Fire Destroys Lundahl Home

Blaze Takes House, Furniture and Clothing of Family at Wakefield.

Rescue Children

Parents Save Young Folks From Suffocation by Quick Action Saturday.

Fire thought to have been started by a defective chimney destroyed the home of Mrs. M. E. Lundahl and contents northeast of Wakefield Saturday morning about 9 o'clock, and it was only by quick action that the two children, Donald and Marjorie, were rescued from the burning building.

The residence which belonged to Mrs. Betty Lundahl of Wakefield, was insured for about $500, and a small amount was carried on the contents.

Mr. and Mrs. Lundahl were working near the barn, out of sight of the house. The children had been playing in the yard but had a short time before the fire got into the home. When Mr. and Mrs. Lundahl noticed smoke pouring from the building they rushed to the house, opened the door and broke a window, just in time to save the children from suffocation. The house was filled with smoke when they reached the building, and the entire structure broke into flames after they entered and rescued the children. The fire had gained such headway that nothing could be saved. Furniture, clothing and all other contents were lost with the house.

The Monie Lundahl family is spending some time with relatives and friends. Rebuilding of the house has been started.

Symptoms Given As Proof of Old Age's Approach

BULLETIN devoted to churches and preachers mentions the following symptoms as indicating that a minister is growing old: "He writes no new sermons. Reads no new books. Takes no interest in preacher's magazines. Is no longer alert for new ideas. Preaches a solid hour or longer. Talks about everything but his subject. Puts everybody to sleep in the first act. Door to his study covered with cobwebs. Argues the world is getting worse. Takes no interest in the young people. Is inflexible, autocratic, sour. Imagines all the good people except himself died young. Has no patience with sports and games. Takes no part in social or civic activities. Goes nowhere except to church. Scolds his people and shows an ugly, obnoxious spirit." These symptoms would seem to apply equally as well to anyone in any line of endeavor. One grows old as he loses interest in the world's activities and ceases to do things or wish to see things done. He must breathe the spirit of youth to retain usefulness.

HERALD READERS PROFIT FROM THE ADS EVERY WEEK

In a letter accompanying "Santa's Chimney," participating in the Herald's recent contest, a lady living near Carroll, says in part: "We always read the advertisements in the Wayne Herald each week, anyway, and we save money by it many times." She adds that very often she has talked over with neighbors for mutual advantage the buying opportunities set forth in the Herald from week to week. Her experience is only typical of that of people generally in the Wayne territory. They make their dollars go farther by a fixed habit of reading Herald's advertisements and turning them to profit. They have learned to rely on such information, and were it no wanted by themselves, it is of danger to their neighbors. If they wanted to verify selling propositions over the radio, they would have to call together the neighbors who happened to be listening, to gather a preponderance of evidence. Not so with newspaper advertisements. These are, and there is no possible ground for dispute.

Autos Collide Near Wakefield

Six Allen People Are Slightly Injured When Omaha Car Strikes Machine.

Ford Is Wrecked

Occupants of Omaha Willys-Knight Pay Fine in Dixon County Court.

Six Allen people were cut and bruised when their car was demolished and an Omaha car, occupied by three men, was broken somewhat when the machines collided on the highway about two miles north of Wakefield Thursday evening about 11 o'clock.

The Omaha men were taken into custody by Constable C. Thompson of Wakefield and were taken into county court at Ponca, paying a fine and costs of $114 for possession of liquor. Claims for damages were also filed against them.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Harper and daughter, Phyllis, Miss Lillian Harper and Mrs. and Mrs. Carl Utterback of Allen, were returning home from Wakefield. They were in a Ford sedan, belonging to Mr. Harper. The driver saw the Willys-Knight sedan, driven by the Omaha men, approaching from the north. As Mr. Harper noticed that the other car was swaying from side to side, he stopped on the right of the road.

The Omaha car struck the Allen car head on. Mr. Harper was thrown through the windshield of the Ford and was still holding the steering wheel when he landed in a nearby field. The woman went through the top of the machine. Mrs. Harper, who was holding her daughter on her lap, was still holding the child when she realized that she was sitting in a field instead of in the car. The Allen people sustained a few cuts and bruises but were otherwise not injured. The machine was wrecked.

The Willys-Knight, which bore an Omaha license plate but which had no owner's name inside, had one wheel broken and the front badly bent.

Wayne Furnishes Christmas Cheer To Numerous Children and Adults

Free Picture and Band Music Arranged—Plan Gifts for Needy Families.

Wayne greeted a large number of visitors from the surrounding territory Saturday at the Christmas festivities planned by local committees. Music by the Wayne band, directed by Prof. F. C. Reed, a barbecue and visit of Santa Claus were features. In spite of threatening weather 2,500 attended the barbecue in the city hall.

The band plays each evening this week at 7 o'clock on Main street, providing weather is favorable, and the group will also play Saturday afternoon.

A free picture show for children under 15 is planned for next Saturday afternoon at the Gay and Crystal theatres. E. E. Gailley has secured a good feature film for the occasion. Doors open at the Gay theatre at 1 and the show starts at 1:30.

