person and she will probably carry out her intention. When this western girl went to New York City and made her debut before a Madison Square audience, she was little known; but she was acclaimed by the critics and her success is attested by the fact that she has earned $500,000 during her short career as a singer. Perhaps, she has a hunch that farming is going to be more profitable in the future than it has been during the past few years, but she can scarcely earn as large a sum in the same length of time. For Less Work. York Republican: The railway trainmen have started a national campaign for a six hour day. By getting a reduction in the number of hours of work, the Brotherhoods hope to get more men employed. In recent years the services of thousands of railroad men have been dispensed with. The railroad industry put more efficient operating plans to use, built larger engines to haul longer trains, cut down power by reducing track grades, and utilized every modern means that could be devised for reducing operating costs. The result was the laying off of thousands of men who naturally want to get back on. But if the six hour day should be granted, what would happen? The railroads are now plagued by bus and truck and plane transportation. They have met the present competition by masterfully reducing expenses. A six hour day trainmen would result in one of two things—either bankrupted railroad companies or another era of greater improvements to again reduce the use of man power. Then the whole situation would arrive again at the place it is today. A big question is at issue here. It is not likely that the American people are ready yet for a six hour day even if the economic needs of a group seem to demand it. Card of Thanks. We wish to express sincere thanks to all who assisted during the illness and the time of the death of our mother and grandmother. Also, we thank the Evangelical Lutheran Aid and others who sent flowers, P. F. Petersen, Mrs. Johanna-Lutt, Mrs. D. H. Albers and Mrs. Oscar Liedtke.

The need of reaching the innermost car part requiring grease is met by this new equipment. The new device gently lifts a car into the air and permits easy access to all parts. Then grease is forced in a way that is complete and leaves no doubt. Skilled workmen do this job, and no car entrusted to them escapes treatment that is needed. And utmost care is exercised to keep from greasing the steering wheel, upholstered seats and other parts that do not require grease. Bring in your automobiles and trucks and let us give them the thorough greasing they need to insure against damage on long or short trips. Advice: A Priceless Treasure. We treasure our reputation more highly than anything we possess. This reputation was handed down from father to son and it is based upon years of faithful service to those who needed service most. Today we are better able to serve than ever before, for the profession has progressed greatly since the days of our forefathers. Modern methods and equipment have supplanted those which were less efficient. And we have constantly kept abreast of the times. But our service is more personal — more human than ever. Each one of the many details which we handle are taken care of conscientiously. The friendly touch of brotherly love is always present. Sentiment is invariably present in our work. The young man who advanced from dean of Yale University law school to president of the University of Chicago at the age of 30, has made a unique record as a scholar and executive in a short time. He ought to be an inspiration to the youth of the land.

May came in with a blast from the north pole, which is not our idea of suitable weather for the introduction of this month. However, the weather is not always agreeable to people's judgment, about which no one is consulted and no one is permitted to make blueprints or plans.

Annual Music week starts next Monday, and during succeeding days music is to be given special emphasis. Music has a wonderful influence, and lovers of good music are made better by it. In times of depression or danger, people are buoyed and strengthened by vocal or instrumental melody.

Representatives of seven middle-western states met in Kansas City recently to protest against a proposed increase in freight rates on grain and grain products which, as estimated, would cost farmers in the neighborhood of $13,000,000. Granting request for higher rates would hasten development of water navigation and encourage increased use of motor trucks. One relief farmers are believed to need to put agriculture on a parity with other industries is cheaper transportation, and increased rates would seem to be the wrong kind of revision. If transportation companies can make the grade with present rates, they ought to stick to them.

Bruce Barton stresses the need of more workers with self-starters—people who go after jobs instead of waiting for jobs to come to them. He mentions a colored man who, noticing a fence out of repair, asked the privilege of fixing it, explaining that he was a carpenter. He mentions a plumber who made the heads of the residential fire-fight to see if water systems were working, and he kept busy making repairs. Says Barton: "The world is full of folks these days who are willing enough if work is brought their way; but here and

There is some chance for a drunken automobile driver to survive, but no possible escape for drunken air pilots. An article in a current magazine explains that little sleep is necessary if one is thoroughly interested in his work. Edison worked steeped four hours out of every twenty-four, is quoted as saying that the man who sleeps too long is continually oppressed by lassitude. But the article says "it is easier to revolutionize a man's diet, his philosophy, his manner of dress and his ideas of political economy than to convince him that good health is compatible with less than eight hours of sleep each night."

Members of the legislature thought hard all winter over the bank guaranty law and its deficit, and it is not surprising that results did not justify everybody's expectations. Bankers who advised the legislature did not agree, and if they could arrive at one practical conclusion, how could legislative members likely little familiar with banking be expected to do so? The least that could be done seems to have been done—turning the matter of paying the deficit over to the people for consideration at the next election, and the question may be expected to be thrashed over as an issue in the campaign.

Consequently this special session called by president Hoover is of great importance to the economic situation.

Temporary conflicts in congress over features of the farm relief bill are not to be considered discouraging. In view of the announced opposition of the White House and the export representative to the export rebate plan this feature is not expected to make much headway. In fact is not likely to go through the senate itself. There is opposition to it in that body which is strengthened by Mr. Hoover's forthright denouncement of it and by the house's refusal to have anything to do with the plan.

Meanwhile in the corn belt preparations are going forward for planting, with farmers in need of dry weather. The generous rains, however, over this section have not been without value. The precipitation, because of the deep penetration of frost last winter, has gone down and will provide a suitable subsoil for steady growth if dry weather comes in the growing season.

The condition of winter wheat is extremely gratifying. Better than the average for a 10-year period, a bountiful crop is promised. Incidentally, conditions are good for other small grain.

ON AN OLD LAW

Senator Norris contends that Secretary Mellon, head of the United States treasury department, is holding office illegally on account of owning stock in business organizations. Norris bases his complaint on a hundred-year-old statute and claims to have been inspired by President Hoover's recent appeal for law enforcement. Before the president spoke, every senator knew the importance of observing the statutes of the country, and as Mellon has held office for eight years, it is surprising that Norris who must have had knowledge of the law long ago did not object before now. The senator did not need the president's prompting to speak against a violation of law, and if there is good ground to speak now, there was good ground eight years ago and four years ago. He should not have remained silent so long on what he deemed a violation of the federal statutes. It looks as though the senator had raked together the complaint in the absence of something else to kick about.

The loadings also exceeded those of the preceding week this year by 15,366 cars.

This is an excellent showing. It is the best for two years of the stated period, and it indicates that the strong upswing claimed is an established fact. Goods are not moving in increasing volume except for one reason, an increased demand. Obviously, the buying power is stronger that it was at this time last year. Nineteen twenty-nine is going ahead, with every prospect that it will be one of the best years since the world war.

Sound Advice.

