Odd Assignment Making Picture. One of the oddest assignments ever to fall to a director was the one which Josef Von Sternberg, who directed Emil Jannings in "The Last Command," received when the picture was in the making at Paramount's studios at Hollywood. "The Last Command" appears at the Crystal this Friday and Saturday.

The assignment referred to was the one which calls for discouraged, dejected, and depressed appearing persons who act as prisoners who populate a Russian prison. On the face of it, it appears that this requirement could be easily filled merely by instructing the actors to "look that way," but the producers insisted that those appearing in the scene need not call upon their imagination, but indeed, should actually be in that state of mind because of circumstances.

Director Sternberg thereupon dispatched several assistants to look up a dozen or so people who were "sore at odds" in Hollywood and vicinity. They were successfully found and injected into the scene.

Bank Guaranty Plan Explained

Frank M. Northrup of Portland, Oregon, Writes on Insurance for Depositors.

Frank M. Northrup of Portland, Ore., formerly of Wayne, writes the following interesting history and opinion regarding the bank guaranty system:

"In a recent issue of the Herald I found a brief statement of the condition of the bank deposit guaranty fund of Nebraska. Anything of general interest to the people of that state is of interest to me, hence I sought information on the subject and found it in the public library, in the form of a book published by Thomas Bruce Robb, professor of economics, University of Missouri. This supplemented by a synopsis of the report of the commissioner of banks of Minnesota to the legislature, gives a complete history of this subject down to January, 1927. Bank-deposit guaranty as we know it today seems to have originated in the popular movement of the west-central states and was agitated in Kansas and Nebraska in 1898, but was unsuccessful. The real beginning of the system may be said to have been with the enactment of such a law in Oklahoma in 1907.

Governor Haskell attended the democratic national convention at Denver in 1908 and secured the adoption of a plank in the party platform favoring laws for such a purpose. From that time on this has been more or less a partisan question, in general favored by democrats and as a consequence opposed by republicans. But sometimes the lines crossed, as in South Dakota when both parties favored the law. It can hardly be said at this time that the law is particularly a matter of party politics, but it is of interest to know something of the history of the proposition.

"In Nebraska this law was a very distinct issue in 1908. The democrats won, but when the legislature met the guaranty idea had begun to grow cold, and the personal influence of Mr. Bryan was required before such a law could be passed.

"The bank-guaranty agitation of 1908 extended much further than the four states then adopting it, Oklahoma, Kansas, Nebraska and Texas. The other principal states giving the matter serious consideration were Arkansas, Florida, Mississippi, Georgia, Tennessee, Iowa, Wisconsin, Missouri, Colorado, Nevada and Montana. In most of these states bills were presented and defeated, some only after a bitter contest, while in four states, North and South Dakota, Mississippi and Washington, the movement resulted in guaranty laws five or six years later.

"It has been of much interest to me to trace the history of the several state funds as administered down to 1920 as given in Prof. Robb's book, but it would require too much space to repeat here. A condensed statement of the conditions of the guaranty funds of the states mentioned, as given by the Minnesota commissioner of banks, is as follows: South Dakota, law was repealed by legislature but repeal held up by referendum, liability of guaranty-fund over and above assets of failed banks, $24,000,000, interest, $1,200,000, and assessments on solvent banks, $275,000. If assessment was on same basis as in Nebraska it would bring in $600,000, about one-half of annual interest. North Dakota claims more than $20,000,000, interest on certificates, $1,000,000, and assessments, $180,000. Oklahoma law was repealed in 1923. Washington law is no longer operative as all banks have withdrawn. Mississippi is heavily incumbered, and present rate of assessment would not pay out in fifteen years. Texas law was repealed in February, 1927; only twenty-five banks remained in system; and guaranty fund was insolvent. In Kansas the bank fund is a dead letter, $6,000,000 owing to depositors with less than $1,000,000 assets.

"It is stated by the authorities I have quoted that the system has come nearer to being a success in Nebraska than in any of the other states, for two reasons, that the guaranty fund had accumulated something over $2,500,000 before trouble began, and that there have been no failures of law banks.

"It would seem that something must be done, at the present system, even if there were no more failures or withdrawals of banks both of which are highly improbable, would require eight or ten years to pay out the guaranty fund. There are several possible solutions, none of which are likely to meet with unanimous approval: Absolute repeal of the law, leaving the administration of the fund for future consideration; increasing the levy upon the solvent banks, which would doubtless defeat its purpose, by greatly increasing withdrawals; an appropriation by the state, as has been suggested, which seems highly improbable, for it is very doubtful if any legislature would make any considerable appropriation for that purpose, and if it did, it would seem practically certain that the supreme court would hold such a law unconstitutional.

"The most feasible as well as the most equitable plan is to scale down the claims upon the guaranty fund to such an amount as will enable the solvent banks to pay out the fund without undue strain upon their resources. To that end the payment of interest upon the obligations of the guaranty fund should cease and future payments be made pro rata upon the claims without reference to the time of allowance.

"Further, if I may be permitted to suggest, the obligations of the funds could and ought to be scaled down, as much as possible, to fifty percent. Almost without exception the people of Nebraska, as in other states, have met with more or less loss growing out of the readjustments following the great war. There would seem to be no good reason why the depositors in state banks should not take a part of this loss. Fifty percent would be better than any other state has paid. There is some evidence to support the statement that a very considerable amount of the guaranty fund are for funds sent from without the state and which were in reality loans to the banks in which the deposit was nominally made. I think a serious error was made in calling the system a 'guaranty of deposits.' I have often heard the expression 'state guaranty of bank deposits' and am of the opinion that many thought that the state was, in a measure at least, liable upon this guaranty. In fact as well as in law, the so-called 'guaranty system' was a mutual insurance company composed of the state banks, paying premiums, administered by the state. The premiums were supposed to be sufficient to pay all depositors. But when it proved to be inadequate the insured should as in all mutual insurance companies share equally in the available funds.

