Grandmother Had to Shout When She Used the Telephone

It is now so easy to hear over the telephone when words are spoken in a normal tone of voice directly into the mouthpiece, that it is hard to realize that when grandmother was a girl she had to shout when using the telephone.

Thus, telephoning, once a matter of nerve strain and lung power, has become progressively easier and more certain. One has but to compare the quality of local and long distance telephony 20 years ago and today to realize the amount of intensive work which has gone into perfecting the telephone art.

Research and experiment to improve "hearing" qualities have been carried on continuously since the telephone was born. As a result, receivers and transmitters have been improved, better wire developed and countless other parts of the telephone system perfected.

Not many weeks remain before Christmas, and early buying for the great holiday is urged. It is none too early to start.

Whatever one may choose for his life work, he must understand that responsibility goes with authority and hard work goes with liberal compensation.

Telling people conditions are not prospering is like telling a fellow that he has the stomach ache when he can't feel it, much as he may be inclined to do it.

Another reason we are relieved by the passing of the campaign is the abatement of the flood of political material which appeared with every incoming mail.

Not only did women generally vote in the late election, but they took an active and influential interest in the campaign. On both sides, women took leading parts in discussing issues and persuading voters. And we doubt if men ever had clearer understanding of public questions than that developed in recent years by women.

While issues in a presidential campaign may not be seriously in conflict, so far as they concern values of business, yet there is an undercurrent of uneasiness lest a change might cause disturbance and depression, and so the passing of the political battle with results known, is stimulating and encouraging, and the tendency should be for healthy improvement.

It is reported that President Coolidge will, on expiration of his term, retire to Northampton, Mass., and rent a home there at $32.50 per month. We would invite him to come to Wayne to locate if we did not feel that rents would be too high here. It is doubtful if a house to suit him could be rented in Wayne for $32.50, but he would find conditions correspondingly better here.

To enforce the American spirit of equality, use of the air by broadcasting stations should be restricted the same as use of the mails by newspapers. If it is inimical to the social welfare to advertise lotteries, it is equally so for broadcasting stations to do so. In justice, employment of air communication must in all

UP TO EACH.

Now that the campaign is over and different issues have been dragged to the front and discussed from every angle, let us buckle down to the business of hoeing our own respective rows and doing our best to solve our individual problems, meeting conditions that develop and surmounting obstacles that arise to hinder progress. Times are not so much at fault as campaign orators sought to make people believe. Whatever is lacking in agriculture to give it equal and deserved advantage with manufacturing and other lines of endeavor will be supplied by legislation as far as possible, according to the promises of everybody who ran for office in the late election, and it is hoped some sound governmental plan may be worked out in support of a fair parity of values. However, we cannot look to legislation to cure mistakes in judgment, to fire ambition or to insure habits of industry and economy. Some may live without work; some may receive more than they earn, but as fixed by natural laws of compensation, earnest effort without too much waste of time or too many lapses of judgment, must be put forth to gain due headway or to reach goals of success. Whether one is engaged in agriculture, merchandising or manufacturing, he must pay the price to win, and unavoidable misfortune, likely to follow in one's footsteps, is more easily overcome through the fortitude which is developed by firm application to one's accepted task. National or local atmosphere may furnish favorable winds for sailing, but whatever conditions may be results will be largely determined by the individual's fitness and energy.

respects be surrounded by all restrictions that regulate newspaper publications.

Mr. Etina in Italy heard about our political fireworks and commenced acting up, throwing out such volume of lava that people in neighboring towns had to flee to save their lives. With subsidence of flaming politics, we hope Etina will now settle down and behave.

The dignified manner in which Herbert Hoover conducted his campaign, keeping his utterances free from prejudice or abuse, coupled with knowledge of his past public service and confidence in his ability, and high purposes, proved a powerful force in lifting him to the most exalted executive position in the world. People believe he will fully measure up to his task and responsibility.

Next Sunday will be Armistice day—ten years since the armistice was signed and hostilities in Europe ceased. It is the anniversary of an occasion which all—especially the boys at the front—remember as one that brought profound relief. The winner in war is always a huge loser, and it is hoped the end of the world tragedy which is recalled at this time, marks the end of settling disputes among nations by armed conflict.

A magazine writer defends America against foreign critics who seek to discredit our motives, pointing to us as selfish and avicious and wholly devoted to the worship of Mammon. We are thus misunderstood and misjudged, notwithstanding our example of huge sacrifice at the time of Europe's terrible conflict. The author calls attention to America's development from a wild frontier in three centuries—a raw continent made productive by industrious people, and he emphasizes the need of material basis and prosperity to encourage literature and art. Attention is called to the fact that Americans invented the cotton-gin, sewing machine, telephone, typewriter, talking-machine, incandescent lamp, linotype, motion-picture machine, airplane, vulcanization of rubber, modern agricultural machinery, modern bootmaking machinery and other inventions that revolutionized transportation, industry and agriculture and vastly improved living conditions. As suggested by the author, Americans are making encouraging strides in literature and art, and instead of deserving criticism, they deserve commendation for progress in many things that make for wholesome civilization. Foreigners should lower their noses and make earnest inquiry before giving vent to criticism which is unjustified by the facts.

A Vicious Circle.

World-Herald: Mrs. Dan V. Stephens of Fremont issues timely advice to parents not to "relinquish all responsibility for the education of their children to school officials and teachers."

