AMERICANS HAVE BETTER THAN AN EVEN CHANCE TO DEFEAT THE BRITISH WALKER CUP TEAM IN CHICAGO—JOHN MCGRAW'S SPIRIT SPURS GIANTS

BY PHILIP MARTIN THE British are coming over in a few days to attempt capture of the Walker Cup, but from the looks of things at this moment they have just a little better chance than no chance at all to do so. It is not a great British contingent that Dr. William Tweddell will lead into battle at Chicago late this month, but it is one certain to be ready to take advantage of any slips our American amateurs may make. Others on the invading team are Major C. O. Hazlet, J. B. Beck, R. H. Hardman, W. L. Hope, Dr. A. E. MacCallum, T. P. Perkins, E. R. Storoy, Captain N. C. Martin and T. A. Torrance. Fitted against them will be as formidable an array of Americans as ever recruited under the colors at one time. Bobby Jones, the Atlanta barrier, will lead George Von Elm, Jess Sweetser, Francis Outmet, Wats Gunn, Harrison R. Johnston, Chick Evans and Roland Mackenzie against the Britishers, with the late assistant captain, Max McGraw and Eugene Homans in reserve. To be sure, the Americans should have no difficulty in repelling this invasion from Europe, but it is by no means a dead certainty that victory will be for the Americans. At their best, the Americans are probably better than even against the British; but you can't schedule best golf moments

Bobby Jones, captain of the American Walker Cup team.

York Giants except the players themselves, you're hard pressed to name a good reason why that club is pressing the league-leading Cardinals. Their infield is not by any means a great infield and it is hard to name the three regular outfielders of the club, if they have any three as regulars. They have only two pitchers in Benton and Fitzsimmons. Their catchers are nice hitters. But they're up in the race and a favorite in many spots to overhaul the Cards and win the pennant. The answer is simple—it is the spirit of John McGraw. McGraw, whose teams year in and year out have been pennant contenders, is spurring a team not great by any means on to a pennant. It is "get out there and hustle," with the New York leader, and that is what the Giants are doing. They are hustling and fighting, asking for no quarter and giving none, and they are winning ball games from teams that, under any other leader than McGraw, the Giants would lose to. If the Giants win the pennant it will be because of John McGraw, and no one else. HERE it is late in August and football is creeping in. It is a little early to think about the grand old game at this season, but it looks like the coming season will be another one of those "bigger and better" affairs that we have each year.

What Gave the HADDORFF Its Wonderful Tone?

CHARLES HADDORFF, artist-builder, conceived the tone of the Haddorff Piano and created the mechanism which produces it.

You'll find it in every Haddorff—that sweetly singing resonance, that deep reserve of power, which distinguish this piano so clearly above all others. There's sure to be a Haddorff for you. Come and hear it.

AFFILIATING MEMBER

Often one is charged with fault which he does not possess, in order to punish him for some dislike which is based on mere incompatibility.

The most acceptable farm relief we can imagine would have been some copious showers a month ago and of sufficient frequency since then to keep vegetation fresh and make crops grow. It is too late to cure all the damage done, but the liquid relief suggested would still do great good if it were handed out now.

Newspaper advertisers put activity into business arteries that would otherwise be sluggish. Valuable information touching styles and prices keeps readers abreast of the times, enabling them to buy intelligently and at the same time practice important economy.

We heard a Wayne county farmer express the belief that Hoover is better equipped for executive leadership than any man ever nominated for the presidency. This may or may not be an exaggeration. This farmer says if Hoover had been trained from the start for the task of chief executive, results could not have been more favorable.

The storm which descended last night and this morning, making much noise and distributing considerable moisture, will do inestimable good, even though it cannot restore maturing corn to normal. It will loosen the drouth's death grip on the crop and help it along in the right direction, and it will put new life into the pastures which have been suffering.

The fact that the static was too strong to hear Gov. Smith's speech of acceptance last night will be charged to republican national headquarters. But he broke the news to the world that he would accept the nomination, and that he would serve as chief executive if elected, and people who want to

TWO TOWNS.

The experience of a stranger in two Nebraska towns emphasizes the difference, one going forward under the impetus of live interest and pride and the other held back by indifference and faultfinding. The story as received by us reads:

"Greetings had hardly been exchanged between a professional man in a Nebraska town and the casual visitor, who was there for the first time, before the resident began to talk of the new public library that had been recently opened.

"If the visitor had a few minutes to spare they might visit the library. They visited the library building. Then the host drove past a new grain elevator under construction and paused to renew acquaintance with the manager and learn its capacity and how much it was costing. Three new dwelling houses were being built in different parts of the village, and they were pointed out. A drive of a few miles was made into the country to see some of the fine farm buildings and the condition of crops and fruit. The stranger was introduced to several citizens and was pleased to hear their prideful comments on Nebraska and their own community.

