Tells Club Of Trip To Europe

Rev. C. F. H. Krueger Describes to Kiwanians Automobile Tour of Countries Abroad.

Visit Many Places

Journey Takes Group Over 19,000 Miles—Many Experiences of Much Interest.

Rev. C. F. H. Krueger of the St. Paul Lutheran church, addressed the Kiwanian club Monday, following the noonday luncheon, on an automobile trip which he and his wife and his brother and wife took through the United States and Europe. The party traveled about 19,000 miles in seven months, and arrived back home last December. (Starting from Denver, Colo., the four rode by car to New York, making a distance of 2,170 miles at a cost of $33.81.) They had planned to ship the car to Europe but because of special regulations, did not. They stored it in New York, sailed to Europe, and bought a second-hand machine there for $500. After completing the tour, they sold the machine for $325. They had visited Germany, France, Holland, Belgium, Switzerland and Denmark, traveling about 11,000 miles on European roads. Rev. Krueger explained that the best way to see Europe is just as they did, and he also showed that it is the most economical. The four plan a similar trip to Greece, Italy, Spain and perhaps Palestine in 1932.

See America first, is Rev. Krueger's advice. He and the others have been in most states of the country and planned an educational visit to Europe. They drove from Denver to New York, and sailed from the latter place on April 28, 1926. The ocean voyage was enjoyable.

Find Many Birds. Outstanding points in the trip through Europe were pointed out by Rev. Krueger at the Kiwanian meeting Monday. The teeming bird life of the countries was especially notable in observation. The party heard the nightingale, the queen of singers. They heard the cuckoo, they saw many swallows and nests. The stork builds its home on tops of houses, usually on a wagon wheel. The nest is three or four feet in diameter and is about three feet high. It is constructed of sticks, some of them very heavy ones, and these are weighted together with dirt. Often there are from 100 to 200 sparrow nests in a single stork nest.

Plant life in Europe is luxuriant, the speaker stated. It is similar to that of Washington and Oregon.

Best of Highways. Highways in Europe are wonderful, Rev. Krueger found. During the entire distance traveled in that continent the party did not encounter a foot of dirt road. The highways are paved or surfaced in other manners. Belgium uses cobblestone roads which are smoothed down nicely. Holland has most of its roads paved with brick. Germany uses what is called chaussee roads. These are made with a bed of crushed rock which is rolled gravel is added and the road is rolled again. In several of the countries the highways are lined on either side with fruit trees. Germany, Denmark and Holland also use shade trees in this manner.

The typical Dutch costume is seen much in Holland. The system of canals is especially notable in this country. Canals line the streets, and a canal leads to the farm of almost every person. Small bridges which open and shut automatically are a great convenience. The canals are used for hauling produce to market. They are also used for traveling. Traffic rules in Europe were difficult for the visitors to interpret. Regjwillempand meant "for bicycles only." Pas op de tram is a warning to "look out for railroad cars." Rechts houden means "keep to the right."

Visit Historic Places. In northern Germany Rev. Krueger and party visited a house which was built over 300 years ago. The skeleton of the structure was of 8x8 timbers. Between the beams was a network of willows and these were plastered. The house was about 4x100 feet. It had a thatched roof and such roofs last from 100 to 150 years. Cattle, horses, pigs and other stock are housed in the front of the building. The second story contains grain.

Another interesting visit was a trip to the cathedral in Bremen. In the basement of the church is the lead vault. Here are corpses which have remained in perfect condition for 200 to 300 years without embalming. It is said that the atmosphere is of such nature that it dries and preserves the bodies.

In Hamburg the party visited the Hagenbeck zoo, the largest in the world.

Stopping in Denmark to see a family whom the party knew in Colorado, the men saw a sign which read "see us." Thinking they would get some "off" for (Continued on Page Five)

TOUCH OF WINTER DESCENDS FROM THE NORTHWEST

FREEZING weather was introduced this week, and people were given a touch of real winter. Contrary to predictions, no snow fell in this county, and corn husking was not interrupted excepting in parts where sleet had fallen and covered the ground and stalks. The mercury here hovered around fifteen above zero Tuesday morning. In the Chadron district three inches of snow covered the ground. It is reported that thermometers registered 2 above at Crawford and 9 above at Winner, S. D. Phillip, S. D., reported the most extreme temperature, ten below zero.

Initial Test In County Finished

First General Examination for Eradication of Tuberculosis Is Completed.

Usual Percentages

Second General Test is Being Conducted for Making This an Accredited Area.

With the completion of the testing of cattle for tuberculosis in Plum Creek precinct this week, the initial tests in Wayne county have been finished. The percentages of reactors in the county, found on first tests, range from 1.1 to 5. The average will be about 2 per cent, and this is about the same as is found in most counties.

In order that a county may be accredited after one testing, the percentage must be less than .5. The second test is required in most areas, and in some precincts this second test has been completed in Wayne county.

In Plum Creek precinct, 116 herds and 1,810 cattle were tested. There were twenty-seven reactors. The percentage of herds infected was 15.5, and the percentage of cattle infected was 1.49.

Council Sits On Tax Equalization

Meets as Board to Levy Assessments in Three Districts According to Benefits.

The Wayne city council sat as a board of equalization Tuesday to pass on the tax assessments on the paving in districts 7, 8 and 9, in Wayne, the improvement amounting to a total of $45,537.40. The board passed on district 7 at 10 a. m., district 8 at 1 p. m. and district 9 at 2 p. m. The first and third include eleven blocks of pavement in the southeast part of town, and the other district includes three and one-half blocks north of the depot. Tax assessments may be either paid in full or may be paid over a period of ten years, one-tenth being due each year. The first assessment on the entire sum may be paid before January 4, 1928. First assessments not paid by that date draw twelve per cent interest. Warrants now cover the cost and these are drawing six per cent interest.

The dimensions are 28x40, and the shop is well lighted by fourteen good sized windows. The floor is cement. Large doors on the east enable the workmen to roll the completed building from the shop, where it is raised to the truck by means of block and tackle.

Second Quarter Of Year Opens

Some New Students Enroll at the Wayne State Teachers College This Week.

To Promote Health

Miss Dora Reynolds of New York, Visits School to Promote Health Program.

Second quarter of the school year at the Wayne State Teachers College opened Monday with a few new enrollments. The college does not plan to have a separate short course this winter. Those who are busy on the farms in the fall and spring and who wish to attend school a few months, either entered this week or will enter at the opening of the second semester, on January 23.

F. G. Dade has taken charge of E. E. Melvin's classes in geography and geology at the college during the latter's illness. W. R. Hickman will take charge of basketball training.

Vacation for Thanksgiving will start next Wednesday night. The school will be dismissed for Thursday and Friday.

St. Olaf quintet of Northfield, Minn., gives a program before college students Friday.

Health Worker Here. Miss Dora Reynolds of New York City, field secretary for the National Tuberculosis association, visited the college this week Monday and Tuesday. She addressed student and faculty groups and also spoke in the training school.

