Rain Is General In Wayne County

Corn and Small Grain Blown Down by Wind Are Rising—Lightning Strikes House.

Rainfall amounting to about one inch fell in Wayne county after midnight Friday and the moisture will be of great benefit to corn. The rain was general over northeast Nebraska.

Wind, which accompanied the rain, blew down corn and oats but the corn has risen and is doing nicely. Some of the small grain was blown so as to make it hard to cut but no great loss will result. Threshing is going forward well this week.

Lightning was sharp during the storm Friday night and one bolt struck the June Conger residence doing slight damage. The lightning entered the house on a floorlamp wire and the blaze flashed into the room. Woodwork was smoked but the blaze did not set fire to anything in the building.

has been held in Nebraska to promote the plan, and the one in Wayne was held at the college last Saturday, July 21. W. H.
Dudley, chief of the bureau of visual education in Wisconsin, was present and discussed the use of the Yale university of American photodramas in teaching American history. Other conferences were held at Peru, Lincoln, ana, spoke. Besides Supt. Hook

NORTHWEST WIND TACKLES STALKS OF GROWING CORN

MANY tall and luxuriant stalks of corn were toppled over by the heavy wind that accompanied Friday night's storm, but no hail fell and the stalks are slowly riding themselves of so serious loss threatened. If some showers would order a wind from the opposite direction, it is agreed the fields would be restored to normal in short order. Urgent small grain suffered from being blown down by the strong gale. An inch of rain fell, and while it was acceptable to corn, it was deemed harmful to small grain which was in the process of being harvested. We will never have perfect and adequate distribution of moisture until the weather learns to put rain where it is needed and hold off where it is not needed.
But the small grain is said to be abundant and of excellent quality. Hail stricken areas are recovering and promise to rise above the handicap. Chas.
McConnell recalls that seventeen years ago last month a storm of hail swept his field of corn and left it stripped as though hit by a shower of shrapnel, and he says it came back and yielded forty bushels to the acre.

ARE SMALL TOWNS GOING DOWN HILL AS MANY SUSPECT

WITHIN a week a man from a northeast Nebraskatown told us that rents and property values are fifty per cent lower in his town than they were three years ago. Only the past week the Wynot Tribune sounded warning of the decadence of the small town and urged cooperative efforts to stay the trend. It is generally acknowledged that with good roads and improved means of travel, almost eliminating the question of time and distance in reaching market, the small town must be extraordinary in pulling power to hold its own. Small towns will not be wiped off the map, and they will continue to provide contented homes for many people, but they will slowly diminish in size and business unless driven forward by some unusual impetus. On account of its healthy start and its superior educational opportunities, we look to Wayne to keep on making steady growth. If it did not have the Teachers College and advantages in size and location, it, too, might be expected to slip. But to keep it moving ahead, it is necessary to improve and to be on the alert better to serve the needs of the time.

LARGE PAY, HUGE JOY, NO WORK, AN IDEAL PLATFORM

WHAT we stand for in this presidential campaign:
More leisure and more pay, the latter to be spent on the former. More freedom from anxiety and responsibility and from such annoyances as meeting obligations or doing as one agrees to do if not suited to convenience or if running counter to the flesh's cry for more ease and more play. We want things so arranged by successful candidates that big results may be achieved with little effort, and that in providing either food or raiment it will not be necessary to sacrifice time and energy needed for joy riding or keeping up a series of gala days. As thinking is hard work and might cause cerebral disorders, we want governmental provision to make that all problems involving the home, business or social relationships may be solved without thinking. Then after removing all weights from our shoulders, after relieving us from all need for initiative and responsibility, all mental and physical tasks, we want it so ordered that we shall not become rapid molly-coddles or weak and wholly useless entities, ashamed, on arriving at the Styx, to meet the venturesome spirits and heroes of many centuries who have gone before. We want everything done, but nothing to do, with no impairment of vitality or diminution of desirable and wholesome consequences. For the success of this platform which all candidates will agree is practical, we would devote time that otherwise might be spent in happy rest.

gene Wengert, Milwaukee district attorney, welcomed the visitors.
Gov. Fred Zimmerman of Wisconsin, drew a comparison between the young people at the convention and those simultaneously entering a dance marathon in Milwaukee. He stated that the Walther Leaguers are trying to see what good they can do for humanity while the young folks in the dance marathon are taking from their vitality.