This is particularly pertinent with reference to those objects of child training which formerly were considered to be the concern of the home but which in these latter days of educational progress are coming more and more to be thrust upon or usurped by the school. The parent perhaps can well afford to leave to the teacher the mechanics of education, those things which we describe as the three R's. These are the keys with which the child later may unlock the doors to the world's storehouse of knowledge. There is no question in them of what it is desirable or not desirable for the child to know. There is involved only the question of method of instruction and the teacher who has made a professional study of method should be the best equipped to apply it. But education today is concerned not alone with supplying the mechanics of learning nor exer-

THE ELECTION. The election is over, and the result is a veritable landslide in behalf of the republican presidential candidate. The great mid-western agricultural state went to Hoover without exception, seeming to resent the campaign demagoguery that they were drifting toward the rocks and eager to grab any political nostrum that might be offered. Results reflected intelligent discrimination on the part of farming communities, and showed confidence in the constructive leadership of Herbert Hoover, who, with no fireworks, pledged himself carefully to work out practical plans to put farm prices on an equality with other prices. Tuesday's vote evidently disapproved of the proposed upsetting of prohibition and expressed confidence in a Hoover administration to deal with this difficult problem. If Senator Norris' pronouncement against the republican candidate for president helped the opposition in Nebraska or elsewhere, we are wondering what the consequences would have been without it. We who are sympathetically inclined, are glad the senator spoke and thus perhaps prevented more overwhelming defeat. People who run for office or who become conspicuous in a political campaign are usually good losers, and we are pleased to note that though Gov. Smith is naturally disappointed, he accepts the outcome philosophically and good-naturedly.

These things the parent cannot shoulder off upon the schools. Where the schools concern themselves with them it can at best be but as supplementary to the training which the home must give. The child's character is not moulded in any one place. Every activity in which he engages, in the home, on the playground or in the classroom, affects it. So it is but natural that school men and women should be thinking in terms of character development as well as in terms of mental training in studying their responsibility to the child. But there is danger of the establishment of a vicious circle, and it is a present danger, in injecting too much extraneous character building or physical welfare matter into the curricula of our public schools. The more the schools take over such subjects the more the parent tends to leave it to the school and the more the parent neglects his duty the greater the pressure becomes to increase the school's responsibility.

The result can in the end be disastrous, for nothing, we believe, not even the best of the schools can ever hope to do, can take the place of the discipline which the right kind of home can give.

Divorce Publicity.

Sioux City Journal: A bill prepared for submission to the Kansas legislature at its next session provides that private hearings should be had in divorce and breach of promise suits as well as in criminal cases when morals and decency are involved. The measure is said to have the support of the attorney general and the Women's Christian Temperance union of the state. Such cases would be heard if the bill became a law in judges' chambers, and the public would be excluded. Attorney General William A.

Smith's statement in support of the bill urged its passage on the ground that "trials of notorious cases, involving clandestine love affairs are followed by an epidemic of similar affairs." The official said he based this upon personal observation.

Kansas legislators might study to advantage the working out of a similar law in Great Britain. In recent years it has been the rule in Great Britain that newspapers were not permitted to publish testimony at divorce trials, and the public has been excluded from the hearings. Sensational cases involving prominent persons, some of them high in official life, were responsible for the legislation.

It was the English theory that this would be better for everybody concerned. The public would be spared the sensational details, and a general improvement morally would result, according to the supporters of the legislation. Incidentally—and this may have had a profound effect upon many persons who urged the change—numerous individuals of prominence also would be saved from the unfavorable publicity usually attending such trials.

A report on the result of the change in Great Britain is at hand. It does not encourage duplication of the law anywhere. It has failed to create a better atmosphere in British national life and it has not protected homes. It has gone to an unexpected extreme in encouraging divorce. This, for the simple reason that hundreds of persons have sought the step knowing publicity would be given to the cases. Divorce in England is now possible without any of the sensational details being known outside a judge's chambers. The British have found by eliminating publicity that after all it was a check on divorce.

Smith's Handicaps.

Norfolk Daily News: Governor Smith has earned a reputation in his own state for being a skillful and astute politician. His four elections as governor of New York, once in the face of a heavy Republican majority for the national ticket, proves that this reputation was justified when only the electorate of New York and state issues were concerned. His weakness as a national figure, despite the millions of money spent in his behalf and the close political organization that backed him, requires an explanation quite apart from his ability. Not even his bitterest opponents deny that he has been a great governor.

Seeking this explanation we must first take into consideration that he did not start the race at the beginning by an almost two to one Republican majority. He was further weighted by the fact that the south has been growing restive under its one-party system and offered at best a not very solid foundation upon which to build political strength.

Fundamentally, however, the cause of his weakness lies in the fact that his experience as governor of New York had not given him familiarity with national issues and national viewpoints. He had appealed only to New York city. He found it necessary to execute a sudden shift when he discovered himself face to face with the more than 100,000,000 Americans who live beyond the Hudson.

In attempting to readjust himself to these unfamiliar conditions he made the mistake of injecting prohibition into the campaign. We may admire his candor in taking the wet side of this issue, but in the light of the outcome we can hardly commend his judgment. He failed to hold New York and he alienated the west and parts of the south. He also bungled when he tried to enlist the farmers in his political army. He apparently took seriously the shoutings of a few men who had appointed themselves "farm leaders" and undertook to tell the world what the farmers were demanding. His attempt to discuss the farm issue was not very convincing. Mr. Hoover early forced him to shift his position on the tariff, on immigration, on waterways and to some extent on the water power problem. He failed to remember that surrender to the enemy is not the way to victory.

This, together with a personality that seems to make him immensely popular in some parts of the east, but which appears to have no attraction to those brought up of the Atlantic states, doomed him to failure. This failure was the more complete because he was pitted against a man who had been conceded by nearly everybody before politics warped the judgment of some of them, to be the greatest administrator of his generation. The handicap was more than even as capable a statesman as Governor Smith could overcome.

Mr. Hoover's Victory.

