Hotel To Open Here This Week

Formal Banquet for Public Planned at New Stratton in Wayne Saturday.

Worthy Project

New Structure Has Been Promoted and Built the Past Year by Local Company.

The Stratton, Wayne's new hotel, which has been built as a community enterprise at a cost of about $53,000, will be completed this week and formal opening will be held for the public Saturday when a banquet and social evening are arranged. Manager E. O. Stratton will hold a complimentary dinner for the board of directors this Thursday evening, and a pre-opening dinner for stockholders and their guests is planned for Friday.

Dr. U. S. Conn, president. Reservations for the Saturday banquet are near capacity. Dr. U. S. Conn of the Wayne State Teachers College, will preside as toastmaster for the after-dinner program. John O. Olson, manager of Hotel Norfolk, will speak on "Hotels in Small Cities," and L. E. Knutsen of Sioux City, will speak on "The Hotel From a Commercial Man's Standpoint." The original and genuine Monahan post orchestra of Sioux City, ten musical artists, will play after the banquet for the social time. An elaborate display of chrysantheums and other flowers will be arranged by D. Hall and son.

Dr. U. S. Conn is doubling the size of his new bus station on south Main street, the addition on the north being 30 by 150 feet and being constructed at a cost of about $8,000.

Bus Building Being Doubled

B. W. Wright is constructing a large addition to structure on South Main Street.

The new section will be a duplicate of the other garage with tile walls, steel roof and face brick front. The plan is that it will be completed by the first of the year. The new section will be used for storage of buses.

Mr. Wright has ten buses in operation. Three round trips are made daily between Wisner and Wayne and Yankton. All of this route is graveled. Three round trips are made daily between Norfolk and Sioux City and the only parts of the road graveled on this journey are between Jackson and Sioux City and between Allen and Ponca. Another bus makes one round trip between Randolph and Sioux City. The ten travel about 1,100 miles each day. All buses have Wayne as the center point, and all repair on the cars is done here. Eleven men are in the employ of the Wright bus service.

Normal Board Meets In Wayne

Members Are Guests of Pres. U. S. Conn and Instruct New Dormitory.

The state normal board met in Wayne Monday with Pres. U. S. Conn, this being the first time in ten years that the group had met in one of the state schools. The men examined the new dormitory under construction and commended the work on the structure highly. They felt that Wayne had secured more for the sum spent than could be obtained at most other places. They expressed favor of adding the second wing which is as yet not built.

After considerable discussion the board voted to require the normal school presidents to furnish $1,000 bonds for protection of state funds which they handle. The board designated two banks at Chadron, two at Kearney, two at Wayne and one at Peru as depositories for the state funds in those towns. They directed that those depositories give bond to protect the funds.

Some losses which have been suffered by the board in defunct banks, are said to have prompted the action of the board in requiring the school heads to assume responsibility for the state funds.

The state normal board consists of the following: T. J. Majors of Peru, Dr. Morris of Kearney, H. E. Roscoe of Chadron, F. S. Berry of Wayne, Dan Stephens of Lincoln, Miss Ruth Pyrtle of Lincoln, and State Supt. Charles W. Taylor of Lincoln.

Rites At Bancroft For Mrs. J. A. Burke

Morah of Hartington, went to Bancroft Saturday to attend funeral services held that day for Mrs. J. A. Burke, who passed away at her home there November 15, aged 64 years. Rites were held from the Presbyterian church at Bancroft, and interment made in the West Point cemetery. Members of the West Point O. E. S. had charge of services at the cemetery.

Union Thanksgiving Services Wednesday

Union Thanksgiving services will be held next Wednesday evening at 7:30 at St. Paul's Lutheran church. Congregations of the Methodist, Presbyterian, Baptist, St. Paul's Evangelical and the Evangelical Lutheran churches will unite for these services. Rev. W. W. Whitman, pastor of the Methodist church, will deliver the sermon. Everyone is invited to attend.

YOUNG FARMERS ERR IN LEAVING ACCUSTOMED WORK

SOMETIMES young farmers decide to quit farming and move to town in the belief that making financial ends meet would be easier and more certain. Without going below the surface they judge that the town man is doing better. They do not know the latter's struggles nor how often he must scratch to make earnings equal obligations. These young farmers forget that the cost of living is greater in town and that employment at wages is uncertain at best. They understand farming and livestock and they are sure of a livelihood. Their lives are more independent, and the various branches of their business will stand unlimited development without fear of stifling competition. In comparison the town gives no assurance and offers little to encourage hope. If a man knows his accustomed line of work well, whether in town or country, he should stay with it and work it from every angle with all his might. One is safest to stick to his last.

Neihardt Hall Complete Soon

New Dormitory for Girls Will Be Opened at Wayne State Teachers College.

May Finish Wing

Legislature Will Be Asked $50,000 to Complete New, Modern Home for Students.

Neihardt hall, new dormitory for girls at the Wayne State Teachers College, will be completed soon after the holidays and a formal opening for the public is planned. The structure will be ready for occupancy after Christmas. The main part of the building and one wing, which are nearly completed, will involve an expenditure of about $100,000, and the other wing which it is hoped may be built soon will cost about $50,000. General contract for the building, let to Beckenhauer brothers of Norfolk, was $73,000. Lighting, heating, plumbing and finishing will cost about $15,000 to $18,000.

Use Latest Ideas.

Prof. E. J. Hunter, who is architect of the building and who is now in charge of the final work, has brought the best dormitory ideas from the entire west and used them in this structure. The building will thus combine the best architectural designs and most modern conveniences.

Have Housing Plan.

The new dormitory is the beginning of a plan for new housing for the college students. The first project, after completion of the present structure, is adding the second wing to this building. The plan to be followed afterward is the replacing of North hall with a new dormitory similar to one now under construction, going away with North and East halls. The entire plan is one which will require a period of years to complete, but which, when finished, will give the college the best housing facilities.

Named For Poet.

Neihardt hall is named for Dr. John G. Neihardt, Nebraska poet laureate, who formerly lived in Wayne and was a student in the college a number of years ago.

General Construction Work on the building is completed now. Setting of the plumbing fixtures, retouching the wall decorations and hanging lighting fixtures remain. The building will house 120 girls, and when the second wing is added it will accommodate 200 girls.

Decorations and Reception Hall.

Neihardt hall will be in the shape of a U when completed. Entering the building from the south, one steps into the reception hall off of which to the north is a large parlor. Walls will be of tiffany finish. A fire place, arched doorways and terrazzo floor make an attractive room. Furnishings will also be of the latest styles, adding to comfort and beauty.

West of the parlor is a cloak hall which will be convenient for visitors to the dormitory. East of the parlor is a kitchenette in which girls may prepare luncheons for guests. This contains cupboard, electric stove and sink. Just to the right as one enters the hall is the general dormitory office. A buzzer system is installed here. When a call is received for a girl in the hall the buzzer in her room is rung. By the set of signals used she may answer either at the telephone on one of the floors or she may answer at the desk, and she so informs the one at the desk by the signal. Opening off of the general office is a parlor for the dean of women. Adjoining her parlor is her bed room and private bath.

On the left, as one enters the building, is the reception hall and west of this is the house maids' suite. This includes a parlor and bed room.

Finish in Corridors.

Corridors throughout the building are finished with marble wainscoting. All toilets and shower rooms have the same marble finish. Terrazzo work makes up the floors in the halls, parlor, reception hall, toilets and shower rooms. The terrazzo work is carried up to the baseboard. A new feature which Prof. Hunter worked out is making this terrazzo work form the base of the door jams throughout the building. All terrazzo floors are set with brass strips so as to allow for contraction and expansion without breaking. Floors in all the rooms are quarter-sawn white oak, and all woodwork is oak with a dark finish.

Rooms for Girls.

Girls' rooms in the dormitory are good-sized and well lighted. Each has a large closet and few are provided with wardrobes. Each has a lavatory of the latest design recessed in the wall, with a medicine cabinet above. The lavatory is acid proof and the wall recess is enamelled to allow cleaning. Two Simmons steel beds with mattresses, steel study table, two steel rockers and two steel straight chairs will furnish each room. Two girls will occupy each room. The rental will be $2.00 of weeks ago. This payment was paid for from the general fund, this being separate from the per capita car fund which was established in 1912.

HOTELS IMPROVE IN RESPONSE TO MODERN DEMANDS

OPENING of Hotel Stratton which is equipped and furnished in all respects to carry out the modern idea of entertaining the public, reminds us of the time when the average hotel in a country town had no conveniences and few comforts. The office atmosphere was usually kept charged with stale smoke, and a box half full of sawdust invited tobacco-chewing guests to hit it if they could. If marksmanship were faulty, the nearby stove or neighboring floor suffered. Usually the smell of boiled cabbage or scrambled onions announced the readiness of a meal. Rates were low, and service was in the same stratum. Conditions have changed, and every convenience has been provided. Courtesy is the rule. Hotels have thus kept pace with advancement along other lines, and to win popular support they must meet popular expectations which have reached a high level. Necessarily the cost has correspondingly increased.

Improved Store To Reopen Here

J. C. Nuss Variety Store Will Be Open Saturday Following Extensive Remodeling.

Nineteenth Year

Occasion Is Anniversary of Owner's Arrival in Wayne to Enter Store Business.

Opening of the Wayne variety store next Saturday, November 24, not only marks completion of extensive improvements in the store building but also marks the nineteenth anniversary of J. C. Nuss' arrival in Wayne. From a small beginning, a stock of $500 in goods and a surplus of $300, Mr. Nuss has built the business until he now has one of the largest variety stores in north Nebraska and he not only owns this building, and a large stock but he owns a store at Pender and residences in Wayne. In addition he owns a valuable farm near Wayne.

Improvements which are just this week being completed will make the building resemble the city Woolworth stores. They include lengthening of the main store and the basement each seventy feet, building a new brick front and new display windows, redecorating and adding new fixtures and furnishings throughout the store and installing a new heating system. The projects have involved an expenditure of about $20,000.

The main floor of the building has now been extended until it is 160 feet long and twenty-five feet wide. A basement is added to the entire structure. Merchandise on the main floor is arranged in departments. Display tables form an aisle through the center of the store. The wall of the north side is paneled with display counters in front of them. The south side is arranged with shelving. All of the display tables and shelves are of mahogany finish. The new steel ceiling in the building is painted white to aid lighting. The walls have also been decorated in light shades.

Boy At Sholes Injured By Car

Louis Pickering Sustains Fractured Skull When Struck by Machine on Sunday.

Louis Pickering, 14-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Pickering of Sholes, sustained a fractured skull and cuts and bruises Sunday evening when he was struck by a half-mile west of town. It was necessary to remove a piece of his skull which was crushed and it is thought the lad will recover satisfactorily.

Louis and two friends, Rex Miller and Lloyd Miller, were out hunting Sunday and when returning home they were walking along side of the highway. As a car approached the lads walked up onto a bank. The car swerved to one side and struck Louis, causing the injury. The driver did not stop. The other boys stopped a passing car and had the boy taken to town for medical aid.

Sheriff Stephens spent Monday at Sholes to learn of the accident details and to find the driver whose car struck the boy. Officers have some clew to the identity to allow the person to see the lad's father and make amends without court action.

Front Is Attractive.

The front, show windows and large new sign on the variety store are worthy of special note. Four display windows on either side of two entrances are a duplicate of the Woolworth store windows. They are small enough to allow frequent trimming and also a convenient size for display of specials. Black tile forms a base for the windows. The large, new sign and the new canopy also add to the attractive appearance of the building.

A pleasant and convenient rest room is included in the improvements. The office is on a raised platform at the back of the room.

Hooper S. Seace had contract for remodeling the building. O. S. Roberts was in charge of the heating plant.

Driveway Paved Through Cemetery

Driveway in Greenwood cemetery has been paved with six-inch concrete this fall, the improvement costing $2,550. The pavement extends from the Seventh street entrance north, then around the circle drive and north to the first cemetery addition. The improvement includes 1,062 square yards, and the work was finished a couple of weeks ago. This payment was paid for from the general fund, this being separate from the per capita car fund which was established in 1912.

Will Conduct Red Cross Roll Call In Wayne County On Next Saturday

House-to-house Canvass Will Be Made and Booths Maintained for Membership Drive.