Wayne good fellow committee is busy again this year providing Christmas cheer for needy families. Those having gifts of clothing or toys are asked to leave them at Dr. W. B. Vail's office and they will be distributed where needed. Dolls, toys, clothing for adults and children, poultry, eggs or other articles will be most acceptable. Dr. Vail and his committee will deliver the gifts where most wanted. Some clothing given last Christmas was furnished to needy families as late as June. All who feel able to help are asked to assist in furnishing Christmas cheer to the needy in this vicinity. Dr. Vail is assisted by Prof. A. F. Gulliver, Mrs. E. W. Huse, Miss Pearl Sewell, Mrs. H. B. Craven, Mrs. J. E. Hufford and Dean H. H. Hahn.

After having traveled in distant lands for years and after long search made by relatives, George J. Frost, former school teacher, bank employee and Dakota county superintendent, has been located and came here from Chicago last week. He is a brother-in-law of Sam Ray of Winslow. He appeared in Wayne county court to claim his share of his mother's estate. He plans to go to Mexico soon after visiting the Rev. family.

Mr. Frost left Emerson with his mother years ago and the former worked for several years at the carpenter trade in Omaha. Mr. Frost later went to Skagway, Alaska, and at the time of the Spanish American war was rejected as a rough rider. But, being personally acquainted with Theodore Roosevelt, he was taken with the company to Cuba in a clerical position. While William Howard Taft was governor of the Philippines, Judge Norris secured a position for Mr. Frost in the immigration department at Manila. He was afterward transferred to Shanghai, China. From there he went to Sidney, Australia. For some time Mr. Frost lived in South America.

Mr. Frost's mother died at the Sam Ray home in 1915, and since that time diligent search has been made for George J. Frost, commonly called Jack. His brother, Thomas, who is in the employ of the M. & O. railroad at Emerson, has been broadcasting by radio and reached him at Chicago. Mr. Frost came to Omaha not knowing his mother was dead, and he, Tom Frost and Mr. Ray appeared in court Monday to settle the estate.

Mrs. Jennie Porter, mother of Mrs. C. A. Berry of Wayne, passed away here Wednesday afternoon,

Kiwanis Honors Lincoln Writer

Dr. A. L. Bixby, State Journal Columnist, Receives Distinguished Service Medal.

Program Speaking

E. W. Huse of Wayne, Talks on "The Press and Its Place in Nebraska's Welfare."

Dr. A. L. Bixby, poet, philosopher, editor, prominent figure in the Nebraska press for forty years and most of that time conductor of the "Daily Drift" column in the Nebraska State Journal at Lincoln, was presented the Kiwanis distinguished service medal Friday at the Lincoln Chamber of Commerce about 100 guests attending the dinner and program. E. W. Huse of Wayne, and A. F. Buechler of Grand Island, spoke and Dr. Bixby responded.

Ernest Folsom presided and introduced the speakers. He also presented the medal. Dr. E. F. Travis read telegrams of congratulations to Dr. Bixby from all parts of the country, including last minute ones from Senator G. M. Hitchcock and Harvey Latham of Des Moines, once associated with Dr. Bixby at Fullerton, Carl Steckelberg, accompanied by Ernest Harrison, played violin selections.

The Press and Its Place. Dr. Huse's subject was "The Press and Its Place in Nebraska's Welfare," and after relating off-hand a few pleasant experiences in his acquaintance with Dr. Bixby, he spoke of the Kiwanis' honored guest and his part in Nebraska journalism as follows:

"By exalting and preserving memory of distinguished service, the Kiwanis club of Lincoln expresses its worthy principle as a builder—builder of character, builder of home life, builder of high ideals. I feel that my best contribution to this occasion is inadequate to do deserved honor to my friend, your friend, every one's friend—Dr. A. L. Bixby, poet, philosopher, editor—a citizen without pretense, a gentleman without alloy.

"Threaded and strengthened the fabric of the state's civilization is the quietly uplifting influence of the Nebraska press. An outstanding figure for more than forty years, Dr. Bixby has poured forth from the depths of his noble soul, songs of praise and courage, telling the world of Nebraska's resources and achievements, of its men, measures and possibilities.

"Richest satire, flavored to popular relish, has been hurled at the state's follies—life's indiscretions—by the genius of letters. Wrongs committed at the behest of Mammon, injustices resulting from morbid desire, antiquated beliefs and customs standing in the way of civilization's onward march have been stripped of their disguise. While subjecting an evil to the acid of ridicule, Dr. Bixby exalts and perpetuates the good in choicest diction. The worst members of society are not wholly bad, and an editor of Bixby's fine type will seek by all the power of his mind to differentiate—to encourage that which leads upward, and put the heel of disapproval on that which tends to weakness and decay.

Fortitude of Pioneers. "Welded into the blood of present generations is the iron fortitude of pioneer antecedents. First settlers who wrought productive farms from raw prairie, and reared substantial cities and towns in an uninviting frontier, overcoming obstacles in a climate that was often more invigorating than soothing, were steered to a great task, and the elements of courage and ambition transmitted to descendants are, as in other fields of endeavor, reflected in a sound and progressive Nebraska press.