She is assisting in the eradication of tuberculosis, and is aiding in getting a survey of colleges and state normals in the country. The association is interested in promoting a health program in schools. Ventilation, lighting, mental hygiene and vaccination are important agencies in eradication of disease, Miss Reynolds stated. Children who work at temperatures of 68 degrees, and suffer from colds than those in over-heated schoolrooms. Lighting is an essential aid to health. Creation of proper mental habits is also important. Fear of disease creates poison in children's minds, Miss Reynolds pointed out, and fear leads to disease. In teaching about vaccination, children are told of the discovery and the need of this. They are not led to fear any disease. They are taught to build healthy bodies for resisting all illness.

Tuberculosis becomes acute in individuals generally between the ages of 20 and 50, but the tendency toward the disease is developed before children reach adolescence, Miss Reynolds stated. The health program proposed in the schools is that of building up resistance among school children. This, it is thought, will ward off the disease.

The expectancy of life has been lengthened within the past few years, Miss Reynolds pointed out. A person at 30 was considered in middle age some years ago. Now a person does not admit he is in middle age even at 40. The lengthening of life has come in the period of youth. Health habits developed in schools are thought to be largely responsible for this lengthening of life.

Individuals in the United States eat too much sugar, Miss Reynolds asserted. They use seven times as much as people in any other country. The craving for sugar is largely a habit, the speaker stated, and health would improve if less were eaten.

Speaks to Club. Supt. E. C. Hodap of Emerson, addressed the science club at the college Monday evening. He talked on the metric system.

REMAINING LIVE POINT IS UP TO LOCAL DEALERS

THE publisher of the only newspaper in Fairmont, Neb., for forty years, has taken the stand that a county town may remain a live spot on the map notwithstanding improved roads and increased motor travel if dealers keep busy in behalf of attracting trade. The same graveled roads that take trade out of a community will bring trade into a community, and if a town stirs itself in the direction of winning business, it is certain to gain more than it loses. A dealer must make a noise and shoot off some fireworks, and let the world know that he wants trade and that he is on hand to attend to it in the most satisfactory manner. He can show the average buyer that there is no financial or other advantage in going to foreign ports to purchase supplies.

Road Graveling Shows Progress

Surfacing Wayne-Laurel Highway is Completed with Exception of Small Sector.

Improve East Road

New Steel Bridge South of Wayne is Ready for Pouring of Concrete Floor.

Graveling of the nine and one-half mile sector on the Wayne-Laurel highway has been completed with the exception of about two and one-half miles. Some gravel is on the track and will be spread on the highway. Providing weather remains warm enough to prevent freezing of gravel in this stretch within a few days.

The Wayne county sector of the Wayne-Laurel highway is to have a three-inch coat of gravel. The material is being shipped here from Fremont. When it was found impossible, because of cold weather, to complete the three-inch layer this fall, it was decided to place a layer one and one-half inches thick over the entire road and lay the other half in the spring. This first layer has been completed with the exception of the two and one-half miles mentioned. Five trucks have been working on the project.

To make a three-inch layer of gravel twenty-one feet wide on the highway requires five cars of material for 500 feet. This means that about 500 cars of gravel will be shipped to Wayne for the entire project.

For East Highway. Two cars of gravel for Waynesurfacing the highway east of Wayne have arrived from Columbus. The road will be surfaced to the first corner east on Seventh street. The project will require about seven cars. The gravel will be laid when weather is favorable.

Bridge Near Completion. The new steel bridge south of Wayne is complete with the exception of the concrete floor. This will be poured when weather is warm enough to prevent freezing. The bridge will be ready for use soon after the floor is poured.

Excavation Going Forward For Hotel

Excavation for the new hotel building to be constructed at the corner of Second and Pearl streets in Wayne is about half completed. Five feet of earth will be removed. The three-story structure will then be erected. Homer S. Seace is in charge.

The new hotel building is 71 by 92 feet and will face the south. The first floor will contain a dining room to seat 150, a room for club meetings which can be opened to enlarge the main dining room, ladies' lounge, kitchen, furnace room and employes' rooms.

On the second floor will be a lobby 28 by 40 feet. This will be a story and a half high, making the room a half-flight of stairs above the dining room and a half-flight below the sleeping rooms. It will have a high ceiling. There will be a separate waiting room for women, a shop room, two sample rooms, the manager's apartments, two apartments with kitchen and bath and seventeen sleeping rooms.

The third floor contains six large rooms with bath complete, two apartments and twenty-one sleeping rooms. All rooms in the hotel will be outside ones and this is made possible by use of a court in the center. The entire building will provide twelve rooms with bath complete, eighteen with toilet and lavatory, and the rest with lavatory.

Minister Gives Armistice Talk

Rev. W. W. Whitman of the Methodist Church, Addresses Audience Here on Friday.

Legion Has Charge

Football Game, Band Concert and Dance are Other Features Planned For Day.

Rev. W. W. Whitman, pastor of the Methodist church, addressed the gathering at the Armistice day program sponsored Friday by the Legion post in the State Normal auditorium, his subject being "Armistice Day, Its Significance." The nation had been in war before, he stated, but the closing of the World war was different and unusual because it was a world struggle and never before had American men been sent to foreign fields.

The speaker explained that it will never be known how much civilization was retarded by the war, for many inventors, artists, skilled business men and others lost their lives. Citizens meet each Armistice day to rededicate their lives to the unfinished task for which the fallen heroes gave "their full measure of devotion." "It is more difficult," stated Rev. Whitman, "to live for peace than to die for peace." The World war was a struggle to end wars. The speaker stated that a nation should be so powerful in righteousness that no other nation will dare to conflict with it. War would then end, he asserted.

Prof. W. R. Hickman, Legion post commander, presided at the program. The college quartet, Prof. A. F. Gulliver, Prof. J. G. W. Lewis, Prof. W. C. Lowrie and Rev. E. L. Corbit, sang "America" at the opening. Rev. Whitman offered invocation. Prof. W. C. Munter, Miss Margaret and Miss Marion J. Theobald played an instrumental number. Miss Doris Hoskinson and Miss Martha Markatan played a piano duet, "The Stars and Stripes Forever." The male quartet again sang.

The Wayne high school band gave a concert in the auditorium following the program. The Wayne and Wakefield high schools met in football on the State Normal gridiron following the concert, and the Wakefield team won by a score of 24 to 7.

The Legion sponsored a dance at the Colonial pavilion in the evening.

Manifestly, it is better to think without speaking than to speak without thinking. We wish to felicitate Henry Ford on his financial reputation. He has been sued for $6,000,000. Any suggestion that will make one look less like an idiot ought to be followed. Heaven knows none of us look any too well. Orderly living and a healthy body are essential to each other, and both are important aids to a strong and vigorous mind. All these safeguards are indispensable to success in this highly competitive period. Development of the Wayne business district is only consistent with the demand of a rich and growing territory. And it will take considerable improving to bring the district up to an equality with residence sections.

