Cattle Feeding On Increase In State Lincoln, Neb., Dec. 15.—Nebraska and two other states have a slight increase in cattle on feed this winter, while nearly all other states show a decrease in feeding, a statement issued by the state and federal division of agricultural statistics declared today.

Receipts of livestock at feeding points indicate an increase of about 8 percent in cattle feeding in Nebraska, the statement said. However, the feeding will not be as extensive as in the winter of 1925-1926. The apparent shortage of feeder cattle and high prices have led farmers to decrease feeding operations, the statement added, despite the plentiful hay and corn supply.

All available information for the country as a whole shows a considerable reduction in feeding as compared to last winter or any other winter in the last five years," the report says. "Reductions are shown for nearly all important feeding states, except three corn belt states west of the Missouri river, where feeding was below normal last year. All of the western states are feeding less cattle. The reduction is 20 percent in the states supplying the Pacific coast markets. The movement of feeding cattle during October and November into northern Colorado, which is the most important feeding section outside the Corn Belt, was below the movement last year, but above the average."

Feeders in Corn Belt The movement of feeder cattle into the Corn Belt states, in November, was large as compared with other fall months," the report continued. It was about the same as in November, 1926.

The total movement for five months July to November, was 16 percent below the same months last year and 28 percent below the five-year average movement for these months.

"In most years the demand for feeding cattle falls off in November and prices of feeder cattle are the lowest of the fall," the statement says. "This year, however, due to the continuing high level of fat cattle prices, and to the improvement in the corn situation, demand for feeders continued strong throughout November and prices were near the high point of the year."

In the Stock Country. Omaha World-Herald: A tremendous asset of Nebraska and the middle west is the stock raising industry. It is the sound basis of progress and prosperity in a large area of the state which is reflected throughout all Nebraska, including Omaha. This industry has emerged from difficulties which affected the entire country and is now reaping rewards somewhat commensurate with the energy and investment expended. Better prices, the best for many years, have given a stimulus to this business which is of deep importance to the entire state.

Present conditions are most favorable. Wild stories of the effect of the last snowstorm in western Nebraska in Associated Press reports have been thoroughly repudiated by the facts. In spite of cold waves and a light snow, there has been no loss on the range and the winter so far has been most favorable. From Alliance, Hemingford and other centers have come most favorable reports of present conditions. With the market attractive and the production adequate, Nebraska is fortunate in its solid stock raising industry. This is a big part of the success of the year 1927 in Nebraska, with the largest all round crop production this state has ever had. Think it over and rejoice that you live in Nebraska.

Women, according to statistics, spend more on their make-up than the government spends on warships, and this probably explains why you hardly ever see a fellow making a war-ship out of tinners.

The Radiola 20

THIS set is specially devised to meet crowded broadcasting conditions. As you know, selectivity is the great question today — the ability of your set to pick out the program that you want. Radiola 20 is twenty times as selective as the average antenna set. This has been proved in laboratory tests again and again. It is proved every day in tens of thousands of homes. Radiola 20 is built for high selectivity, not only in view of the many stations of today, but also in view of the many more that may exist tomorrow.

This set is notable for its selectivity at all wave lengths. Note this point. It will mean much to you when you have a radio set.

One dial tuning. For average home reception Radiola 20 has ONE DIAL tuning. For far-off stations there are two minor controls for finer tuning. It can be equipped to operate with batteries or with light socket devices, as you prefer. By means of a special circuit, exclusive with Radiola 20, it does the work of seven tubes, increasing the distance range.

Ask for a demonstration of Radiola 20. Compare it with any set you please in actual performance. You will find out why more Radiolas are in use than any other make of set.

The Chicago Tribune reports discovery of what is called a Keratosaur, a huge monster of the Arctic, a survival of a prehistoric age. It is said to be as big as ten elephants, and in possession of an appetite that is hard to appease.

In its appeal for the Good Fellows' annual Christmas fund, the Chicago Tribune says there are more jobless people and therefore greater need of charity in that city now than formerly. We wonder if those without work, have been looking for jobs, or have they been looking the other way?

A Kansas City woman, aged 106, employed as a garment maker, is earning $12 per week, sends $5 weekly to a son, lives on $5 a week and saves $2. It is important to note that besides living within her income and providing for a son, she is saving a little every week to depend on when she grows too old and feeble to work and is ready to retire.

Dr. A. L. Bixby thinks it is hard enough to keep the world going along fairly straight without the demoralizing influence of war. "Another war," he says, "will bring to the world industrial chaos and a complete breakdown of the moral fiber of mankind. Is it worth preparing for, or would it be better to promote the arts of peace, and try to get by without butchering one another?"

Disciples of Benjamin Purnell, dead leader of the House of David at Benton Harbor, Mich., have hovered over his dead body several days expecting him to be resurrected according to his prophecies, but he failed to come to life and the local undertaker followed the usual course. His credulous satellites will doubtless excuse him for remaining dead on some plausible ground, and then turn to the adoption of some other equally crazy notion.

Former Governor McKelvie does not agree that the code system of state government should be abolished. He says if the state's affairs are not taken care of by the different departments provided under the code, they will have to be handled by other public officers, and that repealing the laws would not serve economy. He thinks doing away with the code would be a backward step.

One Clear Call. Lincoln Journal: Following the refusal of President Coolidge to recommend any workable farm relief plan in his message numerous protests are heard, but they are as the sound of many waters. They fail in vigor and agreement. In Lancaster county many farmers complain that their costs are increased by the labor situation. But the gates will never again be thrown open to unrestricted immigration. There is no prospect of reducing the labor cost materially except by the introduction of machinery, a long and costly process.

Those who want tariff reductions on the things the farmer must buy realize that the general indifference of the public, coupled with the active hostility of the east, will put that remedy out of reach for a long time to come. The president even discourages them by saying that tariff reform would do no good to the farmer anyway.

