Many Graduated Here On Friday

Rev. C. E. Snyder of Sioux City, Addresses Wayne Class on Topic, "Mortgages."

Announce Honors

Dorothy Davis Leads—Jeanette Lewis and Helen Mohr next in Scholarship.

Addressing the Wayne high school class of forty-two graduates Friday evening at the Methodist church on the subject of "Mortgages," Rev. C. E. Snyder of the First Unitarian church of Sioux City, congratulated the students not on their accomplishments but on their opportunities and obligations to serve because of having had training. He urged them to be rich in a two-fold sense, having a responsibility for duty and a deeper appreciation of life and its possibilities as years pass.

Truth with ambition and hope are the mottoes of May day, the speaker stated, ready to invade in accomplishment. They are full of promise.

Much of the subject matter learned in schools is soon forgotten. Facts learned are helpful, Rev. Snyder said, but most essential acquisition in school is the discipline in accomplishment, the cultivation of the mind in developing its fertility.

Business depression results from an overloading of indebtedness during prosperity. Such debts often wreck people. The debts referred to by the speaker in his subject are obligations placed on youths to use their ability and learning toward accomplishment. Such debts are valuable. Each who aims to discharge the obligation will be a valuable citizen.

Within the life of high school graduates of this year, the speaker stated, the world has passed through a great change in ways of living. The world war brought nations closer together. It brought a new era in international affairs and a need for a new way of settling world problems.

The great strides forward in scientific discovery and use of power have come in this period to revolutionize life. Ford says, "This is the age of power, not the age of machinery." Gasoline, steam and other forces are being harnessed and used as never before. To illustrate, the speaker told of the plan to build islands in Lake Michigan for the world exposition of 1933. Cars and boats will be run by radio activity, and landing fields are planned to accommodate 8,000 airplanes in which individuals will travel to the fair.

Education is also taking great steps forward, Rev. Snyder said. Schools which have been scattered over the nation as the basis of democracy, are multiplying. Courses of study are improving until, according to the speaker, the high school graduate today has as much learning as the college graduate of fifty years ago, except in Greek and Latin. People have faith in possibilities of educated youths. They are willing to spend much money for educational institutions, and parents are willing to make great sacrifices to give boys and girls an education for they have confidence in their future. This obligation to aid in this great change in the world is a challenge to students. If men and women see possibilities and meet them they will remake the world, bringing about a higher type of life. Each can not pay the debt to those who gave him advantages but he can be a worthy help to future generations.

He should, because of opportunities, be an aid in the home, state and nation.

With this sense of responsibility and with an appreciation of life's possibilities, each student may earn the happiness which deepens with years.

SUMMER SESSION FOLLOWS END OF WORK FOR YEAR

HIGH schools have graduated fine groups of young people, and the State Teachers College will contribute its usually increased number of finished products this week. Then will come about the summer term with a thousand new students, mostly teachers bent on greater preparation for their chosen vocations. Ambitious teachers seek to keep step with progress, and they spend time and money at normal schools and universities during the vacation period to learn latest ideas and newest methods. The Wayne State Teachers College will justly receive its full share. Accommodations for students have been improved, and every facility has been added to aid work. The teaching force has been increased, and every department head will be on the qui vive to make the summer session profitable and pleasant. The temporary residents of the city, reflecting a high student type, will be a most welcome source of animation.

Plea Of Guilty In Liquor Case

Young Man Is Bound Over to District Court on Check Charge Here Tuesday.

Lyle Hansen pleaded guilty in Wayne county court Saturday on a charge of possession of intoxicating liquor and he was ordered to pay a fine of $100 and costs of $14.10. As the sum was not paid, Hansen was placed in the county jail.

Having information regarding the whereabouts of liquor in the Hansen home, authorities obtained a search warrant and went to the place Saturday, finding one bottle of liquor in a coat which was said to belong to Wesley Hansen. They found two other bottles in the attic. They filed charge against Lyle and Wesley Hansen. Both pleaded not guilty in court. Afterward Lyle withdrew his plea and entered a plea of guilty, stating that Wesley had no interest in the liquor. The charge against Wesley was then withdrawn.

Heard on Check Charge. Harold Murphy, charged with signing a fictitious name to a check, entered a plea of not guilty in Wayne county court May 28. He was bound over to the district court for trial in November with bond fixed at $2,000. As he did not give bond he was placed in the county jail.

Murphy, it was alleged, gave a check for $1 on May 25 to the Student Supply store, signing the fictitious name of Pat Brown. On the complaint of S. B. Whitmore charge was filed against Murphy who pleaded not guilty.