"Because the afternoon was hot and dusty the traveler stopped next at a neighboring village to buy a cool drink. The villager, unbeknownst came from a back room to the fountain of the drug store without a word of greeting and seemed to wait reluctantly for an order.

"He was the proprietor of the place, he admitted, had been there for seven years; 'seven years too long' he groused. He was asked about a new building going up. It was a new high school building, but 'it will double our taxes.' He had no pride in a recently completed church edifice. He complained of telephone and electric service and rates.

"Making change without thanks is the practice attributed to his snoozers behind the prescription case."

know what he said in the course of his acceptance may find out by perusing the newspapers today.

The last expression from Governor McMillen touching farm relief and presidential candidates still indicated doubt as to where he would throw his support, but on more mature reflection, as the campaign progresses, we think he will settle back into the republican tracks and put his shoulder to the wheel in behalf of Hoover and Curtis. The governor will find that Hoover will do for farm relief all that any party leader could do, and just as much as Smith or any other human power could do.

More and more state universities are taking up the teaching of the Christian religion, and it is said the students are manifesting increasing interest in the subject. Christian principles underlie and support modern civilization, and without their influence we would drift backward. In the interest of present and succeeding generations, we must stick to the wholesome truths enunciated by the founder of Christianity, and it is encouraging to note response to this need by the great educational institutions of the country.

The new hotel is rapidly moving towards completion, and the tenses hopes that it will be ready for him by October. This would seem unlikely, but work is going forward with all possible speed and if something now unforeseen does not happen, it will not be long before its doors will be opened for the reception of guests. And as the new building nears the finish, it shows off to better advantage, to the satisfaction of all directly or indirectly interested. A new, modern hotel has been so long one of the chief needs of the town, that realization, soon to come, will be greeted with profound relief.

Western members of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen and of the Order of Railway Conductors threaten to strike unless a seven and one-half per cent increase in wages is granted. It is understood the railroads have agreed to a six and one-half per cent wage increase, or would be willing to concede the seven and one-half per cent if present restrictions on the number of locomotives and cars that may be used per train were removed. It is said if the companies were unhampered in the employment of rolling stock, greater efficiency could be developed and larger cost of operation could be taken care of. Refusal of workmen to yield to abrogation of the rule fixing the size of trains is reported due to the fear that fewer men would be required to handle the work. The railroads would seem to be in this rather perplexing and uncomfortable predicament: Demand for increased wages on the one hand and reduced freight rates on the other; competition against trucks and busses which they help multiply by paying taxes to build better roads.

The York Republican points out that crimes are committed largely by boys under 21 years of age, usually by boys who have not learned to work. Habits of idleness, seeking to escape a fair share of the world's labor and responsibility, trying to profit by the advantages earned by others, encourage evil ways and fill felons' cells. "To cure the cause of crime we must attack it at its tap root, which is idleness," says the Republican. "If we could get the young men of this generation to know that to busy at useful work is not only a safeguard from committing evil acts, but the only state in which happy living can be found, the courses of crime would be dried at their fountain head. We have nothing to fear in society from the boy who wants to earn his way and wrest his living from the world. But look out for the youth who thinks an easy living should be served him on a silver tray. He it is who becomes a menace to society. He is the potential bootlegger, the thief in the making, the likely candidate for the jail, prison or electric chair."

Mr. Ford On Prohibition.

Sioux City Journal: Henry Ford adds his bit to the discussion of prohibition. As one of the largest employers of labor, he approaches the subject with the viewpoint of the industrialist. To him it is an economic, not a moral question. He is opposed to any relaxation of the restrictions against intoxicating liquor, which, he believes, would be the worst thing that could happen to the country. Repeal of the eighteenth amendment, he asserts, would be a calamity; it would necessitate the closing of his plants. Everything in the country, he says, has been speeded up to the new pace which started with prohibition; the speed at which we operate our intricate machinery and generally live would be impossible with intoxicating liquor. So strongly does he feel about it, that he would employ the army and navy to stop bootlegging if it were within his power to do so.

Prohibition may be justified in numerous ways, but the most powerful argument in support of it is the economic reason advanced by Mr. Ford. It is much less a moral question than an economic question. Unquestionably prohibition has been an immense factor in the industrial advance in the United States during the last decade. Impartial observers from abroad have been able to perceive this fact much more clearly than we in the United States have been able to see it. Prohibition has made the American workingman more industrious, and vastly more efficient; it is one of the reasons why wages in America are higher than in any other country. The sober American workingman has proved his superiority to the working man of

FAULTY FORECAST.