A direct subsidy to the farmer has always been out of the question and the frozen face the president turns in that direction will end that phase of the farm relief.

So the advocates of farm betterment in discouraged tones, while the farm mortgage salesman tells them they are spoiling the market for western bonds and suggesting that it might pay to lay off this agitation until a more favorable season. There is one man, at least, in the corn belt who does not accept this defeatist advice. Harvey Ingham, editor of the Des Moines Register admits all the unfavorable facts, but refuses to be discouraged by them. All of the cutesy proposals, he finds, are either belated or unworkable, with the single exception of the McNary-Haugan bill. His voice is a single note calling the half hearted farmers of Iowa to fall in line for another march on Washington. But so far his conviction in its tone, the only breast that is fronted squarely toward the foe.

Is Disease a Crime? York Republican: A suit, brought in the York county district court, raises a nice question at law: is disease a crime? Members of the legislature, a few sessions ago, passed a bill that made it legal for a woman record is reported at Los Angeles where a kidnaper accepted a ransom from an anguished father and in return restored to him the mutilated body of his murdered child. It is inconceivable that any one could sink so low in brutality to satisfy greed. In cruelty to the crime ranks with the blood-stained acts of the Roman tyrant, Nero, early in the Christian era.

The Nebraska climate pleases more people in the course of a day than any climate we know of. Especially in winter the changes in twenty-four hours may be sufficient to meet the desires of any turn of mind. Often every human wish in the way of weather is gratified between the rising and setting of the sun, and one may get what he wants in a brief space of time without going either to California or to the Arctic circle. If one is mad at the weather in the morning, he is likely to be overjoyed by its changes before nightfall. And this climate creates rich, red blood, renews health and enlivens the mind. The way it often quarrels and snaps only exercises one's combative propensities, strengthens courage and intrenches health and longevity.

In a current magazine Edgar A. Guest explains why he goes to church, and W. O. Saunders explains why he does not go to church. Both authors are believers in immortality and have given much thought to the problems of life and death. But we feel that church attendance and church support are important to community welfare and spiritual growth. While one may not always agree with the opinions advanced by the churches or swallow everything taught by them, they are valuable assets, and active interest taken in them will tend to their development. The most important consideration in the world is that involving the proper nurturing and strengthening of one's soul. In trying to look after the welfare of the sick the churches have often made mistakes, but usually they have been constructive and consistent, and what they lack in wisdom may be increasingly made up by an increasing infusion of substantial interest.

The mere fact that one hauls from a great center of population is no guarantee that he knows much. He may know so little that he would be humiliated beyond expression if he were to match wits with his country cousin. It may not be one's fault if his home address is New York City, but it is unfortunate if, living there voluntarily or otherwise, he develops the idea that people in smaller units of population are not so well informed or not so capable of analyzing facts and drawing logical conclusions. The struggle for existence in great centers is usually so intense that there is no time or inclination to read or think. In such restricted environments, many people, fighting to survive, are suspicious, selfish and cold. Friendship is not counted worth much unless it can be turned to material advantage. People in the country develop more soul, and as a rule they are interested in cultivating their minds. They are given to reading and study, and usually they can be depended on to say what they mean, and mean what they say. Then why go to New York City or some other great seaport to live?

Administrative Code. Dr. A. L. Bixby: Some of the lads who talk loudest against the administrative code system of state government really know the least about it, if they know anything at all. Its adoption by Illinois so simplified the business of that great state as to prove most satisfactory. The institutions of the state were cared for more efficiently and economically, a saving to the people of multiplied thousands in taxes annually. We don't believe the legislature to be elected next fall will be in a mood to do anything rash.

So take this good advice from Bix.

Submitted by request, Don't stir bad blood in politics. But let the issues rest until a definite demand. For something people understand.

There was a time, a distant date. Remembrance makes me sore. When foul commissions ran the state. Some fifty-five or more. We had the "duplications" then (Now who says, "so we shall again?")

I do not practice to deceive. And, well, at any rate, I like to say what I believe. Not as a candidate. But as a voter who essays. To cast his ballot as he prays.

Reducing taxes is a theme. That rates as sanctified. Yet it's an iridescent dream. With prices high and wide. Reducing which, I feel quite sure. Would be some help, if not a cure.

So I don't say "repeal the code." Because—truth can't be hid. We'd have a damsite bigger load. To carry if we did. As time advances I shall try, In brief, to give the reasons why. Right at this point I want to state. With emphasis sublime, I am not now a candidate. Nor will I be in time. I choose to be in politics. Merely a common voter. BIX.

CHRISTMAS. The season of good cheer and brotherly love is here, and the greatest holiday in christendom will soon come and gleaming with pleasant memories. It is a bright spot in people's lives, and it is the one time of the year when individuals feel more like giving than receiving. It is the time when good will, inspired by the life of the noble Nazarene, is most felt, and expressed. Christmas brings out the best. It prompts sympathetic thoughts and unselfish deeds. It emphasizes the good and mercifully covers the bad. Its influence is salutary and uplifting. The spirit of the world comes nearer reflecting the kindly and generous impulses of the founder of Christianity at this time than during any other period of the year. The good impressions made on old and young should not pass as Christmas songs and laughter cease to echo.

afflicted with a social disease to be incarcerated in the state reformatory for women until she was cured of the disease. The attitude of the legislative body was that her condition was a menace to public health and morals and therefore society should be protected against her. Under the law, then passed, one of these unfortunate ones, who might be arrested and convicted of a crime, could be sentenced to the reformatory and when the time for which she had been sentenced had expired she could be held in the institution indefinitely until her cure had been effected. So it transpired that many who had gone to the institution voluntarily for treatment and others who had been sent for short periods for violations of the criminal code, found their liberty had been sacrificed—they were involuntary wards and prisoners of the state. Now a suit has been brought which will test the legality of the statute and the courts must determine whether a disease that is offensive to society subjects the afflicted to loss of liberty and to criminal restraint, it will be most interesting to see what the courts do with this case. If it is legal to confine against her will one afflicted with a social disease, it follows that it would be legal, if the public willed, to restrain and imprison all persons infected with so-called communicable diseases; such, for example, as tuberculosis.