Thoughts Are Important. "Force that prompted militancy in the formative period is now pacific and more constructive. Editors have come more and more to regard thoughts as potent agencies for good or bad, and more than ever they are inclined carefully to weigh their words in the scale of popular interest, spiritually and materially. Breathing hope into drooping spirits and imparting stamina to faltering footsteps, helping to fashion sturdy character as an essential to highest satisfaction in developed resources and won prosperity, may well be taken into account in considering contributions to Nebraska's advancement and welfare.

"Ancient nations struggled over barriers to their feet and became strong, victorious and rich. Then, defying the world, they lapsed into indolence and luxury. They dissipated strength and lost courage through false appetites—through idle days and wild nights. Then they fell easy prey to other more youthful and more virile nations. As a state, as groups or as individuals, we may, through indifference to long established standards, waste inherited mettle,—the bequest of hardy pioneers,—easily lose ground gained, and joy-ride to an unhappy doom. Getting something for nothing, expecting much for little, depending on others for support, loafing in the lap of luxury, shifting responsibility, hoping just to get by, may destroy the very character structure into which has been fused the life work of such stalwart pioneers as Dr. Bixby. The idea of working as a side-line when there is nothing to amuse, is weakening and destructive. We must preserve our inheritance of character if we would continue our spiritual and material growth.

Dr. Bixby Is Leader.

"In molding standards of civilization in this fair state, than which there is none of firmer fiber or greater intelligence, Dr. Bixby has taken no small part. Through all the years he has been a leader in progressive thought and courageous utterance, always touched with good humor and enjoyed by wholesome philosophy. Like many of us, he has passed the noonday of life, but, enriched by ripe experience, he is, as ever, a brilliant and forceful columnist—always an inspiration to his fellows—recently the dark shadow only despoiled cast before his path. His friends who are legion, applaud his pluck and would strive to equal his breadth of vision, his depth of sympathy, his love for humanity. Dr. Bixby has the habit of seeing the silver lining. He stands for highest ideals in journalism. If he thinks a man or a public policy is right, he says so. On the contrary, if Dr. Bixby detects sinister motives, he is not slow in alarming and arousing the populace. It is impossible accurately to measure his good influence through the years.

"The distinguished honor bestowed by the Kiwanis club of Lincoln conveys esteem that is felt by every one who knows Dr. Bixby or who has read his famous Daily Drift in the Nebraska State Journal.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Huse were guests for the occasion. A. F. Buechler speaks. Mr. Buechler's subject was "The Influence of the Press in Moulding a Great State." He said that "Throughout all changes the columnist of the editorial page has remained not only, but in many cases has remained less fastidious than the non-writing editor. Relatively his particular influence remains and there are no indications, at present, that his star will fade in the future. The kindly yet positive, the humorous yet philosophical lyric of Daily Drift, is today, and has been for a quarter of a century, Nebraska news, paperdom's leading columnist.

"His love of his fellowman has ever been an outstanding characteristic. An incident of his earliest years in Nebraska gives us a hint of it. He had left a medical college as a redheaded, freckled, adventurous youth to go out into western Nebraska and take up the practice of healing. His shingle was hung at North Platte. A personal friend of his advises that he went about his task diligently yet with circumspection. One day this friend was out driving with him. They were passing the cemetery. The friend, an irreverent, roughish, semi-cynical reporter for the press, impiously made inquiry of Bixby as to how many of his patients might be resting within these particular burial grounds. Leader's face remained entirely immobile as he explained: "Not any; you see, unless I am very positive in my diagnosis, I merely prescribe a harmless, and modest remedy, carefully filling the prescription myself. It cures them, in many cases, and saves my own conscience. I prepare just a few dough pills."

"The incident was told in jest by the friend in question, who still is a warm friend today. But somehow it makes it more easily understood what psychological bent caused the early abandonment of a profession that would bring him into close contact with every form of human bodily suffering. We who have enjoyed his beautiful philosophies and surely agree that the great, kindly heart of him was more attuned to a service of benevolence through a column of mingled humor, altruistic advice and homely philosophy."

Dr. Bixby Replies.

Doctor Bixby replied following presentation of the medal and stated that the honor was a surprise to him and was one of a long list of surprises beginning with the time a Sioux Indian woman gave him the first kind words his red hair had ever warranted. He said his surprises weren't always astonishing, however, as he always had faith that things would happen for the best, and they generally did. He recalled many of his early experiences in newspaperdom and particularly in the Journal, where his discovery of such things as a newspaper policy was a big surprise.

Tributes to "Bix."

The souvenir programs contained Doctor Bixby's favorite among his own poems, and a sketch of his life by Harry T. Dobbins, a life-time associate of the honor guest. This told of early life in New York state and Iowa, his marriage in Minnesota to the beloved "Mollie" of his verses, who didn't live to see him honored on this occasion; his practice of medicine and his entry into Nebraska journalism at Fullerton. He came to The Journal in 1892. The sketch concluded with a characterization of "Bix" as grateful for the talents given him to help and to heal, and proud of the opportunity to be useful and constructive in the lives of others.