Dr. A. L. Bixby in the Lincoln Journal: Forty years ago the city of Fullerton, then with a population of about 800, had three newspapers. M. H. Marber edited the Nance County Journal; Jim Tanner was publisher and proprietor of the Fullerton Post, and we were striving to serve party and people in the weekly publication of the Nance County Sentinel. The previous year we had purchased the Fullerton Telescope and adopted a name more suggestive of our purpose to guard the interests of the people rather than focus our gaze on the starry firmament. About the first of January, 1889, after having shyly done what we could to induce our loathsome contemporaries to treat each other with the editorial contempt that either deserved, we repented the error and boldly came out with this harmony editorial, for the preservation and repetition of which we are indebted to Editor W. H. Plourd of the Nance County Journal:

"If the Post and Journal will 'swear off' on the morning of this glad new year, and cease the insinuating personalities that have darkened their columns of late, the handful of disgusted people upon whom their publications are forced, would no doubt breathe a sigh of genuine relief. Brethren, you are both mean enough already; it would be difficult to find your equals upon the earth, but for the sake of your reputation, which, we are free to confess could not be made worse, but might be improved, for the sake of our fair city, in which the Sentinel is toiling to build up in all the grandeur and magnificence of modern architecture and other fixings; for the sake of your own and your wives' relation, lay aside these foolish bickerings and stand erect in your alleged manhood and be somebody."

A Job For the P. T. A.
Sioux City Journal: Youth demands freedom today in a way that never has been known before. Everybody is familiar with that situation. But it is surprising that so few adults occupying responsible positions as heads of families insist upon a retention of conservative ideas in guiding and protecting their children. This is a new age, a progressive one. Things are done now that were not known a generation ago. There is an urge forward in everything, in business, in social life, in transportation, in thought, in all human activities, and accompanying it is that urge of youth to assert itself in greater degree.

Biologically, humanity has not changed in the slightest degree in the last 25 years. Boys and girls in their early teens may be more sophisticated than their parents were at the same age, but they are not more mature, have no more responsibility, nor more dependability. They are still children without good judgment. The girl of 15 may feel that she is grown, but she isn't, nor is her boy partner of the same age. They are children who must be given parental guidance, advice and protection if they are to be reared properly.

A few days ago in Chicago children of this age were the center of a sensation. Joyriding and with liquor in the car, they had an accident that resulted fatally, one of the boys being the victim. An investigation brought out the fact liquor was common on such escapades, that boys of this age took intoxicants to girls' homes. But Chicago is not unique in this. In Sioux City boys of 14 are permitted to go automobile riding with their parents, but they do it with their knowledge and apparently without efforts made to prevent it. This, of course, is hard for those parents who have common sense enough to say no. The children being restrained feel that they are being mistreated, although later in life when they have daughters of their own they may agree that their parents were right.

It may be suggested that here presented is a subject for discussion at Parent-Teacher association meetings that is of tremendous, even paramount, importance. Leniency on the part of parents who either do not know or do not care is the bugbear of others who feel their responsibility as heads of families. If the P. T. A. would interest itself in this subject and arouse the interest of parents, valuable co-operation might result that would improve the situation. The association might be astounded if it knew to what extent this freedom of youth is being indulged by fathers and mothers, and here in Sioux City as elsewhere.

Writes Opinions About Farming

Frank M. Northrop of Portland, Ore., Formerly of Wayne, Favors Diversification.

Frank M. Northrop of Portland, Ore., early resident of Wayne county, writes as follows regarding farming industries of this state:

"I have observed with much interest the marked increase in dairying in Wayne county in the last few years. There is also a very considerable increase in many other places. Notably in a number of the recently reconstructed governments in Europe, Czechoslovakia, Poland and other of the Baltic countries. To me, the most surprising of all, is in the northern counties of Mississippi, Alabama and Georgia. The industry there has grown so fast that it has now become in places syndicated. I recently saw an advertisement of large issue of bonds to finance some large dairy associations. It is claimed for this region, with much show of reason, that with abundant pasture and ample water, they can successfully compete with any of the older dairy districts. It is clear to me that dairying is attracting more world-wide attention than at any time in my recollection.

"In view of all the conditions I think it not impossible that Wayne county farmers are making a mistake in buying and growing cows of the strictly dairy breeds. All through the 'short grass' country as it used to be called, notably in Montana, western Nebraska, Kansas and the Panhandle region of Texas, the greater profits from wheat and cotton are reducing the supply of beef cattle.

"It would seem as though it might be well to consider the production of milk and beef on the same farm. For this purpose the milking Shorthorn stands preeminent. In Great Britain, with the exception of the Ayrshire in Scotland, there are none of the strictly dairy bred cattle. The English farmer has for untold generations gone on milking the Shorthorn cow and finishing her calf for beef, and no one doubts that the English farmer is a good one.

"Eastern Nebraska is not a very good pasture region. Good corn weather is frequently not good pasture weather. But it is an excellent corn growing country, and corn means beef as pork, and these two items have long been the principal agricultural products.

"This has been brought by a process that might well be called natural selection. There are several ways of raising the beef bred calf and it may require some experimenting to determine the best method. It is a fairly safe generalization to say that the milk from one good milking cow will, when properly supplemented by other and cheaper foods, be sufficient for three calves, and a considerable proportion of this milk may be of the 'skimmed' variety. By this process a very wide margin is left for the production of butter fat.

"In my early days in Vermont, I was often told that I 'could not milk a cow and have it,' but milking a good producing cow, running it through a separator, selling the butter fat and feeding the skim milk to calf or pig, comes the nearest to it of anything that I am personally acquainted with. Wayne county is by nature well adapted to the producing these three items upon the same farm. There may be little danger of overdoing the dairy business, but the beef growing business is now certainly underdone.

"I note the fact that the elevator at Carroll has been closed for two years. I regard that as a perfectly proper proceeding. Not a bushel of grain ought ever to be shipped out of Wayne county.

"The oats rotation must soon give way to some better plan, for in all of the nearly fifty years that I have known the corn belt, oats have been raised at a loss. In this connection I cannot refrain from expressing my opinion, that 'farm relief' is successful only in keeping some professional politicians before the public, and occasionally getting one of them into office. This condition is especially true of the corn belt where this movement originated. The theory principally urged, centers in some plan to increase exports. The only farm crops exported to any considerable extent are wheat and cotton and lard in a lesser degree. The latter is the only item in which the corn belt is interested. I have never heard of any great 'squeal' about lard. Exports of corn are negligible, rarely exceeding

1.5 percent of the crop. It would certainly seem as if the producers of beef, pork and butter fat need not fear the poor house at present prices."

Civilization's Dilemma.

Lincoln Journal: Two cars crashed. One driver was in his proper place, driving at a lawful rate, watching traffic and regarding the rights of others. Another, regardless of law or right, drove his car into the other and traffic was jammed. "Why didn't you drive faster?" complained the illegal to the legal driver. "Then you would have been out of my way." There was much to the complaint. That driver within the law was abridging the personal liberty of the man driving without the law. Personal liberty got another jolt the day following when a court assessed a penalty against the illegal driver and threatened greater punishment.

Personal liberty in this land of the free, the red blooded and the regardless seems to be in a bad way. Something should be done. It is not quite clear just what that something should be, but maybe these traffic laws are not worthy of respect. Laws of course, should be respected, but then—you've heard this before—laws should be worthy of respect. That seems to settle it. Any law that restricts anybody's personal liberty is not entitled to respect.