A very close question is raised, which is not within the province of a newspaper editor to pass on, but which, nevertheless, will test the Solomon-like abilities of the lower and higher courts.

Mr. Babson then ventures the opinion that if he were a farmer today, dairying and poultry raising would make a strong appeal to him. Conditions throughout the country are generally favorable to dairying, and the same is true of poultry raising. These lines enable the farmer to turn his money several times during the year and they provide him a steady income while "with many crops, the turn over is but once a year with the money coming in shortly after harvest time." He adds that many other lines of agriculture have advantages. Certain sections are adapted to fruit culture, in connection with which modern methods of packing and transportation give a country-wide market. Also, the outlook for the livestock farmer is favorable in the south and central west.

It is quite difficult to harmonize Mr. Babson's statement of a few months ago and his most recent one. Had farm boys followed his advice, packed their grips and left the farm in May or June, they would have been obliged now to pack their grips and just as promptly return to take advantage of improved conditions. So it would seem that Mr. Babson had not thought the situation through, or that he was slightly uninformed about the things that underlie a successful and permanent farm husbandry. His latest statement is representative of sound economic thought. It hits upon the things that the average farmer appeal as practical application and enduring in benefits.

It is easy to be swept from one's feet in viewing the farm situation, especially if we are influenced by clamor instead of facts. For instance, when some one was asked recently about farm conditions in this region, he replied that from what he read he was led to believe they were pretty bad, but from what he saw he judged they were fairly good. This is the difference between the exponents of political relief for agriculture and the advocates of sound remedies based upon the application of economic principles. The former would remedy the ills of agriculture by legislative fiat; the latter would encourage and aid the farmer to help himself through the application of practices that have proven trustworthy in other lines of endeavor. Mr. Babson now properly takes his place in the latter class.

Second's Motion. I wish to second the motion of Prof. E. J. Hunterman that we remember at Christmas time our faithful letter carriers. It would seem that citizens of Wayne should appreciate the increasingly efficient postal service. J. G. W. Lewis.

Babson Reviews His Estimate Of Farming

Nebraska Farmer: Speaking in Omaha last summer, Roger Babson, the well-known New England economist, said in effect that if he were a Nebraska farm boy, he would "pack his grip and leave the farm unless conditions improved." Recognizing that the farm continuing to be the principal subject of discussion in the Ellman smoker, Mr. Babson seems to have made a further and more intelligent study of the agricultural situation, and in a recent article in the press states that according to information he has received from seventy-eight leading centers in all parts of the United States, farmers of the country are making more money. Of the seventy-eight localities canvassed by Mr. Babson, sixty-three register farming as profitable, both to the man who tills the soil and the man who raises livestock; four livestock raiser, and only eleven localities indicate that their farmers are not making money. The majority of the latter are behind largely because of poor weather conditions.

The eminent economist then sets forth his views based upon observation and economic study of what some of the underlying principles of agricultural progress really are. He says: "Two facts stand out prominently: The greatest prosperity has come where the farmers are organized to market their own produce, and where the farmers are adopting progressive methods and labor saving machinery. Big business has learned the value and necessity of cooperation. It is also prospering through labor-saving machinery. Millions of dollars could be saved by the farmers of the cotton belt, if they could market their crops themselves through cooperative associations. In the case of cotton, farmer to improve the grades; can market for the most advantageous price; and when there is an extra large crop of cotton, an increased demand can easily be stimulated through advertising so that people will use more cotton and replenish their cotton stocks. The demand for fruits, nuts, vegetables and dairy products could thus be stimulated even more than at present. The demand for wheat, on the other hand, cannot be easily stimulated as people will eat only so much bread and, as they become more prosperous, tend to cut down rather than increase their per capita use of wheat.

"As I have stated many times before, most farmers use too much man-labor and not enough work-stock and labor-saving equipment. A farm is only one form of factory and hence requires the most efficient equipment and management."

Mr. Babson then ventures the opinion that if he were a farmer today, dairying and poultry raising would make a strong appeal to him. Conditions throughout the country are generally favorable to dairying, and the same is true of poultry raising. These lines enable the farmer to turn his money several times during the year and they provide him a steady income while "with many crops, the turn over is but once a year with the money coming in shortly after harvest time." He adds that many other lines of agriculture have advantages. Certain sections are adapted to fruit culture, in connection with which modern methods of packing and transportation give a country-wide market. Is There A Santa Claus? Genoa Signal: (The following article, often referred to as a newspaper classic and often reprinted in many newspapers, first appeared in the New York Sun September 21, 1897. It was written by Francis P. Church, an editorial writer on the Sun.)

We take pleasure in answering at once and thus prominently the communication below, expressing the same time our gratification that its faithful author is numbered among the friends of the Sun: Dear Editor: I am eight years old. Some of my little friends say there is no Santa Claus, Papa says "if you see it in the Sun it's so." Please tell me the truth, is there a Santa Claus Virginia O'Hanlon. 115 West Ninety-fifth Street.

Virginia, your little friends are wrong. They have been affected by the skepticism of a skeptical age. They do not believe except they see. They think that nothing can be which is not comprehensible by their little minds. All minds, Virginia, whether they be men's or children's, are little. In this great universe of ours man is a mere insect, an ant, in his intellect, as compared with God's boundless world about him, as measured by the intelligence capable of grasping the whole truth and knowledge.