THE KNOT-HOLE No. 8 Wayne, Nebraska, Thursday, July 26, 1928. Vol. 2 The Knot-Hole editor is still afishin', so has lost contact with the lumber business to the extent that he can't think of much to write except a lot of foolishness. He'll do better next week. A certain business man of our acquaintance has been a summer widower for ten days or so, and brags that he hasn't had to wash a breakfast dish. He drinks milk out of the bottle, takes the toast off the toaster, and butters it from the butter package. Bananas are eaten from the peeling. The butter knife is held under the faucet, and breakfast is over. And everybody knows a coffee percolator should never be washed. Before they were married he told her he would move heaven and earth for her. And now he's raising hell. We would like the fellow who knows it all much better if he would forget part of it. We had the term "mixed choir" explained to us yesterday. Some of 'em can sing, and some of 'em can't. Wouldn't it be fine if those who have money would use it in the way those who haven't money think they would use it if they had it? Here's a little parable that happened in our own place of business the other day: "I can't hear myself think." "Well, you're not missing much." "There were dozens of people at the train to see him off." "Did he pay any of them?" "EVERYTHING TO BUILD ANYTHING WITH"

East And West Schools Differ

Traditions of Eastern Institutions Are Great Influence to All Students.

Reverence Of Past

Wayne Young Men Finds Dartmouth Stresses Democracy, Tolerance and Justice.

Traditions which are an influence and a pleasant memory are stressed in life at eastern schools, notes John F. Ahern of Wayne, who just returned after receiving the B. S. degree at Dartmouth college, Hanover, N. H. This is the greatest difference, Mr. Ahern finds, between western and eastern institutions. These traditions have been developed partly because the schools are so old. An inclination to show reverence for things of the past is found in the east more than in the west also, the west probably being yet too young for this.

Another difference noted between colleges is that institutions in the east are mostly either for men or for women, while those in the west are mostly coeducational. Young folks in the east are more frank and less critical, Mr. Ahern thinks, than in the west. Public opinion does not influence one's actions so much there as here. The attitude of each doing as he pleases and not criticizing the other seems prevalent in the east. The young folks of the east act more freely and are not so reserved as in the middle west. After learning the two attitudes, one admires the good in each view.

Location of School.

Dartmouth college, a school for about 2,000 young men, is located in the small city of Hanover, N. H., a town about the size of Wayne, 150 miles from a large city. The campus is at the foot of the Green mountains and the country is beautifully rolling and wooded. The institution was founded in 1770 under charter from England and was first a school for Indians. White students gradually were admitted and now there are few Indians, though those who do enter are admitted without tuition fee. The school is operated as a private institution. It is heavily endowed and the remainder of the expenses are cared for by fees. Tuition is $400 a year.

Young men in Dartmouth lead a simple life. Mr. Ahern notes. They wear corduroy and boots in the winter. They and all others in the east dress according to needs of their occupation. Princeton university sets the styles for men of the country, Mr. Ahern states. Princeton is nearer New York. New modes in men's wear are tried first in Princeton and if popular, they are used throughout the country.

Come from Distances.

Students in Dartmouth are from all states of the country and many come from England, the Philippines, France and other foreign places. About sixty percent are from the New England states, and the others are scattered. The aim is to bring students from all parts of the country. Of about 3,000 applying for entrance, about 600 are admitted. About half are graduates of high schools.

Wayne Credits Full Value.