Wayne county's annual Red Cross roll call, seeking to enroll 400 members in this great national relief organization, will be conducted next Saturday, November 24, and a drive is planned throughout the county on this day. House-to-house canvass is planned in Wayne and other towns of the county. The campaign is being conducted through the rural districts by the teachers in each district.

Supt. T. S. Hook is general chairman of the drive. Mrs. F. E. Francis and Mrs. G. T. Porter will take charge in Carroll; C. Rohrk, in Hoskins; and Supt. C. E. Jones, in Winfield. Miss Pearl E. Sewall is assisting in the rural schools.

Twelve girls will make the house-to-house canvass in Wayne. They will report to Mrs. F. W. Huse, Mrs. P. A. Theobald, Mrs. L. W. Jamieson, Mrs. Frank Korff and Mrs. W. K. Smith, who will be stationed at the postoffice booth.

The fact that the Red Cross is the great relief agency throughout the country and that its services have been so helpful in the tornado district so close at hand this fall will help make the 1928 roll call a success, it is thought. To carry on this relief for distressed sections the Red Cross must conduct the membership drive each year. Funds are carefully handled and all given to relief. Several needy families have been helped in this county the past year by the organization.

Creighton Honors Dr. J. G. Neihardt

Poet Laureate of Nebraska and Former Wayne Resident Is Given Degree.

Dr. John G. Neihardt of Branson, Mo., has been honored by Creighton university of Omaha by having been granted the degree of LL.D. The White River Leader of Branson tells of the honor as follows:

"The semi-centennial of the founding of Creighton University at Omaha, Neb., was the occasion of conferring on John G. Neihardt the degree of Doctor of Laws. The jubilee celebration of the university was held on October 18, 1919, and 20.

"Mr. Neihardt was born in Illinois but moved at an early age with his parents to Nebraska, where he was reared and educated and came into prominence in the literary world. For eight years or more he has lived in Missouri, most of this time in Branson where he still owns his home. At present he resides in St. Louis, where he is literary editor of the Post-Dispatch.

"But the state of Nebraska still claims Mr. Neihardt as a native son. The state has conferred many honors upon him, among them being poet laureate of Nebraska and a professorship in the Nebraska State University.

"In telling of Mr. Neihardt's literary achievements the Omaha News said: 'From 1901 to 1907 he lived among the Indians, primarily to study their habits and traditions. His first volume of poems appeared in 1901, but it was not until 1916 that he gained national fame by the collection of his best lyrics, called 'The Quest.'

"Chief among the subsequent publications are 'The Song of Hugh Glass,' in 1915; 'The Song of Three Friends,' in 1919, and 'The Song of the Indian Wars,' in 1925. Mr. Neihardt has long been associated with newspapers, being a former contributor to the Omaha Daily Bee and at present literary editor of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

"Mr. Neihardt is in demand by colleges and universities throughout the United States as a lecturer. He was scheduled to lecture at Wesleyan College in Massachusetts Tuesday this week."

Beneficiary Is Found In City

Miss Gretchen Riese of Sioux City, 26 years old, learning last Friday that she was one of the beneficiaries of the estate of her foster mother of Wayne, the late Mrs. Julia Riese, Miss Riese came to help settle the estate. Relatives had lost trace of her, since she went to Sioux City two years ago. Judge J. M. Cherry of Wayne, who has charge of the estate, got in touch with Miss Riese through the Sioux City travelers' aid.

Birth Record.

A daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. Tom Dunn of Wayne Tuesday, November 20.

A daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. Frank Heine of Wayne, Tuesday, November 20.

Later he was located in the building which houses the Palace cafe. Mr. Nuss bought the store here. He has been able to do so by careful attention to the business and by close application to his work. He merits the success he has attained by the Orr & Orr grocery.

GREATER REASON THAN EVER FOR REAL GRATITUDE

NEXT Thursday will be the annual Thanksgiving day, and by recounting blessings people will find many things to inspire feelings of gratitude. Advantages enjoyed today could not have been imagined by the small Pilgrim group that originated the holiday. Present advantages would not have been anticipated as possible by people living even forty years ago. Inventions have facilitated everything, speeded up industry and production, and multiplied means of recreation and enjoyment. What were once luxuries, rarely indulged in, are now necessities shared by everybody. Since advent of automobiles and good roads, radios and airplanes, distances have been eliminated, new sources of knowledge have been opened and universal interest has been enlivened. Young men and women of today have greater opportunities than those of any period in the history of the world, and they should rejoice that their lives are just beginning at a time of such unbroken evolution. Present basis for gratitude here has been equalled nowhere at any time.

Dr. Ira Landrith of Chicago, Urges Better Citizenship and World Peace Sunday.

Dr. Ira Landrith of Chicago, citizenship superintendent of the International Christian Endeavor society, a man who has been highly honored by the church and state, addressed a large audience at the Presbyterian church Sunday afternoon at the district Christian Endeavor rally. Dr. Landrith has been moderator of the church and was presidential nominee in 1916. He is a chautauqua lecturer and especially a worker among young people. Dr. Landrith inspired the audience and presented his helpful message in an interesting manner. He urged all to strive to better citizenship and church life. He inspired them to appreciate the many good features about their home country, and urged that they help to work toward world peace by creating friendly attitudes. Dr. Landrith stated that he would not consider the boy who thinks only of money or the girl who thinks only of society as being successful.

Mr. Simms also gave a helpful address at the program.

The churches represented at the rally were: Carroll Congregational, Osmond Presbyterian, Hartington Congregational, Coleridge Congregational, Belden Presbyterian, Laurel Presbyterian, Wakefield Presbyterian, Pender Presbyterian, Wakefield Church of Christ, Wayne Church of Christ, Wayne Presbyterian, Carroll Presbyterian, Elgin Park C. Prospect In State For Federal Aid

A decrease of $981,000 of Federal Aid to be spent on Nebraska highways during the next fiscal biennium, compared with the last two years, is shown by the budget submitted to Governor McCullum by Secretary Cochran of the Department of Public Works, says an Associated Press dispatch dated Nov. 16, 1928.

Federal Aid will be apportioned to the state at the same rate as in the past but the state must expend a like amount before it obtains the federal aid allotted. This budget shows that during the next two years the state funds available to meet federal aid will be $931,000 less than during the last two years.

Another fact is that at the end of the present biennium (July 1, 1929) there will be a balance of about $2,750,000 of federal aid not met by the state. At present there is no means of taking up this delinquency on the part of the state during the next biennium. The present budget estimate shows that this delinquency will be $931,000 additional for the next biennium or a total of $3,681,000 at the end of the next two years.

This estimate and budget is based on the present sources of state funds for maintenance and construction—the two cent gas tax and thirty percent of the motor registration fees. The normal increase from these sources has not been able to keep pace with the increased demands for maintenance and the construction of strictly state highways on which federal aid is not available. The increases for maintenance are on account of increased traffic, both in weight and volume. The increases for construction are in account of the 1860 miles added by the last legislature; a mileage increase of 30 percent over the former system, and this increased mileage must be built with state funds alone without federal aid.

During the next two years construction will begin in some 35 or 40 counties on these 1800 miles. The budget provides for this, which is the principal reason for lack of state funds to meet all of the future federal aid apportioned to the state.

In the past Nebraska has gauged her state highway expenditures by federal aid allotments. To continue this policy requires that the state have more funds, as now the state must build about 1800 miles by itself in addition to meeting available federal aid for construction on the state-federal system.

The several states of the union paid for 87 percent of the total construction of state highways built in 1927 and federal aid paid for 13 percent. This means the average state expended for construction almost seven times as much as their federal aid allotment. This shows that the average state is drawing heavily on its own resources to push the construction of their respective highway systems. Nebraska has been going on a 50-50 basis in the use of federal aid.

The recent additions to the state system have changed the highway problem in Nebraska. The present elected legislators will face new road problems when they meet in January. A study of these problems in a large way will show that the state has outgrown its present road finance resources—that increases of funds are necessary to carry on construction in an adequate manner.

Ambition still may be the main thing that keeps our people moving, but the "no parking" sign is doing its part—Council Bluffs Nonpareil.

Girls Injured In Car Accident

O'Neill, Neb., Nov. 19.—Miss Bryl Winchell and Miss Helen Schwisow, both 18 years old, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. B. T. Winchell and Paul Schwisow, of this city, were seriously injured when Miss Schwisow lost control of the car in which they were riding and hit a tree.

The two girls were giving a treasure hunt and were out hiding clues when the accident occurred. They were not found until five hours later, both unconscious and in a serious condition. Miss Winchell suffered from a kidney puncture and a gash in the side from which she lost much blood. Miss Schwisow, who has not as yet regained full consciousness, has a broken collarbone and bruises about the head and body.

PRAYERS OF PAUL

International Uniform Sunday School Lesson for Nov. 22. Prayers of Paul. Acts 24:33-38; Ephesians 1:15, 16; 3:14.

IT IS stated that this lesson may be used as a special Thanksgiving lesson. Nothing could be more appropriate.

Paul was peculiarly a man whose whole religious life and activity were expressed in prayer and thanksgiving. For Paul, prayer essentially was not so much a means of asking for things but an expression of gratitude to God for all that he had already given.

In so far as Paul prayed for definite gifts, the supreme thing in his petitions was that he might attain in his own life to the rich example of God's grace in giving so abundantly to men.

It makes a great deal of difference whether or not we pray in that spirit, and no prayer can be essentially and truly Christian prayer which is not prayer to a gracious and loving God.

It would alter a great deal of our praying if we thought for a moment of the God to whom we address our petitions. So often we pray as if we were addressing some grudging and reluctant monarch who would not give his subjects what is for their good without insistence and persistency of demand.

It is true that we cannot receive even the good things of God without a receptive spirit. But Paul is always reminding us, just as Jesus had himself stated, that our Father knows the things that we have need of and is willing to grant them even before we ask them—much more willing, in fact, than we are to receive.

out coming near to our fellow men, and the man who is not willing to share with his fellow men their joys and their sorrows can never pray to God in deed and in truth.

Not Only a Petition But prayer, we are reminded, is not merely petition or petition with a social spirit. Prayer, likewise, is devotion, and Paul brings all his praying into the atmosphere of a great benediction addressed to Him "who is able to do exceeding abundantly above all that we ask or think."

It is to this God that he gives glory, and it is the things that a man glorifies in life that mark his destiny for glory or despair.

When we know how a man prays, we know his character and whither he is tending. Prayer is a sure index of life.

After a long grind and after many delays, the new store building is at last in such shape that I can definitely announce the opening date for Saturday, November 24.

I was very anxious to have the opening on that day, as on November 24, it is exactly 19 years that I came first to Wayne to open a small variety store on west Second street. The new store building which I believe is an asset to the business section of Wayne, is the outgrowth of the confidence I personally have in Wayne and its future. Much larger counter space will give the customers an opportunity to better judge the values and quality of the merchandise displayed and assist them in their selection, and it will give me a chance to prove to my customers that my only aim and ambition is to serve the people of Wayne and vicinity as to merit their constant patronage. The special values mentioned here are just a few of the many we have for the opening sale. The sale will begin next Saturday morning and close the following Saturday. If you don't want to be envied just sit and do nothing.

Wayne merchants have learned not to fall for combination advertisements on placards or other similar schemes whose advertising value is almost nil.

The late Luther Burbank, plant wizard, advised that all of life's pleasures should not be crowded into youth. Boys and girls should observe moderation in amusements, and not make life a continuous joy ride.

The task of building new quarters or rebuilding old ones taxes the endurance of the responsible head. Details do not always work out as planned. Blunders are made and delays are suffered, and the experience is costly and harrowing and by the time one has finished he is ready for a vacation.

It is recommended that if one will withdraw from social contacts for a brief period of sound, earnest thinking each day, he can solve his problems and master almost any kind of an obstacle. He must not just dream and yawn, but concentrate and make his brains perform. Besides, it is stimulating and wholesome mental exercise.

We are glad to know that people are signing up in large numbers to attend the banquet at Hotel Stratton Saturday night. The cost is not high when considered in connection with the cost of putting on the function, and it is but a fraction of what one would spend if he were going to a big city for a similar entertainment.