Characteristic greetings were read from Judge Dean, W. Cunningham of Colorado Springs, mentioning the color who succeeded in making his name greater by reducing the size of it two-fifths—"Bix"; Richard L. Metcalfe of Omaha; C. C. Sheldon of Columbus, thanking him for sense and nonsense; Frank and Villa Davey of Portland, Ore.; Edgar Howard, Nebraska editor now in congress; A. J. Russell, columnist of the Minneapolis Journal; Strickland Gillilan, famous humorist; Will Maupin, who put his into verse; Bess Streeter Aldrich; J. A. Edgerton of Washington; M. A. Brown of the Kearney Hub; Frank A. Day of the Fairmont, Minn., Sentinel, and others.

Sixty Years Ago. This was printed in a Boston daily sixty years ago: "A man about forty years of age, giving the name of Joshua Copper-smith, has been arrested in New York for attempting to extort funds from ignorant and superstitious people by exhibiting a device which he says will convey the human voice any distance over invisible wires so that it will be heard by the listener at the other end. The calls the instrument a telephone, which is obviously intended to imitate the word 'telegraph,' and win the confidence of those who know of the success of the latter instrument without understanding the principles on which it is based. Well-informed people know that it is impossible to transmit the human voice over wires as may be done with dots and dashes and signals, of the Morse code, and that, were it possible to do so, the thing would be of no practical value. The authorities who apprehended this criminal are to be congratulated, and it is to be hoped that his punishment will be prompt and fitting, that it may serve as an example to other conscienceless schemers who enrich themselves at the expense of their fellow creatures."

THE KNOT-HOLE

No. 29 Wayne, Neb., Thursday, December 20, 1928. Vol. 2

Our place of business will be closed all day Christmas.

Useful gifts? How about a nice coal shovel for mother?

The other day a stranger dropped in and asked us to cash a check. We told him we were a little short just then and suggested that he go to the bank and get it cashed. He replied that he had been to the bank and was refused because he was unknown to them. He seemed to feel all right toward the bank but was highly indignant because we refused to take a chance for the same reason the bank did. Can you beat it!

From December 20th to December 30th, the average child demonstrates what the human stomach can stand without a complete upset.

When Walter Savidge and B. W. Wright get through with the improvements on lower Main street, it's going to be hard to recognize the place. Let the hard work go on.

We have an idea that a ton of coal might be a very acceptable Christmas gift for somebody.

"Did you find your little boy?" "No, no kid brudder found it."

"And what are you locking for?" "Me kid brudder."

There are some people, we are sure, who have not bought coal of us since we have a coal business in Wayne. Now that's just too bad, for there is where we could buy.

If you feel sorry that you didn't buy a more expensive gift for Uncle John because he bought an expensive one for you, then you haven't got the proper Christmas spirit. And you shouldn't have purchased anything for Uncle John. If we've got that figured wrong, correct us.

Somebody asked us the other day, "What is a Snowbird?" A "Snowbird" is a fellow who has no coal sheds, scales, office, chutes, screens, forks nor equipment of any kind, who renders no service to the consumer, pays no taxes, and whose only stock in trade is a case of coal. He usually gets busy along in the fall of the first of February pulls out and leaves the people he has served to get the coal they need thereafter from the regular dealers. We have had experience with "Snowbirds" from time to time for a lot these many years and we have yet to find one that did not sell the lowest grade of coal he could buy.

We wish you all a Merry Christmas. That is an age-old wish, but we are repeating it again this season in all sincerity. We are glad that we have Christmas. It gives us a chance to forget the trials and troubles of business for a little while and think about our friends. We believe it will be an unusually happy Christmas here in the Wayne community—lots of family reunions and many social gatherings will take place during the next few days. It is the annual home-coming for those who are away, and that always means a gathering. So we hope this Christmas will be the happiest you have ever had, and that all the enjoyment you have been anticipating for the past few weeks will be fully realized.

The Herald wishes its army of readers a merry Christmas, and health, plenty and content during the coming year.

The state legislature will soon be in session again, and the bank guarantee law is one of the big problems that will appear for solution.

Effect of late falls of moisture increases as one journey's south, and gravel on the highway between Fremont and Lincoln has become so thin that it constantly demands for more during a wet spell.

The weather has been cloudy and sunny, cold and warm this week, but no snow thus far has interfered with travel. Absence of snow serves convenience, and it will not be missed if we are supplied with plenty of moisture in the shape of rain later on.

In this age of sharp competition, it is necessary to be alive to popular needs and be ready and able to serve them in order to make due headway in any line of work. One can't lie down and expect the public to storm his sleeping quarters and thrust business into his folded hands.

In little more than another week the old year will pull out of the traces and give place to 1929. Time flies, and life's span is short at most. Whatever we planned but failed to accomplish in 1928, should receive determined effort in the coming year. People don't want to leave a lot of unfinished business, and the way to avoid it is to concentrate and speed up energies.

The woman broadcasting bible lessons weekly from Omaha makes such reference to a personal devil that we judge she accepts the scriptures literally. It would be a satisfactory and we believe a less difficult arrangement to battle against a personal devil, but we don't believe such a critter exists, having grown up with an altogether different interpretation. But whether the devil is a personality with horns or is a diabolical condition possessing an individual, it is important to keep free from it.

