Alarming If True.
Nebraska Farmer: It is the opinion of Clarke E. Mickle of the Engineering Department of the University of Nebraska as expressed in a meeting of engineers from states along the Missouri River that "unless storage reservoirs are built to provide water for the semi-arid districts of this section of the country and cheap water transportation is forthcoming, farmers simply will have to turn their energies in some other direction."

Prof. Mickey makes the alarming conclusion that the corn belt will be importing foodstuffs instead of shipping them out, within the next fifteen years unless an adequate water supply is insured to retain the necessary soil fertility in lands that are now under cultivation. This opinion is based upon the fact that vegetable matter necessary in crop production does not become available under semi-arid conditions. Consequently, continued cropping makes the land less and less productive until the point of non-profitable returns is reached.

A. B. Shively was named chairman of the Cedar county board of commissioners. Alfred Anderson and A. J. Thoenie are other members of the board. Estimate of the expenses for the year were placed at $208,000.

When people commence calling one by his first name, he begins to feel that he is a fixture in the community and that he may amount to something after all.

Groundhog day will soon be here, but it is not a holiday, so that a commercial club will not have to be organized by that time in order to decide whether to close or remain open.

This is leap year, but we do not hear anything about it. Women have become so well established in managing the men that the leap-year incentive is no longer needed.

We notice a speaker soon at the State Teachers College is to talk on "Wild Life." We wonder where he will begin and where he will end. We wonder how many of our young people will be included and referred to.

Preliminary to March 11, this is the season when farmers are having sales, some to go to other countries and some to move to neighboring towns. Still some other farmers who are not holding sales, are getting ready to move to other farms. These changes will take place before the annual spring work starts.

When the new hotel, now started and to be pushed to completion as soon as weather will permit, is finished, we will be in better position to entertain conventions or other gatherings. Guests like to be entertained in Wayne, because it is a live town and its people are hospitable, but lack of adequate hotel accommodations has been a serious handicap. This lack will be removed in the course of the year.

The resolution of a senate majority for downward revision of the tariff was subsequently defeated in the house. As noted by the way members voted, the tariff has become more of a sectional than party question. It should be taken out of party politics and handled in a strictly business-like manner, giving impartial consideration to all parts of the country, and modifying the demands of some in order to bolster up the unequal benefits of others.

Thomas A. Edison, aged electrical wizard, is in favor of Secretary Herbert Hoover for president, and he thinks the Ameri-

SMOKING CO-EDS.

A fair co-ed belonging to one of the sororities of the University of Nebraska, writes the Daily Nebraskan, university publication, urging that each sorority house should be provided with a smoking apartment. She explained that a large proportion of the university co-eds smoked, and that according to rules they are not permitted to smoke in sorority houses. It is further explained that the public safety commissioner of Lincoln proposes a measure to prohibit girls from smoking in public places. Complainant thinks if all restrictions were lifted and the same smoking privileges enjoyed by men were granted the women, there would be fewer or women smokers. That men or may not be true. But men who chew or smoke or who do both, feel inferior to women and girls who refrain from such objectionable habits. A man who is addicted to the use of tobacco is not proud of the fact, and he would quit if he could without great personal discomfort. He carefully formed the habit, and he got all tangled up in it before he discovered what a nuisance had become fastened to him. He concedes equal rights to the fair sex, but he holds girls and women in such high esteem that he is shocked and hurt when he sees them descend to his level. He wants them to keep above him, so that he may look up to them admiringly, and so that no shadow may be cast on their superlative graces. Use of tobacco may be easily avoided if it is not touched. Once one becomes its slave, it is a giant task to gain one's release. But if girls and women are determined to smoke, they might as well come out in the open and let the public get used to their folly.

can people will show poor judgment if they do not elect him. Objection has been raised to Hoover on the claim that he is not a regular republican, but it is pointed out that he has been a member of the National Republican club since 1909 and that he is regular enough to satisfy all requirements. The selection of a party nominee has come to be more than determining the manner in which one wears his party label.

AS TO RESPONSIBILITY. At the Jackson day dinner in Washington, D. C., youthful Dan Moody, governor of Texas, said the republican party should be held responsible for failure to enforce prohibition. The governor of Texas ought to understand that the job of enforcing a new law that is accepted by many as trespassing on personal liberty—tying up appetites (not used to being tied)—does not yield to a wave of the hand on a nod of the head. Enforcement requires upstream pulling, and no political party in power could be held responsible for violations. It may be wondered, however, if the governor of Texas knows how much cooperative support has been given by Governor Al. Smith of New York, democratic presidential candidate, to help the federal government enforce the law.

WON'T RUN AGAIN. E. C. Purcell of the Custer County Chief, published at Broken Bow, is another rural newspaper man who has turned his back on public office in order to devote more time to his business. He has served one term in the Nebraska house and three terms in the state senate, and though he is a democrat in a heavily republican district, he carried by a good-sized majority every precinct in his big home county in the last election. He says he is very much interested in legislative work, but he has decided to retire in favor of his chosen newspaper field. But besides his service in the legislature, he has been engaged in many public activities, notably in connection with the state fair board, and he may be depended on to continue giving much time and effort to worthy public work. If his newspaper improves faster under his increased attention than it has during the past few years, it will make wonderful headlines. It has been one of the outstanding newspapers of the state for a long time.

NEED OF HOBBLES. As a school town, with a growing State Teachers College, it is important to hobble the activities of young men who are tempted to make unwelcome advances toward an increasing army of comely girl students. The boys who were lately repulsed and fined for urging attentions without previous acquaintance, but who claim this to have been their first offense, are said to have had records of good behavior, but infringements of this sort have been attempted so often in past years by presumptuous galoots that authorities naturally do not feel mercifully inclined when a case is reported. If a young man yearns for the association of a girl student he should persuade some one to introduce him in the regular way. He should be polite and unobtrusive, and if at night, he should carry a lantern, so that she may look him over and see if she wants to go with him. The policy of virtually grabbing a girl off the street at night without the formality of preliminary acquaintance is reprehensible and inexcusable, and the school and town have sound reason to seek vigorous prosecution of any who may be found guilty.

WORK AS ANTIDOTE. A 17-year-old youth who confessed to several robberies following arrest at Fairbury, and who has been sent to the penitentiary for a thirty-year term to think things over, confessed that he was a pal of Edward Hickman, notorious kidnaper and murderer. These young men between 15 and 20 years old, often belonging to wealthy families, and yielding to crime as a crazy adventure or a way to escape work, should early be required to perform responsible tasks every day. We have heard parents make the foolish remark that they would not have their children toil as they had toiled. Hard work has never hurt any one, and it is a powerful neutralizer of evil tendencies. Whether one is rich or poor, a sage or an ignoramus, he should want his children to feel compelled to be employed regularly and to assume obligations and responsibility. Idleness is ruinous.

