OUTWIT flies and mosquitoes. Stop them—keep them out. Health and comfort demand that your house be properly screened. Don't wait until your house is infested with insects—make it fly-proof now. Protect with PEARL! Costs a trifle more at first but lasts longer, so costs much less in the end.

Specify "PEARL Wire Cloth". Its smooth metallic special process coating is a guarantee of beauty and long life. Insist on the genuine—two copper wires in the selvage and our round tag on every roll. Glad to show it.

DON'T WAIT—SCREEN NOW!

WALK ON VALSPAR!

Wherever you have Linoleum, Congoleum or Oilcloth in your home, varnish it with Valspar.

You will be delighted with the result. The Valspar will not only brighten up the pattern, but will make it last a great deal longer. The Valspar finish takes the surface wear and you walk on the Valspar instead of the linoleum.

Valspar linoleum can be cleaned in a jiffy with soap and water. And no matter what is spilled on Valspar—grease, acids, water, hot or cold—it will never leave a spot.

Valspar Lacquer is made in 15 colors—dries in a few minutes and unlike most lacquers, is easy to apply and will not turn white. We have all the colors, including clear.

Consolidating

Consolidating: One day last week Paul Burke of the Melchior Lithotype Co. sold a typesetting machine to Fred Howard to add to the growing plant of the Clay Center Sun and then dropped over to pay The Signal a friendly visit.

Mr. Burke said that a few days before a couple of salesmen from printing equipment met in a hotel in Iowa and got to counting up the newspaper consolidations that had recently come to their knowledge.

To reduce the cost of silk hose we would suggest that the part which is rolled down into a knob could be cut off and saved to the manufacturer and indirectly to the customer.

The York Republican points out that graveled roads are sometimes shod away and are not so sure permanent as concrete. But concrete is better than dirt and it is as a desirable substitute waiting until we can afford the has fallen intermittently the past week, and the wish at this time is for a spell by hasten corn and enable field work to be done. The weather is very much of an extremist, more than kinging up for drought of last year or excessive moisture now.

did not Colledge's summer residence in the Black Hills will draw more tourists than usual, and the country will doubtless gain an influx of new settlers and new capital. In addition to the president's sojourn as an attraction, will be the tour of the Black Hills by the National Press association which will be a source of valuable advertising.

We note that Capt. Chas. Lindbergh, flying here, is very fond of pie, including mince, which fact we refer to Editor F. D. Stone of the Hartington Herald as proof of the utter fallacy of his position against the wonderful delicacy. We doubt not that Lindbergh's achievement may be traced to courage and endurance gained from a diet of mince pie.

Parents do their children greatest justice and more lasting good by keeping them from gaining undeserved school credits for mere outward show. The boy or girl whose attainments are graded exactly according to merit, with no effort or desire to magnify the facts, fashions sound character which for later dependence, is quite as important as scholarship.

That even the heads of government are not children grown tall is suggested by the fact which is likely well grounded, that leaders of European nations will be seriously offended if Lindbergh does not call on all of them in case he extends his sojourn over there. He is hurrying home instead of carrying out his wish to see Europe in order to avoid threatening complications.

The spirit of Capt. Chas. Lindbergh young, intrepid had unassuming, should be an inspiration to youth everywhere. This young man risked his life to accomplish something for air navigation that had never been done and how, following victory, he is lauded and idolized by people in all countries. He had in purpose, and he accomplished it, the skin of a healthy body and keen mind, of his head is not turned by popular attentions, as seems unlikely, he will remain on the high pedestal which place he has won, and he will continue as an example of what people esteem as the best in American life.

The way Captain Chas. A. Lindbergh has turned indifferent ears to offers of pecuniary gain, following his flight from New York to Paris, ought to disprove the prevailing notion among Europeans that Americans are money-mad and that they are accustomed to putting the dollar above every other consideration. We believe Lindbergh has demonstrated the finest American ideal—how generally practiced we do not know, but more generally so, we believe, than most people abroad had thought or even many here had supposed. The American flier has by his feat and mannerisms wrought wonders in gaining a true appreciation of American grit and courage and modesty. Like other Americans who have distinguished themselves by accomplishing great purposes, Lindbergh set out to perform his task without pomp and flourish, and when he arrived he did not applaud himself nor seek the plaudits of others. Naturally he has interested himself in the hearts of people everywhere.