Yes, Virginia, there is a Santa Claus. He exists as certainly as love and generosity and devotion exist, and you know that they abound and give to your life its highest beauty and joy. Alas, how dreary would be the world if there were no Santa Claus! It would be as dreary as if there were no Virginia. There would be no childlike faith, no poetry, no romance, to make tolerable this existence. We should have no enjoyment, except in sense and light. The eternal light with which childhood fills the world would be extinguished.

Not believe in Santa Claus! You might as well believe in fairies! You might get your papa to hire men to watch in all the chimneys on Christmas eve to catch Santa Claus, but even if they did not see Santa Claus coming down, what would that prove? Nobody sees Santa Claus, but that is no sign that there is no Santa Claus. The most real things in the world are those that neither children nor men can see. Did you ever see fairies dancing on the lawn? Of course not, but that's no proof that they are not there. Nobody can conceive or imagine all the wonders there are unseen in the world. You tear apart the baby's rattle and see what makes the noise inside, but there is a veil covering the unseen world which not the strongest man, nor even the strongest men, nor even the strongest men, could tear apart. Only faith, fancy, poetry, love and romance, can push aside that curtain and view and picture the supreme beauty and glory beyond. Is it all real? Ah, Virginia, in all this world there is nothing else real and abiding.

No Santa Claus! Thank God he lives and he lives forever. A thousand years from now, Virginia, nay, ten times ten thousand years from now, he will continue to make glad the heart of childhood.

Business. Sioux City Journal: Better business for 1928 is freely predicted by bankers, industrialists and economists as they admit the present year showed a perceptible decline. This is indicated by activities in various lines, in industry, plans made by leaders showing the expectancy of trade next year. A better condition of employment and no change in wage schedules is the thought of manufacturers as plans are made to meet increasing demands in 1928. Easy money is depended upon to make such progress possible, for while there is no industrial expansion on a large scale expected capital will be needed for contemplated changes and improvements. Advancement however is not likely to be rapid according to predictions offered. The decline in the last several months, slight but noticeable and somewhat discouraging in view of the former strong demand, is expected to extend into the new year for two or three months. A distinct improvement in the spring, a slackness during the summer and a strong recovery in the fall is the forecast for 1928. Naturally, a good deal of attention will be given to the presidential campaign, and business may be influenced in a degree by the element of uncertainty over the outcome. This is not expected to make a good deal of difference in the production and sales. Trade finally has come to recognize that it is bigger than politics and for the most part goes ahead with its plans independently.

The reason for the forecast of better prosperity for next fall is found in the confident belief that agriculture will recover in an even greater degree next year. Summer and fall crops are in condition of the farmers are counted on in the present crop year reaching this conclusion is not disclosed. It is not likely that the present longer position occupied by agriculture is taken as the cue for further improvement. Foreign trade showed a decline from the figures of last year but the balance in favor of this country was greater. The figures for November show exports of $461,000,000 and imports of $345,000,000. Last year the exports were $480,800,000 as against imports of $373,881,000.

Tax reduction plans in the present congress are such as to encourage freer use of capital for the coming year. Reductions in the higher brackets are certain, and this will release money for investment. Wholesale prices are due to advance in the near future, but retail figures are not expected to show much change.

Crossing Bridges. York Republican: We have always instinctively distrusted the wisdom of two much quoted popular proverbs, "Don't count your chickens before they are hatched," and, "Don't cross the bridge before you come to it." We admire the spirit of caution that foresees and considers the rights of others. But if the chickens were not counted long before they were hatched, there would be no multiplying flocks. And if the bridges were never crossed, until they were encountered, there would be no bridges to span the streams. The progress of this world, as a material-minded as we may think it, is made by dreams—dreams that picture flocks where there are none and bridges where raging waters rush between towering banks. Every convenience we enjoy and once pronounced miraculous—the telegraph, the telephone, the locomotive, the automobile, the airplane, the radio, and the products of dreams. They are the result of some one crossing unbridged chasms long ahead of the bridge-builder. It pays to be practical, but being practical is no standpoint precluding. It is not clinging stubbornly to ancient rules and customs. It is spurring action with fancy and lighting common sense with new born genius. It is crossing bridges in fancy—safely and expeditiously—long before they are reached, to prove our own faith and to be an example in courage to faltering brothers.

The Farm Hedge. Fairbury News: Every year hundreds of miles of hedge rows are disappearing from Nebraska, being laboriously grubbed out by land owners who have grown to realize that they sap the strength from the ground, are a contributory force to bad roads and are altogether a nuisance without any recompensing value. The acquiring of these hedges was almost a tragedy in Nebraska. The dream of the pioneer who homesteaded his land was to some day see it entirely enclosed with an osage hedge—such a condition almost evidenced aristocracy among the husbandmen those days. To acquire a sufficient number of hedge plants required the accumulation of years, and the setting of them out thoroughly established the owner in a condition of slavery to that hedge so long as it was permitted to exist. Some of the toys are made of square blocks brightly painted, some hop up and down as they roll along, and still others are cleverly contrived so that they can do stunts. For instance there is a perfectly ridiculous giraffe, who can lift his legs or his long neck into knots and not mind in the least.

The Baby's Feet Fish. Even at bath time one may have one's pets along. Of course there are fish among the celluloid animals that swim and all the other swimmers too, and some that you would never expect to see swim, do it very well when made of celluloid.

When one is still younger and hasn't learned to walk yet and has to try out every new thing by squozing it or eating it, why the toy shops are ready for him too. On the cuddly soft furry things for the little fellows: Ducks of pink plush, with aprons and bonnets, perfectly sweet little piggies, solemn pups, blossoms and elephants are there to choose from. Little grotesque dogs with long legs are made of green and purple velvet. They really shouldn't be green or purple, should they? But these are.