In the course of a column of lament, Mark Murray, democratic warrior of Thurston county, and publisher of the Pender Times, expresses preference for Hoover above any republican who could have been named, but he wishes he had come out and discussed issues like Smith did. Mark offers little hope that Hoover will be able to accomplish anything for the west, but he is willing to give him a chance. And on most subjects outside of politics Mark is a man of clear head and sound judgment.

By committing suicide, following the murder of his wife, Ernest Witmer saved the state the burden of trying him for the crime. He killed his wife because she would not quit smoking cigarettes, and awakening to the enormity of the punishment administered, he decided to withdraw by the poison route. He had a mistaken notion of the authority he could exercise over his wife or the length to which he could go in correcting her habits, and in view of his crime, his suicide will be accepted as a merciful relief to society.

Training the emotions is receiving increased attention. Harassed and curbed and made to answer practical needs, the emotions are powerfully constructive. Allowed to run wild, they may do incalculable damage. By taking a naturally recalcitrant emotion by the nape of the neck and shaking it into sensibility, it may be led to serve a valuable purpose.

The spirit of good will and helpfulness is again reflected in rural communities by the assemblage of groups to gather and house the corn of sick neighbors. Several Wayne county farmers have received such deserved help recently. This neighborliness gives proof of sympathetic consideration and substantial good-fellowship. It is proof that the world is not so cold and selfish as pessimists are inclined to believe.

While the United States forest service advocates a policy of reforestation and prevention of waste it does not oppose cutting trees for Christmas, as witness the following official statement quoted in a bulletin of the United States Forest Service: "Very commonly the question is raised as to whether the cutting and use of these trees for Christmas purposes is not a great waste, and whether steps should not be taken to discourage or prohibit it. Even if it were economically somewhat indefensible, the custom is so old, so well-grounded, and so venerated, that these aspects will and should continue to outweigh economic considerations. It is doubtful, moreover, if pure economic considerations would lead to the abandonment of the Christmas-tree custom. Trees are for use, and there is no other use to which they could be put that would contribute so much to the joy of man..."

Banking departments doubtless understand the importance of exercising utmost care in granting charters to new banks. The fact that one feels himself budding as a great financier is no ground on which to base the institution of a new bank. Need of the community should be the chief and only consideration. In the interest of the popular welfare, manifestly the number of banks should not exceed that required to facilitate the currents of business and sound investment. Banking is not an ordinary business in which any one may engage if he has the capital and inclination. A store or newspaper may blossom and then blow up with little loss or serious annoyance to any one beyond the proprietors. But a bank is vital to a community. If it supplies a need and is a success, it is an important asset, whereas if too many banks exist and they become unhealthy and weak through sharp competition for business, they become a menace, sometimes resulting in disaster that takes many years to overcome. Experience urges the policy of granting new charters only to meet pressing demands.

The First Thanksgiving.
 Literary Digest: Resuming our series of Ferris pictures of early American life, we offer this week the timely picture of the first Thanksgiving. The artist, as we see, does not hold the ordinary view of the Puritan fathers as drab and sour individuals. Here is color and cheerfulness, and also a friendly converse with the aborigines. The painter furnishes us with an excerpt from Jane G. Austin's "Standish of Standish" as a key to the picture.

"A big fire was started before the Elder's house, and the drum announced the morning prayers. Priscilla and her attendants flew

WOMEN.
 A current magazine contains two articles, published side by side, one by Clarence Budington Kelland who finds much fault with women, pointing out that finances cause more trouble between husbands and wives and are responsible for more divorces than anything else in the world, and the other by Emily Post who denies the charges and in most cases blames the men. Mr. Kelland who has been a lawyer as well as an author, is hard-boiled and extreme. His places all women in the same category of extravagant buying and concealment of obligations until bills are presented to their husbands for payment. He makes all women suffer for the business indiscretions of a comparatively small number. The lady author calls attention to many husbands who keep their wives in ignorance of earnings or the necessity of care in creating debts. She says a woman should know a man's business and become interested in its ups and downs. She should not be allowed to think he is doing well if he is having a difficult time in trying to make the grade. The author insists that a man should take his wife into his confidence and let her know how much or how little he can afford. By such complete understanding she thinks finances would cause no jars in family circles.

back to the fire, and presently a long table spread in the open air for the men was covered with great wooden bowls full of what a later generation named "hasty-pudding." Other bowls contained clam chowder. Plenty of cold boiled beef with mustard, flanked by dishes of turnips, offered solid resistance to those who attacked them.

"Massoiet and his followers attended, and Quadequina produced something like a bushel of popped corn—a dainty hitherto unknown to the Pilgrims."

Mr. Ferris goes further and discusses the costume of the Pilgrim, and points out how tradition probably belies facts. Thus:

"There has been and still is much misapprehension as to the dress and habits of the Pilgrims. When and where did the popular portrait arise of a Pilgrim dressed in black, drab, or brown, invariably with a brass buckle in the front of his hat (never so worn at this period), and carrying a bull-muzzled curio which could only be used for mob fighting? 'The Pilgrim drest always in sad colors.' Let us see what sad colors were—Let us mention a few. Scarlet, bright green, orange, violet, blue, brown, black, in fact, any but light, or what we know as tints or subdivided colors, such as pink, Nile green, lemon, etc."

"It has always been the writer's opinion that (owing to a long residence in Holland) the Pilgrims adopted to a great extent the Dutch dress of the period. The men's doublet was short, only reaching just below the waist, the breeches had not yet quite decided to come below the knee for good. Furfs were worn, but they must have been scarce in Plymouth: laundry difficulties would have compelled a simpler neck-gear: a plain collar such as Shakespeare wore, or none at all, would be more likely."

"They seem to have had no prejudice against what we today call strong drink, and I never heard that they did not use tobacco. In 1620, men kept their hats on indoors, and, it may be, even in church—I seem to recall that laws were passed against smoking in church, but I am not quite sure. They used many words in ordinary discourse which we have been obliged to discard; not as inexpensive, but the opposite; and their curtailments of other people's inclinations simply took a different form than ours. "If any mention of these facts helps to convince a few of us that the Pilgrims were human, a little will be gained."

 "About 1645 an accomplished artist named Hollar published in London a series of plates, 'The several Habits of English Women,' and unconsciously laid foundation for most of the mistakes made by later painters of Pilgrim costume. Hollar's plates are exquisite, and have been followed by most modern painters of Pilgrim subjects, but unluckily they are twenty-five years too late for the period."

West Point Club Elects Directors

West Point, Neb., Nov. 19.—The West Point Community club was banqueted at its seventh annual meeting, in the K. G. Hall. R. R. Moodie, Alex R. Krause, and E. M. Von Seggern were elected directors for three-year terms. George E. Myers, who will operate the new West Point hotel, now being rushed to completion, addressed the club, outlining his reasons for choosing West Point as a good hotel town. STEALING.

We doubt if there is anywhere a public school which has been entirely free from occasional complaint of petty stealing. The comparatively few children who will steal, make precautions necessary. Money is taken from pockets of garments, or other valuables are taken from desks. The child who appropriates things that do not belong to him, or who is otherwise dishonest, is likely the product of faulty home example or training. Parents cannot shirk the responsibility. Parents who are careless in regard to inculcating principles of honesty during the habit-forming period of their children are making a mistake that may bound back to hurt them. Indifference to rules of square dealing in the home, acquiescence in advantages dishonestly gained, sow seeds that may result in a harvest of crime and regret. Youthful minds are impressionable and easily influenced, and if the home does not take a firm stand against violation of regular and orderly processes, little trickery, accepted as within the rules of life, may be followed by pilfering and then by a more aggravated form of crime. Parents must not deceive or cheat each other or their children, and they must insist on a square deal for others if they would have dependents grow up free from inclinations to steal or otherwise to impose on, their fellows. The fault lies largely in the home, and it is up to parents to apply preventives rather than wait for society to apply a doubtful cure.

Regravel Roads In This Section

Norfolk News, Nov. 21: Extensive regraveling of certain highways, which are badly worn in spots by heavy traffic, is being carried on by the state department of public works. n221f

Monday morning, a large crew of trucks and men started regraveling work on a two-mile stretch between Neligh and Clearwater on highway No. 8. A one-inch coat of gravel is being laid. If the weather is favorable rapid progress will be made on this project. n221f

About eight carloads of gravel are being unloaded daily and hauled to the regraveling project west of Norfolk on highway No. 8, where a four-mile stretch is being given a new coating. Before the state department had not expected the regraveling project but the moisture made it necessary that the work be complete this fall. n221f

Regraveling of a four-mile stretch of highway No. 8 between Norfolk and Madison has been finished. There is a possibility that some of the badly-worn spots between those two cities will be given additional gravel before the "freeze" arrives. n221f

Building New Bridge. Construction operations on a new concrete and steel bridge, about 140 feet in length, has begun on highway No. 51, between Pender and Bancroft. The contractor expects to be able to work continuously on this structure, regardless of weather, until it is finished. The aggregate and water is being heated and the freshly-poured concrete is given adequate protection while it cures. n221f

North of Homer on highway No. 77, a bridge, to be composed of cross-timber with a concrete floor, is being erected. A quick-setting cement with high early strength is being used, the idea being to open the structure to traffic as soon as possible. This cement will "cure" in a few days' time, while ordinary cement will require at least three weeks under the present weather conditions. n221f

Graveling operations on highway No. 77, four miles south of Oakland, are progressing rapidly. When completed, motorists traveling from Oakland to Lincoln by way of Fremont, will have an all-graveled road. n221f

Three-Fourths Finished. Gravel work east of Bancroft on highway No. 51 to a point where it intersects No. 77, is about three-fourths finished. Northwest of Bancroft for a distance of about three miles the highway is being gravelled. This project will enable motorists to travel from Bancroft to Sioux City, Omaha or Lincoln on gravel the entire distance. n221f

Building of snow fences in various parts of the district is being rushed to completion, and it is expected that the work will be completed within the next few days. Between sixty and seventy-five miles of snow fences will guard northeast Nebraska highways during the winter. n221f

Aided by favorable weather practically all highways in northeast Nebraska are in good shape again. Some of the dirt roads are still difficult to travel. Each day highway patrols iron out the rough places. They hope to have the roads in excellent condition at the time the annual "freeze" arrives. n221f

Brother and Sister Prodigies

Pacific coast music critics have been loud in their praises of Yehudi Menuhin, San Francisco's 11-year-old violin virtuoso, but he has been competition now for popular favor as a juvenile star. His eight-year-old sister, Hephzibah, has become a renais of the piano and her first concerts are attracting enormous crowds from critics. Their smiles in the above picture, however, indicate there is no professional jealousy between them.

TWO OF BASEBALL'S MOST COLORFUL FIGURES—COBB AND SPEAKER—COME TO THE END OF THE TRAIL—SOME FOOTBALL GOSSIP

BY PHILIP MARTIN TWO of baseball's most colorful figures, Ty Cobb and Tris Speaker, have reached the end of their major league careers, and, in their passing, there seems a tinge of regret that they didn't pass out of the picture while the luster of their greatness remained uppermost in the minds of the fans. Walter Johnson did that. Not through by any means, he left the Washington club after the 1927 season. He could have stayed around and won quite a number of ball games for the Senators; but he also would have been battered around a lot and that would have dimmed some of the luster of his career. But Cobb and Speaker didn't. After playing for one season to vindicate the unfounded and unfortunate charges made against them, it seems too bad that they didn't quit then. Instead, they opened the 1928 season as regulars for the Mackmen and were forced to retire from the game later in the season. Cobb and Speaker, both great batsmen, are through. Waiters have been asked on them by Connie Mack and it is doubtful whether any major league club will claim either and it is also doubtful whether they will associate themselves with a minor league club. There is a possibility that both could carry on and be of some aid to several major league clubs, but what makes their being signed by another club unlikely is not the $7500 waiver price as much as it is the salary that Cobb and Speaker have obtained in recent years and which they would demand to play next year. Both have enough money not to southern teams in the minors to have both Cobb and Speaker invest in their clubs, but it is doubtful whether this will eventuate. It seems they're done for. It is doubtful whether a more colorful player than Cobb was in his days will come along for many seasons and Speaker's equal as an outfielder when he was at his best seldom happens along. ONE of the easiest ways of learning who are the good football players of any section is to talk to a prominent football coach. The coaches always know which players are good and often-times their remarks are slightly contrary to what you get from reading the play-by-play versions of the game. Here are some conclusions picked up in recent weeks from talking to a few coaches: Harpster makes the Carnegie Tech team. They would be lost without him. Hayercraft and Tanner are the best sets of ends in the Big Ten circle. They're with Minnesota. Chris Gagle of the Army, Phil Howell of Nebraska, Chick Carroll of Washington and Billy Banker of Tulane are the best backs of their respective sections. Nagurski of Minnesota is terrible as a fullback, but would be the greatest tackle in the Western Conference. Jimmy Armistead at Vanderbilt is better than Billy Spears ever was. The Georgia Tech team has so many good backs that Thomason isn't showing up as nicely as he would if he had more to do. Post Welch may not make the Big Ten team. He often falls in a pitch because he isn't running behind a strong team.