Maybe the entire code is wrong. A new code should be written that would merit respect from all. It should be made up of laws that do not interfere with anyone, that do not restrict, hinder or hamper our personal liberty. We should have laws that even the criminal can respect. If we are to become 100-percent law abiding, famous for letting every man do just what he desires to do, all sob sisters under the skin, some of these laws will have to be changed.

One repealing law seems to be all that is necessary. Include them all in one master wiping out act. That would put every red blooded man back at the door of the cave with a club in his hand. But, come to think about it, even then somebody's personal liberty might be restricted.

FOR STRENGTH.

Some one suggests that life should not be made too easy for young people if they are expected to develop sturdy character. It takes some hardships and much toil and often self-denial to sharpen wits and fortify endurance. The things that have been invented to facilitate work and travel, taking the place of physical and mental effort, should not cause one to sacrifice powers of initiative and of energy. One may take improved instruments and turn them to big advantage in multiplying results without making multiplications out of the rap. Usually a machine that is employed to quicken and enliven production will give its operator plenty of physical and mental exercise. No matter how costly one may feel in dollars and cents, he will do better to keep his mind and body in lines of useful service and teach his children the importance of employing both hands and brains. Early learning to assume responsibility in connection with every task brings out and nurtures best human qualities. By early learning that money and play are not the only considerations, one will find his vision fixed on higher standards—cultivating every opportunity to improve himself in the field he has adopted, exceeding rather than defeating the expectations of those who are looking to him for service. Activities involved in steady progress will, notwithstanding improved facilities and increased wealth, give one plenty of physical and mental exercise. One should bottle into hardships and master them instead of shying around and being satisfied to accept correspondingly decreased success. There are plenty of hardships under the most favorable circumstances to give one ample exercise notwithstanding multiplied labor-saving and pleasure-gratifying schemes.

Illinois Girl Pays Way in School By Being Pastor at Two Churches

It's text books and tablets and pencils and rulers five days a week for Mabel Gooch, 18-year-old high school girl of Johnston City, Ill.

Then on Sundays and two nights a week it's the Bible and preaching the old-fashioned religion in two churches to pay for her schooling.

The attractive high school sophomore admits that it is mostly a dollars and cents proposition. Her eyes twinkle the smile that she hears about to college who gets into big cities accompanied by their mothers, business managers and press agents, with camera flashlights booming and a blare of carefully prepared publicity about a great "mission."

How She Started
"I felt that it was my duty to make my high school expenses if I wanted more education, and I'm doing it," she says simply.

"Not that my heart is not in my preaching," she is quick to add. "It seems to me that I should help to convert others as I was converted three years ago."

"The Johnston City Methodist minister understood how I felt and when some of the men from Cedar Grove came to him to recommend a pastor, he recommended me."

"Another girl and I went to their church and held services. They seemed to like us and we kept on. Then the other girl got married and I took charge and have been preaching there ever and had just completed the eighth grade at Silitz, the mining village near here where she lives. She had about given up her greatest ambition—to attend high school. There was little work in the mines for her father and high school in a town several miles away costs money.

There are about 100 members at her first church, miners' and farmers' families principally, and they like their girl pastor.

Plain Preaching

"No 'high falutin' stuff from her," they say. "Just good, straight teaching what the Bible says."

Word of her ability in the pulpit went from one person to another until she became a prophet with honor in her own village. The Methodist church there now has her as its pastor, too, with meetings Tuesday and Saturday nights.

The church work sends her to school, she says, and the school educates her for better church work.

She would almost prefer to talk about school affairs than her preaching. She likes English, Latin and biology and "has to take" geometry.

"There's lots of common sense in the theory of evolution," she says. "There are so many ways in which evolution is illustrated to us in things that we know and see about us that there are some points about the theory that we cannot deny. I don't think, though, that we came from monkeys."

Wayne City School Art Exhibit And Programs Planned This Week

Debaters Win From District Champions—Students Enter State Contests.

Art days are being observed this week Thursday and Friday, May 2 and 3, in the Wayne city school and each grade is participating in a program for patrons and buyers. Work done by pupils will be exhibited and short programs will be given at different hours in the rooms.

The program for Thursday includes the following: Kindergarten, 1:15 to 1:45, folk dancing and orchestra; first grade, 1:45 to 2:15; "The Bird's Party," in costume; 2:15 to 2:45, second grade, "Color Fairies," color demonstration, and "A Boy and His Dog," by Guest; third grade, 2:45 to 3:15, "Picture Posting."

The Friday program is as follows: Fourth grade, 1:20 to 1:50, "Thrifty Play," fifth grade, 1:50 to 2:20, "The Land of Color," playette; sixth grade, 2:20 to 2:50, picture study demonstration; seventh grade, 2:50 to 3:30, "Color Fantasy," playette; and eighth grade, 3:30 to 4:00, "The Romance of the Willow Pattern Plate," history of the Chinese plate.

Mrs. Lulu Waite, art supervisor in the grades, is sponsoring the program and exhibit with the aid of other teachers. Programs will start on schedule time and everyone is welcome.

Defeat District Champions.
Wayne high school debating team met the Hartington team, district champions, here last week Wednesday when the latter team was enroute to Lincoln to the state contest, and Wayne won by two to one. The local team had the negative of the state question, the same side as before when Hartington won from Wayne. Dorothy Davis, Irol Whitmore and Jeanette Lewis comprised the Wayne team. Rev. H. A. Teckhaus, Rev. W. W. Whitman and J. E. Brittain were judges.

Seniors to Take Tests.
Seniors of the Wayne high school will take algebra and English composition tests Friday, May 10, to determine their classification in these subjects before entering the state university. Those with satisfactory marks are exempt from taking preliminary work at the university in these subjects for no credit is given. Having passed the tests, the student may at once begin work giving credit in the university upon entrance there.

All boys of the senior class and any girls who might wish to enter engineering courses at the university take the algebra tests. All students take the English tests. A distinguished teacher and a citizen of townships are required to supervise the tests and return them to the university.

Go to Track Meet.
Wayne High school students went to Norfolk Friday to enter an invitation track meet. Coach by Guest; third grade, 2:45 to 3:15, "Picture Posting."

The Friday program is as follows: Fourth grade, 1:20 to 1:50, "Thrifty Play," fifth grade, 1:50 to 2:20, "The Land of Color," playette; sixth grade, 2:20 to 2:50, picture study demonstration; seventh grade, 2:50 to 3:30, "Color Fantasy," playette; and eighth grade, 3:30 to 4:00, "The Romance of the Willow Pattern Plate," history of the Chinese plate.

Mrs. Lulu Waite, art supervisor in the grades, is sponsoring the program and exhibit with the aid of other teachers. Programs will start on schedule time and everyone is welcome.

It must be awful to die in Chicago and be a mere clue.—Brooklyn Times.

Lincoln Journal: Edward J. Tobin, Chicago superintendent of schools, after witnessing a hearing over a booze party that had resulted in a death, and in which the principals were high school students, says: "One thing that impressed me at the inquest was the youthful witnesses were mortally afraid to let their parents know they had been drinking. Inclined to be bold and frank to others, they went the limit of untruthfulness to hide the facts from their parents."

