Three Killed In Auto Crash

Madison and Norfolk Young Folks Are Fatally Injured When Car Hits Truck.

Five Others Hurt

Miss Leona LeRay, One of Three Killed, Lived Near Winside Few Years Ago.

Two young men were killed, one young woman was fatally injured and three companions sustained injuries when the car in which the young folks were driving collided with a truck, in which were two Madison men, at 12:30 Sunday morning on the Meridian highway near Norfolk. Miss Leona LeRay, 17, of Norfolk, formerly of Winside, Walter Dittberner, 23, and Carl Studenmaier, 21, both of Madison, were killed. Miss Doris Lamm, 16, and Miss Veryle Lamm, 19, both of Norfolk, and Arthur Dittberner of Madison, were injured.

The three girls, Norfolk students, were being brought to their Norfolk homes when the car crashed into a truck, occupied by Harry Delahoyde and William Hayes of Madison.

Dittberner, who was driving, was instantly killed when his skull was crushed. Studenmaier, who was riding in the front seat, suffered a broken neck and died immediately.

Miss LeRay, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas LeRay of Norfolk, formerly of Wayne county, sustained a fractured skull and died at 3 o'clock, without regaining consciousness. She is thought to have been crushed between the car and truck. The LeRay family lived one mile east of Winside about ten years ago. Mrs. LeRay is a sister of Mrs. Albert Bronzynski of Winside, and of August and William Dahm who moved from Winside to Norfolk.

Miss Doris Lamm suffered facial cuts and body bruises, and Miss Veryle Lamm, sustained a sprained ankle and bruises. The grandmother of these young women and the mother of Mrs. J. B. Kingston of Wayne, were cousins. Word received here the first of the week states that the young women are slowly improving.

Arthur Dittberner suffered minutes and the men in the Madison truck were only slightly injured.

The sedan in which the young folks rode crashed into the extended cab on the rear of the truck with such force that the entire left side of the automobile was torn off and the front door of the car was wedged onto the occupants out.

The young folks had been in Madison to attend a party in the evening and were returning home when the accident happened.

PESSIMIST AIDS ONE IN KEEPING FEET ON GROUND

WHEN one's feeling gets to running so high under pressure of optimism and home pride that he is likely to break his valves, he should go to a known crepe hanger who will virtually put a governing belt on him. He will be told that clouds are hanging threateningly low, that no one is making anything and it is not likely to make anything under present conditions which are bad and reasonably certain to grow worse. While people seem to be making a living, they are really not doing it. Sometimes they think they are going ahead, but they are fooling themselves and are really slipping and losing ground. All discouraging notes are carefully sounded and any hopeful signs are overlooked. So pessimists open and close the days and weeks and years. An audience like the one suggested will reduce joyful expectancy well below the explosion point. The crepe hanger's wee may be absorbed only in moderation to keep one's feet on the ground.

Road Projects Planned Here

Gravel Highway Will Connect Wayne With Winside, and Perhaps with Wakefield.

Other State Work

Grading and Graveling Plans Will Make Great Improvement in This Section.

Road improvements in the vicinity of Wayne are among the plans for this year, according to Engineer A. C. Tilley of Norfolk. The highway from Winside east to the corner three miles south of Wayne is to be graded and gravelled. Gravel will probably be placed between Wayne and Wakefield the coming year also. These two projects would connect Wayne with Wakefield and Winside by gravel. Gravel may be placed from Pender to Emerson. The eight-mile stretch will reduce travel and be gravelled by early spring.

The Newman Grove-Malaga road, which was graded more than a year ago, is a 1929 gravel project. The North First street road from Norfolk to the Wayne county line will be given a gravel coat this year.

From Jackson to Waterbury on highway No. 20, extensive grading and culvert work will be under way next spring. On the same highway from Allen to Laurel the roadbed will be graded and necessary culverts built. The road between Belden and Randolph is to be graded and culverts constructed.

On highway No. 20, from Randolph to the point where it intersects the Meridian highway four miles east of Osmond, extensive earthwork operations will be carried on. From Plainview to Brunswick, another highway No. 20 job, the roadbed is to be graded. Several culverts will be built on this project.

By the close of 1929, highway No. 20, from South Sioux City to where it intersects highway No. 8, north of Ewing, the west boundary of District Engineer A. C. Tilley's district, will be graded with the exception of about five miles.

Good Roads Across State.

As considerable improvement has been made on highway No. 20 in the north and northwest part of Nebraska in recent years, by the end of 1929, the road will have a good grade the entire length of the state.

Each year sees an increase in the traffic on highway No. 20, which as soon as funds are available, will probably be gravelled. A number of stretches have already been given gravel coatings. Highway No. 20 extends the entire length of the United States from Boston to the Pacific coast.

The new Elkhorn river bridge south of Norfolk will be completed this spring or early summer, it is planned.

STOCKHOLDERS OF HOTEL GRATIFIED AT IMPROVEMENT

STOCKHOLDERS of the Wayne Hotel Company, in their annual meeting Tuesday night, were interested in knowing that the cost of making the improvement had been kept well below the original estimate and that a sufficient amount of cash is on hand to wipe out existing debts and make a needed addition to the kitchen. The public will be interested in knowing that nearly every day the hotel is found with insufficient rooms to accommodate all who apply. It is now apparent more rooms should have been included in the original plan. The comfortable quarters and attractive furnishings, together with the painstaking management of E. O. Stratton, have given steadily growing popularity to the hotel. The improvement supplies a long-felt need, thanks to the united efforts of local people.