Market Report.

Furnished by Steele, Siman & Co., Sioux City Stock Yards.

Nov. 22.—Live stock markets have been characterized by unevenness and bearishness as a general thing this week with strength limited to the lamb trade.

The 11 leading markets of the country received 160,000 cattle the first two days of the week, 9,400 more than the same days last week.

Cattle receipts were exceptionally large at Chicago and this put a damper on the trade at all centers. Order buyers had short orders and packers were very bearish. The eastern dressed beef markets have reported sharp declines recently and this trend has hit the live beef market.

Fat steers and yearlings were in very dull demand and the market took one of the most severe declines of the season. Prices were 25 to 50c lower on the opening day and slumped further on following days. Top many on plain cattle coming was given as one of the reasons for the break.

Most of the cattle had been on feed for around 30 to 60 days and they are bringing less than they cost.

Many sales were made at $10 to $11.50 with shortfeds at $11.50 to $13.00 and sales to $14.00 or better were scarce.

Butcher stock supplies were not large but sellers had a hard time disposing of the run each day and they had to grant big reductions of 25 to 50c and more. Shippers were small buyers and packers were indifferent.

Shortfed heifers ranged under $11.75 and a few kisher cows brought $10.00 to $11.00. Bulk of the butcher cows sold at $7.50 to $9.25 with plain cubs under $7.00. Canners and cutters sold largely at $5.50 to $6.50.

The bull market eased off a quarter. Native bolognas sold at $8.00 to $8.75 with heavy beef grades at $9.00 to $9.50. Western bulls ranged down to $7.00 and under. Veals slipped a half-dollar with the practical top at $12.00 and a few individuals to $12.50.

Stockers and feeders dragged along on a 25 to 50c and more lower basis with a few exceptional lots about steady on the opening day. Receipts were moderate but dealers did not care to load up at the prevailing high prices.

Bulk of the cattle sold at $8.50 to $10.00 with a sprinkling to $11.00 and a few to $11.50 with a sale on choice light yearlings at $13.00. Common material ranged under $8.00. Feeding cows sold mostly at $6.50 to 7.25.

with heifers up to $9.00 and above.

Hog receipts amounted to 259,200 at the 11 leading markets on Monday and Tuesday, 6,200 less than a week ago and 20,700 more than the corresponding period a year ago.

The hog market held a firm basis on the first day but dropped 10 to 15c on the opening and a quarter and more on the close on the second session when receipts were extra large and shipping demand was narrow.

On Tuesday, the top was $8.90 early and $8.65 stopped the best butchers on the close. Sows sold at $8.00 to $8.25 with a few at $8.35. Stags brought $8.00 and under. Western pigs topped at $8.75 on Monday.

The 11 leading markets received 107,000 sheep on Monday and Tuesday, 33,000 less than a week ago. The market held steady on Monday and strengthened a quarter on the following day. The top was $13.00 for choice light lambs and $6.50 for ewes. Feeding lambs sold at $12.25 and down.

HERB PENNOCK AND THE PITCHING ARM SOME FEAR IS WEAKENING ARE TAKING THINGS EASY—WATCH THE CUBS NEXT YEAR WITH HORNSBY

BY PHILIP MARTIN

PERHAPS those wise minds controlling the destinies of the New York Yankees stop and think every now and then during these cold months about the greatest left arm in baseball. No doubt they worry some about that great left arm, for the Yankees are sorely in need of good pitching arms.

But the owner of that great left arm is not worrying any. The arm that went on the blink the last few weeks of the recent pennant campaign is not causing loss of sleep to Herb Pennock, the gentleman farmer of Kennett Square, Pa., who goes about his life daily on his farm, indulging in the things he likes to do—ride and hunt and raise silver foxes.

And were you to be so bold as to ask him about that arm, he probably would make answer in this fashion:

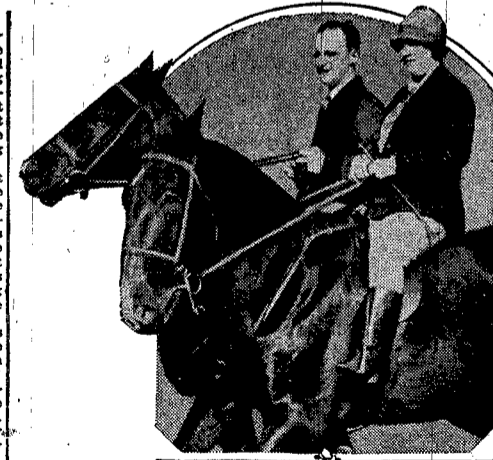

"I am letting it alone. My primary concern now is in living the life I like to lead with my family. I think that when one is mentally happy it is very easy for the body to be happy."

"Of course, I hope my arm will be in good shape for next summer. But I am not working with it this winter. I'm just enjoying life and trying to add a little weight. Being frail, I don't have to worry about getting too fat during the winter."

Pennock is a wealthy man and he doesn't have to worry about the time when baseball won't have use for him. But you can tell by his talk that he wants to pitch as long as he can even though he will be satisfied when the time comes for him to quit.

The Yankees have cause to worry over Pennock's arm. His is the most gifted in baseball and, without him next summer, the Yankees will be sorely pressed for pitching. Perhaps, as he says, his arm may get happy, too.

ROGERS HORNSBY has signed with the Cubs for next season and Tris Speaker will manage the Newark International League club—those two items are interesting the baseball world.

The Cubs, with Hornsby's batting punch, surely should win the pennant next summer, but don't be too sure of it. It is difficult to see why they should fail as their club has been one of the top-notchers in their league for the past few years and not an important player left the Cubs in the deal that gave them Hornsby.

Joe McCarthy is the boss of the Cubs and it won't do for Hornsby to ever think otherwise and it is safe to say he won't. He knows McCarthy.

The Cubs have one of the sweetest outfielders in the majors and their infield, while not a wow

Here's the "Highest Office in the Land"

This is the little room at the end of the long trail which is the prize of successful candidates for president. It is the exclusive office in the White House—plain and unpretentious, as the picture shows. It is the room which will be occupied by President-elect Hoover after March 4.

Yes, We Have No Women Governors or Senators, but Seven Congresswomen

THE past election did not make a woman a United States senator or another woman a governor, but it increased the number of congresswomen from four to seven.

Women who will grace the floor of Congress for the first time after March 4, 1929 are: Ruth Hanna McCormick, Republican, of Illinois; Mrs. Ruth Pratt, Republican, of New York City, and Mrs. Ruth Bryan Owen, daughter of William Jennings Bryan, of Florida. The "Ruths" seem to have made it unanimous.

Four Were Re-Elected The four congresswomen who were re-elected are: Mrs. Nourah Rogers of Massachusetts, Mrs. Mary T. Norton of New Jersey, Mrs. Katherine Langley of Kentucky and Mrs. Florence P. Kahan of California. All but Mrs. Norton succeeded husbands who died in office.

Two prominent women who campaigned for seats in Congress were defeated in the primaries. Mrs. Minnie Fisher Cunningham was badly defeated in the Texas senatorial primaries and Mrs. Clifford Pinchot was beaten in a Pennsylvania congressional primary. Miss Agnes Hart Wilson, daughter of former Secretary of Labor William B. Wilson, died after winning the Democratic nomination in the sixteenth Pennsylvania district.

No Women Senators Mrs. Cunningham's defeat left no woman seeking a senatorial or gubernatorial seat. There has been a disposition to be wary of women governors since Mrs. Miriam Ferguson's regime in Texas. Mrs. Felton of Georgia was made a senator by a gallant courtesy appointment, but the only woman who ever received a major party senatorial nomination was Mrs. Anna Dickie Olsen of Minnesota. And a Democratic senatorial nomination doesn't mean much in Minnesota.

Mrs. Pratt seems to have had the hardest fight for election. Having defeated Assemblyman Phelps Phelps in the Republican primary she was pitted against a strong Democratic candidate in the election. Furthermore, the seventeenth New York district was represented by a retiring Democrat. But the district is often Republican in city elections and is known as one of the "blue stocking" districts.

Mrs. Owen's Election Easy Mrs. Owen's election in Florida was virtually conceded after her nomination. She is regarded as an excellent campaign speaker and this was not her first political try. She was defeated for the Democratic nomination in 1926 by Congressman Sears, whom she defeated for the nomination this year.

Mrs. McCormick, the most seasoned politician of the three Ruths and widow of the late Senator Medill McCormick, won along with the rest of the Republican ticket in Illinois. She is expected to be a prominent figure in the Seventy-first Congress and it is generally supposed that she will run for the senatorial nomination against Senator Deneen in 1930.

The increase in the number of women members of Congress gives the "wets" five champions and the "drys" two. Mrs. Owen and Mrs. McCormick are politically "dry."

There is no way of determining the number of women who will run this year for state legislative jobs and various county and municipal posts. But the number of successful women candidates is believed to be greater than in 1926.

Election of these three Ruths to congressional seats at the last election brings the total number of women in Congress to seven. Ruth Bryan Owen (above), daughter of the late William Jennings Bryan, was elected in Florida. Mrs. Ruth Pratt (right, above) will represent a New York city district. Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick (right, below) won in Illinois.

She is expected to be a prominent figure in the Seventy-first Congress and it is generally supposed that she will run for the senatorial nomination against Senator Deneen in 1930.

The increase in the number of women members of Congress gives the "wets" five champions and the "drys" two. Mrs. Owen and Mrs. McCormick are politically "dry."

There is no way of determining the number of women who will run this year for state legislative jobs and various county and municipal posts. But the number of successful women candidates is believed to be greater than in 1926.

Fashion Demands Graceful Lines

ALL THE SHARP EDGES OF LAST SEASON'S SEVERE STYLES HAVE BEEN ROUNDED OFF, SAYS HARRIET, AND CLINGING MATERIALS RETURN

BY HARRIET

NO smart costume this season takes a sharp turn where a rounding one will do. In fact, all the points and sharp edges of the very severe styles of the last few seasons have been worn off completely.

The styles of today borrow the idea of the old saying "A soft answer turneth away wrath."

All this, of course, has its effect on women. It is natural for a woman with a sleek, boyish bob and short, straightline clothes to be extremely straightforward, ebullient.

Dress the same woman up in gently molded gown, with soft velvet, lace and ribbons to decorate it and lines that are graceful, any way you take them, and she will inevitably soften her manner. Clothes, verily, make the lady!

The use of very soft fabrics, therefore, is quite consistent with this new theme of style, lady-clothes.

One of the sweetest of the new lady-frocks for the younger lady is the finely polka-dotted blue velvet frock, shown at the left.

It has three little dots in one, in pale blue, gold and a soft red, making a very small dot altogether.

This is an example of how the new modes turn rounding, graceful corners nowadays. The neckline is extremely graceful and flattering. For, filling in the rounding neck is a little bias fold of pale blue organdie, with a crisp little organdie bow slipping through a slit at the corner of the neckline.

The rather snug fitting sleeves have charming puffs of their own material, just above a snug wristband. And the full skirt joins the waist in a slanting, curving line, with a little full of the goods making a diminutive peplum over the full skirt.

The sports coat, even, has its own way of interpreting the edict for softer lines. A new traveling coat from Jane Regny (right) introduces novelty in several ways. It is double-breasted, but instead of buttoning in military manner, it has a belt that buckles shut and a long wrap around scarf that holds the collar shut. The scarf collar has one paddle-shaped end on which a little patch pocket, in rounding cut, is posed. The same shaped pockets, only larger, decorate the sides of the coat.