Sioux City Journal: The election of Herbert Hoover to the presidency was a sweeping victory which was indicated long before the people went to the polls and expressed their preference. That is to say that the various republican claims that the party's candidate would win by a comfortable plurality if the electoral college were substituted by the returns, which after all, offer the best proof of sound predictions.

Forecasts offered as a composite effort of the republican press of the country, which it now may be said, made an honest effort to present reasonable conclusions rather than hopes, agreed that Mr. Hoover would be swept into office. Reports submitted to the republican national committee from time to time in the closing weeks of the campaign, dealt with the political situation in various states, and it is now seen that they were accurate in almost every particular.

It was not difficult to predict the election of Herbert Hoover. Normally the country has always been republican. As someone suggested, the democrats were doomed to defeat because they did not have enough votes. On that basis and with the various issues taken into consideration it was an easy victory for Herbert Hoover to win. The times were good. They are good now, and they promise to be even better. Prosperity was not a myth but a fact well known to the great bulk of the American people. Humanity likes prosperity. The Americans have learned to enjoy it, and they are in no mood to give it up. So they refused to vote for a change in the government. That represents, perhaps, the chief reason why today Herbert Hoover is president-elect of the United States.

It makes no difference what an economist would say about business being bigger than a political party and unaffected by governmental policies. The advantage given to the republican party in this election because of the times was psychological. The people hesitated to vote a change when the business situation was good and promised to improve.

Added to this powerful appeal of the times in the election of Mr. Hoover was the over-powering avalanche of women votes. There can be no question as to the national referendum on the prohibition question! It was a leading issue, a compelling thing that was put up to the American people for decision. They have decided. They have returned their verdict, and it is for a continuance of the constitutional amendment prohibiting the sale, manufacture and transportation of liquor.

Another thing that was arresting in this campaign was the character, personality, ability and appeal of the candidate who emerged victorious in yesterday's struggle. Herbert Hoover, himself, was as much an issue as anything else presented to the electorate. The American people liked the manner in which he presented his plea for their support. They approved his record of public service and they trusted the man as well as the party he represented. In a word, they wanted him, believing he would take to the White House the kind of ability needed in a chief executive.

Mr. Hoover's campaign was quiet, dignified, scholarly and without prejudice. No one can accuse him of falling to conduct himself in a manner worthy of the best traditions in American politics. He went about the country presenting his policies, explaining his attitude on public questions and he did it in such a way that he inspired confidence. His overwhelming victory, of course, brings him to the climax of his notable career. It is safe to say that his administration will justify the trust imposed in him by the millions of American men and women who are responsible for his triumph.

As To Election in Different Sections

Hoover is leading in all states except a bloc in the deep south and in Massachusetts and Rhode Island. The Republicans made gains in both the senate and the house. Smith lost his own state of New York; Hoover carried his home state of California. Roosevelt for governor and Copeland for United States senator ran ahead of Smith in New York state and are leading their republican opponents for those offices. Six Democratic house seats were won by the Republicans in Kentucky. Hoover is leading in the southern states of Virginia, North Carolina, Florida and Tennessee and has a fair chance in Texas. Governor Smith and Chairman Raskob of the Democratic national committee, congratulated Hoover on his victory before midnight. Hoover is running ahead in the corn belt and border states. Mrs. Mary H. Leavitt, Hoover's sister, was the first to cast a vote in her precinct in Santa Monica, Calif. Westerville, O., birthplace of the Anti-Saloon league, gave Hoover, 1,225 votes to 261 for Smith. Hoover's home precinct in Palo Alto, Calif., gave him 410 votes to 50 for Smith and 8 for Thomas. Franklin D. Roosevelt, New York's next governor, cast his ballot wearing the battered old brown "good luck" hat in which he campaigned as Democratic vice-presidential nominee in 1920. He voted at Hyde Park, in Dutchess county, which went Republican, although by a less than normal majority. Albany, New York's capital city, which has known Smith as governor for four terms, gave him a majority of 14,268 votes over Hoover. The total: Smith, 42,312; Hoover, 28,044.

He is charged with embezzling about $5,000 from an estate of which he was administrator. The estate is that of the late George Vinson, who died in 1925. Pilger has denied his guilt. The bank Pilger directed 15 years was taken over by the guaranty fund commission in March, 1928. Pilger also was treasurer of the Pierce school district and city. An audit by Bank Examiner A. B. Hoagland revealed that Pilger owed the city $7,500 and the school $5,500. A preliminary hearing will be held on his return to Pierce. n81t

Horses Use Makeup In Picture Roles

"Makeup" for motion picture horses! Even the equine thespians in Erich von Stroheim's production of "The Wedding March," which will show at the Gay theatre next Sunday, Monday and Tuesday, were initiated into the mysteries of "paint and powder." A troop of cavalry appears in the background of one scene and, at Von Stroheim's behest, a property man secured a can of paint and gave each horse's hoofs a coat of shining black.

A contemporary says that insects have been on this earth for fifty million years, while the human race is only five hundred thousand years old. Then what did the moths live on before there were any dress-trousers?—Punch.

WHEN THEY HAVE CROSSED THE BAR

Dignity and Refinement

If we should be asked what we considered the two indispensable elements in the management of last rites for the dead, we should unhesitatingly reply, "Dignity and refinement." Technical skill is necessary, and sympathy and tact will be sorely missed if absent; but the obligation to the dead and to the living calls first and foremost for dignity and refinement in every detail. We strive to make every detail of our service reflect the sacredness of the trust reposed in us.

Annual Session Teachers Held

State Convention for Third District Held at Norfolk Last of the Week.

Represent Wayne

Many From Here Attend and Take Part on Program—Music Contest to Wayne.

Annual session of the Nebraska State Teachers association, Third district, held at Norfolk Thursday and Friday, was attended by about 765 instructors of northeast Nebraska. The Wayne State Teachers College and high school took active parts in the various programs and several were elected to offices for the coming year. Norfolk was chosen the place of meeting for 1929. Wayne received a large vote.