In this Mr. Tobin saw a ray of hope for a situation admittedly bad. He saw nothing unusual in the booze party. He estimated that on the same night ten thousand boys and girls were out doing the same thing that brought trouble and death to one group of youngsters. The "sullen, bewildered attitudes of the boys and girls witnesses" taught him nothing, he says. "We were aware the condition existed."

Professor Stevens, psychologist from Northwestern university, held that no one factor is responsible for these conditions. Social instability inherited from the war is one; changing economic conditions, greater social freedom for women, failure of parents, and the interest of churches in maintaining institutions rather than creating opportunities for the development of a satisfying life, were others.

"Parents must assume responsibility for the home; churches must become more social and inclusive and less restrictive and exclusive; more and better opportunities for sane and developing recreation must be provided. And important and far reaching, youth must be taught that 'it is the carrier of social traditions,' and here the burden falls again on the home, but with equal force on the churches and schools. Will they take it up?"

Most communities have faced this problem, but of course not in the exaggerated way that it affects Chicago. In smaller communities forces for evil may be segregated and restrained. They assume a disheartening magnitude in the cities.

Well, a new orchid has already been named after President Hoover and another one after Mrs. Hoover, but what we're waiting hopefully for is some eminent white, Protestant, dry horticulturist to name a new violet after Sister Willibrand.—Ohio State Journal.

What Does the State of Nebraska Think of the New Ford?

Lincoln, Nebraska, January 1, 1929.

Hussong-Rogers Motor Co., Lincoln, Nebraska.

Gentlemen:

On March 1, 1928, we purchased the first unit for our fleet of fifteen cars used in our law enforcement division of the Bureau of Game and Fish, State of Nebraska.

This car was a Model "A" Tudor and was among the first of this model manufactured.

Recently we compiled the costs of operation and depreciation on this car. We are giving you these figures, believing you will be interested in them.

At the time we made the compilation the car had traveled 23,000 miles over all conditions of roads throughout the state and under all conditions of weather, etc. Our law enforcement work is extremely hard on cars.

Figuring gas, oil, repairs, storage, accessories, tires—in fact, all operation costs, together with the depreciation to that date, we find that we got our transportation at 3 1/4 cents per mile.

This is the lowest figure this department has ever been able to secure in the operation of motor cars.

Yours very truly,
DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE.
Frank B. O'Connell,
Chief, Bureau Game and Fish.

New Beauty, New Comfort and New Smoothness

Beyond comparison among low-priced cars

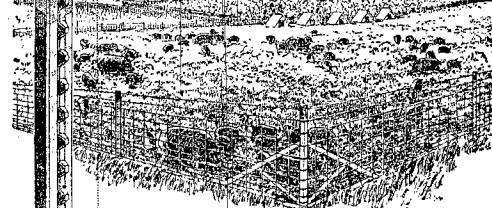

The improved Plymouth is today exhibiting new standards of performance, economy, comfort and beauty entirely beyond comparison in the low-priced field.

Chrysler engineers have created many new refinements in Plymouth's famous Chrysler "Silver-Dome" type engine. These include longer stroke and an increase in piston displacement; a heavier crankshaft; larger interchangeable bearings; larger connecting rods; a newly designed system of full-pressure lubrication.

Good fences pay for themselves

YOU are paying for good fences in the form of lost profits if you do not have them. Damaged crops that cannot be harvested, corn the picker overlook, grain scattered in the stubble field, valuable animals killed on the highways or by goring—all are losses that good hog and stock-tight fences will prevent—losses that are greater than the cost of the fence—losses that can be turned into profits.

Hog and stock-tight fences not only stop these wastes but put you in position to diversify your crops and stock and rotate both and to practice the McLean county system of hog sanitation. Yields per acre are increased, crops sold more profitably on the hoof, soil fertility replaced, value of farm increased and much farm labor saved by letting hogs add stock to part of the harvesting.

You can follow these practices without a large cash outlay. Come in and let us show you how you can add good fences to your farm, erect them on Red Top Steel Fence Posts which prolong the useful life of any fence—and make them pay for themselves.

Hitch-Hikes Way to Recover Son

Six months ago, Mrs. Edna Nettle, 24, of Seattle, Wash., left her son, Richard, 2, in care of relatives while she and her husband went to a show. Returning, they found the relatives had disappeared with the baby. "To give it a better home," Instead of seeking an arrest, Mrs. Nettle traced them to Atlanta, Ga. She and her husband had only money enough for one one-way fare, so Mrs. Nettle hitch-hiked to Atlanta, recovered her child, and returned to Seattle on a train.

Get Those Bigger Profits!

John Deere No. 999 Planter with Pea Planting Attachment

Get a bigger yield and bigger profits this year by planting soy beans or cowpeas with your corn! Besides increasing the fertility of your soil by storing up nitrogen, these legumes also make a good forage to be fed with corn.

The John Deere No. 999 is the field-proven corn planter that has increased the profits of thousands of farmers by enabling them to get bigger yields. It is famous for its accuracy throughout the corn belt—there are no losses from inaccurate planting.

The variable drop plants two, three or four kernels in each hill as desired. No hills are skipped; the John Deere Natural Drop Seed Plates always drops the correct number of kernels.

The No 999 plants any kind of corn, peas, beans, sorghum, milo maize, feterita, beet seed and many other seeds with great accuracy. If you already have a "999", we can furnish the pea attachment at small cost—attached in a jiffy without changing planting mechanism.

See us about your planting requirements—we can help you with your plans.

New Farm Secretary Was Lowden Man In Pre-Convention

BEFORE President Hoover was ready to announce his cabinet personnel the names of two appointees were guarded more closely than all the others. One was the name of Robert P. Lamont, who was to succeed to Hooper's old post as secretary of commerce, and the other was the name of the new secretary of agriculture, former Governor Arthur M. Hyde of Missouri.

Lamont's name was the last to be made known to the public, but Hyde's preceded it only by a day, and the delay indicated to most observers that the appointment was made after extremely careful consideration.

Owens Three Farms
Because he owns three large farms in Grundy county, Missouri, the new secretary is often referred to as a farmer. He has always had these farms operated by managers or tenants, however, and his life has been devoted to the practice of law to the organization of an insurance company in Kansas City, and to an interesting sideline—real estate.

Politically, Hyde has never been an "organization man." In 1912 he followed the Progressives out of the Republican party and was their candidate for attorney general. He was defeated, however. In 1920, as candidate for the Republican nomination for governor, he had to defeat a prominent member of the "old guard."

Good Administrator
Hyde's friends point to the vote of his home town, Trenton, in that primary to prove in what high regard he is held by those who know him best hold

Here is a new picture of Arthur M. Hyde, secretary of agriculture, taken since he assumed his duties in Hoover's cabinet. Below is his home town, Trenton, Mo.

Prior to the Republican National Convention last summer, Hyde was a Lowden supporter, although he disagreed with the former Illinois governor on the equalization fee question. Except for his opposition to this principle, Hyde has never been quoted at length on "his agricultural beliefs."

As governor of Missouri, he said: "In its fundamental character, and in the character of the people engaged in it, agriculture is the most intensely American industry. Two things are primarily necessary for agriculture, greater profits and better schools."