A current magazine, Dr. J. Russell Smith of Columbia University, predicts for America the shrinkage of big cities and the development of many small towns to which manufacturing industries will be transferred to save cost of transportation. He thinks the movement from the farm to the city will continue until a crisis is reached, and then readjustment will have to take place. He points out that following a similar exodus, the Roman empire collapsed, but he does not forecast such an unhappy eventuality here. Agriculture with its related lines, is undoubtedly one of the most prosperous and satisfying kinds of work, but the obstacle in the way is to convince young people of the fact. Production of necessities gives a sense of satisfaction not felt in all lines of endeavor. It also gives greater independence and security as compared to business that depends on favor or salariness. It is a fair deduction that many young people who drift away from the farm will drift back to it when contrasts are sharpened by experience and all the facts are fully understood.

CONSCIENCE. That quality of mind which leads one to do the right thing and avoid the wrong thing under cover and unobserved by the world's conscience, and if one permits himself to do something that conflicts with profession, and that he thinks will not become known, his conscience is not in the best working order. We believe the American conscience is the most highly developed in the world, and therefore the American stands highest in the scale of civilization. People who practice deceit and who have no scruples against unjust or evil ways, are conspicuous exceptions to the rule in this country. The great masses believe in the square deal and practice it, and they are sympathetic and generous in reforming acts of charity without calling out the band or otherwise inviting the world to witness what they have done.

REVIVING MEMORIES.

Greenwood cemetery was a veritable garden of flowers on Memorial day, and this was doubtless typical of most silent cities of the departed. A day for special remembrance of the soldier dead gives emphasis to love for relatives and friends who have gone before, and on this occasion, more than on any other, people recall tenderly those that have been broken and that final resting places being beautiful flowers with which, as an expression of deepest sentiment, they cover precious mounds and monuments. Thus, when the sun sinks on Memorial day, it casts a yellow light over a wonderland of floral wealth. It shows that people have not forgotten and that material considerations do not altogether dominate their lives. They hark back, memories are revived and hope is encouraged.

time, farm production is bound to be seriously reduced. This will make for higher prices in the fall, of course, but that is not the kind of relief from depression agriculture desires. A short crop due to adverse weather conditions would mean heavy losses to large groups of farmers who would produce nothing.

This discouragement in agriculture is having an effect on general trade throughout the middle west, and is natural. The farmers do not know whether they will have good crops. Consequently, they may be expected to exercise caution in buying. Warm, dry weather for two or three weeks would make a lot of difference everywhere. Trade would pick up, farm operations would progress and more confidence would be had.

Both corn and wheat have been boosted in the grain markets because of the untoward farm situation. Corn at a dollar for the first time in more than two years shows the effect of discouraging reports on the market. However, this may not serve to put profits in the pockets of the men who produced the corn. What grain has been held by the farmers naturally would command the new high price to the advantage of the producer, but, for the most part, speculators as usual will make most of the money on the advance.

The hopeful view, however, always may be recommended even in the face of discouragement. There is time enough yet for good crops, and perhaps there has been so much bad weather already that an improvement now may be confidently expected.

Market Report.

Furnished by Steele, Siman & Co., Sioux City Stock Yards.

Sioux City Stock Yards, June 1.—The week opened under semi-holiday conditions with receipts light, but owing to the expected effect of the contraction no benefits resulted. In fact, any alterations were in the way of bearishness, particularly after the opening day, at which time the interrupted marketward movement increased above normal. Starting the week on the crest level of the season, the market for fed cattle eased off after Monday. Heavy heaves did not feel the discounting, but few of that class were included in the bulk of the delivery being on the fair to good carrying order. Sales were made on a spread of $9.00 to $11.00, mostly steady and a midweek look weak to 25¢ lower.

Something strictly ripe and fancy in the weights; beef line would still sell up to $13.00, but even at this advanced rate the season is showing few steers to earn a front figure of $12.00. On the other hand practically no plain warmed ups are coming to sell down around a bed rock basis of $8.00.

Owing to continued scarcity fed cows and heifers held up. Good to choice yearling heifers are quoted from $10.00 to $11.25, with fair to good kinds from $8.50 to $10.00 and common to fair from $7.50 to $8.50. Prime weighty koshier cows have reached a $10.00 top more than once, while the fair to good shorted cows figure largely from $7.50 to $8.50.