CRIME PROBLEMS. Judge Ben H. Lindsay, former judge of the Denver juvenile court, contributes an article to a recent magazine giving his experience and views in connection with handling criminals. He is a firm believer in the efficacy of the kind of court he presided over in Colorado, and he would extend and elaborate this way of solving crime problems by everywhere establishing what he would term a "House of Human Welfare." In Denver he straightened many bent natures, and evolved fairly respectable and useful citizens from human wrecks. He believes in restricting criminally inclined individuals, and if possible fashioning them over into worthwhile members of society. He thinks the criminal court may often make criminals instead of correcting and curing them. He would establish a House of Human Welfare in every community, just as the church, school and hospital are now valuable fixtures in every community. "I have faith that the LEGALIZED KILLING. The revolting details of the Snyder-Gray execution have been spread before the world, and the archaic rule of an eye for an eye has been reenacted to the horror of multiplied thousands who shudder and recoil at thought of legalized killing as they do over the murderous deed of a cruel low-brow or a maudlin maniac. Every precaution was taken to prevent self-destruction on the condemned pair, so that nothing could interfere with the regularity of authorized brutality. Why not make it convenient, rather than difficult, for a doomed prisoner to extinguish himself, and thus relieve society of a gruesome experience? Everything in connection with the horrifying spectacle, even to agonizing groans, was carefully depicted. While a criminal may be insane and deserve extinction, his execution with all the flaming circumstances, does violence to the sensibilities of people who regard taking human life by deliberate processes of the state a harkening back to the primal order of retaliation and revenge. People who shrink from capital punishment as a means of expiating crime, are not in sympathy with criminals, nor are they foolish sentimentalists. It is foolish sentimentalism what has been done to the state that makes people think modern civilization is still stained and hampered by the blood lust of the middle ages. It is doubtful if capital punishment is a deterrent to the murder mania. On the other hand, it outrages the feelings of those members of society who hope for effectual ways to handle criminals without preserving methods of savagery. But if it is advisable to snuff out the lives of criminals, the public should not be tortured by long delays.

House of Human Welfare, in the fulness of time," says Mr. Lindsay, "will become a reality, not in a few scattered places only, but throughout the length and breadth of America, and ultimately of the civilized world."

Business. Sioux City Journal: The outlook for the year is brighter than actual trade activity might seem to justify. That is to say that the surface indications would not suggest to the public at large that a steady general improvement is to be expected. But in business more than surface indications must be considered to get the proper perspective. And now, since reconstruction began, one is obliged to look below the surface to see what 1928 promises. It is of value in an analysis of this kind to recall that there was a curtailment generally last year of industrial activity. Production was lowered in many lines. The law of supply and demand was operating. This was bound to result in a depletion of goods in many directions. There is no shortage of goods now. Industry easily can supply through wholesalers and jobbers everything the trade demands, but what is meant is that there is no heavy oversupply of merchandise. In view of the fact that the buying power of an important element of trade, the farming population, has strengthened, thanks to better prices for agricultural products, it is reasonable to expect an increasing demand for general merchandise. When that is done industry will increase production, employing more workers, and these, in turn, will enjoy in the mass larger incomes. So the purchasing power of another element, labor in industry, likewise will be increased, making for better business. There is another interesting and important feature that contributes to the brighter outlook for the year. Building is to show an improvement. The margin of the surplus seen as an oversupply of residences and other properties is smaller than it was last year, and fact sufficient to indicate to producers of building materials that construction work will improve. In the textile industry substantial progress is forecast by its leaders. The mills have developed a plan of adjusting their output to indicated demand and will not tie up vast amounts of money in domestics for which there is no ready market. Coal shipments have improved. A year of considerable activity in iron and steel is indicated. J. P. Morgan's election to be chairman of the board of the United States Steel corporation is seen as indicating advancement in this basic industry. A record year in the production of motor cars is forecast. It would not be forecast but for one thing—the manufacturers have surveyed economic conditions and have sensed an increase in general buying power on the part of the people.

"Friendly nations" sounds funny. Are men friendly when they discuss the kind of knives they will use on one another next week?—Anaheim (Cal.) Plain Dealer. Sports make a nation hardy. You build up a lot of resistance sitting on a cold step of concrete.—Bellingham Herald and Review. Now Congress confers a medal on Lindbergh. That young man really needs to get chesty if he is going to have room for all his decorations.—Marshall County (Minn.) Banner.

Capital Punishment. Dr. A. L. Kirby in Lincoln Journal. Mrs. Albert Snyder and Henry Judd Gray were in love. Both were already married and should have held sacred and inviolate the vows they had taken. Fidelity, constancy, and all that. Instead they planned to break their marital moorings by violence that they might enjoy companionate privileges without molestation. Albert Snyder was the first obstacle to be set aside. Some day he would be taken in the natural order of things. Why not use a hammer and step up the program? As we recall the incident Albert was getting on in years, and with some it were better to be dead than become infirm and perhaps lapse into senility. Is isn't that society objects to killing people who ought to be killed. The big idea is to proceed with the work in a legal and orderly manner. A verdict methodically obtained; a sentence judicially pronounced; a date fixed by legal sanction; and then the electric chair or the rope, rightly adjusted and the rest is easy. No hammer, no gun, no hemlock draught—and the punishment for premeditated murder is brought to a dramatic close. The law has been vindicated by what, in one case is pronounced atrocity; in the other an equitable adjustment. Touching this problem of retaliatory killing, Alva Eastman, one of the brightest editors in the state of Minnesota, has this to say: "The Minneapolis Journal, with its obsession of capital punishment, calls attention to some brutal murders in Wisconsin and Minnesota, and says the most judge could do to the murderers was to send them to prison for life. The Journal thinks the majority of the people of these two states would go back to the barbaric executions if they could. What's to stop them? If the majority of the people really want capital punishment brought back, they have the power. But while the Journal is bewailing conditions in Minnesota and Wisconsin, it might take a look at Illinois, and also see what is doing in California, two states that are basking under the security of legalized murder. Nothing quite so horrible has shocked public sentiment as the two recent murders in California, and for deliberate fiendish brutality the gun gangs of Chicago and Herrin are the last words in infamy. The Journal ought to have intelligence enough to realize that capital punishment is no four-wheel brake on crime—and if it does not tend to bring fear to the souls of potential killers, there is no other excuse for it."