In the early spring of 1927 a great scientist whose name we do not recall, and whose name he was long-haired or bald-headed we do not remember, predicted that there would be insufficient warmth during 1927 to mature crops, and less during 1928. With tremendous gravity and wisdom, he predicted that so-called summer would gradually fade away, and all we would have left in the way of seasons would be winter, early spring and late fall, and we would have to yield to the exactions of fuel kings the year around. Any one can see we would be up against a serious problem to live with the probability of being compelled to return to the habits of primitive man and feed on hardy roots to which the digestive equipment of modern bipeds is not accustomed or attuned. All through July and August last year the weather was unseasonably cold, and corn showed no symptoms of ripening. It looked as though the self-appointed weather sage had some ground for his distribution of crepe. Then September came along with a protracted spell of hot weather, and frost was mercifully postponed until all crops were matured. Fear was banished and the voice of the gloomy prognosticator was silenced, and he has not been heard from since. If he were to speak now he might explain the little hitch in the program that he foresaw as the ultimate doom of all vegetation. Doubtless at this time he would say that we were destined to dry up, be reduced to cinders and be plowed under by a new race sent here after due judgments. Melancholy forecasts are usually unreliable, based more on the condition of a man's liver than on the facts of science.

other lands where intoxicating liquor still is accessible. Relaxation of prohibition would work disaster in American industrial plants.

Mr. Ford's conclusions on this matter are to be respected. He knows whereof he speaks.

The Real Menace On the Road.

Fremont Herald: With all due respect to the governor's "Save a Life Campaign" now successfully launched in this state, it is doubtful if the movement, even in its greatest ultimate success, can make a great impression on the regular toll of life which the automobile is claiming, for records fail to show that many fatal automobile accidents are due to defective brakes, or lights, or other important parts of cars.

No doubt, cars that are well inspected and in a safe state of repair are safer in the hands of the opposite kind, but the real menace is the driver who disregards signals, the speed demon, the driver who is in such a hurry that he must "cut in," the driver who is careless about which side of the road he drives on, etc. These, rather than the man who is careless about having the garage man test his brakes and look over his car, are the ones who threaten us.

The facts prove all that the foregoing paragraph intimates. During the year 1927, exclusive of accidents at railroad crossings and with street cars, a total of 22,251 people were killed in automobile accidents. And does it amaze you to know that one out of every four fatal accidents involves automobiles?

Of this total of 22,251 fatalities, in 5,681 instances the driver disregarded signals, which shows that Fremont police and Sheriff Johnson are absolutely right in their drastic policy on this point of observing signals; 4,280 accidents resulted from cutting in, a fool habit which many ill-mannered drivers have cultivated to the menace of innocent lives; 7,451 exceeded the speed limit, and 7,247 were on the wrong side of the road. And note this well, 19,720 did not have the right of way.

Stop and Look.

York Republican: The accident which befell three men on the highway near York a few days ago happened in vain unless others profit thereby. They drove out on the highway from a side road into the path of a heavy truck without properly observing either the rules of the road or common precautions of safety. They halted, in obedience to the road sign, quite a distance back of the edge of the highway, and then came on, to meet a disastrous accident in which two lost their lives.

The stop-signs which mark the conjunction of the side roads with highways are placed within five feet of the edge of the road. That means the driver of a car coming on a side road should approach the highway within a few feet, look both ways, and, being sure of his course, proceed. It is not enough to stop twenty-five feet back and then come on.

The traffic rules were not made and stop signs erected to harass and annoy automobile drivers. They were designed to promote public safety. To obey them literally is to practice sound sense and do all one can do to make the roads safe for himself, his passengers, other travelers of the road, and the public in general.

Mr. Smith Objects.

Lincoln Journal: Governor Smith's answer to the attacks of William Allen White is now in the hands of all interested, distributed through the press. Smith is at a great disadvantage in the dispute because if he fares badly he is faced with the possibility of losing many votes that he may need. His opponent however, has nothing to gain or lose in the struggle. He is battling for a cause and not the presidency.

Smith's reply is not quite on the same high plane as the attack made against him. He said: "I am glad to have this matter taken out of the 'whispering stage and put into the open.'" By this he intimates that there was a whispering stage. Mr. White is not of the type that would whisper anything. His attacks have been made openly and publicly.

Smith also tries to bring his political opponents into the dispute. Due to the release of White's cable from republican headquarters, where Henry J. Allen received it, Mr. Smith thinks he can connect the republican organization with the attacks. The republicans are interested; as are the democrats, and if Smith can drag them into the discussion he may change the battle into a political struggle and stand in the way of gaining votes instead of merely facing the possibility of losing them.

Americans are ninety-six cents per capita poorer than they were a year ago. We don't see how this could happen under a Republican administration, but no doubt Dr. Work will explain it pretty clearly and then explain his explanation.—The New Yorker.

Those persons who argue that Prohibition does not prohibit should have the news broken to them that education doesn't educate, either, unless you take it seriously.—Louisville Times.

Market Report.

Furnished by Steele, Siman & Co., Sioux City Stock Yards.

August 23.—Bearishness has surrounded the cattle and sheep markets this week while slight strength has been noted in the live pork division. Increases in receipts were stored in all departments over last week.

