Candygrams--

In the old days of the West, stray, unbranded calves were called “mavericks”. They were without pedigree—without identity—without known value. They were just mavericks. It is different today. Calves are branded and you know what you get, and what pedigree you are getting. You also know what you get when you buy candy at Wayne Candy Kitchen, because we stand back of every piece we make and guarantee them to be pure of the purest, and nothing but the pure of the purest enter in the making of our King Kandy.

Description of Atwater Kent Products for the Season 1927-1928

Model 35 RECEIVER

Beautiful appearance, simplicity of design, sturdiness of construction are the outstanding features noted on examining the Model 35. One Dial Receiver.

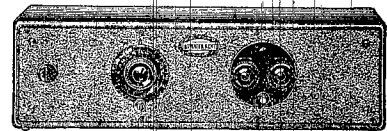

The cabinet is made to shield the electrical assembly inside. It is finished in a rich dark brown crystalline, while the Volume Control Theostat and Station Dial, which are located on the front of the set, are brown Bakelite.

This powerful little set is ideal for placing on a small side table, taboret, or the end of a large table, or it can be put on a window sill, writing desk, or bookshelf—in fact anywhere that will accommodate a row of a dozen books.

The Model 35 is a Six Tube Receiver comprising Three Stages of Radio Frequency Amplification, a Detector and Two Stages of Audio Amplification with One Station Dial. Non-radiating; non-squealing.

Crystalline Finished Cabinet. Dimensions: Length, 17 3/16 in.; Depth, 7 7/16 in.; Height, 5 1/4 in.

Part No. 8100, Model 35 Receiver, with complete Instruction Book and Log Card, but without Tubes. $65.00

Model 33 Receiver

Although somewhat smaller in size, the power and appearance of the Model 33 are almost identical with the Model 32 described above. The main difference is the addition of an antenna adjustment device which assures unusual selectivity. Adjustment is made by the use of a little knob located to the left of the Station Dial.

The Model 33 is a Six Tube Receiver comprising Three Stages of Tuned Radio Frequency Amplification, a Detector and Two Stages of Audio Frequency Amplification with One Station Dial and an Antenna Adjustment Device. Non-radiating; non-squealing.

Solid mahogany cabinet. Dimensions: Length, 21 1/8 in.; Depth, 6 5/16 in.; Height, 4 1/8 in.

Part No. 8930, Model 33 Receiver, with complete Instruction Book, Detector Cap and Log Card, but without Tubes. $90.00

Phonograph Attachments

B. Power Unit

The Atwater Kent "B" Power Unit delivers up to 135 volts and is designed for use with any model of Atwater Kent Receiving Set or other make consuming not more than 40 milliamperes. Operation is entirely automatic, due to a special built-in relay which is actuated by the "Power Supply Switch" located on your Receiving Set. Provision is also made for connecting your "A" battery and charger to the "B" Power Unit, in which case the relay also automatically starts and stops your charger. The charger should be of the trickle type for this purpose. Designed for use on a 60 cycle circuits with 110 to 115 volts.

A special rectifying tube, made in the Atwater Kent Plant is included as part of this equipment.

Part No. 8800, "B" Power Unit with Atwater Kent Rectifying Tube, and 7 feet of flexible cord with two-piece attachment plug $50.00

Model 30 Receiver

The cabinet of the Model 30 is of solid mahogany finished in rich dark brown. The front panel is of metal with a brown mat surface which brings out the sparkling sheen of the brown Bakelite dial and rheostat knobs. Name plate, battery switch, and vernier knobs are all of gold plate. All together this combination of colors and finishes gives to the Model 30 truly an air of unobtrusive elegance.

The Model 30 is a Six Tube Receiver comprising Three Stages of Radio Frequency Amplification, a Detector and Two Stages of Audio Amplification, with One Station Dial. Non-radiating; non-squealing.

Solid Mahogany Cabinet. Dimensions: Length, 19 1/2 in.; Depth, 6 5/16 in.; Height, 6 1/8 in.