Don't sulk in your tent because you think the other fellow is doing better than you are doing. And if you would take the other fellow's advantages you should be willing also to suffer his disadvantages. We are waiting in breathless suspense for President Wetstone to deliver another broadside at the State Teachers College football team. Unless he has something big and terrible to offer, requiring a lot of mental toil to prepare, we think he is unnecessarily slow.

If all personal property would come trotting out the first of April to receive a fair valuation, the levy would be reduced and all taxes would be materially lowered. As it is, some values modestly shrink from appearance and are necessarily overlooked. Thus, some darry more than their share of the tax burden. And doubtless it will be so until the millennium which approaches too slowly to excite anticipation.

The next four weeks will be devoted to holiday activities and to putting the finishing touches on the old year. Besides buying comforts for winter, people will buy gifts with which to express good feeling. Founded on uniformly abundant crops, conditions are more prosperous, and buying will be more liberal. And in this connection we wish to call attention to the Wayne business district which offers wonderful opportunities for supplies and service every day of the week.

We are not inclined to believe aversion to snow is declining with feelings peculiar to associated age. If one did not have to travel through snow to accomplish certain purposes or did not have to pay in sundry ways for the privilege of being in snow, one could really enjoy it. It looks beautiful and it has a sort of magic as it whirls and drops to the ground. But it is cold and obstructive and it makes people put off things they want to do. It is the hindrance and cost that lead responsible age to frown, on snow as it falls and fills roadways and other open spaces. Fathers and sons have been getting together in banquets in different communities, and the purpose is to develop better understanding and closer unity between them. As a rule, fathers have many good points, as do also the sons, but often they drift apart through lack of proof that either is sympathetic and interested. With rare exceptions, a father has deepest affection for his son and will go almost any length to make him a credit to the family and an ornament to society. Usually sons love their fathers and wish to give them no cause for worry. But if they would more completely manifest the way they feel, the relationship would be closer and more cordial. The get-together banquets tend to bring out and emphasize underlying sentiment and thus to prevent possible coldness due to being too preoccupied by other things.

ADVANTAGES. Often the man with a salary envies what he believes the good fortune of the employer, and the latter thinks the employee enjoys distinct advantage. The man on salary works a stipulated number of hours, and when he quits, he is through for the day. When he goes home, the problems of the business with which he is employed, do not beset his hours of rest. He does not have to worry if trade is slow or collections are light. He does not have to assume responsibility for losses, and his only occasion for serious anxiety over business is when it becomes so feebly that his income is jeopardized. On the other hand, the employer is boss of his own time, though if he elects to abuse the privilege of leisure, it becomes a costly distinction. If he visits too often on long trips, he pays dearly. If he does not devote more time to his business than those who are employed to help him, he may go on the rocks with an assortment of creditors, astride his neck. In a favorable season, he may do well and be amply rewarded for his investment and industry, making up for the dull period when exudations of blood mingle with his perspiration. In truth, the employer and employee have their advantages, but the latter has enough to head off the envy of the other.

It is discovered that people are extending their days and prolonging their youthful activities. In bygone years, people who were advanced beyond fifty, seemed to dress to look old and worn out. A woman donned a bonnet and sat before the fireplace, knitting socks and bewailing the trend of the world, the while encouraging wrinkles and decrepitude. A soft chair was reserved for the man of the house as a suggestion of old age and multiplying aches. When people landed beyond fifty, it was time for them to leave productive employment and go ready for the bonnyard. Now they are only fairly started at fifty and years of greatest usefulness are ahead of them. They preserve the spirit and appearance of youth, and they enter into affairs with the zest and determination of youth. They accomplish more instead of less, and the infirmities of old age are held safely at bay. Thus, life is prolonged, and useful activities continue until the end. More people look ahead and engage less in fingering over the past. They are too busy to major in dismal broodings and melancholy forebodings.

Business. Sioux City Journal: The fear that increased farm prices might not mean prosperity for the middle west because of short crops now seems to have been groundless. Official figures on crop production show a decided improvement in the yield. Corn alone, gained 150,000,000 bushels in one month over the government estimate as of October 1, and the total is above that of last year. The corn yield for 1927 is 116,000,000 bushels more than that of 1926, and is put at 2,753,249,000 bushels.

The corn yield per acre had an average of 28.2 bushels as against 26.6 bushels last year. It is estimated also that 75.2 per cent of the corn is of merchantable quality whereas last year the figure was 72.6 per cent. So corn made the grade in a way that exceeded the expectations of the entire country. The conditions were ideal in September and October, when growing weather permitted late corn to mature.

None of this indicates, however, that corn prices must come down. Only about 4 per cent of last year's crop is on the farm, and this will prevent a heavy surplus being left on the market after domestic needs are supplied. Present prices of cattle and hogs, higher than for a long time, show the trend in price that may be expected.

As one recalls the predictions of long distance weather forecasters that a disastrous crop shortage would be experienced this year, the government report is decidedly refreshing. For all crops combined, the average yield per acre appears to be about 2.4 per cent above the average for the last 10 years. It does not look, therefore, as though a famine is in sight.

Farm prosperity may be seen as based on the fact that when all crops are considered production for 1927 is about 3 per cent below the figure of last year. Generally, the yield was smaller per acre average, and, in addition, a smaller acreage was grown.

In view of the crop production, especially of corn, and strengthened farm prices the last six months, the outlook of the middle west is better now than it has been in years. Gains of about 12 per cent in farm price levels were made this year, which put agricultural products in the class with various industrial and ahead of some others. The farm dollar consequently is worth more, whereas the state of mind in agricultural communities cannot help but be greatly improved.

FARM SUCCESS. The story of a Bohemian farmer who, starting with nothing but persevering energy, developed a princely fortune in fifty years, comes out of Saunders county. Anton Sabota is his name, and it is said he started work at $4 per month. For eight years he worked for wages that at no time exceeded $12 per month. Of 880 acres which he now owns, he inherited 160 acres from his father. He was able to buy 480 acres of his holdings during the last ten years. Besides highly improved farms, he owns stock in a bank and in an elevator and store. Largest returns came from feeding hogs and cattle. Being the father of twelve children did not hinder him from making a success of farming. On the contrary, the increased responsibility stimulated his effort. In his farm operations, it is said he follows carefully laid plans, and he keeps a detailed record of everything. He believes in developing production by maintaining highest fertility of the soil. He believes in working both his head and his muscles, and he has done both with satisfactory results for fifty years. He says solution of the farmer's problems lies in this: More business-like methods, more intensive farming and conservation of all resources. Material success did not lead this Bohemian farmer to forget education of his children who were given the advantages of both high school and college training.

It has been so extensively modified that now it may almost be said that the quest for education is more generally pursued by the sexes on an equal plane. Racially to a considerable extent staffed by Harvard professors; Columbia, Chicago is co-educational, Northwestern and many other schools of the same quality accept men and women on equality, and all the big state universities are co-educational.

It is not, then, so much a problem of education for women as it is for the continuation of the woman's college as an institution. It may be doubted, under the social and political conditions that prevail, if the perpetuation of the exclusive school is a real necessity. It will probably always exist, but its function is no longer that of providing something that can not otherwise be obtained.

