Speaks To Club
About Bargains

Rev. W. W. Whitman Addresses
Kiwanians Monday on Opportunities of Value.

Many Advantages

Young People Today Have Advantages in Learning Over Other Generations.

"The greatest bargains of real values are found in the young people of this generation," asserted Rev. W. W. Whitman, in an address Monday before the Kiwanians.
Comparison of songs favored by young people of this generation shows that newer ones contain less jazz. The speaker asserted that this and other criteria may be examined to show that young people's likes today are improving.
"It is about time we quit criticism of our young people and began to appreciate them," Rev. Whitman stated.

Spiritual values that cannot be bought with money are great bargains. They cost nothing but determine a person's worth in the community. One who takes all possible of spiritual learning to build character, is an aid to his community and to his children. The measure of one's soul is the measure of one's worth.

Public schools and colleges are bargains of great value. They offer opportunities within the reach of every boy and girl, opportunities which kings of centuries ago would gladly have given their kingdoms. Dr. Cadman said he saved 1492 years, one morning when he was 10 years old for he discovered that the world was round. It took others 1492 years to find it out. Caesar, Cicero, Socrates and Demosthenes never did find this out. To know that young people today have the advantages of learning so much which took long years to discover makes the schools a great bargain of information.

Advantages of men of learning, such as have been given at commencement exercises, are of infinite value to every citizen. The press affords a circulating university for everyone, the speaker stated. Through these avenues much may be learned, and everyone should take advantage of such opportunities.

American people are great bargain seekers, the speaker asserted.
The most enthusiastic places in any community are about bargain counters. This is well for people should be thrifty. Rev.
Whitman urged his listeners to look with the same eagerness for bargains in information which are of great value.

May Plan Celebration.

the Norfolk Chamber of Commerce, announces a project by relative to participation will be

ENFORCING PLAN TO SERVE FARMS
PUBLISHING DAY

WE are this week putting into operation a plan by which the Herald will reach rural subscribers around Winside, Carroll, Wakefield and Concord on the day of publication.
Farmers receiving mail from Wayne carriers have been reached on Thursdays for several years, but those around the other towns mentioned have not, on account of mail connections, been served until Friday. People in the towns have received their copies of the Herald each Thursday, but under the new arrangement they will receive them somewhat earlier in the day. Also the newspaper will be issued in time to catch the morning deliveries in Wayne. The new plan necessitates speeding up advertising and news matter, with no advertising copy accepted after noon on Wednesday. The office force will work long enough Wednesday night so that all forms will be ready to go on the press early Thursday morning. The papers will be taken to Winside and Carroll by automobile and to points east by train. We feel sure appreciation will amply justify the extra effort and cost. Service will be extended to include more remote points as soon as practicable or possible to do so.

Plan To Improve
School Building

Two Instructors Are Named on Wayne Staff for Next Year at

CELEBRATE HERE
FOURTH OF JULY
AUSPICES LEGION

THE Fourth of July will be celebrated in Wayne this year—first time in several years—and if previous celebrations are any criterion, people will have reason to look forward to a day of extraordinary attractions. The American Legion has the celebration in charge, and its committees are now at work making arrangements. More and greater attractions are required now to draw and hold people than in early days. Then an Independence day celebration was little more than a big picnic, and a ten or fifteen-mile ride in a lumber wagon over rough roads put one in proper condition to relish a picnic feast. A parade —brass band, young women lunched on a hayrack to represent the states and a group of callithumpians—was followed by a program of music, reading of the declaration of independence and a spreadeagle speech by a local orator. In the afternoon a few so called minor sports engaged attention, and in the evening a feeble display of fireworks closed the day.
Now luxurious and high-powered automobiles speed over good roads to the favored celebration, and attractions must be of a high order to win the crowd.

Tax Valuations
Being Finished

Schedules Show Personal Property
Totalling About Five Millions in County.

Board Will Sit
Next Week—Intangibles Must Be on File.

Personal property valuations in Wayne county will reach a total of about $4,700,000, according to an estimate from schedules now filed.
All assessors have finished their work excepting George Box of Wayne, and he will have his complete this week. The board of equalization will sit Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, June 11, 12 and 13, and at that time the books will be open for public inspection. Any complaints will be considered at that time.

Personal property valuation, according to County Assessor William Assenheimer, is about $400, 000 short of last year. This is largely due to less corn and consequently less feeder cattle. Assessment of real estate is taken only once in two years and last year's valuation holds over for this year's levy. The real estate will be assessed next year and it will probably be lower as property values have declined some in the past two years.

Intangible tax returns were to be filed by each taxpayer by Monday of last week. Mr. Assenheimer has received orders from the state tax commissioner to send notices to those who did not file these. Any who have not made out these returns are asked to see Mr. Assenheimer of a notary public at once.

Precinct valuations on personal property this year are as follows:
Logan, Oscar Hildner, $274,000;
Hoskins, E. O. Behmer, $317,600;
Sherman, J. L. Davis, $313,800;
Chapin, William Prince, $230,400;
Garfield, Mark Swihart, $240,000;
Brenna, George Wert, $394,000;
Plum Creek, J. G. Bergt, $459,
500; Hunter, Herman Lutt, $386,
800; Leslie, Edward Kal, $320,
707; Strahan, Charles Jeffrey, $316,600; Wilbur, Andrew W.
Stamm, $305,000; Dear Creek, M.
W. Ahern, $223,000; and Harcock, Lloyd Prince, $300,000.

Valuations in the towns are as follows: Hoskins, E. O. Behmer, $59,000; Carroll, W. W. Ahern,
$114,000; Sholes, J. L. Davis, $140,000; Heikes addition to Wakefield, Oscar Hildner, $8,000; Winside, Charles Schellenberg, $120, 000. Wayne will total about $500, 000.

signs," in the hotels lingered on even after the automobile era had begun.

That first lamp invented by Edison, with its carbonized filament, wasn't such a wonder as an illuminant. It was safer and cleaner and more convenient than the kerosene lamp or the gas light, but the round wicked parlor lamp and the gas mantle gave the brighter light. It was only after the tungsten filament had been developed to replace the carbonized filament that the electric light really began to turn night into day. Now the ordinary electric light can give us about everything that sunlight does except the ultra violet rays, and there are specially devised lamps which can produce them.

Twenty-five years ago gas lamps were still in common use even in the larger cities for street lighting and so few houses comparatively were wired that rental agents mentioned the fact of electric lights in those that were in their and isolated village indeed that hasn't an electric lighting system available both for street and home lighting. Every year sees an additional number of farm homes thus lighted, either from nearby towns or by the installation of farm lighting plants.

A million lamps were used in illumination of the Atlantic City celebration. It was a good many years after Mr. Edison saw success ahead before there were that many in all America.

Vesuvius is out on another rampage, sending its fiery lava down neighboring valleys and threatening destruction to villages in the vicinity. If we lived within the danger zone, we would move out and stay out.

The United States senate which stood out for the "debutante" plan in the form relief bill will yield to the house by eliminating that objectionable provision if its consideration for farming communities is sincere and not overruled by small politics involving more of a desire to buck the administration than to serve constituents.

The president's appointment of a commission to find the cause for increase in law violations will meet with general approval. Members of the commission are scholars of much experience, broad vision and unprejudiced minds. They will study the crime problem and recommend ways to secure greater respect for law. The prohibition element which is most violated, will be given special attention.

Increased speculation in Wall Street stock markets has aroused strong protests from Washington lawmakers who lament the volume of money thus taken out of the regular channels of business. If one wants to get rich it is better to do it gradually and without any dangerous plunges into the mad stream of Wall Street. Better to stick to one's last.