Model 32 Receiver

In appearance, the Model 32 is the same as the Model 30, but is of necessity a little larger, due to additions to the electrical assembly inside. Model "E" Radio Speaker

The result of nearly three years of intensive research and laboratory work, the Atwater Kent Model "E" Radio Speaker covers the entire range of musical tones, from the lowest to the highest register, with a faithfulness and clarity which is truly a revelation.

The Model "E" Radio Speaker employs a new type of operating unit with a new method of cone suspension, which allows response to the faintest vibrations over its entire surface. These are but two of the many unusual features to be found only in the Atwater Kent Model "E" Speaker.

Base, casing and grill are of metal, finished in two tones of brown crystalline, with gold plated name plate.

Dimensions: Height over all, 18 3/4 in.; Diameter of Casing, 15 3/4 in.; Depth over all, 6 in.

Model 50 Receiver

This is a super-selective Receiving Set for use in any place located near to one or more broadcasting stations.

The tuning condenser, detector and radio amplification tubes are enclosed in special metal boxes. These shielded parts, together with the rest of the electrical assembly, are completely enclosed in metal container. This complete and careful shielding not only contributes to the super-selectivity of the Receiver, but reduces to a minimum the possibility of interference by nearby electrical devices.

The Model 50 is a Seven Tube Receiver comprising Four Stages of Radio Frequency Amplification, a Detector and Two Stages of Audio Frequency Amplification with One Station Dial and an Antenna Adjustment Device. Non-radiating; non-squealing.

Solid mahogany cabinet. Dimensions: Length, 20 3/4 in.; Depth, 13 in.; Height, 7 7/8 in.

Music of Sunny Italy Woven Into Modern Hotel Decorations

Hotel Belvedere
BEAUTIFUL APPOINTMENTS AND COMFORT

CURTIS A. HALE

There are two things the rest of the world copies from America—their hotels and their jazz. Curtis A. Hale, managing director of the Belvedere Hotel, the most efficiently operated hotel in America, is the power wizard of international fame who has perfected the efficiency methods now used by up-to-date American hotels, and copied by hotels all over the world.

Famous Engineer

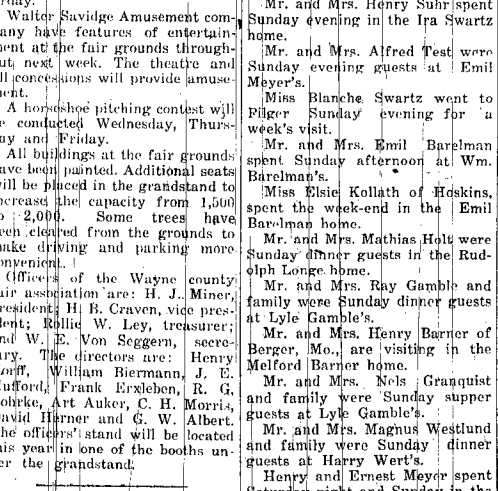

Hale, who is a consulting engineer for two of the largest chain hotel organizations in the United States, is a vivid personality. A small, dapper little man with snow white hair and keen blue eyes, he attracts interested glances the moment he appears in any gathering. There is sustained energy in his slightest movement, a personification of power, a cosmopolitan air of creative romance such as is frequently attached to men who have made a name for themselves in the adventurous field of engineering achievement.

Dish Washer

Hale's numerous friends—beginning with the door-man at the U. S. Grant Hotel in San Diego where the efficiency expert began his colorful hotel career, and running up the scale to millionaire hotel owners in every large city of the world, tell of fascinating incidents in the power chief's career. Out in San Diego, folks remember when Hale worked as a dish-washer in the U. S. Grant for nine dollars a week.

"He was a mystery around here for a while, working during the day as a dish-washer for nine dolby, he is welcomed wherever met. His personality and training fit him to step into a household and quietly to act as general manager for the family. He sends telegrams, arranges for cemetery lots, looks after flowers, secures clerymen and singers, notifies lodges and furnishes pallbearers on request. In fact he places at the disposal of the family the entire services of his funeral home.

