax levies sufficiently large to meet the demands upon the treasury and further that some of the shortage was due to contested railway and bank taxes. To an outsider it looks like a plain case of politics.

A New Law.
Dr. A. L. Bixby in Lincoln Journal: Senate file 61, which will be the law of the state for at least two years, can hardly be called drastic in the matter of its provisions for safeguarding the public health. There is very much in medicine, law, architecture, good roads, the art of teaching, and of preaching, and other things, that needs revising upward. Perfection in any line as yet is only approximated. But there are certain basic principles, sane and scientific, that demand recognition. Even the master barbers have invoked the law to protect the craft from the inefficient amateur who assumes tonsorial excellences when he doesn't know enough to mow a lawn. Men of the medical profession do not ask for the standardization of any system of therapeutics, but that those who engage to make whole the mortal bodies rattling along with two cylinders missing, shall first have such knowledge of anatomy as to aid in a correct diagnosis of a common dislocation, and know enough of pathology to differentiate between a hernia and a headache.

New Power Plant.
Walthill, Neb., April 21. The Central States Electric company is making good progress with its new lines and power plant at Walthill, notwithstanding the recent heavy rains.

This company purchased the power plant and its service lines, also those at Homer and Walthill, and will connect these towns and perhaps others under one system, with headquarters and power plant here. The new system will furnish 6,600 voltage and 24-hour service to its patrons and the rates for current will be considerably less than those charged by the municipal plants.

It is thought the new system will be in operation by June 1.

Thompson's Constituents.
Dr. A. L. Bixby in Lincoln Journal: Jack Harris of the Ottawa Kas. Herald, on the way to New York to sail for Europe, stopped in Chicago the night Bill Thompson was elected mayor. He writes:

"Thompson's headquarters were in the Hotel Sherman and the crowds centered around there. Streets for a block around were ankle deep with paper thrown from windows, crowds swarmed here and there and fist fights were engendered by hard losers whenever room enough could be found for blows to be exchanged. A well filled patrol wagon forced its way thru the crowd escorted by several cars of noisy celebrants. In the lobby of the Sherman was a crowd of the toughest looking citizens it has ever been our doubtful fortune to rub elbows with. Thugs, they looked, bootleggers, panhandlers, gamblers, plain toughs and bruisers who were there to congratulate Big Bill, their friend, the new mayor."

Omaha-Sioux City Road.
Lincoln, Neb., April 21.—A surfaced highway all the way from Omaha to Sioux City will be completed early this summer, Roy Cochran, head of the state highway department, declared this evening. The highway is now completely surfaced except for 18 miles from Oakland north. This section will be graveled immediately and will be among the first projects completed this year, Cochran said.

A Wet Day Causes One-Third More Calls

Rainy days often cause one-third more telephone calls. On such days, more people remain indoors and use the telephone.

Likewise, hot days and very cold days mean that many more telephone calls will be made.

Snow storms, also, add to the problem of providing service. At such times it is difficult for the operators to get to work, while at the same time many more telephone calls are made. And frequently bad storms tear down poles and wires, shutting off telephone service.

Uniformly satisfactory telephone service is our constant aim, but occasionally conditions arise which are temporarily beyond all human control. At such a time we especially appreciate the patience of our patrons until the situation can be met.

ANOTHER VIEW

F. O. Edgecomb in Geneva Signal. The Wayne Herald quotes a local educator as saying that he would have young debaters speak on the side of a question in which they believe, sacrificing versatility for sincerity. Difficulties would be encountered. Young people are born into political and other beliefs, any of which may be wrong, and if they were to speak solely from conviction they would merely emphasize and deepen their own errors if wrong. A high school student cannot have much background of experience or historical research upon which to base a reasonable conclusion. If the question to be debated happened to have one side that was particularly popular in a locality, a state or the nation there might be no one to accept the other side of the question and develop the facts and arguments on that side, which might easily be the right one. The momentary popularity of the affirmative of a question is no proof of its permanent soundness. The average college student is only little better able to arrive at conclusions than the high school debater. Debating both sides of a question compels some study of the question outside the shadow of inheritance and prejudice and that is more important than versatility.

Suggests Means Of Reducing Disease

Eradication of tuberculosis among fowls is being urged by the United States and state departments of agriculture. Education as to the nature, recognition and control of avian tuberculosis is emphasized as the first step. The eradication work among fowls generally follows eradication among cattle.