This is a very neat model, and yet it has a certain lady-like grace and softness about it that the little travel coat of last year lacked. This tendency towards "rounded edges" is seen everywhere. The newest little kerchiefs for evening wear, instead of having sharp corners to their triangular shapes, have their ends curved. Cardigan jackets and even necktie jackets now round the edges.

The printed velvet frock at the left, above, features fine polka dots of three colors, one within the other. The traveling coat (right) has an unusual scarf collar which boasts a patch pocket. Harriet describes both in the accompanying article.

Five Cars Stock Shipped Past Week

girls may occupy the rooms, using one for a study room and the other for a bed room.

One girl supervises each wing of the dormitory and she is provided with a parlor together with her bedroom.

Long distance telephone booth on the first floor, closets for storing janitors' supplies, incinerators at convenient places in each hall, steel ventilator in each door are some of the conveniences.

Toilets and Showers.
Toilet and shower rooms in the building are arranged in such manner that they are most convenient. The room is U shaped. One wing of the room is for toilets. Another wing is for individual showers. The third wing connects the two. A space in the center of the U shaped room runs through the entire building from top to bottom. Through this is a suction which ventilates the rooms continually. When repairs are needed in the toilet room fixtures the work can be done in this space without having to enter the room.

Stairs Closed Off.
Stair cases are above each other through the building. Double doors separate each hall from the stairs, thus preventing any noise from one floor being heard on another floor. The stairs are also of terrazzo.

An automatic elevator operates between all floors. This feature alone cost about $5,000.

Recreation Hall.
A large recreation hall is provided in the basement. This has a fireplace and nicely finished floor which will allow parties or other activities for the girls. A kitchen adjoins the room and in this is an electric stove, sink and other facilities. On the other side of the recreation hall is a cloak room. This allows guests to enter the recreation room from an outside entrance by passing only a corridor and the cloak room. Another room in the basement will contain beauty parlor facilities. A sewing and mending room is also arranged. A laundry room provides five ironing boards, three wash tubs and washing machine. Another room is provided for storage of trunks.

One section of the basement, which has an outdoor entrance, contains four rooms for dormitory or cafeteria help. A toilet, shower room and laundry room are provided in this section which is entirely separate from all other rooms.

The terrace in front of the dormitory is surfaced with Italian quarry tile. An iron grill with ornamental top will be placed in front of the terrace.

State Boards Here.
Requests for funds to build the second wing of the dormitory will be made of the next legislature. The state normal board met in Wayne Monday to inspect the new building and the members expressed themselves as most favorably impressed with the structure. They stated that they figure the cost of the dormitory has been kept down much less than it could have been in most cities. Credit for this is due to careful planning and supervision of Pres. U. S. Conn and Prof. E. J. Hntemer.

To Prevent Collection.

Lincoln, Neb., Nov. 20.—No comment was made by Secretary Bliss, of the department of trade and commerce, on the circular letter being sent to state bankers by a committee of 100 bankers, asking them to join an injunction suit to prevent collection of the special assessment soon to be levied by him for the guaranty fund.

The circular letter, signed by a committee of three representing a group of bankers who desire to resist the special assessment, bears the signature of A. L. Schantz, State bank, Omaha; William Seel-freund, Continental State bank, Lincoln, and Dan V. Stephens, Fremont State Bank.

The letter says the suit will be based on the allegation that the special assessment provided by the state law is confiscatory and illegal. The regular assessments provided for twice a year are against banks and not against capital stock. It is contended by some bankers that the alleged illegality of special assessments is based on the claim that the special assessment is levied by law on the capital stock instead of on the banks.

Church Membership Gains.
Lincoln, Neb., Nov. 20.—There were 84 religious denominations with 3,006 organizations or churches, and 561,423 members in Nebraska in 1926, as compared with 78 religious bodies, 3,286 organizations and 440,791 members in 1916, the United States department of commerce reports. The value of 2,711 church edifices was reported at $39,377,144 in 1926, and 590 churches reported debts totaling $3,853,006, the department announced. The expenditures of 2,880 churches amounted to $10,036,396 during 1926.

First Presbyterian Church.

(Rev. A. P. Cooper, Pastor)

Last Sunday morning both the Sunday school and the morning service of worship reached high tide mark again. It was delightful to have with us Marion Simms, the state C. E. field superintendent, and Dr. Ira Landrith, the international C. E. citizenship superintendent. Dr. Landrith's address was both entertaining and inspiring, and Mr. Simms' presence and leadership were splendid for the young people. And then a large number went to the Christian Endeavor rally at Wayne in the afternoon, where we heard Dr. Landrith again. It was well worth while.

Let us show that it all did us a real and permanent good by being present, and always standing by our services every week. These are mountaintop experiences, and are most delightful, but we have to live down in the valleys of everyday experience to do our work, and bear fruit. When we come down from the mountain let us put our hand to the plow, and not look back.

Red Cross Drive To Be Held Here

The annual Red Cross membership drive in Wakefield will be conducted this Friday, November 23, beginning at 1:30. Teams have been appointed for the various parts of town and all will meet at the Thomas Rawlings home before starting work. The Dixon county quota is $500 this year. Subscriptions are to be collected in other towns of the county and also through the school districts. A booth will be maintained Saturday at the post office for those who are missed Friday.

Word from the Pender chairman to the Wakefield organization states that $13,000 was spent in helping the tornado sufferers by the Red Cross in that vicinity, this being separate from larger sums used by the Red Cross in helping people in the area near Walthill, Winnebago and other places where the results of the storm were worse. This sum is outside of gifts of clothing, furniture, etc. Not any of the money given by the Red Cross has been used for expenses of those taking aid. All went to the sufferers.

Since the Red Cross has done such efficient work and been so generous in this vicinity, when destruction followed the tornado, it is expected that people will respond generously to the roll call.

Sixty Schools Now In Debate League

Prior to November 13 at least sixty schools had paid their fees to the treasurer for the current season. This number compares with sixty-five, the number at this time a year ago, but the season for 1928-29 will be shortened by about three weeks, since the time of the annual tournament in Lincoln has been set for either the third or fourth week in April, 1929.

Three distinct selections of material in printed or mimeographed form have been mailed to all schools interested this season. Previously but a single bulletin was issued. Since five or six other states this year have joined in discussing approximately the same subject, Nebraska has had the benefit of cooperation with neighboring states. For the Nebraska League, however, the wording may not be the same as that used in Kansas and Texas, though there is no essential difference. For Nebraska the wording is as follows: "The English

New Auditorium At Newman Grove

Norfolk News, Nov. 20: Citizens of Newman Grove will soon enjoy accommodations of a new $35,000 auditorium and gymnasium combined, which will be ready for use before Christmas, it was announced Tuesday by J. C. Stitt, Norfolk, architect.

This building, which is being erected on the high school grounds, will serve as a place for basketball games and other indoor sports as well as quarters for community gatherings and large banquets.

For a number of years citizens of Newman Grove, at community gatherings has used an old frame church building. The new structure will not only provide additional seating capacity, but will give the citizens the latest in conveniences.

Will Seat 1,200.

Twelve hundred persons can be seated in the building. Three hundred of the seats are in the balcony, there being space for 900 on the main floor, which is also a gymnasium.

All seats on the main floor are portable, and can be subdivided into units that can be easily handled and arranged on trucks, which are to be concealed under the bleacher seats. This permits the floor to be cleared for athletic contests.

Another feature of the building is its goddized stage, which will provide excellent facilities for school productions and community entertainments. The stage is to be equipped with scenery adequate to provide almost any kind of a setting desired.

To Have Kitchen.

So that motion pictures can be shown, the building is to have a fire-proof projection room. Another room in the structure is to be used as a kitchen, thus enabling the citizen and school organizations to hold banquets. The kitchen is to be equipped with all utensils necessary to prepare large feasts.

Plasterers are rapidly completing their interior work. Within thirty days, unless an unforeseen delay is encountered, the structure will be ready for its opening event.

Farm Legislation.
York Republican: Mr. Hoover's pre-election declaration that he would call congress in special session to enact farm legislation may have precipitated a situation that will bring about the enactment of legislation along that line before Calvin Coolidge's surrender of the driving reins.
The stage is already being prepared for the enactment of legislation by the short, or lame-duck session of congress. Already it is proposed with good support that a new measure be drafted that will meet the approval of President Coolidge and get his approval instead of his veto as two other bills did.
The bill would create a federal farm board of six members, as proposed by Hoover in his acceptance speech, for the purpose of establishing stabilization corporations which will handle surplus crops during seasonal glut. The board would have a $300,000,000 federal fund at its disposal and would have authority to name advisory councils to represent each major crop.
The board members would be named by the president, representatives of different agricultural activities and different sections of the nation.
A provision, establishing central clearance houses for different crops, and others to encourage the establishment of great co-operative organizations, would be included. These provisions were included in the vetoed McNary-Haugen bill and they, along with others, will be written into the new measure.
As now proposed, the government itself would be called on to bear the cost of stabilizing agriculture. In the old bill, the farmers themselves would have had to bear the losses. This change has the approval of Mr. Hoover.

THE KNOT-HOLE

No. 25 Wayne, Neb., Thursday, November 22, 1928. Vol. 2

The New Year can't be very far away. We saw a new auto license plate yesterday.

We have often noticed that we get about what we pay for in this world, and that applies to coal as well as other things.

A worm may take it upon himself to turn, but how can it profit him for he is the same on the other side? (Pamona Sagehen.)

So far as the Carhart Lumber Co. is concerned, we are sold clear up to the eyes on YUKON hard coal. It makes a warmer house, reduces the fuel bill, cuts down dray costs and saves labor on ashes. Tried it yet?

The display windows in Wayne, are beginning to don their holiday attire.

No heat escapes, no cold gets in, when your windows and doors are equipped with our Weather-Strips. Apply it yourself in a few minutes.

A Wayne man said to his wife the other evening, "When I'm gone you'll never get another man like me." And she says, "Well, that's some consolation."

We took the screen door off the other day and packed it away for winter. This is a mighty comfortable place in here in cold weather. Make it your headquarters when you are in town.

A man in Georgia shot his wife because she didn't love him. But we doubt if that improved the situation much.

A lot of people are buying glass cloth for their windows, doors and porches this fall. We have a good supply on hand.

The definite arrival of the coal shoveling season inspires us to publish this picture entitled "Colored boy shoveling coal in the dark."

Yes, we want to sell the old mill and elevator we bought last summer. There is a wonderful lot of good Northern Pine lumber in that mill. 2x4's, 2x6's, 2x8's, 2x10's, 2x12's, 4x4's, 4x6's, 6x6's and 6x8's. If interested, come in.

You should do at least two things every day that you don't like to do, some professor advises. In that case we're all fixed! Getting up in the morning and going to bed at night.

Vol. 48, No. 36.

First Vote Of Mrs. Rogers, 93

Mother of Mrs. J. G. Mines, Casts Ballot For Hoover in Last Election.

Among Pioneers

Family Comes West From New York To Iowa When Land Is Unbroken Prairie.

Mrs. Jane Butler Rogers who makes her home here with a daughter, Mrs. J. G. Mines, and who celebrated her ninety-third birthday anniversary the past summer, cast her vote for Herbert Hoover in the presidential election. Early in the Hoover campaign Mrs. Rogers wrote her niece, Mrs. A. H. Avery at Spencer, Iowa, saying: "I have read the Hoover, Smith and Curtis speeches and I certainly hope Hoover will win." Although Mrs. Rogers is a keen student of public affairs and has been all her life, this is her first vote.

Mrs. Rogers was born in New York in 1835 in the town of Fordham, which was then twelve miles north of New York City. The little town has now become a part of the city. Members of the Butler family often went to the city to do their shopping, making the trip by railway. Mrs. Rogers states that in her last trip to the city in 1908 many great changes had taken place.

Miss Jane Butler was married to Samuel H. Rogers at Fordham, N. Y., where she had spent her girlhood, on Sept. 12, 1854. The Rogers family went to Iowa in 1858, going by railway as far as Clinton where the train was ferried across the river. They settled at a place then called Yankee Run, but which was later renamed Wheatland after the home city of James Buchanan, who was then president. The railroad extended just six miles west of the town and was then called the Chicago, Iowa and Nebraska. It is now part of the Chicago and Northwestern.