"It is apparent that the failure of the bank deposit insurance scheme has mainly been caused by its application in too limited areas. This is analogous to a fire insurance company with too large risks in one block, in which all of its available assets may be wiped out by a single fire. I have long believed in the feasibility of a system of deposit insurance, but only when it should be coextensive with the whole nation. This would seem to be impossible if applied only to state banks."

Shine Road Is To Be Given Aid

State Engineer R. L. Cochran of Lincoln, writes March 24, in reply to requests from Pilger residents asking that the highway from that place to the corner eight miles south of Wayne be graveled, replies that this work will be done and that this road will be the next project to receive attention in Stanton county. Mr. Cochran's letter is as follows:

"In reply to your inquiry as to whether or not it would not be possible to have a federal highway located between Pilger and the Altona-Wayne road through the northeast part of Stanton county, instead of having to go to Wisner and thence north and west, this is to advise that we expect to submit a new federal aid map in the near future and we are making some corrections in various parts of the state. We will be glad to include on this map a route connecting the Wayne south road directly with Pilger. I have no doubt whatever that we will be able to get this approved.

"With reference to your further inquiry in regard to the routing of No. 8, this is to advise that it is not expected to make any change in the location of No. 8 between Pilger and Norfolk. In other words, it will continue to run through Stanton to Norfolk as now traveled with the possible exception that in a few years, a slight relocation might be made to the north side of the tract just east of Norfolk in order to eliminate the two grade crossings. However, this will not affect the location through Stanton.

"With further reference to your inquiry in regard to the next roads to be graveled in Stanton county, this is to advise that the north and south road through Pilger will be the next road graveled. At the present time, we have a grading contract under way and it is expected to have gravel surfacing follow this work up at a later date and it will take precedence of any other work in Stanton county."

Franked Air Mail? Lincoln Journal: Appearing before a house committee in the role of a "super-lobbyist" Lindbergh has endorsed the Swing Bill extending the franking privilege of government departments and congressmen to the airmail. This measure is especially audacious since the franking privilege has been often abused, is charged with causing the annual deficit in postoffice, department funds, and is opposed by many who seek a more economical distribution of treasury funds.

There is scarcely a voter who does not receive from time to time, some literature broadcast by a representative or senator. Every newspaper receives daily a number of bulletins and pamphlets sent out by congressmen and government departments. This material is carried by the postoffice department, much of it as letter mail, without cost to those sending it. This practice meets much opposition. Some of its opponents seek to have it abolished and force each department to pay postage. This group has calculated that if this was done the postoffice department would evolve into a paying enterprise instead of incurring an annual deficit.

The Swing bill proposes to open the air mail to this franked material. This would be a costly move since the volume of this mail is enormous, and the government would have to pay airmail rates to have it transported. The great bulk of it is unimportant. The bill is backed by companies engaged in the transportation of air mail and a few aviation enthusiasts who are letting their admiration for flying in general and Colonel Lindbergh, the super-lobbyist who backs the bill, carry them away.

Thomas F. Ziegler, former county treasurer of Cedar county and for many years a resident of Hartington and Randolph, was found dead on the railroad tracks near Dade City, Fla., where he was making his home.

Mrs. John Mueller, 44, mother of 10 children, passed away suddenly at Hartington, heart disease being the cause of the death. The tragedy of the mother's death is accentuated by the fact that less than four months ago her mother, Mrs. Frank Albrecht, died and less than a month after that her father died.

This paper is represented for general advertising by The Nebraska Press Association.

If Chicago criminals continue to use bombs instead of more sportsman-like ways of killing people, it would seem advisable for the United States to take over the city and enforce laws customary elsewhere.

Sentiment for the proposed extra levy for the band is about evenly divided, as expressed at the polls, and the defeat by a small margin is not sufficient ground to hurt the feelings of band devotees. A little extra effort would probably have put over the levy.

Reports that the western coast country from Seattle to San Francisco has been gripped lately by terrific winds, cold rains and snow, and that the serenity of the inhabitants has been further outraged by ice jams and floods are annoying to people who figure on going out there some time to find an angel climate.

If one can't be cured of finding fault with neighbors by a careful self-examination, he may be pronounced incurable. The Creator may have done as well as available material would permit in fashioning descendants of Adam, but it must be admitted that results have fallen a long ways short of the mark of perfection.

Easter Sunday revives thoughts touching the resurrection, and it appropriately comes at a time when nature is awakening and growth is being renewed. Lessons proceeding from the life and sacrifice of the Nazarene are reviewed and impressed, and the world is lifted up by considerations that are apart from and above cold materialism and gross selfishness. People may well look to Easter for inspiration in support of Christian ideals.

A Hollywood girl, called an extra in the movies, took poison with suicidal intent, because of disappointment in her struggle to win fame and fortune. She came from a prominent Chicago family and was a winner at one time in a Chicago beauty contest. Victory in the contest may have prompted her to try to capitalize her looks in the movies. Many frustrated and heart-broken girls may be found hovering around Hollywood studios in the hope of recognition.