These Boys and Girls. Omaha World-Herald: The latest dignity to join the avil chorus of Youth Knockers is none other than Arthur H. Shapp, president of Rotary International. The Modern Youth, he tells the national crime commission, "has neither hope of heaven nor fear of hell. He commits suicide as a part of his college course, and he and his sisters fly across the seas knowing that salt water is a sure cure for all ills. There is a dash and abandon among the youth of our land that is inspiring and terrible to contemplate."

To all of which we append a fervent and reverberating "Cw-bells!" It is strange, perhaps, that intelligence should stoop to consider such a palpable bit of nonsense, but no stranger than that a man widely accredited with intelligence should have uttered it. There is not a single new note, of course, in the whole exasperating outburst. It is as full of platitudinous as a sun perch is of bones; shot through with an appalling asynity.

To read these terrified tirades one would think that nine-tenths of the hellfire extant in the universe is concentrated in that portion of this world's population between the ages of 14 and 25. When the high school girl, books under her arm, leaves for classes in the morning the chances are she isn't going to school at all but to the nearest roadhouse to keep a date with a bootlegger. Whether she will get home at evening with any virtue left is highly conjectural, with the chances all against her. When her brother steps out at dusk for a breath of air or to look at the moon or to discuss tomorrow's football game with his chum, he probably isn't indulging in any of those comparatively respectable acts but has sneaked off to a clandestine meeting with a prostitute or a burglar.

With the assistance of a willing and slightly pornographic imagination, one could rather easily convince himself that about all our boys and girls think about these days are getting parties in a tonneau or highballs in a brothel. College has degenerated into a school for scandal in which the students sit about the dormitories brooding on whether or not to dash their young brains out against the next sex novel they meet up with. Philosophy means no more than acquiring the low-down on the hemlock-quaunting technique of Socrates and putting it to practical test as soon as possible. It is a picture as sordid and grotesque as it is nonsensical and false. Didactically do we affirm that the youth of today, far from being the Great National Menace, is something of which adult America should be distinctly proud. It is daring and audacious and fearless. It is not afraid of the truth. It is inquisitive, refuses to be placed in a mental or spiritual strait-jacket, it won't be fed on bunk. But it is upright and genuine. Foibles? Of course. Weakness, unhappily, is not confined to the aged, but neither is strength. We are not afraid to state our hopes on these boys and girls of ours. Neither are we ready to admit that the average mother would as soon see her daughter a street walker as a virtuous, womanly woman, or that the average father is uninterested as to whether his son shall grow up to be a house-breaker or a gentleman. Civilization has not yet reached the full flower of its development. Onward and upward mankind shall climb. We who seel and quake today shall go down weary to the dust and Youth—fresh, eager, indomitable Youth—shall snatch up the banner where it has fallen from our hands and advance forever "against Chaos and Old Night."

Billposting the Heavens. Lincoln Journal:—The inventor of the so-called "death ray" which must not be confused with the spark utilized by the electric chair, evidently cannot see any immediate prospects of war, the opportunity he needs to demonstrate his invention, so he has developed a peace time use for his "ray." He finds that he can put it to use posting bills in the sky. What this man, H. Grindell-Matthews proposes to do is to incorporate the principle of his "ray" in a magic lantern and flash advertisements upon the heavens at night. On a dark, cloudy night the sky would serve as a screen and even on a clear night every drifting cloud would be turned into a floating billboard telling of the supremacy of tooth paste, chewing gum, tobacco, soap or some other commodity.

"I have tested the projector exhaustively, both in Germany and England," the inventor explains, "and find that on approximately 200 nights out of the year, it may be used to cast good, readable advertisements on the sky at distances anywhere from 3000 to 12,000 feet up. These advertisements stand out brilliantly at night against a cloudy sky. But they register clearly also on starlit nights. There are different levels of temperature or moisture on clear nights which are entirely invisible in themselves but which afford a fine reflecting surface for us."

A war is still being waged against bill boards which obscure the scenery in the country near large cities. The desire to see nature's wonders is present in everyone. Those who dwell in the canyons of the cities of "topless towers" and cannot get out to see the trees and flowers still feel a joy in looking at the starlit heavens. If Mr. Grindell-Matthews succeeds in turning the night sky into a huge billboard he may find an opportunity to employ his "ray" as he originally intended it before the enraged nature lovers are placated.

Temporary Crib Bursts. Fordyce, Neb., Nov. 15.—While sitting around the supper table the Frank Heimes family was startled by a sudden crash and prolonged roar and upon making an investigation, Mr. Heimes discovered that temporary corn crib, six feet wide, 50 feet long and 14 feet high containing 2,000 bushels of corn had burst and scattered the corn over the barnyard in every direction for a distance of 15 to 20 feet.

The crib, which was made of wire to take care of the unusually heavy yield of corn in this locality and had been filled to overflowing in a short time, was as completely wrecked as though a tornado had struck it. Mr. Heimes stated that he thought the crib would be strong enough, basing his opinion on past experience, but that he failed to take into consideration that corn this year is heavier than it has been for several years. The gathering of this wrecked crib of corn would be an almost impossible task, so Mr. Heimes plans to shell the corn much earlier than usual.

Choice of Vocations. West Point, Neb., Nov. 16.—More girls named teaching as their choice of a career than any other vocation in a questionnaire given to West Point high school students by Supt. R. A. Bunney. Engineering ranked first among the boys and farming a close second. Other vocations selected by the girls were stenography, nursing and music. The boys showed greater variety in their choice of a life's work, three selecting carpentry, two each naming business, stenography, law, medicine, mechanics and taxidermy and one each choosing the shoe business, motion picture operator, teaching, ministry, forestry, pharmacy, baker, artist and aviation. Many pupils were undecided and signified no choice.

Dog Bites Two People. Ainsworth, Neb., Nov. 14.—A bull dog belonging to Mr. Lambert, an employe of the Ainsworth telephone company, became enraged while in the house, tearing up rugs and curtains and when Mrs. Lambert attempted to control the animal it bit her. She then telephoned the city marshal Roe Moore who came and attempted to get the dog out of the house and was bitten on both hands, so that blood ran. The dog was then killed and the brain sent to Lincoln for analysis to determine whether the dog had been afflicted with rabies. He had been cross for some time and had bitten several people.

Boy Hurt in Accident. Ainsworth, Neb., Nov. 14.—The injuries suffered by Bernard Sweet when the car he was driving from the Wood Lake-Ainsworth game armistice day upset, are considered serious. His neck and back were injured and it is thought that he is hurt internally. He was taken to the hospital where he was unconscious for several hours. It is understood that young Sweet and the driver of another car were racing. Sweet attempted to take a corner at too high a speed and the car turned over more than once. The other occupants of the car were not injured.

