We Should Be Shocked. Lincoln Journal: It does not need a penitentiary mutiny such as the one Kansas has just experienced to prove the essential brutality and futility of the prison method of punishment and correction. The modern prison is a pleasure resort compared with the dungeons of the remote past, and yet in usefulness in saving its inmates from wreckage it must be admitted to be one of the conspicuous failures of civilization.

A crime and punishment are studied we find that the conflicting old method of confinement because we are not wise enough or liberal enough financially to develop a better system. It is significant of our lack of vision in such matters that nearly all of the proposals recently enacted into law in this country contemplate more severe sentences in the old sort of prison rather than the development of a saner method of segregation of people who have shown themselves to be dangerous to society. We know now that the convict is rarely reformed. So under Eases and similar laws we turn the first offender loose at the end of his term, fully expecting him to return to crime. When he does meet our expectation we promptly send him back to his cell. In a number of states now the third conviction automatically carries a sentence for life. Brutal and illogical as this may appear it now has the sanction of our scientific and legal advisers.

As for the sentimentalists who have prayed over the convicts and helped them to lead a new life upon their liberation, the great majority are now ready to admit that they have accomplished nothing. The gospel of love has brought them nowhere. So we go on building more cell room and seeking to frighten people into respect for the law by fictitiously lengthening the severity of the sentences. Then we forget the whole subject in our preoccupation over grain crops and oil wells until the headlines tell of the revolt of a group of convicts herded like animals in some state penitentiary. In Kansas this time the story almost arrests our attention because a portion of the action takes place underground. Not in Siberia, in Kansas. Less than two hundred miles away from Lincoln. "Yes," we agree, "this is a serious problem. We really must do something about it. What did you pay for your new car?"

Praise for Henry Ford. Ord Quiz: That the small town newspaper "has avoided the errors of modern journalism without any sacrifice of influence" is the belief of Henry Ford. The foregoing statement was part of a message sent by the Detroit motor genius to the National Editorial association during its recent meeting in Omaha.

Mr. Ford said: "I am glad to have this opportunity to send a greeting to publishers of our home community newspapers. Besides being the oldest and most distinctively American type of publication, the small town and country press is our only real newspaper. It comes to us as a friendly visitor from the neighborhood that we know and still know best."

"It has avoided the errors of modern journalism without any sacrifice of influence. The Ford Motor company has always found the country press an efficient means of reaching the public and we foresee further use of its facilities in the future."

A few weeks ago Alfred Sloan, president of General Motors, said that in his belief the country press is the most efficient advertising medium in America. When such men as Mr. Ford and Mr. Sloan agree that advertising in the weekly newspaper pays, it is either a very wise or a very foolish man who will say that they are mistaken.

Only trouble is that small towns are full of wise and foolish men.

Charlotte White Describes Visit

Tells of Presbyterian Girls' Conference and Places of Interest in West.

Miss Charlotte M. White, who is visiting a niece in San Francisco, Calif., writes to Herald readers June 18 as follows:

"Of course, the Presbyterian girls' conference, which I recently attended, is known to most. It deserves mention, however, and I enjoyed it very much. It affords one a great satisfaction to belong to an organization that has as many talented men in it as took part in the deliberations here. The moderator, Robert Speer, is one of our foremost laymen at the head of our foreign missionary society. He has visited all of our foreign outposts more than once.

"Among the speakers I met Rev. E. Knickerbocker, twice a worker for a time in China. His and his wife were driven home by the Boxer trouble. They formerly lived at Norfolk. I met Rev. Mr. Ernst and wife. One of the men whom I recognized was Ben Elliot, who used to be in the Wayne Methodist church. He is now a Presbyterian elder. He and his wife had driven over from Lowell, Wyo. We had several visits and the Elliots send regards to all their Wayne friends.

"I had the extreme pleasure of shaking hands with Robert Speer and with Mark Mathews. The latter preaches in the largest Presbyterian church in the United States, this being in Seattle, Wash. The church membership is 9,000.

"Besides driving through Golden Gate park, I spent a day in the aquarium. The butterfly fish are wonderful. I also visited the two museums which are worthy of long description."

INDEPENDENCE DAY

On July 4th we again celebrate the birthday of our country.

A century and a half is miraculous time for an infant country to develop into a gigantic, respected power among nations.

The character of a nation is but the reflection of its people. And the love of liberty and independence, and the faithful observance of thrift, which solved the problems of our growing nation, can do equally as much for you.