TOLERANCE.
In granting permission for Sunday picture shows, Wayne makes a concession which it believes is only consistent with other forms of Sabbath amusement. Popular endorsement may also be accepted as an expression of confidence in the local theatre management. But we would not accept results as indicative of waning interest in the churches or a falling away from appreciation of spiritual values. Whether one derives his recreation or amusement on the Sabbath from moving pictures or golf or something else, he need not and should not relax devotion to his church or permit himself to accept liberal tendencies, formerly banned but now conventional, as an excuse to withdraw from divine worship or to grow indifferent to soul or mind culture. On the contrary, one should rebound from periods of relaxation on the Sabbath or on other days to more ardent religious devotion or more earnest and intense study or work. Play spells on any day should stimulate one, refresh, lead to serious thinking and hard physical effort. Change from observation of the old Puritan Sabbath to that of today is very marked, but people were nettled and often made worse by the restraints of the early days, and we doubt not that genuine spiritual standards are higher to-day than they were then. In the seventeenth century, people were punished for failure to attend church, and it was in 1631 that Roger Williams, pastor of the established church, was banished for opposition to punishing those believed guilty of Sabbath-breaking. Persecutions in the name of the church were frequent and deplorable in the early history of this country, but as we now swing far in the direction of religious and social freedom, we should become more—not less—deeply imbued with the importance of spiritual growth and mind culture.

While few win, many fail, and some are completely glib, who might have been happy in ordinary walks of life, is so crushed by disappointment that she seeks relief and forgetfulness through self-destruction.

Senator Geo. W. Norris is the only presidential candidate who will appear on the republican ballot at the primary, but people who do not want to vote for him, may write in the names of favorite candidates whose names do not appear. As comparatively few will write in names, Norris will receive the popular republican vote. There is not even a remote likelihood that he could be nominated in the national convention, but the Nebraska delegation will be pledged to vote for him on the start and until he ceases to aspire which will not be long after the balloting gets under way.

In the national tie-up of broadcasting stations recently, Douglas Fairbanks who presided over the program, told the world that handicaps were good for people, that no worth-while result came without effort, declaring that the "worst thing that can happen is the best thing that can happen if one does not let it get the best of him." It is often true that those who make the most of opportunities suffer handicaps and have many stubborn obstacles to overcome. An affliction frequently brings out the best in one and spurs one to reach goals that would not otherwise be attained. The handicap stimulates one to use all his power to win.

In a letter to this department Will M. Maupin makes sharp rejoinder to the Ord Quiz editor's implied charge ament "canned" editorials in connection with the Omaha Bee-News. The young man who writes editorials for the Quiz got his wires terribly crossed in charging the Bee-News with using "canned" editorials. While it is possible we might be fooled in differentiating between "canned" and original editorials, it is absurd to assume that a great newspaper like the Bee-News or any other metropolitan daily does not maintain a sufficient editorial staff of its own. We would suggest to the Quiz young man that he trot out some other ground to prove our ignorance of "canned" and "uncanned" editorial varieties than our reproduction of editorials from the Omaha Bee-News or other metropolitan newspapers. We would further suggest that the young man make due apology to the Bee-News.

It is proposed by some organizations to try to crystallize sentiment in favor of a movement to release from school, children who are not doing satisfactory work, and to permit none but potential leaders to enter college. It is figured that young people who have difficulty in making the grade, could be otherwise profitably employed, and that fewer teachers would be required, thus reducing expenses. Education trains the mind to think, and while results may not always show in the classroom, they may later burst forth into wonderful development. The one who is rated as a dullard in school, may later reflect more brilliance than the so called precocious student. The least that schooling may do for a boy or girl may be enough to lay the foundation for a subsequent awakening that would surprise all doubters. If youths were not given an equal chance in schools and colleges, some of slow mental growth might not develop in time to furnish jobs and leadership for their erstwhile more promising companions. And who is smart enough to look into the souls of students and separate the ones of good promise from those of no promise?

DULY HONORED.
Many citizens from all parts of northeast Nebraska joined Wayne at the bar of an honored lawyer, Judge and citizen, Judge A. A. Welch, Sunday afternoon. Judge Welch came to Wayne in an early day. He taught school here, and then practiced law. He was a tireless student, and his knowledge of law was comprehensive and his judgment was sound. When he reached the age of presumption that no higher court would find ground to overrule him, Judge Welch was a valuable citizen. He was not pretentious, but he quietly went about his tasks and nothing could swerve him from the path of duty. As his years as judge of the district court multiplied, he became more and more firmly entrenched in the hearts of lawyers and others who knew him. He contributed much to the community in which he lived for many years, and the high esteem in which he was held was well expressed by the large concourse of people who attended the funeral rites and followed the body to its final resting place.

I have no platform other than equal and exact justice to all. I believe in fewer laws and better enforcement. I have no entangling alliances, and if elected will be free to represent all the people. There should be a friendly contest for every office in the primary to give the voters a chance to express their choice and keep them interested in party politics. I have been a resident of Dixon county for 31 years. Am an active farmer, breeder and feeder. Your support at the primaries will be greatly appreciated.

Wayne High School Students Given Surprise Spelling Test Thursday

Harriet Craven and Dick Fenske represent Wayne in Contest—Other News.