The life of Dr. David Starr Jordan, chancellor emeritus of Stanford University, is a source of inspiration. He says he has lived three separate lives—naturalist and explorer, educator, and prophet of democracy—and notwithstanding that he is 77 years old, he is busily occupied every day with

DECEMBER 14.
We reached another milestone last Friday, and we observed the occasion by motoring to Lincoln to contribute in a small way to the honor bestowed on Dr. A. L. Bisby, poet and philosopher, by the Kiwanis club of that city. We appreciated the fact that we were invited to speak, but we felt we were starting in the speech-making business about thirty years too late to make a success of it, and we approached the duty with all the trepidation that could possibly be born of inexperience. Our spirit was anxious, but our nerves were weak. Admiration for the distinguished oratoric leader led us to try, and a wonderfully sympathetic and responsive audience lessened the task. On the way down our feelings were running at low ebb. Whether acknowledging our birthday or our impending precipitation of oratorical occupants of every cemetery along the way seemed to be out on the tombstones, waiting to be us and mumbled: "It won't be long now." But afterwards we were glad we did not allow feeble nerves to gain the mastery, and that we were able to force our eager desire to serve in an appointed place. As to our birthday which appears to roll around with increasing frequency, we feel fully thirty years younger than the record would indicate. In all the experiences, acquisitions and impulses of life, we are far behind the mark fixed by time and we don't know when, if ever, we will feel like surrendering to the state's bounty of advanced years.

various tasks. He has never used tobacco or alcoholic liquor, and he says he has accomplished a good deal by avoiding waste of time. Still going strong at 77 should be an inspiration to people who are inclined to give up at much earlier ages.

The Sioux City Journal quotes a prominent New York student as saying that America is "destined to gain world leadership in the arts, literature and sciences," and takes the optimistic view that we may prove an exception to the rule in history—that our prosperity may not result in the case and luxury that dull ambition and hinder cultural advancement. Decadence is suggested more on account of rule than reason. "A golden age," says the Journal, "may come without bringing attendant evils. World leadership in the arts and science would be an achievement that, instead of bringing deterioration to our civilization, would strengthen and encourage it."

Over 300 farmers from five western Nebraska counties met at Alliance December 14 to discuss agricultural conditions and the proposed wheat pool and the new McNary bill now before congress. The farmers endorsed the pool and the bill, and in the course of resolutions, set forth the opinion that "real farm relief can only come through co-operative marketing, with legislation, state and national, which will enable the farmers to control their own business and market their own crops in the markets of the country." It is believed a practical plan may be worked out to give farmers deserved market advantages without impairing initiative or placing affairs in the hands of costly and burdensome government boards.

The threat of war between Bolivia and Paraguay over boundary lines is passing, according to late reports, as the world is pleased to know. It is said the two countries would find it inconvenient to fight if they should reach that deplorable extremity. They would have difficulty in importing munitions, and an almost impenetrable jungle was wisely planted between the two countries. The task of getting within shooting distance of each other would be greater than the risk of battle at close range, so we judge. We are glad outside nations are making headway in bringing the two belligerents to their senses. It would be better to roll up the boundary in dispute, lay it away and forget it than engage in a costly and ruthless war.

Business.
Sioux City Journal: It is reported that the jobbing and wholesale trade is tapering off somewhat, although the movement of goods in retail business continues strong. There are explanations for this condition which have no significance as indicating a let-down in the business life of the country. Every bit of it is due to natural economic causes.

In the first place jobbing and wholesale trade reacts to seasonal influences. The year is approaching its end. Business always considers this time of year as a turning point, and while it is not necessary to conclude that as such it must be looked upon as either discouraging or difficult, the fact remains that leaders always halt as the new year approaches. Industry must select a time of year for making plans for the future. It also must think of inventories and trial balances, must look in two directions, backward and forward, and at this time those are the influences felt by general trade.

Holiday business continues good throughout the country, although it may have been decreased somewhat by the influenza epidemic that has spread rapidly in the last fortnight. The epidemic itself, while far less serious than that of 1918, has interfered with Christmas shopping, yet the total will be one of the largest movements of goods on record. Inclement

CHRISTMAS.
Recurrence of Christmas requires but cursory observation to lead one to appreciate the wholesome spirit of the occasion. This observation convinces one that the world is growing better and less selfish. We have noticed children and adults placing their gifts for Christmas and we have not heard one expression denoting curiosity or anxiety over what might be received. Thought was invariably absorbed in preparation to give and make others happy. Time was when custom supported the practice of taking family gifts to churches for distribution at public celebrations, but this tragedy has long since been ruled out by development of finer sensibilities. While there is occasional evidence of trying to keep up with neighbors in making display, we believe the world is becoming more sensible in that respect and that the spirit of the gift rather than the cost of it is coming more and more to possess the human emotions. While there is still much evil in the world, with often cold disregard of fellowship, the impress of the life of the gentle Nazarene becomes more apparent, and at no time is it more generally felt or expressed than during the Christmas season.

weater also has put a damper on general retail buying, which, without these discouraging influences, would have been nothing less than remarkable.

Iowa's buying power is stronger than for some years. The report on the state's crops for the year both as to yield and value is reassuring. When it is pointed out that the total value of all crops is only $2,000,000 below the highest mark in history, it is easy to understand why there is a stronger feeling of confidence. Iowa's corn yield was unusually good while production in other crop states was but average. This puts Iowa in a strong position since there is little likelihood that a heavy surplus will result in beating down prices later on.