The 11 leading markets of the country received 135,400 cattle the first two days of the week, 17,300 more than last week. Local receipts for the same time exceeded 10,000, an increase of 2,600 over last week. The gain in receipts was accounted for by the increased shipments from the western range territory.

Cornfed steers and yearlings of good and choice quality have held steady this week but plain and medium grades have eased off 10 to 15 c in line with reports from other centers and with the depressed condition of eastern dressed beef markets. Grass fat steers have slipped a quarter.

Yearling steers topped at $16.50 this week, equaling last week's crest, and within a dime of the highest price of the season. Several sales were made at $15.00 to 16.25 with fair grades at $14 to 15.00 and plain lots down to $12.50. Strong weight steers of good quality sold at $15.00 to 15.85 with fair grades down to $13.00. Grass steers sold at $11 to 12.50 to the packers.

Cornfed cows and heifers were scarce and the market did not change much. However, grass butcher stock was plentiful and prices dropped weak to a quarter on the first day of the week.

Fed heifers sold from $15.00 down with the best quoted to $16.00. Fed cows sold at $10.50 to 12.50. Grass butchers heifers sold mostly at $10.50 to 11.60 with a few to $12.00 and better. Bulk of the desirable cows sold at $9.00 to 10.50 with fair and medium grades at $7.50 to 9.00. Canners and cutters ranged at $5.75 to 7.25.

The veal market held stationary. Packers paid up to $14.00 for light weights and independents paid $14.50 for several selected lights. Heavy veals sold at $10.00 to 13.00.

Bulls were unchanged. Bolognas sold mostly at $8.00 to 8.75 with heavy beef grades at $9.25 to 9.75 and yearlings on up to $12.00.

The heaviest run of stockers and feeders of the season was on hand on the opening day of the week. Demands were broad, as dealers made a close clearance last week. However, only the better grades received fully steady prices, while some of the plain and medium grades had to go at a 10 to 15 c loss. Inquiry from the country has been broad so far this week and indications point to a fairly good clearance again in the north end of the yards.

Good and choice steers sold at $12.00 to 13.00 with fair to good at $10.50 to 12.00 and plain lots on down to $9.00 and under. Bulk of the cattle of all weights sold at $7.00 to 8.25 with heifers up to $12.00 in load lots.

11.00; ordinary packers, $10.50 to 10.75; stags, $9.75 to 10.25. Pigs sold at $10.00 to 10.75 and feeding sows at $9.75 to 10.25.

Highway Projects Near Completion

Norfolk News, Aug. 21: Highway projects in northeast Nebraska for 1928 are nearing completion and before cold weather sets in all will be finished.

With the exception of three miles south of Crofton, gravel operations on the Meridian highway are finished. This job, at the present rate of construction, will be completed next month, and will mark the elimination of the only ungraveled gap between Norfolk and the South Dakota state line.

Only about two miles of road is yet to be graveled on the project between Plainview and Osmond on highway No. 20. When finished travelers leaving Plainview will have a complete graveled highway to Omaha and Lincoln, and to Sioux City by way of Oshawa.

North of West Point on highway No. 9, about four miles of road is yet to be graveled. This is one of the leading improvements in northeast Nebraska this season, and will be a benefit to many travelers in that section.

Excellent progress is being made on the earthwork job near Laurel where two construction crews are active. Gravel is being spread on highway No. 51 near Bancroft. Near Tekamah a gravel job is under way.

Work is nearing an end on approaches leading to the Oakdale bridge over the Elk Horn river, which is soon to be opened to traffic.

Indian Pow-wow Closes At Walthill

Walthill, Neb., Aug. 21.—The Omaha Indian Pow-wow has closed, the week having been spent in Indian games and dances, rodeos in which several bareback riders participated, and ball games.

Chief Bacon Rind of the Osage tribe of the Omahas, gave a short address in which he admonished Indians of all tribes not to sell their lands, but to hold the homestead of their forefathers as long as possible, and also to support Mr. Curtis in the coming presidential election because he is a frontier boy and knows the hardships of western life.

A hero dance was given, paying tribute to women relatives of dead and wounded Indian soldiers of the late wars. Over 3,000 people attended. There was not a death or accident, with the exception of a boy who fell from a revolving swing.

After the prison experiences of Paul and Silas at Philippi and the establishment of a company of disciples with the house of Lydia as its center, Paul passed on through Macedonia to Thessalonica, a city that was to become a scene of further evangelical triumph and to give its name in future ages to two epistles of St. Paul, I and II Thessalonians.

Here at Thessalonica there was a Jewish synagogue, and Paul being a Jew, followed the procedure which was established in his missionary journeys of worshiping with his own countrymen and as opportunity offered, expounding to them the fulfillment of Jewish scriptures in Jesus of Nazareth, Paul spent three Sabbaths thus worshiping and discussing in the synagogue in Thessalonica preaching to them the effect of Christ's redemptive mission, his sufferings, death, and resurrection.