*'Twas Christmas Eve and all was still,
As three small heads with golden hair
Peered wide eyed o'er the window-sill
To see if old Saint Nick were there.
Now comes the sound of dainty paws:
It is the deer of Santa Claus.*

*Behold the wondrous magic sleigh,
All laden down with shining toys
And dolls, which only go, they say,
To nice, good-mannered girls and boys
(But surely it is not polite
To peek at Santa Christmas night!)*

*Look! On the roof, with nimble tread
Strides Santa, as the kiddies peep.
They duck and scamper back to bed—
A moment later they're asleep.
And when they waken, they will see
A world of gifts beneath their Tree.*

Miss Charlotte White. Miss Maude Montank who used to live with her parents on a farm near Wayne, now employed in the claim department of the Southern Pacific railroad at Los Angeles, wrote the following lines: Oh, I ask you, kindly ask ya' Do you chance to know my friend, From the plains of old Nebraska, Where the skies and cornfields blend?

Many years she was a teacher, And a mighty good one too; And she also was a preacher, Not much that she couldn't do. She is happy, hale and healthy, Any subject can discuss; And in knowledge she is wealthy, With a memory marvelous.

Though I know it would be thrilling, At your age Miss Charlotte White; Still it might prove rather spilling, If you took an airship flight.

If we can not attend divine worship on Christmas morning when is there a time when we can? Close the old year right.

Church of Christ. (Rev. Gerald C. Bendle, Pastor) 7:30 p. m., Saturday, Christmas program by the young folks

We continue our study in the biography of Christ.

Administrative Code Causes Discussion

Lincoln, Neb., Dec. 22.—The broadside fired by A. J. Weaver of Falls City, republican gubernatorial candidate, at the civil administrative code, has caused rumblings of disapproval in Republican ranks. The Weaver fusillade has prompted many "huddles" and much wagging of heads in Republican circles, while several staunch Republicans have voiced open protests against the declaration of their standard bearer. While some prominent Republicans think Weaver will mitigate his declaration, ardent Weaver supporters declare their favorite intends to rend the veil, tear down the curtain and positively stamp on the portieres of the code system. They contend that the code is like a bad case of appendicitis, and that the case of the trouble should be removed. Another May File. As a result of this divergency of opinion in the state's governing party, many political followers believe that another Republican will likely enter the gubernatorial campaign. James A. Rodman of Omaha, speaker of the house in the last legislature, has advanced to the fore as a possible "code" candidate. Rodman has been quoted as being in favor of someone running for governor against Weaver, unless Weaver withdraws his statement that he desires the legislature to repeal the code law. Whether Rodman will try for the nomination himself or desires to return to the legislature, he has not made known. Rodman visited the governor this week, but he afterwards said his visit was purely on private business and that he called merely to pay his respects to the "code." Concede Weaver's Nomination. The code's supporters are reported to be not at all anxious to have Rodman run for governor, as they frankly concede he would have very little chance of defeating Weaver. However, they hope the threat of Rodman's candidacy ### may cause Weaver to ease up in his criticism of the code.

Spillman Still Silent. Two republican primary candidates for attorney general jumped into the field this week, but no announcement has been made by the incumbent, O. S. Spillman, as to whether he will make the race for another term. Those who entered themselves for the nomination contest in next April's primary were Lee Bayse of Lincoln, formerly of Alliance, present assistant attorney general, and Bert M. Hardenbrook, former Valley county attorney, and recently president of the county attorney's state association.

Lloyd Dort, also assistant attorney general, is said to be a tentative candidate for attorney general in case his chief should not run for re-election. What Will Morehead Do. Considerable speculation is prevalent generally as to what John H. Morehead of Falls City, congressman from the First district and former governor, plans to do. The filing of John Wittse of Falls City, for Morehead's congressional seat, is believed by many to portend that Morehead intends to enter the race for R. B. Howell's seat in the United States senate. Despite the fact that Wittse is a Democrat, they are reported to be very close friends and thus it is unlikely that Wittse would have filed unless he knew that Morehead would not run for reelection. Wittse is opposed on the Republican ticket by Ralph Mosely of Lincoln.

Farmers Leaders In Educating Children. Lincoln, Neb., Dec. 14.—Who sends his children to college? Is it the lawyer, baker, or candlestick maker who wants his son and daughter to have the advantages of a higher education? In a recent survey by the University of Nebraska registrar, the fact was disclosed that in Nebraska, at least, more farmers, ranchers, and stockmen send their children to the state university than any other business men. Of the 6,340 students enrolled, 1,880, or 29.65 percent, come from homes of farmers, ranchers, or stockmen. The tradesmen were next in order. Students whose parents are engaged in trades numbered 1,223, or 19.29 percent of the total. Next came the merchants, dealers, and proprietors, whose children number 920, 14.51 percent of the student population. Children of professional men numbered 753 or 11.88 percent. Other occupations of students' parents was as follows: agents, salesmen, office workers, 4.86 percent; bankers, insurance agents, 5.57 percent; public and government service, 2.89; manufacturers, public utilities, 5.73; laborers, 1.59; retired, 1.06. One hundred and eighty-nine students listed their parents as having no occupations.

Sheriff's Sale. By virtue of an Order of Sale, to me directed, issued by the Clerk of the District Court of Wayne County, Nebraska, upon a decree rendered therein, at the September, 1927, term thereof, in an action pending in said court wherein Maggie S. Mellor et al were defendants, I will, on the 23rd day of January, 1928, at 10 o'clock a. m. at the door of the office of the Clerk of said Court, in the court house in Wayne, in said county, sell to the highest bidder for cash, the following described real estate, to-wit: The north half of Section Thirty-one (31) and the south half of section Thirty-one (31) all in Township Twenty-seven (27) North Range Three (3) East of the 6th P. M., Wayne County, Nebraska, to satisfy the aforesaid decree, the amount due thereon being $12,300.00 with interest, and costs and accruing costs.