Students of the Wayne high school were given a surprise spelling test Thursday by Mrs. Allis N. Pollard, and sixteen received grades of 90 or above on the twenty words. Doris Judson, junior, was the only one to receive 100 percent. Those who received 90 or 95 percent were the following: Seniors, Stanley McChesney, Roberta Whorlow, Grace Evans; juniors, Esther Thies, Hope Hoskinson, Fred Davis, Doc Surber, Harriet Craven, Jeanette Lewis, Dorothy Davis, Fern Wamberg and Marion Jo Theobald; sophomores, Betty Lucas and Dorothy Ross; and freshman, Sophie Darame. Attendance in the high school is about back to normal after a period of considerable sickness with flu and measles. Only six were absent last Thursday. On one day, during the height of the epidemic, as many as thirty-six were out of school.

Harriet Craven and Dick Fenske represent Wayne high school in the sub-district declamatory contest to be held this Friday in Wayne. The former enters the dramatic and the latter the extemporaneous speaking class. Each won an elimination contest at Belden last week. Winners in the sub-district contest this week take part in the district contest to be held in Wayne April 20.

Juniors hung a banner in the assembly room Friday as annual observance of junior day.

Dorothy Davis played the assembly march last week. Examinations are being given this week. This closes the second six-week period of the year.

Textley Simmerman discontinued his school work last week.

Grade Notes. All grade students below the sixth A class were dismissed part or all of last week on account of an epidemic of measles.

Tests were given last week in the sixth, seventh and eighth grades, this being the close of the second six-week term.

The sixth grade pupils made landscapes in two-tone shades last week in art work.

Girls are ahead of the boys in the sixth grade health contest. The girls of the seventh and eighth grades have organized basketball teams and the two grades met Friday after school.

Innocents Who Get Into Trouble. Omaha Bee-News: Something should be done about the matter of the innocent young lady who marries a handsome, dashing chap, only to find out he is a coarse and brutal criminal. One of these is now serving a life sentence in Canada, her husband having been hanged. Another is under arrest at Colorado Springs, where her husband is also held for murder in connection with bank robbery. "Harry is the gentlest man I have ever known," she says, and goes on: "Of course, that vague charge of murder against him is all wrong."

One's faith in the big brown eyes lighted with love for her husband is strengthened as she discloses their plans. They were going to have a ranch together, and it was to be their very own. Why?

"Harry had told me that he was running whisky in order to raise the money for us to buy our ranch. We both had longed to have a ranch of our own, and we had just realized our dream when this came up."

Bootlegging, it seems, did not mean much to her, for it was to provide a foundation for their fortune and their future. She is not an ignorant woman, for she was graduated from the University of Utah, and was employed on a Salt Lake paper when she married this ex-extra movie actor. Her dulled sense of moral proportion indicates that something was left out of her training, just as it was left out of that of the McDonald woman, whose career ended in the Canadian prison.

A good time, to be paid for without work. Whisky running to buy a ranch, where they could live happily ever after. Sorry mistakes, but they might have bought with crime means inevitably years of penitence in prison.

"You can't beat the law," a word that every thief taken and every thief who ever thought knows is true, should be well coned by these girls who would have the world think they are innocent, when the best, the most charitable, thing that can be said of them is that they are foolish.

An Anti-Saloon League conference is announced for New York City. So the League is going in for foreign travel.—San Diego Union.

Play Presented By Junior High

Production Given Friday Is Enjoyed by Large Audience—Other News of Week.

"Mother Carey's Chickens," the three-act play by Kate Douglas Wiggin and Rachel Crothers, was presented Friday evening by students of the tenth grade of the Wayne State Teachers College training school, assisted by the dramatic class, and a large audience enjoyed the production. Mrs. R. R. Smith and Miss Margaret Robertson directed the play.

The cast of characters included the following: Harold Walden, Ralph Jacques, Dorothy Galiver, Genevieve Wright, Bobby Hickman, Marie Piere, Phyllis Auker, Paul Whorlow, Wilbur Porterfield, Mae Beckenhauer, Evelyn Mellor, Merle Wilson, Kenneth Hancock and Florence Jeffrey.

Committees acting for the play were as follows: Costumes, Emma Lou Munter; Lucille Noakes, Louise Terry, Harold Walden and Vivian Bagstrom; settings, Eugene Thornton, Genevieve Wright, Wilbur Porterfield, Kenneth Hancock, Lawrence Nagel, Elwin Cronk and Charles Alexander; and properties, Vidla Israelson, Gale Miller, Merle Wilson, Marie Piere and Faye Garwood.

Wilbur Porterfield, student of the tenth grade, was the artist and designed scenery for the play.

Work has been started on the new dormitory which is to be situated just north of the training school building. Excavation has been going on for about a week and several loads of supplies have been delivered.

The junior high music class, under direction of Mrs. Bortha Calhoun, has started work on the cantata "The Legend of Sleepy Hollow," which is to be given at the end of the year.

The basketball season is over for the junior high boys and baseball seems to be in vogue. Every morning and noon the field west of the training school is covered with boys, busy as can be, practicing.

The girls of Miss Esther DeWitz physical education class are working on clogging now. They have learned several dances this year, one of which they will give at the May festival.

Swimming will soon be starting and the girls of the junior high will have a class one day a week in the college pool which is in the physical education building.

Crusade For Christ Starts Next Sunday

"Myself, my country, my world" are the terms of the important factors in the new crusade with Christ, which latest reports indicate is becoming an international youth enterprise.

Evangelism and world peace and Christian citizenship are the working ideals of the crusade, as outlined by President Daniel A. Poling of the International Society of Christian Endeavor, and since adopted by most of the religious educators and young people's leaders in the churches of North America.