The Hartington Herald suggests that a dandelion is too tough and mean to surrender to a strawberry plant, and that an attempt to cross the two would result in the death of the latter and the triumph of the former. Probably the only effectual way to get rid of the yellow pests is to dig them out, one by one, and then cast them, roots and all, into flaming fire.

The Hartington Herald is installing a second linotype machine to meet its growing requirements. Editor Stone and his friends have been going forward at giant strides, and their production maintains highest standards of country journalism from week to week. Competitors will have to suffer by contrast until a law is passed hobbling and checking excessive enterprise and surpassing service.

The Herald's stimulated service for farmers around neighboring towns will enable them earlier to read Wayne store news and take advantage of buying opportunities set forth in the advertising columns of this newspaper. One important way to practice economy without lowering standards of living is to study Herald store advertising every week. Invitations to trade here are cordial and qualities and prices are persuasive.

In the course of a letter a Michigan publisher asks if we were a veteran of the Civil war—an impression which he had in some way received, suggesting that if we were, it is about time for us to quit and arrange for a "harp." Sometimes—not often—we feel that old. However, we arrived a long time after the war closed, and usually we feel as sprightly and ambitious as the young fellows who are being graduated from American colleges.

The Nebraska Farmer points out the increasing use of scientifically built hog houses as safeguards for health and as promoters of greater profits. Says that paper: "It is known that the old hog lots, where pigs are raised year after year, harbor parasites and diseases. Round worms, henc and other hog ailments are eliminated by rotation of grounds. Progressive farm people everywhere have adopted the new method of hog production with the result, in practically every instance, being more pork per sow and at less cost."

It has lately penetrated the understanding of the legislature of Texas that members of school boards, dealing with matters of education, should at least be able to read and write, and so a bill has passed one house requiring such qualifications. In pressing the measure, it is charged that many school trustees in the Lone Star state can neither read nor write. If a majority of the Texas legislature can both read and write, or do either with fair show of intelligence, the proposition will doubtless become a law, and then illiteracy will not sit in judgment over policies of education.

The report that Senator Norris had charged Ole Buck, field secretary of the Nebraska Press Association, with accepting pay from the so called power trust to influence the state's newspapers, is amazing to publishers who are familiar with the field secretary's policies. It is patent to all editors that he is against publication of free propaganda of any kind and that he plays no politics and carries favor with no particular individual, organization or interest. If the senator made the charge imputed to him, and if he is no surer of other complaints, he has been tuning wild and with the governing belt off.

The legislative committee appointed to investigate charges directed at the new capitol, has filed its report, finding no serious defects and no one guilty of neglect of duty. The committee predicts that the new capitol when completed will require a total expenditure of $10,000,000, and that the state will receive full value for the money and have reason to feel proud of the improvement. The report mentions some minor defects that may easily be remedied. Any building operation, no matter how small, usually shows errors or omissions, and it is surprising that there are so few rather than so many defects in a ten-million-dollar structure. The report allays fear felt as a result of former complaints.

An encouraging report comes from Iowa in regard to farm conditions there. It has not been long since Iowa agriculture was, perhaps due to heavily inflated values and excessive speculation following the war, in worse shape than that in Nebraska. Carefully compiled results of a recent inquiry reaching into all but one county of Iowa show an improvement in farming conditions over those of a year ago and those of five years ago, show farm profits higher and farm loans lower and farmers more optimistic. While farm values have not increased since 1924, more farms have changed hands, showing an increased demand. Though Nebraska agriculture suffered less than that in Iowa, it is likely an investigation would show healthy improvement in this state.

The suggestion by Prof. Robert E. Rogers of the English department of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, to graduates of that institution to cultivate snobbishness as an essential to success, comes too late to influence our seasoned and inflexible life. By inheritance and training we early came to regard snobbishness with the utmost contempt, and we could not be persuaded to change our mind. A snob is one who fawns at the feet of wealth or station, but who lifts his nasal appendage high into the air in the presence of the less fortunate, even though not less worthy and deserving. One should have plenty of self-esteem as a spur and shock absorber, but he should not feel so superior that he becomes an offending monstrosity and an intolerable nuisance.

Law Enforcement.
 Lincoln Journal: Chairman Wickersham of the national law enforcement commission says that that body does not propose to take sides in the wet and dry argument, but that it will direct its attention to something more fundamental, to discover if possible why all laws are regarded with indifference by various classes of citizens. He very properly says that what courts is the general attitude toward law. America has long been known as the most lawless of the civilized nations. The commission expects to find out why. Then if the people refuse to save themselves they will deserve the fate the dead and gone civilizations met.

Nebraska Law Making.
 Lincoln Journal: There is hope for better government when members of the legislature recognize the weaknesses of our law making system and the inefficiency of the tools with which they must work. Few have gone home satisfied that the best thing possible had been done. Few may be found who do not realize that some obstacles to the proper and efficient functioning of a lawmaking body can be removed.

Nebraska in matters of law making is not worse off than its neighbors. In fact its most recent legislature functioned with less regret than did the legislatures in a number of other states. Its average efficiency was probably as high as that of other sessions in this state. The discussion now is not aggravated more by what was done last winter, or what was not done, than by what was done or not done in other winters. It is not a discussion of the legislature but of the legislature—the system itself.

The insistence of a number of legislators who have had experience in more than one session that good may be accomplished by separating appropriations and law making is striking enough to merit consideration and careful thought. Through such separation much logging might be eliminated and the merits of appropriations and laws might be made the sole tests in securing votes in their support.

Probably the most important suggestion made, although probably less than many others, is that greater care should be exercised by the voters in selecting members of the legislature. It is true that a new member requires a term or two properly to orient himself and to learn the ways of legislation and legislators. By the end of that period, when he should be most useful to his constituents and to the state, he is retired. The taxpayers pay dearly for these constant shifts, although the infusion of new blood and the appearance of new men in legislatures may also bring benefits.

Hereditarily is a great influence. The harder dad's nose is preston on the grindstone, the more the kids' noses turn up.—Waco News-Tribune.

UNYIELDING.
 Nature is an inexorable court of justice. It exacts full penalties without listening to excuses or offering explanations. If one eats a green cucumber, he runs the risk of incurring internal wrath which nature will not stay. If he dissipates energies in brutal disregard of rules of health, thus impairing vitality, he cannot appeal to nature on the ground of constitutional weakness, or offer the excuse that he has a large and deserving family dependent on him for support. He can't get away with a plea that he never had a chance. He can't escape on the ground that he didn't think. He can't find protection in the hands of merciful society. Nature cooly extracts vitality, and it does not put it back unless or until due amends have been made. Nature cannot be entreated, bought or bulldozed. It swerves not one iota from its regular course, and every violation pays full penalty without any fooling.

Memorial Service For Wayne Lawyer

Memorial services were held in Scottish Rite temple in Omaha Tuesday evening for two past grand masters of the Masonic lodge, A. R. Davis of Wayne, and Samuel Davidson of Tecumseh. Five hundred Masons were present for the ceremonies performed by the Grand Lodge members. Bishop George Allen Beecher of Hastings, delivered the Davis oration, and James R. Cain, Jr., of Omaha, gave the Davidson oration. Former Senator Norris Brown also spoke.

Baseball Contest Determines Title

A baseball game of special interest is to be played at the fair grounds in Wayne next Sunday when railroad teams meet to determine championship. St. James, Minn., winner of the western division title, and Omaha, winner of the Omaha division title, will play. The champion in Wayne goes to Chicago to compete for title in the northwestern division of the C. St. P. M. & O. line.