Insane Criminals. Lincoln Journal: The defense has indicated that it will rely on the plea of insanity to save young Hickman from the gallows. The prosecution is making strenuous preparations to prove that Hickman is sane. To the public such procedure in connection with the prosecution of an important murder case comes as a matter of course. It is assumed to be the last legal subterfuge of a desperate man. Once the crime of murder is fixed beyond question on a particular individual it is taken for granted that he will raise the plea of insanity as a defense. If a judge or jury can be convinced that the defendant was insane when he committed the crime his life is spared. If the court can be convinced that since committing the crime he has become insane his life will not be taken by the state as long as he remains in that condition. It is a favorite defense because it is comparatively easy to convince a normal person that one who can commit a murder must be mentally unbalanced, and the more atrocious the crime, the more plausible the plea that the criminal was deranged. The Remus case, just decided, is a notable example of its successful use. To the public at large, the saving of a confessed murderer from the gallows through the plea of insanity indicates merely clever work on the part of his lawyers. The criminal is either sane or insane according to the skill of his counsel. The psychiatrist knows, however, that practically every genuine criminal is mentally abnormal. The question raised by many psychiatrists and criminologists is not whether or not the criminal is insane, but whether or not his insanity should entitle him to live. Our criminal law has its roots back to a prehistoric institution, the blood feud, in Bible times, and before, if a man was injured or killed by another the blood relatives of the sufferer were permitted to wreak suitable vengeance on the offender. Gradually the government took over this function, but the theory on which the government has acted has remained the same. The state just is revenged on the criminal. In the language of Gilbert and Sullivan's sublime "Mikado," "the punishment must fit the crime." Obviously if the criminal was insane at the time he committed the crime he was no more responsible from a moral standpoint than the weapon with which he inflicted the injury. Hence insanity came to be regarded as a perfect defense; especially as, among primitive people, lunatics were always treated with special consideration as being in communion with unseen powers. Today it is being argued by certain criminologists that the primary object of the state is not to avenge the crime on the criminal but to protect society from his further crime. If society can only be adequately protected by the death of the criminal, then he should be humanely destroyed. True, human nature revolts at the taking of life, but frequent occasions arise where it is necessary for the benefit of society as a whole. War is an obvious illustration. Permitting the taking of life in self-defense is another. Where the life of the mother can be saved in no other way the physician will not hesitate to destroy that of her unborn child. So, in the opinion of many criminologists, should insane criminals be treated where the welfare of society is at stake. Such a procedure would raise the administration of criminal law from the status of a football game between opposing squads of lawyers to a scientific method of protecting society from its diseased members.

Most People Good. York Republican: An expert in crime statistics asserts that ninety per cent of the people of this country are law abiding. Only ten per cent on an average, he declares, have been indicted or convicted of crimes, and only half of that number have committed heinous crimes. Reading the daily newspaper creates the impression that criminals are in the majority. It is comforting to know that, bad and numerous as they seem to be, they are only a tenth of the folks who make up our citizenship. With nine out of ten keeping the law, government will keep on.

Legion Invited To Hear Monahan Band. The American Legion post met last evening to consider an invitation from Hartington to attend a program to be given there today by the Monahan post band of Sioux City. Some of the men plan to go.

Dairy Development. Omaha World-Herald: Carl R. Gray, president and one of the leading founders of the Nebraska Dairy Development society, is quoted as having expressed satisfaction at the annual meeting of the society in Lincoln with the progress of the campaign for the improvement of dairying in this state. He may well feel pleased. For the growth of the dairy industry reflected in Mr. Gray's report, is one of the outstanding Nebraska achievements of recent years. Some of the figures, representative of this growth, are so significant of progress that they will bear repeating. The number of cows milked in Nebraska has increased from 491 thousand in 1920 to 590 thousand in 1926, an increase of 20 per cent, while the milk production has grown from 1,648,253,200 pounds to 2,468,373,900 pounds, an increase of 50 per cent. Here is an accomplishment that is not only worth recording, but worth blowing about. By feeding six cows where five were fed six years earlier the dairy farmer is getting the milk that he formerly took seven and a half cows to produce. This is the direct result of aroused attention to the improvement of breeding stock and their testing of the milk cow to see that she not only earns her keep but returns a profit. The difference between haphazard and modern managed dairying is illustrated in the comparison of production figures. While all Nebraska cows were producing an annual average of 4,180 pounds of milk the tested cows in improvement associations were producing an annual average of 7,094 pounds. The consequence of this effort at improvement has been to raise the standard of state production an average of 820 pounds per cow per year. That industry affording a market for this increased milk production has kept pace with the dairy growth is indicated in figures from the processors. Creamery butter production jumped from 55,661,000 pounds in 1920 to 95 million pounds in 1926. Two factories produced 60 thousand pounds of cheese in 1920, whereas eleven produced 718 thousand pounds in 1926. Estimates for the past year show dairying has nowhere near reached its full growth yet, but is continuing. Milk production is expected to show a five per cent increase and when the cheese manufacturing figures are in they will probably tell of a production of 1,200,000 pounds in sixteen factories. Most of this growth represents a clear gain to Nebraska agriculture and industry. It is something added to our rural production rather than a mere substitution of one form of farming for another. For the work is being done in bringing about these results the Nebraska Dairy Development society has earned the gratitude not only of those who have benefited directly from its help, but of all who rejoice in seeing the foundations deeply and firmly laid for the prosperity of this region.

Your Farrowing Problems SOLVED With Our Quality Three In One Unit House

—The McLean System of raising pigs has met with the greatest success and used the country over. Both farmers and breeders who have tried this method out have adopted it exclusively and recommend it highly. —We have looked into this matter very carefully and have spent considerable time and money finding out what other sections of this state and Iowa have been doing. —Last week we made a trip of over six hundred miles visiting the different points in Nebraska and Iowa that are manufacturing portable Hog Houses and Brooder Houses and saw them being built by the hundreds in all styles and shapes. —We were doing what you call getting an eye full and while we came home with a lot of good ideas, that we are building into our houses, we can say without boasting that the quality of materials used and our construction are much better than any that were seen. —We are building an Individual Farrowing House which is 6x7 floor size, bolted together and come in five pieces, easily set up with lock joints, which make it wind tight, a feature that no other company is manufacturing. —With this same house we can keep adding sections so that you can make as many pens as you wish. —It will pay you to drive many miles to see this Unit House as there is nothing like it in the country, and the price is very reasonable. In fact we can sell you this house much cheaper than you can send for it and save you the freight, besides giving you a much better built house. —We have a more modern, up-to-date factory than we saw in all of our trip and can build anything made out of wood. —Come in and see us, before you buy a Hog House, Brooder House or Self Feeder. We will be pleased to show you what we are making.