Steel is expected to go to a new record this year for production and profits. This key industry has progressed amazingly in the last 12 months. Orders have been surprisingly heavy, despite price advances. Most plants have operated at or near capacity. Motor car manufacturers, railroads and implement plants consumed most of the product. Building accounted for a vast tonnage. Industry is in a good position as the old year wanes. The new year is confidently expected to bring a greater prosperity.

Seeking Health.
Auburn Republican: It just beats the world how things work out. According to a story in the Nebraska City paper a man is quitting the dairy business after a quarter of a century because of his health and the article leads one to believe that he lost his health by his constant attention to his business. In Idaho the editor of the paper has a sister who with her husband are running a dairy to regain their health. He was a high powered city printer and decorator and she was a stenographer and bookkeeper. Both commanded big salaries in the city, but because of their health went to the dairy business, and now in place of daubing with the paint brush and taking dictations from some high powered attorney they are milking 60 cows and delivering the product to the city chaps. Strange that the man at Nebraska City should lose his health in the dairy business while the people at Boise, Idaho, have gone into that business to regain their health.

Judging in this contest was done by art critics. Prizes awarded are as follows: First, Mrs. V. A. Senter, Wayne; second, Miss Dorothy Miller, Hoskins; third, Miss Anna Beuthe, Winside; fourth, Miss Verona McNamara, and fifth, Miss Mary Ellen Gulliver, Wayne. Donald Whitman, Wayne, Miss Mildred Soden, Wayne, Mrs. J. L. Davis, Avoca, Iowa, Mrs. E. J. Hunter, Wayne, Mrs. Ivor Humes, Carroll, Reuben Johnson, Wakefield.

Writes Article Current Journal

Dr. J. G. W. Lewis, State Teachers College, Wayne, is the author of "A New Phase in History and Social Science" appearing in the Nebraska Educational Journal December number. The article deals with the discovery and utilization of new data in history and social science. It brings out the thought that there are similarities between historical events and periods, and that something approaching the laws of sequence may be discerned. The article is of interest to the teachers throughout Nebraska, especially those who are teaching history and the social sciences.

Wayne School Band's Concert.

Wayne high school band, under the able leadership of its conductor, Prof. F. C. Reed, acquitted itself once more most favorably last Thursday evening in the concert at the Community house.

All present, what musical taste and inclinations they may cherish, found themselves rewarded indeed. The director's interpretation of Rossini's overture to "William Tell," one of our favorite classics, was rendered brilliantly by the band. Likewise were the other numbers of the program well given, including instrumental and vocal duets and solos.

We do not know that the public is aware of the fact that our band leader is a composer himself. The third number on the program, "Wayne High," is written by him, and this opus shows fine qualifications.

Considering the fact that the members of the band are more or less all amateurs, we venture to say this organization has made wonderful progress. We congratulate the band on its fine achievement and hope that we will have the privilege to hear more concerts during the winter months.—Observer.

Market Report.

December 20.—Strength characterized live stock markets this week, due almost entirely to the shorting off in receipts of all classes. The week before Christmas usually is a bearish week, owing to the increased consumption of poultry causing narrow demands for meats.

The 11 leading markets of the country received 88,000 cattle the first two days of the week, a huge decrease of 54,000 compared with a week ago. Beef steers and yearlings were in broad demand and the market ruled a quarter higher on the first two days, most of the advance being scored on the opening session. Trade was a little slow Tuesday, as sellers wanted more than buyers were willing to give.

No choice cattle were included but some good grades brought $15.00 to 15.60. Other sales ranged down to $12.50 with the bulk being made up of yearlings eligible to $10.00 to 12.00 and some of the plainer warmupeds ranged under this basis. Order buyers took a few yearlings and they also bought some of the heifers and kosher cows. The butcher stock market was active, showing a quarter advance for the two days on all but the low grade material.

Yearling heifers sold largely at $12.00 to 11.50 with a few to $10.00 and some of the plainer grades and heavier heifers sold down to $9.00 and under. Most of the cows brought $7.00 to $8.50 with a sprinkling to $9.75 and heavy kosher topped at $10.50. Cutters brought $6.00 to 6.50 and canners ranged down to $3.

The veal market advanced a half-dollar, topping at $12.50 to independents and $12.00 to jobbers. Bulls carried a strong undertone, owing to outside competition. Bolognas sold at $8.00 to 8.75 with commons down to $6.50.

Stocker and feeder supplies were the lightest of the season but demands were not very broad as inquiry from the country was not expected to be good. The market is strong to a quarter higher, compared with the close of last week.

No choice stock cattle have been offered and the bulk was made up of plain and medium steers, worth around $9.00 to 10.50. A few sales were made up to $11.50. Feeding cows brought $6.00 to 7.00 and heifers, $7.50 to 9.00. She stock was very scarce.

Hog receipts totaled 257,000 at the 11 leading markets Monday and Tuesday, a big decrease of 87,000 compared with a week ago but an increase of 73,000 over the corresponding period a year ago.