Business.
 Sioux City Journal: Slight irregularities in trade are reported, but for the most part the condition was influenced by unseasonable weather. Higher temperatures the last week influenced a quickened activity that more nearly approached normal. The wholesale trade fell off somewhat the last week in May, but not in a degree to cause a feeling of uneasiness. The advent of real summer weather confidently is expected to bring a recovery in many lines in merchandising, and a good season is the forecast.

The stock market has had its ups and downs also. Stocks went to a new low level during the week, while bonds enjoyed a slight upturn. Utilities and rails held the center of interest in Wall street with a decided bullish trend. There was an appreciable lack of regularity in Wall street, and the lessened activity merely was more noticeable because of previous developments.

Market Report.

Sioux City Stock Yards.—Bullishness characterized the general live stock markets on the opening day of the week but slowness was noted on cattle, declines featured on hogs, and firmness ruled on lambs, on the second session.

Cattle receipts were lighter than expected on the initial session and comparatively heavy on the second session. Shippers were on the market for a limited number of cattle but packers were fairly good buyers.

A top of $14.50 was paid for two loads of 1,338 pound beeves from Ponca, Neb., the highest price of the spring and summer for this weight. Other medium weights sold at the figure and yearlings topped at $14.35 but the right kinds would have hit around $14.75 or better. Quality of the run was considerably better than the average for recent weeks. Bulk of the supply sold at $12.75@14 with plainer grades down to $12 and commons down to $11.

A small share of the receipts went to the butcher stock division. Heifers were strong to 15c higher, Monday, and about steady on the second day. A load of choice light weight heifers topped at $14.25 and other sales were made mostly at $12@13.50. Heavy heifers topped at $13.

The cow market held a firm basis. Bulk of the butcher grades sold at $9.50@11 with choice kinds and koshers to $12 and better and plain butcher cows down to $8. Cutters and low cutters sold largely at $6@7.75.

Veals advanced 50c a hundred. Packers paid up to $13.50 for choice light weights and independents went to $14 for selects. Country buyers took some of the choice light weights at $13.50@14.00. The bull market did not change, compared with last week. Bulk of the medium bolognas sold at $9@9.25 with weighty grades to $9.50 and heavy beef bulls up to $10.25 and above.

Stockers and feeders moved at firm prices. Receipts were light and country demand was fairly broad. Light native steers in small lots made up the bigger share of the run with a few westerns. Sales on desirable grades landed at $12@13.25 with fair and plain lots at $10.50@12. A few cows sold downward from $8.50 and heifers ranged up to $11.50. Curtailed receipts of live pork

Play Time For Farmers.
 Nebraska Farmer: A little play mixed in with hard work often makes a hard job easier to accomplish. Wholesome recreation and rest are a mental and physical tonic that lightens the burden of any job. Youth must have its play and is better for it. To deprive children of the opportunity for play-ing is the greatest handicap that can be given them. For, first of all it takes away the benefits of association with others.

Neighborhood associations are just as important to the grown-up as to the child, and even though the natural play-time season is a busy one for the farmer, he will find it pays to indulge occasionally with his family in short periods of recreation or rest. Summer is the picnic season of the year. Many county agents are wisely promoting county-wide farm picnics, and these will succeed only if the farmers participate in them. So important does the Agricultural College Extension Service regard these picnics that it has issued a bulletin, Extension Circular No. 505 entitled "Let's Have a Picnic" which gives much aid to those interested in picnics. It deals with outdoor games and general plans for picnics, large or small.

To those interested it will be sent free, upon request to the Agricultural Extension Service of the Nebraska College of Agriculture, Lincoln.

Helping the Farmer.

Dr. A. L. Bixby in Lincoln Journal: It is proposed in the relief bill introduced by Congressman Howard that the warehouse receipts given the farmer who unloads his grain in these government-owned elevators, shall be negotiable. But how will that help the farmer who is in debt and must dig up the dust? Dumping the early-harvested wheat into a government warehouse is not likely to advance the price unless held there for the heavier demand. We are sure Edgar wants to do something for the farmer, but the atmosphere at Washington is no help to one's thinking.

sent values up to 15 to 25c on Monday but increased supplies around the market circuit on the second session more than wiped out the advance. The market is very sensitive to receipts at this time and vice versa in that receipts seem to bulge the day following an advance.

Shippers have been rather small buyers this week, limiting their purchases to a few light to medium weight butchers and to sows and stags.

On Tuesday, top was $10.40 to shippers and $10.35 to packers. Bulk of the light and medium weight butchers sold at $10.25@10.35; strong weights at $10@10.25; heavies, $ 7.50@10; sows, $9 @9.25 with a few on the butcher order to $9.50; stags, $9.25@9.75; pigs, from $10.25 down.

The sheep market held steady on Monday and was strong to a quarter higher on the second day. Native spring lambs topped at $15.50 and clipped lambs on the yearling order sold at $12.25. Shorn ewes made $6.50 without trouble.

Nebraska Fourth In Agriculture
Lincoln, Neb., June 4—Known within the memory of many a man now living as the "great American desert," Nebraska ranked in 1928 as America's fourth state for agricultural products.

Only in one item—its harvest of prairie hay—did the state reach the pinnacle of a first place, but in two much more important ones did it gain second rank, while in a couple of other outstanding particulars was if placed third.

Nebraska's chief crop—corn—was second to the quotas of maize turned out by Iowa and Illinois, while in wheat the state trailed the nation's "bread basket," Kansas. Her hogs gave her second place in swine growing, and her western ranges made it a third for cattle.

The figures on certain other crops and livestock are as follows: Spring wheat, tenth; oats, seventh; barley, ninth; potatoes, fifth; apples, thirty-fifth; produce, thirty-seventh.

In the matter of other livestock the statistics read: Horses, sixth; mules, fifteenth; milk cows, fourteenth; sheep, fifteenth.

Rebuild Highways Damaged By Rain
Norfolk News, June 4: Construction crews this week will start rebuilding highways in northeast Nebraska, which were damaged by water overflowing from swollen creeks twice last week.

New fills on highway No. 81 north of Crofton were washed away Tuesday night and again last Friday. New culverts withstood the pressure of the torrents, but the new fills gave way.

Damage to highways and farm property west of Hubbard is greater than was estimated shortly after the five-inch downpour visited that region Tuesday afternoon. In addition to washing out a bridge between Hubbard and Nacora, the torrent cut a gully about twenty feet deep and sixty feet across the top, in the highway.

Trapped in His Car.
An unidentified motorist who was traveling in a normally dry valley about two miles west of Hubbard was trapped in his automobile by a wall of water that rapidly descended from the hills. The strong current swept the car off the highway and left it near the railway tracks.

When rescued the motorist was on top of his automobile. His car was filled with silt and mud.

Employees of the state department of public works barely escaped being caught by a wall of water as it rolled down a small creek between Nacora and Hubbard. So quickly did the water descend, they were unable to save their tools and lunch boxes. At this point the torrent wiped away everything about the bridge, except the structure on which the men had been working.

Track Is Damaged.
Between Jackson and Willis, about 3,300 feet of M. & O. railway track was swept out of position by the raging waters. Burlington tracks also sustained considerable damage in that vicinity. Construction crews have made sufficient repairs to permit regular train service again.

Several residents of Jackson and immediate vicinity Saturday were cleaning their houses, through which the high water passed.

Residents west of Jackson stated that last week's high water in Elk creek was the highest it had been in that locality in thirty years.

In several places west of Jackson, silt a foot deep was left deposited on farm land adjacent to the creeks. On several farms, the crops were damaged.

