Old Settlers In Annual Reunion

Will Gather at Winside Next Week Thursday for Program of Entertainment.

Have Street Parade

Address, Baseball Game, Drum Corps and Beery Dance Are Other Features.

Wayne county annual old settlers reunion will be held in Winside next Thursday, August 25, and an interesting program of entertainment is being arranged for the entire day. Street parade is scheduled for 10 a. m. Music will be furnished by a twenty-five piece concert band. An address will be given by a prominent speaker. There will be baseball, bowery dance, exhibition by drum corps and minor sports. The downtown park and other grounds of Winside are open for guests, and lemonade will be free.

The American Legion drum corps of Valley, Nebr., one of the best organizations of its kind in the state, will furnish free entertainments. This was a feature attraction at the West Point Fourth of July program, and is different from the ordinary.

The Gilkerson Union Giants, a colored baseball team of Spring Valley, Ill., will meet Winside in a game at 2:30. The visiting team is declared to be the fastest colored team on the road, having had victories over the stockyards team of Sioux City, the House of David team of Le Mars, Iowa, and All Stars of Sioux City. This is their first appearance in Nebraska, and Winside contracted the engagement several months ago especially for this occasion. This club last year won 117 games and lost but twenty-two.

The American Legion sponsors a bowery dance in the evening and has secured the Jazz Classic orchestra of Omaha, musicians who broadcast from KOIL, Council Bluffs, frequently. The Legion men are planning to build a good floor for the dance.

Dormitory To Have New Sloping Roof

New sloping roof which is being placed on Terrace hall at the Wayne State Teachers College is nearing completion. The roof has previously been flat. The new one will be a better protection.

WORK OF PAVING BUSINESS ALLEYS NOW UNDER WAY

The most disturbed place in town this week is the alley adjacent to the Herald office. The city is preparing to pave the ground, and the kind of cars used in hauling out the dirt prevents any possible suspicion of secrecy in handling the work. Alleys in two neighboring downtown blocks are to be paved, and then, lifted out of the mud, the alleys will be on a par with the streets. When John S. Lewis put up the building occupied by the Golden Rule store, he built a place for his harness shop on an alley with only an alley entrance. His confidence in the coming popularity of alleys is verified by the paving enterprise now in progress. When one wants to drive up to John's shop or to any other place with an alley entrance during wet weather, he will not have to plow through mud. With paved alleys, streets will be easier to keep clean, and when a northern or some other kind of wind comes along, the alleys will not supply the agitated air with dust, possibly laden with hold, bad disease germs.

MORE SAFEGUARDS MORE MOTORISTS MORE ACCIDENTS

WHILE safeguards against automobile accidents have been increased, the number of accidents multiplies, due no doubt to the greater number on the road with no diminution in number of reckless drivers. In the cities animated signs tell pedestrians when to move and when to stop. In the country, numerous signs give warning of approaching curves and sharp turns, cross roads and other dangers. But more cars are coming into use, and more new drivers are trying their hands. Additions to the army of motorists have heard of automobile tragedies, but the temptation to speed is often too great to resist. The likelihood of a term in a hospital or administration of the last, sad rites, following fast driving does not deter the reckless motorist who is looking for a thrill. Thus, the number of accidents grows, and the demand for the services of hospitals and undertakers increases.

Are Injured In Auto Accident

Mrs. Mattie Cozad and Mrs. Elson Are Cut and Bruised When Car Turns Over in West.

Mrs. Mattie Cozad suffered a severe cut on the right hand and many bruises and Mrs. Elson, her mother, suffered cuts about the forehead and numerous bruises when the car in which they were driving turned turtle twice on the highway near Hillsdale, Wyo., Tuesday, August 9. The machine was badly broken and bent.

Mrs. Cozad and Mrs. Elson had driven to Wheatland, Wyo., to visit another daughter of the latter. They planned to go to Yellowstone park also and started out on Tuesday. They were thirty-five miles from Cheyenne when the car struck a gutter in the road, made by a heavy rain the night before. The job put the brakes on and turned the machine over. Glass cut Mrs. Elson's forehead and face, and a piece cut Mrs. Cozad's right thumb badly. Passers-by helped put the machine back on the road. The engine was not hurt, so Mrs. Cozad was able to drive to a nearby town for medical aid.