Intensity of Jewish opposition, however, was soon manifest. The record suggests that some of the Jewish leaders were envious of Paul's influence. Here as at Philippi religious prejudice did not come out and express itself openly and frankly. It took the baser forms of rousing hostility against Paul and of stirring up mob prejudice and mob violence so that, as the records say, the whole city was set in an uproar.

When Paul and Silas, whose friends had evidently successfully concealed them, were not found the mob seized Jason, at whose house apparently they had been staying and haled Jason and certain others before the rulers of the city. Here, again, they did not say, as honest men might have said, "these men differ from us religiously." They sought rather to discredit them by attacking their loyalty to the government.

The rulers of Thessalonica seem to have been sensible men. Instead of subjecting Jason to unjust treatment or indignity they had him and his companions give bail and let them go.

The company of believers realized, however, that Paul and Silas were in danger, so they sent them by night to Berea, another city of Macedonia about forty miles from Thessalonica. Here, also, Paul and Silas went into the synagogue of the Jews.

The Jews of Berea in the language of the lesson "were more noble than those in Thessalonica." They listened with readiness and openness of mind to Paul's expression of the Scriptures and many of them believed here also as at Thessalonica. A number of Greeks and "noble women" were among the new converts.

Everywhere the Gospel in the beginning showed itself as a power transcending racial and national distinctions.

Candy Salesman In Car Accident

Royal, Neb., Aug. 21.—J. R. Albrecht, candy salesman, and his daughter narrowly escaped death yesterday when the automobile in which they were riding shot over a 12-foot embankment on the highway nine miles south of Royal and overturned one and a half times,

Stanton Woman Is Seriously Burned Stanton, Neb., Aug. 20.—Mrs. Rosa Steiner of this place was seriously burned from head to foot when a can of gasoline which she mistook for kerosene, exploded this morning while she was kindling a fire in the kitchen stove. The flesh was seared on her body from head to feet and peeled off her hands and arms when the attending physician dressed the wounds. Little hopes for her recovery are held. Mrs. Steiner was alone at the time of the explosion. She lives by herself in a small house at the rear of a cafe, operated by her daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Cooper, who recently came here from Pilger. Mr. Cooper heard the explosion and went to the aid of his mother-in-law. He extinguished the flames and called a physician. Mrs. Steiner is 55 years old. Hoover's Boyhood Physician Is One of West Branch's Colorful Characters It is difficult to visit West Branch, Ia., boyhood home of Herbert Hoover, without becoming interested in some of the people Hoover left behind to live and die there. They're not as important as Hoover is, but some are nearly as interesting. Take old Doc Leech, Dr. Louis J. Leech, the best physician in town, a country doctor and a general practitioner, who took Hoover through the measles, croup and such ailments. Doc Leech is 83. But you should see him kick up his heels and fly up a flight of stairs. Your correspondent never saw anyone who seemed to enjoy life more than Doc Leech. For a radius of 10 or 15 miles out into the country, Doc Leech tends the sick at any and all hours. He's as eager to reach a patient as a fire chief taking the boys out to save his own home. That eagerness of his to get to the bedside in no time at all is responsible for the fact that Doc Leech no longer drives his own vehicle. Sometimes there used to be deflections in large bumps which would land Doc out in the middle of a corn field before he came down. The family realized there was no possibility of making Doc retire, but that someone must take control of that flivver before Doc retired involuntarily and perhaps permanently. So Doc's son, Bert, retired from his own business and now drives his father, day or night. One day Doc discovered that a farm-hand patient had an embolus. It was a very rare sort of thing. Doc found in Mayo's works that there had only been three similar cases previously reported in the medical history of the United States. But Doc diagnosed it in a minute. First, the thing showed up in the patient's arm and Doc took it out and saved the arm. Then early one morning the patient had it in his leg. Doc took him on a wild, fast ride over to the hospital to Iowa City. This time Doc couldn't save the leg, but he saved the man's life. The surgeons at Iowa City were pop-eyed. In the first place, they were astonished to meet up with such a rare case, and in the second place, they were astounded to find that Doc Leech had been able to diagnose it.