On the average farm, if tuberculosis infection is found, the entire flock must be considered tubercular and handled accordingly. Thin, emaciated birds, unfit for food must be killed and burned. The other hens may be kept for egg production until July 1 but should be kept away from all the farm animals until marketed for slaughter. Chicks may be hatched from eggs from the flock provided the eggs are hatched in an incubator and are reared in movable colony houses under artificial covers. The houses and chicks must be placed on fresh ground entirely separate and apart from all old stock on the premises.

Dr. D. M. Purdy, who is in charge of cattle testing in Wayne county, suggests the following as aid in ridding flocks of tuberculosis:

"Premises which have been occupied by tuberculous poultry must be thoroughly cleaned and disinfected, the same to be done in the following manner: Empty all troughs, racks, feeders, or other feeding and watering equipment; remove all litter, manure or other contaminated materials from the houses, yards or pens; disinfected flocks, giving special attention to feeding and watering equipment, and to the area immediately around such equipment. Dirt floors in poultry houses and the ground immediately to feeding and watering equipment used for the flock should be removed as completely as possible to a depth of six inches or more and replacement made with sand or gravel, or earth from a noncontaminated source.

"The manure litter and other contaminated materials removed in cleaning must be placed where they will not be accessible to poultry or other live stock until burned or otherwise treated to destroy the infection they may contain. On farms the manure may be spread on land to be cultivated, but sufficient distance from poultry runs to insure against exposure of the flock.

"Immediately following the cleaning specified, all feeding and watering utensils and the walls and floors of all housing equipment should be saturated with a disinfectant solution composed of a saponified cresol solution in proportion of at least four fluid ounces to each gallon of water.

"All fowls and chicks that die from any cause must be cremated. At present many flocks become infected because dead hens are thrown on the manure spreader and thrown out on the fields. Dogs carry dead fowls, sometimes for miles.

"Put in dropping boards and protect with wire screen. When killing chickens for the table, all blood and offal must be destroyed. The common practice of throwing the offal on the manure pile where other chickens have access to it must be discontinued, as this practice is very prolific source for the spread of disease.

"The best time for moving the flock to clean quarters is in the fall during October or by November 1st. Especially is this true of mature pullets taken from the rearing house to the clean houses and premises. In case old yards can not be plowed and cropped, then laying houses should be moved to new sites where the yards can be plowed and cropped. Each year the young chicks are to be reared on fresh ground away from the old stock.

FARMALL Planting Row Crops
FARMALL Cultivating Row Crops
FARMALL Making Hay
FARMALL Harvesting (Belt Work)

Under average soil conditions the Farmall will plow from 7 to 10 acres a day, which is as much as three men with nine mules or horses.

Twenty acres a day can be bedded up with two middle breakers and a Farmall, which is the work ordinarily of two or three men and six to eight horses.

The Farmall with a two-row lister can cover 20 acres a day, doing the work of two to three men and six to eight horses.

In planting corn, the Farmall can easily cover 20 acres a day—two or three times as much as can be done with a team. If four rows are planted at a time, this acreage is practically doubled.

One man with a Farmall can cultivate 15 to 25 acres a day, doing the work of two or three men and six to eight horses.

The Farmall when equipped with mower attachment will cut 20 to 25 acres a day.

The Farmall and tractor binder can cut 30 to 35 acres of grain a day.

For pulling the corn binder or corn picker, the Farmall save both time and labor.

Ask us to show you this tractor and the modern tools that work with it. Demonstrations can be arranged on your own farm if desired. No obligation.

PICK your hill and watch her PULL it

FILL your tank with Red Crown Ethyl Gasoline and head for the hardest hill you know. You will be surprised at the way you shoot up the grade and at the absence of "knocking".

In slow traffic you'll find a more powerful pick-up and less need for gear shifting. Red Crown Ethyl Gasoline gives every car new powers of performance, in summer as in winter.

There's no magic about it and no doubt. The power comes from quick-starting, clean-burning Red Crown Gasoline. The addition of Ethyl Brand of Anti-Knock Compound makes it possible to use this power to better advantage because the Ethyl makes Red Crown Gasoline burn differently.

It develops a steadier push on the piston for the full length of the power stroke. It prevents knocks and vibration and much wear and tear on the motor. The higher the compression—from carbon or any other cause—the better work Red Crown Ethyl Gasoline does.

Try a tankful of this new combination fuel in your car. But be sure you get the genuine—sold only where you see the RED CROWN Ethyl Gasoline sign on the silver pump.

For "knockless" operation avoid dilution. Wait until your gasoline supply is low before filling with Red Crown Ethyl Gasoline—then use Red Crown Ethyl Gasoline exclusively.