The costs of all the vital facts of life are high, the speaker explained. It is expensive to be born, expensive to be married and it costs to die. There is much involved in a funeral today. The funeral director takes charge of many details formerly meagerly performed by neighbors. Today people demand more, and the director plans and organizes the funeral which is a detailed piece of work. He has two distinct things to sell, service and merchandise, the service being placed above all else. With the increasing demands from the public, the director has had increased overhead. He has regular items such as rent, light, heat, telephone, insurance, etc., and other merchant's have. An endless amount of equipment is also required. Assistants must be employed and he on regular salary. Aside from all this, the director furnishes 24-hour service. He must maintain a maximum of equipment and services at all times.

Funeral directors, Mr. Beckenhauer asserted, are interested in seeing that the public gets value received for every dollar spent. The public wants all the improved methods, and the cost is small compared to the comfort afforded.

Offered $125,000

Hale's ability to get at the root of things, has made him the authority in hotel efficiency methods in the same hotel, says an old associate of Hale's. He learned later that he had given up a $6,000 a year job to take one washing dishes so that he might learn the hotel business from the sink to the ceiling.

The Belvedere

The Belvedere is a revelation in comfortable apartment hotels. A room in this new hotel is like a spacious living room; at night the development becomes a comfortable bed a foyer, a gleaming tile bath-room, a large closet and a serving pantry makes the apartment a complete home in itself. Lounges have been made attractive places to entertain friends.

"The Belvedere apartment is as harmoniously keyed as a color organ.

"Cherie-Berie-Be"

"As a matter of actual fact," explained Mr. Hale, "I did get my idea for the tapstrey coverings from a new Italian waltz song 'Cherie-Berie-Be.' Both the music and words have been woven into my decorative schemes."

"Cherie-Berie-Be, love is calling me," Hale waxes poetic during the day as a dish-washer for nine dol-

Editor Describes Conditions Abroad

Will O. Jones who is touring Europe with a group of American journalists, writes as follows for the Lincoln Journal of which he is editor:

En Route in August: The people of South Germany often call attention to the coldness of Prussia and the stiffness of life in Berlin compared with the softer aspects of existence in the southern regions. We felt the difference in a marked degree, partially because there is a real change of climate and of scenery in a run of a few hours, and partly because we left the German capital on a dreary, rainy morning and reached the Elbe valley when its beauties were heightened by sunshine and high sailing clouds.

Such weather conditions are as stable enough to go under the head of climate undoubtedly have a great deal to do with political history. When we passed out of the city and gently rolling land of the north and into the scenic satisfactions of the south—and especially when we experienced the unusual beauties of Dresden—we began to understand some of the allusions to German unity made to us in the special lectures we had secured in the school of politics at Berlin.

About four years ago the German empire was about to split up into its individual states. Only the Dawes plan saved it, according to one of these lectures. Southern Germany never did like Prussian methods and remained only partially content with a place in the empire. Economic advantage is the only thing that will finally keep people together under such circumstances. Make it to the advantage of different folks to live under the same flag and they will manage to do it, as the English and Scotch have done in spite of something that seems from the outside to be mutual dislike. The real problem here in central Europe is to get the people together in units so that their trade and industry will match and be profitable all around. Leave it to them under President Wilson's ideas and they are likely to herd off according to racial, religious and historical prejudices and likes and not to suit the physical well being that in the end will prove almost a controlling factor.

Once more we are spending three quarters of a day on a fast train. We are becoming accustomed to the compartment system and can judge its advantages and defects more deliberately. Personally I find these cars more tiring on a long journey than a Pullman. Having a car reserved always for our party we have escaped the scramble of finding places and the calamity of being herded into small spaces with unpleasant people. But to sit in one position, with no chance to stretch your legs or deposit your feet on the opposite cushion, becomes tiring after a few hours. To be sure, if you have a corridor it gives a good opportunity to stand up and visit the occupants of other compartments through the door. The absence of drinking water and of cleanly sanitary appliances must count heavily against the European cars as we have seen them, and we have now used the best through trains on the continent.