Mrs. Cozad and Mrs. Elson gave up their trip to the park and started home, reaching Wayne Thursday evening.

A farmer's life is a busy life and during the growing season he is so rushed growing the substantial things of life (cots, corn, and cattle) that often he feels himself forced to neglect those growing things that give only beauty in return for effort and time expended. Mrs. Walter Maas, living six miles west of Winside on the Norfolk highway, has given some of her time to growing beautiful things, even if she is a very busy woman. The Maas home faces the south and has a large veranda facing that direction. The yard is enclosed by a neat wire fence. The west part of the lawn is mostly devoted to shrubbery and grass, but it is on the side facing the rising sun that she has best expressed her artistic temperament. The central adornment of the east lawn is a combination lily pool, bird bath and fountain. It is so arranged that the fountain climaxes the bath and pool. A rockery has been built, and from the top of this is a pedestal fountain. The overflow of the fountain fills the bird bath, and the overflow of the bath keeps the water in the lily pool clear. Waterlilies blossom in the pool and the water flashes with the glint of goldfish. The pool is partially shaded by a locust and a walnut tree. The rest of this garden is quite formal. In the designed flower beds bordered by small flag lilies, bloom forget-me-not, carnas, bachelor-button, roses, phlox, chrysanthemum, rose moss, baby's breath, geranium, tiger lilies, old fashioned holly-hocks, carnations and live-forever. An informal planting of bridal wreath and snowball lends enchantment to this charming garden.

THE KNOT-HOLE No. 12 Wayne, Nebraska, Thursday, Aug. 18, 1927. Vol. 1 Hiding unsightly backgrounds can be accomplished by the erection of an ornamental wood fence. The lawn and garden may be highly developed, but without the ornamental fence to partially hide a row of garages, a clothes-line or a poorly kept alley, they would be incomplete and detract from some of the loveliness of the premises. A striking example of what an ornamental fence and lawn furniture may do can be seen at the home of F. S. Berry. The price is very reasonable. Ask us. ing complete barns of many shapes and sizes. We are very glad to loan these barn books to farmers who are interested. Ask for a copy. You need your money. And I need mine. If we both get ours it would be fine. But if you get yours and hold mine too, What in the devil Am I going to do? Hardwood flooring, you know, can be laid right over your old floors. Makes a warmer house, to say nothing of the stately and service you get. Are you planning hardwood floors this fall? Boys In Training At Military Camp

About two weeks of the Citizens Military Training camp at Fort Crook, Omaha, has been completed, and 627 boys are enrolled. Here are Perry, Burr Davis, Henry Jorgensen, Russell Trumbauer, William Lerner and Lester Krosch...

Hygienic conditions in camp are almost ideal. The boys sleep in large, well-ventilated tents on army cots. Each tent has a board floor. Bathing and lavatory facilities are provided in the permanent brick quarters of the Seventeenth Infantry.

A large staff of medical and dental officers is on duty at the post hospital and the camp infirmary. The latter is located within a few feet of the boys' quarters and provides emergency service.

The mess hall, in charge of Lt. Cleghair of the Seventeenth Infantry, is a center of strenuous activity from four thirty a. m. until late at night. Seventy cents a boy per day is allowed for food alone, exclusive of cooks, helpers and overhead.

The daily schedule is arranged to alternate periods of physical activity with those of lecture periods so that the less sturdy boys will not be overtaxed by unaccustomed exertions.

The morale officer, Capt. Chas. Henry, Seventeenth Infantry, provides recreational and social life of the camp. Boxing and wrestling matches, movies and dances are among the activities arranged.

Iron Seats Tell A Strange Story

(By Bernard Pollard.) As one drives into the Robert Sneath homestead ten miles south and two miles east of Wakefield, the first thing to greet him is a row of five iron seats. Their silence tells a strange story.

On the eighth day of June, 1898, Mr. Sneath entertained at his homestead about forty veterans of the northern army. These men were from Wakefield, Pender and Wisner. Our story concerns only nine of these courageous veterans.