Hoover's birthplace at West Branch, Ia., is shown above as it appears today. The house has been enlarged since the presidential nominee was born there. Right is Dr. Louis J. Leech, 83, who was Hoover's boyhood physician and who still is a general practitioner at West Branch. But, as Doc explained, he just hasn't been doing a lot of reading and, over a period of years, had accumulated a respectable medical library. Doc recalls how, when he and some of the other West Branch boys marched away to the Civil War, the predominant Quaker church of the town decided that they would have to be ostracized. The Quakers were death on slavery, but they couldn't stand for a war against it. The feeling lasted for a long time. In the old cemetery, after the war, were buried the bodies of two old soldiers. Doc Leech was commander of the local post of the G. A. R. On Memorial Day the Quakers wouldn't even let the veterans go through one of their yards to reach the cemetery and lay flowers on those graves. "We had to pry off the boards from the fence in the rear," says Doc Leech. "But we always decorated those graves. It wasn't until 1910 that we had permission to go the regular and easiest way to do it. That was a great day in the history of West Branch when they agreed to let us. I'll always remember it." They say most Iowans go to California to die. Doc Leech knows it. "I was at an Iowa picnic in Pasadena a few years ago and looked out over the crowd and saw that just about 50 per cent of them were people whose births I had attended in professional capacity. Of course, there were a lot more there who I didn't recognize since they had grown up."

Lincoln Journal: The tuberculin test was administered to almost 11,000,000 cattle by state and federal forces co-operating during the year ending June 30, the department of agriculture reports. This figure sets a record of over a million more than any previous year. On July 1 more than 21,000,000 cattle, or a third of all the cattle in the country, were under state and federal supervision for eradication of tuberculosis. More than 3,000,000 are on the waiting list for testing. The progress that has been made in this work is gratifying. Eventually it may be possible to have practically all the cattle in the country under supervision. The difficulty with work of this kind undertaken by the department, is that the field is so large that it takes long periods of time and vast sums of money to make any considerable progress. FOOLISHNESS.

F. O. Edgecombe in Geneva Signal: The utter foolishness of attempting to publish a bitterly partisan political organ, or a spite newspaper, these days has been so amply demonstrated that no one but a simpleton will undertake either job, more especially in a small community.

It takes as much money, business ability, careful management and untiring energy to publish a successful newspaper in a community as it does to successfully run a bank, a store or a garage in the same community. That being true, will anybody but a simpleton permit himself to be the errand boy and lick-spittle of some roughneck banker, or lawyer, or some other person, who hopes to gain some personal advantage, financial, political or social, by controlling a newspaper without making himself liable for anything more serious than a little paid money?

The little village paper is disappearing for reasons plain enough to anybody who is not mentally and financially blind. Why should an intelligent person work himself to death trying to keep a little sheet alive when he knows it has no possible future? In even the smallest printing office of today the investment in machinery has to be so great that the interest on the investment means a substantial item. In almost every case the publisher who is struggling along keeping a village paper alive could earn more real money working for someone else and be relieved of business worries and at the same time save the interest on his investment. The one-man paper has no chance.

By Public Demand

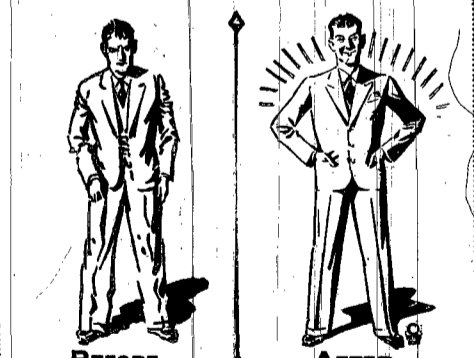

It is public demand that has created the many improvements in funeral service in the past few years. It is only reasonable that the standards of burial equipment and service should keep pace with the standard of living.

Today, custom calls for many refinements in the funeral service—refinements undreamed of a few years ago, but which do much to lighten the burdens of stricken families.

We are prepared to offer a funeral service which is up-to-date in every respect and yet at a price as low as is possible without sacrificing quality. We have responded to the public demand.

THE KNOT-HOLE

No. 12 Wayne, Nebraska, Thursday, August 23, 1928. Vol. 2

Have you ever stopped to think that if you save one dollar a week, you will have a million dollars in 20,000 years.

We don't know whether or not Oscar Hoeman reads the Knot-Hole but anyhow he is putting up a machine shed so that hereafter his machinery will have to wear out instead of rust out.

Johnny (feeling furnished)—"Why this ain't even warm!" Neighbor (just moved in)—"What do you mean?" Johnny—"Why Ma told Pa you had a hot looking bunch of furniture."

Eph Beckenhauer's feed yard is being "all dolled up" with a new fence of 2x6's and a new shed.

The policeman had found the lost poodle and restored him to his mistress. The canine was wet, dirty and dejected. "He's been havin' a hard time, Missus," explained the cop. "A man down the street had 'im fastened to a pole and was washin' windows with 'im."

The approaching fall season finds our yard well stocked up with a complete line of the various materials required for use in a farming community.

Somebody asked us yesterday how many magazines we read. We'd say on a guess, about a tenth of what we take.

And while it has been pretty darned hot, we venture to suggest that it wouldn't be a bad plan to provide for the winter coal. We have a car of Colorado hard coming in soon. Orders will be filled in rotation.

If we had our way about the weather, we'd order rain for the next week or two. And we'd bet we'd have everybody mad at us before the week was over, because we didn't order something different.

