Music Notes.

The operetta, "The Bells of Capistrano," will be given Friday, November 23. A synopsis of "The Bells of Capistrano" follows:

The Ortego ranch is under a dark cloud. Drought and mysterious disappearance of cattle have left Ramon, its present master, with but one herd to pay off the mortgages held by Jake Kraft. Nonceta, an Indian girl, is a maid in the Ortego household, and is loved by Lone Eagle, a young chief. Medicine Man Pose calls upon his gods to restore the tribe's lost lands, and tells of a curse on the ranch and Capistrano mission because of wrongs done to the Indians, a curse lifted only when the bells of the mission shall ring again. Kraft urges Pose to "rustle" the last of the Ortego cattle. Nonceta overhears and begs Lone Eagle to save the ranch. Jealous of Ramon, he first refuses, but finally promises to bring back the herd on the night of the full moon. Nonceta realizes too late that she has sentenced him to death by making him a traitor to his tribe.

Professor Anderson, his sister, Laura, and students arrive at the ranch. Three of the boys fall in love with the Ortego sisters. Marian, a college friend of the latter, arrives with her father, James Alden, who has been sent to restore the mission. Word comes that the great herd has been stolen. Nonceta tells Marian of the promise and sacrifice, and explains that if the mission bells ring on the night of the full moon, the Indians would believe the curse lifted, and Lone Eagle saved. Marian discovers an old painting which when reversed discloses a secret map of the ranch, and this leads to the discovery of an ancient mine of great richness. Ramon remembers, however, that the mortgage due the next day will take the mine along with the ranch.

The operetta itself will disclose the solution of the plot.

To the first half-million new Ford owners

To the half-million men and women who have received new Fords in the last eleven months, there is no need to dwell on the performance of the car.

You have tested its speed on the open road. In traffic you have noted its quick acceleration and the safety of its brakes. You know how it climbs the hills. On long trips and over rough stretches you have come to appreciate its easy-riding comfort. Continuous driving has proved its economy of operation and low cost of up-keep.

This is an invitation to you to take full advantage of the service facilities of the Ford dealer organization so that you may continue to enjoy many thousands of miles of carefree, economical motoring.

The point is this. You have a great car in the new Ford. It is simple in design, constructed of the best materials and machined with unusual accuracy. It is so well-made, in fact, that it requires surprisingly little attention. Yet that doesn't mean it should be neglected. Like every other fine piece of machinery, it will serve you better and longer if given proper care.

One of the best ways to do this is to take your car to the Ford dealer every 500 miles for oiling and greasing and a checking-up of the little things that have such a great bearing on long life and continuously good performance.

Such an inspection may mean a great deal to your car. To you it means thousands upon thousands of miles of motoring without a care—without ever lifting the hood.

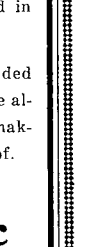

Ford dealers everywhere have been specially trained and equipped to service the new Ford. A Necessary Service

In our complicated modern life, it is impossible for everybody to have a complete knowledge of every subject with which he may be called upon to deal at some time in his life. In each field there are specialists,—men who have made a lifelong study of the work and are prepared to perform it.

The funeral directing profession has arisen in answer to the need for a class of men qualified to meet all the requirements, scientific, social and civil, of rendering the last services to those who have passed to the Great Beyond. It is a calling which demands technical skill, artistic taste and a wide knowledge of the social customs surrounding death and burial. It also demands a sympathetic heart and a high moral character.

The modern funeral director performs innumerable services for the family which has been visited by the greatest of sorrows—services designed to lift a burden of care which would otherwise lie heavily upon sorrow-laden hearts.

ber of lives sacrificed, the world will never get back what it lost. Altogether the price paid is great enough to persuade nations to settle disputes by arbitration rather than by costly savagery.

The Hastington Herald announces that its editor, F. D. Stone, is compelled to leave for a sojourn in Arizona on account of his health, but while gone he will enliven his newspaper with usual editorial contributions. We regret the forced absence of Mr. Stone, but we are assured that the Herald's efficient force will fully maintain the newspaper's present high standard.

Women have been taking an increased interest in politics as the late campaign and election showed. More and more women are doing their own thinking, and are developing powers of leadership. Arthur Brisbane suggests that ultimately they will rule creation, and that centuries hence a woman may carry her husband in a vanity case with a tiny aluminum chain around his neck.

As long as a man's body functions and his mind works, he would be better preserved to continue active employment. As advancing age reduces endurance, he may well curtail requisition on strength, but not abandon interest in accustomed work or production. The one who retires and lies down in the harness, shaking off all responsibility, often weakens himself and shortens his days.