Suffers Injury At Farm Home

Mrs. Louie Koch, jr., Sustains Severe Fracture of Skull Wednesday Afternoon.

Struck By Horses

Theory Is That Mrs. Koch Was Thrown From Wagon and Trampled by Animals.

Mrs. Louie Koch, jr., sustained a severe fracture of the skull and broken ribs Wednesday afternoon about 2 o'clock when she was injured by horses at the farm home four and one-half miles southwest of Wayne. Little hopes for her recovery are held.

Mr. and Mrs. Koch were loading oats from the corner at their farm. Mrs. Koch was standing in the wagon distributing the oats as they were loaded. Mr. Koch left the corral for a minute to get some supplies. When he returned he found his wife unconscious on the ground. The left side of her skull was crushed from the ear to the back of the brain and she sustained two broken ribs. She has not regained consciousness since the accident and her condition is critical. It is thought that while Mrs. Koch was distributing oats in the wagon the horses moved forward and that she was thrown between the animals and trampled by them. Another theory is that one of the wagon wheels ran over her head.

Doctors have held consultation in an effort to aid the injured woman and a nurse has been secured, but she remains unconscious. The only child in the family, a daughter 7 years old, was in school when her mother was injured.

Use Refrigerators To Protect Films

Because the heat of the Mojave desert is so intense that it melted film, refrigerators had to be shipped into the Mojave Desert to store it during the filming of the outdoor scenes of "The Wind." Lillian Gish's new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer vehicle, to be shown at the Gay theatre January 13 and 14. The new picture is a vivid romance of the plains, directed by Victor Seastrom, with Lars Hanson, Montague Love, Dorothy Cummings, Edward Earle, William Orlamond and others, in a notable cast.

"The Wind" marks the first time Miss Gish, Mr. Hanson and Director Seastrom have worked together since their phenomenal success in "The Scarlet Letter." Although their present picture is a vast departure from the former in setting and plot, its theme is similarly powerful in its dealing with human emotions under strange and unusual circumstances.

Nearly Loses Three Fingers

For Publicity Department. York Republican: There is a belief that Governor-elect Weaver will take cognizance in his message of the need in Nebraska for the creation of a department of publicity. A great work could be done by a well organized department that could assemble data about the state's great material resources and put it forth in a way to command the pride of Nebraskans and the attention of citizens of other states and lands. There is a distressing dearth of strong state spirit in Nebraska. Idle complainers need to be silenced and citizens who sing off key should be made to hear the harmony in the great chorus of acclaim that should be rising in inspiring cadences from the fertile lands and prosperous cities and towns of this gem state of the middle west. If the department should accomplish nothing more than to give Nebraskans a survey of their state and win them to a feeling of optimism and pride, it would be worth its cost and more. But there is another work to be done, namely, the redemption of Nebraska from that state of littleness and inequality to which it has been consigned by outside critics and by comparison with the well "conceived" advertising and publicity programs of other states. Positive value can be added to Nebraska as a land and her commercial enterprises by substituting boosting for complaints and cheers for sneers.

The Bootlegger. Grand Rapids, (Minn.) Herald-Review: The nation is excited about the woman in Michigan who may go to jail for life for bootlegging. It is her fourth conviction and under laws of Michigan, recently enacted, the fourth conviction of a crime means life in the penitentiary. We have sympathy for the woman.

But we shall not talk about her. We talk too much about those who manufacture liquor and not enough about those who make bootleggers.

People violate the prohibition laws because someone will patronize them. As a matter of fact there is not much difference between the bootlegger and his customers. Both violate the laws. Neither cares for the law.

The bootlegger is worse in one respect because he violates the laws to make money. The purchaser is worse in another way because he is a hypocrite who moves in good society, talks about the sanctity of the law, cries for enforcement of laws made to protect his property and livelihood, and the bootlegger as morally, socially and financially below him. The woman in Michigan may be a martyr to a good cause. The case may set some people to thinking.

Hartington Editor Writes from Arizona

F. D. Stone who is sojourning at Phoenix, Arizona, for his health writes his Hartington Herald under date of December 22, in part as follows:

"Your correspondent took a walk down town the other evening just for the purpose of seeing what the city looked like at night, the week before Christmas. It was a brilliant sight. Beautifully adorned evergreen trees in front of many residences, chattering electrical decorations in the windows or on roofs of stores and an unusual holiday display of brightly illuminated hotels and other buildings and artistically dressed show windows to produce a wonderful effect. The city was flooded with light and was gay in its festive attire and streams of motor cars and pedestrians passing constantly through the streets added to the color of the scene.