United Bureaus
During his term of office, Hyde worked ardently for better rural grade schools. He succeeded in putting over a program to combine several state departments and bureaus. A report which President Hoover doubtlessly approved heartily.

The new secretary of agriculture is married and has one daughter, Caroline, 16. As the wife of the governor of Missouri, Mrs. Hyde was a quietly attractive woman, popular as a hostess at social functions at the state executive mansion.

"She is said, however, to be only slightly interested in social affairs, and now large a part she will care to play in Washington society remains to be seen."

Hyde is a graduate of two state universities. He received the degree of bachelor of arts from the University of Michigan and later the degree of bachelor of law from the University of Iowa. His preparatory education was gained in a third state, Ohio, where he attended Oberlin Academy.

About Nebraska and Nebraskans

Will M. Maupin.

The name of George A. Meiklejohn means very little to the younger generation of Nebraskans, but some 40 years ago it loomed large in the political annals of Nebraska. George A. Meiklejohn died in comparative obscurity in a Los Angeles hospital a week or two ago. His identity was not known until a sister identified his remains. Had that happened in Nebraska less than 30 years ago the daily newspapers would have noted the fact under huge headlines. As it was, however, his death received scant notice in the daily newspapers of the state. Mr. Meiklejohn was a citizen of Fullerton and a practicing attorney when he was elected lieutenant governor in 1888. In violation of all precedent he presided at the joint session of the 1891 legislature called to open and canvas the returns of the 1890 election. He showed Speaker Elder aside, Elder having refused to open and declare the returns and presided until the supreme court, again in violation of all precedent, issued a writ of mandamus compelling Speaker Elder to open and declare the results of the election. He was elected to congress from the Third district in 1892 and again in 1894. Defeated for a third term he was appointed assistant secretary of war by President McKinley in 1897 and rendered distinguished service in that department during the Spanish-American war. Later he became interested in Mexican oil and mines and is said to have accumulated a comfortable fortune, which unfortunate investments later dissipated. His later years were spent as an attorney in Los Angeles, and old friends lost track of him. He seemed to avoid Nebraskans who visited Los Angeles. Fullerton at one time loomed large in Nebraska political circles. Thirty or 40 years ago the name of Brad Slaughter was as familiar to Nebraskans as the name of Weaver or Bryan is now. He came about as near being a party boss as anybody ever did. Ed Penny was another Fullertonian who wielded a tremendous political influence, but he always kept behind the scenes to pull his wires. Mr. Penny married Miss Minnie Freeman, one of the schoolmarm heroines of the blizzard of 1888. She was until the last national campaign the republican national committee woman for Nebraska. Incidentally, Fullerton was the scene of the newspaper debut of that genial poet and philosopher, Ami Leander Bixby. "Bud" Moran is dead. Like the name of Meiklejohn, the name "Bud" Moran means little to the younger generation. But it meant a great deal back in the days when there was not much law east of the sixth Principal Meridian in Nebraska and none to speak of west of that line. Rustlers and horse thieves thrived in northwestern Nebraska when "Bud" Moran, a youth in his teens, came from West Virginia and settled in the sandhill region. In 1886 Governor Thayer looked around for a man with abdominal adequacy to tackle the rustler and horse stealing industries in that section, and his eyes fell upon "Bud" Moran, then aged 25. He appointed "Bud" sheriff of a vast territory and told him to clean things up. Moran's first official act was to issue an ultimatum: "I mean stealing of livestock must stop pronto. Moran, sheriff." Then he mounted his horse, armed with Winchester and a gun on each hip and started out to make his ultimatum good. He broke up gang after gang, often by "leading" the members from rifle and six-gun, and could, had he been so disposed, cut several notches on his Five which is thought to have originated from a defective chimney burned the roof of Mrs. Bertha Hood's residence on east Seventh street Friday noon. The damage being estimated at about $150. The blaze started beneath the roof and had gained considerable headway when noticed. The damage is almost entirely on the roof, a small amount being done to plastering. Mrs. Hood carried insurance on the building.

Information About Intangible Taxes

Every taxpayer should file his return with the county assessor at a penalty after May 27. By attending to this at once you will not only avoid the rush later but you will greatly assist the county assessor. The tax rate on money, bank deposits, saving accounts, checks and drafts is 25 cents on each $100 dollars. There are no other taxes on these items. Shares of stock in corporations which are organized outside of Nebraska are taxable at the rate of 80 cents on each $100 dollars. In determining the value of these shares you should use market value, less the proportion of the capital stock which is assessed in Nebraska. Any banker or county assessor can determine this value for you. Shares of stock in Nebraska corporations should not be listed by the individuals as the corporation pays the tax for the stockholder. Individuals should list their building and loan shares at ten per cent of the withdrawal value. The tax rate on building and loan shares is 50 cents on $1,000 withdrawal value. Bonds and warrants of the United States, this state or any of its political subdivisions are exempt from taxation. All other bonds are taxable at their actual or market value. Notes secured by Nebraska real estate mortgages are not taxable. All other notes are taxable. A note is a note no matter for what purpose it is given and it should be listed at whatever it is worth. Book accounts should be listed at their actual value. Judgments, choses in action, and contracts of whatever nature are taxable at their actual value. The tax rate on all of these intangibles (money, bank deposits, saving accounts, checks and drafts excepted) is only 80 cents per hundred dollars. You cannot afford to take chances on being penalized for failure to return these items for the small amount of tax involved. When it comes to listing money that is deposited in failed banks, you will be permitted to determine for yourself what it is worth. A husband and wife may make a return on the same schedule or they may each make separate returns. A father, mother or guardian must make a return for a minor if the minor has property of this kind. Pay no attention to the words "or fraction thereof" appearing in lines 13 and 14 of the schedule. It is intended that the rates shall be applied to the actual dollars returned. Your banker or the county assessor will be glad to give further information concerning these returns. The return should be sworn to before a notary public, the county assessor, or other officer having a seal. After your return has been filed with the county assessor it will not be open to inspection only by the proper officers and they are not permitted to give out information concerning it. HARRY W. SCOTT, State Tax Commissioner, Lincoln, Nebraska, April 23, 1929. Harold C. Lewis, an Englishman visiting the United States, says he has yet to find one place here where a human being could give a real cup of tea. That Boston party ruined us. - St. Paul Pioneer Press.

gins. He was desperately wounded several times. He continued on the job for 20 years, and when he retired the country was as peaceful as the bosom of a millpond on a breezy day in summer. He devoted himself to ranching during the last 25 years of his life and accumulated a large property. He died at Alliance on April 21, and was buried at Hyannis, the center of his long years of official activity.