A $2.00 spread covers all canner and cutton sales, with the canner critters from $4.00 up and the cutton from $6.00 down. Other than a steady bulker cannot be quoted for bulls, with the fair to good hologna worth from $5.50 to $7.75 and the heavy fed bulls from $7.00 to $7.50. Occasionally yearling bulls arrive to earn an outside top around $8.50.

with fancy selections to city butchers from $10.50 to $11. The usual narrow trade was conducted in the stocker and feeder department. Prices can safely be quoted steady with the season's crest level. Good to choice thin steers quoted from $8.75 to $10.00, with fair to good from $7.50 to $8.75 and this latter class makes up the bulk of the day to day showings.

Choice light feeding heifers quoted to $8.25 and over, with 0+93 (more $9.00) and over, with the heaviest regulation feeding cows around $6.00. On a basis just above the bed rock level for the year to date, hog values move along in a more or less catch-as-catch-can manner, with opposing factions of the trade, undetermined as to the future. Many are agreed that the late season will show some strength, but for the immediate future there seems to be little promise of improved prices. Demands continue poor, both export and domestic and supplies are comparatively heavy. Therefore it seems likely that current tops just over $9.00, will obtain, with the advancing season showing a decided preference for quality and finish and less regard for weight. Right now all sales of butchers are within a 50c spread.

We Submit.

In Lauriston Bullard's editorial in the Boston Herald, which won the 1926 Pulitzer prize.

In our opinion Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti ought not to be executed on the warrant of the verdict returned by a jury of July 14, 1921. We do not know whether these men are guilty or not. We have no sympathy with the half-baked views which they profess. But, as months have merged into years and the great debate over this case has continued, our doubts have solidified slowly into convictions, and reluctantly, we have found ourselves compelled to reverse our original judgment. We hope the supreme judicial court will grant a new trial on the basis of the new evidence not yet examined in open court. We hope the governor will grant another reprieve to Celestino Madeiros so that his confession may be canvassed in open court. We hope the supreme bench finds itself unable legally to authorize a new trial, that our governor will call to his aid a commission of disinterested men of the highest intelligence and character to make an independent investigation in his behalf, and that the governor himself at first hand will participate in that examination if, as a last resort, it shall be undertaken.

We have read the full decision in which Judge Webster Thayer, who presided at the original trial, renders his decision against the application for a new trial, and we submit that it carries the tone of the advocate rather than the arbitrator. At the outset he refers to "the verdict of a jury approved by the supreme court of this commonwealth," and later he speaks of that sentence. We respectfully submit that the supreme court never approved that verdict. What the court did is stated in its own words thus: "We have examined carefully all the exceptions in so far as the verdicts are concerned." "The supreme court did not vindicate the verdict. The court certified that, whether the verdict was right or wrong, the trial judge performed his duty under the law in a legal manner. The supreme court expressed no judgment whatsoever as to the validity of the verdict or the guilt of the defendants. Judge Thayer knows this, yet allows himself to refer to the verdict as 'approved by the supreme court.'"

We submit also, that Judge Thayer's language contains many innuendoes which surely are unfortunate in such a document. The petition for a new trial is based in part on the affidavits of two men, Letherman and Weyand, connected respectively with the United States government for 36 and eight years, and both are now holding responsible positions out of the federal service. Judge Thayer says that one of those men "seems for some reason to be willing to go the limit in his affidavit against the government of the United States," and he refers to "prejudiced affidavits which appear to be quite easily obtained nowadays." The charges are rung on certain phrases also, as "fraudulent conspiracy between these two great governments," meaning of the United States and Massachusetts. The judge asserts a conspiracy charge which was not made by counsel for the defense; he asks "who pumped this curiosity into Madeiros," he compliments the prosecution and refers slightly to counsel for the defense.

We submit that evidence, if any, in the files of the Department of Justice having any bearing on this case ought to be examined in open court, or examined in private by the United States attorney general and reported upon by him before this case shall finally be decided. We have no idea what the files may contain. Mr. Weyand said in his affidavit: "The conviction was the result of co-operation between the Boston agents of the Department of Justice and the district attorney." We do not know that this is true but we know there was co-operation; the department and the attorney joined in placing a fly in the ointment next to Sacco's, and the prosecution admitted the fact in court.

Now as to Madeiros: A criminal with a bad record, true, and indictment of death. But the government might prefer to put on one of his confessions to convict him of a murder. His evidence was accepted against himself when his own life was at stake. His evidence is now offered in behalf of two other men whose lives also are at stake. We submit that Madeiros should be placed on the stand in open court, facing a jury and a judge, and subjected to examination and cross-examination. He may be lying, but the criterion here is not what a judge may think about it, but what a jury might think about it. The question is: Would the new evidence be a real factor with a jury in reaching a decision?