"Instead of walking down Center street as we sometimes do, on this occasion, we went east a block and enjoyed the luxury of walking part way to the down town district on a dirt road. A small town man like your correspondent grows tired walking on pavement and enjoys getting his feet on the ground once in a while. Center street is the principal boulevard of the city and is always filled with rapidly moving automobiles so it is not very safe for a mere pedestrian to cross it except in the business section. Our walk took us past many fine residences, most of which were gayly decorated for Christmas, past the Gypsy Smith tabernacle, which was built in one day, and finally into the glare and noise of the busy business district, speeded up with holiday activity.

"The Gypsy Smith tabernacle, a monster wooden structure which covers a full half block in the heart of the city, was erected in a few hours one day this week by a force of 300 or more volunteer workers under the direction of 50 expert carpenters. The framework of the building had been put up previously and Tuesday morning the army of volunteers was on the job at 7 o'clock and had it completed by supper time even including the platform and seats. It was the biggest bunch of men we ever saw working on one job and the noise of 300 or more hammers and saws all going at one time was fairly deafening. "The tabernacle, in which the Gypsy Smith evangelistic meetings will be held, has a large number of doors and windows on all sides and it will seat thousands of people. Extensive plans are being made by all the evangelical churches for the campaign and a choir of several hundred voices will sing. Personal workers are being enlisted from all the cooperating congregations and the largest results from the evangelist's visit to the city are expected. A feature of the building of the tabernacle was the serving of a real turkey dinner to the army of workers and the women of the churches.

"Your correspondent enjoyed a view of the night life of the city on this walk although it afforded none of the wild and affording scenes which O. O. McIntyre usually runs across in his strolls in New York City. Perhaps, he didn't look in the right places, but life in this city at night all seemed innocent enough to the writer. He visited the various theatres, where famous stars were appearing on the screen and chorus girls were singing and dancing; looked in at the Frolic, where many couples were dancing to the music of a jazz orchestra; jostled with the crowds in the streets; passed Lynwood Inn, a rather fashionable dinner and dancing resort, and glimpsed various of the city's activities in the glare of the electric lights. It was an interesting experience, your correspondent returning home about 10 o'clock and, as McIntyre would conclude the narrative, "so to bed."

"The following day the writer took another walk in the afternoon in another part of the city, this time going west instead of east and seeing a number of places of interest, some of which he had never seen before. He passed the Union high school building, which is an imposing structure and in the rear of which were parked hundreds of bicycles; walked down Seventh street, lined on both sides with pretty and comfortable homes; saw a coal and wood yard, where there were hundreds of cords of mesquite wood bought from the Indians piled up, a brickyard, a monument works and the American Legion building; visited the post office and stood in a long line at the stamp window and returned home by another street, passing Trinity Cathedral, a drug store, a grocery store, a market, a barber shop, etc., a vacant lot where ground is being broken for a new Latter Day Saints church and a new city district which a large gang of men is at work with excavating machines paving and digging ditches for water and sewer."

Landmark Burns At West Point

West Point, Neb., Jan 3—The West Point mill, a landmark here, was destroyed by fire late today. Chris Jensen, one of the mill operators, said the day's run had been finished when he smelled the smoke and upon investigating found the upper part of the building in flames.

The structure was erected in 1875 and, for a time, was operated as a paper mill by John D. Neigh, founder of West Point.

Balsar Werner, of Norfolk, owned the mill.

THE KNOT-HOLE

No. 32 Wayne, Neb., Thursday, January 10, 1929. Vol. 2

Rosy cheeks, they say, are a sign of health. If that's the case, we saw a girl yesterday who was healthier on one side than she was on the other.

Customers who have not yet obtained one of our calendars may procure the same by calling at our office.

Speaking of speed, we read this morning about a driver who ran so fast out of the melon patch that he found buckshot next day in the soles of his feet.

Mrs. Hoover, we suppose, is already commencing to dread moving day the first of March.

We notice that at a meeting in Chicago a few days ago they passed a resolution to investigate how many professors are in the employ of the corporations. In order to be consistent, why didn't they also pass one to find out how many are in the employ of the Third Internationale of Moscow?

When most of us meet folks dressed up, all we need is a clothes brush.

For good service, a constant and plentiful supply of high quality coal, call us, our telephone number is 147.

A man in this town bought a stove pipe the other day and when he got it home, it wouldn't fit. The hole in the range was oval and the pipe was perfectly round. So he took the pipe back to the store and asked for an oval shaped pipe. The clerk took the pipe in his two hands, gently squeezed the sides to make them oval, and said "Try that." And now the best said about the episode, the better it

The average person knows very little about coal values. Many buy on price alone. The price per ton does not really mean so much. The deciding factor should be, how much it costs to heat the home during the entire winter. Figured on this basis, $14.50 coal will often cost less during the entire winter than will $10.00 coal. However, we have a coal called Wampum Lump at $10.00 that is a crackin' good one and no mistake.

It has been suggested that Wayne merchants join hands in holding a big style show, setting forth the newest and best to be had in the world's markets. It would give animation and stimulus to Wayne as a market center.

A 15-year-old boy, convicted of robbing the mails, was operated on in a Chicago hospital for removal of an abscess from his brain, and results will be watched with interest to see if resort to surgery corrects tendencies to crime. In time criminals may be sent to hospitals for operations rather than to jail for temporary restraint.