Officers Are Elected. Officers elected for the ensuing year are: Prin. J. W. Sahlstrom, Norfolk, president; Supt. B. W. Keister, Neligh, vice president; County Supt. Anne Will, West Point, secretary; and Supt. George W. Wilcox, Niobrara, treasurer.

The delegate assembly includes: Myrtle M. Scoville, Hartington; R. C. Anderson, Bancroft; Ruth A. Kile, Pierce; Ida McClintock, Neligh; Dean H. Hahn, Wayne; Mr. Sahlstrom; E. J. A. Rice, Ainsworth; Mr. Alder; W. E. Flake, Stanton; Mr. Kiester; J. G. W. Lewis, Wayne; S. B. Shively, Plainview; A. V. Teed, Wayne; H. B. Simon, Norfolk; H. N. Rhodes, Osmond; R. A. Dawson, Randolph.

Supt. F. E. Alder of Pierce, was president the past year; Prof. J. G. W. Lewis of Wayne, vice president; and Supt. B. V. Keister of Neligh, secretary. The convention sessions opened Wednesday evening last week when Dr. Henry Suzzallo of San Jose, Calif., spoke on the "Advancement of Education."

Waynes Furnish Music. Prof. W. Irving Horn of the Wayne State Teachers College, led community singing for the opening program Thursday. He led singing at several sessions. He directed the boys' glee club of the college in presenting an operetta, "Freshies," a comedy on fraternity life, before the men's dinner Thursday. Prof. W. C. Lowrie and P. W. Maynard of Wayne, presented a black-face skit at the dinner and delighted the educators with this. Supt. Glenn Bell of Allen, acted as toastmaster at the dinner.

The Women's Educational association held a banquet at Norfolk last week and Wayne teachers took an active part in this. Prof. W. C. Hunter and the orchestral club trio of Wayne, pleasantly entertained the assemblage with several selections Thursday evening.

Judge C. H. Stewart welcomed the teachers. Supt. Alder responded. Edmund Werner of Carroll, delighted the audience with a solo, "Thara."

Should Furnish Ideals. Dr. Herbert L. Martin, professor of psychology in the University of Iowa, addressed the teachers on "The Men and Women We Look At." He stated that teachers fashion the ideal man and ideal woman for their pupils and specify qualities that are models for the young people. In speaking of the qualities of character a teacher should possess, Dr. Martin stated that he should have sympathy as broad, deep and sincere as that of Abraham Lincoln; he should have the courage of leadership for objectivity and a loyalty to course as that of the greatest of all teachers, Jesus. "Jesus had a purpose and a cause, and that was to do his Father's will. He possessed self-forgetfulness and because of his sympathy and courage the eyes of the world are still fastened on him."

The ideal man of the future will never be a great general, Dr. Martin asserted. "The world wants the military hero impossible. To visualize the amount of love and friendship snuffed out by the war, the speaker stated that it would take eight months for the manhood of the world, killed in the last war, to pass a given point, passing ten abreast. The present generation should be taught higher ideals of manhood and womanhood, the speaker stated, and each generation will thus be improved.

Supt. T. S. Hook Speaks. Supt. T. S. Hook of Wayne, in speaking on "Teacher Tenure," stated that it is up to the teachers to work out their problems and eliminate from the profession those without proper qualifications. He advocated that teachers set the standards. There are 100,000 new teachers added to the profession in the United States each year, Supt. Hook stated, and one-fourth of the students of the country are still taught by teachers who are not old enough to vote.

Favors Retirement Plan. Miss Mary Crawford of Kearney, in speaking on "Teacher Retirement," stated that the test of any measure is whether or not it will benefit Nebraska children. A teacher retirement meets this, she said, for it eliminates incompetent teachers, attracts the best talent to the profession and encourages efficiency of teachers by study and travel. Twenty-seven states now have such a plan.

Dr. C. A. Phillips of the University of Missouri, speaking on "Education for a Changing Moral Order," stated that the world is growing better. However, the educator should not be a cheerleader for the other fellow in social and business life today and this should be overcome.

Other Addresses Given. "The human mind is made as it is and not some other way, hence, it must be taught in certain ways and not others," declared Dr. Frederick B. Knight, University of Iowa, in his address on "Why Tolerate Bunk in Our Profession?" on Thursday. Of special importance are: First, careful identification of every difficulty to be learned; second, special attention to careful drill, and, third, adequate motivation for effort. Dr. Knight said, "The human mind will not do something for nothing."

State Supt. Charles W. Taylor in his talk on "Some Problems of Character Education" emphasized the great opportunity the public schools have in being of service to the commercial world in improving all business ethics. S. R. Olson of Omaha, spoke on "Adult Immigration Education in Nebraska," and Dr. E. K. Fretwell of Columbia University, spoke on "Practicing Citizenship in the Public Schools" at the closing session Friday.

Music Contest in Wayne. Wayne was selected as the district city in which the elimination musical contest will be held next April prior to the holding of the state event at Lincoln. The following were elected officers of the organization to be in charge of the contest: Mrs. Laura Belle Johnson, music supervisor of Wayne schools, president; C. A. Larson, Tilden, vice-president; Supt. E. P. Hodapp, Emerson, secretary. Next spring a new procedure in music contests will be followed in Nebraska. In previous years, schools have been permitted to send their outstanding musicians in elimination contests to Lincoln for the state finals. Next spring, only winners of the district will compete in the state contests. Teachers who attended the convention were guests of the Norfolk Chamber of Commerce at a lecture course number, a theatre party and dance.