It is really mystifying why there are some who will fall for the smooth talk of a total stranger but who wouldn't buy the same merchandise of a home dealer, with whom they are well acquainted, at half the price. We presume the impelling motive is an inclination to try to get something for nothing. It can't be done! It can't be done!

Policeman—"What would your father say if he saw you out this time of night?" Boy—"He'd say don't tell Ma!"

During the month of June this year there were approximately two thousand failures in business in this country with liabilities of nearly thirty million dollars. If we were possible to determine the truth, it would probably be found that a very large proportion of these failures were due to the inefficiency of those who failed. Of two business men on the same street, enjoying the same opportunities, one will fall and the other will succeed. Of two farmers on the same section of land, one will prosper and the other will fail. No laws can be framed which will make possible the equality of those who distribute these attributes, politicians notwithstanding.

About Nebraska and Nebraskans

Will M. Maupin. The Army of the Corn. Billowing wide o'er the endless miles, Waving welcome in winds that blow; Growing strong in the sun god's smiles, Storing the gold of his mid-day glow. Whispering low in the evening haze, Telling tales of a hope reborn, Bringing joy to the eyes that gaze O'er the spreading fields of Nebraska corn. The silken flags on the well-filled ears; The waving plumes in sunlight air, Joining in bidding to quiet fears, And say farewell to doubt and care. Coining the gold of the fertile plain, Filling the depths of Plenty's horn, Rustling its blades in sweet refrain, The shimmering green of Nebraska corn. Sentinels tall through the stilly night, Champions strong each autumn day; Serried ranks in their power of might, Armored strong in their green array. Row on row to the distance dim, Helms plumed to await the morn. Eaving their blades to their battle hymn— A mighty host, Nebraska Corn. Answers to questions propounded last week: 1. $3,141,146.610. 2. The state levy in 1927 was 3.75 mills, which 1.5 mills to take up the state deficit of approximately $5,000,000. The levy was calculated to raise a total of $11,773,300. The 1928 assessed value is $15,291,148 less than in 1927. The state levy this year is 2.06 mills, calculated to raise $6,439,262. 3. Under congressional re-appointment Nebraska stands to lose one representative. 4. Nebraska was re-districted for congressional purpose by the legislature in 1891, and gained three representatives. 5. Gilbert M. Hitchcock. 6. Statewide prohibition has been twice voted on in Nebraska. In 1890 it was overwhelmingly defeated—and how! In 1916 it was adopted by approximately 30,000 majority. Nebraska will have a Veteran's hospital, but where? It will have not less than 200 beds. It has not yet been located and every Nebraska community is eligible to ask for it. Politics is mixed. The democratic national committee woman for Nebraska refuses to support Smith, and the publicity director of the state W. C. T. U. has resigned because the organization has endorsed Hoover and she is going to support Smith. Nebraska's champion dairy judging team, competing in the international judging contest in England, had to be content with second place, being out-pointed by the British team. But Jessie Wilbey, of the Nebraska team won first place in competition with boys from all over the world. When there are mountain feuds to be settled Wallace Beery and Raymond Hatton should settle them. Those monarchs of merriment demonstrate themselves to be eminently qualified for this perilous occupation in "The Big Killing," their Paramount team comedy to appear at the Crystal theatre August 26 and 27. Bundling into hidden moonshine stills, stumbling onto broken-hearted lovers, holding what they fear may be their last trust, Beery and Hatton pass through one, hair raising adventure after another. Should Be Let Alone