Mussolini has caught the spirit of agricultural awakening. He proposes long strides for tillers of the soil in Italy and looks to the rural communities of that country for the best in substantial citizenship. He suggests that Hoover—the door of big things the world over in the past—will show constructive leadership for American agriculture.

Broken Bow opened its new hotel last week and the Custer County Chief celebrated the occasion by issuing an eighteen-page edition. People of Broken Bow joined hands in building a hotel as Wayne people combined funds and efforts in providing a similar improvement here. Modern hotel quarters and service are demanded and must be supplied if a town is to go ahead.

One faculty which people are able to exercise without preliminary schooling, is that of adjustment of habits to increased earnings. A man or woman, old or young, experienced or slow, will respond to possibilities for increasing expenditures invited by enlarged income like a shot out of a gun or like exploding dynamite. But when it comes to revising one's habits downward to live within shrunken receipts, the operation is painful to contemplate and hard to endure.

Albert Payson Terhune says the United States owes its development and success to poverty. Poverty inspired best types of people to come here from Europe. They had the ambition to get away from poverty of Europe and the qualities of mind and muscle to undertake tasks in a new world. We owe our inventions and progress along all lines to necessities arising from poverty in this country.

FANATICS. Religious fanatics are becoming fewer as thought deepens and the world progresses. They have usually meant well and perhaps have done some good in the world, though often through faulty judgment and misguided zeal, they have done themselves and others much harm. A religious fanatic adopts or grows into a narrow belief and thinks that all who disagree with him are headed for a lake of fire and brimstone which is kept going under the supervision of a competent devil. To a fanatic it matters little how spiritually-minded one may be, or how much he may contribute to human happiness, or how nearly he comes to observing the Golden Rule. If he does not swallow literal interpretation of the scriptures and subscribe to the impossible tenets of a peculiar cult, he is spurned as lost. Lofty thoughts, high purposes and generous deeds would seem to count for naught in comparison with belief in a personal devil or a superheated abode for so-called sinners. We believe more people are imbued with the genuine spirit of Christianity than ever before. More people are practicing the spirit of religion than ever before. But fewer draw the lines around narrow belief. Fewer figure that heaven is a sparsely settled locality of solemn men, the monotony broken only by circumambient harp music, and in the next room by the muffled agonies of the damned. People have become more logical in contemplating Christian essentials and in calculating man's destiny. They are more tolerant and less inclined to stress dogmas above practice. Therefore, religious fanatics who have of late made themselves miserable without doing any good, are becoming fewer and fewer.

Need and the genius and effort of the ambitious, and the result is large achievement and permanent headway.
 Young people are more sensitive than their elders sometimes suppose, but when a boy or girl suicides because of parental reprimand, we are led to wonder what may be safely done to keep children in check and traveling along proper courses. It is doubtless true that either too much restraint or too much license is injurious and that the middle course is the wisest and most helpful one to follow, but society cannot avoid all restrictions in order to insure against possible self-destruction and expect to rear stalwart and useful men and women.

Governor Weaver's suggestion that a tax be placed on luxuries to raise funds with which to bolster up the guaranty fund, aroused among members of the legislature a question as to classifying luxuries. Since most things that used to be considered luxuries are now deemed necessities, the problem of lighting on the ones that are useless beyond indulging extravagant whims is regarded extremely difficult to solve. However, some one proposes a tax on cigars. Also a tax on rouge would help raise needed funds and at the same time might reduce the quantity of facial surfacer used to about the right proportion. A tax on cigars would not reduce consumption and therefore would contribute a large sum to the purpose in mind. If there remain any luxuries, cigars and rouge would doubtless be so classified, and men would stand the burden of the former and women that of the latter.

Acknowledging receipt of a copy of the mid-winter edition of the Los Angeles Times, the Norfolk Daily News, while conceding superiority of climate in southern California, makes this concluding editorial comment touching comparative resources and opportunities: "The southern ten counties of that state have a little more than 3,000,000 population, about twice that of Nebraska. Oranges are the chief food crop providing about one-third the farm income. Yet the value of the orange crop is only $86,309,771, a little more than the combined output of Nebraska cows and hens still considered something of a side issue with most Nebraska farmers. The entire valuation of southern California food crops, which require a third of a newspaper column to enumerate, is about $255,984,268, about half the value of Nebraska's combined livestock and grain production. California gives the nation its grape fruit, oranges, grapes and cantaloupes, but Nebraska provides the pork chops and the beef steak, the potatoes and the bread. And as far as agricultural opportunities go, we would rather take our chances with the substantial than with the trimmings. We love your fruit salad and your breakfast appetizers, California, but we admit a strong prejudice in favor of pork chops and beef steak as the foundations of agricultural prosperity."