Every country develops its own means as if they were going to a fire. Get on a diner and they will ponder over the bill of fare and dawdle over the meal, killing just as much time as possible in the process. According to my scientific observations Europeans will spend an average of an hour imbibing one glass of beer on a side-walk cafe. Three hours is about right for a real banquet for them in a hotel. Get them on a train and they revert at once to American speed. They fill the car with diners, in the orderly fashion of assigning each person a seat in advance. Then when they are seated the waiters begin throwing a table d'hote dinner at them with the skill of trained jugglers. A great clamor arises. People shout for wine and water, and talk rapidly between bites. The light car dances over the rails and rocks around sharp curves. You are lucky if you don't get a thrush of soup down your neck. You don't always get a finger bowl at the hands of a smiling and attentive waiter. Instead collector comes around with a basket of coins and adds yours to his pile. He charges for the mineral water and for the coffee and sometimes suggests that the sun you are counting out for the tip isn't quite dignified. Still, I hold that we could adopt the reserved seat and the fixed price meal, with profit.

The greatest differences between the environs of large cities in Germany and America is that they have no straggling little houses on additions far out in the country. Until recently urban dwellers here have lived in a few rooms in large buildings of about five stories in height. These imposing blocks march right out to the wheat fields and don't go any farther until the pressure of the population, requires a new street to be opened. In recent years the government of cities and states have combined with private capital to increase the housing all over Germany. We saw at Potsdam a few rows of new detached houses, each accommodating two or three families. More often they will make the improvement take the form of three or four or even five story buildings two or three hundred feet long and forty of fifty feet wide, standing back in the fields, with open ground all around. A working man who receives forty marks, or ten dollars a week, is supposed to pay about fifteen dollars a month for his rent.

The vacant ground is often made into small allotments for the house-holders to use as gardens. During the war large tracts were cut up into tiny gardens and given to the city workmen. We saw numbers of these all over Berlin. Many more were seen all day long from the train. They build a hut on most of the plots, just a little shelter for tools, with a table and a chair or two and perhaps room for a pallet on the floor. The worker or who can't afford to go to a lake or a regular garden will repair to his own place for the "week-end," and feel quite happy about it. These gardens reveal brilliant flowers and quite a lot of sturdy vegetables. They have become one of the minor sights of almost every city we have passed in Germany.

Prague, Czechoslovakia in August. The thrill of this strenuous and eventful journey came with the news of the world's republics. Even those who had read the history of Bohemia and knew something about the physical aspects of the ancient kingdom and its historic capital were hardly prepared for the beauty of the mountain rim through which we passed, the smiling hills and fields of the great central bowl that makes tip the greater part of the country, and finally the stunning view of castles and ancient palaces, crowned by the cathedral, as we crossed the Vltava river on a bridge five hundred years old for a climb part way up the hill for a formal call upon the American minister.

When the new republic was established at the close of the war it had a capital ready to hand, a city of about three quarters of a million people, a place full of the traditions of the race, exemplifying its best culture, and equipped with an imposing array of old and noble buildings. It is true that three hundred years of Austrian neglect left the city wrinkled and aged and run down at the heel. Now the Czechs are planning and working to restore the ancient glories of the place. In a few years they hope to make Prague one of the most beautiful and attractive of the world capitals, a place that will be placed as a matter of course upon the itinerary of every world traveler.

To Americans the entry into Prague seems almost dramatic. The approach is over sweeps of rolling hills, reminding one of the surroundings of Denver or of Calgary in Canada, where the climate discourages heavy tree growth. The train comes into the President Wilson station. There is a special apartment of quiet elegance where delegations from abroad are welcomed. Carpeted corridors lead out to the taxis which stand up in Hoover street. Within sight is the new Wilson hotel, facing the park that is soon to receive a monument to President Wilson. Here is one country in Europe that owes us money, and is not rubbing the names of Americans from its streets and boulevards. The head of the welcoming delegation carries a small American flag. He puts it on the pilot car of a fleet of automobiles and while it is there all traffic rules in the republic may be violated with impunity. The program, made up and official-ly announced by the minister of foreign affairs, includes meeting large numbers of people as seeing as many of the sights as we are able to do in a visit of three days.