The hog market was active and mostly 10 to 15c higher on the opening day and sellers managed to work out a little strength on the following day. Order buyers did not take many hogs but were busy enough to give sellers courage to force strength out of the packers.

On the second session, the top was $8.40. Bulk of the butchers sold within 15c of the top; light hogs, $8.00 to 8.35 with some underweights at less money; a few mixed offerings, $8.15 to 8.30; smooth sows on the butcher order, $8.00 to 8.15; heavier packing grades, down to 7.75; stags, mostly around $7.75; killing pigs, $7.75 and under; feeding pigs, $7.75 and down to $6.00.

Sheep receipts amounted to 95,000 at the 11 leading markets on Monday and Tuesday, 15,000 short of a week ago. Buyers put out 10 to 15c to lamb prices, Monday, and another 10 to 25c was added on the following day. Ewes and feeding lambs held a firm basis.

On Tuesday, lambs topped at $13.75 with the best quoted higher. Ewes sold up to $6.75 with choice light weights quoted to $7.00. Feeding lambs brought $13.25 with a probable top at $13.50.

Band In Concert Here Thursday

Wayne high school band, directed by Prof. F. C. Reed, appeared in a concert and played for a dance last Thursday evening at the Community house, taking in $130. The sum of $65 was cleared and this will be used for needed band equipment. The band is in better shape than ever and the musicians presented a most enjoyable program.

Wooden Buildings Forbidden.
"We saw the only building to survive the Chicago fire of 1871. This is the tower of water works. Since that time the city has passed a law forbidding the building of wooden structures.
"Our group passed the old home of Todd Lincoln. We saw the Deering manufacturing plant. The Humboldt park is one of the few natural parks in the world. The grass and trees are native trees. One does not see any 'Keep off the grass signs' here. In this park is a statue of Humboldt. Nearby is a statue of Rice Bear who is believed to have been the originator of beer. We passed through the manufacturing district where the Expert lamp manufacturing company is located; also the stoves and steel mills. We saw the Bunte candy factories where all the famous Bunte candy is made.

"The curtain plant which is a tropical plant grows from the top of trees down into the water. We saw the coffee plant of Arabia and the sensitive tree which goes to sleep whenever it is touched. The plant comes from Brazil. We saw oranges growing, cocoa plants, banana trees, also castor oil plants. We saw a century plant and a fern which comes from the Philippines.

Woman Passes At Home In Greeley

Mrs. Frances Williamson McCutcheon of Greeley, Colo., mother of Mrs. Thomas Brockman of Greeley and formerly of Wayne, died Sunday, December 9 after an illness of two weeks, aged 90 years. Funeral services were conducted Tuesday of last week at the Brockman home in Greeley and interment was made in Lion Grove cemetery there.
Mrs. McCutcheon was active throughout her life. The last years of her life were never idle for she occupied her time knitting stockings for babies. In her old worn bible were names of nearly fifty babies wearing stockings she knitted, and near the end of the list was the name of Jackson Warner Kendall, Pasadena, her only great grandchild. Old and young in her neighborhood gathered at Mrs. McCutcheon's home to enjoy her friendship.

The result is a service in which the demands of sentiment are satisfied without sacrificing the necessary efficiency.

Water Transportation.
York Republican: The annual convention of the Nebraska manufacturers was held a few days ago and a set of resolutions adopted. The first resolution pledged support to Nebraska's highway program. The second commended the development of inland waterways. It takes no vision now to be an enthusiast for good roads—their necessity is now established. But it does take vision to conceive the benefits of water transportation and to realize that such a dream of development as the engineers have is within range of possibility and achievement. The editor of this newspaper is no seer. But he can close his eyes and perceive in mind's vision a time, not far distant, when the Missouri will be a highway of transportation, carrying on its surface the slow moving out-going cargoes of grain and bringing back the raw materials for the factories that are to spring up to make our industrial development. The manufacturers have seen this vision. It is coming and the next decade will witness a mighty change in the manner of transporting freight in this section of the country.

Corn Paper.
Lincoln Journal: A book printed on paper manufactured from corn stalks was exhibited in New York not long ago in which a great deal of interest was shown. The New Yorkers were amazed that paper could be made from corn stalks or wheat straw. The truth is that it is no harder to imagine paper being made from these materials than from great forest trees or from grimy old rags.
The farmer is interested in the book, too. But not for the same reason the New Yorker is. He is interested in the book because it interests the customer and because he hopes that there will be more of these books, millions of them. The only place where his imagination is not elastic enough is when he wants it to stretch over the amount of boks he wants over the people or the world to buy. This corn stalk paper interests the farmer because it is corn stalks like he is watching go down in his cornfield.
Factories in St. Joseph and Danville are manufacturing wall-board, paper and other products from the stalks and are reported to be making money. They are industries that the farmer would like to see flourish. The rate at which our consumption of products of every kind has been increasing for years indicates that this new source of material will not constitute a drag on the existing market. New and extended uses for such products will create

About Nebraska and Nebraskans

Will M. Maupin.