Arthur Jensen Passes Tuesday

Service Held Friday for Former Wakefield Resident who Dies Near Hartington.

Funeral services were held at Hartington Friday for Arthur R. Jensen who died, June 21, at his home near Hartington. Deceased had been in poor health since the first of the year and had been confined to his bed for several months.

Mr. Jensen was born at Wakefield June 22, 1859, and at the time of his death was aged 68 years, 11 months and 30 days. He lived in Wakefield until he grew to young manhood, when he moved to a farm near Coleridge, remaining there for several years. He had lived near Hartington since his marriage. Deceased was married to Miss Ada M. Kinkaid on June 29, 1913.

Deceased is survived by the following members of his immediate family: His wife, Ada M. Jensen; his mother, Mrs. Minnie Jensen of Wayne; three sisters, Mrs. Wm. Driskell of Wakefield, Mrs. Augie Anagnost of Hartington, and Mrs. Anna Som of Wayne; five brothers, George of Wakefield, Chris of Coleridge, Harry of Coleridge, Jensen of Hartington, and Chester of Wayne. His father preceded him by death seven years ago.

Those from a distance who attended the funeral were: Robert Forsythe, Mrs. Lucy Forsythe and Wall Houston, all of Pierce, Okla.; J. J. and Peter Anagnost of Omaha.

The Problem of the Poor.

Hartington Herald: The problem of the poor is one of the most difficult with which social workers have to deal. The magnitude of the problem in the large cities is evident enough to everyone, and in the smaller communities, the problem, while less extensive, is not much less acute. In the larger social centers, great organizations are maintained to care for the poor and the destitute, trained workers are hired to look after them and the whole business is reduced to a science, but, in the smaller cities, towns and villages, the work along this line is of necessity a more unsystematic kind. The average community can not afford to maintain a bureau or pay a corps of experts to look after its poor, but the problem is there nevertheless. In every community, there are poor families who need attention—always have been and probably always will be—and persons who have become engaged in this work of help have come into contact with it and realize how difficult and complicated the situation at times becomes.

The first great problem the social worker has to deal with is to distinguish between the worthy and the unworthy. Some of those who ask for help from society are undoubtedly worthy, and in actual need while others could help themselves if they would and it is often a difficult matter to draw the line between the two classes. There are impostors and grafters among the poor as well as among other people and while it is better to feed two than to let one get hungry, this is an aspect of social work that requires the most careful study.

But this is not the greatest problem which confronts the social worker by any means. The greatest problem, as it appears to the writer from observation and experience, is the pauperizing tendency of all charitable enterprise. Granting that there are some families in every community who need help and even assuming that we are able to distinguish between the worthy and the unworthy, the fact remains that all charity has a greater or less tendency to pauperize and one could point to conspicuous examples of families and individuals who have apparently lost both their independence and self respect as the result of the well meaning efforts of society to help them. Accepting county municipal or private aid first as a gift, intended for an emergency, they have come to look upon it as a right and, in certain instances, have eventually given up all self-help and allowed themselves to become a perpetual burden to charitable organizations. Moreover, they become most exacting in their demands, being satisfied with nothing but the best and asking for and expecting attentions which the self-supporting poor are not able to afford.

Let us repeat that there are worthy poor in every community and that it is the duty of society to protect them from want, but, nevertheless, a great deal of charity is misdirected and misapplied and often does more harm than it does good. As a matter of fact, many poor and unfortunate families have been self-supporting and some of their poverty—have sprung from the very thought of charity—and, while one would not refuse aid to those in distress, one regrets to see the pauperizing tendency which is often evident in charitable enterprises. It is a deplorable thing both for the individual and for society when the beneficiary of charity loses his self-respect, independence, and initiative and is willing to become a helpless burden on his fellow men.

Purebred Special Interests Farmers

A traveling exhibit in the interests of livestock improvement in Kentucky recently completed an unusually effective tour of the State, according to a report received by the United States Department of Agriculture early in June from Wayland Rhoads, field agent in animal husbandry, University of Kentucky.

The "Purebred-Sire Special" made 52 stops in 46 counties and resulted in the replacement of 46 grade and scrub bulls with selected purebreds. Three stops were made in a day, about two and one-half hours being allotted to each town visited. "A total of about 75,000 people saw this train," Mr. Rhoads stated, "and I believe all of them were able to get the idea of the value of purebred sires. In the end of one car were two steers, one of them a scrub 3-year-old, the other a high-grade 2-year-old. The scrub steer sold for $17 and the high-grade $85." The sire of the high-grade steer was a purebred beef bull.