It falls to me to say a few sentences on laying a wreath upon the tomb of the unknown soldier now in a chapel in the old city hall. They post me tactfully on what not to say. No, I had better not refer to the Bohemians in America who did such a service to our army. Praise them as much as they deserve, but call them Czechs, or better yet, Czechoslovakians. I wonder what they would do to a man who would use the latter name at Wilber or Crete or Wahoo, but dutifully do as directed. I must not speak of the Czechs alone. The Slovaks must come in every time and on equal terms. From which it is fair to conclude that they have some politics here as well as in France and England and America.

Minister Einstein tells us all about it in a little informal talk at the famous old palace which has become the property of the United States. He takes a map and shows us how the republic was created with old Bohemia as a basis, and pieces of Hungary and other countries added to make a long and narrow country of about fifteen million Germans and some other races and tongues. There is enough variety in physical conditions to form the base of a strong industrial life. There is timber and coal and iron. The people are hard working. They are great artisans in glass and china textiles. All these differences of physical characteristics and speech and temperament make it necessary for the leaders to walk warily while the republic is being established. It is making remarkable progress. This was the first of the lesser nations to stabilize its currency. Indeed it has a record in that respect to be envied by the great nations, for the value of the crowns has varied hardly a hair during the last five years. We look over the palace which is the pioneer work what American travelers hope will be a long list of creditable embassy buildings in different parts of the world. Your car passes from a gay street through a gateway leading into a large court, passing under the arch to let you light and climb a heavy stone stair to the offices. These palaces are unlike any living rooms of our time and we find them hard to describe. They have large and high apartments with ornaments in plaster or stone. The minister has a suite of offices that must give a stranger a good idea of the dignity of the government of the United States. If your call is social, or on a receiving day, you pass into tastefully furnished apartments, finally landing in a wonderful garden, the rear portion of which mounts for a considerable distance up the hill near which the president's castle and the cathedral are enthroned. The minister and his wife receive in the garden. If the weather is threatening, as it has been doing all summer they say, the tea table is set in a large apartment, inside and the guests scramble for tea and cakes just as they do elsewhere.

We go up the steep way to the castle of the president, and look down on the river and the gray old city and its "hundred golden towers." The plains in the background, the river at our feet with its old bridges and the masses of the city proper form a picture that holds us spellbound. Why must we leave day after tomorrow? A week wouldn't be long enough. How does Prague happen to have so many castles? They are seen all over the place. A young Czech enlightens us. "You know that when the czar of all the Russias wanted to build St. Petersburg he issued a decree that no noble family could build a home in Russia anywhere without first building a palace at the capital. That forced the building of St. Petersburg. In the old days, when all of these countries were owned by a few families it was the custom, how established I know not, to build a palace in Prague. There are more than one hundred of them still existing. Perhaps two hundred. Those times passed after the battle of White Mountain, which ruined ancient Bohemia, but the palaces still remain."

Office Notes.

The assistant in the superintendent's office is Esther Thies.

A number of new books have been ordered this year. In the Latin department new texts, "Second Latin Reader" by Ullman and Henry, have been received. New physics books, "Essentials of Modern Physics," by Dull, are in active use in the science department. A new series of readers, "Every Day Reading" by Pearson and Hunt, has been ordered for the fourth, fifth and sixth grades. Health readers, written by Andreas and Evans, are also new in the grades this year. In the music department, new books, "Music Education Series," by Giddings have been ordered.

The junior play will be given during the latter part of October. The operetta, "Lass of Limerick Town," will be given the latter part of November.

There is no 8 A class this year because there are only two or three pupils, and it would be unnecessary to have the services of one teacher for so few students. These pupils are taking ninth grade work, and will make up the eighth grade work next semester. The high school treasury shows a deficit of about $35 at the beginning of the school year. This deficit will be made up by money brought in by the operetta and junior and senior plays.

Music Notes.

Thirty girls have been enrolled for glee club work under the direction of Miss Randolph. The sopranos are as follows: Phyllis Auker, Dorothy Evans, Evelyn Felber, Helen Hanson, Ina Hansen, Alice Beckenhauer, Gladys Haider, Evelyn Heikes, Kathryn Kemp, Lucille Bradford, Retta McIntyre, Mary Norton, Letha Porterfield, Grace Evans, Mary Esth Perdue, Geneva Platt, Lohr Pierson, Flora Rhoades, Marie Sund and Zola Wilson.