Several churches of different denominations are represented in the local district of the Union of Christian Endeavor, which is now engaged with other young people's organizations of this section in arranging for the observance of Easter Sunday by youth prayer meetings, in which the crusade with Christ is emphasized and explained.

In the young people's societies on April 15, the topic "How Can We Crusade with Christ?" will be discussed. In the meetings of that day, also, there will be unveiled for the first time, copies of the new inspirational poster which will become well known presently as the visual presentation of the ideals of the youth crusade.

Increased Acreage Of Seed Potatoes

Lincoln, Neb., March 29.—Certified seed potato growers in northwestern Nebraska are planning an acreage increase this year, the state and federal division of agricultural statistics reports.

Production of certified seed in Nebraska last year was fully three times that of the year before and twice as large as in 1924, but not up to the record of 1923, the report says.

The United States, as a whole, last year produced a 40 percent larger crop than in 1926 and 60 percent more than in 1925, but 7 percent less than in 1924, which was the record year.

"Certified seed potato production in Nebraska is confined to a few western counties where certification is done by a growers association working under the advice of the University of Nebraska and the United States division of agricultural specialists, the report says.

"Acceptable seed must pass three inspections and selling is handled by the association. Most of the 1927 crop had moved by January 15 at a price near $1.80 a bushel, the trade experiencing more demand in the state than previously. Total production was 180,000 bushels of Triumphs, and 1,500 bushels of cobblers."

Demand for Nebraska certified seed potatoes is mainly from Alabama, Louisiana, Florida, Georgia, Texas and Oklahoma, though interest has been shown by growers and dealers in the Bermudas, the statement comments. If experiments now under way prove commercially successful, it is possible that in the future Nebraska growers may treat freshly harvested seed with chemicals and abolish the normal "rest period" of seed potatoes, permitting immediate shipment for September and October planting in Bermuda.

Playing Safe. York Republican: As one considers the lives of men and women that have added or are now adding something to the sum total of human achievement, he is impressed with the thought that there is nothing achieved unless something is risked.

One must hazard his means, his opportunity, his friendships, yes and sometimes even his good name, to win some high goal in life. That attitude of mind that clings tenaciously to its present state or means and refuses to take a chance in the battle of life is as barren of achievement as was the Georgia cracker whom a visitor from the North found one day sitting on his cellar door, smoking his corn cob pipe in great placidity.

The Northerner asked him about his cotton, his corn, his potatoes and other vegetable crops, only to have each interrogation met with the answer, "Didn't plant none." At last the astonished visitor asked, "Really what did you plant?" "Well," the complacent Southerner replied, "I didn't plant nothing; I just played safe." The fear of drought and worms and boll weevil had scared him out.

There are a lot of Northerners and Easterners, and Westerners and natives of the in between sections that "play safe" all the time and only have a record of inaction and non-achievement to show when the Great Scorer at last writes the score sheet.

It is better to have risked and lost, than never to have risked at all. And it is better to be a doer with an occasional set-back or failure, than to have been a drone or a sponge in the big battle of existence.

Effortless Driving Smoothness·Power and Ease of Control that make every mile a pleasure. The COACH $585. Day after day it becomes more apparent that the unrivaled popularity of the Bigger and Better Chevrolet is due to its basic elements of superiority. And the greatest factor of all is the effortless driving it provides. It steers with the weight of the hand—for the worm and gear steering mechanism is fitted with ball bearings throughout... even at the front axle. You'll never know what a great car it is until you sit at the wheel and drive! So come in today for a demonstration!

These Facts Mean More Profit on Farmall Farms! UNDER average soil conditions the Farmall will plow from 7 to 10 acres a day, which is as much as three men can do with nine mules or horses. Twenty acres a day can be bedded up with two middle breakers and a Farmall, which is the work ordinarily of two or three men and six to eight horses. The Farmall with a two-row lister can cover 20 acres a day, doing the work of two to three men and six to eight horses. In planting corn, the Farmall can easily cover 20 to 30 acres a day—two or three times as much as can be done with a team. If four rows are planted at a time, this acreage is practically doubled. One man with a Farmall can cultivate 15 to 25 acres a day, doing the work of two or three men and six to eight horses. The Farmall when equipped with mower attachment will cut 20 to 25 acres a day. The Farmall and tractor binder can cut 30 to 35 acres of grain a day. For pulling the corn binder or corn picker, the Farmall saves both time and labor. Ask us to show you this tractor and the modern tools that work with it. Demonstrations can be arranged on your own farm if desired. No obligation.

Eulogize Late Member Of Club

Kiwians Devote Time Following Monday's Luncheon to Memory of Late Judge.

Speeches of Praise

F. S. Berry, H. E. Siman and W. R. Ellis, Commend Life of the Deceased.

Following the noonday luncheon of the Kiwanis club Monday, the time was given to eulogies in memory of the life of a late member, Judge A. A. Welch. Speeches were given by Fred S. Berry and W. R. Ellis of Wayne, and H. E. Siman of Winside.

Mr. Ellis who was associated with the late Judge Welch as court reporter for many years, and who was quite as intimately acquainted with him as any other man, gave expression to the following:

"In my association with Judge Welch as his assistant covering a period of fourteen years I have had an opportunity of observing at close range those sterling qualities of heart and mind which have contributed to making him the peer of judges. I wish I possessed the gift of language and the power of rhetoric to express to you what I feel in my heart regarding the greatness of this man. In my humble and homely manner I will endeavor to indicate some of the things which appeal to me as the outstanding characteristics of his preeminence as a judge.