Entrance into Dartmouth is by examination or transfer. Mr. Ahern had his first college work at the Wayne State Teachers College and his credits were accepted in Dartmouth without question and he was given full value on all subjects. Dartmouth is a liberal arts college, there being also civil engineering, administration, finance and premedic courses. Mr. Ahern finished work for his B. S. degree and plans to return next year to complete work for the M. C. S. degree.

Buildings Are Colonial.

The physical plant of the college is in excellent condition. Buildings are constructed in Colonial and Georgian Colonial architecture. They are of red brick with white trimming. Each has a tower. The new library, costing three millions, is being completed. The woodwork in this is all carved and beautifully decorated.

The school buildings face a square, called the commons. In the early days a fence surrounded the square and each of the four classes came to regard one side as its possession. Students gathered on the commons, each class sitting on its own fence in the evenings for "hums." Each group sang and then all sang. After the campus grass was started, the fence was removed. The old custom of gathering for singing was so strong that a fence had to be reconstructed on one side of the commons, this being for the seniors. Here the seniors sit during the "hums" and here they are to be found when they get their senior canes and have friends carve initials on them. At the close of the year the fence becomes the property of the incoming seniors.

A large pine tree, the stump of which remains, stands on the campus and over this are taken the oaths of office. As the Indians used to smoke the pipe of peace around this tree, so the students do now. The tree was struck twice by lightning and the upper part was thus destroyed.

Commencement Important.

Commencement is a great occasion at Dartmouth. Graduates come with their families and stay a week. Those of each previous five years are honored and a cap is awarded the class having the largest number returning. This year there were 125 from the class of 1918 and two from the class of sixty-five years ago. Each class has distinctive dress such as sweaters.

Fraternities Disappearing.

Dartmouth has fraternities but this school and most in the east are getting away from these, Mr. Ahern finds. The fraternity is not democratic and it segregates the students into too distinct groups, it is found. Clubs are replacing the fraternities. The aim is to make membership in the club an honor, whereas the fraternity emphasizes social and financial standards. Harvard and Princeton have given up the fraternity systems and they are disappearing in Yale. At Dartmouth only sixteen men are allowed in a fraternity house and the other members must live in dormitories.

The traditions thus developed by long years of service as an educational institution have made Dartmouth graduates friends the world over. They are led to be democratic, tolerant and just toward others. This, more than the subject matter received in the classrooms, is the great value of the training.

Tourists Find Many Traveling

Dr. C. T. Ingham Who Returned From Northwest, Sees Lure in Auto Travel.

Kiwanis Meeting

Represents Wayne Club at International Convention in Seattle, Wash.

"It is said that forty to fifty percent of the people of the United States at this time of year are on wheels and the wheels are rubber tired and are pulled with gasoline. Ingham who with his wife and son arrived home last week from an automobile trip to Seattle, Wash. Three to five years ago it was the pioneer, the adventurer, who started "gypsying" with a canvas for a cover, a few dishes, a few sticks for a fire and the ground for a bed. The umbrella tent was brought out. The folding cot was next. The folding camp stove using gasoline from the auto tank followed. And camping became a pleasure with tent floors and tent screening to keep insects away.

To camp used to seem ridiculous, add Dr. Ingham, for people who must leave comfortable homes to do so. But these people in medium and high-priced cars, who can afford trips in any manner they choose, must find not one, but many to induce them to lay aside their "glad clothes" and in old suits and khaki shirts and trousers, women and all, go cruising in and down over highways of the country, happy, smiling and carefree.

Dr. Ingham notes some reasons for this lure of touring by auto. One can see the country in the most pleasing aspects, much better than by other methods of travel, he states. As a rule trains do not go through the most scenic spots and they give but transitory glimpses of beauty spots. One is able to say he has been through Three Forks, Twin Falls, Anaconda and Butte by train, but by auto he can say he has seen the actual Three Forks or the beautiful Twin Falls that gave these towns their distinctive names. One gets an impression of the Herculean task of tearing down a mountain for the copper in it as at Butte and the tremendous smelting mills a few miles away where this ore is deprived of its copper. Driving where and when one will, one can enjoy the works of man as the tremendous dams at Shoshone and Jackson lake.