Much Of Interest Is Found On Trip

Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Miner, who arrived home last week from an automobile trip to Charlotte, N. C., found their 4,000-mile drive most interesting. Charlotte lies in a valley, about fifty miles from the mountains on the west and about 200 miles from the coast. Climate is ideal and the country, with cotton and tobacco as the principal crops, is beautiful. The trees, especially the white oaks and the pines, are attractive also.

Charlotte, as most eastern cities, has experienced great growth in the past few years, the Miners found. The population is about 90,000, double what it was a decade ago. The reason for this is that 400 distributing plants have been established. Manufacturing plants for use of cotton and tobacco, automobile assembling and distributing plants, etc., are making the center grow. Products are shipped from Wilmington, the sea port which is 200 miles distant.

Enroute to the southeast the Miners drove to St. Joseph and then through Missouri to Louisville, Ky. Missouri has the best crop of corn which the travelers saw on the journey. Fruits are raised extensively in the state also. They went through the mining district in southern Illinois. Western Kentucky, near Louisville, the Miners found to be ideal. Large estates with marvelous crops of bluegrass and with good stands of corn and other grain are beautiful. Sheep, cattle and horses are to be seen grazing on the grass, and the horses, which are the pride of the state, are fine looking animals. Large homes with such surroundings give an appearance of prosperity. And there is prosperity, the Miners found, for land is valued from $300 to $500 per acre in that section.

Traveling through eastern Kentucky and into Tennessee and Virginia, the Miners found mining the principal industry in the mountains. Roads are good through the hills though one can make but 200 miles a day. The roads curve many times and one has to be careful in driving. Mr. Miner found all people on the highway good drivers, attending strictly to their task when going through the mountains.

Mrs. Jack Beatty, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Miner, accompanied them from Charlotte as far as Louisville, Ky., on the return trip. She formerly taught there and came to Louisville for a visit with friends.

J. H. Kate Sees Beauty In Wayne

Urges Improvements in Grounds of City Hall and Other Down-Town Parks.

John Kate, who with his wife came here this fall for an extended visit in the J. E. Hufford home, writes the following communication to Wayne Herald readers:

"After being in a hospital for nearly a year it was quite natural that I should think of some beautiful place where I had friends for convalescing. Of course I selected Wayne as it always to me has been the most beautiful little city I have ever seen. It was a beautiful autumn day when I arrived and I took a long walk about this interesting little city to see what had been done since I lived here eighteen years ago.

"The first place I visited was the State Teachers College. I was agreeably surprised to see the many new buildings that had been erected since I left this city. The trees and flowers with the enlargement of the grounds and the beautiful view extending down the Logan valley made a sight for me more beautiful than any I ever saw in any school location.

"The fine residences with well-kept lawns, shrubbery and flowers made a pleasing sight for a sick man. And to meet some old friend on every corner proved to be the most inspiring thing that had happened to me since my illness.

"On my walk down Main street it was pleasing to see the improvements that had been made in the eighteen years. The new buildings and the pavement have given Wayne the appearance of a large city. I was much surprised and pleased with the size and beauty of the new theatre. The postoffice building is a worthy improvement. The new hotel I visited and I was pleased to find it such a fine modern building with every room up to date in comfort and conveniences, equal to the best hotel accommodations anywhere.

"Here comes the sad part of my letter. I wish to make an apology in the beginning. I may find it necessary to mention myself quite often, but I desire to give full credit to those who helped me to bring about those things which were done when I was mayor of Wayne.

"After I was elected mayor of the saloon people asked for license, which I refused to give for I believed Wayne would be a better place in which to live without saloons. As this was a college town I felt off the more certain that the city should not have a saloon. However, I told the people that if the people favored saloons at a city election I would give the license. The election majority was opposed to saloons which were thus forever banished.

"Then I called an election for a city hall. Some of the Wayne people will remember the old city hall which was sold for $18 when the new one was built. When the question came up as to the location of the city hall, the council vote was a tie. I cast the vote which located the building on the present site. This is one of the reasons I have never lost interest in the city hall. Some people did not like the site and a number of injunctions were filed against building the structure on the grounds. I appealed again to the voters and called an election and the people favored my choice of site. The court allowed me but $2,000 for the ground, which was priced at $4,600. I appealed to my friends to raise the extra $2,600 by subscription. The neighbors around were told that if the $2,600 were raised the ground would be a beautiful park with trees and flowers surrounding the city hall. It would always be a beauty spot and would add to the value of the property around. The necessary amount was raised. The court said I would have to get permit from the voters to use this subscription money. The people again sustained my action.

"The next important question was the depot. The railroad commission granted permission to improve the old one with $8,000. We at once extended the fire limit past the depot and refused the railroad company permit to repair the old depot. The superintendent came here in a special car and he and I stayed up all one night to discuss the matter. I demanded a new modern depot on this side of the tracks, built of brick, with tile floor and roof. I refused fire protection if the old building caught. After dealing with the president and superintendent of the road I was allowed to pick a depot from a number of pictures. Then the president said if I could buy the ground on the north side so that they could drive on that side of the building, they would make a small park and erect a fountain and plant flowers. I at once agreed to buy the land and asked the people to subscribe $3,600. I succeeded in getting only $2,200 and then asked the railroad company to pay the balance, which they did.

"Next was the question of getting the library site. After dealing with the Carnegie commission refused to grant the amount necessary to build the present size of building because the Wayne assessment was not large enough. Believing that our assessment was too low I made a statement that our valuation was sufficient for a building of the present size. This may not interest older citizens but the younger ones and new citizens should know about these things as they will feel it their duty to carry out the plans that were conceived when the buildings were started.