Business. Sioux City Journal: Nineteen twenty-nine business has started the year under auspices especially favorable. The outlook is good, better than for some years. All signs point to a good year. There has been improvement all along the line. Industry, merchandising, agriculture, employment and finance all have made gains in a way that gives promise of continued and increased prosperity. One of the most favorable indications of an active year in business is the present excellent condition of industry. Production in 1928 was heavy, but consumption kept pace with it. The result today is that inventories are neither burdensome nor discouraging. Stocks are reported actually to be inadequate in some lines, so

THE GUARANTY.
 Meeting obligations incident to the bank guaranty fund is a big problem before the state legislature. Retiring and incoming governors considered the question in late messages to the legislature, and each expressed the opinion that some way should be figured out to pay losses due to failed banks. Ex-Governor Mullen suggested that the law was weak in making no provision to restrict the granting of bank charters or to accumulate an emergency fund. He said losses should be paid before considering any proposition to repeal the law. Governor Weaver called attention to the platforms of the two major parties in opposition to repeal of the bank guaranty law. The governor pointed out that while the state was not legally required to pay unsatisfied obligations, it was morally bound to do so. Creating and administering the law, he said the responsibility belonged to the state. He said people were permitted to believe the law was a state guaranty, and that failure to solve the problem would result in injury to the entire banking system of Nebraska as well as to all other lines of business. Many questions involved will be threshed out in the banking problem is given consideration in the course of solution by the state legislature. It is of vital importance to the state, and the wisest counsel, inspired by sound principles, should lend assistance.

There will be an immediate demand for capacity production to keep a supply of goods on the market. Another thing to which economists are calling attention is that various corporations, enjoying a good year, accumulated cash and liquid assets in larger amount than they ordinarily do. This fortifies them for any expansion that is justified. Ready capital in the hands of industrialists themselves makes mobilization of factory elements easy of accomplishment and without loss of time. Today, beyond a doubt, industry has reached the highest peak known in history in point of efficiency. American manufacturers can meet any demand that possibly could be made for greater production. Meanwhile export trade is increasing, which reasonably could exert pressure for increased production of goods for the foreign markets. Freight car loadings have fallen off as was expected. The total for the last week reported was under 900,000, but the reduction is both normal and seasonal. Big business has been engaged in taking inventories and in planning the work for the first quarter of the new year. It was natural that a slack season should come at this time. This is offset materially by recognition of the fact that the business momentum at the end of the old year was sufficiently heavy to carry far into 1929.

Dun's review calls attention to the "sustained vigor" of business as the old year ended and the new one begun. Such was not the case a year ago. Business had to struggle to make headway, and that lasted for several months before the upturn began. A more promising outlook is had today, and there is no reason to suspect that the optimistic predictions will not be borne out.

American Legion Post In Session
 American Legion post met Wednesday of last week in regular business session. Nothing of importance was transacted. The post meets the first and third Wednesdays of each month now.

Business success falls to the "ad-venturous." Wall Street Journal.

Dan V. Stephens Talks On Banking

Lincoln, Neb., Jan. 9.—The state banks of Nebraska do not intend to pay the guaranty fund deficit, declared Dan V. Stephens, Fremont banker, in an address yesterday before the Nebraska State Historical society here.
 Mr. Stephens contended that the deficit was an obligation for the state, since the state passed the guaranty law over the protests of the bankers, chartered 400 new banks, most of which were not needed, resulting in an over-banked condition, and not morally obligated because they did not contract the debts and have already paid an enormous premium for the benefits they received from operating under the guaranty law.

Would Wipe Out Capital
 The banks, he said, had already paid into the guaranty fund an amount almost equal to their capital and some banks have paid more than their capital. The present deficit, he continued, would amount to between $15,000,000 and $19,000,000, payment of the deficit would wipe out the capital of state banks and wreck the state banking system, he continued.
 Mr. Stephens pointed out that the average rate of local tax on a farm valued at $200 an acre is about $1.25 an acre. At that rate, he said, it would take 160 years before the farmer would pay taxes enough to equal the price of his land.

"Assuming," he continued, "that the banks were going to pay the deficit, and that is added to the $16,000,000 they have already paid, it would make a total of $36,000,000, and since this total debt has been contracted in seven years, it would mean that the entire capital investment in the banks would be wiped out about every four years in taxes. If this is not confiscatory can any one conceive of any tax that would be confiscatory? If the state government can take such a tax from its banks, then there is no protection to invested capital whatsoever."
Holds Banks Not Obligated
 "It is useless to talk about the banks paying the obligation. It is not their obligation to the extent that those who represent the banks, are citizens of the state and will help to bear their share of the burden, should the state decide to liquidate the debt. The bankers of Nebraska have refused to take any part in the controversy as to whether the state shall pay this deficit or not for the reason that they would immediately be charged with trying to saddle their own alleged obligations upon the people of the state, but they do not intend to pay this deficit and they have enough confidence in the fair-minded men, who will pass upon this subject in the legislature, to believe that their rights in this particular will be safeguarded."

Mr. Stephens commended Governor Weaver's plan for a commission to administer the banking laws and declared the proper supervision to bring banking losses to the minimum was the important matter now.

"Too much attention," he said, "has been given entirely to the guaranty law and its benefits. As a matter of fact, the people need not concern themselves in the least about a guaranty law if they will see to it that the banking department is established that will prevent bank failures in the future."

Market Report.

Furnished by Steele, Siman & Co., Sioux City Stock Yard.
 (Furnished by Steele Siman Co.)
 Sioux City Stock Yards, Jan. 10—All divisions of the live, stock trade are starting out the new year with a comparatively good undertone. Advances were scored the first week and strength has been noted in some departments this week, especially on sheep.