"First let me say that Judge Welch was aided in his success by no natural gifts unless integrity, absolute honesty, a high sense of responsibility to duty and undaunted courage, are to be classed as natural gifts. Many men attain fame because they possess the gift of oratory. There are many who believe that marked oratorical ability is essential to success in the profession of law. Judge Welch was not an orator. He was not a fluent speaker. He was not even an easy speaker as the term is generally used. But on the bench his rulings and decisions were clear-cut, forceful and straight to the point, reflecting a clear-thinking, analytical mind—a thorough grasp of the principles involved, and an unerring intuition of the right. Judge Welch made no use of sophistry. He did not "play to the gallery." He made no speeches from the bench calculated to win him personal applause. He gave no descantations to impress upon others his superior knowledge of the law. In his decisions he refrained from either criticism or approval of the course and motives of litigants. The curious-minded crowd of spectators which so often fills court rooms and in important trials sometimes seeks to reflect public sentiment had absolutely no influence on him. He treated such with utter unconcern except to see that the rules of propriety were strictly observed and no demonstration made calculated to influence the jury. Judge Welch was not what is termed a good mixer and he made no effort to cultivate the art. He was quiet, unassuming and never in any manner sought to push himself forward or bring his judicial actions into prominence. He was not a politician in any sense of the word. He resorted to nothing for the sake of policy or to court favor. He never considered for a moment what the result of any decision would have upon his popularity. He did not shrink from the trial of any case because of fear that he might be called upon to decide against the wishes of friends or the clamor of the public.

In view of these outstanding characteristics so at variance with the traits and prejudices of some judges who attain fame, the question presents itself: Why the unprecedented popularity of this man? Not a politician, yet elected and re-elected term after term, and his election always conceded by everybody from the beginning! Not a "mixer," not a man who easily made friends according to the popular idea of friendship, yet numbering staunch and true friends by the hundreds in every walk of life and especially among the most worthwhile, substantial people of his district and throughout the state! And we ask the question, why? You men know the answer, but you perhaps do not realize it as well as I. I have observed the workings of his mind in trial after trial covering every conceivable subject of litigation—the methodical and thorough course pursued by him in preparing to arrive at a just conclusion. First the issues, as they are called—the matter in dispute—was clearly outlined in his mind before a word of evidence was introduced. Then as the trial progressed he possessed the rare faculty of absorbing, classifying and retaining in his mind the whole of the evidence but refraining absolutely from forming any opinion as to the merits of the controversy until all the evidence was in. The ability to do that is designated as judicial temperament, and Judge Welch possessed a judicial temperament to the highest degree I have ever seen in any man. There are hundreds of men, excellent lawyers who are incapable of refraining from forming an opinion early in the trial of a case. They cannot withhold judgment in their own mind until they have heard all the evidence, and having once formed an opinion they unconsciously begin to fortify it and soon find themselves a partisan on one side or the other. Such men, no matter how honest they may be—no matter how thoroughly they are versed in the law—no matter how earnestly they may desire to render justice,—are nevertheless inefficient and blundering judges. But Judge Welch, as far as I could observe, was able to maintain perfect neutrality to the very close of a long trial. He made it a practice never to prepare his instructions which are the law in the case to the jury, until the evidence was entirely in and the case closed; and many and many a time in writing the instructions at his dictation I have marveled at his remarkable grasp of the evidence, and his terse, clear cut, yet comprehensive outlining of the principles of law applicable thereto.

"Next to the possession of a remarkable judicial temperament, I believe the element which contributed most to his success as a judge was the fact that he was an untiring student of the law. He took nothing for granted but looked up the authorities and made a sweeping, comprehensive study of the principles involved in each case. I have often seen the light burning in his room at the hotel after midnight hour as he was studying the law applicable to some feature of the case on trial, and while he was doing that oftentimes the attorneys employed in the case were engaged in playing cards in the lobby below. Judge Welch during a term of court appeared a very different man than you would observe in him around Wayne. Here during a vacation of court, if he had, as he usually did, cases under consideration, he generally put in the forenoon in study but in the afternoon he would often be found on the golf links. That was his recreation. He thoroughly enjoyed it and should have indulged it more than he did. But during a term of court he permitted himself to engage in no form of recreation or sport and gave but little time even to social conversation in the hotel lobby. His whole being—in the study of the principles involved in the cases which one after another in regular procession crowded upon him for decision. He did not shirk the tasks, hard though they were. He did his work uncomplainingly and with a thoroughness and state of perfection which has challenged the admiration of bench and bar, and won for him the plaudits of the masses whom he served.

"A few years ago a law was enacted and I believe remained upon the statute books for two years, permitting the supreme court, in order to assist in disposing of the large amount of work that had accumulated, to call upon district judges to consider and write opinions in some of the cases pending before it. Being well acquainted with Judge Welch's great ability the supreme court assigned to him for final decision a certain number—ten, I believe—of the important cases then before it on appeal. Judge Welch entered upon that task with his well known zest for careful, painstaking investigation and research, and after exhaustive study he reached conclusions and wrote opinions which were without exception approved by the supreme court and form a part of the published permanent case law of this state. Some of those cases involved close questions of legal delineation, calling for a very high degree of reasoning, and are far above the average in complexity of the problems presented, but the opinions as prepared by Judge Welch are so comprehensive, the principles of law so ably applied to the facts, that attorneys have frequently commented upon them in my hearing in terms of unstinted praise, and they stand as masterpieces ranking with decisions of the eminent jurists of the nation.