"While standing in the new hotel lobby and looking over the grounds of the city hall tears came to my eyes when I noticed that part of the grounds that we worked so hard to get and the neighborhood paid for, were used for parking spaces. When I looked at the grounds and saw that not a dollar had been invested in beautifying the land, no trees or flowers planted, I realized that my efforts to have a beauty spot in the center of the business district were not appreciated. As you now have an opportunity, with the new hotel, of advertising the beautiful little city to every tourist and every other person who patronizes the hotel, I hope you will grasp this opportunity by beautifying the grounds around the city hall next spring. Commence right now by fertilizing the ground and next spring seed it well with bluegrass. Do the same with the library ground and the park at the depot. This is only a beginning. Get a landscape gardener in the spring to lay out these grounds and plant the things he will suggest. No doubt he would have a hedge around the city hall grounds and the library grounds and some evergreens for a background. Then add some cut-leaved birch trees and some elm around the city hall. Some creeping vines would soon grow over the buildings and add to their beauty. The railroad company agreed to put in a fountain and plant flowers, which agreement should be carried out. It is a mistake to allow anyone to park a car in front of the fire station for an accident is likely to result some day. To build library and city hall buildings and neglect the grounds does not add much beauty to the city. The state built fine structures for the college and immediately planted trees and flowers to decorate the grounds. Every citizen who builds a home beautifies the grounds around it. Why not have the city officials attend to the same for public buildings? No other city of the size of Wayne is as beautiful. Do as I suggest and you will add much more to advertise the town and you will keep the lead over other towns the same size in the state. I am sincerely interested in Wayne and urge the people to promote these aims started years ago."

Storm Hampers Activities Here

Rain, Snow and Wind Crippled Travel and Communication Last of Week.

Drifts On Roads

Corn Picking Is Hindered as Many Ears Were Previously Blown From Stalks.

Travel, communication and corn picking were at a standstill the last of the week when the season's first snow fell Thursday, following rain all day Wednesday. Wind Thursday night drifted the snow and blocked the roads. Rain and snow weighted telephone wires and many were broken. The same was true of trees, many large limbs, especially on fruit trees, being broken by the weight. The snow varied from about five to eight inches in this section to eighteen inches in South Dakota. Drifts in this vicinity reached the depth of seven to nine feet.

Highways in this section were blocked Friday and Saturday though tractors were started out early to clear them. One of the deep drifts was west of Arona to the corner eight miles south of Wayne. This was estimated to be from seven to nine feet deep. Another mile that was badly blocked was the one east of the church, six miles southwest of Wayne. Many farmers were busy the last of the week trying to dig and plow a path through the snow.

Thursday's storm caught many cars on the highways. Main roads were lined by ten and twelve at the difficult places most of the day. Many travelers abandoned their cars near the drifts and walked to shelter.

Train number 53, leaving Wayne Thursday evening for Bloomfield, ran into deep snow banks near Randolph. An engine and one car started from Randolph west that night and were held up by snow, having to remain there until Friday when a snow plow was sent to the rescue.

Corn picking, which was about half finished in this vicinity, was stopped by last week's storm.

Much of the corn was blown from the stalks by the wind during the drouth this fall. This will hinder picking until the snow melts and the fields dry somewhat. Snow weighted trees in the vicinity and caused considerable damage. Many large limbs broke. Fruit trees suffered especially.

Temperatures during the storm hovered around freezing here. Colder weather was reported farther north.

Bus service was crippled by the storm. Most busses operated Wednesday but the schedule was abandoned Thursday for the rest of the week.

Precipitation during the storm period is estimated at 1.1 inches. The moisture is regarded as very beneficial to the ground.

Livestock did not suffer during the snow storm in this section. No losses resulted.

Young Farmer Is Drowned In Creek

Thomas Josten, 25, was drowned in a small creek near Stanton last week. He had worked at the Jess Marotz farm near Hoskins, and a few weeks ago went to the Gnirk farm near there. He disappeared Sunday, October 28, and when he did not arrive Monday morning to begin his work search was started. His lifeless body was found in the creek; Mr. Josten had been depondent and it is thought he committed suicide. His relatives all live in Germany.

CHEVROLET

CONSTANT EXPANSION
—to serve Chevrolet owners better

SINCE January 1st more than a million new Chevrolets have been delivered to owners—making the Chevrolet Motor Company, for these two consecutive years, the world's largest builder of automobiles!

This outstanding achievement has been attained not only because of the quality and value of Chevrolet cars—but also because there has been a constant expansion of Chevrolet service facilities.

In order to bring these mammoth facilities of the Chevrolet factories to Chevrolet dealers and owners everywhere, there have been erected 26 huge parts warehouses in the principal centers of distribution. This expansion program is continually going on—for four great additional warehouses will be in operation by January first and seven more by the summer of 1929.

Into the service departments of all Chevrolet dealers, Chevrolet has brought special tools and shop equipment—designed under the supervision of Chevrolet engineers. This equipment definitely assures maximum speed and precision and the lowest possible cost in the performance of every Chevrolet service and repair operation—which are charged for on a flat rate basis.

Furthermore, all of these tremendous facilities have been made available to 15,000 authorized service stations manned by skilled mechanics, over 25,000 of whom have been factory trained to efficiently handle every repair operation on a Chevrolet car. In addition, there are over 4,000 other points where genuine Chevrolet parts may be obtained.

Uniformly efficient, uniformly reliable and within easy reach of everybody everywhere—this great service organization is maintaining at peak efficiency the fine performance for which Chevrolet cars have always been renowned.

We cordially invite you to come in and see how our service facilities reflect the influence of this great national service program.