We submit that doubt is cast on the verdict of the jury by the important affidavit made after the trial by Captain C. H. Proctor of the state police. On the stand, testifying as an expert, his evidence was understood by the jury and the judge to be that the fatal bullet issued from Sacco's pistol. Careful examination of the record discloses curious facts. Captain Proctor did not here reply to direct questions. His affidavit states what the record implies, that a device was fixed up in advance for dodging direct answer to a direct question. His replies were understood to mean that he believed the bullet came from that weapon. He allowed that impression to go aboard. Now, when the supreme court dealt with that point it expressed no opinion as to whether, or not an "ambiguous answer" had been arranged to "obtain a conviction." The court ruled only that the trial judge had decided that no such arrangement had been made, and that the supreme court could not "as matter of law" set aside the ruling of the trial judge. For these, and other reasons we hope that the resources of our laws will prove adequate to obtain a new trial. Let it be remembered that the new trial is asked for on the basis of evidence never before the supreme court previously. The court has ruled on exceptions to the old trial, never on all evidence for a new one. If on a new trial the defendants shall again be found guilty we shall be infinitely better off than if we proceed to execution on the basis of the trial already held; the shadow of doubt which abides in the minds of large numbers of patient investigators of this whole case will have been removed. And if on second trial

Sacco and Vanzetti should be declared guiltless, everybody would rejoice that no monstrous injustice shall have been done. We submit these views with no reference whatever to the personality of the defendants, and without allusion now to that atmosphere of radicalism of which we heard so much in 1921.

Four Shoemakers Die At Gordon

Gordon, Neb., May 23.—Despite the fact that Gordon is one of the most healthful places in the United States, there appears to be something in the air that is causing a most remarkably high death rate among shoemakers, four persons of that trade having died, two suddenly, here in less than three months.

The fourth to be called by death was William Blair, who dropped dead in the office of Dr. Dwyer Friday.

Less than three months ago George Short, another cobbler, took his life by hanging himself in his brother's garage. He had lived here for the last ten years. Ill health was believed to have been the cause of his act.

Two weeks ago, S. Kearns, 60, the second repairman to succumb, died after being in ill health for the last two years and bedridden since Christmas.

The third one to answer the call of the Grim Reaper was F. Frederickson, who died a week ago, in a hospital in Omaha after an operation.

Mr. Blair, the last to go, was 58 years old and apparently was in good health the morning of his death. Funeral services will be in charge of the local Odd Fellows lodge, of which he was a member.

He is survived by his widow, two daughters and two sons.

Furner, pastor) Mr. Walters who gave the Memorial day address said in substance that the feet of our nation are demoralized in the moral and spiritual concrete. This statement is worthy of consideration. The feet symbolize the motive power. Our ability to move, to progress in any direction must be considered in relation to the spiritual and moral weight of obligation we are bound to as a people. This is a beautiful tribute to make to the Christian forces. It is true. He also emphasized the values of morality and Christianity as the test of national life, power and vitality. Our wealth as a nation must be spiritual wealth. How do you rate in the moral, moral and spiritual wealth? Our church services are conducted with the thought in mind only of enriching our spiritual life, giving it the dynamo with which to generate all other life. We hope that you will contribute your part by loyal and constant support of the gospel messages by word and deed. Remember the regular services every Sunday, and the regular mid-week service on Wednesday evening. Be with us as often as you can. Pray for us, when you cannot be present as well as when you are present. The adult Sunday school is building a good substantial bridge. Come and help complete it during the month of June.

FACTS about used car allowances

Most new car sales now involve the trading-in of a buyer's used car. More and more people are asking: "Why should my used car seem to have several values? ... Why should dealers in different makes of cars offer me allowances differing materially? ... Does the largest allowance offered mean the best deal for me?"

Here are basic facts:

- 1 Your used car has seemingly different values because competitive dealers are bidding to sell you a new car.
2 Your used car has only one fundamental basis of value: what the dealer who accepts it in trade can get for it in the used car market.
3 The largest trade-in allowance which is offered on your used car is not necessarily the best deal for you. Sometimes it is, but sometimes it is not.
4 An excessive allowance may mean that you are paying an excessive price for the new car in comparison with its real value.
5 Judge the merits of the new car in comparison with its price, including all delivery and finance charges. Then weigh any difference in allowance offered on your used car.