It has been several years since Nebraska has had a real county seat fight—one that meant gunfoting and physical combat. Until recently the last one was in Saline county, and prior to that the scrap between Gering and Scottsbluff in Scotts Bluff county. Now Logan county is the scene of a county seat scrap between Gandy fighting to retain the county seat, and Stapleton, fighting to secure it. Gandy has been the county seat since Logan county was organized in 1886. Gandy has 250 inhabitants and Stapleton claims 600. Stapleton won in an election in 1925, but the courts voided the election because Stapleton people had offered to contribute towards the expense of erecting a new court house. Gandy proper is a mile and a half from the Union Pacific's branch line northwest from Kearney, but in order to be able to boast of being a railroad town it included a strip a mile and a half long and 10 feet wide in the corporate limits of the village. Stapleton is the terminus of the branch. The election will be held on May 2, and feeling is running high. Dan Desdunes, leader and manager of the famous Desdunes band of colored musicians, died at his home in Omaha very suddenly last week. Every lover of music and especially band music in the west, knew Dan Desdunes and his band. He was a distinct credit to his race, a genuine gentleman, and a thorough musician. The Lutheran church in Nebraska has a long and honorable history, for the work of the church has been carried on within the present borders of the state for more than 60 years. It was in 1858 that Rev. H. W. Kuhns, D. D., with a commission from the Allegheny Lutheran Synod, left Pittsburgh, Pa., to officiate as "representative of the Evangelical Lutheran church in Nebraska and adjacent parts." He traveled continuously for 19 days before he reached Omaha. He preached as far north as Yankton, as far south as Topeka and as far west as Laramie. In many places Rev. Dr. Kuhns secured building lots on which were later erected English, German and Scandinavian Lutheran churches. The first Lutheran church organized in Nebraska was in Omaha and called Emmanuel Evangelical Lutheran church, now known as Kountze Memorial. However, the first Lutheran church building erected and dedicated was at Dakota City. It is still standing. The church in Nebraska is divided between several synods. Midland College at Fremont and Luther College at Wahoo are Lutheran schools. The Lutherans also maintain several hospitals in the state, and are noted for the general excellence of the work done therein. Try a Wayne Herald Want Ad.

Compliment Given Joy Ley Of Wayne

The following from the Hartington Herald of April 25 gives an account of the efficient work of Miss Joy Ley who is teaching in the school there: "Miss Joy Ley was conducting a reading class in the third grade room and the way she held the attention of that large group of restless children was little less than marvelous. Her discipline is perfect, although she doesn't appear to use any discipline, and it is evident that all her pupils love her. After the reading lesson, which showed great proficiency on the part of the children, some time was spent in coloring and cutting out some wonderful cats sitting on rugs."

Church Conference Held In Oakland

The forty-second annual convention of the Nebraska conference of the Lutheran Augustana synod was in session in the First Lutheran church of Oakland from April 24 to 28. This conference includes fifty-eight congregations in Nebraska and parts of South Dakota and Wyoming, grouped in six districts, of which the Wakefield district is one. Besides the regular congregational work, the conference is engaged in mission work. Christian education and work of mercy Luther college of Wahoo is owned by the conference. The annual contribution to benevolences is $250,000. Sixtieth anniversary of the Oakland church was celebrated at this time also. Former pastors who are living were guests of honor. The Right Reverend Hjalmar Danell, bishop in Skara, Sweden, preached at the Sunday morning service. A Congressman who votes to bring liquor in from abroad is, after all, simply testifying to the efficiency of his own legislation. - New York Times.

According to a contemporary, pedestrians in New York are in the habit of loitering about in the subways. This rather suggests that sporting motorists in that city will have to resort to ferrets.

Collar and Cuff Contrasts Add New Touch to Smart Summer Costumes

BY HARRIET

The contrast of collars and cuffs on new costumes and the manner in which their skirts get their freedom of fullness are two matters that the woman of fine appearance will do well to consider.

Since silk suits are pre-eminently excellent for early summer and late spring wear every woman wants one.

She may have it long or short-coated, she may have it capped or jacketed. She may have it with a long, trailing afternoon line or a jaunty cut shortly below the knee.

But if she knows her silk suits, she will have a cuff and a collar treatment that are interesting and she will introduce a new note in the skirt's fullness.

Big Collar Good

The frilled collar, the big, out-to-the-shoulder collar of contrast silk, is excellent right now, being so new in this first season for years to feature anything but the collarless necklines.

Since white is by all means the loveliest combination if one chooses blue or black for one's silk suit (and either is so very satisfactory for the woman who does not have a half dozen suits) the wide collar and cuff touches must be detachable so they can be kept scrupulously clean.

I show one of the newest afternoon suits in navy blue flat crepe that has a fascinating white front frilled collar that is distinctly good on a tall, slender woman and on young girls.

It is made on a two-inch bias banding which can be twisted into the neckline of the coat so very easily that it is nothing. The cuffs of the three-quarters coat tie in a cute knot, not a bow. The skirt has deep box pleats inverted both front and back and stitched well below the hipline so they flare like a knee flounce.

The second suit I show today introduces two very new notes. It is made of a rich gold colored flat crepe, but would be equally stunning in a bright blue, or of the spring greens or rose beige.

Both the hats on these models are noteworthy for their smartness.

The half-and-half blue and white one for the navy blue suit is very new. It frames the face with white and the back is blue. It is felt and has no trimming whatever, relying rather on its line and starting color combination.

The gold crepe suit has a lovely brown hat, one of the new shallow crown ones with the tiniest brim. It is one of the feather-weight felts, untrimméd and light enough to be negligible, were it not for its chic.

Two smart new costumes for the season are shown above. Its jacket develops into a cute little dolman and uses buttons of self-material to run down the shoulder lines, emphasizing the smart rounded effect of the dolman. Kolinsky collars it, that very satisfactory fur. The skirt has three pockets of the circular French pleatings introduced. The French pleating takes a circular piece and tapers deep pleats at the lower edge into the merest bit of a pleat at the top. It flares like a chic fan which mildly walks. Both the hats on these models

Mistaken Parsimony.
Omaha Bee-News: Big business and, in general, efficient business in this country has learned that there can be no substitute for character and brains in employees. They are irresistible. If a business commands them it succeeds.

The public schools are the biggest business in America. They are, in fact, the basic business. And for the work that they are called upon to do they must command brains and character.

The responsibility for making the schools give the service that we have a right to expect of them falls mainly on the teachers. We naturally want these teachers to possess; ability, knowledge, character and devotion of the highest order. We know how important it is that our children shall receive their instruction and their impression during plastic years from men and women who can properly instruct and influence them.

In many respects the work of the teachers is the most important in the country, and they should be well paid. Most teachers, unfortunately, are not well paid. Being niggardly in this regard is a habit that a considerable part of the United States has fallen into. It is not only a bad habit, but it is also expensive; for a low standard of wages inevitably results in the quality of teachers deteriorating. The brightest men and women in the profession seek other lines. And the classrooms in these short-sighted communities are turned over to second-raters.

That means, of course, a generally inferior product turned out from the schools.

But a high standard of pay attracts high class people; there is sharper competition for the teachers' positions, and the beneficial effect upon pupils is marked.

Of course, the child gets from the school what he or she puts into it. It is the teachers' business to develop the latent possibilities in the child's mind—that is to educate, which means to lead out.

Do you want this delicate and vitally important work done by incompetents or by experts? There is only one answer. The way to get experts is to make the teaching profession attractive to capable, high-class men and women. Those who really understand this subject demand the best compensation for teachers.