Blessed are the poor. They can go to jail without being annoyed by photographers. — Roanoke World News.

Wheat Responds.
Norfolk News: The response of the wheat market to the proposal that congress appropriate immediately a large fund to permit the buying and holding of the surplus crop, gives some indication of what orderly marketing can do for the farmers.

The market, which had been supported for some months by speculators, broke when the realization came that we had a large visible supply which the European market could not absorb except at ruinous prices, and that Argentina and Australia were pouring their grain into the Liverpool elevators. The market was further weakened by the bright prospects for a heavy crop in Kansas and Oklahoma. The recession probably went further than conditions justified and the rebound was helped to that extent.

If, under the direction of a federal board, the wheat market can be so organized that traders and European customers will know that large surpluses will be removed from the active market and stored until such time as market conditions are favorable, violent fluctuations, either up or down, probably will be avoided. It is the uncontrolled market, influenced by speculative activities, that usually contribute to rapid increases and declines in the price of any commodity.

MERITS OF ABSTINENCE

The International Uniform Sunday School Lesson for June 9. The Benefits of Total Abstinence. Jeremiah 51:5-11.

The prohibitionist says that such suppression of the traffic is justified upon the facts because any supposed benefit to the individual, even if one granted it is out of all proportion to the injury to other individuals and to the evil effect upon society. The anti-prohibitionist either contends that the individual has the prerogative right to drink intoxicants regardless of this question of the social effect upon the community, or holds that prohibition is an ineffective remedy for an acknowledged evil.
When one considers what the effect of the liquor habit has been in the life of humanity and the scourge of alcohol throughout the ages, secondary perhaps only to the scourges of war and slavery, it ought not to be a very serious sacrifice for any man or woman to take the attitude of having nothing whatever to do with intoxicants. Certainly the habit of total abstinence is safe, sane, and not only in the direction of the highest values but in opposition to what has always developed into a very great evil.

Minnesota No. 3 Improved Mower
We are offering to the trade a line of mowers, embodying all that is newest and best in the construction of an up-to-date mower; strength, durability, lightness of draft, easy handling and capable of doing satisfactory work, even under adverse conditions. They cut a clean, smooth swath and are as nearly noiseless as it is possible to make a fast running machine. We make this mower in three widths—four and one-half foot, five-foot and six-foot cut.

Special Features of the Minnesota No. 3 Mower
Strong, One-Piece Frame, the bearings are kept in perfect alignment. High, Broad Faced Drive Wheels, mower runs easily on hard or soft ground. Roller Bearings, light draft and long life. All gears are enclosed, keeping out dust and dirt. Oil Chamber on Pitman, keeps crank pin thoroughly oiled. Finger Bar and Knife Back are cold rolled steel, combining great strength and smooth wearing surfaces. Hart Steel Wearing Plates, wear on knife back and plates are evenly distributed.

Underdraft, increases the traction of the drive wheels. Powerful Foot Lift, both hands are left free to manage the team. Four-Pawl Ratchets, knife operates the instant the wheels begin to turn. Flexible Swath Board follows the ground at any range of tilt and will yield in case of striking an obstruction. Paint Distributed Evenly. All machines are painted with a brush, thus preventing paint from running into the bearings, causing roller bearings to slide and stick and making the machine pull hard.

Minnesota Improved Hay Rake
The Minnesota Hay Rake is designed and constructed to do first class work. It is made in three sizes—ten-foot, twenty-six tooth; ten-foot, thirty tooth; and twelve-foot, thirty-six tooth.

Here's How One Man Can Do Two Men's Work Faster, Cleaner Cultivating

The McCormick-Deering Ball-Bearing Cream Separator

The Pride of the Household

That's what this modern machine can't help being—the McCormick-Deering Ball-Bearing Cream Separator is so far ahead in design and appearance. It is beautiful to the eye—glossy black japanning with gold pin-striping. It has graceful lines. It is sanitary and easy-cleaning, from the rounded supply can down to the open base, inside and out. But the big things in the new McCormick-Deering are the ball-bearing equipment at every high-speed point, the wonderfully efficient bowl design, and the positive automatic lubrication. These give you a supersubstituting easy-turning separator, cleanest possible skimming whatever the condition of the milk, long life for the machine, and top profit from your milking.

This fine McCormick-Deering is also an easy implement to operate. You can dodge corn stalks and hills with the ease of a single-row machine because the gangs shift in pairs, and because it embodies an ingenious pivoting and locking arrangement that lessens the monotony of the work and makes operation very simple.

You don't need a large acreage of corn to justify the purchase of a McCormick-Deering two-row cultivator. About the most expensive item on a farm nowadays is labor. One man on a McCormick-Deering two-row will do as much work as two men with single-row cultivators. If you hire help, a two-row will cut your cultivating costs in two. If you do the work yourself, you can get it done in just one-half the time and you will be able to get your cultivating out of the way for other work which is sure to be crowding it.

We also sell the well-known Moline Two-Row Cultivator.

Alfred Nordstrom
Wakefield, Neb.

One of the six sizes of the ball-bearing McCormick-Deering will be a splendid investment. Hand, belt, or electric. Come in and have it demonstrated. Our time payment plan (12 months) will help the machine to pay for itself.

Gives Address Memorial Day

Prof. I. H. Britell Urges Loyalty to Ideals in Solving Peace Time Problems.
County Veterans
A. J. Hyatt, R. P. Williams, W. C. Lowry, Cyril Templin and T. P. Groat Survive.

Prof. I. H. Britell addressed a large audience at the Memorial day services in the Gay theatre last Thursday morning, challenging citizens to patriotism in solving the great problems which confront the nation today. Life has in the past fifty years been revolutionized and the same devotion to ideals, shown by veterans of past wars, needs to be displayed at this time. Prof. Britell expressed faith in the institutions of government, religion and the home to bring about adjustment to these changes.

Memorial day is set aside for honoring those who have upheld ideals of the country, the speaker stated. The government is in a number of ways honoring these men. The statue to the unknown soldier at Arlington, the memorial to the confederate and union veterans at Pittsburgh Landing, and the monument to Robert E. Lee at Lexington are among the memorials placed for those who upheld ideals.

This country has been passing through a great crisis the past few years. The automobile, radio, telephone, telegraph, electric lights, electric power, motion pictures and many other inventions and discoveries have revolutionized life within the recollection of many people of the present generation. These new things have been more than progress; they have made a complete readjustment necessary. Prof. Britell likened the change to a family trying to remodel their home and remain in it. Many things are disturbed and changed and it is necessary to become accustomed to entirely new surroundings.

Several national problems also confront the people, law enforcement, religious observance, education and home life. The enforcement of the Eighteenth amendment is similar to the slavery question of sixty years ago; forces are working on each side, and the powers upholding the constitution have a hard, steady pull to win. Changes in home life of the present are also problems requiring adherence to ideals. Public schools are changing, the speaker stated, some stressing extra-curricular activities more than fundamentals of education. The problem of what is best must be determined. Churches must meet new situations too. Whether they will cling to the doctrines of the past or reinterpret them is a question.

Prof. Britell expressed belief that these great problems are being met by carefully thinking citizens and that the readjusting will be made to bring the nation to a higher level. Veterans of the World war, he stated, who displayed heroism and faith in past crises, will meet these problems successfully by using the same inspiration and loyalty to ideals.

Prof. C. E. Wilson, commander of the Wayne American Legion post, presided at the program. The Wayne band, directed by Prof. F. C. Reed, played selections. The college male quartet, consisting of Prof. J. G. W. Lewis, Prof. W. C. Lowrie, Prof. G. W. Costerisan and Prof. A. F. Gulliver, sang. Newell Pollard gave Lincoln's Gettysburg address. Rev. Fenton C. Jones opened and closed the meeting with prayer.