Interest in extending the use of purebred sires, thus improving the quality of Kentucky livestock, was evident from the large number of public-spirited breeders and organizations that considered registered bulls to be exchanged for scrubs and the bulls included the principal beef and dairy breeds. The "Purebred-Sire Special" was operated under the auspices of the agricultural committee of the Kentucky Bankers' Association over two railroad systems. The United States Department of Agriculture made available a supply of educational literature on animal breeding and the utility value of purebred livestock, supplementing the live-animal exhibits and other features prepared by the Kentucky Experiment Station and the Louisville Board of Trade. In addition to the cattle carried by the "Purebred-Sire Special," the train carried the State champion ton-litter sow.

Ponca Is Leveling Streets. Ponca, Neb., June 28.—Ponca's new graded streets, which were hardly completed last fall before snow came, are being put in good condition now. A large grader has leveled and smoothed the street, which was bumpy after the excessive rains of spring. New spillways are being placed at street crossings by contractors, as the old spillways were found to be inadequate.

Gravel Operations On Gaps Will Start

Norfolk News, June 23: Gravel surfacing of twelve-mile stretch between Fordyce and Yankeo is scheduled to start within the next few days as a gravel pit has been opened in that locality.

This project when completed will mark the diminution of one of the two remaining ungraded gaps in the highway between Yankeo and Omaha. The other, which is under contract to be graded this year, is a nine-mile stretch north of Wayne. Culvert work and raising of low grades on this highway north of Wayne are under way now.

Everything is in readiness for the graveleving of eleven miles between Wakefield and Allen on highway No. 9. Construction operations will start either Saturday or Monday, it was reported.

As soon as gravel work is completed on the short project near Clearwater, which will be within the next few days, the construction crew will move its equipment to the six mile job south of Norfolk on highway No. 11.

Resurfacing of the three-mile stretch north of Madison with gravel has been completed, many motorists commenting on the excellent results. Three dangerous curves are being reworked one-half mile west of Madison. When the work is finished autoists will have two "easy" curves instead of three dangerous ones, around which to travel.

One-half of the four-mile job south of Norfolk on highway No. 83 has been given a new coating of gravel, while the remainder is being clayed. Excellent results are being obtained by the state department of public works on a highway being regraded, it was said.

Small But Not Little. York Republican: Now and then a writer, with a perverted sense of the true values of life, takes a sharp pointed pen, dips it in a solution of caustic, and writes about fun for those who live in lofty tenements and brown stone houses, and for a while some of the rest of us shudders at his hits, but after a bit the caustic stings and we awaken to the realization that the backbone of the nation; the small town, has been kicked by a flea.

Make all the fun you like of the awkward characters who walk up and down Main street, laugh until you are sick at the strange looks and ludicrous antics of the lonely citizens of the small town; but do not overlook the fact that here it is that the normal life of America finds exact expression and here, too, is written the biography of the men whose deeds and words have made a nation great. For in the little towns, unspoiled by the influences of ailing aristocracy, right is right, wrong is wrong and daily living is the product of understanding and sympathy.

The great characters of this nation were almost without exception born and reared in country towns, received their education and inspiration in country schools, and went forth from the little towns with American idealism fresh in their minds to serve their countrymen with honest service.

The satirists may caricature the homes of the little towns with great glee and wealth-made patricians of the cities may smile at their crudeness; but when the end comes to them and the lilos rest on their breasts, a memory-sown plot in the old cemetery receives their clay, buries their faults from view, and makes a resting place for a stone to enshrine their deeds and perpetuate their memories.

Tenders Resignation After Long Service

Rev. E. Gehrke who has been pastor of the Lutheran church, six miles northeast of Wayne for seventeen years, tendered his resignation of Sunday to take effect as soon as his successor can be chosen. Mr. Gehrke expects to retire from the active ministry following thirty-five years of service, and he will locate at Bancroft where his daughter, Miss Huldah, is employed as a tailor. In his seventeen years' pastorate here he has made many warm friends who regret to have him retire and leave.

Annual Picnic at Homer. Homer, Neb., June 23.—The Dakota County Farmers union at its quarterly meeting at Dakota City indorsed plans for a farmer's creamery at Norfolk, Neb. It also laid plans to hold the annual union picnic at Homer on August 11.

Last year's picnic also was held at Homer. Speeches, a ball game and sports will be arranged.