Who ever saw the beautiful Teton mountains except by automobile or packhorse? asks Dr. Ingham. One can see Columbia river drive by train, but he cannot see Uniqua river drive, McKenzie river drive, Big Thompson river canyon drive or hundreds of others equally as beautiful except by private car which he has driven from distances, perhaps across the continent. Happy in mind is the person who can see beauty of nature without a guide or tourist folder to tell him it exists. What pleasure to a lover of the beautiful in nature to have it unfold scene after scene as he "weezes" along in a comfortable, gliding auto!

Enroute to Seattle the Dr. Ingham family drove to Butte, Anaconda and Missoula, Mont., and Spokane, Wash. They visited Glacier and Mt. Hood national parks and about twenty national forests. Highways are in excellent condition, especially in the national parks and reserves, they found. Snow banks from five to forty feet deep had just been removed by steam shovel on four miles of the highway in Glacier national park when the Inghams visited there on June 27. Returning home the family drove to Eugene, Ore., and from there almost directly east.

Dr. Ingham's main objective in the western trip was to represent the Wayne Kiwanis club at the international convention held in Seattle from June 17 to 21. This was the twelfth annual meeting and the first time the gathering had been held in the far northwest. About 6,000 delegates were in attendance, and visitors increased the number to about 10,000. Meetings were in the new civic auditorium which seats about 15,000 people, and conferences were held in lodge rooms about the city, these seating from 500 to 1,000.

The convention opened on Sunday evening at 9 with a religious song fest. On other days general assembly of delegates was conducted each morning with addresses of various groups, such as presidents, secretaries or other officers of various clubs were held and in these questions of more vital interest to Kiwanis clubs were discussed. Ideas were exchanged and individual clubs reported.

One of the most impressive general addresses, Dr. Ingham notes, was one given by John H. Moss, past president of Kiwanis, his subject being the social and moral questions of the present day. He spoke of the obligation for Kiwanians to uphold highest standards for young and old, influencing proper dress and helping to slow down the speed in which people live. A Rabbi Catholic priest and ministers of various denominations listened with keen interest to the message.

John McCay, president of Manitoba university in Canada, delivered another address of special interest, Dr. Ingham states. He dealt with international questions and urged the United States and Canada to help, rather than hinder, the Chinese, Japanese and Mexicans. He stated that these nations are trying to "get out of a hole" and these two nations, by taking a broad-minded attitude, can lift them to something worthwhile.

Objectives of the Kiwanis organization were considered in conferences. The underprivileged child, more aggressive citizenship, high business standards, vocational guidance and other ways of helping society were urged. Clubs throughout the country have committees for each of these objectives. Kiwanis advances in proportion to the strength of these committees, Dr. Ingham noted.

Another important observation was the goodwill between Canada and the United States, evident at the Kiwanis convention. The general feeling is the best and the convention just closed has strengthened this international tie.

Leland Stanford Student Writes

Bernard Pollard Describes Airplane Project—Visits Home of Herbert Hoover.

Bernard Pollard, son of Mr. and Mrs. B. B. Pollard of Wayne, who is attending Leland Stanford university in Palo Alto, Calif., writes July 15 as follows: "When I was in Seattle enroute here I heard about the wonderful passenger airplanes they have. I was tempted to try them for the fare was only about half again as much to Portland as it cost me by bus and besides the trip only takes an hour and a half in contrast to nearly eight hours by car. In the bus I met a man who told me he planned to come back by plane but could not get a seat. Passengers make reservations over two weeks ahead of time.