"In this program we have of necessity omitted much that could be said. I am not unmindful of the fact that perhaps we have failed to mention some phases of Judge Welch's nature which might by many be considered as worthy of first consideration. One thought in particular comes to my mind and I will give it in closing. Judge Welch was pre-eminently a home-loving man. I had many occasions to observe that. Our work took us from home much of the time, but it frequently occurred that we would finish a hard day's work late in the afternoon, even but a few minutes before the hour for the evening meal, and at his suggestion we would forego that meal and start immediately on from the farthest outlying county seat of the district, and drive a distance varying up to over seventy miles without supper that he might the sooner reach his home. It was on these homeward bound trips that he would be the most cheerful and talkative.

"It has been truly said: 'Death is the great tragedy of nature.' We bow to the inevitable, but we pay our tribute to him whom we delight to honor, whose work has been well done, and who has now gone home."

LATE JUDGE A. A. WELCH

JUDGE WELCH.

Norfolk Daily News, March 31: The best tribute that can be paid to a man is that which is paid while he is living. More convincing than anything that can be said of him after he is dead, is the evidence of confidence and esteem in which he is held by his neighbors. Judge Anson A. Welch, whose death occurred yesterday at his home in Wayne, can have no finer eulogy of his worth as a man and jurist than his repeated elections to the office of district judge. The fact that he was conceded a life tenure on the bench shows how worthy he had performed the difficult and exacting duties of judge. After twentyone years of service he still held the confidence and esteem of both the bar and laity. After living more than forty years among them he held the deep affection of his neighbors.

To the Voters Of Wayne

I wish to take this opportunity and method of thanking you for the way in which you voiced your opinion at the polls last Tuesday in favor of Sunday Shows.

A large vote was cast by both sides, which shows the interest that was taken, and now it's up to me to keep my pledges and watch me do it.

However I will not run a show this Sunday which is EASTER Sunday.

Very truly yours,

Elmer E. Gailey.

"Water Purifies Itself in Freezing" THE discovery that many disease germs survive freezing led to natural ice from rivers becoming suspected and to artificial ice largely taking its place. But it has now been discovered that, in the process of freezing, the impurities are expelled by the ice into the surrounding water. And natural ice has this advantage over artificial, that it is exposed to the sun and air, and sunlight and fresh air are fatal to most disease germs. "Therefore in the words of the Journal of the American Medical Association, 'artificial ice made from pure water and clean, sanitary factories may be regarded as safe; so also may natural ice cut from reasonably pure deep ponds or lakes and stored under sanitary conditions. Artificial ice made from polluted water in dirty, unsanitary factories is unsafe; natural ice cut from shallow, polluted ponds or from grossly polluted rivers is also unsafe. And dirty appearing, cloudy ice may be infected as well as polluted; no such ice should be used in contact with foods or drinks. "Ice which is otherwise safe may become infected by improper handling—by being dragged across dirty streets or sidewalks or distributed by unclean hands. This is the great source of danger. We may practically eliminate danger by avoiding the handling of ice with dirty hands, by washing the ice with pure water, and by using only clear ice." Per 100, retail 55c. W. H. Announcements to be made on Friday and on Saturday afternoon. Let us not forget the meaning of Good Friday. It is briefly this: Sin deserves death in accordance with the righteous ruling of a just and truthful God. To spare the sinner, God in His mercy, chooses to execute the sentence, not on the sinner, but on a proxy which He appoints in the place of the sinner. This proxy and substitute is Jesus, God's own son. The scapegoat and the sacrificial lambs slain on Jewish altars, and even before that at the time of the exodus from Egypt, the slaying of the Paschal lamb, were types of Jesus. He, though personally holy, innocent, undefiled, and separate from sinners, was accounted a sinner by imputation. God made Him who knew no sin to be sin for us. 2 Cor. 5, 21. God dealt with Jesus as a real sinner. Jesus groaned under the sentence of divine wrath that was poured out on Him when He cried: "My God, My God, why hast Thou forsaken Me?" This sacrifice on Golgotha, in fact the whole life of Jesus from the manger at Bethlehem, God accepted as a sweet-smelling sacrifice. And on the strength of the holy life and innocent death of Jesus He declared the world free from sin in His sight. Thus God was in Christ, reconciling the world with Himself, not imputing their trespasses unto them." 2 Cor. 5:19. Good Friday, therefore, is the day of universal amnesty to a sin-stricken world, and the cross reared in the place of execution outside of Jerusalem is the tree of life to every guilty conscience. To it God has fastened the letter of pardon that assures every sinner that God is at peace with him and adopts him as His child for Jesus' sake, whose blood cleanseth us from all sin. And in proof of His complete satisfaction with the work of Christ in our stead, God raised Him from the dead on Easter-morning. This is the profoundest thought that can engage the intellect of mortal man. Markets, April 2, 1928. Hens 15c Light hens 11c Roosters 10c Cream 45c Eggs 22c Where Government Lags. Lincoln Journal: One reason for believing that the number of unemployed persons is not as large as the politically-minded commentators on the situation have contended, is that there has not been any noticeable reduction in wage levels, a condition that economists recognize as a corollary. The fact, too, that all reports coincide in saying that the surplus is rapidly absorbing the unemployment is fairly good proof that much of the unemployment was seasonal, due to the fact that at certain times, as we well know in the agricultural regions, great bodies of laborers move from one section to another, and also to the seasonal fluctuations of commerce. While it is asking too much that the partisan politicians abstain from making capital out of situations of this kind, it is not demanding more than justice requires to say that government has a responsibility in the matter that, if it were heeded, would bring more substantial results than changing political parties. Industry is doing its part. It has abandoned some of the old practices such as deliberate shut-downs for the purpose of forcing down wages and playing off one group of workers against another. This is a portion of the new economics that has taught manufacturers and big business generally that intelligent self-interest lies in keeping employed the great body of consumers. When the situation gets acute there is a demand that the government assist in stabilization by starting in on public works construction. The matter could be much better handled if plans for that sort of construction were made in advance so that immediate action would be possible. Steady jobs make steady citizens, and government has more than a passing interest in the problem of insuring work for all who want it. Coming months should show whether the wide scope of Mr. Hoover's engineering training has included anything about the proper guidance of political land-slides.—Christian Science Monitor. Utopia is a place where they would accidentally get on top of those Teapot Dome boys into all on a technicality.—Detroit News