The altos are as follows: Mildred Bonawitz, Prudence Bush, Natalie Cartwright, Margaret Fenske, Dorothy Gildersleeve, Helen Hensgar, Vivian Huilbuit, Marion Hansen, Alma Martin, Ethel Quigley, Ruby Surber, Rhea Schmiedekemp, Gretchen Teckhaus, Myrtle Wallace and Ilo Zelmer.

A boys' glee club is now being organized. Voice tests will be given this week. The grade music enrollment is 160 pupils. This class will give an operetta the latter part of the year.

Commercial Notes.

The beginning classes in typewriting and shorthand are progressing very well. Shorthand is a new subject introduced this year. All pupils taking shorthand must take typewriting to meet the requirements of a business office.

High School Band News.

The high school band began rehearsals Monday, September 19, at 4 o'clock. Private lessons will be given the same as last year. A banquet was given Wednesday evening, September 14, at 6 o'clock at the high school in honor of the director, Prof. F. C. Reed and the band, by the mothers of the band members. Supt. T. S.

Hook acted as toastmaster. Toasts were given by Prof. Reed, Kathryn Lou Davis, Gerald Dennis, Herman Eichhoff, Stanley McChesney and Bernard Kay.

The Wayne band will play at the Wayne county fair September 29 to October 2.

Assembly News.

Students enrolled in the high school number 175. Fifty of these are rural students.

Dorothy Davis played the assembly march the first week of school, and Margaret Fenske played last week. Maxine Rhoades plays the march this week.

At a special convocation period the trophy cup and honor ribbons which were won by the band at the state fair were presented to the high school by Supt. T. S. Hook. Mr. Allis Pollard accepted the cup in behalf of the school.

Enrollment cards for the high school were filled out by the students last Thursday.

Senior Presentation.

The class of 1927 presented the high school with the class picture last week Tuesday. Bernard Pollard was chairman. The program, a piano solo by Crystal Dragon, a vocal solo by Louise Rickabaugh, a talk by Lucille Noakes and an accordion solo by Walter Reed, was fittingly followed by the presentation. The picture was accepted by Mrs. Pollard in behalf of the school. This is the seventh picture to be hung in the high school corridor.

Cheer Leaders Chosen.

A special election for the choosing of high school cheer leaders was held last Thursday. As a result of the voting, Maxine Rhoades, senior, and Fred Davis, junior, will serve as cheer leaders. Plans for a pep organization are now under way.

First drills using formations A and B were worked out last Thursday afternoon.

Twelfth Grade.

The twelfth grade newswriting class has charge of the high school column in the local papers. Students act as reporters and interview faculty members and class officers for news. The class members take turns serving as editor-in-chief of the column.

The United States history class has finished the study of explorations and is now studying colonization. A make-up test, for the benefit of the band members of the class, was given Friday.

Junior Notes.

The economic class is studying the unit of consumption of economic goods. The work following this will take up supply and demand, value and price, and their relationship to each other. Considerable thought questions, oral work and quizzes make up the recitation. Once a week the pupils bring current events to class concerning text book questions.

At present the English class is studying the history of English literature. The life of Chaucer and his prologue to the "Canterbury Tales" has been studied the past week.

Book report lists have been handed out. Numerous magazines are used for oral English work Wednesday of each week.

Sophomore Notes.

The ancient history classes have finished the study of the stone age. They are now taking up the ancient civilization of Arabia, Babylonia and Assyria, and what it contributed to our civilization.

Freshman Notes.

Fifty-five freshmen have enrolled for beginning Latin classes. Friday they had their first written review on the first declension.

Seventh Grade Notes.

Fred Gross, Robert Kingston and Chelsea Basler are three new students in the seventh grade.

Robert Ross was absent Monday last week to attend his brother's wedding.

Eighth Grade News.

The eighth A class has been eliminated from the high school schedule this semester because of transfers, removals and failures. Only two pupils registered at the beginning of the school year to enter this class. It was a mid-year class which is usually small. These pupils were placed in other classes best fitted for them, with special reservations. They will make up their subjects later.