Winside Man Equals Top On Consignment

Sioux City Livestock Record, June 23: Svee Porter, a well known cattle feeder from Winside, Nebr., was on the market today with a shipment of 35 steers averaging 1,055 pounds, that sold for $12.00, equaling the top paid today. The cattle were shipped here from the cattle work pen at Winside. Hereford bought as feeders on this market last fall. The cattle weighed 619 pounds going out and cost $7.50 per hundred. They showed an advance of $4.50 per hundred and a gain in weight of 436 pounds each. Mr. Porter has a load of calves on feed.

The new idea in funeral directing calls for a man who can enter a home demoralized by grief and take complete charge, managing details great and small with a steady hand. To do so requires not only a thorough technical training, but a great fund of sympathy and tact. That is exactly how we serve those who call upon us in their time of sorrow.

Prison reform is making headway according to a report from the Red Cross. Prisoners in the state reformatory at Frankfort, Kentucky, moved by distress of flood sufferers in the Mississippi valley, gave a minstrel show to raise money for relief. It is said to be the first time inmates of a penal institution have given aid to charity.

There are still too many idlers, still too many who want to let the other fellow do the work. There are still too many recipients and not enough givers, too many with palms extended and too few who huckle down to business and hoe their own rows. If everybody capable of exerting energy would do his share, the job for everybody would be materially lightened.

Lieutenants Lester J. Maitland and Albert Hertzberger have just flown from Oakland to Honolulu, a distance of 2,400 miles, and Commander Richard E. Byrd is off for a flying trip across the Atlantic. A few more flights over the two big oceans and such trips will become too common to excite great interest. Then will come establishment of air lines for passengers, and so the contents of the earth will be knitted together by ties that were not dreamed of a few years ago.

We agree with Editor Copper of the Fremont Herald that there is no edible delicacy quite so wonderful as the strawberry. It has been said that probably the Lord could have made a better berry than the strawberry, but that he never did. And the way Editor Copper endorses his wife's manufacture of strawberry shortcake and other culinary concoctions leads us to yearn for an invitation, not so much that we are from Missouri and in doubt, but we would so highly relish the pleasure of being shown.

Many of the farm homes in Wayne county will appear in the special edition of the Herald to be issued about August 1. An inspection of Wayne county's farm homes shows the most modern improvements that give facility in performing daily tasks and that insure greatest comfort. With all the latest conveniences in handling home duties and farm operations, with quick and easy means of travel and communication, the average Wayne county farm has all the advantages of the city without many of its disadvantages.

The Kay swimming pool whose attractiveness is strengthened by the hot weather, is a boon to people who like to swim, or who want to learn. As a safeguard one ought to learn to swim, and the pool furnishes the opportunity. Many shapely physiques, fit descendants of Apollo and Venus, make some of us who look like hail trees, wish we had inherited rather more generous proportions. For some of us who have either run chiefly to bone or mainly to fat, there ought to be a twilight fest.

OBSCURE MERIT.

An article in a current magazine points out that the most important and useful citizen of a certain well known eastern city is not the mayor or other prominent figure, but that he is a modest, unassuming, inconspicuous individual who for many years has been organizing and leading groups of boys in baseball and other wholesome sports. Youth coming under his influence have been impressed with the necessity of clean, honest living. He has possessed good habits and square dealing as such essentials, and it is said many leaders in business and professional groups attribute the foundation of their success to the influence of this comparatively obscure man. In comparatively obscure men are people who, without bare of crumpets, or flashes of red fire, are threading youthful character with the gold of righteousness.

Market Report.

Furnished by Steele, Siman & Co., Sioux City Stock Yards.

Sioux City Stock Yards, June 30—More than the ordinary amount of unevenness entered the local cattle trade this week, but aside from grass butcher stock prices, the market did not appreciably change position, as compared to the close of last week.

The eleven leading markets of the country received approximately 100,000 cattle the first two days of the week, a few less than arrived the same days of last week.

Monday found the fed steers and heifers steady and some lower on a paper, but buyers asserted that considering the big hot weather fills, the outlet was steady. The big fills continued over tion, with spectators barred and participants restricted to those who can qualify and who would be quite as much as amused. Otherwise we must be content to look on with eyes of envy.

Next Monday will be the Fourth, and people will withdraw from accustomed tasks for the day. It has been a long time since our independence was achieved, and many important things have happened since then. We are still thankful that our antecedents broke loose from England and set up business from themselves. We are thankful that the independence gained has since been maintained and enlarged. It is well for all to understand that it marked the starting of a big and powerful nation.