"All along the coast travel is the same way. There are air lines in every direction and one doesn't hear of any accidents, at least I haven't. Stanford has a school of aviation with an endowment of $3,000,000. In the school proper there is a great wind tunnel and after the students have made their models they test them out in this big cylinder. They claim that they can tell exactly the speed, altitude and strength the big planes would be capable of attaining. About a mile from the university land, is the Palo Alto school of aviation. It is financed and regulated by the university but no credit is given for the courses taken. However, only Stanford students can fly or learn to fly there. Four good looking planes are on the field. The project is quite new and they haven't a good runway built yet. As a result the propellers stir up a terrible dust and the people across the road are terribly bothered with dust. They petitioned the city council to have the field condemned as a public nuisance, but they didn't gain anything by it. The university promised to put in a dustless runway at once and I guess they are doing it. The people still were not satisfied and they brought charges of it being a public menace and that it disturbed the peace. They said that the knowledge of having student flyers going over their homes continually was more than they could bear and that the racket made by the engines was positively terrible. I don't know how the fight is going to come out but I rather suspect that the people will have to move if they want to escape the noise and dust.

"Yesterday the first lap of the Ford air derby closed, in San Francisco. Quite a few of the fellows went up to see it. I didn't go but they told me twenty-two planes came and one of them was piloted by a woman. There were three Ford planes with wing spread of eighty feet. The day before that the city entertained the Australian fliers and presented each with a check of $6,000. Lindbergh was there in the event.

ing but he declined to attend the banquet because he had made other arrangements. (The San Francisco paper tells about the crowd that's entertaining him.) "Two Sundays ago the local flying school took up for a cent a pound. Over 350 went up and there were no accidents.

"Hoover will be here in a week or so. Down town a big red sign with white letters is hanging across the street and bears the words, 'Welcome Home Hoover.' They are already installing loud speakers and radio apparatus in the university stadium where the ceremony will take place. I suppose that there will be a big celebration when 'Herlie' comes marching home.

"I was up to Hoover's house the other day and it surely is a nice place. Of course he hasn't lived here much since his government career but nevertheless his home is here and so is his legal residence. The house is at the top of a hill which overlooks the bay about three miles away. One can see ships sailing long right from his yard. The house is built like a pueblo and all the various roof levels are flat. Flowers grow all over the roof and there are even palm trees and big cactuses up there. It is just like a roof garden."

Monument Works Has New Device

Wayne Monument Works has added a new dust collecting machine to aid health of workmen, to produce more accurate work and to save time. Dust and small chips of granite fly from the stones when the surfaces of the rock are being leveled. This new device, working like an exhaust fan, removes through a tube all particles just as they leave the stones. The machine is new, the device having been placed on the market just last year, and Wayne is the second place in the state to install it.

A Convenient Gas Supply

Practical, Simple and Individual

Especially Developed for Suburban Homes, Clubs, Schools and Colleges, Hospitals, Farms, Summer Homes, Resorts—

Wherever Gas Is Not Available

To those denied the convenience of gas, to those who still are using coal, wood or some other fuel in cooking or heating, Skelgas Utility Division of Skelly Oil Co., brings a highly perfected, safe, efficient and economical, simple and convenient to use, SKELGAS.

Skelgas has been perfected to meet a very definite need. It is offered for your convenience to lighten household work and is adaptable for use in the kitchen and laundry, for house or garage heating, for school or hospital laboratory, for resort or institution kitchens. In a word, SKELGAS brings greater speed and comfort wherever heat is used.

WHY GAS?

If you have not used gas, you do not know the true meaning of home convenience. Gas is used in cities because of its economy, its simplicity of action and its ability to immeasurably lighten ordinary household tasks. Gas is the ideal fuel, burning completely without soot or ashes, removing the "hot kitchen" discomfort in summer months and bringing a new and better meaning to the joys of housekeeping.

But ordinary gas necessitates the expenditure of large sums in manufacturing equipment, the laying of a network of gas lines, and, consequently, is generally available only in our larger towns and cities. What a boon to the housewife, to the resort keeper, or to schools, colleges, hospitals or other institutions located in towns where gas is not now available, would be a portable and individual gas plant! Such a plant, economical, simple in operation, entirely practical, is now offered by SKELGAS Utility Division of Skelly Oil Co.