Missouri Legislator Loses Voice and Finds "Writing It" Has Advantages

O. B. WHITAKER, 59 years old, teacher, farmer and author, who, for six previous terms in the Missouri legislature, swayed the members of the lower house with his oratory and legislative ability, today is voiceless, due to a tumorous growth on the vocal chords, and communicates with his colleagues through a portable typewriter, presented to him by the house through a special order.

Whitaker cannot even dictate to his stenographer, so he jots down his own motions and arguments on pending bills and legislative matters, and sends them to the desk of the speaker by a page.

Its Advantages
"Being voiceless has its advantages, as well as disadvantages," Whitaker told newspaper men. "Many times in the heat of debate I have wished to retort, but by the time I have committed my spleen to writing, the occasion had passed or my better judgment prevailed. As a result, I have impressed my colleagues at this session, much more than in former sessions, with my patience and kindness. I am not sure but that it would be an improvement if all of the members were dumb. It is my very firm conviction that the typewriter holds some commendable points over the tongue."

Whitaker has been a consistent opponent of all bills which provide for a death penalty, and was responsible for the introduction of a measure in the 1917 session, abolishing capital punishment in Missouri. Subsequently two Missouri sheriffs were killed in the execution of their official duties and at the next session of the legislature, called as a special sitting to ratify the nineteenth amendment, the death penalty was restored. Whitaker said he would not offer any bills at the present session tending to abolish capital punishment in Missouri.

In accepting the portable typewriter voted him by the legislature, Whitaker wrote a humorous talk, a la typewriter. He said: "Pity for me should not deprive any other member of his or her rights, and I do not want to be pitted. With the exception of my voice and my mind I am absolutely all right. The one has failed to function and the most that I can do is to think the other functions wrongly—which is worse."

"The fact that the only woman member of the house is my seatmate, is undoubtable, indisputable and infallible evidence that I am the best looking man in the house."

"Mr. Speaker, some to whom I whisper, yell back at me. That is not necessary—I am not deaf—though doubly dumb. Others, especially the women, whisper back to me. So far as I can see, this is also unnecessary."

College President
Whitaker served 18 years as college president for three different schools in Missouri, Kansas and Indiana. He was the principal organizer of the Farmers' National Bank at Lincoln, Kas., and the Beverly State Bank at Beverly, Kas. He is the author of "Herbert Brown" and "Dick Haley."

In connection with his farming operations in the Missouri Ozarks he was at one time an extensive breeder of registered, Hereford cattle and Poland China swine. In recent years, however, he has not been active in farm affairs.

Big Business And Art Unite In Jazz Music

American Music Resembles Rumanian Folk Songs
New York City.—Modern American music about which there has been such bitter contention, among musical people as to its origin and right to be labeled "jazz," is really the legitimate folk-music of our country. It has stood out from the folk-lore of other countries and been made a target for attack simply because American business men have commercialized it, made it "big business."

This is the opinion of Flo Hauser, headline singer of modern music, Miss Hauser when a child, came to this country from Jassy, the business world, continues to raise an enquiring eyebrow at this modern music which is at the same time such good business.

folk music of the Balkan countries. From her parents, both musical, she has inherited her knowledge and love of European folk music. "The only reason jazz is attacked is just that your so very bright business men have recognized the opportunity to commercialize something dear to the heart of the people—their native music," she explains.

"Jazz is lovely and simple. For instance, there is 'Lonesome In The Moonlight,' a perfect example of the simple and melodic tune and just the type that is transmitted from generation to generation in Rumania by folk dances and folk songs, though generally unwritten. It has the simplicity which makes it a real folk melody."

"The musician, always a little against at any relationship with Rumania, and has grown up with American music. She says that our modern music has the same essential characteristics as the

Pretty New Frock Designs Combine The Plain and Fancy Materials

BY HARRIET
NEW frocks show a tendency to combine two materials—one plain and one fancy—rather than use of just one or the other. Jackets or coats at the top these frocks usually are plain fabric over a fancier dress.

With the idea in mind of combining two materials, all manner of decorative effects can be worked out. For the woman who makes her own things, there is a challenge to her imagination.

Effective but Intricate
Paris sends us many frocks wherein novel trimmings are seen. One frock of a beautiful yellow marocain uses a small patterned silk in all the pastel colors for a sunburst design that centers at a natural waistline and sends its rays down the skirt and up the blouse. It is tremendously effective, but of course very intricate.

The less fancy frocks utilize the two-fabric material in a more restrained manner. Much is made of contrasting belts, collars and cuffs and usually some skirt panel or skirt hem catches the decorative note of these.

One of the loveliest of these two-fabric frocks is a black afternoon costume from Lucille Paray in Paris. It uses black marocain with incrustations of printed black crepe with gray yellow and white flowers on it.

Like Man's Shirt
The blouse portion is cut quite like a man's shirt, with a little tie of the black and long sleeves that have the printed crepe let in to make a little puff. The skirt which is cut circular, is also of the black marocain. Across both the blouse and the skirt bandings of the printed silk make a striking pattern and use on the hip with its bow ends reaching to the skirt's hem.

This dress reminds one of the charming effects one often gets when using two colors of crepe paper when making a pretty fancy dress party frock. Many of the same ideas the fancy-dress costumes use are applicable to the smart frock. For it is essentially a modernistic one, with irregular printed figures adorning it.

The print makes the entire dress, with the exception of its being cut cutaway in the front of the skirt and a flaring pleated plain red front inserted. A gridle of the red makes a wide banding. The rather unusual neck is made of tan, white and red, cut in lovely figured kerchief carries out the idea.

Quite different from this dress is a gay red one from Jenny. It is made of the new printed satif, white and beige figures on a red background. The print is quite a modernistic one, with irregular printed figures adorning it.

Market Report.