Cattle receipts totaled 101,000 at the 11 leading markets the first two days this week, 32,000 more than a week ago. Last week's receipts were short, owing to the semi-holiday. Tuesday, New Year's day.
 Beef steers and yearlings show little change compared with the close of last year. The market advanced the fore part of last week and slipped off again at the close. Prices have been maintained on about a steady basis this week. Yearlings have been in better demand than heavy steers.

The feature of the trade was the sale of a load of yearlings, that had been fed a long time, at $16.75, the highest price in a month. A few sales ranged down to $13.50 with a number of loads at $12.00, $13.50 and bulk at $10.50 to $12.50 with some plainer warmups down to $9.50 and under.

Yearling heifers moved at firm prices, selling largely at $10.00 to $11.50 with a few loads to $12.15 and odd lots to $13.50. Plainer light weights and heavier heifers sold down to $9.00 and under. A few cows brought $9.00 to $10.50 with the bulk at $7.50 to $9.00 and plainer lots sold under $7.00. Cannons and cutters sold mostly at $5.50 to $6.25 with some old basis. Good and choice light shells down to $5.00.

The veal market held a firm weights brought $13.00 at $13.50 with fair light and good heavies at $10.00 to $12.00. Bulls carried a strong undertone. Heavy grades sold at $8.75 to $9.50 with medium bolognas at $8.25 to $8.75.
 Stockers and feeders were received in fairly liberal numbers but demands were broad enough to absorb the offerings at about steady prices. Spots of strength and weakness were noted with the better grades receiving the best attention.
 Bulk of the stock cattle sold at $8.50 to $10.50 with a number of loads at $10.50 to $11.50 and a few lots down to $8.50 and under. Feeding cows brought $6.00 to $7.25 and heifers, $8.00 to $9.50.

Hog receipts amounted to 282,000 at the 11 leading markets on Monday and Tuesday, 74,000 more than the same days last week and about the same as the number received the corresponding period a year ago.
 The hog market advanced to the highest level of the season last week. Shippers took a big share of the hogs last week but have not been so active this week. Prices slipped back a notch on Monday and further weakness was noted on the second session. The trade was very slow both days with sellers fighting the decline.
 On Tuesday, the top was $8.65. Bulk of the lights and butchers of all weights sold at $8.50 to $8.65 and sows at $8.00 to $8.25. Stags brought $7.25 to $7.75.

 The pig market advanced a quarter, topping at $8.50 causing light butcher hogs to sell up with the heavier weights.
 The sheep market advanced more than $1.00 the first week of the year and nearly that much more was added the first two days this week to place the market on the highest level since June.
 On Tuesday, lambs topped at $16.75 and ewes at $9.00. Western feeding lambs were quoted to $15.25.

Present Comedy Here Next Week

"Aunt Lucia," one of the better known comedies played by amateur companies during the last two or three years, will be presented at the Wayne Community house Thursday and Friday evenings, January 17 and 18, under auspices of the Wayne Professional and Business Woman's club. Miss Georgia Seabury, former student at the Wayne State Teachers College, is directing the production.

According to reports from towns where "Aunt Lucia" has been played, it is one of the cleanest and liveliest comedies on the road. It has been played all through the middle west with fine results. The many who have seen it, proclaim it a home-talent play well worth seeing.

The play proper deals with the story of the homecoming of Bula Bula college. The show takes place in the drawing room of a fraternity house. The school is anxiously awaiting the arrival of Lucia Wakefield, worth fifty million dollars, and is expecting her to give the college a large amount of money to build a football stadium.

Jerry Watson, played by Henry Ley, is a college boy with the help of George, played by Donald Mason, he dresses himself as an old lady for the entertainment of his fellow fraternity members. Prof. Gaddis, played by Leslie Rundell, and Dean Howard, played by Mrs. Clyde Oman, mistake him for Lucia Wakefield. Once in this dilemma it is impossible for him to explain without getting in bad so he goes through the story masquerading as Lucia Wakefield, when in reality he is Jerry Watson.

The play is a rollicking comedy with many funny situations and lines. Prof. Gaddis and Supt. T. Hook, as Collins, and Prof. G. W. Costerman, as the Butter and Egg man, all fall in love with the fake Lucia Wakefield and propose to marry her. Their proposal scenes are most amusing. Jerry makes love to the girls under the disguise of being an old lady. Then there is the president, Dr. Seamore, and his wife, played by L. R. Shreve and Mrs. S. A. Lutgen. Dean Howard, the old maid school teacher, has been in love with old Gaddis for over thirty years and finally wins him. In the end, the real Lucia Wakefield sends a million dollars to build the football stadium and Jerry is unmasked before the entire college. After promising never to do the like again he avoids being expelled from school because the professor is happy in the thought of marrying Dean Howard after thirty years of courtship.

In addition to the play proper, which consists of fourteen characters, there will be a baby pageant of 100 children, aged from 5 to 7 years, featuring a special dramatic reader. This part of the show has always been one of the best in the entertainment.

Included in the headlines are the flapper chorus in which local business men and farmers are costumed to represent college girls, portraying collegiate femininity all the way from Cleopatra, the first flapper, down to Clara Bow, Hard Hearted Hannah and Tillie the Toiler.