Debate Held by Club. West Point, Neb., Nov. 14.—"Resolved: That a married woman has a place in the business world," was debated by the Girls' Federated Culture club of West Point. Mrs. George Dewald, president of the club, and Mrs. J. L. Pettuson argued for the affirmative and Mrs. A. K. Krause and Mrs. Theo. Rasmus for the negative, the latter winning by a vote of the club. Both sides had made a thorough study of the subject and quoted well-known authorities.

Move Into New Building. West Point, Neb., Nov. 14.—Jacob Haeflin & Son hardware store has moved into the remodeled building on south Main street. It has a modern 44-foot front. The building was formerly known as the Krause property and had been in ruin-prone condition.

Old Land Deal Is Basis Of Judgment

Sioux City Journal, Nov. 11. Rev. J. L. Phillips, former mayor of South Sioux City and one time unsuccessful candidate for the Nebraska state senate, is $11,555 poorer in worldly goods today as the result of a verdict handed down by a jury in county court at Dakota City.

The minister-politician was accused by Ralph Peterson, his brother-in-law, of defrauding him of a considerable sum of money as the result of a land deal. The jury, after hearing the evidence presented by both sides, took just two and one-half hours to decide that the pastor was in the wrong.

The ex-pastor, however, may eventually escape the necessity of paying the judgment, as he has the right of appealing the case to the state supreme court, but as the matter now stands he owes his brother-in-law a sum of money far beyond the fondest dreams of most ministers of the gospel.

The suit was based on the sale of 40 acres of farm land two miles west of South Sioux City. Peterson testified that he engaged Rev. Mr. Phillips as his agent to dispose of the land and that the minister had turned over to him $500 as the proceeds of the sale. This was in 1912.

Peterson said that 13 years later when his wife was asked to sign a deed to the property he first began to suspect that he had not received all that was due him from the transaction.

Investigation disclosed, he said, that A. M. Shaw and Charles Haisch, of Delmont, S. D., owned the property and that they had bought it for $6,000 from Hugh Ritchie, of Sioux City.

Peterson sued for $5,450 with interest at 7 per cent from March 1, 1912, which made a total of $11,550. The jury granted his claim in full.

During his testimony, Rev. Mr. Phillips said that he first traded the 40 acres for a mortgage for $1,000 on some Leeds property. That transaction, he said, was made in Ritchie's office.

The mortgage was said to have been obtained in a trade with a man named as Mr. Paulson, whom the defendant said, he never had seen before nor since.

A short time afterward, the pastor testified, it developed that the mortgage was of no value and through negotiation an equity was obtained in some land near Highmore, S. D., supposed to be valued at $500.

The equity, it was testified, had been exchanged for 500 Armstrong washing machines and those in turn traded for an automobile in Omaha, Neb.

The minister testified that he started from Omaha with the auto but it broke down at Blair, Neb., and he was forced to leave it in a garage there. However, the garage proprietor was unable to repair the auto, it was testified, and eventually the garage man gave away the car.

Frank Warner, of Norfolk, Neb., and W. P. Warner, of Dakota City, Neb., represented Peterson in the action and Rev. Mr. Phillips was represented by George Leamer and J. J. McCarthy, of Ponca, Neb.

D. G. Evans, Homer, Neb., banker, was foreman of the jury which returned the verdict against the minister.

"It seems to me they said you could only talk with us folks, people, you know, for an hour, Christmas eve, at midnight," said the child.

The Strange Hum.

"An hour, my, that would never do. We'd never get through the questions we had saved up to ask Santa. Perhaps they let us reindeers have till daybreak because we belong to Santa. At any rate, let's go on with the story."

The child nodded, and settled himself more comfortably to listen. The Reindeer continued:

"My mate and I had eaten all the moss in one place and were thinking of looking further for a new spot, when we first heard it. It was a low hum, like a very large insect, and far, far away. We have nothing to fear in our beautiful snow covered country, because Santa has thrown magic all around it. So we felt no fear at this sound coming slowly nearer.

The Bird With Still Wings.

"My mate said it sounded like a tornado in summer, but it couldn't be that, for already our usual winter night that lasts for months had settled down, with our only light, the Dancing Flames that Santa calls Aurora Borealis.

"We listened eagerly and soon located the direction. Then it appeared over the trees like a soaring bird, with never a motion in its wings. The humming grew to a roar as it drew nearer, and we turned to the shelter of overhanging snowladen branches to watch this strange thing. We were just a little shy about being seen, you know, though we knew Santa's magic couldn't be invaded, and nothing could ever harm us.

The Tornado Bird.

"We called it the Tornado Bird because of its tremendous roar, and watched with much interest as it circled overhead and then slowly flew to earth on the level stretch of snow in front of Santa's house.

"Then a very strange thing happened. The roar died away, and out of the center of the bird, a full old man stepped carrying a heavy bag. Santa came hurrying out to meet him and took the bag.

"Oh dear me," said my mate. "I shall never be able to wait till Christmas Eve to find out all about that! I'm just fairly quivering with curiosity!"

"Well, let's go see it," I said.

Reindeers Have Dignity.

"We rambled over in the snow, nibbling at moss as we went, so as not to appear too eager. Sometimes we remember our dignity. It didn't seem to be a bird at all, now that it was down on the ground. It didn't smell like a bird to start with, nor have any feathers.

"Santa laughed when he came over with the man and found us sniffing at the bird's wings.

"Here's Thunder and Dash," he said to the man, "and oh the hard questions they'll be asking Christmas Eve. They each save up one question till just before we start out with the sleigh.

"One year, could answer easily enough. Thunder was disturbed over my name Santa Claus, because claws as she knew them didn't fit me as all. It was a corruption of Saint Nicholas, I explained, though why they ever thought I bore any resemblance to a Saint I couldn't tell.

Thunder's Wonder.

"The next year the reindeer all wanted to know what made the Gasoline pump work, and that was a hard one to answer. But I can always fall back on my magic when am cornered; so they were quite satisfied."

"Thunder nudged me. She wrinkled her nostrils and glanced toward the shed at the back of the house. 'Yes,' I said, 'the Bird does smell just like Gasoline Pump.'"

"All this while the man was busy unloading bags from the Tornado Bird. Santa asked us to help carry them to the house. They were bags of the usual Christmas letters, he said, from children all over the world. They had arrived very early on account of the flying ship.

"I never saw a ship like that," whispered Thunder to me. "You see, we have been every where in the world with Santa and we had never seen a ship like that."

The Flying Ship Rises.

"But still if Santa said it was a flying ship that would be all right, we knew, because Santa never told us a lie, though we did like to refuse in saying things were magic when he couldn't explain something."

"Later when the Bird's master had had a good dinner with Santa, he climbed in, on a sort of seat, like the kind in our big sleigh, and then he moved some sticks, and the roar started again. We dashed off to one side to watch and after sliding along on the ground a ways, the bird rose in the air, roaring all the time.

Santa Keeps His Sleigh.

"Higher and higher it sailed till it was just a tiny spot and finally it was lost in the Dancing Flames. "Santa called us, 'Another year,' he said, 'I'll be taking all the children's toys to them in just such a flying ship. How will you like that?'"