Sixth Grade News.

There are twenty-eight students enrolled in the sixth grade this year. A health contest has been started. This contest is to see that the students get the proper number of hours of sleep, keep finger nails clean and promote general good health. The boys are contesting against the girls. If each boy reports each morning that he has done all he is supposed to, he receives one point. The side having the highest number of points at the end of the six weeks wins the contest and wins a prize of some sort, probably a party.

The sixth grade will exhibit art, booklets and penmanship papers which were made by last year's students.

Fifth Grade News.

Twenty-two pupils enrolled in the fifth grade this year. Eleven are in the A division and eleven in the B division. There are also three new pupils, Kermit Clawson, Harry Cook and Esther Zilmer.

The following students were absent a half day this week: Grant Miller, Margaret Dimmick, Van Bradford and Lucile Kingdon.

The class dramatized a story for English work which was given in the second grade room, with the second grade as an audience, Thursday afternoon, September 15.

Most of the children are taking part in the pageant to be given at the Wayne county fair this year. Art work and posters will make up the exhibit for the fair.

The class is making a colored poster to add to those which have already been completed.

Former Residents Return From West

Laurel Advocate, Sept. 14.—Mr. and Mrs. Henry Preston returned home last Friday from a three week's trip to the Colorado mountains. They first went to Oakland where they picked up Mrs. Preston's sister, Mrs. Arthur Weaver, and husband. Leaving Oakland they drove 270 miles the first day, camping out the first night. They visited Mr. Weaver's sister at Huxton, Colorado, and then went to Colorado Springs where they spent a day taking in the sights. From there they went to visit her brother, Oscar Young, who has a cottage at Palmer Lake. There they stopped almost a week and then went to the Denver home of Mr. Young. They took several mountain trips from Denver. They camped out one night at Echo lake. Mrs. Preston stood the altitude in fine shape but it bothered Henry some. On the return trip they stopped at Haxton and Holdegre to visit relatives and stopped at Lincoln one day to visit their son Harold and take in the state fair. From Lincoln they went to Oakland and were accompanied home by Mr. and Mrs. Weaver, who visited over night with them, returning to Oakland Saturday.

Decayed Teeth

There are only a few certainties in this world. One of them is that a small decay in a tooth will become a large one, and that the tooth will be finally lost as a result of decay.

Another is that good dentistry can save it, if the Dentist is given the opportunity to find and fill the little cavity before it becomes a large one. Even then there is still hopes it may still be restored by proper filling.

Wonderful Farm Machinery-- FAMOUS McCORMICK-DEERING LINES

We have McCormick-Deering machines in stock and will have them on exhibition at the Wayne county fair next week. See these machines at the fair and note the distinct advantages they offer.

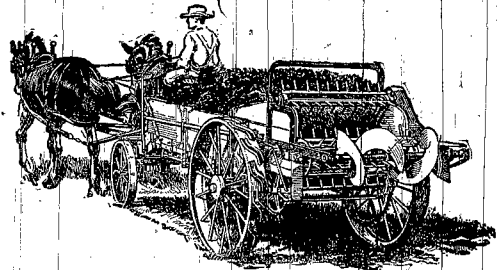

An Investment In Power

Owners everywhere are considering McCormick-Deering tractors an investment in power—an investment that is paying regular dividends by making it possible for one man to do more, to do it easier, and to do it better. In other words, by materially reducing the cost of production, McCormick-Deering tractors are widening the range of profit and making farming more pleasant.

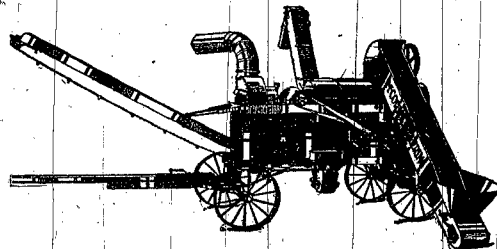

McCormick-Deering P & O Little Wonder TRACTOR PLOW

The No. 2 Little Wonder combines every feature essential to good plowing with a mechanical design which puts plenty of strength where it is needed yet produces a plow that is very light in draft and as light in weight as it is possible to build a good tractor plow. It is all plow—there is no dead weight.