WHAT IS SKELGAS?

Skelgas is pure natural gas compressed into steel containers. It is natural gas made portable. It is an individual and ever-dependable gas supply brought to your own home, giving you a city convenience wherever you live.

Skelgas comes from natural gas wells. It is collected and purified so that all impurities are removed. Only pure, heat producing, odorless, clean burning natural gas remains. It is this fuel which burns with an efficient blue flame, giving greatest heat, without soot or ash, instantly in your home, at the touch of a match.

Quality articles are always imitated. SKELGAS is not to be confused with systems in which the burning material comes to the burner as a liquid and which depend on the burner heat to vaporize the liquid—nothing more than gasoline or kerosene pressure equipments—for SKELGAS comes through the pipe to the burner as a true gas vapor. SKELGAS is true natural gas supplied purified in its most efficient and economical form and, being true gas, brings all its attendant conveniences.

HOW IS SKELGAS USED?

Skelgas is used exactly like city gas for cooking and heating purposes. Standard appliances such as ranges, hot plates, heaters, incubators, laundry equipment and hot water outfits use SKELGAS in exactly the same manner as city gas.

Furthermore, the small cost of SKELGAS equipment will enable anyone now forced to use a substitute for the more convenient city gas facilities for cooking and heating to afford the economy, simplicity and convenience of natural gas.

WHERE IT IS USED?

Wherever city gas is not available, SKELGAS will furnish fuel for the multitude of labor saving devices operated by gas. Such appliances bring joy and happiness to housekeepers, hotel men, institution superintendents. SKELGAS is used in homes for general use; in industrial plants wherever a fuel for refined heating operation is required; in school and college laboratory work; in hospitals, country clubs, summer cottages; wherever heat is needed for cooking or warmth.

Skelgas is installed the same way as city gas and is connected to the range or other appliances by means of regular gas pipe. A special container is supplied and each SKELGAS container holds a supply of SKELGAS for approximately 375 burner hours. With SKELGAS the supply is individual, hence the pressure is constant. SKELGAS equipment provides two containers of about 375 burner hours each so the individual system has always approximately two months' surplus at all times. SKELGAS installation is simple and gives silent, efficient, convenient, uninterrupted service.

WHAT IS BEHIND SKELGAS?

Skelly Oil Company, an eighty-four million dollar corporation owning its own basic source of natural gas production with modern large refining facilities is behind SKELGAS. Skelly Oil Company holds an enviable place in the oil industry and has built up a high standard of quality for its products. SKELGAS will be a part of that quality standard and SKELGAS Service will be synonymous with efficient, convenient, dependable service.

THE COST OF SKELGAS

Each SKELGAS container holds a supply of pure, natural gas equivalent to some 375 burner hours supplied at a cost of about three and four-fifths cents per burner hour.

An average basis of consumption can be determined by the following (example):

Breakfast.....	1 burner hr.
Luncheon.....	1 burner hr.
Dinner.....	3 burner hrs.
Average daily consumption for cooking.....	5 burner hrs.

Cost to consumer per burner hour about three and four-fifths cents.

Other appliances consume SKELGAS in direct proportion to their number and hours of use.

The farmers' problems bother the politicians more than they do the farmers.

The death of T. E. Sedgwick, for many years a well known newspaper man at York, and of late years a contributor to the York Republican, passed away at his home last Thursday.

Though agriculture is made to appear to a greater disadvantage by politicians than the facts would warrant, the agitation will tend to remedy any maladjustments regardless of the outcome.

A Sioux City newspaper reports the return of a man, aged over 60, who came back from California because he could not find a job out there.

RELIGION.

Much is written these days on the essentials in religion, of higher standards of reasoning, of greater tolerance, and of the growing tendency to believe in immortality based on logic rather than on tradition.