LaPorte News

(By the LaPorte Com. Club.) Ed LaPorte was Sunday dinner guest of Jack Soderberg's. Mrs. Harold Spars called on Mrs. Elmer Haglund a day last week. The men who own telephones on line 408, had a meeting Monday evening.

women huddled in the LaPorte store, which was located a little way from the court house, and watched anxiously lest the fire jump the creek in sight of LaPorte and take their homes. It developed that Mrs. W. A. Hunter fought the fire in the ranks with the men until she was almost exhausted, and they returned home and depleted the family larder, serving lunch to the boys who came in with their faces blackened as to be hardly recognizable. To the pioneers these ladies were still Stille, Mary and so on. The club is very happy to have been able to give pleasure to these people. The aim of the members of the LaPorte Community club is to improve themselves and to give service to others and to refrain from injuring any one by word or deed. The next meeting of the club will be Feb. 1 at the S. J. Hale home with Mrs. Hale, Mrs. Ritze and Mrs. Ray Baker hostesses. A 1 o'clock luncheon will be served.

Market Report.

Furnished by Steele, Siman & Co., Sioux City Stock Yards. Sioux City, Stock Yards, Jan. 18.—Buyers in all departments seem unable to secure a sufficient number of cattle, with the result that daily clearances continue to be active and strong on the first level of the season. The first two days of the week brought an aggregate of 118,600 less cattle to the 11 leading markets of the country, about 5,000 less than arrived the same two days of last week. Fed steers and yearlings are easily on the high level of the 1926-1927 period, which is also the peak since the deflation following the world war. Several times heaves fed only 100 days have sold to $17.25 and over and therefore it is next to impossible to put an accurate price on a strictly ripe load of longfeds. Fair to good shortfeds are worth from $12.00 to $15.00, with both weight and quality prominent selling factors. Common to fair kinds are worth from $10.00 to $12.00, but where the warmed up kinds carry good quality they are worth more to the feeder buyers than to the packers. Fair to good shortfed yearling heifers hit the price list from $10.00 to $12.00, with choice kinds up to $12.50. Prime light weight kosher cows sold up to $11.00, with good to choice heavy fed cows through regular channels from $9.50 to $10.50. Fair to good cows $8.00 to $9.50. Practically no plain beef cows are coming. Cutters figure steady this week from $5.50 to $6.00, with canners largely a sale off a $5.00 basis. Bulls reflect recent reactionary adjustments, which pulled prices down over $1.00. Bolognas now selling from $7.00 to $7.75 and heavy fed bulls from $8.00 to $8.50. Veals topping at $11.50 with an occasional fancy light selection to $12.00. Stockers and feeders are fully 25 cents higher for the week, which means that prices are that much above any previous outlet this season. Green feeding steers have topped at $12.25 and warmed ups have been taken away from the packers at $12.50 and $12.65, the latter figure the extreme top to date. Most of the sales have been on good to choice kinds from $10.50 to $12.00 and over. Fed fair to good kinds are moving to earn from $9.50 to $10.50, and practically no plain kinds to sell under that spread. Choice light feeding heifers are topping at $9.00 and over. Light heifers cows have sold up to $7.50 and regulation feeding cows are selling from $6.50 up. Packers seem to have pouched hogs down about as low as they can go. Most of the butchers sold the first half of the week on an $8.00 basis. At that level packers have tried to apply pressure, but could not hide a greedy attitude. Hog receipts over the country are rapidly getting into a full seasonal swing. The first two days of the week brought 369,000 porkers to the 11 leading markets, a gain of 77,200 hogs over the delivery the same days last week and 116,000 more than arrived the corresponding period in 1927. Light local lamb receipts tended to shove this market into a high relative position and tops reached $13.00 on fed westerns the first half of the week. Ewes continue forming a decidedly light percentage of the national receipts and are in strong favor. Prices stronger for the week, with tops on choice light ewes to $7.50. Stock Company To Broadcast Numbers The Emma May Cook Stock company will broadcast a program of entertainment from radio station KGCH, Wayne, this Thursday afternoon at 4 o'clock. The company, featuring Crazy Paul, is showing each evening this week at the Wayne community house in dramatic comedies with popular musical and other vaudeville numbers. Cattle Testing Will Be Pushed Will Rush Second General Examination to Finish Before Spring Work Starts Testing of cattle for eradication of tuberculosis in Wayne county will be rushed the coming few weeks to enable the work to be completed before spring work starts on the farms. Dr. P. M. Purdy who is in charge of the testing, will be assisted by Dr. Norman Hanson, Dr. L. E. Williams, Dr. L. J. Conolly and Dr. Charles Parish of Lincoln. The men will come next Monday. The second general test of cattle is being conducted. Part of several precincts have been completed. The county will be declared an accredited area after the second test shows less than 5 percent reactors. Testing starts in Leslie and Brenna precincts next week. Twenty-One Cars Stock In And Out Stock shipments from Wayne for the week beginning January 11 are the following: Otto Sals and John Jorgenson, each one of cattle to Omaha; Alfred Meier, Emil Reinhardt and Ernest Harrigfeld, each one car of hogs to Sioux City; and Ray Robinson and C. J. Lund, each one car of cattle to Sioux City. Ed Sandahl, Kay & Swartz, E. J. Auker, Beckman brothers and C. W. Pfeil, each shipped in one car of cattle; August Kruse and George McEachen each shipped in two cars of cattle; Andrew Stamm, shipped in four cars of cattle; and James B. Grier shipped in one car of stock hogs. Hurt by Fall From Ladder. Postville, Neb., Jan. 14.—William Holmes fell from a step ladder Thursday afternoon and tore the nail from his left thumb and injured his shoulder. The accident happened while he was putting some tin on the roof of his work shop.

Reminiscences Told At Pioneer Party

Pioneer day, which was observed by the LaPorte Community club Wednesday at LaPorte, was a happy occasion. Some of the pioneers had not met each other for so many years that recognition was difficult. The pioneers were given a room by themselves in which refreshments were provided for all and the process of renewing acquaintances was very joyous. In the reminiscences it developed that Stephen Nichols holds the only land in Wayne county that has neither been transferred nor mortgaged; that he was pursued for miles by the Indians who later killed a farm boy of the same name. They themselves were sought and hanged. Mrs. Brittain told of the fright during the prairie fire which took the life of Mrs. Durin and Anna. The

Windmill Used For Electricity

Power and Light Are Furnished
on Farm From Batteries
Filled by Generator.

Near Radium Mine

Vein Containing Valuable Chemical Lies Beneath Surface
on Lessman Place.