Frequent Spreading Enriches the Soil, Feeds the Crops, Increases the Yield, Makes Land More Valuable.

A McCormick-Deering spreader saves time, lessens labor, and does the work more efficiently than is possible by hand.

Shell Before You Sell

When you own a McCormick-Deering sheller and shell your corn before you sell it, you can be sure of receiving payment for all the corn, and you have the cobs left for fuel.

You can haul more bushels of shelled corn per load, and as a result move your crop to market in less time. The economy in this is very evident.

It also pays to do your shelling for seed and feed. You can shell just when you want to, and you put the shelling profit into your own pocket. No matter what your shelling needs may be, you can find the right equipment in the McCormick-Deering line. The small McCormick-Deering shellers are ideal for shelling corn for seed and feed and will deliver the cobs in good condition for fuel. The larger shellers are well adapted to custom work as well as individual use, and will easily pay for themselves with what they save on your own crop and by shelling for neighbors.

Four-Cylinder Power Plant
The Standard in Harvester Design.

All McCormick-Deering tractors—10-20, 15-30 and Farmall—have the modern power plant, a fully enclosed, heavy-duty 4-cylinder engine proved by our many years' of farm power development to be the most practical power plant for the tractor. We began a quarter-century ago with a 1-cylinder design, progressed to the 2-cylinder types, and outgrew the 2-cylinder period just as the automobile has done.

Our 4-cylinder tractors give the farmer liberal power, steady running, and wonderfully flexible, easy operation not to be obtained by other types. Vibration and surplus weight are reduced to the minimum, parts are properly balanced, all wearing parts are replaceable, and long life is assured the tractor. The performance of the many thousands of 4-cylinder McCormick-Deerings in every part of the country is convincing evidence of correct design.

Sandwich Galvanized Alloy Steel Portable Elevator

Ordinary black sheet steel is unsatisfactory for elevators. We use the best open hearth steel, to which is added COPPER. This COPPER-ALLOY Steel fights rust and corrosion. We further treat it with heavy GALVANIZING insuring much longer life than ever before attained by steel elevators.

FUTURE NEEDS

Talk to us about your future needs in the way of tanks, pumps, windmills, gas engines, corn planters, mowers and other machines. We will be glad to show you.

See us for anything you may need in farm equipment. You will receive prompt and courteous treatment.

Great Labor-Saving Farmall

CULTIVATING CORN. The Farmall cultivates two rows at a time. One man can cultivate 15 to 25 acres a day, which is doing the work of two or three men and four to six horses. The Farmall has ample power to pull two additional two-row cultivators. Where this equipment is available, six rows can be cultivated at a time.

PLOWING. Under average soil conditions the Farmall will plow 7 to 10 acres a day. This is equivalent to the work of three men and nine horses.

HARVESTING CORN. The Farmall furnishes steady, uniform power for pulling the corn binder or corn picker. In doing this work it saves both time and labor. A man and a boy can pick three or four times as much corn with this outfit as they can by hand.

REPAIRS

The right kind of repairs add new life to your machines. Use only genuine I. H. C. repairs for your McCormick-Deering farm operating equipment. A genuine repair part fits exactly and becomes a perfect part of the machine.

McCormick-Deering Primrose Ball-Bearing Cream Separators

When you consider that a cream separator bowl turns approximately 9,000 revolutions a minute, you realize that THE BEARINGS AND THE BOWL SPINDLE MUST BE RIGHT. The slightest wobble, vibration, or friction in these parts makes the machine turn hard and lowers its skimming efficiency. That's why the builders of the McCormick-Deering Primrose use a bowl spindle heavier than any other and mount it on friction-free ball bearings. McCormick-Deering engineers take no chances—they make your satisfaction certain!

Don't think lightly of the turning question. It is vital. You'll turn your machine twice each day, or 730 times a year. Isn't it worth while to save seven or eight thousand backaches during the life of your machine? Let us demonstrate the Primrose on your farm. No obligation.