A. J. Hyatt and R. P. Williams, Wayne's remaining Civil war veterans, were guests of honor for the day. Sommers Fox who has been with the group for many years, is in Kansas this summer and so was not able to attend.

Besides the two Civil war veterans in Wayne, W. C. Lowry of Winside, T. P. Groat of Carroll, and Cyril Templin of Hoskins, are the remaining veterans in Wayne county.

Following the program at the theatre rites were conducted at Greenwood cemetery over a plot of ground set aside for the splinter and sailor dead. It is hoped that some memorial may be erected on the plot so that the ritual services may be held here each year.

The Auxiliary decorated graves of veterans in Greenwood and LaPorte cemeteries. There are fifty-two Civil war and five Spanish-American war and twelve World war veterans in Greenwood cemetery, and five Civil war veterans in LaPorte cemetery.

Addresses Kiwanis Club At Norfolk
Prof. F. G. Dale of Wayne, addressed Kiwanians at Norfolk Monday on the wealth of Nebraska. The Norfolk News reports his address as follows:

"Among the states in the union, Nebraska ranks first in per capita wealth from the standpoint of products and of money on deposit in the banks, Fred Dale, head of the department of geography of Wayne State Teachers' college, told members of the Norfolk Kiwanis club.

"Nebraska has a sufficient number of automobiles to permit every resident of the state to ride at the same time, he continued. Nebraska has more automobiles than either France or Germany, where the automobile really originated. Germany has only one automobile per 280 persons.

"Nebraska's high rank as compared to other states is due to diversified agriculture, Mr. Dale told the Kiwanians. This diversity is largely due to geographic divisions, which include types of rainfall and climate, he added.

"Nebraska ranks high among the states in production of crops, but not so high in industry, mainly because it does not have the coal supply and power necessary for manufacturing on a large scale, said the speaker.

"Speaking on the early history of Nebraska, Mr. Dale said in 1854 when it became a territory, only about 2,000 persons resided within the boundaries. "The present population of Nebraska is 1,300,000 persons, but it is not increasing rapidly, principally because of lack of industries, the state being mainly agricultural."

"There is a steady decrease in the farm population in Nebraska, the speaker pointed out, this being largely due to the introduction of highly efficient modern implements on the farm."

Big Impetus Given Cotton and Linen Fabrics in Fashions for Summer

BY HARRIET
KING COTTON has made a satisfactory bargain with Dame Fashion this summer and will be featured by her in many ways.
Lingerie, beach outfits, sport frocks, daytime dresses and even cutaway sport suits are all using cotton and other wash fabrics along with silks and satins.
In fact, there is quite a vogue for cotton frocks. The new styles in cottons have much to do with this come-back they have staged. All the latest checks, dots, modernistic geometric designs and other timely patterns that have distinguished silks now have their counterpart in cottons and linens.

Gingham and Linen
Quite chic is the little wash blouse that completes a silk or woolen suit. Even chic is the suit that uses gingham, cotton crepe, etamine or linen for the coat and skirt and fine batiste for the blouse.
Lingerie touches in wash fabrics are all the go in dark clothes. The coat frock for the street finds a vestee of organdie or pique positively indispensable. Collars and cuffs of pique adorn many westered suits this summer. One novel and low georgette frock from Paris bands itself in varying shades of yellow linen, making a charmingly original appearance.
In fact, throughout the whole realm of fashions, there is tremendous impetus given cottons and linens. It is pre-eminently a return to homelike costumes. The wearability of these fabrics is being the besting this season. To the woman handy with her needle, it looks as if the whole summer field of fashion is waiting for her touch.

These frocks offers temptations to anyone. It would seem. Such a beautiful range of colors has been seen. And such lovely features. If one sees already, it will be a pleasure to evolve the summer wardrobe. If one doesn't, it is an excellent time to start.
Two excellent examples of practical wash-goods costumes are shown today. One is a frock that could be topped either by a silk or linen coat. The other is a cute gingham suit, with crepe de chine blouse.

The frock is made of a new style of goods, a novelty cotton fabric that uses orange, tan and white in a modernistic manner. Tan silk fashions a jabot and little flaring touches at the sleeves and brown bone buttons add their dignified touch. The skirt has pleats below the hipline and a self-belt buttons in front. The neck is self-bound, with the jabot for a nice touch.
Fine for topping this type of frock is one of the new feather-weight felts. They are practical, lightweight, and easily packed, if one intends to journey afar on vacation. This one is tan, with brown felt trim, in the form of a cutout banding.
The suit is made of navy blue and white checks. The skirt has two new features, it buttons up the front and has only side fullness, box pleats below each hip.
The blouse is a sleeveless one, of white crepe de chine, with all edges bound in light blue. Either white shoes, and a white hat, or blue shoes and hat can be worn with this suit. It is practical, inexpensive to make and chic and cool.

"The Letter" To Be Shown At The Gay The peculiar advantages of the moving pictures over the stage are brought out strikingly in "The Letter," a Paramount production in which the famous stage and screen star, Jeanne Eaglers, has the leading role. The stage with its limitations of scene (can usually do no more than suggest the surrounding atmosphere. Motion pictures actually show it. There are many colorful sets in "The Letter," all of them presenting the usual life of Singapore and the Orient, which will be actually seen in the film version of this W. Somerset Maugham success. Miss Eaglers has O. P. Heggie, Herbert Marshall and Reginald Owen as featured members of her supporting cast, all of whom were recruited from the stage. Because of this, the all-talking version, as it will be presented at the Gay theatre, June 9, 10 and 11 is certain to be received by local film-goers with boundless enthusiasm. Lutheran Meeting Is Planned Soon More than 1,000 delegates, representing 1,100,000 members of the Evangelical Lutheran synod of Missouri, Ohio and other states, will convene at the Concordia Teachers' seminary in River Forest, Ill., from June 19 to 29. Congregations in and near Wayne, Altona, Wakefield, Carroll, Concordia, Winside, Hopkins and other towns in this section of the state belong to the group. This is the triennial convention of the organization, and an outstanding feature is the celebration of the four hundredth anniversary of Martin Luther's catechism. The Missouri synod has 3,371 pastors, 4,527 churches, 1,106,745 baptized and 687,643 communicant members. The organization handled $3,255,493.20 during the year of 1928. The anniversary of the Martin Luther catechism is planned for Sunday, June 23. A parade of fifteen floats, depicting biblical teachings and the work of the Lutheran church, a flag drill by 6,000 pupils of Lutheran schools, anthems by a chorus of 3,000 voices and appropriate addresses will comprise the program. Relations between the United States and Great Britain are not going to be made any more pleasant by the latter country's publication of the authentic passenger list of the Mayflower—New York Sun. Monday Hangover. Hartington Herald: The writer frequently hears persons, even young persons, complain of what might be called for lack of a better name a Monday morning hangover. They say they don't feel well; that they have no pep; that they are tired and sleepy; that they are all in, depressed and dejected and that it is hard for them to get under way with their work. It is quite a common experience, observed and commented on by both employers and teachers, and one is led to wonder what the cause or causes of such a condition may be. In the case of individuals who spend Sunday in drinking or other forms of dissipation, the reason for this state of exhaustion or depression on Monday morning is obvious enough; but that reason would apply to comparatively few. The more difficult problem is to ascertain why it is that many clear-thinking and clean-living persons, including healthy boys and girls, experience a similar lassitude. Without any attempt to discuss the question in a scientific way, one may venture the opinion that the cause of the Monday hangover is excessive activity on the previous day. It may be too much golfing, too much ball playing, too much joy riding or some other form of recreation or it may be, as it often is, too much hard work; but, whatever it is, the effect is the same and Monday, instead of finding the individual rested, refreshed and rejoicing as a strong man to run a race," finds him or her physically tired out and mentally weary. From every point of view, a "day of rest" is a beneficial provision in the program of the human race and, while no objection can reasonably be made to a certain amount of recreation and amusement on Sunday, extremes should be carefully avoided. The effect is the thing to be considered and too much Sunday activity is harmful. Especially, is this true, we believe, of the person who works or studies on that day. That may be a necessity once in a while, but, generally speaking, we are firmly convinced that more can be accomplished in six days than seven. Sunday should be different from other days—different in thought, purpose and activity—and those who so observe it are much more fit to resume the daily routine on Monday morning than those to whom all days are alike.