Increased wages and increased savings accounts among armies of employees are regarded as proof of the benefits of the eighteenth amendment. It is pointed out by Literary Digest reports that it is impossible to know the amount of liquor consumed as compared to that previous to prohibition. Consumption is mostly among the rich who can afford the expense and who, if wrecked by the poison, can afford to take time off to recover.

Governor Smith of New York, defeated presidential candidate, spoke over a radio network Tuesday night, and sought to encourage the future of the party of which he was this year the standard-bearer. Governor Smith called attention to the liberal vote which he received notwithstanding defeat, and he pointed out the importance of a well organized second party as a check on the major party. This was no new idea, but he gave it emphasis doubtless to keep the party from disintegrating.

A citizen conversant with conditions, expresses the belief that consumption of bootleg liquor is decreasing and that young people who thought drinking on the sly was cleverly elusive, are becoming fewer. Results of the late election gave emphatic support to the eighteenth amendment, showing that return to legalized traffic in liquor stands no more show of ascendancy than a snow ball in Texas. Under the ban of popular disapproval, young people will naturally shrink from the habit as one that is disgraceful as well as pernicious. With the lid kept clamped down by such overwhelming endorsement, people will, even though otherwise disposed, accept prohibition as permanent. Thus will tend the development of a healthier and more vigorous nation.

The past season has been unusual for Nebraska and especially for Wayne county where crops are seldom hindered by either drought or excessive moisture. Up to July 1 we had promise of a wonderful corn crop. Then came dry weather, and until corn was mature, and out of the way of frost, rains were so infrequent and feeble that they did little good. Only our drought-resisting soil enabled us to turn out the yield that finally followed. But when we got fairly started into the work of gathering the crop, along came unusual storm of snow, and husking was delayed and made slow and

TIME.
Time is the most precious but most neglected thing in the world. Of all objects of wastefulness, it suffers the most. To youth life's tenure seems so long that there is no apparent reason to heed present demands or turn immediate opportunities to advantage. What seem to be trifling duties are postponed until tomorrow. Laying a foundation for success is put off until next year which never comes. Acquiring an education is soft-pedaled because the need is not pressing. Response to training or experience as a basis for later achievement is tardy and indifferent. Unpleasant tasks, though valuable in the formation of character and the development of ability and habits of industry, are often delayed in the hope of a more favorable time which never arrives. The result is frequently lack of preparation to master later requirements and handle multiplying responsibilities. When it is too late, one sees the error of procrastination and tries to make up for lost time which can be done only partially. As time reaches the home stretch, due to early neglect, needed to whip up accomplishments, harrows with disappointment and regret. The time to do things is now.

Business.
Sioux City Journal: The outlook for business now may be described as the most promising seen at any time since the close of the world war. The result of the national election, while undeniably exciting a profound influence upon business sentiment throughout the country, does not as a matter of fact appear to be a dominant thing in the economic situation. Indeed, it is only incidental.

The Guaranty Fund.
Lincoln Journal: The election of Mr. Weaver as governor assures a consideration of the problem of what to do about the guaranty fund freed from all political clatter. During the campaign Mr. Bryan made all sorts of absurd promises with respect to what he would do to restore its financial soundness, regardless of the fact that the only thing that can make it possible for the depositors in failed banks to be paid in full immediately is for somebody to step forward with eight or ten million dollars. No philanthropist of that type has made his identity known. Mr. Weaver, on the other hand, promised nothing beyond a purpose and intention to do all that is possible to make the law function.

To Aid Farmer.
Louis J. Taber, head of the National Grange, pronounces the McNary-Hugen bill dead and urges adoption of what is termed the de-benture method. His program for farm relief includes:
"Wider organization of the farmers themselves for improvement purposes; better balanced crop production in all sections; extensive research to find industrial uses for surplus farm products."
"Increased duties on many agricultural imports; broadened powers of the tariff commission; equality for the farmer on a level with other producers."
"Application to agriculture of the same type of adjustments of the tariff laws as have been necessary to accommodate industry. Specifically, the use of the export de-benture plan as a means of making the tariff effective on those staple farm products of which we still produce a surplus."
"Replace present haphazard careless dumping methods with business-like distribution, aided by the extension of cooperative marketing; but with the control always in the hands of the farmers themselves."

Congressional Results.
Washington, Nov. 9.—Final congressional results have been tabulated and, although several recounts will be necessary because of close votes in contests for the house, it is shown that the next congress will be made up as follows:
Senate—Republicans, 55; Democrats, 39; Farmer-Labor, 1; vacant, 1 (seat of Senator-elect Vare, Pennsylvania).
House—Republicans, 269; Democrats, 165; Farmer-Labor, 1. The composition of congress was as follows:
Senate—Republicans, 47; Democrats, 46; Farmer-Labor, 1; vacant, 2.
House—Republicans, 231; Democrats, 193; Farmer-Labor, 2; Socialist, 1; vacant, 8.