Mr. Rogers operated a general store in the town, there being just a few other places of business. A few houses, a blacksmith shop, hotel and a few other business places made up the pioneer town which now has a population of about 800. Business in the town was good, farmers coming from forty miles around to bring their produce. Mrs. Rogers especially recalls the sight of farmers in their heavy wagons bringing in their loads of winter dressed pork.

The land near the town where the Rogers family lived was mostly unbroken prairie. Wild hay grew very tall and Mrs. Rogers recalls the excitement which ensued when her small niece became lost in the grass. Farmers had begun breaking the land in earnest but much of it was still virgin soil. Prairie fires were not numerous but swept over the prairie creating havoc when once started. Mrs. Rogers remembers one especially which came very close to the town. Every man in the village was called out to fight the flames. Watching from the town, the women and children could see the beautiful but terrible sight as the flames leaped the woods.

The first school session was held after the Rogers family came to the town, part of a store being used as a schoolhouse. First church services in the village were held in a box car. The first church to be built there was a German Lutheran.

A Norwegian settlement furnished housemaids for the town, girls working for $2 a week. Mrs. Rogers recalls that a girl hired by them refused to come to work until she could get some "American clothes."

Mr. Rogers, a direct descendant of Thomas Rogers, eighteenth signer of the Mayflower compact, was a member of the general assembly of Iowa in 1869 and 1870.

There are three children surviving their father who passed away in 1870. They are: Mrs. Clara Dunham of Wessington Springs, S. D.; S. H. Rogers of Hillsboro, Ore.; and Mrs. Mines of Wayne. Three other children passed away some years ago. The youngest of the Rogers children was 6 months old when Mr. Rogers died.

The family continued to live at Wheatland until 1899 when Mrs. Rogers decided to move to Wayne, Iowa. There she resided until four years ago when she came to Wayne to live with her daughter, Mrs. Mines.

Mrs. Rogers is the eldest of a family of nine children and the only living member. Despite her 93 years Mrs. Rogers is active and well. She is a great reader and throughout the political campaign kept pace with national affairs. She often reads aloud to her daughter, Mrs. Mines, while the latter is busy about her household tasks. Mrs. Rogers recalls very few instances when she has not been able to be about the house. She likes to keep up her correspondence and writes a great deal.

A year ago last summer when she was 92 years old, Mrs. Rogers drove with her grandson, Donald Clark, of St. Louis, the latter editor of "Life Insurance Selling," "Northwestern Banker," "Underwriter's Review" and a number of other publications, from Wayne to Grundy Center, Iowa, where she visited her nephew, Charles Rogers, who was appointed to a vacancy in the legislature. The following day they drove to Waverly, Iowa, where Mrs. Rogers made about thirty calls on old friends in a few days' stay. They then drove to Cedar Rapids, to Wheatland and then back to the former place. Later they went to the A. H. Avery cottage at West Okoboji, making the trip from Cedar Rapids to Manhattan in one day. Mrs. Rogers visits her niece, Mrs. A. H. Avery, and family at their Lake Okoboji cottage each summer.

Utilizing Waste Is Need Of Farm

St. Joseph, Mo.—Advocating the utilization of farm wastes, Senator Arthur Capper of Kansas declared in a statement here that he believes the hope of the farmer lies more in the future development of such an industry than in farm legislation.

The occasion of the senator's expression was a visit to a manufacturing plant which turns wheat straw into building material.

He recalled the many modern uses of cellulose made from corn stalks and was optimistic over the future value of wheat and corn byproducts which heretofore have been, particularly in the case of wheat, virtually worthless to the farmer.

The new use for wheat straw, it was pointed out, gives the average stack of straw a value of from $25 to $35, which the senator describes as a real contribution to solution of the farm problem.

If the farmer, the scientist and the business man will work together Senator Capper said, they may be able to perfect an industrial solution of agricultural ills.

He expects to recommend to the department of agriculture that studies looking to the further development of straw and corn-stalks uses be made, as well as other experiments on the numerous byproducts of the farm.

Ration Of Hens Should Have Hay

Lincoln, Neb.—As green feed disappears and the garden stuff is cleaned up, the laying hens will need some other sort of green feed. Many practical poultry keepers depend upon green, leafy alfalfa hay during the winter months. Hay for hens may sound unreasonable, but it does help keep them in thrifty condition and in high production. Some folks stuff the hay into the furthest and pour boiling water over it, then feed it hot. Others build racks with sides made of two-inch poultry netting and let the hens pick off the leaves. These racks should be made so the hens cannot get into them or roost over them. Hay may also be cut up or ground with a cutter or grinder. The hens will eat more of it in this form.

Senator Curtis is strong for restricted immigration. And in view of what the Mayflower immigration did to the Senator's ancestors, one can't blame him.—San Diego Union.

Slayer Of Wife Commits Suicide

Ernest Witmer, 26, who murdered his wife on a farm near Neligh September 26 and buried her body in a shallow grave near the home, committed suicide in the Antelope county jail at Neligh Thursday night by swallowing strychnine.

Other prisoners in the jail noticed Witmer was acting queerly between 9 and 10 o'clock and summoned Sheriff Stratton. Though Witmer was unable to talk very well when the sheriff arrived, he stated that he took the poison which he had concealed in his clothing. A physician was summoned but efforts to save his life were futile.

Witmer had been searched several times while he was in jail but no poison was found. The sheriff is of the opinion that relatives or friends did not smuggle the poison to Witmer.

Two letters were written by Witmer, one to his mother who lives in Ender and the other to his wife's sister at Norfolk. Each stated that he soon "would be no longer." In one letter he said, "Something told me to kill my wife," and in the other was the statement, "Someone is calling me now and I am going to my wife." In a note to other prisoners Witmer said, "Boys, go straight when you get out."

After slaying his wife Witmer fled into Minnesota and Iowa. He voluntarily gave himself up to Norfolk police October 28.

WHEN THEY HAVE CROSSED THE BAR

Guarding the Public Health

Of all the many duties performed by the modern funeral director, none is more important than that of safeguarding the health of the living. He is given a thorough scientific training in sanitation, and while the general public knows little about this aspect of his work, it is of inestimable value in preventing the spread of disease. Public health authorities recognize the funeral director as one of the most important fighters in the battle for the public welfare.

He will negotiate with the postal department regarding the carrying of mail and the planes he will put in service will also carry passengers. The plans as now outlined include stops at Norfolk, West Point and Fremont, taking on and leaving passengers at these points.

All that this city or other towns along the line where stops are to be made will be asked to provide suitable landing fields. Mr. Cleveland stated that it is his belief that progress in aviation will receive a great impetus when a reasonably priced air-cooled motor is developed.

Max Lamson, a Neligh automobile mechanic, is a licensed pilot with over one hundred hours in the air to his credit, and will pilot Mr. Cleveland's plane. The plane being considered will be a five-passenger closed type.

Return Indictment Of Manslaughter

An indictment charging manslaughter was returned Thursday by the district court grand jury in Sioux City against Harold Harnett, driver of the automobile which struck Jay M. Jones October 8 and caused injuries which resulted in his death ten days later.

Mr. Jones was walking along Pierce street near Ninth, in Sioux City when a car driven by Harnett struck and fatally injured him.

Jones was taken to a hospital where he remained in a semi-conscious condition for 10 days before succumbing to his injuries. Witnesses of the accident said that Harnett was driving west on Ninth street at an excessive rate of speed when he attempted to turn south on Pierce street. The machine was traveling so fast that it leaped the curb and ran up on the sidewalk, where the fender struck Jones and knocked him down.

Police were called and arrested Harnett, who was held in jail until Jones died, when a charge of manslaughter was filed against him.

Red Cross Issues Report On Relief

Figures showing the extent of damage caused by the Mississippi Valley flood of 1927 and the relief work of the American Red Cross, are contained in a final summary report issued by the organization and made public here today by chairman of the local chapter. A more detailed report is to be issued later.

The report, which deals exclusively with family losses, and does not include such items as property damage to public utilities, highways, and municipal properties, gives for the first time the final figures on family losses and places the number of buildings destroyed at 41,487, while a total of 162,017 homes were flooded. More than 65,000 families involving approximately 325,000 individuals, suffered losses in the disaster.

Agriculture is listed as a heavy loser in the flood. Of the 18,764,775 acres of cultivated land in the flood area, more than 5,289,000 acres were inundated. Live stock and poultry drownings totaled 1,175,678, while thousands of farmers lost all farm implements, buildings, and equipment.

The Red Cross rescue fleet, assembled as the flood assumed such grave proportions, consisted of more than a thousand boats, with which 300,000 persons were rescued from levees, house-tops and other points of temporary safety and transported to refugee camps. The number of camps and concentration centers maintained by the Red Cross was 154. Altogether the organization cared for 637,000 flood sufferers during the relief work, and was at one time serving more than a million meals a day for the sufferers.

The enormity of the Red Cross health and disease prevention program is shown in the report by the fact that to combat malaria 25,000,000 grains of quinine were used, while for the prevention of typhoid fever 457,700 persons were inoculated. The smallpox menace was met by the vaccination of nearly 147,000 persons.

Extensive building and repair projects, the distribution of seed, farm implements, live stock and feed, were outstanding phases of the reconstruction program the Red Cross instituted as soon as the water receded. Nearly 2,500,000 acres were planted with seed supplied by the relief organization, the seed being distributed to nearly 400,000 persons. Besides this relief 110,000 received assistance in building and repairing; 245,720 received household goods; live stock and poultry were given to 32,000; and farm implements to 8,000. Medical aid was extended to 58,800.

Relief expenditures of the organization in the flood reconstruction program will exceed $17,000,000, all of which has been spent with the exception of a small amount being used for the completion of certain unfinished projects.

Coincident with the issuance of the report, the Red Cross is preparing for its annual enrollment of members for 1929 during the roll call, to be held from Armistice day, November 11, through Thanksgiving day, at which time funds for the continuance of its services, including disaster relief, will be sought.

Votes Canvassed In Cuming County

West Point, Neb., Nov. 16.—The official canvass of the Cuming county votes shows a total of 5,118 votes cast in the recent election as compared with 4,543 votes cast in the 1924 presidential election.

The official canvass made a few slight changes in the totals of the candidates but did not change any county results. There were thirtytwo mail votes, twenty of them for Hoover and twelve for Smith.

Mrs. Angeline High of West Point, 91, exercised her right at the polls for the first time this year and voted for Hoover.

Burglars Enter Norfolk School

Norfolk, Neb., Nov. 15.—Although robbers gain entrance to offices of Supt. H. B. Simon and Principal J. W. Sahlstrom in the senior high school building by smashing glass in a door, they left without stealing anything so far as school authorities have been able to determine.

Entrance to the building was gained through the east door, the glass of which was broken. The lock on the safe in Mr. Sahlstrom's office was damaged. However, the thieves were unable to open the safe.

Mr. Simon believes the thieves thought receipts of a football game had been taken to the school building as banks of the city were closed.

Youth Accused Beating Teacher

Decatur, Neb., Nov. 15.—Accused of beating his teacher into unconsciousness for reprimanding him, James Conway, jr., 16 years old, has been arrested and will appear Saturday before Judge Flynn, Pender, Neb., for hearing. The arrest warrant was served by Deputy Sheriff L. Austin.

On election day, it is charged, Conway, who resides six miles northwest of Decatur, beat the teacher of his district, Miss "El" Slinger, and left her lying on the floor of the schoolhouse. Pupils who witnessed the beating thought the teacher was dead and ran to the county store operated by H. L. Harris, who went to the teacher's aid. He found her stretched over a seat, her head hanging over one end.

Young Conway has been expelled by the district school board, which immediately held a conference with the Thurston county superintendent of schools, Mrs. Ida Riddler.

Kewpie Designer Lived At Madison

Madison, Neb., Nov. 15.—Rose O'Neill, the "kewpie lady," is a former Madison county resident, it was disclosed here when Miss Eleanor Ditttrick, in giving the history of Hughes district at the dedication of the new $3,000 building, recalled that in the fall of 1878 Mrs. W. P. O'Neill taught the school.