Those who have seen Mrs. Coolidge at the summer white house in the Black Hills think she possesses great personal charm, and attribute such strength to the good taste of just being herself. She is free from affectation and looks and acts natural and human. It is easy to be one's self and it is the pleasing way to be. When one simulates and holds aloof, he cheapens himself. He makes people think his cranial anatomy is a vacuum, that he never had a lucid idea and that he never has and never will be able to accomplish anything worth while.

Alibel suit asking for $475,000 has been filed by E. R. Burke, president of the Omaha Bar association, against the National Refining company of Ohio, and others for an inscription posted at different oil stations in Nebraska and reading: "Tell the truth to your lawyer and he will lie for you." Omaha lawyers are deeply incensed by the implied defamation of their profession. They are coming more and more not only to appreciate the importance of the truth, but to establish and maintain a reputation for truth. It is a wholesome and encouraging condition. Tricksters among lawyers are becoming fewer, and the profession is ranking higher. Members do not propose longer to tolerate scurrilous references that tend to impair reputation for integrity. Other professions that have been carelessly impaled on javelins of unsupported security may follow suit. For instance, editors who constantly seek the truth and strive to bill higher standards, may tire of having their veracity assailed and their motives impugned.

Business.

Sioux City Journal: It was suspected a month ago that there would be a slack season this summer in general business activity. This was indicated variously. Car loadings declined below the figures for last year, wholesale and retail orders were smaller and there was less activity in stocks and bonds.

Foodstuffs have a report from the Iron Age which has hit the steel trade. At this time last year, the report advises, the outlook in the industry began to brighten with prices strengthening. But now the industry is fully 10 per cent under the operating position it held a year ago.

The steel trade may be taken as a dependable business barometer, especially with reference to manufacturing, which easily dominates the economic situation in this country. Iron and steel are in heavy demand when industrial conditions are good, or promising. The present decline, which not particularly discouraging, obviously indicates a trend downward. To take the hopeful view, one might suggest that after all the summer dullness may be only temporary, especially when it is remembered that 1927 has been an off year in many respects. Frankish weather conditions, heavy property damages from floods, low temperatures that retarded crops—all these have contributed discouragement to general business, and it is but natural that the steel industry should feel the effect since it handles the raw materials used principally in manufacturing.

Crop prospects have improved materially this past week with rather encouraging reports on the condition of both corn and wheat. Better growing weather for several days has made a great change in corn while the wheat outlook is distinctly good. Wheat will produce in some states record yields. Corn has a good chance yet, although a large percentage of the growing crop is behind schedule.

Iowans are less pessimistic than they were 10 days ago, and are now looking forward to a fair corn yield. It will not be a banner crop nor yet an average good one, but there will be much corn harvested as usual. The success of corn harvest issues in many Iowa counties is believed to indicate a new optimism in the state. Perhaps Iowans are now commencing to see the way out of an unsatisfactory economic situation that has prevailed for some years.

COMING EDITION

Prof. T. S. Hook has been canvassing over Wayne county in the interest of the proposed special edition of the Herald and he is finding the task of seeing all who ought to be seen greater than he had anticipated. It takes much time to interview people who are located in all parts of the county, and therefore there is danger of missing many whose places and achievements ought to be represented. Any who have not been reached by Mr. Hook would be happy calling on the Herald at an early date. A special edition setting forth development, is eminently worth while at intervals of ten or fifteen years. Changes made in the course of a decade are many and important, and they should be presented and preserved. Besides, progress should be noted, and so far as possible put into pictures for the information of the general public. The time required to assemble material and print necessary pages make it impossible for people to do with due promptness in furnishing pictures and data.

The first half of the week and as prices look very little different but packers were only badly because of the fact that they had to buy so much water at beef prices.

Ripe heifer calves again absent from the runs, with the bulk of the fair to good short fed order and worth from $9.25 to $11.25. Naturally the advancing season is showing a larger number of steers of sufficient finish to sell from $11.50 up.

Although slow in spots, the yearling heifer trade suffered to only a small degree over the first half. Choice yearling heifers figure to an $11.25-top, with good kinds from $10.00 up and fair to good kinds from $8.50 to $10.00.

Scattered lots of day lot cows sold steady, with the spread of ripe kosher individuals from $9.00 to $10.00 and for odd lots of shortfords from $7.00 to $8.00.

Grass cows a mean sale and 25 to 50 cents lower. Going into the beef trade the outlet figures from $7.50 up on waxy types, with the most desirable big weight types to $7.50.