Dressed as young college boys, the Bula Bula glee club outshines even itself. Other features will be special numbers of a girls' chorus. Practices are continuing each day and the entertainment is rounding into shape well.

-say those who have seen the Outstanding Chevrolet of Chevrolet History of Chevrolet History -a fix in the price range of the four!

The Outstanding Chevrolet of Chevrolet History has now been seen and inspected by millions of people in every section of America—and everywhere it has been enthusiastically hailed as exceeding all expectations.

Everyone anticipated that Chevrolet would produce a remarkable automobile—but no one expected such a sensational six-cylinder motor... such marvelous comfort... such luxurious Fisher bodies... and a fuel-economy of better than 20 miles to the gallon! And no one believed that it would be possible to produce such a car in the price range of the four!

If you have not already made a personal inspection of the new Chevrolet, we urge you to do so at your earliest convenience. We are now displaying these beautiful new models—and we cordially invite you to call.

Read what these leading automobile editors said after seeing and riding in the new Chevrolet Six—

"In appearance, performance and mechanical nicety the new Chevrolet Six presents actual values far beyond its price range."
—Hazen Conklin
New York World

"Aside from beauty in body lines and attractiveness in finish, the astounding feature of the new Chevrolet Six is its powerful and flexible motor. One will have to go far to equal the high performance of this new Chevrolet in general road and traffic use."
—Leon J. Pinkston
San Francisco Chronicle

"The new Chevrolet is a triumph for volume production. The car at its price is one of the greatest achievements ever recorded in the automobile industry. Its beauty is a treat; its riding comfort a new delight and its performance a real sensation."
—Ray Priest
Detroit Times

"St. Louis motordom is tremendously enthused over the new Chevrolet Six. Personally I have never seen the public so interested in a new car. The factory should be congratulated on the truly monumental engineering feat it has accomplished."

Individuality Marks New Daytime Styles

HARRIET PICKS A GROUP OF FOUR FASHIONABLE MISSES AT AFTERNOON PARTY AND POINTS OUT WIDE DIFFERENCES IN THEIR COSTUMES

BY HARRIET

IT is difficult to imagine a time when a greater opportunity than at the present time to be original in their dress.

The extreme individuality of nice dressy daytime frocks is forcibly illustrated at any gathering of well-dressed young women at an afternoon function. A group of a dozen will likely contain no two materials of the same kind, no two colors alike and different styles of trimming.

This opportunity for originality, which the present season offers, makes the problem of being well-dressed decidedly easier—provided the simple elementary rules of good taste are observed.

Extreme Variety Shown

Watching a smart gathering the other day, I picked a group of four girls, all of whom had good taste in the matter of clothes. They are pictured here. You will notice the extreme variety which marks their costumes. A check shows that there is one transparent velvet in the group, one embroidered georgette and velvet, one Rodier cloth and one flat crepe.

The necklines are all different. The sleeve treatment, in each case, is also different. Three skirts are circular and one is straight, with side kick pleats under a long overblouse.

Taking the costumes up in order, left to right, we have, first, a mid-night blue transparent velvet frock with a deep yoke of ecru lace. Little lace trim is visible at the outer edge of the long tight sleeves. This frock has a double tiered skirt. A velvet turban adds the final bit of chic to the costume.

Green Aply Used

Next in line is a charming green frock with dark green velvet circular skirt and a white collar. A blouse of plain red, is edged in blue and has a little flat crepe in old gold and darker green. The neckline is simple and round, edged in old gold. The green velvet turban has a green cockade on the side.

The variety which marks this winter's chic afternoon frocks is illustrated by this group of well-dressed young ladies. Each frock differs widely from the other. Harriet saw them at a smart afternoon function recently and describes the costumes in detail in the accompanying article.

The Rodier cloth costume is a gorgeous red and beige affair. The red background is of a purplish cast. An all-over floral design in lime pattern is worked out in beige and tan. The tunic is quite simple. A patterned Vaclak narrow cuffs and lower edging. The skirt of plain red, is edged in blue and has a little flat crepe

Finally, the little flat crepe frock is of that wondrously popular shade, Patou blue, which is proving almost as staple as navy blue. Its skirt is circular. A girle ties in a front bow below the waistline, after pulling the neckline snugly. The upper portion is bloused, with a cape collar that has long tie-ends that are knotted for fashion and slipped through one of the new kerchief loops of brilliants.

The turban topping this costume is of woven silk and velvet, both matching the Patou blue of the frock.

New Lines Are Boon to Home Sewers

VARIETY OF SEASON'S STYLES PERMITS CLEVER WOMEN TO COPY THEM EASILY—HARRIET LISTS IMPORTANT STYLE POINTS THIS WEEK

BY HARRIET

THE woman who is clever with a needle could have received nothing more appropriate for Christmas than, yard goods for, now that fashions have become so diversified, women have more opportunity than ever before to make stylish costumes at home.

Of course, the yard goods needn't have been a Christmas gift! It is just as easy for the clever woman to pick up bargains at the January sales and make them into extremely original things for herself and family.

This week's article might appropriately be a summary, therefore, of style points from New York and Paris. First, there's flare in the air, whether it be in France or America. Coats, frocks, slips and even night gowns have flare in them, usually below a tight hipline.