Senator R. B. Howell Republican Candidate for Reelection

His record of six years of service in the senate shows him to have been vigilant in behalf of the people and devoted to public interests. "Senator Howell is one of the most studious, able and patriotic senators. He never shirks a duty, and neither power, nor fear, nor political consequences can swerve him from the right." He has worked for those progressive measures which the west has wanted, and his great services to Nebraska people entitle him to the voters' support.

Candidates for the Two Delegates to Republican National Convention from this Congressional District. Primaries April 10th. Mr. Berry served as County Attorney of Wayne County for ten years. He is at present a member of the State Board of Education. Former President of Nebraska State Bar Association. Mr. Abbott was for twelve years City Attorney of Fremont; and for a number of years a member of the Executive Board of Midland College. They have been residents of northeast Nebraska for twenty and thirty years, respectively, and actively identified with every movement for development and for the public good. They have been lifetime Republicans. Each is an extensive land owner and vitally interested in the farming industry; and favors farmer relief. Both Mr. Abbott and Mr. Berry appreciate the confidence expressed in them by those many Republicans in every county of the district who signed petitions asking that they become candidates, and will appreciate their continued support and the vote and support of all other Republicans.

Norris Republican State of Candidates for Delegates to Republican National Convention (For the McNary-Haugen Farm Relief Bill) Take this with you to the polls. Find the names on the ballot and mark a cross in the square opposite each name. For President GEORGE W. NORRIS For Seven Delegates-at-large ADAM McMULLEN C. E. SANDALL MARGRETTA S. DIETRICH MARK WOODS WAYLAND W. MAGEE A. B. DAVIS ROBERT SMITH For Two Delegates from 3rd Dis. RALPH S. FINLEY OSCAR THOMPSON For Two Delegates from 4th Dis. H. E. POTTER WILLIAM T. PICKETT For Two Delegates from 5th Dis. J. W. HAMMOND CARL MARSH For Two Delegates from 6th Dis. SEARL DAVIS FENTON B. FLEMING Alternates E. I. KOCH HARVEY L. SAMS Each of the above candidates heartily endorses the splendid record of Senator Norris. HE IS OUR CHOICE FOR PRESIDENT Since Senator Norris will receive the republican presidential preference vote from Nebraska, common honesty dictates that he should be represented in the convention by those who favor his nomination. For delegates to go to the convention and not in good faith and vote for Norris would be political dishonesty. Norris is entitled to have his cause in the convention presented through the mouths of his friends. Therefore, if elected we will respect the preference vote of our party for president and sincerely and without equivocation vote and vote for Norris. The friends of Norris should support this list of candidates. Most of them are life long supporters of Norris and the things for which he stands. It is true that a few of them may not always have been his staunch supporters, but they are men of honor and integrity who have promised to work and vote in good faith for Norris in the Convention. There is nothing that pleases us so much as to have every hero tell his own story. A personal testimony outshines the most ornate and glittering second-hand account. Since next Sunday is Easter, the festival of the risen Christ, we shall base our sermon on the word of the victorious redeemer, Handle me and see for me a spirit bath not flesh and bones as ye see me have, which are the resurrection words of the hero who conquered death and the grave. At 7:30 an Easter cantata, "The Beautiful City," will be given. Methodist Church. (Rev. G. H. Johnson, Pastor) The W. H. M. S. met with Mrs. C. E. Jones last Wednesday. Announcements to be made on Friday and on Saturday afternoon. Let us not forget the meaning of Good Friday. It is briefly this: Sin deserves death in accordance with the righteous ruling of a just and truthful God. To spare the sinner, God in His mercy, chooses to execute the sentence, not on the sinner, but on a proxy which He appoints in the place of the sinner. This proxy and substitute is Jesus, God's own son. The scapegoat and the sacrificial lambs slain on Jewish altars, and even before that at the time of the exodus from Egypt, the slaying of the Paschal lamb, were types of Jesus. He, though personally holy, innocent, undefiled, and separate from sinners, was accounted a sinner by imputation. God made Him who knew no sin to be sin for us. 2 Cor. 5, 21. God dealt

Every day on this table we "cup" coffees from the coffee producing countries of the world. Only the choicest are selected for Nash's Delicious Coffee. Not even good quality will suffice—it must be extraordinary.

The coffees we finally select, are chosen for their ability to blend together to produce a rich smooth drinking coffee. This is the "art" of the coffee taster.

Our aim is to produce a better coffee—a different coffee. Its hearty reception by coffee lovers everywhere proves that we have succeeded. But, you'll never know till you try it.