Former Resident Writes of West

E. Cunningham Tells of Visits with Friends—Describes Agricultural Prospects.

E. Cunningham of Ashton, Idaho, formerly of Wayne, writes June 19 to Herald readers as follows:

"Naturally people in the old home communities wonder what part of the news in their papers most interests the man who has taken up his domicile elsewhere. While it is natural for different persons to be interested in different things, the first thing that attracts attention is the passing of the best, men with whom I have been associated and worked and played. Scarcely a week's issue of the Herald fails to bring the news of some dear friend who has passed over the river and with it comes a pang of regret and a flood of memories of the stirring words of these dear ones.

"Then following next in order is the culling from old files of twenty years ago, when all of us were that many years younger, reminding us of past activities and things in which our interests were greatest.

"Once in a while some old friends drop in on their journeys to and fro. Today we are enjoying a visit from Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Tucker. As a matter of course the chief subject of conversation is Wayne and its excellent people and the hours are replete with fond recollections. Both Mr. and Mrs. Tucker are well. They drove here from southern California. Mr. Tucker tells us that at his next birthday he will be 82. He is hale and hearty. Mrs. Tucker is also her old self in all respects and is as cheerful and happy as ever.

"Frank Owen and wife are well and are getting along as well as anyone could ask. Their daughter, Catherine, was graduated last week from the University of Oregon. The Books, Harrigfeldts and other Wayne county people who are here, are well and getting along nicely. Mrs. Brown, formerly Laura Wieland, is and has been for several years a teacher in the Ashton schools. The Merrills and Mannings, formerly of Carroll, are here and are nicely situated.

"It may be of interest to some to know that we have the greatest crop prospects we have ever had and if it continues up to harvest, there will be some fifty bushels of wheat to the acre. This country is developing into, in fact now is, Idaho's great seed potato producing section. Up to the present time it has been unable to meet the demand for production. Last year about 100 cars of this certified seed, Idaho muscis, were shipped from Ashton at $3 per hundred. This year the average planted is more than double that of last year. The planting is just about completed. This is also quite a seed pea producing section. Last year about 4,000 acres were grown in this immediate section. The peas are sown just like wheat and irrigated, harvested and threshed in like manner. They are taken to warehouses where all last winter more than fifty women and girls were employed to handpick them. Then they are shipped to distributing centers where they are put up in small packages for the small gardeners and in seamless sacks for the growers of canning peas.

"Do readers of the Herald know that Ashton is on the great salt lake to Yellowstone highway, less than seventy miles from the west entrance to this greatest of America's scenic wonders and playgrounds, and that the greatest big game hunting grounds of the United States are practically at the doors, starting in less than a five mile drive from the city limits? Ashton has splendid schools, churches and many beautiful homes, and is the city in which the great American dog derby is held on Feb. 22 each year with 5,000 to 10,000 visitors."

Heroic Defense of Wife.
 Fremont Herald: Basing my judgment entirely on his paper, I've never seen the man, I've naturally got a pretty high idea of Editor E. W. Huse of the Wayne Herald. Thus, it becomes difficult for me to realize how a man of such apparent intelligence otherwise, can generate the enthusiasm in defending an item of diet so strong and highly seasoned, yet so unseasonable just now, as mince pie. Why the dickens doesn't he turn his talent to good use and write an ode to the strawberry shortcake? If he'd do that, he'd have the Fremont Herald at his back. That late little dig from him might be the kind of cooks Editor Stone of the Hartington Herald and myself are used to, still rankle, and I want this Wayne editor to understand that the little woman who does the cooking around our house knows her stuff—and that includes making mince pies that would tempt even a Stone himself. She didn't even know how to boil water when I married her—without burning it—and I didn't even know how to build the fire over which to boil it—but she's learned a heap about the art of cooking since, including mince pies. And oh! her strawberry shortcake! If I had Brother Huse's ability to sling English (and Brother Stone's knack at throwing in the right phrases in French!) I'd start in telling exactly how good that strawberry shortcake of hers is. As it is, suffice to say je le trouve excellent. For when I contemplate our little cook's shortcake, English fails me. I realize then that I ought to be fluent in about four classic languages.