Another magazine writer calls attention to the phenomenal changes in one-celled animals. He mentions development of the butterfly from the worm-like caterpillar.

Sioux City Journal: Reports on the business situation show that the country generally is going through operations as though there was no such thing as a presidential campaign to be fought out for the next three months.

tion, which does not exercise the influence that it used to exercise, nor does it attempt to coerce people as it used to do.

If Colonel Huse of the Wayne Herald can spare a few minutes we would like to have him explain how anything can "reek with inconsistency."

A German preacher tells us that many German parents are allowing their children to grow up without learning the German language, and as a consequence most of them never will learn it.

When business slips often the first thought is to curtail the wages of employes. But we know a man who bought a business several years ago, and the first thing he did was to increase wages and add new help.

The monthly report of Secretary of Labor Davis on employment conditions is impressive. It shows that industrial conditions are much better than they usually are during midsummer.

What Really Hurts. Omaha Bee-News: Some months ago the public was shocked by the announcement that a suit had been started against Mrs. Lillian Coogan, mother of the popular boy star.

Not Reassuring. Nebraska Farmer: One candidate for the presidency frankly indicates that he does not know the answer to the farm situation.

Business. Sioux City Journal: Reports on the business situation show that the country generally is going through operations as though there was no such thing as a presidential campaign to be fought out for the next three months.

Buying has been stimulated for the past two weeks by ideal weather conditions throughout the agricultural sections. Higher temperatures have influenced trade because of two distinct impressions.

Mr. Fess thinks the G. O. P. deserves credit because 3,000,000 homes have been built in this country under Republican Presidents.

Down here in Arkansas we are sick as a dog. Apparently it has drawn a leg out of the spring turkey.

It is reported one Chinese army has done no fighting for weeks.

FOR SAFETY. What is known as the "Save-a-Life Campaign," announced by proclamation from the governor, supplemented by proclamation from mayors of Nebraska cities and towns.

The unsung heroes of America to me are those work-worn farmers, struggling to rear their families in a lean-to on a small hillside patch.

What a picture! McIntyre, by the way, claims to have been raised in the middle west.

The western farmer is not looking for sympathy. He is not living in a lean-to; he is not operating with a not-so-uttered isolation.

It is true that the folks in the middle west have had to dig to get a start—they went without many of the modern advantages that build up a community.

Would that McIntyre and some more of his ilk might come west and live for a week on a Nebraska farm—where he might work up a real appetite and satisfy it with a meal of home-cured meat or grain-fed chicken with vegetables fresh from the family garden.

Reputation

Speaking of a reputation, one is reminded of the clerk who advised a prospective customer that the article in stock was just as good as the trademark article the prospective customer asked for. "If so," said the customer, "let it get the same reputation."

Our reputation has been built on years of service to the community and we are jealous of it. Equipment, skill and the desire to serve—all would be in vain without the good will and confidence of the public.

About Nebraska and Nebraskans

Will M. Maupin.

I have wandered in the mountains, misted their gray and rugged peaks, Looking down their yawning chasms deep and grim. I have watched the waves of ocean breaking midst the tempest's shrieks, Sounding forth old Neptune's thunderous battle hymn. I have seen the busy cities with their buildings looming high, Where the million toilers toil for gain. But for beauty give me grain fields yellow 'neath Nebraska's sky, And the music of the binders in the grain. I have floated past the castles towering o'er the storied Rhine, Gazed upon the old cathedrals ivy grown. I have listened to rare music played by hands that seemed divine. And have seen the pomp that gaited round a throne, But the greatest music ever falling on my listening ear, And the greatest sight my eyes may ever meet, Is the music of the binders in the harvest time of year Working 'midst Nebraska's fields of golden wheat.

Nebraska's marble champion fell outside the breastworks at the national tournament in Atlantic City, but every Nebraskan is expecting Nebraska's champion live stock judging team to come back with the honors from the international contest soon to be staged in England.