Electricity, generated from a windmill and stored in batteries, has been used successfully for furnishing light and power on the Simon Lessman farm six miles northeast of Wayne for the past five years. "The initial cost is the greatest," states Mr. Lessman, "the upkeep practically amounting to nothing." The plant on the Lessman farm, known as the Perkins Aerelectric, is the only one in use in this part of the state. Another is in operation near Lincoln. Mr. Lessman asserts.

The windmill is similar to other types. Mr. Lessman has his situated on a high, unprotected spot on the farm, about 200 feet from the house. A generator is back of the wheel. The fourteen-foot wheel has a surface of ninety-five square feet. When the wheel turns once, the generator wheel turns forty times, creating electricity which is carried by wires to the basement of the house and stored in 32-cell batteries.

The entire windmill apparatus weighs 1,500 pounds. Other models of the same machine. Mr. Lessman says, weigh 300 pounds. During his experience with the windmill, Mr. Lessman has had to buy but one new generator brush, which cost $35, and a gallon of oil each year for the generator.

The windmill stores electricity which is used for lighting the large residence, barn and mill on the farm, running the separator, pumping all water and in doing any other work in which light or power are needed.

Near Radium Mine

To a visitor at the Lessman farm, the windmill is not the only thing of interest. Lying about 200 feet from the windmill is a radium mine. In a grove of trees is a space about twenty feet across on which no trees will grow. Soil from this spot, has been sent to two separate schools of chemical research and each has given a positive report. The Colorado School of Mines situated at Golden, reports 23 percent radium activity in the soil. The Radium Ore Joint Company of San Francisco, reports the presence of the chemical but does not state the amount.

For several years neighbors have noticed, on dark, damp nights, that a pillar of light rises from this spot in the grove. A German chemist, visiting in the neighborhood examined the place and assured Mr. Lessman that the soil contained radium. Urged to send samples to schools of chemical analysis, Mr. Lessman did so, and he has received the favorable report.

The light which is seen above the radium spot stands to a height of about twenty-five feet. It is so light as to allow one at a distance to distinguish twigs on the trees nearby. Mr. Lessman has tested the soil for use as a cure. Mixed with water the soil has healed skin diseases on persons as well as on animals. The family placed some in a jar of water for drinking, and Mr. Lessman finds that he has been cured of stomach trouble since taking the liquid. The water tastes of mineral and is effervescent. As an experiment, some was tied in a cloth and placed in water. The cloth puffed out as though it were being pushed by some force.

Drilling in the radium ground on the Lessman farm showed that this vein of soil is thirty-three feet below the surface, and the vein is about twelve feet thick and in a funnel shape. The soil containing the radium is different from that above it and after lying in the open air for a time it seems to shrink. It does not, however, lose its radio-activity for the samples sent to the schools of research had laid outside on the ground for four months before being used.

Three sets of trees have been planted by Mr. Lessman on the radium spot and the third ones are dying. The first crop in the rest of the grove is large and thriving.

Mr. Lessman says the radium soil has already been wonderfully effective in healing members of his family and neighbors and he is satisfied with the results. Further drilling is planned later to determine the exact extent of the soil. The find is considered most valuable.

Old Paper Found Here Is Novelty

C. W. Fortner Has Copy of Daily Printed in Pennsylvania Over Eighty Years Ago.

G. W. Fortner has a paper which was printed Sept. 5, 1840, in Berwick, Penna. The paper was in a desk which belonged to Mr. Fortner's grandfather, A. Fortner. The desk was given to Mr. Fortner's father and later to Mr. Fortner. The paper is well preserved and contains a number of interesting items. It is a six-column, four-page edition. The paper is a daily and is called the Berwick Conservative.

The first page contains a story, "He Shall Propose." The first page also contains a traveler's description of the ruins of Pompeii after a visit there in 1839, and history of Pompeii being destroyed by an eruption of Mount Vesuvius in 79 A. D. About thirty streets of the city are now restored to light.

The newspaper also contains editorial comments. One on intemperance says: "It marches on its onward march, it reaches to others, invades the family circle and spreads woe and sorrow all around." An editorial on "Beauty" is in part as follows: "How universal is the practice among mankind to admire, adore and reverence beauty; in fact it may justly be termed an attribute of our nature so to do, and so powerful is its sway over the senses that vast numbers being lost in the contemplation of it stop not short of even worshipping at its shrine."

Page two of the eighty-seven-year-old newspaper contains extracts from a speech delivered by Mr. Ogle in Washington, D. C. Reports of happenings in the senate are also included. Discussing the purchase of foreign oilcloths and carpets to adorn the White House, Mr. Ogle says, "All furniture purchased for the use of the President's house shall be as far as practicable of American or domestic manufacture." "The country is now in debt about $40,000. Expenses have increased $104,000 during the past four years. Can you submit to such squandering of funds?"

William H. Harrison of Ohio, is candidate for president, and John Tyler of Virginia, is candidate for vice president, on the democratic ticket. Mr. Harrison says, "I think that imprisonment for debt under any circumstances but that where fraud is alleged, is at war with the best principles of our Constitution and ought to be abolished."

"Martin VanBuren proposed to establish a standing army and if elected to the presidency he will propose this to congress. This and other discussion of politics constitute the third page of the paper.

Advertisements in the newspaper are written as stories. One reads as follows: "Soap and candles, just received a quantity of soap and candles; also potash, which will be sold on as reasonable terms as they can be obtained elsewhere; also a splendid lot of Yankee cheese (700 weight) unsurpassed for excellence and quality, which will be sold at a little lower than it can be had at any Tee-Totia establishment, in Berwick, Fowler & Driesbach."

"The city hall clock is undergoing the process of cleaning. The consequence is that its hands now point in all directions but the true one, whereby many persons have been mystified, inconvenienced and led astray."

Another advertisement in the paper reads as follows: "Oh yes, Oh yes, my goods, we would again say to our customers and the public in general that we are now just receiving and opening the best lot of groceries that have ever been brought to this market, the best of Rio coffee; cigars of all kinds and prices; to suit the buyers, the best of Y. H. tea which we will warrant if the old women try they will say it is first rate, rice raisins, sweet spices, chocolate, and any other kind of goods that you may call for; also a splendid assortment of sole and upper leather and calf skin."

Writes Article In Stock Record

Interesting Feature by D. H. Cunningham is Published in Sioux City Paper.

D. H. Cunningham of Wayne was invited by the Sioux City Live Stock Record to write an article for that publication recently on "The Business of Selling Property." The article contains much interesting information and is as follows:

"The business of selling property at public auction is an old, established one. In fact, it is one of the oldest methods of purveying known. Prior to a comparatively few short years ago, however, it was confined largely to the disposal of live stock and the agricultural products, but the field has constantly enlarged and widened until at the present time we find practically every commodity subject to disposal by this method," writes D. H. (Don) Cunningham, auctioneer of Wayne, Neb.