York Republican: Did it ever occur to you that all the services that make a community are free? And likewise did it ever occur that the elements that make up a nation's character or a happy life are free? There are some things so precious they cannot be bought with money, and when they become that valuable they are free to all who may enjoy them. When someone cites this as a commercial age and grows pessimistic over it, just cite him to the fact that it costs nothing to be a good citizen or to enjoy the immense benefits other citizens of a community have provided. Holidays. Special days, special weeks and "legal holidays" that are not generally observed, have become an abomination to business, and the district of Columbia has pioneered a reform by refusing to allow its public schools to observe any more special days or special weeks, or any other than the long honored and cherished holidays. At the rate our "legal holidays" are accumulating it is not difficult to see that it would not be a great while until all of our days were holidays. So far as our schools and our business is concerned we could get along very well without so many holidays. Half the holidays we have now are not general and are only recognized to an extent to disorganize and disrupt business, and every citizen has a feeling new and then that we are not getting out of one holiday until it is time to celebrate another. Even if they are not expensive from the standpoint of actual money, they mean a loss of time, and that is about the sad thing. Let's stick to the old time holidays we already have and quit adding to the list others that really mean nothing more than an invitation to take another day off.

Wonderfully Improved McCormick-Deering DEERING

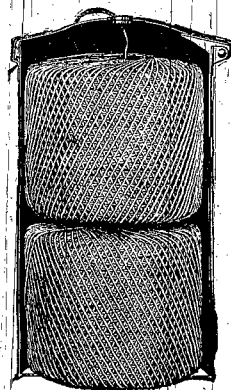

Points subject to the greatest strain have been made strong on the new McCormick-Deering binder. Ball and roller bearings make the day's work easier for both men and horses. Mud and undergrowth do not collect between the main wheel and chain. McCormick-Deering is easy to handle as necessary adjustments are few and simple.

The McCormick-Deering binder has a world-wide reputation for dependability under all conditions. The McCormick has a reputation for strength and ability to stand hard usage, while the Deering has long been recognized as the lightest draft machine. The combination of the best features of both machines in the McCormick-Deering means all the advantages of the sturdy McCormick construction with the Deering lightness.

Many Improvements Not On Old Machines

- 1. Improved bevel gears.
2. Improved ball-thrust bearing on bevel gear shaft.
3. Improved adjustment of ball-thrust bearing for meshing bevel gears.
4. Ball-thrust bearings on both ends of the main wheel hub.
5. Removable roller bearing in grain wheel.
6. Roller bearings on both ends of main elevator driving roller.
7. Improved self-aligning roller bearing.
8. Vertical bolted connections between main frame and platform.
9. Improved connection between platform and elevator frame.
10. Better bracing for outside reel support.
11. More space between main wheel and main drive chain, eliminating accumulation of dirt and undergrowth.
12. Better platform canvas adjusting device.
13. Controlling levers easier to reach and operate.
14. Wider range of adjustments on reel.
15. Choice of either McCormick or Deering binder attachments.

Describes Trip To West Coast

Prof. E. J. Hunter Writes of Experiences Enroute to Southern California.

Prof. E. J. Hunter, who is studying at the University of California in Los Angeles this summer, taking special work in architecture, writes from Long Beach, June 21 as follows:

"Ten days in this land of perpetual sunshine and opportunity to double your money (according to real estate agents) is not enough to justify passing judgment on anything. So this line is only a brief account of what the Hunters gazed upon on the way to this southwest corner of the U. S. A."

"Leaving Wayne, we headed toward Norfolk and Columbus, reaching Kearney the first day. Two days here with relatives saw us on our way west, and gradually we found ourselves entering the semi-arid western plateau of Nebraska and Colorado. Reshding Denver, we spent the next two days visiting places in the city rather than the mountains. We visited the parks, the capitol building and the museum. Here we spent a few happy hours with the Coateses. Mr. Crabtree was formerly coach of Wayne high."

"Now south to Colorado Springs we visited the Garden of the Gods and Pike's Peak. We went on then to Pueblo, where a short trip to Fowler found us with an aunt and uncle that I had not seen for thirty years. Here Jean and Marcella really enjoyed country life and Jean claims to know how to irrigate. Turning south here we started to experience our first mountain passes at Trinidad and our first Indian and Mexican habitations, desert land and long stretches of barren wastes, no vegetation, and absolutely no sign of prosperity. In fact, I did not see three car loads of cattle from Pueblo to Los Angeles, and the hog has no relative out here. In fact, he is so scarce in the market that ham and bacon are almost double the price they are in Wayne."

"Santa Fe held our interest for two days. Here we visited the oldest church and house in the United States, standing on the very spot that in the past echoed with the clang of Spanish arms. One wonders if part of this country has really advanced, or if the Pueblo Indians of those days had not mastered the situation best. South of Santa Fe and Albuquerque, where once a dense population thrived, today is the poorest cultivated and managed irrigated country that I have ever seen."