Furnished by Steele, Siman & Co., Sioux City Stock Yards.
Sioux City Stock Yards.—Increased receipts caused heaviness on all classes of live stock this week. Shipping demands were not very broad in any division and representatives of the big packers were given the opportunity to exert pressure.
The 11 main markets of the country received 101,000 cattle the first two days of the week, 12,000 more than a week ago. Improved weather and road conditions over a week ago caused the increase.
Fat steers and yearlings were rather slow on the first two days of the week and the market eased off 15 to 25c on the average with some of the desirable grades holding steady. Local receipts were moderate but all buyers were in a bullish mood. The big end of the receipts went to the beef steers and yearling department.
A top of $14.40 was paid for three loads of choice steers weighing 1,103 pounds, on the second session, tying the highest price of the season. A few sales were made at $13.75 to $14.25 with bulk at $13 to $13.75 and plainer grades ranged down to $12 and under. Strongweight steers topped at $14.10 with the bulk downward from $13.50.
The heifer market held close to steady as supplies were light and shippers had a place for a few. Choice light weights sold at $14 with other sales ranging down to $12 and under.
Cows opened on a steady basis but the trade was uneven on the following day with spots 15 to 25c lower, especially on medium grades. Good and choice grades sold at $10 to $11.50 with a few koshers to $12 and better. Fair grades sold down to $8.75 and under. Bulk of the canners and cutters moved at $6.25 to $7.50.
Veals started out on a firm basis and strengthened on the second session. Selected light weights topped at $15 with bulk of the good grades at $13 to $14.50. The bull market carried a good undertone. Bulk of the medium bolognas sold at $9 to $9.50 with heavy weights to $10 and yearling and butcher grades above $10. Plain beef and bologna grades ranged down to $8.50 and under.
Supplies ran light in the stocker and feeder department and sellers were able to clear on a steady basis. Quality was not very good but inquiry from the country was expected to expand causing the market to hold up satisfactorily. Bulk of the cattle brought $11.25 to $12.50 with a few to $13 and better. Choice light weights would sell up to $18.75, or so. Heifers sold from $11.75 down and cows from $8.75 down.
Hog receipts amounted to 256,000 at the 11 leading markets the first two days of the week, 61,700 more than on last Monday and Tuesday and an increase of 45,600 over the corresponding period a year ago.
Increased receipts forced the market sharply lower. The break started last Saturday and continued on Monday and Tuesday. Shippers had fairly good orders but they insisted on sharp declines and the big packers were more insistent for further reductions. They received a lot of hogs direct from the country at leading centers, giving them added prestige in their fight for declines.
On the second session, shippers paid $10.75 to $10.85 for a string of 180 to 250 pound butchers with weightier grades down to $10.50. Packers offered $10.25 to $10.50 for hogs of all weights that were left for them. Sows sold from $10 down and stags at $9.50 to $10. Pigs topped at $10.75. The general hog market dropped 50c to $1, computed with last Friday. There has been a big widening out in the price list the past week with heavy meetings with disfavor.
Sheep receipts totaled 120,000 at the 11 principal markets on Monday and Tuesday, 22,000 more than a week ago.
Both ewes and lambs dropped 50c to $1 on the first two days. Woolled lambs were quoted at $15.75 and clippers to $15 with woolled ewes to $9.50 and clippers at $8.50.
Opportunity knocks but once. Evidently it isn't motor-driven. Dallas News.

Modern American Music Becomes International Favorite

New York City.—Europe's next generation of musicians will play American jazz as if it were their native musical tongue.
This is the opinion of Maurice Bonnetty, musical director of the Ile de France, most gorgeously decorated and equipped steamer afloat.
"The old time musicians will not play jazz," admits Monsieur Bonnetty. "They will not even try to learn it, but every young musician abroad tries to play it. The generation now growing up all play it. I do not think the coming generation will ever dance to any other kind of music, except occasionally perhaps a Spanish tango or a French waltz."
"This will be the greatest triumph for music in the world's history, and probably the greatest American force for friendship. For if you dance and sing a country's music, you have a happy feeling towards that country."
Mr. Bonnetty says that jazz American music is best liked in France.
"They like real jazz with lots of pep, the kind that won't let you keep your feet still," he declares. "On the Ile de France, we could not possibly get along without American music for our dance orchestra. People from all over the world always ask for an American fox-trot."
Because of the beauty of its equipment, the Ile de France carries more international celebrities than any other ship, and for this reason Mr. Bonnetty meets bon vivants from all corners of the world.
He explains that a Maharajah from India is apt to ask for "I'm Sorry Sally," as is an African potentate from Senegal.
"I'm Sorry Sally," the current dancing vogue in Paris, is the type of dance that foreigners delight in because it has the real swing which only an American can write.

BLUE LARKSPUR BEATEN IN HOPEFUL STAKES AND FUTURITY, BUT IS RATED HIGH FOR KENTUCKY DERBY

BY PHILIP MARTIN

IF some of your hard-earned money isn't to ride with Blue Larkspur, the most solid favorite in years for the Kentucky Derby, which horse then is the one to be given a play?

There are a number of horses named for this classic event worthy of a nice play, but deciding upon one other than Blue Larkspur is some task. Especially since High Strung, big money winner of the 1928 season, seems out of the running.

Blue Larkspur is considered the best two-year-old in 1929, despite the fact that he was beaten in the Hopeful Stakes and the Futurity. He should have won the former event, but was a victim of tough racing luck. He suffered all sorts of misfortunes in the Futurity. Nevertheless, this big brown colt by Black Servant-Blossom Time showed a disposition to race on always and has conditioned well this winter.

Another factor in his ruling favorite is that he is owned by E. R. Bradley, whose entries ran one-two in the 1921 and 1926 Derbies.

PERHAPS Blue Larkspur isn't the horse you like. Well, there are any number of worthy candidates that are regarded in certain quarters today as probable winners.

These are: Twink, Current, Neddle, Clyde Van Dusen, Dr. Freedland, Voltair, Natsappur and Vermalo—those are but a few of the nice ones named to start. And each one has a record as a 2-year-old, and for performances during the winter season that merits consideration.

ONE does well to consider Twink, a foreign-bred son of

Twink and Banniere. Only once since its inaugural in 1976, has an "outlander" won the Derby, but this baby is said to be in there with more than a prayer as a chance to win. He started 10 times as a two-year-old and won six of his races.

NOT since 1915 when Regret won has a filly topped the Derby, but there's a belief in some quarters that Current, wearing a 4-5-1 price in the winter locks, may win this season. This belief is based on the fact that Current is a representative of that tough-bred dynasty that produced Man o' War, Mad Hatter, Crusader and other noted racers, and ran well last year.

THERE are three long shots that seem rather attractive. They are The Chocwa, Windy City and Plumbase. Windy City was quoted at 50-1 and the other two at 100-1 in the winter books. And if a long shot is preferred, either of the trio would be a good one on which to place a bet.

Bible in National Life

Bible in National Life

The International Uniform Sunday School Lesson for May 5. The Bible in National Life. 2 Chron. 34:14-16, 29-33.

THE historical situation with which the present lesson deals probably preceded by almost 100 years the time of the preceding lessons which related to the period of the Babylonian captivity. The defeat of the Kingdom of Judah, and the carrying off of the people to Babylon occurred in 588 B. C., while the present lesson is dated in the eighteenth year of the reign of Josiah, probably about 639 B. C. While these facts are important for historical perspective in the study of this lesson, they do not affect its moral value and its spiritual teaching.

The story is one of reaction after reform, and the abandonment by a religiously indifferent people of the progressive measures and reforms instituted by an enlightened leader. Hezekiah had reformed the worship of Israel, but in the years following his death the Temple had become neglected and forms of worship idolatrous and morally corrupt had become prevalent.

Always a Menace This influence of surrounding heathen peoples was a constant menace to the purity of the religious life of Israel, and it should always be remembered that the matter was not simply one of placing one religion against another, or of a difference simply of forms and observations. These heathen religions were impregnated with vile and immoral practices, so that the corruption of the religion of the people meant the breakdown of the moral and social structure that had been developed through the influence of prophets and lawgivers.

In ancient times, at today, the influence of the heathen of the nations had a general effect, and when these nations are impregnated with vile and immoral practices, so that the corruption of the religion of the people meant the breakdown of the moral and social structure that had been developed through the influence of prophets and lawgivers.

Not an Irreligious Nation Here in the United States we have the formal separation of church and state, but this does not mean that the state is a godless, irreligious or irreligious institution. The power and place of the Bible have been established in our national life from the earliest years.

The fact that the president of the United States will take his oath of office upon the Bible, and that the American history and literature are all saturated with it, and that we have a national day of prayer, are all evidence of a true religion.