The family lived on the farm now occupied by J. J. Orr, two miles east of the schoolhouse. There were three little children, one of them Rose Cecil O'Neill. It is presumed that the first kewpie ever drawn was a blackboard decoration in the old schoolhouse.

Nebraska Needs Better Roads

Omaha World-Herald: Nebraska must soon take thought of its roads. The state has accomplished much with limited funds, but gravel on many highways has become thin and treacherous, and in many of the counties mud is still a barrier between farmer and market and town and town. One of the problems that will press Governor Weaver and his legislature, when they take office, will be that of shaping a road program that will give Nebraska enough hard-surfaced roads to keep the state passable in all kinds of weather. Iowa on Tuesday approved a bond issue of 150 million dollars to pave the primary roads of the state. The program will prove of direct benefit to Nebraska, for several roads will be paved from the Mississippi to the Missouri rivers, leading tourists and travelers to our border. Missouri voters, who, several years ago, approved a road building program

For Abused Husbands

Literary Digest: A movement to fight the tyranny of women over men is seen in the call issued for an International Congress for Wronged Husbands by Herr Hoerberth, President of the

Viennese League for the Rights of Men

Some amusing comment has been inspired by the announcement of the President of this league, and certain journals express very little hope for the success of his crusade. One such skeptic is the Toronto Mail and Empire, which observes: "The object of the congress is said to be to initiate a movement all over the world for combating the tyranny created by civilization in favor of women. One of these little tyrants is alimony for the wife, which Herr Hoerberth thinks should be abolished. He bases his arguments on moral grounds, but a cash basis would be equally plausible. Why should a man be compelled to contribute to the support of his wife when for any reason he wants to get rid of her? If alimony is retained, men, he says, should find in divorce or in a separation the same protection which women seek from brutal husbands. Brutal wives seldom hear of, especially in Vienna, where the women are said to be the most beautiful in the world. There was a case in England where a very large husband was frequently beaten by a very little wife. When his friends sympathized with him he replied: "It pleases she and it don't

State Employment Conditions Good

Lincoln, Neb., Nov. 15.—Favorable employment conditions prevail throughout the state, and there is a feeling of confidence regarding prospects for the remainder of the open season, the United States labor department reported today. "There are many transient workers in the larger centers of population, but involuntary idleness among resident skilled and unskilled labor is comparatively small," the report said. "Many major building projects are being rushed to completion before cold weather arrives. Normal employment is reported in the meat packing plants, railroad repair shops and other leading industries. Flour mills register seasonal gains. Canning factories will continue to furnish employment for many hundreds of workers for at least another 60 days. General farm labor is in good demand."

Wayne's New Hotel Stratton Formal opening of which is planned this week, marks completion of a worthy community enterprise. A modern hotel is the pride of every city and the new Stratton will boost Wayne by serving people of the vicinity and the traveling public. "If you'd like to live in the kind of a town Like the kind of a town you'd like, You needn't slip your clothes in a grip And start on a long, long hike. You'll only find what you've left behind. There's nothing that's really new. A knock at your town is a knock at yourself. It isn't your town, it's you. "Good towns are not made by men afraid Lest somebody else get ahead Where everyone works and nobody shirks You can raise a town from the dead. And if, while you're making a personal stake, Your neighbor can make one too, Your town will be what you want to see— It isn't your town, it's you." —Edgar A. Guest. At the Close of Six Years' Building Completion of the Hotel Stratton is realized at the close of our sixth year in the construction business. During this period we have built thirtyeight dwellings and six business blocks in Wayne. Three other houses are now under construction. The hotel project was started a year ago and work on the building was begun in the spring. The hotel contains fiftyone rooms and five apartments, besides dining and banquet rooms and lobby. Twenty-seven men have been employed continually on the project. The new hotel fills a distinct need in the community and it will serve as a great asset and source of enjoyment. Homer S. Wayne City School Student Council Discusses Finances At Its Meeting

J. H. Kemp Addresses Assembly on National Education Week—Other News.

The student council held its regular monthly meeting on Tuesday, November 6, and financial problems of the school were discussed. Bills amounting to $160 were allowed. It was decided that the council should supervise the sale of tickets for the Wakefield football game. About sixty-six tickets were sold.

A part of the orchestra music that is to be used for the opera has arrived. "The Bells of Capistrano" is a very new opera and all the orchestra music has not yet been completed. The rest of the music is expected soon.

Assembly Notes. About sixty-five students attended the Wayne-Wakefield game at Wakefield on Friday, November 9.

Six week examinations began last Thursday morning.

J. H. Kemp spoke before the assembly Friday, November 9. In giving his speech Mr. Kemp followed the outline of the National Education association for National Education week. He emphasized the names of each day of the week and what it should mean to the student.

The days of Education week have been given the following names: Monday, health day; Tuesday, home and school day; Wednesday, know your school day; Thursday, school opportunity day; Friday, citizenship day; Saturday, community day; and Sunday, Armistice day.

National Education week comes every year during the week which includes Armistice day since "it is a good time to point out that one of the best ways to honor those who have held the nation's battle lines in behalf of independence, national integrity and world justice, is to make the nation greater still through the power of education."

Debate Notes. November 5 the old members of the debating squad entertained the new members and the sponsors at the home of Irol Whitmore.

The members of last year's debate and declamatory squads, together with last year's play casts, voted in their meeting last Monday to petition the National Forensic League for membership. They also voted to raise the necessary money for so doing. The National Forensic league is a national honor-society for high school speakers, and permits the students of Wayne high school to receive recognition for their merit as speakers wherever they may be.

The debating squads are spending their evenings at the college library looking up magazine references. Miss Nellie Behm has given them the use of the extra office room as a debate room. The public library has also secured material for their use. This support by the libraries is greatly appreciated.

Debate squads have been announced by the debate coach as follows:

Squad one includes: Affirmative, Jeannette Lewis, Evelyn Felber, Zola Wilson; and negative, Irol Whitmore, Eileen Emmons, Letha Porterfield. Lacked Deserved Support. York Republican. One of the friends of the Republican's exchange table, the Fremont Herald, went to the hief last week. The editor, O. Byron Cooper, announced that his newspaper suspended with that issue. There is something distressing about the passing of a newspaper. The Herald was a well edited newspaper, vigorous and capable. Its Editor was a literary genius of no small ability. But these qualifications, great as they are, were not enough to give the newspaper vigorous existence. It did not command the business support of the community. Editor Cooper shed no large tears, neither did he rave and lament. He just folded his tent as a good Christian gentleman should, packed away in rose leaves his blighted hopes, and proceeded on his way, a wiser and more experienced man. We shall miss the Herald, but we know its editor will be faring on somewhere, for such ability as he possessed will eventually find its place of its service and its sure rewards.

Don't Flood the Corn Market. Nebraska Farmer: With a view to preventing a disastrous glut upon the corn market at the time of harvesting, Mr. Ernest Severs of Gage county urges farmers to hold their corn based upon a normal demand for it. He thinks that a price of $1.00 per bushel can be maintained and gives as his reason therefor: "There is no surplus of corn in this country, and we will use a month and a half's supply of the present crop this year and still have more for export sales in December than we sold all last year. The government estimates indicate 120,000,000 bushels more of corn this year than last, but there is no surplus from last year and we will be short again next year. On November 2, there were 21,995 bushels in Kansas City elevators, as against 1,316,000 bushels the same date a year ago. The world's visible supply today is 1,507,000 bushels, and last year at this time it was 21,487,000. In Omaha elevators now the supply is but 44,000 bushels while a year ago it was 1,888,000. Why shouldn't the men who raise the corn get some of the profit from the situation?"

There is no telling how effective this advice may be. No doubt it will help some, but to insure the end that Mr. Severs seeks, requires more than words of warning and advice. Farmers will market orderly only when they enter into a contractual agreement to pool their interests and market the surplus through an agency that can enforce a sound policy of selling.

Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Craven were Sioux City visitors Friday.

... a Song of Lasting Joy

Christmas would be incomplete without the many personal gifts which are cherished chiefly for the friendships they represent—gifts that swell the heart with kindly thoughts of others. But why not add a practical touch by one gift of lasting joy—the Maytag.

Enjoy the Maytag's faster, cleaner, gentler method of washing, its advanced method of wringing, its quiet, smooth performance. Week after week, year after year, it will continue to bring good cheer. The Maytag won its position of world leadership, not only by originating new and advanced ideas of design and construction, but by creating perfection in every minute detail.

About Nebraska and Nebraskans

Will M. Maupin.

or Not," cartoonist of the World-Herald, has been roundly criticized for declaring that William F. Gody never shot a buffalo in his whole life. Several indignant advisers of the great plainstman have gone to the trouble of digging up records to prove that Buffalo Bill killed thousands of buffalo. But Ripley is absolutely correct. The only buffalo ever seen in the United States were under canvas in menageries. Col. Gody killed thousands of bison, but never a buffalo.

Mrs. E. W. Nash of Omaha died on a Milwaukee train while enroute to New York. She was 80 years old. Mrs. Nash was perhaps the second wealthiest woman in Nebraska, and one of the earliest of the state's pioneers. Her husband was one of the first merchants in the territory and was intimately associated with the Creightons, and with them constructed the first telegraph lines across the plains to connect with the Pacific coast. Her husband was a heavy stockholder in the Milwaukee railroad, and a son was for many years a high official of that company.

To just what lengths may a husband go to persuade his wife not to smoke cigarettes. There are limits to which he may not go, as Ernest Witmer of Brunswick has discovered. Ernest had been married less than two years when his wife acquired the cigaret habit. He protested, but in vain, and finally he put poison in her beer in an effort to effect a permanent cure. It failed to effect a cure so he resorted first to a wagon-spoke, and finally to a hammer. The hammer cured her permanently, and he buried her and disappeared. But after six weeks of dodging he surrendered to the sheriff at Norfolk. The judge will probably decide that he went too far in his reform efforts.

Speaking of the constitutional convention of 1871, so far as this writer is able to learn Col. John Lee Webster of Omaha is the only surviving member of the convention which framed that instrument. Col. Webster located in Omaha shortly after he was mustered out of the Union army and began the practice of law. Shortly afterwards he was elected as a delegate to the convention. At one time he came near being elected to the United States senate. Despite his advanced age Col. Webster is still in active practice and numbers several large corporations among his clients, among them the Municipal Utilities District and the Omaha & Council Bluffs Street Railway Co.

The search for oil in Nebraska goes merrily on. At least a half dozen prospect holes are being drilled at this time. The U. S. Drilling Co., penetrated to a depth of 3,200 feet near Campbell, Franklin Co., and then had to abandon the hole on account of it having become "jammed." The company is being re-organized and will start another hole about 500 feet away. At Imperial, Chase county, a local organization has gone down 3,500 feet, and operations have been suspended until money enough is raised to go 2,000 feet farther. Another well is being bored near Riverton, and still another one is going down in Furnas county.

Time was when cities, townships and counties in Nebraska fell all over themselves to vote bonds to aid in the building of railroads. A few days ago a proposition to vote $30,000 in bonds to aid in the construction of the Yankton & Norfolk railroad was submitted to the little city of Crofton, and the proposition was defeated. It was the first proposition of the kind submitted in Nebraska for many years.

Speedy Action Needed. Lincoln Journal: As the situation develops it is becoming more evident that not only has congress at the short session, the time but also the duty to move towards immediate farm relief. Even the effort, with a strong urge behind it, would be immediately effective in raising prices. If the representatives of the farm states would join hands in pushing proposed legislation they would be performing a notable service.

Much of the wheat and nearly all of the crop of corn raised this year is yet in the hands of the men who grew them. Many tenant farmers as well as men who operate their own farm plants are holding all of their wheat for the reason that the price dropped so low before they could thresh that they decided it would surely react enough to pay the cost of borrowing money with which to hold it. Many of them figure that they can get from ten to fifteen cent a bushel profit by holding. If they must sell or are forced to sell through the slowness of congress in taking steps calculated to raise the prices, the profit will go to the speculator who buys. It should go to the producer.

Wheat markets respond as readily to legislative stimuli as do the prices of products generally. Let it be known that congress intends to pass legislation designed to make better prices for wheat and corn, along the lines suggested by Mr. Hoover, and the market will respond in advance of the enactment of it, because then the speculator enters.