"From Socorro, New Mexico, we started west. Here is where I wished the students of geology could be along, for it ever the old earth has preserved a record of the millions of years of its past, it is between Socorro and Springville, volcanic cones, lava flows, petrified forests and painted deserts, for miles and miles, nothing but a graveled highway between little hamlets around an oil station or water tank of the Santa Fe railway. Nearing Flagstaff, we enter one of the national forests, but saw no heavy timber. In fact, there is no timber as we usually think of it, left here. A hundred years of careful watching against fire and they will cut another crop."

"At Flagstaff, Arizona, we went north to the grandest of sights, the Grand Canyon of Arizona. Words don't picture, and pictures don't tell. You look into one of the most fantastic carvings of water and wind through thousands of feet of yellow and red sandstone. Thirteen miles are between the upper rims of the canyon and thousands of feet separate you from the river bed below. This grand spectacle of nature's handiwork preserved as a national park will some day be more easily reached, and all will have to see it to believe that such is really possible."

"From here six hundred miles of desert and mountain passes lay before me, and with an almost fearful dread I gripped the wheel of the Hudson. I struck the unusual, as the first day it rained a good share of the time, and that night I was on the very edge of the Mojave desert at Needles, California. Starting at 3:20 in the morning we crossed the worst of the pictured-impossible road before 9 o'clock and that night pulled into the city of the golden west, Los Angeles. A week about the city visiting all the large schools and sketching dormitories, spending a day with Professor Coleman's, McEachens, and Mrs. Hickman, with Catalina Island, Hollywood Bowl, and Universal City, found us willing to rest a day while Marcella and Jean enjoyed the water here at Long Beach. The Pacific ocean tumbling in within a hundred feet of the sea side cottages, the screech of the whistles sounding the warnings as the ocean freighters pull in and out of this great harbor like west of us, make a land lubber like me realize that each of us has a niche to fill, and mine is in Nebraska.

"The next two months will find me slowly working north visiting all the points of interest and all the big schools and parks. I hope to store away the very thing you will want to ask me about, and a million times what I can write you."

"This is a great life, and the family join with me in wishing you all were put here with us."

Let all the churches get together for this service. How fine it is to see a whole family together in church. It's an inspiration to see a whole family unite with the church at one time. We welcome the Bertrand family to our fellowship.

First Methodist Episcopal Church. (Rev. Lewis F. Townsend, pastor) 10:00 a. m., Church school, Carl E. Wright, superintendent. A little more sleep, a little more slumber may be all right but it is a better thing to meet early with others for a careful study of the world's greatest book. 11:00 a. m., Morning worship. This is our regular communion Sunday. 7:00 p. m., The Epworth Leagues will meet in their accustomed places. 8:00 p. m., Union service in the Methodist church. Church of Christ. (Rev. Gerald G. Bentley, Pastor) 10:00 a. m., Bible school. Next Lord's day marks the beginning of the second year in our present location. We are looking forward to a record breaking attendance both in bible school and preaching services. It is possible for us to more than double our attendance by July 4, 1928. To do this each one present on that day must be present next Lord's day and bring someone along.

11:00 a. m., Communion service. The sermon by the pastor will be in keeping with the season, "Have You Signed Your Declaration of Independence?" There will be special music to fit the thought of the sermon.

7:00 p. m., Christian Endeavor. All are invited to attend. 8:00 p. m., Evening service. The sermon and song service will be evangelistic in character on the topic, "In Judgment." You are urged to attend the evening services.

10:00 a. m., Monday, July 4, the bible school is going to have a picnic at the Amos Beckenhauer ranch northeast of town. The grove is being prepared for the occasion, making an ideal place for a lasting good time together. All friends are invited to come, bring your lunch and enjoy the day with us. We will leave the church about 10:00 a. m. There will be transportation for all who cannot furnish their own. 8:00 p. m., Tuesday, monthly board meeting. All members are requested to be present as there are urgent matters to be completed. 8:00 p. m., Wednesday, regular prayer meeting. These meetings are the life of the church. The evangelistic campaign depends largely upon the result of next Wednesday evening's service which will probably be the last one before the campaign opens. Come and do your part toward the success of the meeting.

Baptist Church. (Rev. A. C. Dornung, pastor) Sunday school attendance last Sunday was very good. Record in fact. Let us keep growing in numbers and efficiency. Classes for all. Sunday morning the new quarter begins; get in on the new lessons from the start. Morning service at 11 o'clock.