"We shook all our bells to say, no,—too many years have the children counted on Santa Claus and his reindeers, we knew."

"Did he carry out his threat?" asked the child. "The reindeer shook his bells again.

"Oh, he really couldn't go in a flying ship because ours is the only sleigh that could carry all the children's toys. You see he made disappearing bags for the toys long ago, when he needed room. And when he puts one in the back of the sleigh it just disappears until he is ready for it. So there is plenty of room for the next bag. This, she might enjoy in bed."

Here's An Attractive Dish.

"If you cannot buy just the right things for this, because your purse is already exhausted by Christmas purchases, you can always arrange an attractive tray with the dishes you have and add some little original touch—a snow man of gum drops, a toy tree, or a sprig of holly, if that is all that is available.

"If you can buy a breakfast set, and for it a cunning tray with sides made to hold magazines, you are indeed fortunate. What will you choose? Wedgewood in ivory with lavender knobs and bands? Or chintz pattern with flower knobs for handles? Or will you choose one with adorable rose buds scattered over it and flower clusters on the lids—the sugar bowl has one, the coffee and chocolate pots, the hot water pitcher and the lid to the covered dish.

Coffee by the Fire.

"While you are deciding this important question, you may remember you felt it would be so nice to have your after dinner coffee in front of the fireplace. A perfectly delightful set is waiting for you all arranged on a glass tray with silver handles. The charming coffee pot is banded with silver lustre on white. Bands of silver decorate the dainty cups and the cigarette box, which matches. A little glass compote of red candies could be added to make a little

Christmas touch with some fragrant mints.

If you are having a house party, and guests are dashing in and out on Christmas errands before the day, and afterwards about the winter sports, lunch may have to be served quite informally on the bare table with lace mats under the plates.

Spanish Glass Sets.

On a refectory table for such lunch times, the crude Spanish glass sets would seem useful and particularly appropriate. A centerpiece of fruit in a large green bowl of the bubbly glass, plates and cups of green, sturdy looking tumblers and fat red candles with silver holly tied to them would make any guest want to eat.

Then there is Christmas dinner to be considered. One can spend plenty of time on that, for it is one of the rare leisurely occasions in a busy world. All the little niceties, all the sophisticated bits of formality can be used for Christmas dinner.

Table Sets for Xmas.

A formal table of unusual dignity was set with beautiful serving plates on a bronze linen cloth with stags racing over it. Each plate had a lovely pheasant in natural colors in the center, with a border of gold on red.

The tumblers were of amber cut glass, fat and squat in shape, and stunning candelabra of crystal and bronze stood in the center with silver and gold in it. Large crystal boat-shaped bowls held fruit at either end.

A less formal setting more directly suggesting Christmas was fruit for a centerpiece—a lovely big bowl of it with large grapes tumbling over the edge. Tall, slim white candles in low green glass holders had loops of greenery tied to each pair, from candle to candle. Etched green glass plates were set in place, each with a stanning goblet on guard.

G. A. Gansko Buys Hotel In Madison

G. A. Gansko who operated the Boyd hotel in Wayne successfully for several years, purchased the Horst hotel fixtures and lease at Madison, November 7 from I. W. Barr. He took possession Tuesday. Mr. Gansko was in the hotel business in Madison during his early experience in hotel management. He left Wayne about two months ago. The Madison Star-Mail says the Horst hotel is well known to a number of older residents in this city. More than twenty-five years ago, before the present hotel building was erected, Mr. Gansko was in the employ of the Prince family who operated the hotel prior to Mrs. Horst. "The new manager is considered one of the best hotel men in the state and comes to Madison highly recommended by traveling men who have been his guests at both Wayne and Albion where he operated hotels. Until recently Mr. Gansko owned and operated a hotel at Wayne. About two months ago he sold this hotel and immediately commenced negotiations for the Horst hotel here. The new manager has two sons. Ralph is a student at the Sherwood School of Music, Chicago. James, a junior high school student, will enter school here. "With the transaction Monday, the new management comes into possession of the lease held by Mr. Barr. This lease, it is said, runs 5 years from last May and contains a clause whereby it could be renewed."

State Continues Planting Forests

Nebraska, the native state of Arbor day and the home of the Halsey nursery, one of the first forest-tree nurseries in the country, is continuing its good record of forest planting, according to reports to the Forest Service, United States Department of Agriculture. Last spring a total of 2,730,000 forest trees were planted in the state. Of these, 180,000 were distributed to farmers and private land owners for reforestation purposes under the Clarke-McNary law, which provides for cooperative distribution of forest planting stock by the states and the federal government. Two hundred thousand trees were distributed under the provisions of the Kinkaid law.

The United States Forest Service planted 1,500,000 trees on the Nebraska national forest. Commercial nurseries of Nebraska furnished 750,000 and native stock and nursery trees brought from outside the state made up approximately 100,000.

Special attention given all kinds of fillings. Dr. R. W. Casper, phone 120 and 371.

Represents County At State Contest

Henry Meyers of Carroll, Wayne county's representative in the state corn husking contest held last Thursday at Seward, placed seventeenth. Report of the contest is as follows:

Seward, Neb., Nov. 11.—Hilmer Swanson of Saronville, today wore the diadem of champion cornhusker in the Cornhusker state.

By husking 23.82 bushels of corn yesterday in the state contest, which was held on the T. H. Wake farm, two miles north of here, this blonde Scandinavian annexed the 1927 husking title in Nebraska and won the right to represent the state in the world contest.

Close on the heels of the Clay county speedster, however, was Joseph Korte of Petersburg, Antelope county champion, with a total of 23.233 bushels. Korte also will represent Nebraska when the world's championship is settled in the Minnesota contest.

Ex-Champion is Third.

Joe Sudik, Colon, last year's state champion, finished third with 22.86 bushels. Everett Barry of Wahoo was fourth with 22.315 bushels and Carl Sorenson, Staplehurst, fifth with 22.195 bushels. Otto Sorenson of Blair, last year's runner-up, came in sixth with 22.186 bushels.

Owing to the damp, misty weather preceding the contest yesterday, the husks of the corn were very tough. This hampered the huskers and caused the amount of corn husked in the eighty-minute period to be lower than that of last year.

Last year Joe Sudik husked 1,824 pounds as against 1,714.53 this year.

The remainder of the thirty county champions finished in yesterday's contest as follows:

7—Curtis Floodman, Polk, 1,629.81 pounds.

8—Henry Sorenson, Blair, 1,611.1.

9—Andrew Thomas, Pawnee City, 1,578.73.

10—Erich Fey, Nebraska City, 1,569.6.

11—Henry Krings, Humphrey, 1,566.42.

12—C. A. Bradley, Overton, 1,536.17.

15—Clyde Douglas, Cortland, 1,495.11.

16—Ray Lovegrove, Fairmont, 1,478.89.

Need Is Great In All Rural Schools

Lincoln, Neb., Nov. 9.—Of the 14,500 teachers in Nebraska's schools last year, approximately 7,000 were teaching in the 6,200 rural schools, George W. Rosenlof, director of secondary schools and rural education says.