There is another reason. A special session of congress would not be limited in the consideration of legislation to the specific purpose for which it is called, wherein the national legislature differs from that of the state, but would be free to take up other matters pressed by formidable groups of members. This might delay farm relief legislation beyond the period when it would help the next wheat crop maturing in midsummer.

Election Aftermath. Aurora Republican: Resumes of the past election have been frequent in Nebraska newspapers. They have also been extremely interesting. The tendency is to want to join the crowd and indulge in an exhaustive search after the grain of truth about the election. Perhaps the Literary Digest method is as good as any, and on that theory we quote Mrs. Marie Weekes of the Norfolk Press to the effect that "it is a smashing anti-Smith defeat." That statement is no doubt true. Hoover's popularity was not as great as Smith's unpopularity. But when Mrs. Weekes goes on to say that "issues like the American power question, than which there is none more important to the welfare of all the people, are lost in the maze of religious and prohibition propaganda that has swept the country," she adds something with which many sincere and intelligent people will only half agree. Let the Ord Quiz make answer when it says: "This editorial is frankly written in defense of millions of men and women who opposed Smith honestly and without thought of his religion." The democratic candidate was wet. He was a Tammany product. His tariff views clashed with those of many. He believed in unrestricted immigration. Reasons enough, it would seem, to arouse honest opposition. Yet those who opposed him were charged with religious intolerance. By Smith supporters." There, in a nutshell, is the position of thousands and millions of honest anti-Smith voters, many of them democrats, who, although not too enthusiastic about Hoover, were unable to agree with the Smith program. This paper does not regret that American liberals are in danger, that after all our years of believing that what our constitution said is true, that a man's religious opinions do not prevent him from even a fair hearing in this great nation born to get away from European intolerance." We admit that intolerance does exist and that, because of his religion, Mr. Smith suffered from it, submitting at the same time that Mr. Hoover suffered from the same thing, although admittedly to a lesser degree. It is, however, an injustice to the great majority of American people who voted for Mr. Hoover to imply that their action was the result of religious bigotry. How in that case, account for the Hoover majority in New York and other eastern states where the Ku Klux Klan is hunted with clubs and stones by Protestants and Catholics alike? And how, to put the shoe on the other foot, account for the large Smith vote in Catholic centers if there is not the tinge of intolerance there, also, although, we still submit, no foundation whatever for believing that "American liberties are in danger?" This has been an unfair and rabid campaign, to be sure. It should never be duplicated in American politics. But, if this paper senses the sentiment of the country, Mr. Smith death warrant as president that timber was signed when he sent his message to the democratic national convention, outlining his views on prohibition. And that, we submit, is fit ground for debate without intolerance on either side. The nation has given its answer on that and other issues. Its religious intolerants—and we believe we speak of the minority—should join in the admirable sentiment voiced by Mrs. Weekes, a Catholic, when she said before election: "I do not know what the result will be. Whatever, I hope it will be the best for the America and the Nebraska I love. Whoever elected will be my president, my governor and to them I pledge the fidelity a citizen owes her country, her state."

The biggest business of this generation is to nail down peace before the race forgets what war is.—Boston Herald.

IDEAL, the World's Wonder Grinder

THE Ideal grinder which we have just put on our floor for demonstration, grinds everything that grows on the farm. The Ideal can be operated with any make of tractor. If you haven't power on your farm, Ideal can be operated satisfactorily by the purchase of a good second-hand tractor or automobile engine. The cost of such power is small. You can do enough custom grinding for your neighbors easily to pay the purchase price of this wonderful machine in a very short time.

Years of painstaking work and development under all kinds of severe conditions all over the world, actual work and tests on the farm have resulted in the development of this wonderful grinder alone, in grinding capacities and low cost of production.

A grinder to do all kinds of grinding must be cheap first cost of purchase price but not cheap in construction. It must be strong and sturdy and last a life time without repairs. That describes the Ideal. It does the job quickly and economically without extra labor.

Three Years' Guarantee Against wear, defective workmanship or material. We guarantee unconditionally to replace free of charge, F. O. B. Denver, any part of the Ideal Grinder that wears out from grinding in three years.

Feeding Ground Feed Carefully compiled statistics by the U. S. government agricultural department and all leading agricultural colleges have proved beyond any doubt that there is a saving of from thirtythree and one-third to fifty percent in feeding ground feed, and in addition the great value in the quick growth, development and fattening of all kinds of live stock and fowls.

The Gately Mills The Gately Mill which we have on our floor was built by practical farmers and stockmen. It is designed to grind all kinds of feed and under all conditions. The Mill is exceedingly simple and rugged in its construction and will stand the severest abuse without chance of breakage.

Gately Mills are built in three sizes, and it is the No. 9 which we have on hand. It has exceptionally large capacity and is the popular size for the large stock feeder. There are no frills nor theoretical ideas built into a Gately Mill. Sound, practical and proven features account for its success.

Profitable Investment Let us show you these two makes of grinders and see if your farm operations will not profit by such an investment.

Thurston Farmers Should Have Bonus

Waltham, Neb.—Judging from the success that Thurston county farmers are having in collecting the bonus money due them from the packers, farmers are poor bill collectors," says County Agent Everett T. Winter.

Before July 1, when it was not necessary for farmers to act together in order to collect their bonus, about $800 monthly was paid on hops from this accredited county. The amount now season teaches $100. This is probably due to more than one reason. The big reason, however, is because farmers are not as a rule tattooing their hops before sending them to market.

"A good tattoo marker complete with ink can now be purchased for as low as $1.50. The bonus on six average hops will pay for the cost. The farm has say offices is not only anxious to see farmers collect the premium to which they are entitled, but is anxious to have the tattooing done, as it affords a splendid method of tracing sources of disease."

Plan To Change Highway Here

Lincoln, Neb., Nov. 15.—No change will be made in the routing of U. S. Highway No. 20, which is the only east and west trans-state highway in northern Nebraska. Roy Cochran, secretary of the Public works department, said today on his return from the annual meeting of the American Association of State Highway Officials in Chicago.

A strong effort has been made by towns in South Dakota to obtain a rerouting of the highway through South Dakota. Cochran has opposed the change.

The highway enters Nebraska at Sioux City and goes west through O'Neill, Ainsworth, Valentine, Gordon, Chadron, leaving the state west of Harrison.

It carries the bulk of the traffic from the east to the Black Hills and west to Casper, Wyo. Although it has not been gravel surfaced throughout its entire length, the work is proceeding rapidly and probably will be completed within another year, he said.

The executive committee of the American Association of Highway Officials has the authority for locating federal highways. Nebraska now has representation on that body through the appointment of Cochran as a member.

Mr. Cochran was elected vice president of the association for the middle-west division. He was also a member of the association's committee on construction.

Machinery Is Not Always Necessary

Lincoln, Neb.—In Africa the farmer may spend 40 days scratching an acre of ground with a stick. Time means very little to him. In western Nebraska, the farmer may plow an acre of ground in a few minutes. Time and volume of production mean everything to him.

Each case is an extreme, but the tendency is to buy and use more machinery to save time and effort on every farm. Wise investment of capital in additional machinery depends on three things: Quality of work done, time and effort saved, and use of time saved. Most modern machinery does better work than was formerly done by more simple implements. Most modern machinery saves time and effort of the operator.

The question then simmers down to a comparison of the dollars invested with the value of time saved. Obviously, the man who spends capital for machinery to do his work quickly, and then loafs the rest of the year has a big overhead to charge against his crop. In contrast, the man who can get along without some hired labor, who can keep his machinery in good repair on a well equipped farm, who can use his extra hours on more live stock or different profitable enterprises on the farm, or who can use his time for family recreation is justified in buying as much machinery as he has good use for on his farm.

November Is Right Time To Breed Sows

St. Paul, Minn.—Sows should be bred the present month if the spring pig crop is to be in market condition before the usual fall decline in price, say G. A. Sillee and A. F. Hinrichs, of the division of farm management and agricultural economics at University farm.

They point out that increased care during the spring months will be necessary to avoid heavy losses of early young pigs. A good supply of skim milk is highly desirable for these early pigs. Proper care and feeding frequently result in producing pigs that will weigh 200 pounds at 6 months of age.

"This year it may be more profitable in surplus potato producing areas to feed cheap potatoes in place of corn," say the university men. "From 500 to 600 pounds of potatoes will equal 100 pounds of grain if they are cooked and mixed with the latter for hog feed. Cheap feeds may be used now and corn held over for preparing the spring pigs for an early market next year."

A Social Reason.

F. O. Edgecombe in Geneva Signal: Those who know all about prohibition, in their own imagination, and those who hate it because of an appetite acquired when it was considered the proper thing to take a social glass, may not wish to read this discussion of a phase of a topic that has commanded much public attention in recent months, a phase of the topic seldom discussed as far as we have happened to read.

It seems to the Signal that the prohibition sentiment expressed at the polls November 6 is the natural outgrowth of the demand of organized society for improvement in the human race. Organized society as we find it today is the outgrowth of experience and education. Experience and education are teaching the people of the United States that if the race is to be improved a number of things are necessary. Every possible safeguard must be thrown around the home. Temptation must be removed from the weak and the greatest extent possible laws regulating social conduct are intended to curb the aggressiveness of the strong and encourage and guard the weak.

The church looks on marriage as a sacrament but if there were no church to give guidance and emphasis to reasons therefor there would still be the greatest necessity for the enactment and observance of marriage laws. It is a demand of organized society that is based upon experience and education. One of the "bad tendencies of the times is the failure of so many families to accept the view of the church that marriage is a sacrament of the gravest character. The fad of the moment is to get married anywhere except among the home folks and to accept as sufficient for the more or less temporary purpose the performance of any kind of a marriage ceremony. The public welfare would be advanced if public opinion would condemn this view of marriage.

No one proposes the repeal of the laws attempting to prevent the sale of habit-forming drugs except for the treatment of disease by those qualified to use them properly and there is universal condemnation of all who violate such laws. Liquor in every form is a habit-forming drug and organized society has come to that conclusion. It does to thousands, in a less noticeable way, perhaps, what cocaine and similar drugs do for hundreds. Educated, organized society demands relief for the victims of these disastrous habits and protection for the young against the formation of such habits.

We have visited many of the large cities of the United States both before and after prohibition became a national law. In the large centers of population and in some other localities where special reasons prevail the prohibition law is not well enforced. In some industrial centers where there are large numbers of people of foreign birth, people who have used liquor in some form all of their lives and have been taught from childhood that the use of some forms of liquor is almost necessary to good health and well being, there is comparatively little attempt at enforcement. There is nothing strange or discouraging about this fact. It is really amazing that so much progress in changing the habits of millions of people has been made in ten years.

During the many centuries that we have been creating public sentiment and developing laws against murder, stealing, sex crimes and the contractual relations of individuals upon which our business life depends we have been able to make progress in many directions. We have had only ten years of prohibition. What may we expect from half a century of a century of honest effort at enforcement and personal observance?

Out of ordinary murder we have developed names for particular kinds of murder, such as homicide and manslaughter, and we have fixed various degrees of each and have specified the particular punishment for each degree. We have divided stealing into many classifications and have given them special names to indicate their nature and degree. Sex and other crimes have been similarly sub-divided and classified.

All of this has taken centuries. It is ridiculous to charge that the enforcement of prohibition is impossible because it has not reached perfection in ten years.

The average American family in most of the states of the union does not make liquor and never did, does not keep liquor in the home and never did, does not want to have liquor about the home and never did want it. There never was much to the liquor business or the drinking of the American people except in and because of the open saloon.

Taking the country over, there are a good many families that want liquor and will continue to make it for their own use. No one will disturb them or interfere with their family rights as long as they keep their liquor to themselves. As generations pass, if prohibition continues to prevail, the feeling of need to have liquor in the home will die out. As young people grow up without the liquor habit only a few of them will care to bother with providing family liquor.

Isn't so many years ago that it was a common thing in most American families of high and low degree to keep a keg of whiskey in the home for family use. Of course we refer to a time something like a century ago, but what is a century in the history of the world? If millions of American homes have entirely quit having any liquor about which is the case, what bright future lies before the folks who come on the stage of action three or four generations hence?