WHEN YOU are ready to trade-in your present car, remember that after all you are making a purchase and not a sale. You are buying a new car and simply applying your present car as a credit toward the purchase price of a new car.

York Republican: American citizens of real blood and strong spines cannot ignore or pass over without reflection what is transpiring in Mexico and China. The world does not stretch so far as it used to. We are no longer an isolated nation, living into ourselves and able to foster our ideals of government and citizenship without interference. The red propaganda is no little affair to be turned aside with a shrug. A speaker at the district conference of Rotary clubs in Sioux City told of his activities in his own city, Minneapolis. There schools of instruction are held. The pupils are not long haired, be-whiskered foreigners. They are college students and young men and women of intellectual culture who are being taught the rights of self centered individuals as opposed to constituted authority. All over America and in nearby countries where there is fertile soil the seeds of communism are being widely sown and unless Americans are on their guard and use their effective weapons of aroused patriotism and support of constituted government, whether federal, state or local, there will be a harvest of lawlessness, disloyalty and insurrection. No citizen of this great nation whose blood runs high with the love of its history and tinged blue with his devotion to its high ideals may sit supinely when told of the activities on his very doorstep of the reds, and cry "bunk." He must be up and keeping his ears and eyes open that he may not be caught with the argument of indifference. He dare not be inactive or indifferent. Why Pay 5 Percent on Your Farm Loan. The Easy-Working Two-Row Saves Time and Labor. One of the problems confronting the American farmer today is that of cutting the cost of crop production in order to show a reasonable margin of profit at harvest time. This scarcity of labor and the resulting higher price has led to a demand for labor-saving tools that is greater than ever before. The two-row cultivator is a labor-saving tool. It enables one man to do as much work as can be done by two men with single-row machines. The two-row cultivator, of course, is not new, but the McCormick-Deering Style UD two-row cultivator is brand new and has features which you will find exclusively on this cultivator. It may be necessary for you actually to get into the seat of the McCormick-Deering Two-Row and try it yourself before you will believe that it is as easy to operate as any single-row pivot wheel cultivator. You will find that the gang control has been so simplified as to make up for any extra attention necessary in watching two rows at a time. Quick Work at Ends of Rows. You will observe that there are four levers that control the raising and lowering of the gangs. Here is another splendid feature. The four levers control the gangs separately while the two inside levers have an additional function, raising and lowering the gangs in pairs, thus enabling the operator quickly and easily to get the gangs out of or into the ground at the ends of the rows. Foot Levers Give Easy Control. Easy-working foot levers make it easy to guide the machine. The wheels are pivoted at the ends of the frame and can be quickly and easily guided in either direction. When the corn is small and close cultivation is desired, the locking lever can be set to lock the gangs in relation to the wheels so that wheels and gangs work together, giving more accurate control. Again, the lever can be set to lock the gangs and let the wheels pivot without shifting the gangs. For transportation, a lock is provided for locking the wheels rigidly with respect to the machine. The foot levers can be adjusted to suit the operator and the seat can be set up or down, or forward or backward, to balance the machine and place the operator in easy working position. The Easy Method of Gang Control. You will notice that right in the center of the machine, where they can be reached easily, are two small levers; one of these levers controls the arches and gangs and the other lever levels the frame and adjusts the gangs to let the rear shovels run shallower or deeper.

Cross or Plain Arches. The cross arch construction is an exclusive feature on the McCormick-Deering Two-Row cultivator and one of the best features ever put on a cultivator for use in sections where the crops are planted with two-row planters or listers. Why no one has ever thought of this before in the construction of a two-row cultivator is a mystery, for it is so obviously the right way to do it. In crops planted 3 row at a time, the rows are not always parallel, and it is necessary, of course, that each pair of gangs follow its own row independently. You get this method of gang control in the plain arch construction. You can have the McCormick-Deering Two-Row Pivot Wheel Cultivator with either cross or straight arches, as you wish. McCormick-Deering Mowers. We have the famous McCormick-Deering mowers, and if you are in need of a mower this is the kind you want. Our McCormick-Deering and Dempster hay stackers will fully meet the demands of your work. We have haysweeps of all styles and we can exactly suit your requirements.

Ask us for repairs for any machine. We have them and can serve you promptly. We will do our best to make your farming operations easier and more profitable. Thompson & Bichel "Good Equipment Makes a Good Farmer Better." Wayne, Nebraska