Belden Boy Injured In Auto Accident

Hartington, Neb.: Manley Sutton of Belden is in a serious condition at the Wayne hospital suffering from an infection on his leg caused in an auto accident. On Thanksgiving evening, while Mr. Sutton, Mattie Chase and Ted Leapley were on their way to Hartington, one mile from Cole-ridge, they had tire trouble. The boys got out to repair the tire. Mr. Leapley was standing in front of the car using the lights to inspect the inner tube, and Mr. Sutton was working at the rear, removing the tire, when a Dodge touring car, driven by Jack Melvin of Coleridge, and occupied by three young people, crashed into the Ford car. The Ford was pushed with such force several feet into the ditch and the car was knocked out of the road. Mr. Sutton was dragged for about ten feet. The boys were not seriously hurt, but Manley Sutton received a bruise on his knee which is causing him considerable trouble, having developed blood poisoning. It is feared that perhaps his leg will have to be amputated, but the doctor is endeavoring to save it and amputation will be the last resort.

Journalism. General Signal: All over the land large numbers of young people are studying what they call "journalism." Those of us who work at the newspaper business used to define a journalist as a newspaper man out of a job but some of the excellent schools of journalism have made journalism respectable and the title of journalist to have a different meaning. Two good things ought to be accomplished by the present wave of journalism enthusiasm: A better knowledge of how to read a newspaper and a better knowledge of how to write readable and understandable English. These results are sure to follow if it is possible to teach anything practical to high school students, and we all agree that it is.

The Signal has about thirty regular contributors, some young and at just about the right age to learn to do things better than those of us who lacked somewhat in educational advantages in our youth, some in the middle period of study and preparation, and some a little too far along to worry about the niceties of spelling, capitalization and punctuation, but all of them in a position to be interested in the following excellent article from the Idaho School Leader:

Do you know how to write a good news item? You get the idea. Tell all the important things first. Hold nothing for a climax. The climax is the first sentence. In this structure the news item is peculiar. It is written for readers who hurry, who may not read at all, who want the news at once. So—

Tell Who, What, When and Where in the first sentence. Probably Why and How. Be sure you point out the most interesting phase of the story to answer the question, "What was it that happened?" Maybe the Who will be most interesting in some items, or the Why or the How. Even Who may be interesting if it happened at 9:30 this morning. Whatever you decide on, as being most important, which you try to attract attention to, is your "feature."

Suppose you've seen a big fire. Then imagine yourself running to catch a train. A friend stops you. "What was it?" he asks. You tell him in a sentence. That's the "lead" to your story. You've summed it all up for him. If you've done it well you have a proper first sentence for a shipshape report.

The suppose you suddenly discover that your watch is fast and that you have an hour to waste. You settle down and tell him all the details. That's the way well-written news story should proceed after the first paragraph. Said Kipling: "I keep six honest serving men They taught me all I know. Their names are What and Why and How and Where and Who."

Collect $100,000,000 In Gasoline Tax

Reports on gasoline taxes, compiled in the Bureau of Public Roads, United States Department of Agriculture, show that the District of Columbia and all but four of the States levied gasoline taxes in the first six months of this year ranging from 1 cent to as high as 5 cents a gallon. The total of taxes collected after allowing for refunds was slightly more than $100,000,000 collected from users of nearly 4,000,000,000 gallons of gasoline. The four states that did not tax gasoline—Illinois, Massachusetts, New York, and New Jersey—are estimated to have consumed 947,000,000 gallons bringing the total gasoline consumption used for motor vehicles in the first six months to nearly 5,000,000,000 gallons. New Jersey and Illinois went out of the taxless column when they imposed a 2 cent tax effective July 1 and August 1 respectively.

California, using more than 450,000,000 gallons, had the largest gasoline tax receipts, more than $9,000,000, all of which went to state highway and local road funds. The other states with incomes of more than $5,000,000 were: Ohio, more than $7,500,000; Pennsylvania, more than $6,000,000; and Texas, Florida, and Michigan.

On June 30 Arkansas, Kentucky, New Mexico, and South Carolina had the highest tax rates, 5 cents a gallon, and on July 1, Florida increased her tax from 4 cents to 5 cents. Nevada with $199,497 had the smallest receipts of all the States, although the Nevada tax is 4 cents a gallon.

Irish Picture Is Coming To Crystal

If there is anything to the old saying about "the Irish for luck" it may account for the success of Cosmopolitan's "Becky," a lavish film story of the theatrical and underworld of New York, playing at the Crystal theatre December 23 and 24.

Sally O'Neil is the heroine and has the title role.

Owen Moore, who was born in County Meath, Ireland, has the leading male role.

John F. McCarthy, whose name betrays his nationality, directed it.

The picture was filmed at the Metro-Goldwyn-Meyer studio from a film adaptation of Raynor Selig's Cosmopolitan newspaper serial of an Irish-Jewish shop girl with an ambition to become a great opera star. It is one of the best pictures of all those based on adventures off stage and has been screened lavishly.

Owen Moore has one of the most interesting roles of his career as Dan Scarlett, a New York crook, in this film.

Moore last year played with Lon Chaney in "The Road to Mandalay" and this year has already appeared with Marion Davies in "The Red Mill" and with Pabline Starke in "Women Love Diamonds."

The cast, besides Miss O'Neil and Moore, includes Harry Crocker, Gertrude Olmsted, Mark Swain, Claude King, and others.

Receives Office Of District Engineer

The Neligh News says the following regarding the promotion of C. W. Eubank, brother-in-law of Miss Flora Staple of Wayne: "The appointment of Chas. W. Eubank as district engineer of the state, highways with headquarters at North Platte, will not only be the cause of Antelope county losing its county surveyor, but Neligh will be minus a city engineer also.

The appointment came to Mr. Eubank as an advancement in his line of endeavor and places him on an equal footing with A. C. Tilley of Norfolk who has the northeast district and Mr. Eubank has been supervisor of three of the counties under Mr. Tilley. In the new position Mr. Eubank will have charge of the state highway work in eleven counties with headquarters at North Platte.