Delco-Light

They are long on weddings and short on schoolmams in the next township.

Seems like the girls over there decided school teaching had pumping ing water and carrying buckets beat all hollow, and a bunch of young farmers were not making much headway in their courting. There were so many bachelors it looked like it ought to be schoolmams' heaven.

We kidded a real good looking one about a young farmer with 160 acres of good land, and she said: "Much I care about his old land. I helped my mother wash and scrub, and pump water and carry big buckets till I was eighteen, and you can bet I'm through."

Well sir, we hiked right over there and sold a bunch of Delco-Light plants and D L Water Systems, and now the school board want to sue us for alienation of affections. But much we care.

You have to be up -to-date to keep young folks on the farm. They know there's no sense or money in hand pumps and other old-fashioned contraptions. And if you don't believe they're right, come in and we will prove it to you.

We have a complete line to pick from.

Our D L Water Systems range in capacity from 225 to 800 gallons per hour, and in depth from 25 to 375 feet.

Our Delco-Light plants range in sizes from 750 watts up, and are made in hand cranked, battery charging, combination automatic and battery, and full automatic; and are air-cooled, in one- and four-cylinder models.

"A Delco-Light plant runs everything on the farm except Ma." Ma runs the Delco.

My work shirt at 75c is a knockout. Larger than some sold at 98c; well made and a fine piece of cloth. I should sell all the work shirts in this territory. My chain overall at $1.25 is in a class by itself.

Wayne County

York Republican. There are two periods in the day that are dangerous ones. Nine in the morning and four in the afternoon. Watch out for them. A business man of large experience gave orders that in his organization no conferences should be held before ten o'clock. "Keep your noses close to your desks the first two hours in the morning," he commanded. By ten o'clock their domestic difficulties had receded and the annoyances in the morning's mail had been dissipated. These rules of the organization put an end to quarreling and outbreaks of temper. Nine o'clock is bad enough, but four is worse. Then the burdens of the day rest heaviest. A philosopher said if you want to know the real worth of a man take his measure at four o'clock in the afternoon. At four in the morning most any one can rise to great heights of courage, but at four in the afternoon with spirits at low ebb it takes a real man or a real woman to show his true mettle. If you, Mr. Business Man or Mrs. Home Keeper, can give a good account of yourself at nine in the morning and four in the afternoon, why then in the language of Kipling you'll be something of a man—or woman. It is hard to be interested in politics and also disinterested.—Norfolk Virginian-Pilot.

About Nebraska and Nebraskans

Will M. Maupin.

Notwithstanding the fact that the ranks of the Grand Army of the Republic are thinning rapidly, the recent reunion of the Department of Nebraska, G. A. R., at Hastings was the largest in recent years. But compared with the registration of a few years ago that of 1929 reunion was pitifully small, 108.

The only negro veteran at the reunion was Robert Ball Anderson, 88, who served in the 126th U. S. Inf., a colored regiment recruited largely from Kentucky. Mr. Anderson is a prominent rancher in Box Butte county and is credited with being one of the heaviest taxpayers in the county. He is the author of an interesting booklet, "From Slavery to Affluence." At the age of 80 Anderson married a comely negro girl 52 years his junior.

While attending the Hastings reunion Col. Thomas J. Majors and his brother, Capt. Wilson Majors, probably the only surviving commissioned officers of the original Nebraska Inf., grasped the opportunity to visit old Fort Kearney, where both of them served as United States cavalrymen after the Civil war. Col. Majors insisted that his brother, Capt. Majors, was able to point out the exact spot where the old flagstaff stood because of its direction and distance from the old guard house.

After serving four years in the Civil war the First Nebraska returned home, and after a short vacation vacationed. But before it could be ordered south Indian troubles broke out and four companies under Lieutenant Colonel Tom Majors were sent to Fort Kearney. Col. Tom Majors served five years and 15 days.

David Jack of Peru was the oldest veteran present at the reunion. He was a member of the First Nebraska, and is now 91 years old. He marched in the parade over a distance of 15 city blocks.

Sam Alexander, whose original homestead is now a part of the best residential district of Hastings, was a member of the First Nebraska. His widow still lives on the site where her husband erected his homestead cabin. It is just five blocks from the Clarke Hotel.

Rabon Gaylor was the first Congregational minister to hold services in Nebraska. He was a graduate of Goshen Academy, Connecticut, preparatory to becoming a student at Yale. While a lad at Norfolk, Conn., he was converted and became a member of the Congregational church, and for 15 years listened to Ralph Emerson. He did not enter Yale, preferring to become a missionary preacher, and in Sept., 1828, he located in Mount Pleasant, Iowa. In 1855 he visited a nephew in Omaha, and there preached the first sermon ever delivered in Nebraska by a Congregational minister. Gov. Richardson was in the congregation and urgently invited the minister to locate in Omaha.

On Dec. 25, 1855, Rev. Mr. Gaylor became the first resident Congregational minister in the new territory. In 1856 Rev. Isaac E. Heaton came from Wisconsin, and later became pastor of the second Congregational assembly in the territory, at Fremont. The first Congregational church building in Nebraska was in Omaha, 27x36 feet in size, and with a seating capacity of 250. Rev. Mr. Gaylor died in January, 1880. He established a school at Fontenelle, which was succeeded by the present Doane College at Crete. Fontenelle school never prospered, and when the state capital was located at Lincoln, Fontenelle lost all ambition. The school was abandoned and in June, 1872, Doane College born. No name was attached at first, but Thomas Doane, chief engineer and superintendent of the Burlington & Missouri River Railroad in Nebraska, made a generous donation, and when the articles of incorporation were filed his name was bestowed upon the new school.

The Congregationalists have been noted for their interest in education. They established Gates Academy at Neligh, which is still operating; Franklin Academy at Franklin; Weeping Water Academy, Chadron Academy, and Normal Training School for Indians at Santee.

Efforts to find oil beneath the soil of Nebraska go merrily forward, despite all setbacks. The prospect hole at Imperial is now down 4,000 feet, and will go another 1,000 unless oil comes before. A new well is being spudded near Campbell, about a mile from the company's original well, which was lost when a length of casing collapsed and "jimmied" the hole. Another prospect hole is being drilled near Irwin, and another attempt to find oil will be made near Red Cloud. Another rigging is set up about 15 miles north of Cambridge and drilling will soon be under way.

Should the grave of Orlando Cassler be decorated? For 50 years that question has been asked in Seward county every returning Memorial day. For 50 years the question has remained unanswered. It would be interesting to know what the press of Nebraska says, so the facts are here stated:

Orlando Cassler served his country during the Civil war, and was honorably discharged from his service. Later, with hundreds of his comrades he came west, seeking a new home. On May 20, 1879, he was hanged for murder in Seward, and his body was buried in a cemetery in that county. On several Memorial Days flowers were placed upon his grave, only to be removed by unknown persons who objected to decorating the grave of a murderer. Much ill feeling was aroused, and finally it was decided to decorate the grave. When the government provided markers for the graves of veterans of the Civil war, none was placed at Cassler's grave.