Gives Address For Graduates

F. S. Berry Speaks on "The Base of the Triangle" at College Commencement.

Other Programs

Dr. H. M. Gage of Cedar Rapids, Iowa, Gives Baccalaureate Sermon Here Sunday.

Addressing graduates of the Wayne State Teachers College Wednesday morning on "The Base of the Triangle" at commencement exercises, F. S. Berry of Wayne, member of the state normal board and former president of the state bar association, asserted that in the people themselves lies the only final solution of problems which beset the country. The spark of the Divine is the rock of salvation which will bring a better manhood and womanhood, a better race and a better civilization.

The purpose and the end of education are a better and more enlightened citizenship. And a better citizenship is essential because no free government will ever be any better than the people of a country are worthy of and capable of. The administration of justice in this country will never rise any higher than the conscience and the morals of the people and education must bring not only enlightenment but also character. Hope for the future lies in these things. In any triangle of government or administration the people are the base.

Questions uppermost today concern disrespect for authority, lawlessness and an alleged crime wave. It is charged that legal institutions have broken down and courts are so inefficient that everyone is indulging in crime without fear of conviction or punishment. It is time people found out what a myth this is. Propaganda stating that 99 out of every 100 criminals brought to the bar of justice escape conviction is false. The fact is that in Nebraska 85 percent of all guilty persons arrested for crime are convicted and punished. Douglas county records for one year show that of 235 criminal cases in district court there, 278 were convictions and 17 were acquittals. During the ten-year period ending in 1927, penitentiary population in Nebraska increased 200 percent.

Humanity is far from perfect and there always has been and always will be a certain amount of crime. The increase in crime the past few years is based on natural causes. The country has changed from a rural to an urban population, one-fourth of the people living in seven cities. It has changed from an agricultural to an industrial nation. This great transition has brought problems of adjustment which have not yet been made by people and crime has resulted.

Administration of justice is responsive to the soil in which it grows and the elements which surround it. Satisfactory enforcement of law will come when the conscience and morals of the people are raised to a point near the standards of laws which are to be enforced.

Some things can be done by legislation to assist in law enforcement but there is a limit to what law can do for people and their morals. The rest the people must do for themselves. The shame of wrong doing is not in violating some law, but in being false to one's self. The ten commandments are guides but law can't force their practice.

Though citizenship has been at too low an ebb for a few years, there is reason to hope. After all there is a spark of the Divine which makes people want to do right, and on that spark rests hope for a better civilization.

Dr. H. M. Gage Speaks. Dr. Harry M. Gage of Cedar Rapids, Iowa, in addressing students at the baccalaureate service Sunday on the subject, "The World and the Individual," stated that as individuals need each other to make a composite group, so nations need others. Each possesses unique characteristics which can be put to service for others. Individuals and nations are worth much because of this service.

Pupils of the music department at the college appeared in a recital Monday evening.

"The Millionaire," comedy drama, was presented Tuesday evening at the college by students of the dramatic class.

Speaks To Club Here On Friday

Miss Martha Pierce Tells Wayne Women About the Western Art Convention.

Miss Martha Pierce addressed members of the Wayne Women's club and guests Friday following at 1 o'clock luncheon at Presbyterian church, telling of her visit to the Western Arts association meeting in Cleveland, Ohio. About fifty attended the function which closed the club's activities for the summer.

The Western Arts association, Miss Pierce explained, is an organization of teachers of art west of Pittsburgh. The convention theme this year was, "Development of the individual through creative activity." Exhibits of art work from public schools showed this tendency, letting the art be an expression of the individual's imagination rather than a copy of old masters' work. The aim is to allow each to develop his creative power, the teacher being a guide.

In the Cleveland meeting and also in the international water show which Miss Pierce attended in Chicago, the modernistic tendency was shown. This method, taught in the art schools, has percolated into all public schools.

Mrs. H. H. Hahn reported finances of the Woman's club, showing a balance of $275. About $400 has been earned and about the same amount spent the past year.

NERVES IN COURT TRIALS COMPARED TO THE OLD DAYS

A YOUNG lawyer, gaining in confidence, suggests to his heavy tax imposed on serve force during a court trial. A conscientious lawyer, accepting the obligation to defend a client's cause, has his nerves screwed up to the highest tension, and he has his plans carefully prepared and in hand to allow nothing to escape his attention—no lapse of details that might cause weakness or unnecessary failure. A lawyer who takes his practice seriously, making his client's case his own cause, suffers, in comparing facts and reason, a harrowing and exhausting experience. But as contrasted with court-room trials in the early days, present legal contests are tame and unexciting. Pioneers recall that a court of justice was often turned into a verbal battlefield. Lawyers cultivated skill in exchanging barbed invectives as well as in exhibiting knowledge of the law and evidence. People gathered from the countryside to witness flashing wits and onslaughts of abuse, and in the absence of other sources of exciting amusement, they usually felt gratified and repaid.