A recent questionnaire, which was answered by 55 county superintendents, showed that a total of 4,559 rural teachers were employed in their respective counties, he says. Of these more than 1,200 were teachers of no previous experience. The figures obtained also showed that of all classes of teachers, rural as well

As Urban, Slightly More Than 18 per cent were inexperienced teachers.

"If the figures for the entire state had been available it is quite reasonable to assume that 2,400 new teachers were necessary for the state, of whom 2,000 would be for the rural schools, he said.

"Assuming these figures to be correct or nearly so, we are justified in saying that we need annually in our rural schools in Nebraska no less than 2,000 teachers," Mr. Rosenlof declared.

"The next question is, from what source do they come?"

Nebraska has four state normal schools and a state teachers' college as well as a number of private denominational schools engaged in the task of training teachers, he continues.

On the other hand, the state has 236 high school normal training classes.

According to the latest figures, there were enrolled in these schools 5,438 normal trainees of whom 2,595 were graduates. Of these 2,595 graduates, not all were certified.

"Our first consideration is that our present facilities in the state teachers' colleges and universities are insufficient to take care of the added responsibility of training the teachers," he concluded.

Education Week Addresses Given

Local Men Speak on Special Topics in Observance of National Wide Program.

Band in Contest

State Championship Winner to Compete for Honors at Sioux City—Other News.

Assembly Notes.

American Education week was observed in the high school last week. Daily speeches were given. Monday, November 7, was health day. Dr. C. T. Ingham spoke on the topic, "Health." He stressed, in brief, the point that a person must be healthy in this day and age, to keep up with the rapid pace of modern living. To be a success one must be healthy.

J. H. Kemp spoke on "Home and School" Tuesday, November 8. He emphasized the fact that the home is the greatest social factor. "Each individual is a composite of the home, the church and the school," he stated. That children should try to appreciate what parents do for them, was also brought out by the speaker.

Dean H. H. Hahn spoke Wednesday on "Know your School." Students usually know their school in two ways, (1) by the minimum requirements for graduating, (2) by the maximum opportunities for learning. The speaker raised the question whether or not money was more than an education. This was proved false by the fact that the world wants educated minds to work out its big problems and it is willing to pay for them. No one would want to lose his education by selling his ability to read or write, thus proving that education is priceless.

Superintendent T. S. Hook addressed the school Thursday, November 10, on the topic, "School Opportunities."

A historical moving picture, "Pilgrims and Puritans" was shown Thursday, November 10, at the Crystal theater.

School was dismissed Friday afternoon, November 11, in observance of Armistice day.

Hallowe'en Deviltry.

Geneva Signal: This happened at Friend but it might have happened anywhere, especially in any community where public sentiment countenances what so many people refer to as "Hallowe'en pranks," but which often should have a very much different name. There can be much Hallowe'en merriment that is perfectly harmless and without damage to property or injury to the feelings of those concerned. The difficulty is that the mean and the vicious take advantage of the custom of playing jokes at Hallowe'en time and commit acts of violence and indecency that would rouse a community at other times.

The particular thing that happened at Friend was the throwing of a brick through a rather large and costly window at the home of a citizen who was not thought to have an enemy of any kind in the world. Fortunately the missile did not injure anyone. The loss was entirely financial, but whose home or place of business is safe if the perpetrator of such a criminal act feels that he can excuse himself on the ground that he was just having a little Hallowe'en fun? And who is to draw the line between a Hallowe'en prank and a Hallowe'en crime?

At McCook there was an even worse case of Hallowe'en deviltry. Two boys attending the McCook junior high school could not wait for Hallowe'en to come but began their Hallowe'en enjoyment at a football game two days before. Their amusement took the form of puncturing automobile tires and tubes. Altogether they ruined tires and tubes on seventy-seven autos according to their own confession, driving their instruments so deeply that both tires and tubes were practically destroyed. The damage is estimated at $1,000.

Now the bad thing about this McCook case is that the boys were apprehended and nothing was done about it. Their names were suppressed and they were not sent to the reform school or to jail, or horse whipped. The horse whipping is probably the medicine that ought to have been applied. There is something wrong with any boy who will destroy property. It is silly to pretend that a junior high school boy really thinks that it is just a prank to damage seventy-seven automobiles so that their owners cannot use them without spending money for repairs. Babbling such boys is inviting them to commit other crimes.

Interesting Bits of Wayne County History

The first Thanksgiving observed by early settlers of Wayne county was spent expressing sincere thanks for the abundant crops which enabled the small group to live on the bleak prairie during the winter. Not much land had been broken but that which was cultivated produced plentiful crops.

Does experience count? Experience, they say, is a hard school, and the class of its scholars is "Ouch!" However, there are some very valuable lessons to be learned in that institution — lessons which aren't on the curriculum anywhere else. We believe that one of our greatest assets is our long experience in funeral directing. Everything that is done at this establishment takes on a distinguishing quality from our long acquaintance with the problems of our work.

ATWATER KENT RADIO SPEAKERS

You are invited to hear this wonderful new Speaker

THERE'S something new in town! It's the wonderful Atwater Kent Radio Speaker—Model E. Our customers are all enthusiastic about it. So are we.

Here's a speaker that does full justice to any receiving set. If you've been wondering how you could get better reception with your set—no matter whether it's new or old—give the Model E a trial and note the difference.

The Model E has an entirely new type of operating unit and a new method of cone suspension which allows the cone to respond to the faintest vibrations over its whole surface. The result is astonishing. You hear the whole range of tones from the lowest to the highest. You hear reality!

To hear this extraordinary speaker is to appreciate why it took nearly three years of work in the Atwater Kent laboratory before it was put on the market. No matter what make of receiver you own, it will pay you to come in and make comparisons.

Iowa Curved Disc Cream Separator

Vibrationless Operation Means Better Skimming and More Years of Service.

"For every action there is an equal and opposite reaction." This law of physics has been the governing principle in the designing of the IOWA for perfect balance.
In the IOWA Curved Disc Bowl Separator there is no force applied that is not balanced by an equal force. There are two cream outlets and two milk screws on opposite sides of the bowl. The gear ratios, the bushings and ball bearings, the rigid frame have all been designed to eliminate vibration. Vibrationless operation increases both the skimming efficiency and the years of service of an IOWA Separator.