"Naturally a business of this sort must be in close touch with the public, and probably no other business has its finger on the public pulse of values in a way that enables it to notice or forecast changes any more readily than does the auction business. In fact, you might call it one of the best barometers of the buying public's mind that there is in existence at the present time."

"In the middle west, as it particularly affects you and me, we are interested in the prices and conditions affecting our farm commodities, and the barometer of value has fluctuated so violently in the last ten years that we are naturally in a quandary as to the outcome of it all. From the black years of 1921 and 1922, I know from personal experience in the selling end that there has been a gradual improvement year by year in prices that the buying public has been willing to give, until at the opening of the public sale season this year, as regards live stock and farm commodities, we find prices nearly back to a pre-war level. This would seem to indicate that, although it has come slowly, yet the return to a more normal condition is certainly on the way."

"However, there seems to be one commodity, in fact, the one in which we are most vitally interested, that is having a slower return to value than any of the rest and that is the land, or if you please, the principal investment itself. The causes of its deflation in value are too well known to all of us to be taken up here, but it seems that perhaps there are too many of us who dwell upon the present values in hand, or those of the immediate past, and have lost the perspective of what we may rightfully expect it to do in the future, if history is to repeat itself as it always has."

"It would seem that the greatest asset our lands could have is the confidence of its owners and prospective owner in it, and it begins to look as though some of the people who profess to have our agricultural interests close to their hearts, are probably doing the most harm to these interests by destroying our confidence in our lands and agricultural pursuits. It would not be a difficult matter at all to wreck the strongest bank or business institution in any community if the hue and cry were raised that these institutions were weak and could not possibly survive. Wouldn't it be better, if, instead of crying that Iowa and Nebraska were broke and our farming interests doomed, a constructive rather than a destructive course could be pursued for a time? "Every fortune, or even every comfortable income in the middle west, or as it comes home to you and me, in Iowa and Nebraska, has been amassed primarily from the lands of these states. Can we rightfully expect the oncoming generation to carry on if we constantly cry, "Woe!" Can we expect the boys and girls of the farms to have confidence in their future calling if we heap censure in them a distrust for that calling?"

"Certainly there have been and are inequalities between industry and agriculture that are detrimental to agriculture and if it be possible these most surely should be adjusted. But it does look as though this adjustment might be done without injuring agriculture by overt criticisms and acts.

"It is a mighty gratifying thing, as one keeps in touch with conditions, to find that the men who are out really working the farms are the ones who are doing the least complaining. It seems as though the so-called leaders have taken upon themselves the task of 'viewing with alarm' and one wonders sometimes if more of it is not for effect than for real results."

"If we all might have the privilege of seeing the work of the club boys and girls from these farms and the improved methods that are coming into being through these boys' and girls' organizations, our faith in the future of our lands and their values would be strengthened. Regardless of all other power, the greatest power in the world is man power and the potential man power is here, in these boys and girls. It's up to you and me to keep instilling that confidence into them that our lands and our capital investment are worth the effort they will have to put forth. If we lean do that we have done away with the bugaboo of the peasantry and so-called serfdom of the farm, and the agricultural destiny of Iowa and Nebraska will rest in capable hands."

Estate Tax Case
Appealed Again
Lincoln, Neb., Jan. 7.—Second motion for rehearing in the Bronzynski inheritance tax case, from Wayne county, has been filed by County Attorney Hendrickson of Wayne. He claims that the court has no jurisdiction in the case because the appeal was not filed within the time allowed by law, and that in any event the appeal was taken by the executor, who had no interest in the matter.

The attorney says the record shows that the heirs did not object to paying the $2,574 assessed by the lower court. The supreme court decision holds that the county cannot collect because the deeds to the children were not made in contemplation of death.

Plan Meeting For Bettering Roads

E. W. Wright of Wayne, and William Kay of Wakefield, were in Norfolk last week to confer with F. H. Humphrey, secretary of the chamber of commerce, in regard to holding a meeting of the Grainland Highway association in Norfolk some time in February, the purposes being to promote improvement of this road which leads from Sioux City to Norfolk and from Norfolk to Platte Center, Fullerton and Grand Island. Mr. Kay is president of the Grainland association.

An effort is being made to bring improvement to the Norfolk-Sioux City sector of the highway during 1928. Traffic is increasing over this portion and very little of it is gravelled. The public must travel from Norfolk to West Point, Walthill, Lyons and Oakland during stormy weather to secure a good road to Sioux City. This is a distance of fifty miles farther than by the Grainland highway.

Many northeast Nebraska road boosters plan to attend the meeting to be held in Norfolk.

Headed for Pen.
Albion News: There are some Albion boys who are headed straight for the penitentiary. It isn't a pleasant thing to say, but the sooner those concerned are brought up against the facts, the better it will be. Smoothing things over is simply postponing the day when the accounting must be made. We believe that every boy, evily inclined, ought to be given a chance to come clean. These boys have had that chance. The time has come for stern measures. If they again run afoul the officers and are brought into court, public opinion will demand that they be given their just deserts. There can be no justification in extending further mercy. They have been given every chance that boys could ask. There is only one other remedy and the law provides that. Even that may fail, but perhaps it will be the means of turning other boys from the path of idleness and crime. It isn't even fair to these boys themselves, to permit them to establish themselves in careers of crime. It is to their own interests, as well as the interest of other boys, that they be brought up short.

Randolph Farmer Severely Injured
Ed. Berner of Randolph, had his left foot torn off in a corn picker last week Monday, and the leg had to be amputated near the knee. Mr. Berner was on the back of the tractor, which was being driven by his brother, when his overall became caught in the power take-off mechanism, which is a revolving rod with knuckles. The left foot was torn completely off and the muscles of the leg were wound into the mechanism. The leg being held tight in the machinery while the brother summoned aid saved the lad from bleeding to death. Mr. Berner is 22 years old.

GROWING POPULARITY

From observation we judge that salads are growing in popularity and that more people like them than any other one ordinary compound, and a salad is considered beautiful as well as appetizing. The component parts of a salad differ greatly, and thus it is a quarrelsome onion is dropped in among mild-mannered ingredients, the result is likely to disturb an unsuspecting stomach. If the other parties to the salad become enraged and pick on the onion and try to throw it out, and if in retaliation the onion chases its adversaries around the included arena flinging beans and other sharp-nosed fleecing spuds and rice balls, the joy of the occasion is turned into a tragic riot. Thus, when scraps from the pantry are scraped into and over a parapet of lettuce, it is important to make selection with a nice regard for social standing and so promote harmony and insure freedom from violence. Care in shooting the right things into a salad converts into an Elysium of delight what otherwise might be a wild jamboree.