Nebraska republicans have never presented the name of a favorite son in a national convention, but three times have Nebraska democrats presented the names of favorite sons in national conventions. Mr. Bryan was nominated in 1896 without the usual formality of a nominating speech. At Kansas City in 1900 the speech nominating him was made by W. D. Oldham, and at Denver in 1908 his nominating speech was delivered by I. J. Dunn. Mr. Hitchcock's name was presented to the Houston convention by Eugene O'Sullivan.

When William R. Hearst assumes control of the Omaha Bee-News it will not be the first time that a Nebraska daily newspaper has been under alien ownership. The Omaha News was owned by a Minneapolis corporation until merged with the Bee. Mr. Hearst will assume control on August 1, with Henry Allen, for years editor and publisher of the Wichita Beacon, in active charge. However, Mr. Allen will not take up residence in Omaha, but will be the editor in charge of all the Hearst newspapers. It is reported that his salary will be well up in six figures.

The Omaha Bee was founded by Ed Rosewater more than 55 years ago, and was at first merely a campaign paper started for the purpose of enabling Mr. Rosewater better to fight a campaign for his ideas of how the Omaha public schools should be conducted. It met with such a hearty reception that he continued it, first as a weekly for a short time, and then as a daily. Under his editorial management it became the dominant newspaper of the trans-Missouri section. It is reported that N. B. Urdike received $2,000,000 in cash for the property, which includes the modern building erected to house the plant.

neers, and one of the state's really grand old men is rounding out a useful life in the quiet of his home near Stromsburg. The name of Charles Morrill is indelibly stamped on the history and development of the commonwealth. With his bride a few months he came to Nebraska in the early '70's, homesteaded near Stromsburg. His homestead patent has never been transferred to other hands, but to it has been added many acres. "Morrill Hall" at the University of Nebraska bears his name as a tribute to his public spirit and his contribution to Nebraska's marvelous development. A goodly portion of the thousands it cost was donated by Mr. Morrill.

Has Nebraska a volcano? If it hasn't, it at least has a smoky hill. Overlooking the Missouri river a few miles east of Decatur is a huge limestone bluff. Occasionally during periods of extremely high water, the Missouri "leaks" into the crevices of that bluff, chemical action takes place and dark steam permeates through the limestone into the open air. At times it looks like a miniature volcano in incipient action.

A recent census of Hastings discloses a population of 15,700—and it wasn't like the census of Omaha and Lincoln in 1890, made by Tom Cook. It required two decades for those two cities to grow up to Cook's enumeration.

The record growth in population for any city in the country was made by Gering, Nebraska, between 1910 and 1920, the gain being 490 per cent.

How many of these questions can you answer? The answers will appear in this department next week.

1. In case of the death of a nominee for congress in a Nebraska district, what is the legal method of procedure in selecting a candidate to fill the vacancy? 2. What famous Nebraskan was elected to the legislature but never served? 3. What Nebraskan was elected to the United States senate but died before assuming the office? 4. What Nebraskan senator afterwards became governor? 5. What governor resigned to become a senator?

Potato Tour Will Be Made In State

Lincoln, Neb.—The annual Nebraska potato tour, August 13 to 16 inclusive, will start in Kimball county and move north across the state to end the fourth day in Sheridan county, according to Prof. H. O. Werner, of the agricultural college, and William Morrow, of Alliance, manager of the Nebraska Certified Potato Growers' Co-Operative association, who will be in charge.

The tour will include Kimball, Scotts Bluff, Morrill, Box Butte, Dawes and Sheridan counties. Stops will be made at many farms and test plots.

Plans are being made to furnish transportation and otherwise entertain delegations from the southern states to which Nebraska has been sending certified seed potatoes in the past and also to other parties interested in future supplies. Many southern states have been well represented in the past. Nebraska certified seed potatoes are said to be the best that can be purchased for the southern growers, so these growers are interested in methods used in western Nebraska, to keep up the high standard of quality.