Gov. James E. Boyd, the first democrat to be elected governor of Nebraska, refused a re-nomination. Old line democrats—those who had refused to join with the Farmers' Alliance, or People's Independent party as it came to be known later—nominated J. Sterling Morton for governor. The Alliance-nominated Ex-Senator C. H. Van Wyck. The republicans nominated Lorenzo Crouse of Fort Calhoun. Back of the Crouse nomination appeared to be an effort to put a muffer on the Omaha World-Herald, which had given the Farmers' Alliance hearty support while also supporting the democratic ticket in the 1890 campaign. Mr. Crouse was the father-in-law of Gilbert M. Hitchcock, editor and publisher of the World-Herald.

Crouse and Van Wyck engaged in a series of joint debates, both refusing to permit Mr. Morton to "horn in." Crouse was elected, but after serving two years declined a re-nomination and retired to his suburban home in Fort Calhoun. Silas A. Holcomb of Broken Bow was nominated for governor by the populists, as the People Independent party had come to be known, and was endorsed by the democrats after a bitter fight in convention in Omaha. Holcomb was elected, the Omaha Bee, then edited by Edward Rosewater, bolting the republican nominee, Thomas J. Majors. Holcomb was re-elected in 1896, and later was elected to the supreme bench, where he served with distinction. After failing to be re-elected to the supreme bench Gov. Holcomb became a member of the state board of control which position he held at the time of his death.

During the administration of Gov. Crouse gross irregularities were charged against three of the state officials and articles of impeachment were adopted by the legislature. The evidence failed to sustain the charges and the impeachment proceedings were dismissed by the court and the officials restored to office. Gov. Holcomb's re-election in 1896 was contemporaneous with the meteoric rise of William J. Bryan and the "16 to 1" issue. That year Nebraska gave its electoral vote to a democratic candidate for the first time in its history.

During Gov. Holcomb's second term J. B. Meserve, elected treasurer on the demo-pop ticket, refused to accept the settlement offered by the retiring treasurer, Joseph S. Bartley. It was claimed that there was a huge deficit in permanent school fund caused by defalcation. Bartley was arrested, tried and convicted and sentenced to state prison for 20 years. He always claimed that he was the victim of treacherous friends who had either stolen or lost the state's money. After serving about six years Mr. Bartley was pardoned by Governor Savage, of which more in another letter.

This department prefers to chronicle golden wedding anniversaries, rather than the stories of the divorce courts. Mr. and Mrs. Frank Kremlack of Howland county celebrated their golden wedding on November 17. They were married in Saunders county, moving from there to Howard county in 1904. Thirteen children were born to them, eleven of them still living. Nine of the eleven were present at the celebration.

October 20, 1868, L. H. Badger, accompanied by his young wife landed in Fillmore county, and a day or two later Mr. Badger picked out a homestead north-west of Fairmont. There was nothing remarkable about that, as hundreds of Mr. Badger's army comrades were doing the same thing. The remarkable thing about it is that Mr. Badger and Mrs. Badger still live on the original homestead. There has been but one transfer of title—the patent issued by Uncle Sam to Mr. Badger. One of the first things Mr. Badger did after getting his homestead was to set out some cottonwood trees. A few weeks ago at a meeting of the D. A. R. in Geneva at which Mrs. Hinman, state regent presided, Mr. Badger presented her with a gavel made from the bark of one of the cottonwoods he had planted, that tree now being 19 feet in circumference five feet above the ground.

Nebraska's 1928 hay crop, wild, tame and alfalfa, approximated 6,000,000 tons. Hay it all been baled and loaded into freight cars, 10 tons to the car it would have required 600,000 cars to haul the crop. Coupled together the cars would make a train, 5,681 miles long. It is doubtful if there are enough boxcars in the nation to haul Nebraska's annual hay crop to market all at one time.

Loading 1,200 bushels to the car, it would require 54,166 cars to transport Nebraska's 1928 wheat crop to market if marketed all at once. That many cars would make a freight train 410 miles long.

Nebraska's 1928 corn crop was 200,000,000 bushels. If shipped to market all at once, 1,200 bushels to the car, it would require 166,667 cars, which would make a freight train 1,263 miles long.

To market Nebraska's three principal crops, hay, corn and wheat, all at one time would require enough freight cars to make a train 7,354 miles long. Cut into two trains of 3,677 miles each, and their cabooses would stick out into the Atlantic ocean at Boston while their locomotives would be sticking out over the Pacific ocean. Ain't Nebraska wonderful? And isn't Nebraska a great state?

In 1927 Nebraska hens sent to market 80,000,000 dozen eggs, not counting the eggs consumed on the farm and in town by the owners of the hens. That means more than 100,000,000 dozen eggs produced by Nebraska hens in 1927. There are 30 dozen eggs to the case, and it would require 3,333,333 cases to ship Nebraska's egg output to market all at once. With 480 cases to the car it would require 6,948 cars to haul those eggs to market all at once. Think of a train of eggs more than 50 miles long. Every Nebraskan should stand up for Nebraska as earnestly as hens lay for Nebraska!

Just one more. Nebraska cows produced 88,000,000 pounds of butter in 1927. A pound carton of butter is five inches long, all that butter were packed in pound cartons, and the cartons laid end to end, we would have a string of Nebraska butter 6,944 miles long. Stand up for Nebraska!