Fullness Is Good

Circular skirts and gored skirts have preference over straight ones. But godets or inserts of pleats below a fitted hip-yoke of some distinctive shape are equally good.

Rear fullness is coming into vogue more and more. The all-round pleated skirt and the skirt with circular back are both seen. Gored skirts make much of their gorges by fancy seaming that emphasizes them.

Softening lines, lingerie touches, a bow here and there and a combination of materials for trimming are all new points of chic.

Velvet Is Youthful

Take the spring coat from Leone, pictured at the left, for instance. It is made of black velvet and trimmed with ermine. Its fullness comes below the hipline, in the form of a whole circular flounce, put on in points. And inside it, little flaring ermine collar and bow tie of the velvet makes the changing bow to add a youthful touch, thereby becoming to most young women.

This coat shows the preference for the slightly princess lines that spring will choose. It shows the skirt's fullness and gives more than a hint that the best coats will have some original touch at the collar.

Skirt Is Intricate

For a street dress or an admit-

Harriet describes these costumes in the accompanying article. The black velvet spring coat (left) is trimmed with ermine and indicates that princess' lines will return. The rayon asperic frock (inset, right) features an intricately cut skirt and bodice.

able ottie dress, the rayon asperic frock in soft light green (inset, right) points which way the style winds blow. A new brock today has an intricately cut bodice and skirt. This has a deep yoke effect both front and back, with a charming little matching bow tie of silk. The skirt has a double box pleat both front and back, let in at the point of the skirt's yoke.

Tiered frocks are excellent, usually with the tiers slightly circular or pleated. The uneven hem-

The People's Business. Lincoln Journal: Two interesting and important messages were read to the state legislature Thursday afternoon by the retiring Governor and his successor in office. Their careful and close reading is commended to every citizen who desires to be informed about his own state government.

Their sharp differences upon the code system of government tended to give to the occasion the flavor of a joint debate. Governor McMullen entered office rather indifferent to the code. He leaves it thoroughly sold on it as the one best system for securing business efficiency and a dollar's worth of services for each dollar of tax money spent.

Both governors took the positive stand that because of the loosely drawn plan of bank guaranty and the fact that the state has undertaken to license, examine and supervise the state banks, a moral responsibility rests on the state to pay at least a part of the losses resulting from the experiment.

Apparently a one cent increase in the gasoline tax is on a fair way to be adopted, with the uncertain detail only of where the revenues from it shall be expended.

The farm-to-elevator road system is favored by both. Other matters of prime importance are discussed in the two messages. They are able written, and stress most the four big issues before the legislature, banking, taxation, good roads and the code.

In the final analysis the kind of government a people enjoy depends upon the character, ability and interest of those in places of responsibility. Governor Weaver will meet this test, and he enters office with the goodwill and support of the great body of citizens.

Female "Ponzi" Fleeces French Poor By Boasting of "American Methods"

DOING business "a l'americaine" by a female financial wizard has caused the greatest stock pushing swindle in the history of France. Many thousands of creditors, the majority humble folk, have been ruined and fantastic figures of hundreds of millions of francs are quoted as the amount involved.

Mme. Marthe Hanau, a dominating woman with a genius for juggling figures and an insatiable love of luxury, is the author and prime mover of frauds involving six companies and two newspapers, chiefly the Gazette du France, which was established in 1925 by her for "the protection of French currency and world peace."

Several other arrests have been made, including that of Lazare Bloch, Mme. Hanau's former husband and later business partner. Born in Poverty A few years ago Mme. Hanau, or "Madame la Presidente," as she was called when she became the great financier, lived in a single room and counted her fortune in sous, and yet she was arrested in a sumptuous apartment in a fashionable residential district.

Losses conservatively estimated at $8,000,000 have been sustained by French investors who dealt with Mme. Marthe Hanau (above). She told her victims that "American methods" enabled her to pay as high as 40 per cent interest on their money.

trast with his forceful wife, tried various little enterprises on his own, but always flopped. In 1929 Mme. Hanau began to hit her stride and one of her first acts was to divorce her husband and he became a silent business partner. But as the piglet learn more and more of the gigantic swindle they believe that the husband didn't have much of an idea what it was all about.

New Simplicity Is Difficult to Achieve

HARRIET WARNS AGAINST ASSUMING THAT MODERN FROCKS CAN BE COPIED EASILY BECAUSE THEY LOOK SIMPLE—THERE'S A TRICK TO IT!

BY HARRIET THERE'S feminine deceptiveness in present styles. They look naive, in the simplicity of their curves and trimmings. But, beware of that very simplicity when trying to copy a style seen at a distance!

Straight Lines Passe The absence of straight lines in one rule everyone who would be smart must follow. The marking of waistlines is another that is well to watch. Swathed hips are the rule rather than the exception, and a bodice that suggests contours is correct now.

Skirt Is Simple There is real originality in the way this frock is cut. Its skirt is simple, a circular skirt that puts its straight length in front, making an inverted box pleat for greater fullness at the skirt's dip.

Right: A Poiret model in gray jersey de laine. It's most distinctive feature, probably, is that it buttons up the back. Above: afternoon frock of red georgette. Harriet describes both in detail this week.