In these days of more poise and more dignity, court trials are less violent. Hatreds are not whetted by bald disregard of conflicting rights. Good feeling is not needlessly outraged. The nervous tension is great enough now for participants, but mild in comparison with that of the old days when lawyers often felt like yielding to drink as a means to forgetfulness, and sometimes they did.

While her companion is getting the princess' wrap, chimney sweeps take her fairy necklace. To recover the treasure the king offers half his kingdom and the hand of his daughter to the prince who returns it. H. E. Siman Pays Tribute to Civil War Veterans at Kiwanis Program Monday.

Flags Presented

Gift From District Governor E. C. Folsom of Lincoln, Is Gratefully Received.

H. E. Siman, Wayne attorney, addressed Wayne Kiwanians and guests Monday following the noonday luncheon at Hotel Stratton, giving an inspirational patriotic address. A. J. Hyatt and R. P. Williams, Wayne's two Civil war veterans, were guests of honor at the meeting.

In reviewing high lights in the history of the United States, Mr. Siman pointed out that the qualities of character possessed by Civil war veterans have made this country what it is. He showed that civilization makes advances by strides, by plateaus rather than by gradual incline. Big events in history mark the beginnings of these plateaus, and he asserted that the Civil war was one of the big advances. At that time civilization took a great step forward and a new attitude toward big problems was developed. Civilization was raised and characteristics developed still inspire.

District Governor E. C. Folsom of Lincoln, made the Wayne club a gift of flags recently, and District Trustee O. R. Bowen presented these to the group at the meeting Monday. William Beckenauer, president, accepted them in behalf of the club.

"Broadway Melody" Comes To Theatre

"The Broadway Melody," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's first all-talking, all-singing, all-dancing picture, which will appear at the Gay theatre June 2, 3 and 4, is interesting because its makers are reported to consider it the best possible advance messenger for their other all-dialogue films.

Those whose ears are close to the tickings of the hidden machinery of motion pictures have heard reports about this particular film for some time. First there were the usual conferences. Would a stage play or musical comedy be translated to the screen? Then there was word that Edmund Goulding had written an original story with "Tin Pan Alley" and the stage, both behind the footlights and behind the scenes, for a setting and that Harry Beaumont, who did "Our Dancing Daughters," would endeavor to get motion significant to the eye and sound not entirely displeasing to the ear, out of a cast headed by Charles King, Anita Page and Bessie Love.

Apparently on the theory that too many cooks can not spoil a meal, when each is engaged upon his special dish, James Gleason, author of "Is Zat So?" and "The Showboys of Broadway," and Norman Houston, were given the job of writing smart dialogue; and Arthur Freed wrote the lyrics and Nacio Herb Brown wrote the music for the songs, which include "Broadway Melody," "You Were Meant for Me" and "Love Boat."

A sprinkling of Technicolor was added, and a musical comedy chorus was called upon freely. Then the word sent out was that the company was more than ordinarily pleased with its first all-talking film. That their satisfaction was well founded has been proven by the overwhelming reception and enthusiastic review given the picture on its premiere at the Astor Theatre in New York City and its opening night at Sid Grauman's Theatre in Hollywood. Wherever the picture has been shown it has been accorded unlimited praise, pronounced the greatest talking film ever made.

Editor F. D. Stone of the Hartington Herald does not oppose so called "spooning," but he advises young people who yield to the age-old custom to keep off the main highways to escape the liability of being struck by passing cars and thus abruptly becoming objects of funeral and burial rites.

Marion Talley, metropolitan opera star whose phenomenal success in music, insured financial independence, has quit the footlights and proposes to engage in agriculture, having bought a farm in western Kansas. She proposes to grow wheat and raise Holstein cattle and turkeys and chickens. Away from the glamour and applause of the city, she seeks content on the fertile acres of a mid-western farm.

The tariff with which congress is wrestling, is a complex problem, more sectional than political, and to satisfy all groups is quite impossible. Members of congress are looking out for the wishes of constituents regardless of party affiliations, and each line of endeavor wants protection without always thinking of the injustice that may be done some other source of production. Compromises with consideration for markets at home and abroad, are necessary for uniform prosperity and healthy progress.