Twenty years ago the county clerk, while making a check of the veterans buried in the county, learned that there was no marker at Cassler's grave. The county authorities took the position that the man had served his country with credit and had received an honorable discharge, and was therefore entitled to a marker. But it was never provided. Cassler's name has never been carried on the list of soldier dead in Seward county. His is the only Civil war veteran's grave in Nebraska that has no government marker, only one that is not decorated on Memorial day. What is your answer to the question: "Should the grave of Orlando Cassler, Civil war veteran who served with credit and was honorably discharged, only to be hanged later for murder, be marked and decorated on Memorial day?"

Under the law no one may serve more than two consecutive terms as treasurer of the state of Nebraska. It is also the law that while one holds an executive state office he may not be a candidate for another state office. It will be remembered that while serving as lieutenant governor Samuel Roy McKelvie announced his candidacy for the office of governor, only to learn he could not be legally nominated or elected. He declined re-nomination for lieutenant governor and two years later was nominated and elected governor. When Gov. Weaver announced that he had appointed Lieut.-Gov. Williams to be a special examiner, his response to be upon a per diem basis, the question as to the legality of his drawing two items of recompense from the state arose. Lawyers differed, but the question was settled when Williams declined the appointment.

William Stebbins served efficiently as treasurer of the state for one term and was re-elected. He is ineligible for re-election to a third term. His name has been prominently mentioned in connection with the senatorial nomination in 1930, and the question of eligibility has been raised. His second term will not expire until after a senator is elected. Can he legally be a candidate for senator while still serving as state treasurer? But why should there be any question of eligibility? The senatorship is not an executive state office. It is not even a state office; it is a federal office. George W. Norris is not a senator of Nebraska; he is a senator of the United States for Nebraska. The constitutional lawyer who writes this letter decides that the only question to be considered by Mr. Stebbins' friends is not "Is he eligible?" but "can he win?"

Mr. Norris is the only "senator of the United States for Nebraska" who has achieved the distinction of being elected to that office a third time. Senator Charles McNary was the first to be re-elected to a second term, his re-election being by legislative vote in 1887. G. M. Hitchcock was the first senator elected by popular vote in Nebraska, and the first since Manderson to be re-elected. One senator elected by the legislature never served, dying before his term began, William Hayward of Nebraska City. One senator later became governor, John M. Thayer; and one governor later became senator, Charles H. Deitrich.

Catholicism is, of course, the oldest religion in Nebraska, and Catholic missionaries were the first to serve here. Coronado's visit to Quivera was, if Quivera happened to be located in the present boundaries of Nebraska, as legend says it was, the first appearance of Catholic clergyman in these parts. It is given as a historical fact that Rev. John De Padilla, Franciscan Friar, accompanied Coronado. If that is true he is the first man to conduct Christian religious services in Nebraska. From 1670 until 1776 this territory was under the ecclesiastical jurisdiction of Quebec. Then for 11 years it was under the diocese of Santiago de Cuba. Later it came under French ecclesiastical jurisdiction. In January, 1857, Nebraska was established as a separate and relatively independent "vicariate apostolic." The diocese of Omaha was erected in 1887. Rcv. James O'Connor was the first bishop, being appointed in 1885. The first Catholic church building dedicated in Nebraska was in Omaha, and was dedicated in May, 1855.

Red Cloud held a dual observance of Memorial day. After the usual Memorial day services several thousand people assembled to watch the spudding in of a new oil well.

BARNEY BERLINGER BETTER AT HIS BEST, SAYS COACH LAWSON ROBERTSON

BY PHILIP MARTIN LAWSON ROBERTSON, coach at Pennsylvania, says Barney Berlinger is a greater athlete than Jim Thorpe was at his best. Perhaps he is right. At any rate, there is no disputing the fact that Berlinger stands out as the greatest athlete of this day.

Barney Berlinger, all-around athlete, is pictured above, and in a moment of action below.

achieved a spot among the great of the track world. It was one of the outstanding scholastic performers of the east before he entered Penn and, even as a freshman, he was praised as one of the greatest of the nation. As a freshman he entered the septennial event of the indoor championships last year in New York and he out-ran and out-jumped one of the most brilliant fields ever entered to score a total of 5718 points.

Injuries kept him out of the Penn Relays, but he tried successfully for a berth on the Olympic squad, finishing third in the all-around event. He was a disappointment, however, in the Olympic Games, mainly because of inexperience and overanxiety to make a great showing.

IT SEEMS unbelievable that a big 198-pound fellow like Berlinger should do well in events like sprints, jumps and pole vaults, but there is a poetry of motion in his actions as he runs and lifts his huge body that is beautiful to watch.

Robertson, in addition to saying Berlinger is better than Thorpe, says he is the best pole vaulter in the country. That can be disputed easily, as his best mark is far shy of one made by current college vaulters.

But Berlinger deserves ranking as the greatest all-around performer in the world today. He has shown it twice, against the best in the field, and say what you will—they still pay off on results in this land of the free.

GIANTS GET BAD START BUT STILL LOOK LIKE CLUB CARDS AND CUBS WILL HAVE TO BEAT

BY PHILIP MARTIN IT being customary in any well-managed business to take inventory occasionally, it seems an appropriate time to glance over the situation in the major leagues as it presents itself after one month of play.

Riggs Stephenson, top, and Pat Malone, below, are units in the Cubs' power machine.

Giants. They have a good club and will prove it before many weeks pass. And it still seems as if they are the club that will trouble the Cards and the Cubs for the pennant.

THE Cubs have shown all the power expected from them and also have shown they were able to win on the road. They have been getting great pitching from Pat Malone and Guy Bush and some lousy hitting from Riggs Stephenson. An injured catching star is their only problem, as Grace, fifth-string receiver, is now their best workman.

THE American League players say it is going to be just too bad for the Yankees this season. They say the Athletics are a much better club, with more punch than they had last year, and the Detroit have just as much and perhaps more hitting power than the Yankees have. They also point out that the Browns are troublemakers.

All in all, it may be deduced, as Dan Howley so obligingly pointed out during the spring training; the Yankees are going to have to fight with their backs to the wall this season if they expect to win the pennant.

The Athletics already shown they are not holding the world champions in great awe and the Detroit club matched healthy wallops evenly in their series in the west. The Indians also may furnish a lot of trouble, as their pitchers have potential strength. Nearly every club seems stronger in the American League than it was last year, and it is a fact that the Yankees find worr-

National Nursery Headed By W. F. Will

W. F. Will, superintendent of the government forest nursery at Wind River, Wash., is a son of Gus Will of Wayne. Far-seeing men are in this and other nurseries planting with mathematical accuracy diminutive Douglas fir which will some day shade the burned-out wastes of land in Oregon and Washington. The Wind River nursery is the center and source of large numbers of these trees.

A million fir trees which look to be only four-inch fragile sprigs, have recently been placed in the transplanting beds at the nursery. They will remain there one year until a growth of about fourteen inches has been attained. The young trees will then be utilized in actual reforestation work.

The government purchases a great deal of the seed for the fir, though in considerable amount is brought in by members of the forest service during their duties in the wooded areas. To extract the seeds the cones are first dried in a kiln and then put through a threshing and shaking process that eliminates the chaff. The seed is then planted in beds of specially screened soil upon which are placed wooden frames with covering of wire netting. The miniature trees are left in the original beds for a year before transplanting.