Having of a section of Main street in West Point was completed last week, and the street is entirely surfaced now. Mrs. John Albertson died at 37 years, at the age of 37 years. She leaves her husband and three children. St. Edward celebrated Armistice day with entertainment. One of the features was the serving of 500 pounds of roasted ox meat. H. J. Twenty-five neighbors near Central City joined forces in graveling several miles of highway in a township. Gravel for the project was donated by the state senator, and the farmers placed the gravel on the highway. Allen women organized a Royal Neighbor Lodge with the following officers: Clara Mitchell, orator; Hazel Feigley, vice-orator; Iva Baker, channellor; Sarah Utterback, past orator; Edna Markley, recorder; and Retha Hutchings, receiver. Lester Paine, of Orchard, may lose the sight of both eyes, due to injuries received when a pan of scalding water splashed into his face, as he was preparing to shave. The sight of one eye is gone and the other may be impaired. He also suffered severe burns about the face. The Hampshire boar and gilt sale, held last week Wednesday by John Woltman of Pierce, brought an average of $56. The highest price was $225 for a boar. H. P. Hansen of Hoskins, J. O. Damages totalling more than five thousand dollars are asked by Miss Anna Berger, Dakota City teacher, in a suit against Keith M. Evans, an attorney of Dakota City, trial of which started last week. The suit is a result of an auto accident about a year ago when she was enroute to Osmond, Neb., where she taught school, Evans being the driver of the car which overturned. The village trustees Monday night unanimously rejected the proposition offered by the Interstate Light and Power company, the petition presented by the company bearing only some fifty signatures. The trustees voted to reduce the light rate from 18 cents to 15 cents per K. W. H., this taking effect Dec. 1. Crofton now has twenty-four-hour service which proves very satisfactory. Following a canvass of the more than 2,500 names on the petition asking the board of county commissioners to call a special election to vote on the question of moving the county seat from Dakota City to South Sioux City, and finding the petition adequate and fully complying with the law, the commissioners designated Tuesday, November 29, as the date of said election. J. L. Whisman, Battle Creek farmer, who was kicked in the face by an outlaw mule last week Monday morning, died from the effects of the blow in Norfolk Wednesday. He was injured while attempting to break the mule which he had received in a trade. When he was preparing to hitch the animal to a wagon he was going to use to husk corn, the animal kicked him on the chin. The imprint of the mule's hoof was visible on Mr. Whisman's face. From Topeka to White House? Literary Digest: The distinction of being the first Republican to avow his candidacy for the Presidential nomination in 1928 belongs to Senator Charles Curtis, of Kansas; and if he wins the nomination and the race, he will be the first to reach the White House from a tepee; our first President able to boast that the blood of the original Americans flows in his veins. "Senator Curtis will either be the republican nominee or name him," declares that famous Kansan and experienced political observer, William Allen White, of the Emporia Gazette. As a Westerner whose republicanism is regular enough not to alarm the East, but whose support of the McNary-Haugen bill labels him a friend of the western farmer, many observers predict that Senator Curtis's candidacy will tend to close the sectional rift in the G. O. P. Moreover, declares Senator Arthur Capper's Republican Topeka Capital, "not only are all republican elements in the state behind Senator Curtis, but if he needed them he could count on a good many Kansas democrats." And in the Topeka State Journal (Ind.) we read: "Possibility that Senator Curtis may be the nominee of his party for president next June is not a pipe dream. He has been steadfast in his loyalty to farm interests and to the great Middle West. He has been fair, honest, and courageous in dealing with business. In a deadlocked convention, such as is promised for next year, the big eastern delegations could more readily go to Senator Curtis of Kansas than to any one other man suggested as a compromise candidate." Senator Curtis is floor republican leader of the upper house, and has served in the House and Senate for more than thirty-five years. According to William Allen White, he is "the shrewdest politician in the republican party" and he is "the senate's candidate." In a statement given to the New York American Mr. White says: "The political power of the United States Senate can not be ignored. It nominated Warren G. Harding. It prevented the nomination of Roosevelt when Hughes was chosen in 1916. The power of Senator Penrose, of Pennsylvania, and his Senatorial group in 1912 held the line for William H. Taft. "Curtis is entrenched in the senate. No man since Penrose died has the power there that Curtis has as the official republican leader. Curtis during his leadership of the senate and in Senator Lodge's day, when Curtis was whip, passed more private bills dear to Senatorial hearts than any other senator. Senator Curtis's political bank account is full. He has been doing favors for senators and he has asked nothing for fifteen years. "The senate does not like Hoover much, nor Mr. Hughes much more. It is under obligation to Curtis. Curtis and his senatorial friends will be an important factor in the national convention. Curtis is honest. He has no political heels back of him to disgrace the party." Senator Curtis announced his candidacy on October 26, in answer to a letter from State Bank Commissioner Bone, of Kansas, asking him to allow his name to be used in a State-wide Curtis-for-president movement. The senator said in part: "If my friends of Kansas desire to send a delegation to the next republican national convention favorable to my nomination, I shall be greatly pleased to be their candidate. "However, I will not consent to become a candidate if the delegation is to be selected with a view of voting for me for a few ballots as a favorite son. As I stated when the question was first put to me, I will not allow myself to be used as a stalkinghorse for any one. "A favorite son" candidate, the Washington News explains, is too often "only a name which the delegation has agreed to vote until the State's political managers have decided where the best deal can be made." "There is a romantic appeal, many editors remark, about a presidential candidate who is a great-grandfather was White Plume, the famous chief of the Kaw tribe. White Plume's daughter, the Springfield Republican tells us, married Louis Pappan, a French trader near St. Louis, and their daughter, Ellen Pappan, married in Captain Curtis who traced his ancestry back to the early colonization of Massachusetts in 1621, and who won his captaincy in the Civil war. Thus Senator Curtis combines Indian and French blood with that of Puritan New England. To quote the Republican further: "When he was three, the future senator's mother died and he went to the Kaw reservation, sixty miles west of Topeka, to live with his Indian grandmother and her people. This is the picture as White draws it: "The illimitable prairie was there; hunting was a part of the child's daily life. Dogs and horses were the companions of babyhood and boyhood, and at 8 years old Charles Curtis was a jockey, riding races at the fairs. At 10 he had a name in the state, and at 12 he was a figure in this part of the world. At 14 he was a some, black-haired, black-eyed boy, the Indian jockey—"of Cap Curtis's, boy." "It was his New England grandmother, Permelia Hubbard Curtis, of New Hampshire, who finally persuaded the boy to quit the race-track and go to school. He got a job as a reporter, and then came politics. There his career opened before him. For he had what White calls his blessed gifts of a handshaker, a plaver, the indefinable thing called charm which binds men to one forever. "Add to that," writes White elsewhere, "a gentle, ingratiating voice, and an easy flow of innocuous conversation; unimpeded by pesterous ideas, and you have a creature God-sent into politics." On March 4, 1928, remarks the Democratic New York World, "Mr. Curtis will be older than was any American president at his inauguration day. [But he is full vigor and good health." As the Republican Columbus Ohio State Journal sees it, Senator Curtis's frank announcement of his candidacy is evidence that President Coolidge is definitely out of the race, since the president and he are close friends politically and personally. This interpretation is shared by many editors and correspondents. On the other hand, Louis Siebold, in the New York Evening Post, maintains that "Senator Curtis's entrance into the presidential field is not regarded with alarm by the supporters of President Coolidge, Charles E. Hughes, Secretary of Commerce Hoover, Vice-President Dawes, and former Governor Lowden of Illinois." Notice of Hearing. In the County Court of Wayne County, Nebraska.