As Mr. Sneath's comrades of the iron brigade of the army of the Potomac arrived, they were personally escorted to iron seats. There were nine seats on that day of 1898, and now there are only five, a grim reminder of the passing of our "boys in blue."

No women were present. Stories and songs furnished entertainment, and Mrs. Sneath served a fine dinner. During the course of the day a good-sized fish pond, built by Mr. Sneath, was christened Lake Finnecon after the Wisner post of which Mr. Sneath was a member.

Mr. Sneath saw four of her brothers answer the call to arms and only one came home. Robert Sneath came from Pennsylvania in the fall of 1871, and in the spring of 1872 took his claim. He spent his entire life on his homestead. He died April 26, 1923, at the age of 81 years, only 2 days before the fifty-fourth anniversary of his wedding. Mrs. Sneath lives in Wakefield.

McCORMICK-DEERING

—A light draft and easy pulling machine, with six speeds to the conveyor. It will be noted that the box is braced to prevent the side from spreading.

Two Sizes and Two Types

The McCormick-Deering is primarily a tight bottom or drag conveyor or manure spreader and this type is the one almost universally used. However, it also can be supplied with an open bottom and with a full slatted apron conveyor.

Both types are made in two sizes. Under ordinary conditions the No. 1, made for two horses, will carry from fifty to sixty bushels, and the No. 2, made for three horses, will carry from sixty-five to seventy-five bushels when loaded to a height of twenty-six inches. The box can be loaded to the top of the arch, thirty-four inches high. The seat is hinged and can be folded over in front of the box when loading.

McCormick-Deering Weber Wagons

McCormick-Deering Weber farm wagons which we sell, have been used on American farms for over eighty years. They are built in various sizes, and with equipment to meet the local requirements in all sections of the country. However, there is but one grade of Weber wagons—the best—the first and highest grade. If a farmer is shown that the Weber wagon, by reason of the use of the highest grade materials, backed by an organization of wagon makers whose only object is to make the best wagons, and still further reinforced by the patented swivel reach coupling and the patented malleable iron fifth wheel, is really the good wagon we claim for it, he will have no other. The Weber is also a light draft wagon, which means that it is an easily-drawn wagon, free from undue friction. Every axle on a Weber wagon is accurately gauged for pitch and gather. This is the scientific part of the construction of a wagon and its life depends more upon this one feature than upon anything else, outside of the grade and quality of the materials used.

THE GREAT AMERICAN HOME

As you begin to buy Dry Goods, Ready to Wear and Slides for your Fall requirements you will find it good economy to come to our store and purchase these unusual values.

— Ahern's —

This season, as last, the Fur Trimmings are a very important style feature of Ladies' Coats. The more luxurious coats have generous shawl collars of rich furs such as Wolf, Fox and Ring Tail Opossum. Other good wearing, good looking furs used on the more moderately priced coats are MENDOTA, DEANER, VICI FOX and MANDEL. The coat materials are mostly BUXALON, VELVET, MIGNON, SUEBIE, among which the Bolivian weaves such as Lustrosa, Venice, Newzeala, are most favored on account of their rich silky sheen and good wearing qualities. Tweeds and mixtures are quite popular—especially when trimmed with the Raccoon or Opossum collars. In general, the coats are a little longer than the spring styles, but many of the youthful styles are still made up about knee length.

Prices vary to suit every one. Good wearing good looking coats may be had as low as $18.00, but the qualities that we think will furnish the best combination of style and wearing qualities will sell at $24.00 to $44.00. Where especially fine fur collars are desired the prices will average $59.00 to $75.00.

At our store you can choose from the best style numbers of many Eastern factories. The coats for our Special Sales are here now and many of our customers have been in and selected their winter coat from this special stock and had them laid away until they are ready to take them in September or October. Come while all these special coats are here and choose yours. We will hold it for you until you are ready for it. Now is the best time to make your selection while these hundreds of extra garments are here. You will make a nice saving on a garment bought here besides getting first choice of hundreds of coats that will soon be taken away for our Special Sales.

We were able to buy the same lines of goods at the same prices as are enjoyed by the largest chains of stores whose buyers were present and doing their fall purchasing.