He left Monday to take charge of the work, but will return to Neligh sometime this month to settle up his affairs with the county and state before moving to North Platte about January 1.

Ronald Reed Makes Record In Coaching

Ronald Reed, son of Mr. and Mrs. Irve Reed of Wayne, has made a remarkable record in his athletic coaching at Mount Vernon, Iowa. The following excerpt tells of his work:

"The season has been successful in almost every way. With poor prospects because of the loss of many stars by graduation last year, the team has improved well. The team has won six games and lost two, and has scored a total of 78 points to the opponents' 62. The games lost were to Monticello, a team that has not been defeated this year, and to Vinton, in the season opener. Victories have come at the expense of DeWitt, Central City, Anamosa, University High, Lisbon and Marion.

"Much of the credit goes to Coach Ronald Reed who has developed two good teams out of questionable material. In the two years he has been here, his teams have played fifteen games, and he has won eleven, tied one and lost three. His work in Mount Vernon has been most commendable and the school is proud of his teams."

WISHES to express to its friends and patrons the warmest greetings of the Yuletide season. This bank has done its utmost to faithfully serve the public, and appreciation of its efforts is manifestly reflected in the steady and gratifying growth it has made.

Forty-two years as a National Bank! That is the life of the First National Bank of Wayne. Its history is that of a safe and progressive banking institution. Its tower of strength has been reared on a foundation of sound business judgment. Its policy of mutual helpfulness is firmly rooted in popular confidence. After forty-two years of healthy growth, it reviews the past with satisfaction and looks to the future with assurance.

As we approach another year, we are ready to take a new hold, and feel confident that 1928 will not prove disappointing. Earnest cooperation will be given to realization of the universal wish for improved and stable times.