Death Penalty Is Relic Of Savagery

Wayne, Jan. 14.—To the Herald: The revulsion of feeling in the public mind at the thought of the execution of Ruth Snyder seems to substantiate the principal contention of the opponents of capital punishment. These opponents have long urged that taking the life of a human being even by legal methods, was cruel, inhuman, and a throwover from a barbarous age when boiling in oil, drawing and quartering, and other graceful forms of legalized butchery were deemed fitting punishments.

The ordinary man or woman says of society's victims "it serves them right" and "they got what was coming to them." This is a manifestation of that primitive eye-for-eye and tooth-for-tooth morality which we suppose to have been tempered and altered by the Newer Revelation. Other proponents of the hastily business call attention to the great wrong that has been done the family of the deceased, as if by some magic method, this wrong will be expiated by another death.

We believe that punishment does act as a deterrent to crime. But we believe that punishment be as rigorous as the death penalty, has the most salubrious effect on the prospective criminal. In the middle ages, hanging never stopped thievery.

Ruth Snyder was found to be equally guilty with her paramour. If she was a free moral agent, her degree of responsibility was as great as his. If the great wrong to society is to be atoned and expiated, her death was as necessary as his. All the arguments for capital punishment apply as forcefully to her case as to his. That conception of justice demands the execution of the woman as well as the man.

But here is where the public mind revolts. It seems quite clearly that legal killings are brutal. It realizes that the prospect of a lifetime in prison is as sure a deterrent as an execution, if the life sentence were final. And a few of the public know that most murderers are medically insane, though able to meet the legal test for sanity. So the public feels a touch of pity for the woman who has erred not unlike that displayed by that Newer Revelation.

That wise Roman, Seneca, once said "The world had perished, had not pity set the bounds to wrath." We believe the time will come when the civilized world will abolish the death penalty as the great states of Michigan, Wisconsin, Minnesota, the Dakotas and several foreign countries have already done.—Contributed.

Report comes from the Royal Horticultural Show in London of a new orchid that can not be seen by the naked eye. Usually it is the price, and not the orchid however, that is out of sight.—Christian Science Monitor.

The American people aren't as much interested in the love that passeth understanding as they are in the car that passeth all the others. American Lumberman (Chicago).

Nebraska Leads in Roads. York Republican: Nebraska led all other states in the union in 1927 in the number of miles of highways improved. On December first this state had 1314 miles of new highway under improvement. During the year a total of six million was spent in improving Nebraska roads. Other states, our neighbors, who are going in for paved roads, spent more money. The question naturally arises—is Nebraska making a mistake in graveling the highways? Would it not be better economy to go slower and build hard surfaced roads as we go?

The Republican believes the course pursued by our highway department is best. The benefits of good roads have been generously bestowed on every part of the state. There have been no favored communities, such as there would have been if improvements had been restricted to paving. It has been an expenditure in which all the state has received its share.

It is well known that Nebraska has a different soil from its neighbors. The character of the loam makes drainage easy, and good drainage makes possible the comparatively low upkeep of graveled roads. Where gravel, on Iowa or Missouri roads would be a waste, it is a good investment in Nebraska, advancing travel and marketing conditions immensely and giving a wide benefit for a reasonable cost. Eventually Nebraska roads through the congested sections will be paved. That will not mean that the cost of graveling them in advance has been wasted.

The benefits that have been enjoyed will by that time have paid for the temporary improvement. There is a movement in Chicago to outlaw prize-fighting. Probably Mayor Thompson has just discovered that the Marquis of Queensbury was a British subject.—San Diego Union.