Various plans have been suggested. These have all been based on what may be said to be a correct assumption, that the guaranty fund shall be continued in some form. One of these proposals is that there be a composition between the solvent state banks, by the terms of which, depositors shall accept a portion of their claims and enable the fund to start off with a clean slate. Another proposal that hereafter only money deposited on open account shall be covered by the guaranty on the theory that a loan deposit is in all essentials a loan to the bank. Another plan is for each bank to supply its own guaranty in one of several ways.

Building. The last of next week the Hotel Stratton will open its doors to the public, and thus building operations, in charge of H. S. Scace as contractor, and supervised by C. M. Craven, chairman of the building committee, authorized by the board of directors, will draw to a close. The hotel is distinctly a community enterprise, and response to this need was generous and most gratifying. With no waste, every dollar is represented in the finished product, and the stock subscribed, and the work performed, should be the work par excellence. Members of the board of directors are C. M. Craven, J. E. Horley, Rollie W. Lea, C. E. Carhart, A. R. Davis and the writer hereof. Taking off the two last named, these men understand building operations, and they were able to give intelligent and practical cooperation to the contractor. The two last named were selected as officers, A. R. Davis as president, and the writer as secretary and treasurer. Mr. Davis presided with dignity and dispensed legal information without charge as occasion required. We managed to get along as treasurer with the able assistance of Henry Ley who kept us fitted to the right course and us from overtaxing our brains with figures to which, above a couple of decimals, we had not been accustomed. We recommend Henry for any financial responsibility. Mr. Davis has shown many marks of a great lawyer, among them, keeping people out of rather than getting them into the toils of the law, but when he suggested to us at a board meeting that we were about on an equality as excess baggage or surplussage, we felt relieved to know that the Lord made two instead of only one not fitted to discuss structural lore or to determine the fine points in a building program. We two understood that the building would require certain walls and, in this climate, a substantial roof, but it appeared that many other essentials—beyond our thinking processes—entered into the plans. As a dynamo for community building and betterment, we would recommend Mr. Davis, but for comprehensive and executing involved structural plans, he confesses that he is in a class with the writer, who, in that respect at least, has been hovering around zero ever since he can remember. Good thing there have been and still are plenty of practical builders. Good thing we might still be building in Iowa.

Following the late election some have assumed that religion exercised a powerful influence in shaping results. It is likely that religion was instrumental in behalf of Smith as well as against him, but we doubt if it exercised the force that many supposed. Generally accepted issues of the campaign and the way the democratic candidate handled them were certain to cause his defeat. No one should be disheartened over his religious belief, because freedom of worship was one of the fundamentals of this government and is vouchsafed by the constitution of the United States. If one is satisfied with his belief and is made better by it, no one in disagreement should offer opposition. Any religion to which one is sincerely devoted, helps lift social standards, and none of us has too much for our own good for the good of society. It is doubtful if there are any religious denominations in the next world, and what we need for exaltation here and hereafter is more spirituality and fewer material trappings in all religions.

BRINGING HOME THE BACON!
The business world expects the best things from Mr. Hoover both in government and in economics. The people already have expressed their confidence in him as peculiarly equipped for the job as president, and it is significant, too, that the republican party's tried and established policies with reference to business progress will be continued. Only, Mr. Hoover is expected to carry even farther than has any other president the theory that the federal government can inspire, aid and encourage economic progress.

On the Right Track.
The Herald reproduces the following from the World Herald with a ton of emphasis:
Chancellor Burnett of the University of Nebraska has been coping with the problems of a somewhat overburdened faculty and under-financed budget with vigor and imagination. He is seeking to inspire, in his faculty, a desire to make the most of their opportunities, and in his students a desire to make the most of their lives. His words are listened to with increasing respect, as he discusses the university, which belongs so closely to all of us, and which holds much of the secret of the future welfare of Nebraska.

The Outlaw.
Lincoln Journal: The sentiment against war appears to be almost universal. The military man and the civilian and the pacifist all agree that war should be abolished. General Pershing is as vehement as any of the rest. As a military man he knows the horrors of war better than most civilians and he wants no more of it. The outlawry of war is scarcely an issue any more. It is not difficult to gather representatives

Farm Legislation.
Washington, Nov. 9.—Chairman McNary of the senate committee on agriculture today said that he did not think an extra session would be necessary to obtain farm relief legislation. In the opinion of Senator McNary it will be possible to pass a relief measure acceptable to President Coolidge within a week. He does not believe that the consideration of such a bill would endanger other legislation pending before the short session. He will offer a bill upon the meeting of the senate broadly along the lines of the McNary-Hugen bill with the equalization fee eliminated. "It is not necessary for us to