The transplanting process is very particular. Two men dig a trench five feet long and six inches deep. The tiny trees are placed separately in notches of a planting board on the edge of the trench. The dirt is then filled in and the roots are kept straight so as to make healthy trees. When the trees are sufficiently mature to remove from the transplanting beds they are wrapped in single tow and wax paper, 2,000 to a bale, and placed in cold storage.

The Wind River men will plant 550,000 trees this season in a 500-acre tract. Most of the reforestation work is done in the area, about 80 to 90 percent of the trees transplanted will survive.

The aim of the nursery is to perpetuate national forests and also to demonstrate to individuals the practicability of these projects. The government expects that in time the greatest reforestation undertakings will be done by private owners on their own property.

Boy Slayer, 6, Court Problem

Here is Carl Mahan, 6-year-old slayer of his chum, Cecil Van Hoose, at Paintsville, Ky., and whose case gave the local court authorities a problem. Carl was found guilty and sentenced to the reformatory for 15 years by a county judge. Then a circuit judge set aside the decision and sent Carl home. The boy shot his playmate after they had quarreled over a piece of scrap iron. Juvenile court experts from Cincinnati examined the boy and said he showed no criminal tendencies.

Blouse Is an Important Item This Year; It Can Make or Mar the Suit

BY HARRIET

THAT "second little blouse" is presenting problems to practically every well-dressed woman these days.

For, being the suit season that it is, blouses are one of the most important single pieces of apparel this year. In fact, the blouse often makes or mars the suit.

Usually suits come with a blouse. Or if they don't, the first choice is a figured or colored blouse that tones in with the skirt and coat and gives the note of safety or dignified simplicity that one requires. But, after that blouse is selected, there comes the problem of picking another one that will change the tone of the suit, perhaps dress it up a bit.

Satin and Crepes
Satin is the classic choice for dressy blouses. But the crepes run a close second. With georgette the perfectly satisfactory fabric it is, the summer will find many sweet blouses of it. Handkerchief linen is a newcomer to the field of separate blouses. Printed organdies and chiffons are exceedingly feminine.

The making of these other blouses is one of real consideration. The average woman likes several long-sleeved blouses to one sleeveless one, so far as her suit is concerned. Long sleeves are more graceful for tailored suit wear.

Collars and cuffs play a big part in making a blouse stylish. But the fitted neckline is the very newest feature to blouses.

The tuckin blouse has won very high favor. But some women just do not look right with the dark skirt coming so high up their waistline. Therefore Paris solves this difficulty by making the blouses over-blouses but fitting the bottoms of them so they are snug as skirt yokes. The very newest blouse has a fitted lower portion. In fact, with the waist being eased into it with a few tucks right at the natural waistline.

Jackets are excellent. Yokes are new and smart, especially on tall women. The bow goes on and on endlessly, inventing new ways of being used. The very newest is to place a pert bow on the left breast pocket of a colored shantung blouse. A yellow one was very smart, made this way.

Popular Tints
Soft colors are in higher favor than dead white. The off-whites in egg-shell and dawn tints are the most popular. Jean Patou makes a stunning pink crepe Roman blouse with very intricate hand-work fashioning a geometric pattern throughout the entire body of the blouse and around the lower edge of the fitted neckline. The sleeves which puff at the wrist are set with drawn work into narrow cuffs that run up into a rectangle underneath. A circular jabot, bound with self-fabric, falls gracefully from a V neck that is held by a pin of brilliants.

A second blouse Patou makes is of egg-shell satin with three new features. Its cuffs button to the elbow and its blouse fastens from the lower edge almost to the top side with little egg-shell satin buttons. Its tie is a one-sided one that begins at the center of the back in a sweet knot and comes around that side of the neckline, falling in two folds from the left shoulder like a scarf. Third, this waist is tailored to fit the figure from the waistline down, with a slight nip in at the waist.

Blouses should be made of washable fabric, if possible. Hand-blocked silks are highly decorative but should be chosen with a view to the laundry problems. A few extra waists that launder will keep a woman well-groomed.

Stop Farm Wastes— Add Them to Your Profits

WHEN stock breaks through a run down fence you not only lose part of your crop but you stand to lose valuable animals through injury or goring. Such losses would pay for enough Red Top posts to strengthen up the weak spots in your fence lines and prevent such losses.

Corn the pickers overlook, small grains scattered in the stubble field, grain hauled or blown down are other losses that can be prevented by hog and stock tight fences around your fields. Then hog and stock could be turned in to salvage this grain. And farm animals killed through wandering on the highways are serious losses that would pay for many rods of good fencing.

All these losses can be turned into profits by good fences. Erect them on Red Top posts for long useful fence service. Keep several bundles of Red Tops on your farm for replacing rotting wood posts and strengthening your present fence lines. Or to erect needed temporary fence. Red Tops drive so easily that you can do this work in odd times.

Red Top Steel Fence Posts

Come in and let us tell you how easy it is to arrange your fences so you can earn the extra income that you can get in the form of increased yields per acre, more money for crops sold on the hoof, increased soil fertility and farm value per acre, labor saved through harvesting crops with hogs and stock.

FARRELL CAN'T BE COUNTED OUT OF NATIONAL OPEN, THOUGH HAGEN AND JONES LOOM PROMINENTLY

BY PHILIP MARTIN

SO this is June and the national open golf championship is to be played last month over the Winged Foot course at Mamaroneck, N. Y.

In thinking over this coming event, it seems that there's a young lawyer named Bobby Jones and a dashing fellow named Walter Hagen who are entered—and well, it seems those two fellows are the ones who should be—and probably will be—installed as favorites to win.

It wasn't very difficult to reach such a conclusion. It never has been when Jones and Hagen were in the field. The links, both here and abroad, make their names pop up in his letters the moment the golf turns around to golf.

There are a number of other hot golfers who will be after the open title, but there doesn't appear to be any one who can be singled out as a favorite, as Jones and Hagen can, at this time.

JOHNNY FARRELL, the fancy dresser who shoots a grand game of golf is the defending champion. Defending champions don't often repeat in the open and there isn't much belief that Mr. Farrell will. However, don't count him out.

Outside of Jones and Hagen, the most prominent contender will be the juvenile Horton Smith, who's from Missoula and who has shown 'em how golf is played in recent months. His showing was disappointing, in the British open, but he'll have a few days later and un-corked brilliant golf to win the international meet for pros at St. Cloud, France.

There are any number of others who must be counted in. Leo Diegel and Bill Melhorn are hot. So is George Von Elm, the amateur. And George Voigt, another amateur. And the list of professional include some former champions and gilded stars in Willie MacFarlane, Tommy Armour, MacDonald Smith, Bobby Cruickshank, the Turneases and many, many others.

THEY have been trying to count the Hag out for several seasons, but the old boy recently scored one of his greatest triumphs when he won the British open for the fourth time against the toughest of competition.

Hagen has won every major title he has been eligible for. He has won the national open twice. He won the professional golfers' tournament five times in seven years.

He is one of the world's greatest match players and a player who is at best when the going is toughest and there exists only a slight chance that he will be in the money.

JONES, the lawyer, hasn't indulged in any of the important meets this year and admits that he hasn't played much golf because of the pressure of business. But that isn't any reason to think he won't be in there for the title.

Jones' record of major victories includes four victories in the national amateur, two in the national open, and two in the British, and a number of southern championships.

Perhaps Jones or Hagen won't win, but they will be the fellows to beat to win if they can't.

Walter Hagen, top, and Bobby Jones, below, are favorites for the national open.