Wind Slain Woman

Neligh, Neb., Nov. 3.—A second search by authorities for the body of Mrs. Rose Witmer, whom her husband, Ernest, confessed Friday to having slain on October 26, was successful today, the corpse being found in a shallow grave near the Wilmer home. An earlier search, conducted according to directions of Witmer in his confession, had been in vain. Sheriff Sutton and several deputies removed Witmer from a jail at Norfolk shortly after noon and the second quest for the grave got under way shortly afterward. The alleged wife slayer, was taken directly to his home and he then showed the sheriff and his aids where he had interred the body of his wife. The 26-year-old farmer betrayed no emotion when the body was removed from the earth. Feeling Runs High. Witmer has repeatedly stated that he murdered his spouse because she was addicted to cigars and made no effort to comply with his command that she quit smoking them. Sheriff Sutton questions this motive and plans to scout the farmer further about what prompted him to rid himself of his wife. Wilmer, who surrendered to Norfolk authorities Friday after having hidden in various parts of Iowa, South Dakota and Minnesota since the crime, told Sheriff Sutton that he induced his wife to drink a glass of poisoned home brew, which dazed her. The farmer also stated in his confession, the sheriff said, that he then hit his wife over the head with the whiplette of a buggy, and a hammer and an ax in order to be doubly sure she would die. After all signs of life had disappeared, the slayer carried the body of his victim to a corn field west of the home, dug a shallow grave and placed it therein. Although feeling is running high in the community near the Wilmer home, Sheriff Sutton does not anticipate any serious trouble from residents thereabouts. It is his belief that they will permit the law to run its course and let the courts decide what the penalty for the alleged murderer shall be. At a temperature of 85, says the National Probation Association, crimes of violence begin to decrease rapidly. Maybe this explains hell.—Chicago Journal of Commerce. An Australian actress announces her engagement to Explorer Wilkins. Mr. Wilkins says he has nothing to say. It is a good sign when a bridegroom finds that out that early.—American Lumberman (Chicago).

Capital Punishment

Dr. Bixby in Lincoln Journal: Brother J. H. Alden of the York Republican is bitterly opposed to the execution of criminals for capital offenses. In a late issue he says, "The editor of this newspaper disclaims any responsibility for the legalized murder of Frank Sharp." There are those who claim that a killing isn't "murder" when the same has judicial sanction. The word "execution" sounds less repugnant, but to a man up a tree the differentiation is a mere matter of taste. So long as the law cumberers our criminal code, let it take its course; but where the doom of the miscreant is death, why the long months of torture and expense beforehand? If ever—Lord forbid—I'm found to be Guilty of murder in the first degree, And I am doom—nobody to forbid— To take on all, the volts that Frank Sharp did, Don't keep me waiting for a weary spell In the lone confines of a prison cell, But, pronto, send for that New Jersey guy, Call in a few choice friends to see me die, And there will be from me no groans or kicks, My sins all blotted out forever. BIX.

Water Turned On

Verdigre, Neb., Nov. 3.—The Izaak Walton League which has been busy this summer constructing a lake and park, has recently completed the lake and the water has been turned on. The lake is nearly filled with water now and will make an ideal place for fish. The fish car was here Wednesday and the Ikes received fifteen cans of fish that were placed in the new lake. This lake is ten miles northwest of Verdigre and is an ideal place also for a game preserve. The land that adjoins it has been given over to this purpose. The Ikes are preparing to build cabins in their park and boats will be placed on the lake.

Beautiful Actress

Countless Admirers —The secret of her blasted life told for the first time "MAGDA, the saintly," her friends called her. For though this beautiful actress had countless admirers, she steadily refused to let the slightest suspicion of love or romance enter her life. Then something happened. The treacherous tongue of scandal linked her name in an ugly way with that of a man of great social prominence. For some strange reason Magda neither denied nor confirmed these rumors. The poison spread. One by one her friends deserted her. Even her youthful protegee, a young man in the cast whom she had encouraged and helped with all her strength, publicly denounced her as unfit for decent people to associate with. Had he known the truth he would have cut out his tongue rather than breathe a word against her character. Then Magda's play suddenly closed. Crushed and in despair, she sought out the man responsible for her wrecked reputation, and threatened to expose him—to tell the world the truth. "I dare you to!" he snarled through evil lips. And Magda knew her fight had just begun. Until now, the sensational truth about the venomous scandal which blasted her life has remained securely locked in Magda's aching, grief-torn heart. But now her story can be told. It is entitled "Beyond the Pale," and appears complete in December True Story Magazine. Time in on the True Story! W. D. Fulton is editor of this department. Any news contributions to these columns from town or country will be gladly received by him.

Business.

Sioux City Journal: On the eve of the presidential election the outlook for business, in the judgment of the leading economists, is brighter than at any time in two years. It is possible now to say that before the first of the year business activity will equal or surpass the showing made in 1926, which was looked upon as a banner year in all lines.

An optimistic forecast is made by the Guaranty Trust company, of New York, as a result of a survey it recently conducted. It found that most of the leading industries were operating at or near record levels and that retail trade was materially larger than at the same time last year. It reported also that railway freight traffic as measured by car loadings had risen above the figures of a year ago and of two years ago. Further, the survey revealed that factory employment last month was larger than at any time since October last year. Moreover, commodity exports were as large as they were in September while for the month of October last imports declined to the value of about $20,000,000. Obviously an impressive trade balance in favor of the United States will be shown at the end of the year.

The Guaranty Trust company also advised in its report that "by the curious reversal of farm that has been shown repeatedly in the last few years the autumn trade expansion has been accompanied by a general movement downward of commodity prices." Both volume and value were increased by this economic phenomenon, for, with price levels lower, buying power is stimulated, sales are increased and what might have been lost in narrowed margins of profit are more than made up in heavier movements of goods.

Steel production continues at a high level. An advance in price is expected in line with the strengthened demand. Automobile manufacturers operating at or close to capacity and with orders on hand to keep them running for almost another year at the same rate are responsible for the quickening in steel production. Building is accounting for heavy orders in this line, and the railroads also are contributing to the activity.