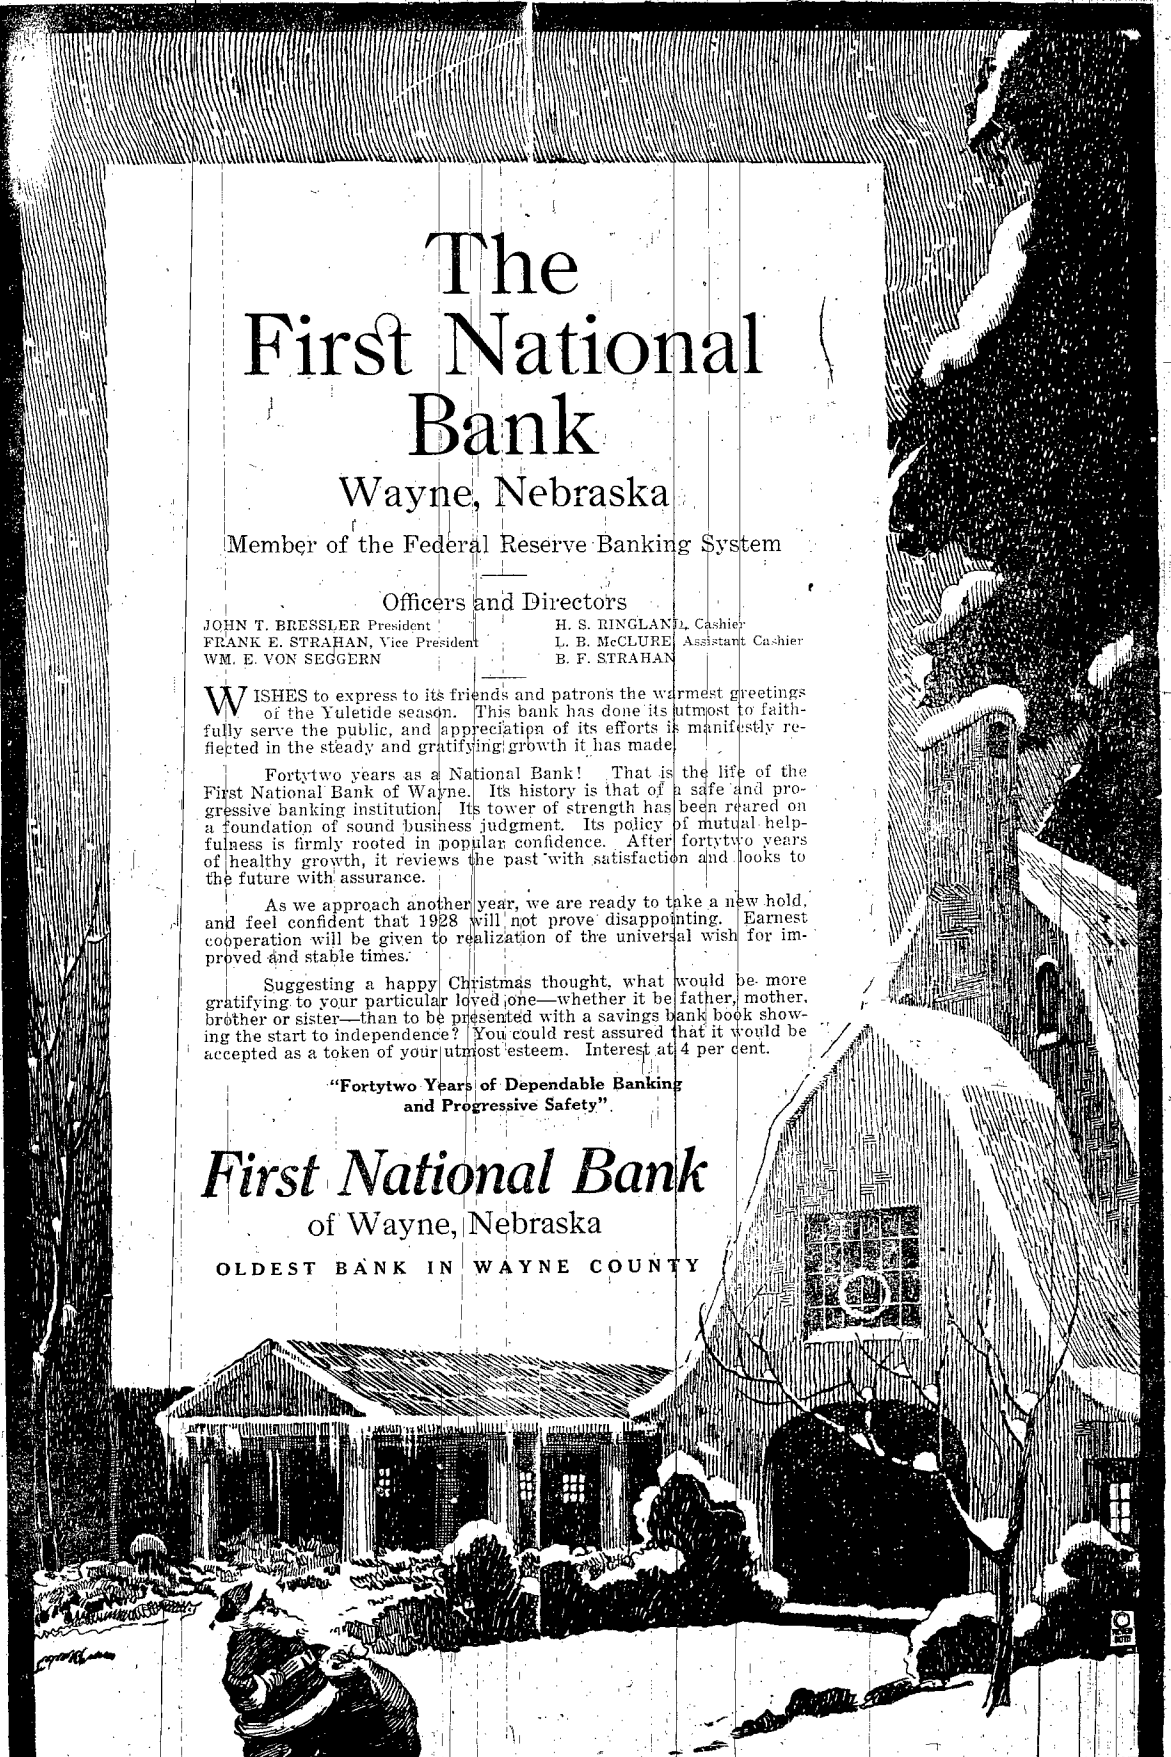

Suggesting a happy Christmas thought, what would be more gratifying to your particular loved one—whether it be father, mother, brother or sister—than to be presented with a savings bank book showing the start to independence? You could rest assured that it would be accepted as a token of your utmost esteem. Interest at 4 per cent.

This prevents many an accident, enables you to pass another car quickly, sends you away first when traffic signals change. More economical, because this combination of Red Crown Gasoline and Ethyl Brand of Anti-Knock Compound gives you more of the power that is in Red Crown—more miles to the gallon. It cuts out the cost of carbon removal because Red Crown Ethyl Gasoline does away with fuel "knocks" that cause motor wear and strain. Methodist Church. (Rev. G. H. Johnson, Pastor.) You are invited to the big birthday celebration at the Methodist church next Sunday. We will meet at 10 o'clock when we will have a miscellaneous program by the juniors. Check and bring your pledge for service and so place your Sunday school offering in one of the special envelopes, write your name, amount and name of class before handing it in.

At 11 o'clock we will have our Christmas service, special music appropriate for the occasion. The pastor will take for his subject, "St. Nick, or Old Nick." At 7:30 we will present a beautiful Christmas pageant, "The Shepherd's Vision." As white gifts for the King we will bring, self, service and substance. That will be an ideal time to confess Christ as your savior, to unite with the church, to receive the Christian baptism. Come and bring some of these presents to the King's birthday.

Due to the extremely cold weather our Sunday school attendance was cut down to 90 last Sunday, but it is wonderful what a person can do when he wants to. One little girl walked in over two miles and was one of the first ones here. Miss Taggart brought us with a beautiful Christmas reading; the orchestra played and we had a good time. Judging by the comments after the service our congregation was unusually well pleased with our discourse. Thanks for your expressions of appreciation.

At this season of the year, may we not pause and consider what the birth of the Christ child means to us? And, like the wise men of old, shall we not forsake the things of this world and seek our saviour? May the peace and joy which is to be found in Him, be yours this Christmas, and in the days to come, is the wish of the pastor and his family.

Our program for next Sunday calls for a gift from every scholar. Mrs. Frank Francis is our cradle roll superintendent. She will appreciate if the mothers who have babies on the roll would send her their offering. Thanks.

The junior department of our Sunday school including the cradle roll had a Christmas party in church basement on Tuesday from 2 until 4.

THE KNOT-HOLE No. 29 Wayne, Nebraska, Thursday, Dec. 22, 1927. Vol. 1. Santa Claus doesn't seem to grow any older. His pictures this year show that he hasn't aged a bit. The other night at a party, they asked a certain man in this town to sing "No," he said, "I'd better not. It's late and I'd disturb the neighbors." "That doesn't make a big difference," said the host, "they poisoned our dog." In making out a death certificate recently, a certain undertaker made a awful mistake. He got the doctor's name on the line where it asks for "Cause of Death." When some people we know go to heaven and are given a harp, we'll bet they'll ask for a player attachment.

The Telephone Ideal In the year just drawing to a close the human voice has bridged a mighty ocean and brought closer the telephone ideal—to enable you to talk to anyone, anywhere, at anytime, clearly and quickly! You now can reach from your telephone, almost any one in this country, as well as persons in England, Scotland and Wales. This progress in extending the range of the human voice strengthens our determination to expand telephone service during the coming year so that it will be of still more convenience and usefulness to you.