Speaking of farm relief, said Lieutenant Governor Williams to a State Journal reporter at the capitol Wednesday, "there is one form of relief that would be most acceptable to the farmers, and that is a good letting alone. I come in contact with more real farmers than any other state official. I live among them. I drive a great deal over the state, and I am sure I speak the sentiments of ninety-five percent of the farmers of Nebraska when I say they are sick and tired of the continued meddling with their affairs. "From the time the farmer plants his seed until the crop is out of his hands, some self appointed pencil pusher is figuring out his profits and broadcasting to the world the story of the inevitable bumper crop translated into millions of golden shekels. City farmers who never sarsased a plow handle nor folded a pitchfork can visualize more bushels of wheat from the window of a passenger train, twice over, than the farmer can get from the threshing machine. "Somehow they get on the front page of the newspaper, the fairy tale is carried upon the four winds of heaven and the result is seen in a steady declining market. To what extent it bears the market is not known but it has a tremendous effect and the farmer resents this unfairness, even though it may not be intentional. "It is not a square deal and we are tired of it. And when we come right down to the merits of it, why should almost every other line of business and industry presume to butt in on the affairs of the farmer? The farmer does not meddle with the business of the railroads, the banker for the merchant. If there is one thing in which the farmer has been eminently successful it is in tending to his own knitting. The Nebraska team is from Albion, Boone county and won the American championship at Memphis. Commissioner Randall of the Nebraska Railway commission, acting for the interstate commerce commission, held a hearing at Yankton on a matter of issuing a permit to build a railroad from Yankton to Norfolk. No new railroads or railroad extensions are permitted to be built except by permission of the interstate commerce commission, and to secure it proof of convenience and necessity must be submitted. Three killed, twelve injured, three of them probably fatally, and $8,500 worth of autos wrecked, is the record of one Sunday's auto accidents in Omaha. Mrs. Laura A. Wicshire of Fremont, aged 79, is an airplane enthusiast. She came to Nebraska with her parents in a wagon drawn by an oxteam. She saw the construction crews of the Union Pacific, saw the horse and buggy give way to the automobile, and now she declares that the airplane is the only real method of travel. Forty years ago this month Nebraska City celebrated the opening of the Burlington bridge across the Missouri river at that point. Later it celebrated because the Burlington planked the bridge and opened it to vehicular traffic, at so much per. Now, Nebraska City is begging the Burlington to close its bridge to vehicular traffic so a free bridge can be financed. The sun do move. The oldest married couple in Nebraska was parted by death on August 1, when H. A. Miller of Omaha, died, aged 94. Mr. and Mrs. Miller had been married more than 71 years. That was a real companionate marriage. An Omaha minister boasts of having performed nearly 6,000 marriage ceremonies. He is silent on the divorce results. Hastings is holding a baby clinic, beginning August 1. The Hastings Tribune says the opening was a howling success. How many of these questions can you answer? Answers will be given next week: 1. How many judicial districts in Nebraska? 2. How many justices of the Nebraska supreme court? 3. How are supreme judges elected in Nebraska? 4. In case of the death of a representative in congress is his successor elected or appointed? Sharpshooters In Mountain Country

Shreds and Spreads As It Should Be Done

That is what the McCormick-Deering spreader will do for you. Hundreds of farmers say the McCormick-Deering spreader is the best money-making machine they own—it can be used every day of the year and best of all, it makes the job of spreading easy. The load is pulverized and spread evenly beyond the wheels by the widespread spiral. The result is a perfect, uniform distribution which is the secret of successful spreading. Weekly reports were made on their operating performance and in every instance the reports have been favorable. To the man who owns one, the McCormick-Deering spreader is a source of satisfaction. His spreading costs are reduced because the durability of the machine minimizes upkeep and extends the investment over years of satisfactory service. If you need a new spreader, see us and we will explain what we have to offer. Any of the McCormick-Deering spreader products will do the thing you want done—increase soil fertility and crop yields. We have the latest make of McCormick-Deering spreader which we will be glad to demonstrate. It is built from the ground up to meet the requirements of present-day agriculture and to serve efficiently through the years to come. It embodies the highest principles of design, good workmanship and manufacturing skill. For three years this new product has undergone rigid field and laboratory tests under the direct supervision of Harvester engineers. During the past eighteen months several hundred of these spreaders have been in constant use in all sections of the country. Remember we have repairs for all machines and can serve you promptly.

The Two Schools of Thought. Fremont Herald: There are just two schools of thought in the world. One is the Optimistic and the other the Pessimistic, one the Pros and the other the Antis of any and every issue.

The optimists are the happy folks, the prosperous folks, for they refuse to see evil, refuse to believe in poverty; but often they are saved from utter destruction by the pessimists who gloomy foreboding has checked the enemy in time to prevent disaster.

The optimists are the smug conservatives who are confident that everything is just right and just as it should be. The pessimists are the radicals, who fret at present imperfection and dream of progress and reform.

The optimists spend their days in praising the good Lord and his manifold blessings, whilst the pessimists spend theirs in pointing to the wrath that is sure to come and deploring the sinful indifference of the optimists.

In religion, the optimistic are found busy praising and petting the 99 good sheep who goeth not astray, whilst the pessimistic are scouring the countryside in search of that one wayward sheep which has strayed from the fold.

In politics, the optimists are the "sims" and the pessimists are the "outs" or in this country, the optimists are the Republicans and the pessimists the Democrats. The optimists are always the more popular, because they sing a song that is pleasing to the ear of the majority. The pessimists please the minority, for, while they are ever fighting the battles of the many, it is only the few who harken to their battle songs.

Everyone knows something of how hard it is to "keep up with the Joneses" and a telephone company has to keep up with the Joneses and "everybody" in the sense that it is responsible for keeping telephone service up with their increasing demands. The only way that a telephone company can see to it that telephone service fits your needs in every way . . . that it is dependable, adequate and accurate . . . is by planning years in advance and putting in lines and switchboards and other equipment which will allow for growth and expansion of service. Planning and building for the future also keeps down the cost of service because well planned equipment can be used for many years before it needs to be replaced. In working toward the end of providing you with the service that meets your requirements in every way, we invite your comments. Give us a "picture" of the service from your viewpoint so that we will be better able to determine what should be done in order to provide you with the most satisfactory service.