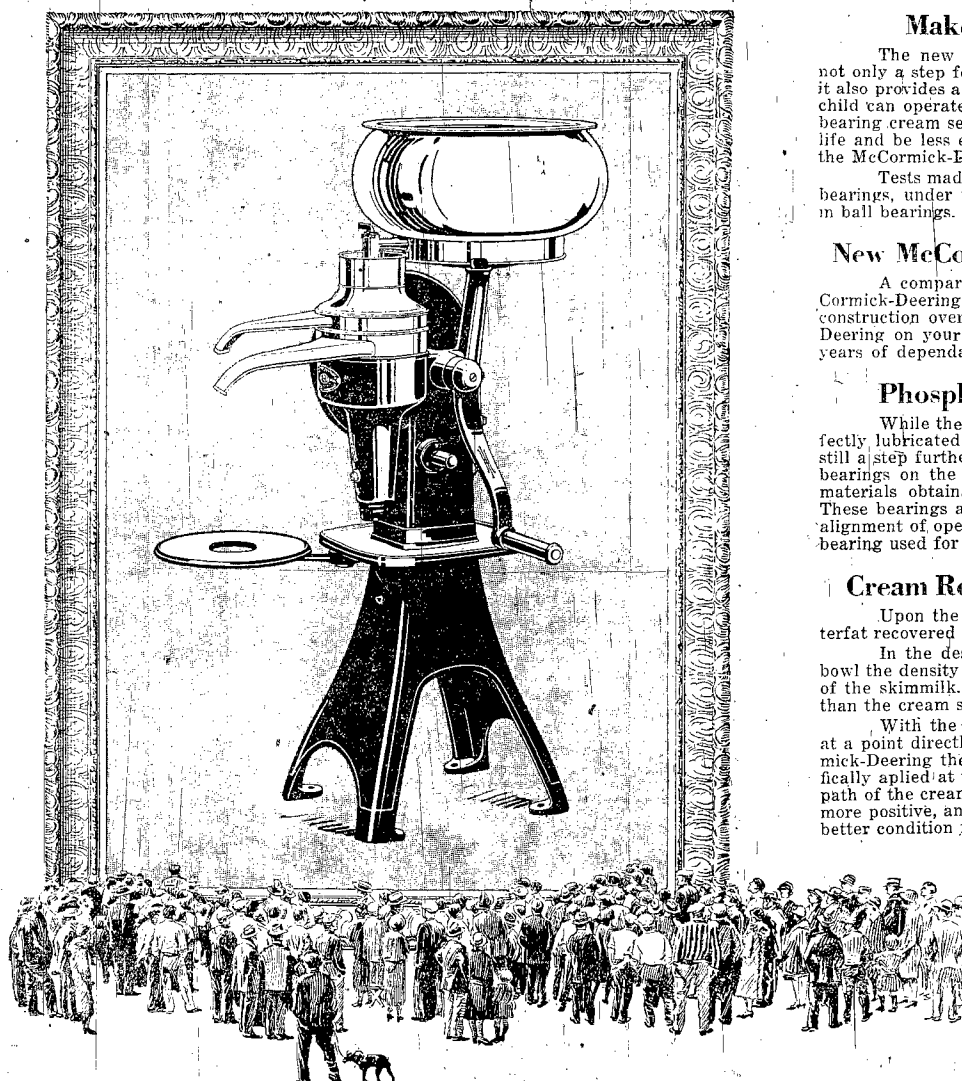

McCormick-Deering, Ball-Bearing CREAM SEPARATORS

Four Ball Bearings in the New McCormick-Deering

Until the advent of the ball-bearing McCormick-Deering, separating was a man's job where strength, endurance and considerable energy were required. Today, however, the McCormick-Deering ball-bearing cream separator with its close-skimming, easy-turning and sanitary qualities, has enabled the farmer to increase his herd, raise better cows, and sell cream, thus adding to his yearly profits. The McCormick-Deering with four ball bearings is without question one of the greatest achievements in recent years in cream separator construction. Other McCormick-Deering features are equally important, but its light-running qualities due to ball bearings have solved the dairyman's problem of separating more milk without loss of butterfat in less time, at less cost and with less labor.

Makes Child's Play of a Man's Job

The new McCormick-Deering ball-bearing cream separator is not only a step forward in providing easy turning so long desired, but it also provides a quiet, smooth running machine that even a woman or child can operate with ease. Experienced persons know that a plain-bearing cream separator with its high speed will have a much shorter life and be less efficient in operation than a ball-bearing separator of the McCormick-Deering type.

Tests made by various institutions show that the friction in plain bearings, under the best conditions, is almost four times as great as in ball bearings.

New McCormick-Deering Invites Comparison

A comparison of any plain-bearing cream separator with a McCormick-Deering will convince you of the superiority of ball-bearing construction over that of the plain-bearing type. A new McCormick-Deering on your farm will mean greater profits from your cows and years of dependable and satisfactory service from your machine.

Phosphor Bronze Crankshaft Bearings

While the McCormick-Deering is a slow-speed machine and perfectly lubricated in every respect, yet Harvester engineers have gone still a step further by incorporating heavy removable phosphor bronze bearings on the crankshaft. These bearings are made of the finest materials obtainable and reduce friction and wear to a minimum. These bearings are adjustable and enable a closer and more accurate alignment of operating parts and are far superior to any other type of bearing used for this purpose.

Cream Regulated by Discharge of Skimmilk

Upon the construction of the bowl depends the amount of butterfat recovered from a given quantity of milk.

In the design of the new McCormick-Deering cream separator bowl the density of the cream is regulated by controlling the discharge of the skimmilk. This construction is far superior and more efficient than the cream screw-type of separator bowls.

With the cream screw-type of bowl the regulation takes place at a point directly in the path of the cream discharge. In the McCormick-Deering the skimmilk regulation of the cream density is scientifically applied at the point of discharge of the skimmilk and not in the path of the cream. This adjustment for cream density is less sensitive, more positive, and results in the delivery of a more uniform cream in a better condition for churning.

Bowl Nut

The bowl nut is made of manganese bronze and will not rust.

Bowl Shell

The bowl shell is divided in the center instead of extending to the bottom of the tubular shaft.

Dividing Disc

The dividing disc prevents the remixing of the already separated cream and skimmilk.

Cream, Skimmilk Covers and Spouts

The cream and milk spouts which are constructed of heavy steel, are one piece with no seams, laps or rivets to obstruct an even flow of cream and the proper discharge of the skimmilk.

Oil Supply Visible Through Glass Panel

The glass panel in the lower part of the supply can bracket is a convenient, positive oil supply gauge.

Bowl Drained At Machine

You do not have to hold the bowl to drain it. Draining the bowl prevents freezing in winter, contamination in summer or rusting as the result of neglect in emptying the bowl.

Simple Speed Indicator

The speed indicator (bell type) on the McCormick-Deering is located on the end of the crank. When the crank has been brought up to the speed at which the machine is intended to run, the bell will cease to ring and will remain silent as long as the proper speed for efficient operation is maintained.

Friction Clutch

This clutch is simple in construction and reliable in operation.

Metal Trough Regulates Oil Supply

An exclusive McCormick-Deering feature is the metal trough installed in the oil reservoir in which the spindle driving gear revolves, thus spraying fresh clean oil to every running part.

One-Piece Spun Metal Anti-Splash Supply Can

It is securely locked in position on the supply can bracket, which enables the operator to rest a can of milk on the side of the supply can without fear of tipping the supply can over.

Revolving Supply Can

The supply can when filled with milk can be turned easily within the bracket circuit.

Bowl Vise

The bowl vise is located within the bracket.

Main Driving Gear Thoroughly Oiled, Completely Enclosed

The main driving gear in the McCormick-Deering is completely enclosed, thus protecting it from dust and dirt.

Baptist Church. (Rev. M. G. Jones, Pastor.) Sunday school at 10 a. m. Now that the second contest is on let us give the leaders our best support. Hurrah for the red and the blue.

Praying at 11 a. m. Theme, Godly Men and a Cruel King. Join us and help us in our efforts. This means you. When all will unite in rendering service and saving the world the walls of Jerusalem will be rebuilt and the hills of Zion will again overflow with milk and honey.

Methodist Church. (Rev. G. H. Johnson, Pastor.) Bill Jones was out to Sunday school last Sunday. We had sixteen in the choir in the morning and fourteen at night. That is fine! Hope they will all be out to choir rehearsal at Mrs. J. H. Logan's next Thursday evening.

The Junior League is a live bunch. They meet in the church basement every Sunday evening at 6:30. Next Friday evening they will have a social; each one brings 10 cents for refreshments. Good congregations both times last Sunday. The W. C. T. U. presented a fine program in the evening. The attendance was large considering the kind of weather. Monte Davenport, Miss Taggart and Miss Wittgow gave readings; the choir sang and Prof. I. H. Britell gave us a fine address that ought to encourage and inspire all temperance workers.

Congregational Church. (Rev. M. G. Jones, Pastor.) Preaching at 1 p. m. Theme, Godly Men and a Cruel King. Sunday school after preaching. Senior and Junior Endeavor at 7 p. m. Also bible study. The pastor will talk on Health Regained by Faith. It is well to go to the Lord in need for He has bidden all who have any burdens upon their hearts to come to His temple and lay them before Him that we might be delivered of them. But after receiving the