A magazine writer reports that in Ohio in 1828 when a request was made to use a schoolhouse for a meeting to discuss the use of steam for power on railroads, refusal was based on the assumption that railroads were impossible and that the proposed frightful speed of fifteen miles an hour did violate the scriptures which made no mention of such a wild and furious way of traveling. It had been deemed feasible and righteous to have railroads, it was pointed out that the prophets would have foretold them.

The story of former President Calvin Coolidge's boyhood, as written by himself and appearing in a current magazine, is the story of many boys who grew up during his time, and who had few advantages and many obstacles. It is the story of the simple, wholesome life of a boy on an average American farm—a boy who respected and loved his father and mother, and who, though careful with meager earnings, regarded industry as an essential beyond its power to earn and placed character above dollars.

We have just received a card from Gloucester, Mass., proposing to ship us a box of lobsters on approval. If we don't like the critters we can send them back without cost. But we have always been against lobsters and lobster meat, and we know in advance that we would not like the Massa-

LIMITING CROPS
 A grain buyer and land owner at North Loup, Neb., writes the Lincoln Journal in opposition to some of the notions touching farm relief. He expresses amazement over the suggestion to limit crop production. He says he owns 640 acres, and that if he allowed any part of his land to go unplanted, more work would be required to keep down the weeds than would be necessary to raise a good crop. If he sowed tame hay and everybody followed his example, the surplus would ruin the value. He points out that farms of the world have not yet produced enough so that all the people could have enough to eat. He sees the impracticability of owning a tract of land and then allowing part of it to remain idle in order to increase the market prices of crops produced. He evidently believes in diversification, opening of new sources of consumption and the development of marketing facilities. He suggests that most people who write on problems of agriculture could not make a living on a farm if given one, and that if congressmen were statesmen rather than politicians they could figure out ways to prevent a large crop from being worth less than a small one.

chussets variety, though it may be superior to some others. We don't like the way the lobster looks and walks, and probably it feels the same way toward us. Anyway, we are not going to invent a new association of assimilation, doubtless to the satisfaction of both of us.

The Summer Shows To Play At Park

The Summer Shows of 1929 will play at Yellow Banks Park beginning June 3 and continuing for five days. This is something new. It brings the best chautauque type of plays and popular musical productions such as everyone can understand and enjoy. There will be no lectures and no recital programs of any kind. Mr. Jones, owner of the company, announces as his slogan, "Our Aim's to Entertain." The program consists of four plays, four musical revues and a program of magic mystery and a one-act play. The last program is given free to all children. All seats are equipped with comfortable backs and foot rests. Mr. Jones promises the best five-day program under canvas and the equal of the best theatre programs in large cities. m30t1

Sievers of Pender, Mr. and Mrs. John Sievers and family, Mrs. Fred Nieman of Winslow, and Mr. and Mrs. Henry Ridge and family. Music and refreshments were served by the ladies.

MEMORIAL DAY.

Surviving war veterans will be joined by multitudes of friends in honoring memory of departed soldiers. Graves everywhere will be covered with beautiful flowers and patriotic deeds will be recalled and revered. Impressive services on the day set apart for the purpose express the feeling of a grateful people. Acquainted activities will be suspended, and flags will bow their heads in acknowledgment of unsatisfied obligations. Mingled with patriotic fervor will be the hope that future differences may be settled in an orderly manner and that no further sacrifice of blood and treasure may be necessary. Nations, like individuals, may find peaceful ways to dispose of disputes, and it is hoped they have made sufficient progress in civilization to do so. In lauding memory of departed soldiers and their imperishable deeds we may well be impressed with the horrors of armed conflict, and do everything that may honorably be done to insure future peace.

Rev. E. K. Beckman, missionary to China for many years, gave a very interesting talk at the Mission church Tuesday evening.

From here he went to Pender. His home is at Rockford, Ill.

The L. C. A. will meet in the church parlors Wednesday, June 12. This is the annual meeting and election of officers will be held. A covered dish luncheon will be served as there is no committee in charge.

Friends and neighbors remembered Mrs. Cass Branaman's birthday Saturday by gathering at her home for a social afternoon. The time was spent socially and serving of refreshments closed the afternoon. Gifts were presented.

The following were entertained at dinner in the George Anderson home Sunday: Mr. and Mrs. Axel Anderson, son, David, Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Erickson, son, Myron, Miss Esther Anderson, Cecil Warren, Mr. and Mrs. Chris Peterson.

Albert Anderson of Crookston spent the week-end here in the D. A. Paul home. He returned Monday, accompanied by Marjorie and Hazel Paul who will spend a month in the home of their aunt, Mrs. Wm. Hassed, and family in Lusk, Wyo.