Crop harvesting and movement of grain developed rapidly with the coming of colder weather. Throughout the middle west corn and wheat belt retail trade is improving from week to week. All signs point to continued activity in business during the coming year.

Children of Abuse.

Sioux City Journal: It is rare that parents may be found who do not, in the judgment of their offspring, abuse the tender children under their care and guidance. "I'm the only one that never has any fun!" is a familiar wail in most American homes. Meanwhile glowing tributes are paid to the generosity of other parents whose children enjoy liberty, freedom and happiness. Thus parents have before them pointed suggestions as to their own incompetency in directing and controlling their own fledglings.

A mother told how the son of the family, now grown, protested early and late and often that he was the only one of his gang to be brought under strict control at home. The other fellows always had a dandy time. They were allowed to do things. They could go places. Life had become unbelievably hard for him. The same mother now hears the same wail from the daughter of the family, who has just entered her teens, a mere child but ambitious in that she feels perfectly competent to take care of herself. That mother's only consolation is the knowledge that later in life her children will realize what a wonderful thing it was for her to restrict and restrain them.

Such fathers and mothers probably have a much more difficult time in controlling their growing children because of the laxity of others. Some children are permitted to come and go as they please. It is not rare to see boys and girls of 14 or 15 out at night like grownups. No chaperons, of course. That would spoil everything. They are after "a good time." These youngsters recite with gusto their experiences, and straight home go the others to lift up their voice in the old familiar wail, "I'm the only one that never has any fun!"

What a life for fathers and mothers today! And what a life it would be for their children if in these times something of the old fashioned idea of parental control did not survive! Sophistication comes soon enough in every individual's life, and the pitfalls ahead of the adult will force him to exercise the greatest caution if he escapes them.

As we get it, both parties are now in favor of protection for everybody but pedestrians.—Weston (Ore.) Leader.

Printed Velvet Fought for Popularity

SOME STYLISTS SAID IT COULDN'T BE SMART—OTHERS, THAT ITS USES WERE LIMITED—NOW IT'S ONE OF SEASON'S BEST MATERIALS

PRINTED velvet has been the cause of much style controversy. Some arbiters said it never could be as smart as plain fabric. Others, that it was much smarter, but limited in its uses. But printed velvet has ignored all this comment, gone its own way and come out far ahead of all predictions.

Used Extensively

For this material not only is tremendously smart. It is being used for all styles and for all occasions. There are blouses for plain suits, printed frocks and wraps and whole ensembles of printed velvet.

The small figures are the best, since they are somewhat more elegant looking and fit in better with a formal, subdued, lady-like season of attire.

And the figures which are more or less conventional in design are, perhaps, somewhat smarter than the floral patterns. Dots, dashes, geometric arrangements and invisible designs are excellent.

Paris has a way of using plain velvet for the coat and a printed velvet for the frock under it to create lovely ensembles that are both practical and beautiful.

Cut Is Unusual

Such a one is a Jean Patou model (left), with bottle, green velvet fashioning the fitted, and flared coat and black fox banding fit at flounce behind, cuffs and collar.

Several shades of green, work out an intricate, little double dot and check pattern on a gold background for the velvet frock under the coat. The little frock is beautifully cut. It looks like a straight line dress but it has a circular skirt with its fullness pleated across the front. A natural waistline gives a charmingly youthful note to the ensemble.

to spend a few days with her parents.

Printed Velvet Fought for Popularity

SOME STYLISTS SAID IT COULDN'T BE SMART—OTHERS, THAT ITS USES WERE LIMITED—NOW IT'S ONE OF SEASON'S BEST MATERIALS

PRINTED velvet has been the cause of much style controversy. Some arbiters said it never could be as smart as plain fabric. Others, that it was much smarter, but limited in its uses. But printed velvet has ignored all this comment, gone its own way and come out far ahead of all predictions.

Used Extensively

For this material not only is tremendously smart. It is being used for all styles and for all occasions. There are blouses for plain suits, printed frocks and wraps and whole ensembles of printed velvet.

The small figures are the best, since they are somewhat more elegant looking and fit in better with a formal, subdued, lady-like season of attire.

And the figures which are more or less conventional in design are, perhaps, somewhat smarter than the floral patterns. Dots, dashes, geometric arrangements and invisible designs are excellent.

Paris has a way of using plain velvet for the coat and a printed velvet for the frock under it to create lovely ensembles that are both practical and beautiful.

Cut Is Unusual

Such a one is a Jean Patou model (left), with bottle, green velvet fashioning the fitted, and flared coat and black fox banding fit at flounce behind, cuffs and collar.

Several shades of green, work out an intricate, little double dot and check pattern on a gold background for the velvet frock under the coat. The little frock is beautifully cut. It looks like a straight line dress but it has a circular skirt with its fullness pleated across the front. A natural waistline gives a charmingly youthful note to the ensemble.

Greater Milk Production at Lower Cost

50,000 gallons of Letz Milk from 100 cows. This is the result of the Letz Milk-making system. It is a simple, practical, and economical method of increasing milk production and reducing the cost of milk-making.

Because farm animals assimilate feed prepared by the Letz more readily, they are more contented and give a greater milk, beef, mutton and pork production. Stalks, stems and vines formerly wasted by animals, are converted into a palatable, cost-saving feed. There is absolutely no waste to the Letz method of home-crop feeding. Thousands of owners have proved that the Letz Mixed-Feed Mill will:

- 1 Save 25 to 50% of feed crops by utilizing waste.
- 2 Release up to 30% of your usual feed crop acreage for additional cash crops.
- 3 Increase milk and meat production up to 25% through better preparation of feed.
- 4 Save up to 25% of your work in handling feed crops.
- 5 Improve health and condition of all farm animals.
